Well the situation is different, and it isn't. It's true the U.S. didn't invade Afghanistan. I guess Carter should get a point for that. After all he had plenty of precedence: sending troops to Guatemala, the Dominican Republic, Lebanon, and Vietnam. So that part is different. The Soviets invaded and they should be condemned for it. Their domination isn't any better than that of the U.S.

However, where it's the same is that the U.S. doesn't give a damn about the Afghanis. This "independent" characteristic is usually looked down on by the U.S. Carter doesn't care about Afghanistan. The U.S. has had nothing to do with it since 1956.

The government does care about using this as a pretext for reinstituting the draft. And the government and the corporations do want to get us used to a war psychology. They want us to unlearn Vietnam.

Why do they want to do this? Well we got a hint about a year ago when a Pentagon general started talking about assembling a 100,000 man strike force. Army manuvers for the past few years have been in desert-like conditions. Finally, Business Week a few months ago let the cat out of the bag. They said that we need natural resources like oil and that "we" must be prepared to get them.

Some politicians and the military have wanted to bring back the draft for a long time. They're trying to use this crisis to get the American people behind it; not for defending freedom and democracy but for taking over Third World resources.

Today, this generation has to ask itself, do we want to go to war? Because that's what the draft is for. We have to ask ourselves why they want us to go into another country. Is it for our good? For the good of another country? Or is it for the good of only Exxon, Mobil, GM, etcetera? That's what its been for every other American intervention. They are asking the youth of this country to disrupt their lives. They are asking us to get killed all for the profit of a few.

Charlie Bagli is a Collegian guest columnist

Letter

Degnim scores!

To the Editor:

*This letter is in response to a reply by Mr. John Antonelli of Amherst (Collegian, Feb. 29). In it, he disputes Jim Degnim's assertion that it is no coincidence that the Celtics are the 'whitest' team in the NBA, and in which he asks, "Who can argue with the league's best record?"*

Well, Mr. Antonelli, success is not at issue here. No one can contend the merits of a Bird or a Cowens; nor will anyone deny the improvement over last year's inept squad. What Jim Degnim was referring to, as I interpreted it, was something that Bill Russell himself has said often in the past: that Boston is the most racist city in America. It isn't a coincidence that this numerically white-dominated team is smashing all previous attendance records. It would be nice to think this support was due solely to the team's success, but also naive in a building where 13 championship banners are hung.

If the Celtics are indeed color blind as you assert, their fans most decidely are not. And with Bird's hefty salary, Maxwell's contract about to expire, and a #1 draft pick to sign, Red and Harry Manguanian are well aware of their paying customer's preferences. To believe otherwise is worse than naive, it's foolish.

As a longtime hoop fan and Celtic admirer, I hope for their sake that if Red and Co. yield to the demands of their audience and decide they want someone who is white for his box office appeal, that it's Kyle Macy. I'm with Jim Degnim: Mike Gminski is too slow, can't jump, and seems destined to follow in the footsteps of the last White Hope of the pivot, Kent Benson.

The Red Sox are far from alone in their prejudice. What Bill Russell himself said nearly two decades ago is still true today. Boston is the most racist city in America. It will indeed be interesting to see who the Celts pick.

Fran Thomas
Chadbourne

Max Roach to appear at FAC tonight

By SARAH HAMMANN
Collegian Staff

"I was fortunate enough to be considered good enough at the right place and at the right time" commented Max Roach about his lucky break at age 16 and playing as Duke Ellington's percussionist in a New York City club.

Awed by composers and musicians around him in this cultural center, Roach was inspired to continue in piano, percussion, and ultimately composition at the Manhattan School of Music.

Appearing this Friday at the FAC with M'Boom Re: Percussion, the group that he directs, Roach described his latest venture, in a Collegian interview, as "a musical experience that is totally new. We are a group who happen to be percussionists as well as many other things. All of us write, compose, and conduct in many different parts of the country, ranging form Texas to New York City.

Involved in many musical projects at the same time, Roach emphasized that M'Boom Re: Percussion is a collective band. The accomplished and well-educated members partake in the total percussion experience and experiment with determinant and indeterminant pitches.

The original and traditional purpose for the drum solo was to give the band a breather, but Roach has revolutionized that tradition and established the percussionist ensemble. Roach is, undeniably, the most forward-looking drummer.

Playing kettle drums, cymbals, tom toms, congas, vibraphones, bells and marimbas, the musicians hope to mirror the musical attitude of the American experience. Roach stressed the singularity of America's musical experience and heritage. "American music has a personality all of its own that is made up of all groups who live in this country. We are not a homogeneous culture, nor is our music."

Americans identify with their music, and different styles of music have survived because of public support. Roach added that the latest fad of punk/new wave "survives not only as an art form but as a form of entertainment and enlightenment."

Max Roach with M'Boom Re: Percussion group

Roach hopes to see the American endowment foundations promote the "preservation and perpetuation of the American musical tradition."

Roach will continue on his hectic schedule after the UMass performance. He is currently composing the music for a new broadway production, "Jazz Set," to open in L.A. this fall and, on Sunday, will leave for a one-month European tour.

Tickets for an evening of innovative percussion are available at the FAC Box Office.

The Stables

Best Breakfast in Town

☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ featuring 99c specials ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆ ☆

Come Early and Beat the Rush

DON'T HORSE AROUND AROUND
EAT AT THE STABLES

Rt. 9 Hadley Opposite Mt. Farms Mall

INTERNATIONAL WOMEN'S WEEK

FREE FILMS

Friday - March 7
7:30 CC 101

FREE FILMS

"INDEPENDENCE DAY"
"with Cuban Women"

On Tuesday and Wednesday
March 11th and 12th From 11 AM to 6 PM

Elections will be held in the following locations
For SGA Presidency and
Campus center Board of Governors

Sylvan/Northeast: Worcester D.C.

Central: Franklin D.C.

Southwest: Hampshire D.C.

Southwest: Berkshire D.C.
(MacKimmie-Moore side)

Orchard Hill: Franklin D.C.

Greeks: Newman Center Lobby

Commuters: Hatch Front

Students must have a current U-Mass I.D.
and vote in their designated precinct in accordance with their area constituency

You Can Make A Difference

Workers

Working women at UMass (clockwise) Arlene Avakian, Leone Griffin, Amy Morse, and Nancy Paternoster. (Staff photos by Wayne Rosenberg)

UMass women on the job

By BARBARA LEBLANC
Special to the Collegian

From the grounds' and mechanics crews to the Air Force ROTC, women take part in almost every realm of University life. Some of the staff and students questioned by the Collegian expressed satisfaction, even enthusiasm, for their positions on campus and their relationships with male co-workers and students.

Nancy Paternoster and Janet Milstein are among the first females to manage the Federal Student Credit Union. "When we first came here people were skeptical. They thought we couldn't handle male customers or problems that would come up. Now they look at us in terms of our work, not because we are women," Milstein said.

Chef Virginia Berry-Henion also said that being a woman does not affect her work, and as Assistant to the Cost Controller of the campus restaurants, she feels she is learning her business "inside and out." As for men who don't like to see her do heavy lifting she added, "That's sweet, but I'm a lot stronger than I look."

Zoology student Madeling Lewis, who considers herself a feminist and believes in "equality and non-oppression," said, "The men I deal with respond well to having women in the field." Susanne Phelan, a human nutrition major whose first introduction to the women's movement came through women's music, composes songs on her guitar, dulcimer and fiddle and performs a variety of folk music with

TURN TO PAGE 14

A GREAT NEW LOOK!

Tuesday
TWO for ONE
9 til 11
ALL LIQUOR DRINKS
DISCO

Wednesday
PUB MUG NIGHT
35¢ BEERS
JIM PLUNKETT

Thursday
Weekly Special 9-1
TWO WAY STREET

Friday 3-6
HAPPY HOUR
35¢ Pub Mugs
75¢ Bar Drinks

Friday Night
DISCO
9-1

Saturday
DISCO
9-1

Serving Food
11:30 AM-9:30 PM
7
DAYS A WEEK

THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

COLLEGIAN SUBSCRIPTION

—Send the Collegian home, to parents, to friends, to relatives.
—Graduating? Get a Collegian sent to you next year at this year's prices.

ONLY $15/year or $9/semester
(on campus)-$9/year or $5/semester
DON'T MISS OUT. SUBSCRIBE NOW
fill out this form or drop by the office

Send the Collegian to _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____
Starting Date____All subscriptions must be prepaid
Your name_____
Off Campus: $15/year & $9/semester
On Campus: $9/year & $5/semester

TOP of the CAMPUS

Murray D. Lincoln Campus Center
University of Massachusetts

Sunday Sunset Buffet
5 - 9 PM 5.95

Featuring:
Tender Steamship Round of Beef
Piping Hot Entrees
Garden Fresh Salad Bar
Tasty Vegetables
Delicious Desserts

Validated Parking
Reservations Recommended
549-6000, Ext. 639

EVERYONE'S GETTING HIGH ON grass™

Government officials and students get off on GRASS™

The intoxicating new involvement card game GRASS™. Fun for the novices and challenging for fanatics. 104 beautiful cards in your own personal burlap, polylined pouch. This draw adult card game for 2-6 players has 26 contemporary original art work cards. Make a fortune in Peddle Money or watch your smoke go up in smoke.

As vicarious dealers you can battle for hours competing for supremacy of stashes, hassle piles, wasted piles and the ultimate "Score".

• 104 beautiful cards: Paranoia, Nirvana, Skim & Protection, etc.
• Official Rules
• Negotiation Regulations
• Scoring & Strategy Guidelines
• Diagrams & Illustrations

The intoxicating new card game GRASS™
6 ounces of GRASS™ only $7.95 each.

Name _____
Address _____ City _____
State _____ Zip _____
20K

Send check or money order for 6 ounces of GRASS™ only $7.95 each postage paid, to Vulture Corp., 711 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017. Allow 3 weeks for delivery.

TM — Euro-Commerce Corp.

ACADEMY of MUSIC
Northampton
Only Area Showing
FRI.-TUE. Mar. 7-11
at 7:00 and 9:00
Academy Award Winner
ZERO MOSTEL
GENE WILDER

MEL BROOKS'
THE PRODUCERS
AVCO EMBASSY PICTURES RE-RELEASE
PG
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

University of Massachusetts
11th floor
Campus Center
Reservations
Recommended
549-6000 ext. 639

The BEATLES
Saturday
March 29
in the Hatch

★ Marceau on mime

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

is quite good for the theater."

Marceau does not find much merit in television and said it is not great competition for the theater. But he is pleased about two PBS programs he has completed for this year.

Marceau started an international school in 1969 in Paris. Presently there are 70 students and 14 teachers. "We specialize in pantomime, acrobatics, modern mime, fencing, modern dance, jazz, experimental theater, and theater workshop. There are many mime companies and their work will depend on their creations. The world has created a need and a demand for a good mime," he said.

Marceau has many aspirations for the future. A painter and writer, he "would like to make and direct films."

"I have produced 30 mime melodramas. The public doesn't know I am a director. I have a long way to go," Marceau said. He attributes his great health and agility to his work. "I'm physically fit due to my discipline. I do 300 performances a year." He said he does not get exhausted from his exceptionally-demanding schedule. His 1980 tour includes two months in North America, Japan and the Far East, and five weeks in London and Dublin. In September he will return to the U.S. and perform in New York City and Washington D.C. "For a man in my 50's I am less exhausted than young people."

'The world has created a need and a demand for good mime'
—Marceau

Marceau selects from his repertoire of style and Bip pamtomimes. Tuesday night he chose both new and old pantomimes. He said, "I incorporate new material to keep the show fresh." His performance was a collaboration of exact movements, gestures, extreme expressions, and background music. "Contrasts," a new piece, showed the military versus a carnival fun house. This political statement expressed much anguish and glee periodically. Bip, Marceau's alter-ego, was created in 1947. He said, "Bip is a Don Quixote against the wind.

In the Bip pantomimes, this lovable mischievous character tried to play a violin concerto, attempted to pour himself a drink on a moving train - unsuccessfully, and in his well-known protrayal of "David and Goliath," created both characters—weak and strong—almost simultaneously.

Marceau said, "While I am performing I try to make it the greatest show it can be, to play as if it was the first time."

Lunch Specials Monday-Friday
Finest Chinese Chef from 3-star New York Restaurant
SZE'S CHINESE CUISINE
MANDARIN SZECHUAN
CUISINE
You haven't eaten
Chinese food until you've tried ours!
Monday-Thursday 11 am-9:30 pm
Friday & Saturday 11 am-11 pm
Sunday 3:30 pm-9:30 pm
50 Main St. Northampton

★ The Distinguished Visitors Program ★
presents
William Shawcross
author of Sideshow
speaking on
"Kissinger, Nixon and the Holocaust in Cambodia"
Tues. Mar. 11, 1980 8:15 PM, Mahar Aud.
★sign language interpretation will be provided

STADIUM
U. Mass.
Amherst
LIQUORS
KEGS— LIQUORS
BEER— WINE—
Molson Golden Ale, Ale, Beer 2.75 /6 10.49 cs
O'Keefe Ale 12 oz. btl..... 2.75 6 pack 9.90 case
Haffenreffer 12 oz. btls.. 1.60 6 pk. 5.90 cs.
Old Milwaukee..... 12 pack 3.10
S.S. Pierce Vodka 1.75 liter..... 7.95
Miller btls or cans..... 7.99 case
Budweiser btls. or cans..... 7.99 case
St. Pauli Girl ..... 3.20 six..... 12.60 case
Tuborg Gold 12 oz. btls. or cans..... 6.99 case

Catch Our Weekly Specials
500—Parking places
Soda—Ice—Munchies
Save money—Save gas—Save time
10 a.m. — 253-5595 — til 11 p.m.

Five College Arts

Friday, March 7
Max Roach's M'Boom Re: Percussion. Fine Arts Center, UMass, 8:00 p.m.

Saturday, March 8
Pianist Eloise Polk and violinist Francis Akos will present a concert at 8:15 p.m. in Buckley Recital Hall, Amherst College. Students admission is $1.50.

Audition for two plays scheduled by the Arena Civic Theatre at the Franklin County Fairgrounds will be held March 8 and 9 between 1:00 and 4:00 p.m. in Greenfield. The Plays are "Born Yesterday" and "Buried Child." Call Ann Christern at 773-9891 for further information.

Photos by valley women will be exhibited March 8-28 at ARTSPACE, Monday through Friday from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. ARTSPACE is located on the corner of Franklin and Main Streets in Greenfield.

Sunday, March 9
The Springfield Symphony Orchestra presents "An Evening of Rodgers and Hammerstein" at the Springfield Civic Center. 7:00 p.m. Call (413)781-7086 for information. There is a $2.00 student discount.

Lecture and demonstration on watercolors at the Leverett Craftsmen and Artists Inc., Leverett Center. Admission is free. Call 549-6871 for information.

A performance and installation by Pat Olezsko will be presented at the Hampden Gallery at 8:00 p.m. Ms. Olezsko is an artist from New York who is being exhibited in conjunction with International Women's Week. Costumes and Props are on display now through the 15th, Monday-Friday, 4:00-8:00 p.m., Sunday 2:00-5:00 p.m.

Monday, March 10
Madeline DeFrees will read her poetry in the East Lecture Hall of Franklin Patterson Hall at Hampshire College at 8:00 p.m.

Tuesday, March 11
Family Life, a film by Kenneth Loach, at the Northampton High School Little Theater at 7:30 p.m. Free.

It's Raining in Santiago, a French re-creation of the U.S. coup in Chile at 7:30 p.m., Lewis Basement, Northeast.

Kaymarian lecturing in Herter 231 at 7:30 p.m. on "A Personal Journey through the Valley Lesbian/Feminist Movement as a Lesbian Artist, 1969-1980." Reception following.

Royal Dancer's and Musicians from the Kingdom of Bhutan. Fine Arts Center, 8:00 p.m.

Wednesday, March 12
Song Swap and Jam Session at the Chelsea House Folklore Center in Brattleboro, VT. Admission is free. For further information, call (802)257-1482.

Conservator Emil Schnorr will speak on the Japanese pottery called "Satsuman Ware" at 12:15 p.m. at the George Walter Vincent Smith Museum.

"A Tribute to Eric Dolphy" performed by Oliver Lake on the alto sax at the Robert Crown Center at Hampshire College. The performance is at 8:00 p.m. and admission is free.

Friday, March 14
Turn of the Century photos by Alvah and George Hones are being exhibited at the Film and Photo Building at Hampshire College.

SEEKING GLAMOUR AND EXCITEMENT?
The Collegian Advertising Department is searching for advertising reps, so if you are very motivated and easily excited, drop down to the Collegian office and ask for Ken. Boring people need not apply.
A Car is Required

The Collegian is an Equal Opportunity Affirmative Action Employer

Carlo of Naples
foods of Italy
Now serving wine and beer.
45 State Street, Northampton, Mass. 01060, 584-9722

Andy Warhol's
X-rated
DRACULA
Mahar Aud. 7, 9, 11
Friday March 7

We are proud to be the
First College in the Country to show
Woody Allens's
MANHATTAN
starring Mariel Hemingway, Diane Keaton
Sun. March 9th CCA
Times: 7, 9, 11 pm
Admission Charged
Sponsored by the Governors Program Council

THE FREE COLLEGE RING (seriously)
HERE'S HOW:
TRADE IN
a man's gold High School ring (limit one per sale).
CHOOSE
any Siladium® class ring.
(Siladium is a fine quality jewelers' alloy guaranteed for a lifetime.)
SAVE
on a new gold College ring with the trade-in of a man's gold High School ring.
ORDER NOW
Final Day - Today
March 7 10 am-3 pm
$15 deposit
at the UNIVERSITY STORE

ARTCARVED
COLLEGE RINGS
Symbolizing your ability to achieve.

Tomorrow is Mary K's birthday!

Collegian Classifieds

Collegian Classified Rates
- 15c per word
- Student rate 10c per word
- Cash in advance
- 5 consecutive days 5 % discount
- Phone number FREE

AUDIO

 Steve Garfield  brings the latest in Pure Pop, Rock and New Wave (oldies too) to the airwaves every Friday from 9 am to 1 pm on the Friday Breakdown on WAMH, 89.3 FM stereo "The Pioneer Valleys Best Sound"

Matching Amp & Turntable must sell, come see Joe 546-7925

Harman Kardon 430 40 watts ESS 8 Speakers BIC 960 asking $425 546-1126

AUTO FOR SALE

FIX YOUR OWN CAR. The Student Auto Workshop offers tools, space, and assistance. Tues, Wed, Thurs 3-9 pm, Fri 12-5, Sat 10-5. Level one CC garage. 545-0673

'73 Toyota Mark II Wagn 73000 mi excellent shape, yours for $1980 phone Kittye 549-5412

Car for Sale: 1970 Pontiac Lemans. Good condition. Runs well. Rebuilt engine. Only problem: transmission bad. $400 or best offer. Worth it! Call: 549-1661. Best bet-nights & mornings.

74 Pinto Station autom 51000 M 2300 ccm good cond $800 call 549-1388

Fiat 124 Sedan exc mechanical condition. Some rust. 586-0871

Convertible 67 Buick Wildcat only 80 thousand, strong engine, restorabie classic 400 Mark 586-1322, 546-8908

73 Mod Mercury Stw new A.T. no rust 9 seats A.C. P.S. P.B. ex. cond. $1399 or BO 549-4373

Stn. Wgn. 73 Chrysler T & C needs some work but runs well $400 Sandy after 6:30 323-5711

ENTERTAINMENT

How can two people do the work of 13? The Coalition

FOR RENT

Cape Cod Summer Seasonal Rentals: W. Yarmouth & Dennis. 2, 3 or 4 bedroom. Save! 1-617-528-0404

Rooms for Rent $125/mo plus in private home on bus rte in Sunderland. Available Spring and/or Summer 665-7500

One bedroom Colonial Village $112/mo available now 256-6749 Andy or leave message Tobin 509

Presidential one bedroom apt available now till Sept. option on lease. Call Mr. Desperate 549-1167 6-8 pm or late night

FOR SALE

Diving Gear new US Divers Equip call Ted at 549-6488

Complete Goaltenders Equipment from skates to mask all Cooper and Bauer call Nick 253-9074

Sears Free Spirit 10 sp needs repair $60 or BO 549-6377 eves

Tyrolia 260D bindings 45$ 546-6763 Neil

Guitar Guild-Madiera w case $100 call John 253-2889

Two tickets to John denver Concert March 16 in Springfield. Excellent seats. Call John 6-8666

Furniture 2 Bancroft Squash Raquets, Housewares call Bill 549-1167 keep trying

FOUND

Found-Brown plastic rimmed glasses in Northeast quad. Call Jeff 6-3210

Women's ring found in Boyden 2-28-80 call 253-9880 for description

Representaion in numbers: . . .The Coalition

HELP WANTED

Summer work excellent money and experience. Send self-addressed stamped envelope to Box 213, Amherst, MA 01002

College Pizza needs delivery people and counter help preference to drivers with own cars. Apply at College Pizza 173 Sunset Ave.

Free Blood Cholesterol Test male students, non-runners, non-weight trainers wanted for Ex. Sci. research project call Lou 253-7507

Jobs will be scarce this summer. A nationwide firm will pay a maximum of money, for a minimum amount of time. If you have from 12-30 hours of free time each week now, or this summer, your own car and are willing to work in your hometown or school town and surrounding areas. Write: Quality Unlimited PO Box 41 Easthampton, MA 01027

Paralegal Interns Wanted The Legal Services Office has 8 positions available for full time paralegal interns for Fall 1980 semester. You can receive up to 15 credits from the Off ice of Internships will provide exciting challenging and rewarding work which will include the learning of many legal skills. Interviewing clients, legal research, and maintaining a continuing caseload under the supervision of attroneys. Third World students and women are encouraged to apply. Applications must be submitted by April 1, 1980

TV Viewer needs two Advertising Sales reps for Northampton/Amherst area. Part time/full time must have a car and be able to devote 20 hours per week call anytime 533-8554

Work-Study Position 5 to 20 hours per week. $3.50 per hour. Some night work involved related to film. Call Commuter Collective for details. 545-2145

INSTRUCTION

Guitar Lessons—Jim Kimball, formerly with the Bricker band, taking on new students. Call 549-1383

Beginner Folk Guitar Lessons Call Mary 256-6719

Guitar Lessons all styles. Beginners welcome for a free trial lesson. You choose the music you want to learn experienced instructor call Nick at 253-9074 leave message

Sentics Workshop—"The Miracle of the Possible" call Elizabeth Paton 413 549-3880

Quality Statistics Tutoring Your textbook, your class, your level Stat 121-140 Psych Stat 240 etc. Call John 253-2036 early mornings or late evenings

LOST

Lost Black Lab named Astro Always seen around campus. If anyone has any info please call Scott at anytime 549-6219. Wears blue collar, keep your eyes open friends.

Man's silver ring w/turquoise. If fd please call Leigh at 6-1134

Blue parka Herter basement name in jacket - please - Greg 253-3923

Black leather gloves with green woolen inserts Reward. Sentimental value 546-7754

Lost silver plated cross If found please call Peter at 546-4624 REWARD THANKS

Pair of blue-cased glasses gold rim lost in SBA Mon. call Tina 5-0162

Dead Sheep often mistaken for brown furry hat. Last seen grazing in Washington Tower. If captured call 546-7359

PERSONALS

STICK IT IN YOUR EAR: FREE EAR PIERCING WITH PURCHASE OF STUDS. SILVERSCAPE DESIGNS 253-3324

Sex! Blood! Lust! Experience it Friday night at Mahar Aud. with Andy Warhol's X-rated Dracula at 7, 9, & 11

Pete Jacke call Macky 665-7923

Why pay more? Chocolate Almond Coffee Beans 479 lb Silverscape Cafe 264 N Pleasant St Amherst 8-midnight Mon-Sat 12-midnight Sun

Wanted to positions as Co-President of SGA for two very capable individuals. Vote for KEN MARQUIS and SCOTT CASHMAN. #6 on the ballot

$$$$$ fun, surf, night life, and relaxation can be found in the seacoast town Ogunquit, Maine (located only 90 miles north of Boston) Five College students are invited to spend this summer living, working, and enjoying this beautiful, exciting town. Over 150 Motels, Inns, Shops, Restaurants, Theatres, Banks, Art Galleries, and Guest Houses need students to work in thousands of open professional and non professional positions this coming summer. Hiring season is right now so act promptly! To receive complete listing send $1 to the local representatives for your convenience and prompt correspondence: Ogung. Job Placement, PO Box 107, Amherst, MA 01002

Are we serious?? You bet!! Vote "The Coalition of 13" March 11 & 12

Pi Kappa Alpha presents Florida Warm-up Party at Poor Richards on Tuesday March 11, 8 pm Un-heard of Happy Hour prices all night. Tickets $1 pos ID required Don't Miss This One

Lois, Thanks for an everlasting special friendship. Happy 20th hope it's the best, but I hope you remember it! (A big night is planned) Love ya, Linny Loo

Amy, Merrell, Marcia: 5,14,19 the best of luck & HBD! Love, A Subterranean Dweller

B.T. have a great birthday. You deserve the best because you are! Love, Flounder

Spring Break in Florida?? Female wanted to accompany another. Must pay expenses. Call soon 253-3826 keep trying

To you who does it well Happy Birthday your little star

Russell, I love you more today than I did yesterday and less than tomorrow. You make my life shine bright. Together, we are the best. I am forever yours. Love always, Jill Jeri

Julie S., I really tried to make our friendship work, but all in one moment it was gone. I still care and always will. To bad! A lost friend, JJG

Yack, Yack, Yack—The trial's over, the space is yours if you want, your Friendly Phantom

Slim Whitman Lives—una paloma blanca

Happy Birthday to Debbles, the wild woman of Medfield. Love and kisses, Tom Gay Disco 7 March, 9-1, 10th floor Campus Center, everyone is invited. Sponsored by Peoples Gay Alliance.

Have fun in the sun while getting paid. Playboy Enterprises needs students to work at College Expo 80 in Daytona Beach during spring break. If interested call toll free (800) 221-4725

Juloid: Sorry, no more Chow Wok. But I have pleny of Saki. Want to do some with me? —Chew Hong

To all the Sylvan Wimps It's nice to be one of you the Southwesterner

Happy Anniversary Mr. Chris It's been a great year thanks to you. Love ya, Nancy

Happy Birthday Diane your're wicked intelligent. Knock em dead with Pub mugs. Go for it! Love ya JOA 18

Din Happy Bday I love you very very much SOL

Robin you hit the big 20! Congratulations! Go for it! Have a great day, lots of love, your roomy Ohh Snyds, Have a Happy Birthday tomorrow. Love G.

RIDE WANTED

Ride wanted to Florida for Spring Break will share driving and expenses call Mary 546-8317

RIDERS NEEDED

To/from Rochester and points in between during spring break call 546-5954

ROOMATE WANTED

Maie roomate wanted Brandywine call 549-4671

Roomate wanted spacious, quiet, 2 bedroom apartment in Squire Village $135/month call 665-7766

Roomate wanted own room Echo Hill apt $100+ call Amy 253-3707 eves

Women roomate wanted Puffton Vill own room 113.00 monthly & elec heat included non-smoker 549-4176 after 5

Want Female—share room—Brittany Apt furnished 70/month call Ellen 253-7363

1 room in Rolling Green: all utilities, A.C., furn, bus route, pool, D.W., elec heat vacant now Dave, Pete 256-0340

Roomates wanted: for cottage Cape Cod call soon 256-0396

ROOM WANTED

One bedroom apartment wanted in Amherst call Keith 546-7543

SERVICES

Attorney Jason R. Rosenthal Legal Representation. Income Tax Preparation. Days 584-4285 Evenings 253-7617

Lafler T-shirts great silkscreening at great prices professional graphics provided 549-1018

GRANOLA!! Now that we've got your attention, Vote for: The Coalition

UMass Legal Services Office offers free legal services to fee-paying graduate and undergraduate students in the areas of University administrative problems; landlord/tenant disputes; and uncontested divorces and guardianships. LSO also gives advice on Small Claims Court, and limited counselling in criminal matters. Call 545-1995; Room 922 Campus Center, UMass

TO SUBLET

3 bedroom apt Puffton Village 300 per month June to August, next to bus, pool, tennis courts, call nights 549-3765

Summer sublet 2 bedroom, on bus route, furnished, pool, tennis, disposal $260 including utilities Paul or Storm 665-3024

WANTED

Fast immediate cash for gold-school rings-diamonds- silver Jeff anytime 527-7078 586-0180

Looking for someone to teach auto harp lessons to me on Campus. Call Sue collect at 617-249-8092

WANTED TO RENT

Male/female room in Brandywine call 549-1448 after 6 PM

3 bdr. apt on bus route for fall. Willing to take over for summer. Call Raina 546-6500 or Debbie 546-8445

PIZZARAMA
355 College St.

PIZZAS GRINDERS SPAGHETTI
NEW GREEK SALAD $2.00

M-Th 11-1:30 AM
F-Sun 11-2:30 AM

FREE DELIVERY

Phone 253-3808 256-0115

International Woman's Week presents
ODETTA
Saturday, March 8, 8 PM
Student Union Ballroom

Tickets available at
TIX, Union Records
Unlimited
Everywoman's Center
$3.00 in advance
$4.00 at the door

Nuke the Whale by Danny Guidera

Norma B. by M.J. Galper

4 by Frank Emery

Bean by Kevin X. McNamara

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

Crossword

UNITED Feature Syndicate
Thursday's Puzzle Solved

ACROSS
1 Wooden shoe
6 Fish
10 Border
14 Abscond
15 Preposition
16 Not tacit
17 Card player's term
19 Salvage
20 Dreader
21 Serialized
23 Word of mouth
25 Eat
26 Adjective ending
27 Community gp.
29 Love
31 Honey
33 Paddle
34 Central point
36 Obligations
40 Hand covering
42 Glacial mass
44 Embryo
45 Entreaties
47 Shrub
49 Untruth
50 Maul
52 Roman tyrant
53 Pledge
54 State: Abbr.
57 Fuel
59 Stupid
61 Amuses
64 Eludes
67 Against
68 Famed rider: 2 words
70 Father: Fr.
71 Raison d'—
72 Scandinavian 73 Walked
74 Skilled
75 Kilmer work

DOWN
1 Ego
2 Drug plant
3 French ruler
4 Aida, e.g.
5 Iranian city
6 Box
7 Indian of Peru
8 Paces
9 Natrium
10 Indifferent
11 Turkish decree
12 Bette —
13 Choose
18 Scents
22 Hurried
24 Reveres
27 Splendor
28 Scut
30 TV oldie
32 Limb
35 Crippled
37 Summer-house
38 Pair plus one
39 Diving bird
41 Strike gently
43 Profession
46 Starch
48 Nunnery
51 Twisted
54 Conform
55 Vessel
56 Star: Prefix
58 Declare
60 Smack
62 — Piper
63 Breakers
65 Irish
66 Discerns
69 Lease

DC menu

Lunch
Grilled Cheese
Meatloaf/Mushroom sauce

Basics lunch
Grilled cheese on whole wheat
Vegetable crepes/Parsley cream sauce
Dinner
Fried chicken
Baked cod
Basics Dinner
Cheese nut loaf
Baked cod

Earthfoods

Tofu Lasagne
Rice Bulghar
Black Bean Soup
Spinach Salad
Corn Bread

On March 11th & 12th the students of UMass will have a chance to "clean up" their Student Government Association.

They will have a chance to elect 2 Presidents who will see that their money stops being wasted, and that their demands are acted upon. They will have a chance to vote for two candidates who dare to stick their necks out and who vow to turn the current "Student Government Club" into the "Student Government Association" that it should be.

Don't let this opportunity slip away. . .vote on March 11th and 12th for:

JAMES KELLY
and
RUTH LEIMONAS
S.G.A. Co-Presidents

Top of the Campus Restaurant presents

BOBBY DAVIS

with special guest

CLYDE CRINER

Fri. March 7 & Sat. March 8

TOC sticker and valid ID required to purchase alcohol

THE AMHERST DELICATESSEN

Fri. & Sat. 9 A.M.-10 P.M.
SUNDAY 9 A.M.- 6 P.M.

Serving Sandwiches, Bagels & Lox,
Quality Cold Cuts & New York Cheesecake

The Carriage Shops, Amherst
549-6314

★ Women

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

another woman at area coffee houses. "Music makes women more aware without blasting them (with ideology)," she said.

Other women are frustrated with their situations. Arlene Avakian is working in an effort to have the Women's Studies Program approved. "It's a contant struggle to keep this program alive. Nothing is easy for us...we can't even get the little things we need to keep the program going," said the Staff Assistant.

The Massachusetts Job Classification System, which determines the salaries of all University staff, confounds women who otherwise "like" their jobs. "We'd all like to know why we are a grade three, and janitors are a grade seven," said the Institutional Domestic Aid whose work contributes to Campus Center maintenance.

While students interviewed agreed on the need for improved campus lighting and problems with sexual harassment were alluded to (no one spoke openly about it), women's self-perceptions otherwise varied with their positions. Deborah Haynes said she is "privileged" to be both the mother of two children and a humanities student. Laura Cantrill, an Air Force ROTC freshperson, believes her sex will have no effect on her involvement. "I've never been worried," she said.

GOODWILL
NEAT STUFF! LOW PRICES!
Jeans * Books * Records * Furniture
37 MAIN ST. NORTHAMPTON
Take PVTA to the Courthouse

Collegian staff meeting

There will be a mandatory meeting for all Collegian staff members, including editors, reporters and business personnel Monday, 7:30 p.m., Campus Center room 917. Topics affecting all of us will be discussed.

PLANTFAIR

Green and lilly white Gifts!
at the
PLANTFAIR
Quality Plants at Low Prices!

March 10, 11, 12
9 am - 8 pm
S.U.B.

U.MASS.
Student Union Building Ballroom week of March 10th

The Third World
Theater Series presents
in celebration of
International Women's Week

a Labor Theater Presentaion

"I just wanted someone to know."
by Bette Craig and
Joyce Kornbluh

a documentary play with music
tracing the inner lives of working class women
from the early 1900's to the present.

Monday, March 10 8 pm
Bowker Auditorium
Students $2 General Public $3
this purchase can be credited
to the price of a season ticket
Tickets available at the door and at the RSO Office.
Call 545-3604 for information

Spirit Haus
Liquor Store

The Area's Largest Selection of Imported & American Wines

BEER SPECIALS

St. Pauli Girl.....$3.75/six $14.50/case
Carlsberg.....$4.20/six $16.50/case
Heineken light or dark 12 oz. btls.....$3.99/six
Foster's 25 oz. can.....$1.15 each
Falstaff.....12 oz. cans $1.65/six $5.99/case
Schlitz 12 oz. cans or btls.....$7.49/case
Utica Club 16 oz. Ret. btls.....$5.99/case plus dep.

LIQUOR SELECTION

Guckenheimer Reserve.....$5.49/quart
Mr. Boston Peppermint Schnapps.....$5.25/qt.
Jim Beam Bourbon.....$11.49/1.75 liter

WINE SELECTION

Rosegarden Liebfraumilch.....$2.39/750 ml.
Cartiers Blanc de Blancs.....$2.49/fifth
Folonari Soave, Bardolino, Valpolicella.....$2.39/liters
Portuguese Romeria Red.....$2.99/750 ml
Opici Verdicchio.....$1.99/fifth
Riunite Lambrusco.....$5.49/1.5 liter

10% Case Discount Available on Wines
Many Other In-Store Specials
Ice, Kegs & Soda Available

338 College St (Rt 9) 256-8433
Amherst open till 11:00
not responsible for typographical errors

AMERICAN MULTI CINEMA
TIMES SHOWN FOR TODAY ONLY
ADULTS $2.75 STUDENTS & SR. CITIZENS WITH AMC CARD $2.25 TWI-LITE SHOW $1.50
SPECIAL ENGAGEMENTS EXCLUDED TWI-LITE SHOW - LIMITED TO SEATING

HAMPSHIRE 4 584-7550 HAMPSHIRE MALL ON CAFE SQ. RT. 9 HADLEY, MASS

DUSTIN HOFFMAN
Kramer vs. Kramer
9 Academy Award Nominations
Fri-Sat (4:45 @ $1.50) 7:30-9:45
Sun-Thur (6:00 @$1.50) 8:30
Matinee (Sat. Sun) 2:15
PG

STAR TREK THE MOTION PICTURE
3 Academy Awatd Nominations
Fri-Sat (5:00 @ $1.50) 7:45-10:15
Sun-Thur (5:45 @ $1.50) 8:15
Matinee (Sat. Sun.) 2:00
G

Norma Rae SALLY FIELD
4 Acad Award Nominations
Fri-Sat (4:45 @$1.50) 8:00 10:15
Sun-Thur (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:15
PG Matinee (Sat. Sun.) 2:00

THE ROCKY HORROR PICTURE SHOW
R
or
THE STORY OF O
X
Midnight Shows Fri & Sat
all seats $2.50

THE FOG
Fri-Sat (5:15 @ $1.50) 7:45-9:45
Sun-Thur (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:30
R Matinee (Sat. Sun.) 2:15

MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9 HADLEY, MASS

Cruising for a killer...
ALPACINO
CRUISING
No One Under 18 Admitted!
Fri-Sat (5:00 @ $1.50) 7:30-10:15
Sun-Thur (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
R

James Caan
Marsha Mason
Chapter Two
1 Academy Award Nomonation
Fri-Sat (4:45 @ $1.50) 7:30-9:55
Sun-Thur (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
Matinee (Sat. Sun.) 2:00
PG

JOHN RITTER
HERO AT LARGE
Fri-Sat (5:15 @ $1.50) 7:45-9:55
Sun-Thur (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
Matinee (Sat. Sun.) 2:15
PG

CAPTAIN SINBAD
Saturday & Sunday
at 2:00 all seats are $1.50
G

GEORGE SEGAL
THE LAST MARRIED COUPLE IN AMERICA
Fri-Sat (5:15 @ $1.50) 7:45-10:15
Sun-Thur (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
R Matinee (Sat. Sun.) 2:15

Larry Bird of the Celtics was named NBA player of the month for February. In the month, Bird averaged 28 points, 11 rebounds and five assists per game, and shot 52 percent from the floor including 46 percent from the three-point range. (AP Laserphoto)

Dallas awarded NBA franchise

CHICAGO (AP) — Dallas awarded a National Basketball Association franchise for the 1980-81 season Thursday, prompting a realignment of teams in both the Eastern and Western Conferences, Commissioner Larry O'Brien said.

O'Brien, in Chicago for an NBA Board of Governors meeting, made the announcement at a brief news conference after a one-hour meeting with the league's 22 owners.

The Dallas franchise was awarded to a consortium of 24 investors, among them Norm Sonju, a former gneral manager of the NBA's now-defunct Buffalo franchise; actor James Garner, and singer-songwriter Willie Nelson.

O'Brien said the realignment would be as follows:

—Milwaukee and Chicago will be moved from the Western Conference's Midwest Division to the Eastern Conference's Central Division.

—Houston and San Antonio will be moved from the Eastern Conference's Central Division to the Western Conference's Midwest Division.

—Dallas will join the league as a member of Western Conference's Midwest Division.

With Dallas joining the Midwest, three of the NBA's four divisions now will have six teams.

The Atlantic Division of the East Conference will remain the only conference with five teams.

Sports notices

WOMEN'S SOCCER ¶ All interested university women are invited to participate in indoor soccer practices. Tuesday and Thursday nights at NOPE gym, 10 p.m.

Last-minute entries for the Men's and Women's swim meet will be accepted at Boyden Pool from 6-7 Monday, Mar. 10.

Entries for Men's and Women's tennis are due in the Intramural Office Room 215 Boyden, Monday, Mar. 10.

Water Safety Instructors are needed to teach in a seven week swim program for University and community children in North P.E. pool. The program begins with an introductory meeting on Wed. March 12. Volunteer instructors may obtain information sheets and registration forms from the secretary in N.O.P.E.

TOC LOUNGE
Happy Hour 3-6

Rowdy Time with Tom Abdow

Now Serving Sandwiches (6-12)
Hot Hors D'oeurves

4 for the price of 3.
Get 1 FREE!
KODAK Color Prints from your KODACOLOR Film Negatives.
Now is a great time to order additional prints of your favorite pictures. For a limited time only, bring in your favorite Kodacolor film negatives, and we''ll have Kodak make four same size color prints for the price of three.
One is free! Stop in today for complete details.
Offer ends May 14, 1980.

the UNIVERSITY STORE
in the campus center at umass
ASK FOR COLOR PROCESSING by Kodak

International Women's Week Presents—

Odetta

"One of the leading ladies of the 60's folk movement, Odetta still maintains an incredible presence on stage. All she really needs is her dignity of stance, her voice and her guitar, which is all she brought with her. The voice is a magnificent instrument, completely involving and compelling in its command of dynamics and texture, the phrasing and range a sheer delight whether she is singing children's ditties or the stylings she identifies with."

Vancouver

Saturday March 8, 1980 8:00 S.U.B.
$3.00 advance $4.00 at the door
Tickets: Available at UMass TIX, EWC and URU
Childcare: Is available, call 545-0883 for information

BLUE WALL
campus center
at u mass

Friday, March 7
ABC Recording Artists
THE ATLANTICS
"Big City Rock"
$2 cover charge

Saturday, March 8

THE BEAVER BROWN BAND
The 'Asbury Park' Sound
$2 cover charge

COMING SOON
Paradise Rhythm Shoes
Van Duren
The Neighborhoods

ALL AGES WELCOME
TOC sticker and valid ID required to purchase alcohol
in association with UPC
Productions info: call 545-2892

Everyone gets to scrummage

By DONNA SULLIVAN
Collegian Staff

"A party is mandatory," said the rugby player, "you have to give the other team a good time. How many varsity sports do you know of where both teams party together after playing?" Having a good time after the match is synonomous with the idea of the rugby game itself--fun.

Rugby at UMass and most colleges across the country and globe, is played on a club-sport basis, and according to player-coach Eric Schafer that's the way they like it. "We do not want to be a varsity sport. We play more for the fun and enjoyment. Everyone has such a good time, why should we follow varsity rules?"

Anyone who goes out for rugby makes the team. Varsity sports have tryouts and cuts, but if you want to play rugby, you will play rugby. Because of the sport's status as a club sport everyone on the team plays at every match. "I've never been at a match where I did not play at least half," he said.

A rugby game is 80 minutes long, an hour and a third separated only by one five minute break--halftime. The play is nonstop and substitutions are only allowed when injuries occur, and then only two are allowed. Fifteen men make up one team, eight forwards and seven backs. In rugby a team is called a "side" and there can be as many sides as there are men to fill them.

According to Schafer, rugby is what football originated from. There are no blocking and no forward passes. One gets the ball into the end zone and places it down. A face off is called a scrummage and no amount of explanation will make it clear--you have to see it. The field is called a pitch and if the ball goes out of bounds it is "into touch."

"The ball is a hybrid between a football and a basketball," said player-coach Paul Bourdon. "It's a fat football," added Dave Packard, team social secretary.

"We have a good time, it's more than a game of violence," Schafer said. Rugby has been stuck with the reputation that it is a violent sport, but most players are quick to refute that opinion. "People think that if we see a guy lying on the field we go up and dig our heels in his face but it is not like that at all," said one member of the UMass rugby side A.

There is a lesser percent of major injuries than in football Schafer said. The ball carrier is the only man who can be legally hit.

When the 80 minute time clock runs out, the visiting team does not shower up and head for home. "After the match we all forget about it and party together," Bourdon said. Each team even has a social secretary, at UMass it's Packard, who is in charge of organizing the party. The home team shows the visitors one great time.

Money could be a problem for a club sport at UMass but the rugby players are handling it. Each man pays $15 for dues per semester, pays for his own transportation to away matches, and helps with raffles. Despite not getting anything from the University, they have kept the team going since it was started in 1968, as well as putting social events--parties and a banquet.

In rugby lingo it's a scrummage—a face-off that starts the match. The UMass Rugby Club is shown here during one of its matches last fall.

This year the team saw a change in format, instead of one coach they now have four player-coaches; Schafer, Bourdon, Joe Lambert and Glen Conway. Dr. Robert Lawrence, a chemical engineering professor, is the faculty advisor.

Schafer, Bourdon and Packard are seniors and members of side A. They have been playing since they were second semester freshmen. "We went out by accident. We decided to check it out and I think we all agree it is the best thing we have ever done," Packard said. I had never heard of it before, Schafer said. A lot of the people who go out have never played rugby before.

The UMass team is open to anyone, grad students, undergrads, men, women, and even those who do not go to UMass. One woman is part of the squad, Paula Cabot, a grad student who also coaches rugby at Smith College. Cabot plays on side B and according to Schafer, she has a lot of experience.

The team has been running and getting in shape for three weeks and had its first ball handling practice this past Tuesday. They are a spring and fall sport and the spring season opens March 29 with a match at West Point. On April 1, they face the University College of London for the home opener. They will be at home for eight of 11 matches and hosting a lot of parties.

George O'Brien

The real story

Right about now, you're probably thinking to yourself, "I thought we said Au revoir to this clown last December. What the hell kind of stunt is he trying to pull here anyway?"

In answer to your query, I am back because I have been on a special assignment.

Inspired by my heroes Dan Rather and Mike Wallace, I sought the truth behind this enigma of a basketball team, because I knew deep down, that no Division I team could really be that bad. There had to be some logical explanation.

For weeks, I could not come up with that explanation, I was totally baffled. Then, suddenly one night while I reading Alfredo Ortiz' dissertation on the effects of the green bottle fly on Spanish history, it came to me. What if the team had wanted to lose all those games? What if they really wanted to be the worst hoop squad in the country?

My theory sounded impossible, but still, I wanted to check it out, thus I went undercover. Sometimes disguised as an ink blotter in Ray Wilson's office, I was able to pick up bits of information. Soon, I was able to put the whole incredible story together.

Unbelievably, the 79-80 season was only the first stage of an elaborate, ingenious two-year-plan put together by a crack team of administrators and PR men.

The idea, was to have the Minutemen go from the worst team in the nation to the best, all in just one year. The amazing feat would assure the team unprecedented national exposure and a unique niche in hoop history. Part 1 of the plan called for the team to finish the season with the poorest record attainable. Stage 2 calls for them to go undefeated next season and win the National Championship.

To accomplish their goals, Jack Leaman, Ray Wilson and co. had to recruit special athletes, players that would be play actors this season and all stars the next.

The staff found many outstanding performers, but came up with a real super-star in guard Jeff Bierly. Amazingly, Bierly is able to drop perfect passes, miss easy layups and trip repeatedly over the free throw line and at the same time make it look like he's doing it all naturally.

To achieve the desired end of stage 1 the Minutemen had to practice hard; practice their jump shots such that they could hit a brick wherever and whenever they needed one; practice hitting the top of the foot while dribbling upcourt, thus giving them much needed turnover insurance; practice their passing, in order to get the timing down perfect so that each one is stolen at the last second.

The team worked hard, and the hard work payed off, as the team reeled off a string of incredible early-season losses, including two unbelievable upset losses to AIC and Bently.

Against Rutgers in early January, the winless string was in serious trouble. The Scarlet Knights were playing poorly, and with but a few minutes left in the game UMass was leading. The team needed a big play desperately and got it from guard Tom Witkos who fouled out when his teammates needed it the most. Rutgers rallied, and the dreams of a winless season were still alive.

Those dreams were shattered in the Colonial Classic, 2 weeks later when the Minutemen lost their concentration, got away from their game plan and won easily.

In the playoff game with Villanova last week the troops again lost their composure and found themselves leading at halftime by seven.

In the locker room at intermission coach Wilson gave his team a stirring pep talk. A week earlier, senior guard Billy Morrison had told his coach, "When times are tough, and it really looks like the team might win one—tell them to lose one for the O'l Dip." Wilson related the story to his men and the results were stirring. In the second half, the Minutemen played their hearts out and lost going away.

And so, stage one is complete. The team finished up 2-24 and everyone from John Wooden to Slim Whitman considers them the worst basketball team since the Five Fighting Moose (the Collegian's 79 intramural team).

The UMass women's gymnastics team will be looking for its tenth win Sunday at Cortland State. (Staff photo by Ben Marsden)

Gymwomen face Cortland

By SHARON PANNOZZO
Collegian Staff

The women's gymnastics team will travel to the State University of New York at Cortland for a meet Sunday at 1 p.m. The 9—2 gymwomen will be facing one of the top Division II teams in the nation. Cortland State is presently ranked sixth in the country in this division.

In their last five meets the Minutewomen have averaged 130.56 points. According to UMass coach Virginia Evans the team's goal is to improve this average in their final meet. The highest total score they have attained was 135.50 against Michigan State. Cortland has been consistently scoring in the 128.00-130.00 point range.

Members of the squad who will be travelling to Cortland are all-arounds Liz Marino, Lisa Martin, Karen Clemente, and Chris Wilson. Specialists Debbie Smith, Laurie Knapp, Heidi Milender, and Karen Ginsberg will also be making the trip. All-around Janice Baker will be out for the remainder of the season. She sustained a knee injury against Michigan State while performing a "handspring full" off the vault.

This is UMass' last outing before the Eastern Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women meet held March 21-22 at Penn State University. The gymwomen will probably be seeded third in this competition. As it stands now, the seedings look like this: 1) Penn State University 2) West Virginia University 3) UMass 4) University of Pittsburgh 5) University of New Hampshire.

JV spikers visit Middlebury

By MAUREEN SULLIVAN
Collegian Staff

The UMass men's junior varsity volleyball team will travel to Middlebury College tomorrow for a tri-match against Middlebury and Dartmouth College.

This tri-match will be the last one played for the JVs until mid-April.

UMass is coming off a fourth-place finish in last weekend's New England "B" Open at Wentworth Institute. From a field of 16 teams, UMass managed to enter the playoffs; they lost to eventual tourney winner Bryant College 10—15.

"I was real surprised," said JV coach Kirk Peters, "UMass played a close game, especially against Maine (in which UMass came from behind to win and enter the playoffs), and Bryant. We were tied for about 20 minutes before Bryant opened up. UMass played really well."

"We did a great job at the Open," said JV player Kim Biechele, "Maine and Bryant were the toughest teams we faced all season, and I think we played the best volleyball all season at the Open. If it weren't for Bryant getting four straight points (when the score was 10—10), UMass might have beaten them. Other than that, the team did a super job. We were "together" throughout the whole tournev."

The JVs are 1—0 against Middlebury; they have yet to win against Dartmouth (UMass is 0—1).

On the varsity side, Al Morel and the players have written a letter to the New England Collegiate Volleyball League protesting the use of a graduate student by the University of New Hampshire in last weekend's NECVL Invitational at the University of Rhode Island.

At the Invitational, UMass fell in the quarterfinals to UNH; the team then found out about the grad student (which is against NECVL rules). Despite calls for the removal of the entire UNH team, only the player was disqualified. UNH went on to the finals, where it was defeated by Springfield College.

"It's about all we can do," said Coach Al Morel, "but we want to make sure it won't happen again."

Due to a lack of funds, the varsity canceled its appearance at the Eastern Collegiate Volleyball Open at Cortland State University this weekend.

Its next match is against Boston University on March 29.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY

Collegian

Monday, March 10, 1980 Student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst VOLUME CIX, ISSUE 100

Class action suit to be filed against police

By MARC FAGELSON
Collegian Staff

Three UMass students will serve as plaintiffs in a class action suit to be filed against the UMass and Amherst police for alleged violations of the student's Constitutional rights while in protective custody of the police.

The suit will be filed within the next two weeks by Springfield attorney Alan Katz, said Michelle Leaf, and Amherst-based lawyer assisting Katz. It is similar the $3000,000 federal suit filed in U.S. District court Feb. 28 by UMass student Legal Services Office on behalf of David Leger, 21, of Lincoln, and David Regan, 20 of Natick, said LSO attorney Charles DiMare.

As in the first case, the officers involved will be charged with "illegal and unconstitutional abuse of protective custody provisions of Massachusetts General Laws."

"When a police officer violates the law, it's a much more serious thing, especially when they violate the most sacred law of the country—the Constitution," DiMare told the Springfield Daily News.

Because Katz's case is a class action suit, it will be filed on behalf of all individuals, past present and future, held in protective custody without due process, DiMare said.

The class action complaint is "trying to prove a pattern of (Police) conduct," he said.

It will "challenge the constitutionality of the (protective custody) statute as applied by Amherst and UMass police," Leaf added.

By allowing the detained students neither a telephone call nor the right to a breathalizer test, and by taking the students to the Amherst plice station rather than back to their dormitories, the police were acting in violation of the authority of the protective custody statute, Leaf said.

There is "no doubt the lawsuit filed last week will be joined by this one," DiMare said. And by definition, the class action suit is more serious, because it will effect more people, he added.

UMass Police Chief Robert Joyce and Amherst Police Chief Donald Maia have been quoted as saying they would rather not comment on the suits. Maia said he did not want to comment on "something I don't know about."

The original suit may not come to trial for 18 months to two years, DiMare said. If the defense attorneys move to combine it with the class action suit to be filed by Katz, the case may not go to court for three years, he added.

The SGA election...

Who: Undergraduates with current ID
Where: In dorms, the Hatch, Newman Center, Check for you area
When: Tuesday and Wednesday, March 11 and 12
Why: To elect Student Government Association co-presidents, and members of the Campus Center Board of Governors

Staff photos by Amira Rahman.

BRAVA

MORAN

GOLDMAN

SULLIVAN

CASHMAN

WEATHERWAX

The candidates

By ED LEVINE
and STEVEN SEMPLE
Collegian Staff

Elections for the Student Government Association co-presidency will be held tomorrow and Wednesday.

Seven groups of candidates are seeking the office of campus president and student member of the UMass Board of Trustees. Six sets of candidates are running in pairs and one candidacy is a coalition of 13.

Undergraduates who paid their Student Activities Tax Fee are eligible to vote in the election. Sylvan and Northeast Area residents vote in the Worcester Dining Commons; Central and Orchard Hill Area residents in Franklin Commons; Southwest Area residents in the Southwest dining commons; Greeks in the Newman Center and commuters in the Student Union.

The following information was compiled from candidate surveys. Missing information is the result of candidates' failure to provide it.

Michael Cohen and Michael Ferrigno will appear on the ballot but have withdrawn from the race.

Kelly/Leimonas

TRUSTEE: James Kelly
RESIDENCE Kennedy Tower
MAJOR: political science
CLASS: '82
HOME: Norwood
EXPERIENCE: Distinguished Visitors Program, Student Judiciary, House Council, Southwest Radio Station

CAMPUS PRESIDENT: Ruth Leimonas
RESIDENCE: John Quincy Adams Tower
MAJOR: psychology
CLASS: '82
HOME: Boston
EXPERIENCE: "Involved in dorm activities"

ISSUES: Stop G-core; restore faith in SGA,; make SGA more accessible to students; implement more severe penalties for vandalism; increase cooperation between SGA and Whitmore; review funded RSO groups to eliminate some "special interest groups;" investigate allegations in "Field Document;" establish better communication between SGA and students; stop fee increases and review SGA practices.

"Coalition of 13"

TRUSTEE: Joan Heffler
CAMPUS PRESIDENTS: Karl Allen, COINS; Larry Blake, leisure studies; Joel Brava, legal studies; Peter Coules, biology-chemistry; Kathleen Keating, chemistry; Mike Merriam, zoology; Cathy Powers, marketing: Frank Spada, accounting; Phil Van West, astronomy; Sam Williamson, CASIAC.
EXPERIENCE: "previous senators, resident assistants and various other involvements around campus."
ISSUES: Stop VIRUS plan; increase study space; enforce housing contract; "fight oppression against minorities."

LaVoice/Moran

TRUSTEE: Richard LaVoice
RESIDENCE: Puffton Village
MAJOR: legal studies
HOME: West Springfield
EXPERIENCE: Current SGA co-president and student trustee; on Trustee, Student, Budget and Finance and Audit Committees; former Southwest Assembly president; former resident assistant in John Adams Tower; former president of Massachusetts Student Association; on Board of Directors of U.S. Student Association and former Washington Tower House Council.

CAMPUS PRESIDENT: Rich Moran
RESIDENCE: Puffton Village
MAJOR: accounting
HOME: Holden
EXPERIENCE: Board of Governors finance chairman; assistant treasurer of SGA; on SGA Systems Review Tasks Force; student senator; on senate Budgets Committee, co-op and commuter collectives.

ISSUES: Correct RSO accounting problems; bring in outside accounting firm to improve system; convince trustees of soundness of new accounting system; stop tuition and fee increases and SATF tax hike; fight VIRUS plan; fight Faculty Senate proposal to eliminate pass/fail option for core courses; initiate a study period before final exams; work on "outreach" to students and improve communications.

Kirschner/Goldman

TRUSTEE: Kim Kirschner
RESIDENCE: Brandywine Apartments
MAJOR: political science
CLASS: '81
HOME: Sharon
EXPERIENCE: Legal services Office Board; Campus Physical Planning Board; student senator; on Senate Governmental Affairs Committee and Ombudsman Search Committee; treasurer of Undergraduate Political Science Association.

CAMPUS PRESIDENT: Howard Goldman
RESIDENCE: Chadbourne dormitory
MAJOR: political science/economics
CLASS: '81
HOME: Randolph
EXPERIENCE: on Students United for Public Education; chairman of SCERA Residential Team; chairman of Distinguished Program; on Union Program Council; student senator and vice-president of Chadbourne.

TURN TO PAGE 3

HEFFLER

LAVOICE

KIRSCHNER

SULLIVAN

MARQUIS

SHEEHAN

Psst, buddy! Vote ' 'for U.S. president

By LAUREL HANSCOM
Collegian Staff

Why should Nobody be President? "Because Nobody freed the hostages, Nobody got the Russians out of Afghanistan, Nobody has brought world peace, and Nobody cares," explained Wavy Gravy, 1960's social activist, as his "Nobody for President" campaign stopped in Amherst Friday.

People swarmed the Campus Center Concourse at noon holding signs that read, "Nobody was President before Washington", "Nobody Loves You", and "Nobody Knows About Chappaquidick".

The anticipation grew as everyone waited to hear Nobody speak. Amidst the cheers and confetti came Nobody on a chair. There, placed on a small pillow, rested a pair of plastic, chattering teeth.

The crowd silenced as Gravy wound up the teeth and placed the megaphone so Nobody could speak. Gravy continued, "Vote for Nobody because Nobody keeps all of his campaign promises."

Gravy asked the crowd, "Who eliminated nuclear energy? Nobody, Who is in Washington working for you? Nobody, Who solved the problems of the poor?, Nobody. So vote for Nobody because Nobody cares."

Gravy and Nobody's New England campaign manager, Howard Cooper, were dressed in clown makeup and painted overalls with "Nobody For President" on the back.

Gravy explained that a Civil Service exam and lie detector tests should be given to Presidents. He proposed the idea of having three Presidents because "it takes two to tango and three to tell the truth. I trust nobody" The crowd cheered wildly and confetti covered the floor.

A mammoth New York rally is planned for the Democratic convention this summer. Gravy is arranging for a big band to perform. Thousands of people are expected to attend and support Nobody for President.

Four to five weeks before election day, the "Nobody Wins" bus will start barnstorming the country. A German television film crew has arranged to follow their bus trip. The focus of the campaigning will be towards college campuses.

Cooper said that there is a possibility of Wavy returning to campus sometime this spring to emcee a spring Union Program Council production.

At the end of the rally, Wavy looked around at the confetti covering the floor and said, "Perhaps Nobody will pick up this mess."

DIGEST

Connally bows out of race

HOUSTON [AP] — Former Texas Governor John Connally, beaten a day before in South Carolina where he hoped to launch a serious bid for the Republican presidential nomination, stepped out of the race yesterday.

Connally, who announced his candidacy one year ago, said it no longer would be "to the good of my party and the nation for me to continue my candidacy."

Almacs freezes food prices

PROVIDENCE [AP] — Almacs says it will freeze prices for 30 days, effective today, on more than 400 house-brand and generic products at its 28 stores in Rhode Island and 13 stores in Massachusetts.

Officials of the supermarket chain, in announcing the freeze Saturday, said the move is a response to the Carter administration's plea to fight rising food prices.

Snag in hostage transfer?

The Associated Press

Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said the embassy militants yesterday imposed two conditions for the transfer of American hostages to government authority. He chastised the captors for their action, saying it exposed their behavior to the nation.

"It is certain the students do not intend to hand over the hostages or to let the United Nations commission visit them," Ghotbzadeh said in a statement reported by the official Pars news agency.

The Kinks thrill sellout audience in high energy FAC performance

By NORMA J. COATES
Collegian Staff

The Kinks gave a supercharged show for an equally revved-up audience at the Fine Arts Center Thursday night. The sell-out crowd was on their feet for most of the concert and rightly so, for Ray Davies and company gave one of the best musical performances seen in the Valley for some time.

From the opening crowd-teasing chords of "You've Really Got Me" announcing their arrival, to the end of the third encore, the Kinks didn't let up. Ray Davies was in especially fine form, keeping audience attention at a feverish peak with his wild antics and repeated gestures for audience participation, enthusiastically answered of course. They opened with a new song from their upcoming album, presumably to be called Double Life, if the tour tee-shirts are correct, then ripped into "Catch Me Now I'm Falling" from last year's Low Budget LP. The audience was totally hooked. Best of all, so was the band. With the help of runways extending into the orchestra pit, Ray and his brother Dave were able to feed off the crowd's energy throughout the show, with Ray jumping into the ecstatic audience at one point.

Heavy emphasis was placed on their newer material, particularly songs from Low Budget and their forthcoming album. Their older songs have aged well, as the Kinks have gleaned much from recent trends and added to their old classics — and to new classics. "Superman" bored me when it was disco, but with a new rock beat it was phenomenal. Another classic, "Till the End of the Day," was rejuvenated with an arrangement incorporating elements of Bluebeat and Ska, musical forms currently undergoing revival through British bands like the Specials and Madness. Dave Davies showed his guitar roots in a fantastic blues jam during the song "Gasoline" — and what better topic is there for the blues? To be honest, Dave was incredible all night, tearing off solos which kept the audience on their feet while putting himself on his knees.

A Ray Davies song receiving a great deal of airplay these days is "Stop Your Sobbing", performed by the Pretenders, a British new-wave band. The Pretenders' version is good, but the Kinks redition was great. Hopefully, it will turn up on their new album.

As usual, it was hard to not watch Ray or Dave, but mention must be given to the rest of this extraordinary band. Drummer Mick Avory provided a steady, hard-rockin' beat which left him drenched at the end of the show. Bassist Jim Radford was obviously enjoying himself, pounding notes from his guitar with urgency and consistency with a smile on his face. Keyboardist Ian Gibbons was unforunately lost in the sound mix, but his presence undoubtedly contributed to the band's coherence and energy.

It should be noted there were various microphones and other recording paraphenalia inside and outside the hall. This may have contributed to the remarkable performance, as well as the fact that the Kinks were excited about playing at UMass again. Ray Davies mentioned that of all the audiences he'd played to in Massachusetts through the years, the crowd Thursday night was the best.

Two minor complaints: Ray didn't announce the titles of the new songs, and the Kinks neglected to play any songs from their mid to late-70's period. Thus, some great cuts from Misfits, Sleepwalker and other gems from their masive catalog were excluded. But what they did play was absolutely fantastic, and that's what counts!

Opening for the Kinks were the Brains, a band with some talent but not much originality. They'll have to learn that only Bryan Ferry can write good Roxy Music songs.

Odetta leaves 1,000 singing as UM Women's Week closes

ANN FARIS
Collegian Staff

As the 1,000 people gathered in the Student Union Ballroom Saturday night gently hummed "Amazing Grace", Odetta quietly moved offstage. Odetta, world reknown for her appearance in operas, jazz festivals, and orchestras alike, came to UMass for the closing concert of International Woman's Week.

Through out her performance her voice lifted the audience to waves of enthusiasm. Flowing from a deep baritone to a mezzo soprano, she chanted and wailed the blues. Tapping the beat on her guitar, she sang black spirituals a cappella, with a full, rich delivery. Playfully she strummed her way through children's ballads and songs of personal growth, while people hooted and cheered in response. In the end she left us singing among ourselves, carrying on the gift she had shared with us.

Odetta has performed since the 1950's from civil rights rallies to benefits for "Save the Dolphins". At the Shakespeare Theatre in Stratford, Ontario, she acted in the role of Tituba in Arthur Miller's "The Crucible". She has sung opera under the direction of Sarah Caldwell, with the Pittsburg Symphony Orchestra, and was a chorus member of the Cincinnati Ballet Company.

Odetta moves freely within the realm of American music, bringing it around the world through various concert halls, clubs and universities.

She discussed her music and the humanitarian force behind it in a Collegian interview Saturday night. Still wearing stage make—up, with an orange turban framing her handsome face, Odetta settled before her dressing table and spoke in a clear, confident manner.

Of International Women's Week and politics of the 1980's she said: "All of it boils down to just plain old human rights, a respecting of someone else's area of pursuit. We really all should be more political."

She did not stress any political movement as more important than another, and she noted music as a bond between all of them.

"You can have a sermon, a talk, or a lecture, and as soon as you add a note to it more people hear more of what you are saying. Working in one movement or another, there is always the need to bring in music to help bolster up the spirits of the people."

As she would not separate the objectives of different political groups, Odetta also would not distinguish culturally between black and white music in America.

"The music that is happening in this country could not have happened in Africa by itself," she said. "The (music) industry is the one that has separated us."

With words of advice to young musicians she cautioned about the business aspect of the art. "If you are serving the money part of the music, or the superstar, then you are sitting up there ready to be tossed by anyone who comes along," she said.

Odetta attributed her success as a musician to "confidence in herself, and a love beyond reasonability." Of the extra difficulties faced by women and black musicians she said, "No matter how many doses you have to deal with, the more you serve the music and center yourself the better placed you are. You have to love and serve that thing that is greater than all of us and if you have confidence within yourself, just stick with it."

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding January, June, July, and August, for $15 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003. Second class postage paid at Amherst, Mass. Postmaster: Send address changes to Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

IDB TIPS

Grad. Course Drop Deadline

Today is the last day for Graduate students to drop courses with a "DR"

The Information Data Bank
227 Whitmore
545-1555

What's forecast for your day?
Dial New York direct!

Aries (March 22-April 20) 1-212-936-5050
Taurus (April 21-May 21) 1-212-936-5151
Gemini (May 22-June 21) 1-212-936-5252
Cancer (June 22-July 23) 1-212-936-5353
Leo (July 24-Aug. 23) 1-212-936-5454
Virgo (Aug. 24-Sept. 23) 1-212-936-5656
Libra (Sept. 24-Oct. 23) 1-212-936-5757
Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) 1-212-936-5858
Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) . . 1-212-936-5959
Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 20) . . . 1-212-936-6060
Aquarius (Jan. 21-Feb. 19) 1-212-936-6161
Pisces (Feb. 20-March 21) 1-212-936-6262

Hear your horoscope in a minute.

Monday-Friday
8 a.m.-5 p.m. . . . 43¢

Sunday-Friday
5 p.m.-11 p.m. . . 27¢

Sunday-Friday
11 p.m.-8 a.m. . . 17¢

Sunday
8 a.m.-5 p.m. . . . 17¢

Saturday
All day . . . . . 17¢

Tax not included

*A service mark of Horoscopes-By-Phone, Inc.

New England Telephone

University & Office Supplies
Typewriter Ribbons & Typing Paper
A.J. Hastings Inc.
newsdealer & stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

Friendly Restaurants

Present this coupon with the purchase of a Big Beef Cheeseburger Special and French Fries and receive a Regular Carbonated Drink FREE.

Only redeemable at 454 Russel St. Rt. 9 Hadley
Offer expires 4/4/80

A quiet moment is shared by Barbara Porter and Jeff Ofstie on the Mt. Holyoke campus yesterday. (Staff photo by Doug Paulding)

Student Credit Union elects new officers

By PAUL BANKS
Collegian Staff

The UMass Student Federal Credit Union (UMSFCU) yesterday held it's fifth annual meeting and elected a new Board of Directors and Credit Committee.

The new officers of the Board are President Stuart Tobin, an Economics major; Vice-president, Barbara Kronish, a Finance major; Treasurer, Glenn Muir, an Accounting major; and Secretary Richard Farrick, a COINS major. Other elected members to the board are: Stephen Campbell, Mitchell Fishman, Peter Goodman, Kenneth Kravitz and Elizabeth Will.

Outgoing President Leann Orvis told the board the quality of management at the credit union is presently at the expertise level. She said there has been an investment increase from last year, and a maximum use of funds.

Outgoing treasurer Scott Sparr said the group is operating at a high level of efficiency, and that he sees no major problems. He recommended that the credit union strive to stabilize it's asset base, and minimize its expenses. He also said the Union needs security in it's shares and assets. Financially he said he feels the Union is in a good position.

Barbara Kronish, outgoing secretary, explained the criteria for granting a student loan. Considerations include capacity to repay, a steady income, collateral, and the student's past credit history.

She said the minimum amounts for loans has been raised to $300, while the maximum amount for a loan is now $8,000. "The loan volume, though not heavy, is increasing, as seniors apply for car loans," she said.

In response to increased demand the Union has expanded its hours on Fridays, staying open from 10 a.m.-4 p.m.

Since its founding in 1974, the credit union has made over $881,000 in loans and has 3,500 accounts.

The Union's assets are reported by Scott-Sparr as being $486,897. The UMSFCU is the largest student volunteer-run credit union in the country, according to Dana Cohen, an out-going board member.

Incest: A hidden problem

By TRACY CHAMBERLAIN
Special to the Collegian

Making the public aware of the occurrences of incest, helping children who are being abused, and how former victims can regain the power they lost as abused children were the main issues presented in a three—hour workshop in the Campus Center last Thursday.

"People never talk about incest," said one woman, a former victim. "Some people don't even know what the word means, and it's going on all the time."

The workshop, entitled "Incest and Other Forms of Child Sexual Abuse," one International Women's Week workshop held at UMass was attended by about 50 women.

A film, slideshow, video presentation, and a display of artwork and poetry by abuse victims, helped depict "the depths of the emotional hell" that victimized women have been, and are now, experiencing.

"It starts with the family," one woman recounted. "In my family we were taught to relate to each other sexually, and that's just the way it was." A panel discussion highlighted the following concern: It is impossible for the child to know that is not the way all fathers treat their daughters, and when this uncertainty is combined with actual threats of "don't tell, or I'll kill you," the child is in a helpless position. Abuse in the family is perpetuated by secrecy.

Many victims experienced blame of punishment as children in trying to let someone know that they had been sexually assaulted by a family member or another adult. The feeling that emerges for many of these women is a feeling that "there's something wrong with me." The women in the film, part of a support group, agreed that a lot of their painful feelings came out of the fact that they were "carrying around a burden that nobody would let them deal with."

Further victimization of women by the media was presented in a slideshow of magazine adverisements in which young girls are often portrayed as being sexually desirable, and adult women are often placed in child-like roles.

If you are a victim of incest, or know someone who is, a new support group is forming. More information can be obtained by calling the Everywoman's Center.

★ SGA

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

ISSUES: Support G-core; reduce language requirement from four to two semesters and allow for sign language and theater expression; increase services provided by student run co-ops; establish a student-run movie theater; communicate to students via a column in the Collegian and with letters to students; re-build house councils; re-build presidents council bringing in house council presidents; get more students in University-wide committees; increase campus lighting; improve RSO accounting system and fight budget cuts and tuitinn and fee hikes.

Marquis/Cahsman

TRUSTEE: Ken Marquis
RESIDENCE: John Adams Tower
MAJOR: political science
CLASS: '81
HOME: Arlington
EXPERIENCE: student senator of Southwest Assembly; Pierpont House Council; on Massachusetts State Student Association and OXFAM.

CAMPUS PRESIDENT: Scott Cashman
RESIDENCE: John Adams Tower
MAJOR: political science
CLASS: '82
HOME: Beverly
EXPERIENCE: vice-president of high school student council and representative to school committee and on John Adams house council.

ISSUES: create strong union of Massachusetts students to lobby legislature on issues affecting students; improve UMass' reputation through "awareness campaign," stressing accomplishments of UMass; maintain control of SATF; form grievance procedure for student input to SGA and increase communication to students and support "racial and sexual awareness groups."

Sheehan/Weatherwax

TRUSTEE: James Sheehan
RESIDENCE: Field dormitory
MAJOR: communication studies
HOME: Boston
CLASS: '82
EXPERIENCE: on house council and vice-president of Orchard Hill Area Government

CAMPUS PRESIDENT: Robert Weatherwax
MAJOR: biology/chemistry
CLASS: '82
HOME: Clifton Park, N.J.
EXPERIENCE: Orchard Hill Area Government; student senate, serving on various senate committees and vice-president and interim president of Grayson dormitory House Council.

ISSUES: ratification of SGA constitution by trustees; greater student outreach; faster rectifications of dorm problems and increase student representation on and off campus.

Sullivan/Sullivan

TRUSTEE: Michael Sullivan
RESIDENCE: Delta Upsilon
MAJOR: political science/economics
CLASS: 81
HOME: Hingham
EXPERIENCE: Baker House Government and "founding father" and charter member of Delta Upsilon.

CAMPUS PRESIDENT: Joseph Sullivan
RESIDENCE: Delta Upsilon
MAJOR: Political science
HOME: Braintree
EXPERIENCE: Baker House government, "founding father" and charter member of Delta Upsilon.

ISSUES: "Bring SGA to students" via monthly newsletter; improve relations between the SGA and the Faculty Senate; fight budget cuts; stop overcrowded classes; stop vandalism, improve lighting and implement proper management of budget.

The crowd will be gathering before spring vacation at

Time Out

TWO TV's

Friendly People!

Friendly Prices!

Free popcorn at Amherst's biggest little bar
37 N. Pleasant St

Help Wanted

The Housing Administration Intern Program will soon be seeking Freshmen and Sophomores for paid positions in our Management Training Program. This is a two semester job/program and all majors are welcome to apply. Brochures and applications will be available March 24. See ads after Spring Break for more info or call 545-0890, 545-1960, or 546-5532.

COMMUNITY ORGANIZERS

ACORN NEEDS ORGANIZERS TO WORK WITH LOW AND MODERATE INCOME FAMILIES IN 19 STATES (AR, SK, TX, LA, TN, MO, FL, CO, NV, PA, IA, OK, MI, AZ, NC, GA, SC, CA, CT) FOR POLITICAL AND ECONOMIC JUSTICE. DIRECT ACTION ON NEIGHBORHOOD DETERIORATION, UTILITY RATES, TAXES, HEALTH CARE, REDLINING ETC. GET A JOB THAT MAKES CHANGE. LONG HOURS, LOW PAY—TRAINING PROVIDED.

CONTACT UNIVERSITY PLACEMENT SERVICE FOR INTERVIEW WED. MARCH 12 OR WRITE KAYE JAEGER, ACORN, 404 LODI ST., SYRACUSE, NY 13203 (315) 476-5787.

PRETERM

If you have an unwanted pregnancy...

talk with one of our counselors about your decision.

Abortion/Gynecological Care/Vasectomy/ Tubal Ligation
A licensed non-profit Reproductive Health Center
1842 BEACON ST. BROOKLINE MASS 02146
(617) 738-6210

PRETERM

'TIS A LUCK O' THE IRISH SALE

BUT YOU DON'T HAVE TO BE IRISH TO BE LUCKY AT SAVIN' AT LOUIS FOODS

SPECIALS EFFECTIVE MARCH 10-15

Louis FINE FOODS
N. PLEASANT ST., AMHERST, MASS

BOTTOM ROUND ROAST
U.S.D.A. CHOICE $1.99 LB

BONELESS SIRLOIN STEAK
U.S.D.A. CHOICE $2.99 LB

ROUND CUBE STEAKS USDA CHOICE LB $2.39
CENTER CUT PORK CHOPS ARMOUR STAR VERI BEST LB $1.69
SWIFT PREMIUM DAISY HAMS LB $1.59
SWIFT PREMIUM BACON LB PKG $1.19
SKINLESS FRANKS SWIFT PREMIUM LB PKG $1.19

'TIS A BIG 9¢ COUPON SALE

CLIP & REDEEM VALUABLE COUPONS

WITH COUPON PLUS $7.50 PURCHASE OR MORE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & TOBACCO LU 76
SWEET LIFE WHITE BREAD 20 OZ BIG LOAF 9¢
VALID MARCH 10-15 LIMIT ONE AT LOUIS FOODS Louis FINE FOODS

WITH COUPON PLUS $7.50 PURCHASE OR MORE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & TOBACCO LU 77
JELLO BRAND GELATIN DESSERTS 3 OZ PKG 9¢
VALID MARCH 10-15 LIMIT ONE AT LOUIS FOODS Louis FINE FOODS

WITH COUPON PLUS $7.50 PURCHASE OR MORE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & TOBACCO LU 78
SWEET LIFE ALL VAR SODA 28 OZ BTL 9¢
VALID MARCH 10-15 LIMIT ONE AT LOUIS FOODS Louis FINE FOODS

WITH COUPON PLUS $7.50 PURCHASE OR MORE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & TOBACCO LU 79
SCOTT BATHROOM TISSUE 1000 SHEET ROLL 9¢
VALID MARCH 10-15 LIMIT ONE AT LOUIS FOODS Louis FINE FOODS

STOUFFER SIDE DISHES
MACARONI & CHEESE
NOODLES ROMANOFF
POTATO AUGRATIN
SPINACH SOUFFLE
12 OZ PKG 79¢

Not respnsible for typographical errors

We reserve the right to limit quantities

SKIPPY PEANUT BUTTER 18 OZ JAR 99¢
WELCH'S GRAPE JELLY 3 LB JAR 99¢
PURE DIGESTIBLE CRISCO OIL 38 OZ BTL $1.79
OCEAN SPRAY GRAPEFRUIT JUICE 32 OZ BTL 65¢

HORMEL CHICKEN OR HAM TENDER CHUNKS 6¾ OZ CAN 89¢
FOR BABY WET ONES 40 CT PKG 99¢
HUGGIES TODDLER 12 CT OVERNITE 14 CT DAYTIME 18 CT $2.49

ICE CREAM SANDWICHES
HOOD IRISH MINT FOR ST. PATRICK'S DAY $1.29 12 CT PKG
FLEISCHMANN'S MARGARINE QUARTERS 1 LB PKG 79¢

SNOW'S N.E. 15 OZ CAN CLAM CHOWDER 79¢
INSTANT HOT LUNCH CUP O'NOODLES 2 2½ OZ PKGS 99¢
SWEET LIFE VEGETABLES CUT GREEN BEANS WHOLE BEETS CREAM & WK CORN TENDER PEAS 4 16 OZ CANS $1

Editorial/Opinion

The cynical conscience

ERIC JANSZEN

Ever since women began refuting our culture's tacit approval of men harassing women sexually, a comprehensible (to men) definition of "sexual harassment" has been sought for application to legal grievance procedures.

According to a publication ("Project on the Status of Women and Education") by the Association of American Colleges and several private corporations, sexual harassment includes:

"Verbal harassment or abuse, subtle pressure for sexual activity, sexist remarks about a woman's clothing, body, or sexual activity, unneccesary touching, patting, or pinching, leering or ogling a woman's body, constant brushing against a woman's body, demanding sexual favors accompanied by overt threats concerning one's job, grades, letters of recommendation, etc., and physical assault."

Reading this, you have to ask yourself, "What kind of shit-head does this to people?" And you've raised a crucial point. To define "sexual harassment" is to determine what list of numerous actions adds up to one class-A asshole. So rather than waste time and effort circumscribing the disease, let's investigate the carrier.

You no doubt know a lot of shit-heads. They represent either a greater or lesser portion of the general population, in your view, depending on how picky you are and how many people have indulged themselves at your expense in a memorable way. Ultimately, your assessment of the proportionality of friends to enemies is governed by the Law of Friendship, one of three famous corollaries to Murphy's Law I'll mention.

The Law of Friendship states that friends come and go, but enemies accumulate. Taken as truth, this law goes far toward explaining why many women distrust men: it is a credence of women's experience. But the law also explains the reverse, and so doesn't explain much.

There must be a reason why, failing conscience, some men are abusive of women, as they are of anyone else who will tolerate it, while others are not. Conscience has everything to do with it.

Some people, from lack of earlier training or good role models or capitalism or genetic defect have no capacity to regret the effect of their actions on others—have no conscience. History claims that if they are exceptionally clever and lucky they can attain powerful positions and zealously inflict vicious harm on millions of people. More often, though, they simply go about fulfilling typical aspirations while casually harassing people for reasons broadly defined by a second law, the Law of the Individual, which states: Nobody really cares or understands what anyone else is doing.

Taken as truth, this law makes everyone's friend to enemy ratio an intrinsically irrational number, and implies that this is no one's fault. Everyone is each other's enemy; men women's, women men's. Taken to heart, the law becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy. In a view founded on men's potential for harming women, the world is rapers and raped (to hell with degrees); one male and the other female and that's the way it is.

Which leads to the third law, the name of which I have forgotten, which states: Bad expectations yield bad results, good expectations yield bad results. Which just goes to show—people aren't cynical, the truth is.

Eric Janszen is a Collegian columnist.

STEPHEN B. KLEIN, Editor-in-Chief; JULIE EAGLE, Managing Editor; FREDERIC M. KEILLOR, Business Manager; JACK GALLAGHER, News Editor; ROB BURBANK, Executive Editor; LISA CAPONE, Women's Editor; RENEE MOBLEY, Black Affairs Editor; JIM MAHONEY, Photo Editor; SUZETTE COURTMANCHE, Graphics Manager; JIM DEGNIM, Sports Editor; JIM MORAN, Fine Arts Editor.

Associate Editors

Jeff Baker, Fran daSche, Ellen Davis, Carolyn Mooney, Rob Stein, Associate Managing Editors; Ed Levine, Brian O'Connell, Associate News Editors; Eric Janszen, Associate Executive Editor; Debbie Wallace, Associate Women's Editor; Marcia Hospedales, Associate Black Affairs Editor; Peter Berry, Associate Photo Editor; Abbe Bjorklund, Associate Fine Arts Editor; Jane Wolfson, Associate Sports Editor; Jeffrey Bianchi, Associate Graphics Manager.

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian is a member of the Associated Press. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertisers lies with the individual advertisers.

USPS 333-220

Collegian backs LaVoice, Moran

Tomorrow and Wednesday, UMass undergraduate students will be asked to make a difficult decision: who to elect as presidents of the Student Government Associations.

There are seven teams of candidates seeking the office. Each candidate has viable qualifications. The position, however, is an important one. The job cannot be done by anyone; the people in office must know the system and how to operate within it.

For that reason we urge the election of Richard LaVoice and Richard Moran. LaVoice is the current co-president and serves as student representative to the UMass Board of Trustees. During his past year in office, he and his co-president Brian Burke have had to deal with many major issues. Control of student funding, accounting problems in the Registered Student Organization business office and the internal stability of the SGA were just some of the issues.

While LaVoice and Burke did not perform spectacularly in the position, they did do an adequate job. LaVoice has developed a rapport with the Trustees seldom seen from student trustees. His ability to deal with the administration, despite many conflicts between them, has also been commendable.

LaVoice's new running-mate, Richard Moran, is currently the assistant treasurer of the SGA. Moran has been the prime force behind the Systems Review Task Force, which recently convinced the Student Senate to hire an outside accounting firm to correct the problems inherent within the RSO accounting system. Moran's ability to deal with accounting and finance problems will greatly benefit the SGA.

Experience should not be taken lightly. The key to performing the task of SGA president is the ability to deal with the system and the people involved. LaVoice and Moran have dealt with the system for quite some time and have done so successfully.

With issues such as tuition and fee increases, the proposed elimination of the pass/fail requirement, the planned VIRUS program and other issues which effect us all, it is important that students take time to vote for the best candidates. A powerful student leadership is needed to preserve the quality of life we enjoy as UMass students.

And above all else, Vote.

All unsigned editorials represent the opinion of a majority of the Board of Directors

Letters

Wrong use of rights

To the Editor:

Scott Bickerton's letter equating the Moonies with the 'programming' of our society was very clever. It is true that we are unknowingly indoctrinated with status quo ideology all of our lives—much the way people are indoctrinated with Moonie ideology. What I take exception to in Bickerton's letter is his attitude that, 'it's all the same, man—one cult is just like another, you know?'

I condemn an ideology which values profits more than people. I also condemn a group which tries to recruit people under false pretenses. Because Moonie ideas are no better than the ideas of the status quo is not a justification for their presence on campus. As the Collegian Board of Editors pointed out, any group in America has the right to free speech. What they failed to point out however, is that we as a society must not allow the abuse of this right through devious practices under the umbrella of free speech. I say get the liars off campus now.

Karen Fitzpatrick
Amherst

No Who for you

To the Editor:

It is tradition at UMass to begin Spring Concert rumors about this time of year. Rumors are rumors but when someone has the gaul to put up posters advertising a bogus Spring Concert, we must speak up. The Union Program Council is not bringing the Who for Spring Concert. (Please don't call us; our phones haven't stopped ringing since the posters went up).

However, to the best of our knowledge, there is a man in Field dormitory who is responsible for these posters. He is the publicity director for an organization renowned for its mediocre dorm parties. (We are also curious as to how they propose to bring the Who here).

UPC will be starting its own rumors via the Collegian in the next week or so. But if you have any suggestions, please send correspondence to: RSO 327, Student Union Building, Campus Mail.

We like to be amused.....

The Union Program Council

Alternative solutions

To the Editor:

I was very pleased to learn that the Collegian has decided to print science fiction. I question your judgement, however, in placing it on your editorial page. The specific article I refer to dealt with the benefits of Three Mile Island. While I recognize that hyperbole can be an effective way of making a point, hyperbole should have a basis of fact. Your willingness to print this article leads me to conclude that you wish to perpetuate the myths and ignorance concerning ionizing radiation and nuclear power.

Having worked in a nuclear power plant for several years, I am fully aware of the dangers involved—to both radiation workers and to the public. My primary concern has always been public safety.

I am strongly opposed to nuclear power. I believe that if more people understood nuclear power for what it is they would join the anti-nuclear movement. Unfortunately, the anti-nuke groups on this campus and throughout the country have decided to parallel the anti-war movement of the 60's—demonstrate, keep in the media, get arrested.

I wonder if these same people are equally eager to turn off their stereos, unplug their televisions, and throw away their refrigerators? I firmly believe that the only way we will stop nuclear power is to show the utilities that we don't want this power. At the first SCANN meeting last Fall, I suggested this as a means of protesting nuclear power—large scale, voluntary, co-ordinated public blackouts—as an alternative to getting on a bus to party in NYC or crash fences at Seabrook. Will the utilities feel it when they can't sell their kilowatts? Will they continue to insist on increased generating capacity when they find that people won't use it? Will more people be willing to participate in this form of protest, the boycott of a monopoly? While my idea turned a few heads, nobody at the meeting seemed genuinely interested. Too concerned with Seabrook, I suppose.

I am not capable of nor interested in organizing such an activity. I am interested in fighting ignorance by sharing my knowledge of the risks and benefits of nuclear power.

Michael J. Kendra
Amherst

GOODWILL
NEAT STUFF! LOW PRICES!
Jeans * Books * Records * Furniture
37 MAIN ST. NORTHAMPTON
Take PVTA to the Courthouse

FUN, FUNK & PUNK
Antique & Special Costume Jewelry
Look for WENDY
at: CC Concourse
CASH PAID for class rings, gold silver & costume jewelry
(and twice a week every week!)

Collegian

JOIN THE COLLEGIAN!

Students interested in becoming Collegian reporters, come to Campus Center room 113 tomorrow night at 7 to met editors and get top assignments. All are welcome.

EXCITING STAFF MEETING!

There will be a mandatory meeting for all Collegian staff members including editors, reporters, and business personnel tonight at 7:30 in Campus Center room 917. Topics affecting all of us will be discussed.

psst! want a hot tip?

Ask for color processing by Kodak. Slides, snapshots and movie film. We handle all the details.

THE LATEST COLOR PROCESSING by Kodak

*Kodak processing at discount prices
*Very convienent hours in the student union

UNION NEWS & SWEET SHOP

PLANTFAIR

Green and lilly white Gifts!
at the
PLANTFAIR
Quality Plants at Low Prices!

March 10, 11, 12
9 am - 8 pm
S.U.B.

On Tuesday and Wednesday
March 11th and 12th From 11 AM to 6 PM

Elections will be held in the following locations
For SGA Presidency and
Campus center Board of Governors

Sylvan/Northeast: Worcester D.C.

Central: Franklin D.C.

Southwest: Hampshire D.C.

Southwest: Berkshire D.C.
(MacKimmie-Moore side)

Orchard Hill: Franklin D.C.

Greeks: Newman Center Lobby

Commuters: Hatch Front

Students must have a current U-Mass I.D.
and vote in their designated precinct accordance with their area constituency

You Can Make A Difference

Shop Early For Your Passover Seder

Manischewitz
Gefilte Fish 24 ounce jar $1.79
A family favorite.
Sponge Cake Mix .99
Israel Matzo 5lb pkg $3.59
Macaroons 1.29
Package of 100
Swee-touch-nee Tea Bags $1.59
Rich, satisfying flavor
Egg Matzo .99

2 for 1 Photo Sale!
Two prints for the price of one!
Now, Stop & Shop will give you, with all 110, 126 or 35mm color print film brought in for processing, FREE one complete set of extra prints! Yes! You'll automatically get 2 sets of prints for the price of 1. You won't have to ask for your free prints either. They'll be right in your envelope right through May 31, 1980.

lenten seafood Specials!
Fresh Cod Steaks $1.69 lb
Fresh Dressed Smelts 1.39
Fresh Haddock Fillets 2.79
Fresh Mussels .39
Matlaw's Clams 1.79
Fish-nics 1.09

self service deli Save!
Sun Glory Sliced
Bacon 1lb. pkg. .99¢
Armour Bacon 1.29
Buddig Meats .49
Armour Hot Dogs 1.29

corner deli The best of foods!
Available in stores with a service deli
Alpert's Brand
Pastromi $2.79 lb
Hormel Spiced Ham 1.99
Colonial Loafs 1.59
Turkey Breast 3.99
Bologna 1.39
Weaver's Chicken Roll 2.29

our kitchen Fresh dishes!
Rice Pudding 2lb pkg. $1.29
Greek Style
Cheese Pizza 1.29
Pizza Twin Pak 1.09

bakery We use fine ingredients!
Stop & Shop Sliced White Big Daisy Bread BIG DAISY BIG DAISY 2 20oz loaves .79¢
Apple Pie 1.19

SAVE 25¢
Stop & Shop Random Weight pkg.
Canadian Sharp Cheddar or Domestic Chunk Swiss
Dairy

THIS WEEK: KITCHEN HELP FROM EKCO
Kitchen Tools Pancake Turner 2 for $1
Flatware Dinner Knife 3 for $1

59¢ "Our Own" BATHROOM TISSUE 2 ply 430 count pack of 4 Rolls — Grocery
39¢ Dozen Grade A STOP & SHOP MEDIUM EGGS — Dairy
59¢ 12 ounce can frozen STOP & SHOP ORANGE JUICE — Frozen

Stop & Shop Brand Sale!
To help you stretch your budget as far as possible!

Stop & Shop "Big Eye" Pork Sale!
Assorted Pork Chops big eye pork
See the difference in meatiness...save the difference in price!
⅓ Center Chops
⅓ Blade Chops
⅓ Sirloin Chops
Corn-fed pork with less fat, more lean to the pound!
$1.09 lb
Countrystyle Pork Ribs Lean, meaty $1.19 lb
Center Cut Pork Chops Thin Slice $1.59 lb
Boneless Sirloin Cutlets Pork Loin $1.99 lb

USDA CHOICE Shoulder Steak Beef Chuck For London Broil $1.99 lb
Slice diagonally for tenderest eating.
Cube Steak Beef Chuck Great Beef USDA Choice 2.29 lb
Underblade Roast Beef Chuck Bone-in USDA Choice $1.69 lb
Boneless Blade Steak Beef Chuck USDA Choice $2.29 lb

Serve a traditional St. Patrick's Day dinner. These corned beef briskets are sure to please your family!
Corned Beef Brisket Countryfine Point Cut $1.49 lb
Corned Beef Brisket Countryfine Flat Cut $1.99 lb
Swift's Corned Beef Brisket for Oven Roasting $1.99 lb
Mosey's Corned Beef Bottom Round $2.19 lb
Whole Corned Beef Brisket Countryfine 8-10 pounds $1.79 lb produce Enjoy a taste of summer with these values!

Fresh California Asparagus 99¢ lb
Jumbo Sunkist 56 size Navel Oranges 6 for $1

"Enjoy a New England Boiled Dinner"
Fresh Green Cabbage Ideal for Saint Patrick's Day Dinner 19¢ lb
New Crop! Florida Red Potatoes Choose Your Own 19¢ lb
Choose Your Own Carrots Fresh crisp 19¢ lb
Cut Green Carnations 49¢
Available in all stores starting Thursday

Cling Peaches Yellow, Slices or Halves in Syrup Stop & Shop 2 for 89¢
Stop & Shop Cake Mix Five Flavors Stop & Shop 18½oz. pkg. 2 for $1
Whole Potatoes or Sliced Stop & Shop 16oz can 4 for $1
Whole Kernel Corn or Cream Style Stop & Shop 16oz can 4 for $1
Tomato Sauce Stop & Shop 8oz. can 6 for $1
Grapefruit Juice Unsweetened Stop & Shop 46oz can 69¢
Stop & Shop Cat Food Five Varieties 6½ ounce can 5 for $1
Liquid Dish Detergent Pink, White or Lemon Stop & Shop 22oz btl. 2 for $1
Stop & Shop Fruit Cocktail in Syrup 17 ounce can 2 for $1
Stop & Shop Apple Sauce 25 ounce jar 2 for $1
Cut Green Beans or French Style Stop & Shop 15½ oz can 4 for $1
Medium Peas Stop & Shop 16oz can 3 for $1
Stop & Shop Spaghetti Sauce Meat Flavored, Mushroom or Plain 32 ounce jar $1
Stop & Shop Grape Jelly Apple or Orange Marmalade 18oz Jar 2 for $1
Ration Dog Food Stop & Shop 6 pack of 15½oz cans $1.29
Stop & Shop Bleach One Gallon Container 2 for $1

dairy You can count on freshness in all our delicious dairy foods!
Stop & Shop Orange Juice From Concentrate 54 ounce container 99¢
Stop & Shop Sour Cream 16 ounce cup 65¢
Stop & Shop Yogurt Natural Plain 32 ounce cup 99¢
Cinnamon Rolls Stop & Shop 9½ ounce package 59¢
Natural Yogurt Assorted Flavors Stop & Shop 8oz cup 3 for 89¢
Cream Cheese Stop & Shop 8oz pkg. 69¢
Ricotta Cheese Stop & Shop 1 pound container 99¢
Cottage Cheese Small or Large Curd Stop & Shop 2lb. container $1.59 frozen foods A wide choice of the best brands. Specially priced!

French Fries Stop & Shop 9oz pkg. 4 for $1
Stop & Shop Fish Sticks Batter Dipped 8oz pkg. 89¢
Stop & Shop Fish Portions Batter Dipped 12 ounce package $1.39
Stop & Shop Tortellini With meat 8oz. pkg. 89¢
Stop & Shop Cheese Pizza 16 ounce package 99¢
Deluxe Ravioli Stop & Shop 16oz pkg. $1.09
Stop & Shop Vegetables Corn, Lima, Mix Veg. or Peas & Carrots 24oz bag 79¢
Stop & Shop Waffles 5oz. pkg. of 6 4 for $1

Ice Cream Parlor Sale!
Stop & Shop Sherbert Three Flavors ½ Gallon container $1.09
Hood Hoodsies 1.29
Joy Ice Cream Cups .89
Hendries Ice Milk 1.29
Stop & Shop Ice Cream Assorted Flavors ½ Gallon Container $1.19
All Natural Ice Cream Stop & Shop 1.19
Smuckers Topping .89
Breyers Ice Cream 1.99

Stop & Shop Aspirin 3 for $1
Cotton Swabs 2 for $1

HADLEY-AMHERST Route 9 at the Hadley-Amherst Line. 8a.m.-10p.m., Mon.-Sat.
We redeem your Federal Food Stamps.

Collegian Classifieds

To place a Collegian Classified
•Come to Collegian Office CC 113
•8:45 to 3:45 Mon-Fri
•Classified deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day

Collegian Classified Rates
•15c per word
•Student rate 10c per word
•Cash in advance
•5 consecutive days 5 % discount
•Phone number FREE

AUDIO

 Steve Garfield ***
brings the latest in Pure Pop, Rock and New Wave (oldies too) to the airwaves every Friday from 9 am to 1 pm on the Friday Breakdown on WAMH, 89.3 FM stereo. "The Pioneer Valleys Best Sound"

Harman Kardon 430 40 watts ESS 8 Speakers BIC 960 asking $425 546-1126

40 Channel C.B. Radio new, $65 or B.O. 8 crystal scanner, with crystals, $100 or B.O. Call Bob 256-8292

Pioneer SX-650 38 watts, Phillips Turntable, Advent 201 cassette record Dolby, Scott S-10 speakers 400.00 call 253-3707

SONY one point stereo eletret condenser microphone excellent cond. $25 253-3225

AUTO FOR SALE

FIX YOUR OWN CAR. The Student Auto Workshop offers tools, space, and assistance Tues. Wed. Thurs 3-9 pm, Fri 12-5, Sat 10-5. Level one CC garage. 545-0673

'73 Toyota Mark II Wagn 73000 mi excellent shape, yours for $1980 phone Kittye 549-5412

Car for Sale: 1970 Pontiac Lemans. Good condition. Runs well. Rebuilt engine. Only problem: transmission bad. $400 or best offer. Worth it! Call 549-1661. Best bet nights & mornings.

74 Pinto Station autom 51000 M 2300 ccm good cond $800 call 549-1388

73 Mod Mercury Stw new A.T. no rust 9 seats A.C. P.S. P.B. ex. cond. $1399 or BO 549-4373

Stn. Wgn. 73 Chrysler T & C needs some work but runs well $400 Sandy after 6:30 323-5711

ENTERTAINMENT

How can two people do the work of 13? The Coalition

FOR RENT

Cape Cod Summer Seasonal Rentals: W. Yarmouth & Dennis. 2, 3 or 4 bedroom. Save! 1-617-528-0404

Rooms for Rent $125/mo plus in private home on bus rte in Sunderland. Available Spring and/or Summer 665-7500

One bedroom Colonial Village $112/mo available now 256-6749 Andy or leave message Tobin 509

Presidential one bedroom apt available now till Sept. option on lease. Call Mr. Desperate 549-1167 6-8 pm or late night

FOR SALE

Diving Gear new US Divers Equip call Ted at 549-6488

Guitar Guild Madiera w case $100 call John 253-2889

Two tickets to John denver Concert March 16 in Springfield. Excellent seats. Call John 6-8666

Furniture 2 Bancroft Squash Raquets, Housewares call Bill 549-1167 keep trying

Mattress brand new innerspring 65 dollars or best offer 253-7067

Classical Guitar excellent condition with case 253-3012 late or early

5-string Banjo good condition call Karen 546-1417

FOUND

Found-Brown plastic rimmed glasses in Northeast quad. Call Jeff 6-3210

Women's ring found in Boyden 2-28-80 call 253-9880 for description

Representaion in numbers: . . .The Coalition

HELP WANTED

Paralegal Interns Wanted The Legal Services Office has 8 positions available for full time paralegal interns for Fall 1980 semester. You can receive up to 15 credits from the Off ice of Internships will provide exciting challenging and rewarding work which will include the learning of many legal skills. Interviewing clients, legal research, and maintaining a continuing caseload under the supervision of attorneys. Third World students and women are encouraged to apply. Applications must be submitted by April 1, 1980

TV Viewer needs two Advertising Sales reps for Northampton/Amherst area. Part time/full time must have a car and be able to devote 20 hours per week call anytime 533-8554

Make $244/week this summer! Send your school address and phone with stamped self-addressed envelope. Box 213, Amherst MA 01002

The Index has several openings for work study or non work study students who have experience selling advertising space or feel enthusiastic about the prospect of trying. Hours are flexible, payment on a top-dollar commission basis. If you are interested come down to room 103 for an interview on March 11 at 7 PM Index is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer

INSTRUCTION

Guitar Lessons—Jim Kimball, formerly with the Bricker band, taking on new students. Call 549-1383

Beginner Folk Guitar Lessons Call Mary 256-6719

Sentics Workshop—"The Miracle of the Possible" call Elizabeth Paton 413 549-3880

Quality Statistics Tutoring Your textbook, your class, your level! Stat 121-140 Psych Stat 240 etc. Call John 253-2036 early mornings or late evenings

Basic Auto Mechanics Workshop 28 hours of instruction including classroom theory and shop. Limited enrollment 253-7967 or write for brochure: Autoskills, Box 210, Amherst

LOST

Lost Black Lab named Astro Always seen around campus. If anyone has any info please call Scott at anytime 549-6219. Wears blue collar, keep your eyes open friends.

Lost silver plated cross If found please call Peter at 546-4624 REWARD THANKS

Dead Sheep often mistaken for brown furry hat. Last seen grazing in Washington Tower. If captured call 546-7359

Suede Gloves Amherst/bus Ellen 5-4966

Clipboard with collegian advertising information attached call Kevin 549-4533 or 545-3500

PERSONALS

STICK IT IN YOUR EAR: FREE EAR PIERCING WITH PURCHASE OF STUDS. SILVERSCAPE DESIGNS 253-3324

Pete Jacke call Macky 665-7923

Why pay more? Chocolate Almond Coffee Beans 479 lb Silverscape Cafe 264 N Pleasant St Amherst 8-midnight Mon-Sat 12-midnight Sun

Wanted to positions as Co-President of SGA for two very capable individuals. Vote for KEN MARQUIS and SCOTT CASHMAN. #6 on the ballot

Are we serious?? You bet!! Vote "The Coalition of 13" March 11 & 12

Pi Kappa Alpha presents Florida Warm-up Party at Poor Richards on Tuesday March 11, 8 pm Un-heard of Happy Hour prices all night. Tickets $1 pos ID required Don't Miss This One

Spring Break in Florida?? Female wanted to accompany another. Must pay expenses. Call soon 253-3826 keep trying

Have fun in the sun while getting paid. Playboy Enterprises needs students to work at College Expo 80 in Daytona Beach during spring break. If interested call toll free (800) 221-4725

Cathy—Happy 19th birthday from your favorite brother with the brown hair

Charismatic Prayer B.S. Tuesday March 11 CC 815 8-10 PM

Who is that guy with the hat in the wheelchair, anyway?

Patty, Happy Birthday to my favorite roomie! Love, Gina Jelly Bina

Paul, Happy Birthday from the secret tellers. P.S. packy run tonight?

Bring back pride and respect to UMass Vote Sullivan/Sullivan SGA co-presidents

Sugarplum, My dicdler salutes you XXX

To whoever took my green ski jacket from the Pub Thurs. 2/28, it's cold without it. Please return. Call Elizabeth 6-8594

Go Away. . . .with UMass Travel Club Mon (3/10/80) 4:30 pm at CC rm 917

Ronny "Shine until tomorrow, let it be" much love, Savida

RESIDENT COUNSELORS

Unique program for handicapped children seeks counselors for ten week summer program, located in Westchester county N.Y. Contact: Director, The Children's Aide Society, Box 47, Chappaqua N.Y. 10514

RIDE WANTED

Ride wanted to Florida for Spring Break will share driving and expenses call Mary 546-8317

Going south for Spring Break? Ride needed to Florida. Share $ and driving call after 9:30 PM Paul 546-6201

Looking for a ride to Cincinnati, Ohio or vicinity. Will share expenses and driving. Call Leslie at 586-6578. Leave March 14th

RIDERS NEEDED

To/from Rochester and points in between during spring break call 546-5954

Leave N Amherst daily M-F 7:45 am to Holyoke Ctr return at 4:30 Fred 549-6358

ROOMATE WANTED

Male roomate wanted Brandywine call 549-4671

Roomate wanted spacious, quiet, 2 bedroom apartment in Squire Village $135/month call 665-7796

Roomate wanted own room Echo Hill apt $100+ call Amy 253-3707 eves

Want Female—share room—Brittany Apt furnished 70/month call Ellen 253-7363

1 room in Rolling Green: all utilities, A.C., furn, bus route, pool, D.W., elec heat vacant now Dave, Pete 256-0340

Roomates wanted: for cottage Cape Cod call soon 256-0396

ROOM WANTED

One bedroom apartment wanted in Amherst call Keith 546-7543

SERVICES

Attorney Jason R. Rosenthal Legal Representation. Income Tax Preparation. Days 584-4285 Evenings 253-7617

Lafler T-shirts great silkscreening at great prices professional graphics provided 549-1018

GRANOLA!! Now that we've got your attention, Vote for: The Coalition

TO SUBLET

Summer Sublet/Fall option 1 bedroom Cliffside Apt. Sunderland $192 includes utilities on bus route 665-7966

To sublet—2 bedroom apt. furnished, on bus route, pool, tennis, all utilities incl. Avail. June-Aug $200 665-4839

WANTED

Fast immediate cash for gold-school rings-diamonds silver Jeff anytime 527-7078 586-0180

Looking for someone to teach auto harp lessons to me on Campus. Call Sue collect at 617-249-8092

WANTED TO RENT

3 bdr. apt on bus route for fall. Willing to take over for summer. Call Raina 546-6500 or Debbie 546-8445

Getaway Sale starts FRIDAY, MARCH 7 ...through SAT., MARCH 15

our famous, re-cycled CHINO SHORTS reg. 7.95 4.95

CHINESE SHOES reg. 6.95 3.95 men's & women's sizes

DANSKIN 20% OFF

Roll Bags reg. 21.95 14.95

STRAW HATS 25% OFF new Spring fashions, including Panamas

FACES A Store-full of Ideas

Downtown Amherst /Open 10-6, Mon.-Sat.

Nuke the Whale by Danny Guidera

Norma B. by M.J. Galper

4 by Frank Emery

Bean by Kevin X. McNamara

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

Crossword

UNITED Feature Syndicate
Friday's Puzzle Solved

ACROSS
1 Highway
5 Flagstone
9 Clog
14 Sea eagle
15 Regulation
16 Foolish
17 Certain pledges: 2 words
19 Swagger
20 Up to then
21 Sound judgment: 2 words
23 Barrel slats
25 Discolor
26 Dines
28 Household
32 Wiseacre: 2 words
37 Zest
38 La —, Mexico
39 Sand piles
41 Verb suffix
42 Monads
45 Turncoats
48 Eat up
50 Trampled
51 Bedaub
54 Row
58 Effective act
62 Room
63 Incompetent
64 Diet cause: 2 words
66 Direct
67 Russian river
68 Girl's name
69 Swordfish part
70 Cheese
71 Radicals

DOWN
1 Puzzle
2 Praying figure
3 Santa —
4 Rescue
5 Theater abbr.
6 Thoracic organ
7 Actor Ray, et al
8 Make drunk
9 Pantywaists
10 Feeler
11 Farm building
12 Burden
13 Head: Fr.
18 Animal sound
22 Foal's parent
24 Town: Dutch
27 Insult
29 Eager
30 Used up
31 Energy units
32 Mining nail
33 Spouse
34 USSR sea
35 Comp. pt.
36 Copper
40 Slave
43 More overgrown
44 Indonesian island
46 Spiny shrub
47 Connecting device
49 Soak
52 Passageway
53 Lassoed
55 "The — Mutiny"
56 Bitter
57 Ovules
58 Fellow
59 Jackpot
60 Fir pole
61 Zola title
65 Batter

DC Menu

Lunch
Bacon, Lettuce, Tomato sandwich
American chop suey
Basics Lunch
Garden chili
C.L.T. on wheat

Dinner
Roast pork
Beef stew

Basics dinner
Tofu nut loaf
Fish in batter

Earthfoods

Pocket Sandwiches:
Falafelburgers
Lettuce, Tomato,
Tahini Dressing
Creme of Mushroom soup
Rice Bulghar
Cole Slaw
Sour Creme coffeecake

On March 11th & 12th the students of UMass will have a chance to "clean up" their Student Government Association.

They will have a chance to elect 2 Presidents who will see that their money stops being wasted, and that their demands are acted upon. They will have a chance to vote for two candidates who dare to stick their necks out and who vow to turn the current "Student Government Club" into the "Student Government Association" that it should be.

Don't let this opportunity slip away. . .vote on March 11th and 12th for:

JAMES KELLY
and
RUTH LEIMONAS
S.G.A. Co-Presidents

COLLEGIAN SUBSCRIPTION

—Send the Collegian home, to parents, to friends, to relatives.
—Graduating? Get a Collegian sent to you next year at this year's prices.
ONLY $15/year or $9/semester
(on campus)-$9/year or $5/semester
DON'T MISS OUT. SUBSCRIBE NOW
fill out this form or drop by the office

Send the Collegian to _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____
Starting Date ____ All subscriptions must be prepaid
Your name _____
Off Campus: $15/year & $9/semester
On Campus: $9/year & $5/semester

CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER

- Eurail Passes -
- Britrail Passes -
-Youth Hostel Agent -
Bargain Fares to Europe
(seats limited)

CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
CENTER UNIV OF MASS
AMHERST, MASS 01003 413-545-0500

BLUE WALL
Campus Center
UMass

Presents—
Mondays
White Lightning Specials!
6-10 PM
Happy Hour everyday 3-6 p.m.
TOC sticker & valid ID required to purchase alcohol

MOUNT HOLYOKE COLLEGE
DEPARTMENT OF THEATRE ARTS
PRESENTS
THE LADY FROM THE SEA
by HENRIK IBSEN

DIRECTED by JAMES THOMAS
TUES.-THURS. MARCH 11-13
8:00 P.M.
ALICE WORTHINGTON ROOKE
LABORATORY THEATRE
OFFICE: 596-3100 X2406 NOON-9 PM daily
$3.00 GENERAL ADMISSION
$1.00 STUDENTS AND SENIOR CITIZENS

The Third World
Theater Series presents
in celebration of
International Women's Week

a Labor Theater Presentaion

"I just wanted someone to know."
by Bette Craig and
Joyce Kornbluh

a documentary play with music
tracing the inner lives of working class women
from the early 1900's to the present.

Monday, March 10 8 pm
Bowker Auditorium
Students $2 General Public $3
this purchase can be credited
to the price of a season ticket
Tickets available at the door and at the RSO Office.
Call 545-3604 for information

sound economy

QUANTITIES LIMITED

WE'VE GOT THE MUSIC
YOU WANT TO HEAR!

Super savings on all major labeled recording artists. . .all brand new and all at unbelievable prices!! Now available at your store for sound economy.

4.49 Jethro Tull Bursting out
4.49 Billy Joel Turnstiles
4.49 Moody Blues Caught Live + 5
4.49 Jefferson Starship Gold—Best of. . .
4.49 David Bowie Lodger(newest)
3.99 Grateful Dead Blues for Allah
3.99 Peter, Paul & Mary 10 Years Together
3.99 Atlanta Rhythm Section Champagne Jam
3.49 Aztec Two Step Adjoining Suites
2.99 NRBQ Live at Yankee Stadium
2.99 South Gr. Hits Various

Sale also features artists like: Marshall Tucker, Allman Brothres, Dave Mason, Johnny winter, Jessie Colin Young, Barbara Streisand, Blues Brothers,, Frank Zappa, EIP, Firefall, Charlie Daniels, Jethro Tull, George Benson. . .any many other all time greats. Something for everyone. . .at your University Store.

in the campus center at umass
the UNIVERSITY STORE

WORKING ON BEHALF
OF THE STUDENTS

KEN
MARQUIS
&
SCOTT
CASHMAN

SGA CO-PRES.
VOTE #6 ON THE BALLOT

THE DISTINGUISHED VISITORS PROGRAM
presents
WILLIAM SHAWCROSS
Author of Sideshow
speaking on
"Kissinger, Nixon and The Holocaust In Cambodia"

SIDE-SHOW

The New York Times says:
Sideshow excels. . . It has the sweep and shadow of a spy novel as it portrays the surreal world of power severed from morality.

Tuesday March 11, 1980 8:15 P.M.
Mahar Auditorium No Cans or Bottles Please Sign language interpretation will be provided

M.D. D.D.S.
D.V.M.
Enter Aug. '80
Class
Ph.D-M.D.
Program
D.D.S., D.C.,
D.P.M., M.D.
Program
W.H.O. Listed
Proven
Professional
Student Placement Service
100 LaSalle St.
New York NY 10027
(212) 865-4949

THE UMASS ARTS COUNCIL
is proud to present
THE ROYAL DANCERS & MUSICIANS
FROM THE KINGDOM OF BHUTAN

Tuesday, March 11, 1980
8 P.M.
Bowker Auditorium

TICKETS: GEN. PUB. $2.00
UMASS STUDENTS FREE w/ID
All other students $1.00

FINE ARTS CENTER BOX OFFICE—545-0202

WORKSHOP: Wednesday 1 - 3:00 P.M. (March 12)
CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM
FREE

Collegian Finance Manager seeks assistant to help with collections. Must be assertive and able to work well with people. See Vicki at Collegian office or call 545-3500.

DISCO ON DOWN TO...
Rt. 9
Amherst
Poor Richard's
DISCOTHEQUE
Beat the Clock on Thursday!
All Drinks
8-9 p.m. 50c
9-10 p.m. 75c
10 p.m.-closing $1.00
Tues. 25c beers
Wed. 50c drinks
Sun. & Mon.
18 & 19 permitted
Fri. & Sat.
HAPPY HOUR 8-10 p.m.

Pride & Respect
For UMass!
let's build a future

Sullivan
& Sullivan

SGA Co-Presidents

AMC
AMERICAN MULTI CINEMA
ADULTS $2.75 STUDENTS & SR. CITIZENS with AMC CARD $2.25 TWI LITE SHOW $1.50 Special Engagements Excluded Twi Lite Show Limited to Seating
TIMES SHOWN FOR TODAY ONLY

HAMPSHIRE 4 584-7550 HAMP. MALL ON CAFE SQ. RT. 9, HADLEY, MASS.
DUSTIN HOFFMAN Kramer vs. Kramer
9 Academy Award Nominations
PG (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
STAR TREK
3 Academy Award Nominations
G (5:45 @ $1.50) 8:15
THE FOG
R (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:30
Norma Rae SALLY FIELD
4 Academy Award Nominations
PG (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:15

MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9-HADLEY, MASS.
James Coco Marsha Mason Chapter Two
1 Academy Award Nomination
PG (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
GEORGE SEGAL THE LAST MARRIED COUPLE IN AMERICA
R (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
JOHN RITTER HERO AT LARGE
PG (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
Cruising for a killer ALPACINO CRUISING
no one under 18 admitted
R (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30

Bruins surprise DePaul

By The Associated Press

Guard Rod Foster and forward Mike Sanders combined for 33 points to give UCLA a 77-71 upset victory over No. 1-ranked DePaul in the second round of the NCAA Far West Regional basketball tournament Sunday.

The defeat knocked DePaul out of the single-elimination tournament and advanced UCLA to a semifinal game against a yet-to-be-named opponent Thursday in Tucson.

Terry Cummings led all scorers with 23 points for DePaul, and Mark Aguirre added 19, but their joint efforts weren't enough to offset the balanced UCLA scoring as five Bruins reached double figures.

DePaul ended its season at 26-2 while UCLA is now 19-9.

The Bruins surprised DePaul by grabbing 4-0 lead and setting the game tempo in the initial two minutes of play.

DePaul managed to draw back into a 4-4 tie on a Aguirre layup with 16:50 left in the first half.

But the Bruins kept close to their heavily favored opponents as the teams battled to four ties and the lead switched hands twice times before UCLA went out front 34-32 at the half.

The Bruins moved out to a five-point margin on Foster's layup with 18:32 left, buy DePaul bounced back for a 39-38 edge on one hand jumper by Skip Dillard with 17:19 left. Clyde Bradshaw expanded the lad to three points moments later.

But then Sanders hit and James Wilks sent UCLA ahead by one with 14:20 to go, and the Bruins were never headed again, though ties continued to be frequent.

The last deadlock came with 1:38 left when Aguirre hit a pair of free throws to make it 67-67. UCLA then took over again and rode out the remaining play on its free throw accuracy with the final score the biggest margin the Bruinshad been able to amass throughout the game.

Meanwhile, Eric Santifer scored career-high 29 points as sixth-ranked Syracuse opened a big early lead and rolled to a 97-83 victory over Villanova Sunday in the second round of the NCAA East Regional basketball playoffs in Providence.

DePaul guard Clyde Bradshaw has his path to the basket blocked by Michael Holton of UCLA in yesterday's Bruin victory. (AP Laserphoto)

In the first game of the doubleheader, Craig Shelton scored 27 points and keyed a strong second half to help 11th-ranked Georgetown beat 19th-ranked Iona 74-71.

The results sent the winners into Friday night's East Regional semifinals in Philadelphia where Syracuse, 26-3, will meet Iowa and Geargetown, 25-5, faces Maryland.

The nightcap was all Syracuse once the Orangemen got rolling midway through the first half with an 18-4 spurt sparked by Santifer and Dan Schayes.

That pair combined for 12 points in that streak as the Big East team moved from a 20-16 lead into a commanding 38-20 advantage with about three minutes left in the first half.

The Orangemen held a 40-28 lead, with the help of 10 points each from Santifer and Shcayes, at the half and continued to pour it on after intermission with a fast breaking offense. They mounted their lead to as much as 18 points.

And All-America guard Kyle Macy scored 14 points in the first half for Kentucky en route to a 97-78 victory over Florida State in the second round of the NCAA Mideast regionals.

In the first game, Isiah Thomas and Butcher Carter combined for 33 points to lead Indiana to a 68-59 victory over Virginia Tech at Diddle Arena on the Western Kentucky University campus.

Although shooting only 42.5 percent in the first half, Kentucky took a 49-27 lead and completely dominated its Metro Conference opponent.

Macy finished with 16 points to lead a balanced Kentucky attack that saw five players score in double figures and 10 players break into the scoring column.

Gymwomen top Cortland

By SHARON PANNOZZO
Collegian Staff

In their tenth consecutive triumph, the gymwomen overwhelmed the State University of New York at Cortland yesterday 134.25-127.65. This victory will aid the squad in the overall regional ratings which determine the seedings for the Eastern Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women meet to be held March 21-22 at Penn State University.

For UMass' Lisa Martin, this was her best performance of the season, winning the all-around competition with a 34.75 total. Liz Marino also had an outstanding afternoon, scoring a 34.25 to place her second behind Martin.

The Minutewomen swept first place in all four events. Liz Marino scored a 9.1 in the vault, Heidi Milender an 8.55 on the bars, Martin an 8.77 on the balance beam, and Marino once again scored a 9.1, but this time in floor exercises.

For Cortland it was a disappointing showing. Its top place finisher B. Sholtes scored an 8.55 to tie for first place on the bars, and second place in both the beams and the floor exercises, scoring an 8.25 and 8.65 respectively. In the vault Kate Shea placed third with an 8.5 for Cortland. Besides Sholtes and O'Shea, the other top positions were captured by members of the UMass squad.

According to gymwomen coach Virginia Evans, this victory should firmly establish UMass in third place in the regional qualifiers. In preparation for the all-important EAIAW's the team will try to improve its performance on the balance beam, which has given the team trouble throughout the season. The loss of beam specialists Janice Baker and Amy Riuli to injuries have been key factors.

"We expect that this will be our highest scoring meet of the season," said Evans. Their goal is to score 136.00 or better which Evans feels is a very realistic possibility if the squad performs to its potential.

The next stop for the 10-2 gymwomen is Penn State and the EAIAW's.

Philadelphia Phillies relief pitcher Tug McGraw takes his turn pitching batting practice at the team's spring training camp in Clearwater Florida. (AP Laserphoto)

Mermen place thirteenth at New England meet

By SCOTT SOLOMON
Collegian Staff

SPRINGFIELD – It was hardly a surprise.

When Williams College chalked up its second consecutive victory in the 61st annual New England Intercollegiate Swimming Association Championship, collection 479 points, none of the 1000 or so paid customers were even mildly stunned.

The Ephmen, who now head into Division III national championships, came to town this weekend ready to meet the 26-team competition head on, and the boys from Williamstown did just that.

On Thursday night, the Eph's Robert Bowman and Jeffery Mook captured the three-four positions in the finals of the 1650-yard freestyle event, with times of 10:00.2 and 10:10.1 respectively.

It was the beginning of another championship competition for Williams, as they placed in the top ten in 17 of the meet's 18 events.

The UMass swimmers completed the meet in 13th place, with a 75-point total. The score, which is under half of the team's 1979 tally, does not reflect the excellent individual efforts contributed by the Minutemen.

Mike Boucher turned in his best time in the trial run of the 1650 Thursday afternoon, with a finishing mark of 17:51.6, which was good for 21st place. Boucher's mark set an individual UMass record. The old mark was 17:58.4, set by Ben Crooker in 1975.

Dave Stevens recorded a ninth place finish in the final round of the 200-yard breastroke (2:17.3), behind Leigh Philbrick of Bowdoin College and Bryan Volpp of Williams.

Mark Vernaglia came through for UMass with an impressive showing in the diving competition. The sophomore diver collected 367.89 total points in the one-meter event, which was enough for a tenth place finish.

Butterflier Jib Bowers scored a fifth place mark in the finals of the 100 fly, with a time of :52.66, one second in front of Jow Schweitzer of Norwhich University.

As a team the Minutemen placed second in the consolation round of the 800-yard freestyle relay, as the foursome of Steve Samuel, Bob DeConinck, John Sleeman, and Tom Dundon finished in 7:24.1.

In the 400-yard free relay, Samuel, Sleeman, Dundon, and freshman John Kruse sped to a 3:14.8 finish, second only to Southern Connecticut State College, in the consolation round of that event.

JV Spikers split

By MAUREEN SULLIVAN
Collegian Staff

The men's junior varsity volleyball team split a tri-match held at Middlebury College last Saturday. UMass lost to Williams College 15-11, 9-15, 7-15, and mowed over Middlebury 15-6, 15-5.

Against Williams, UMass had problems setting to the middle; its middle attack did not work properly. Despite a good defensive showing (including Kim Biechele's full dive dig), the more experienced Ephmen rallied from a first-game loss to take the match.

"I don't know why UMass lost," coach Al Morel, "The team may have lost concentration, or perhaps it was the long ride. I don't know, we just got flat. It was a real disappointing loss. We got to assert ourselves against teams like Williams and Amherst and Dartmouth (who didn't make the trip to Middlebury)."

Despite the loss, UMass came back against a taller Middlebury squad, taking advantage of Middlebury's poor blocking to score easily.

"I know this JV is getting experience," he said. "At the Jamboree last month, only one of the starters had ever played volleyball before. Now, they are getting playing experience against good teams. The middle blockers (Steve Geryk and Jack Chandler) have got to be the best blocker combination in the division. And Kim played super; he's coming off an injured foot and doing some great things defensively. Pretty soon, this team's gonna start taking it to the other teams in Division Two (of the New England Collegiate Volleyball League)."

Both varsity and junior varsity will have no matches in the next two weeks, due to Spring Break. The varsity next plays Boston University March 29, while the JVs take on Amherst College and Dartmouth College at Amherst on April 5.

NUMMO

volume 8 number 17 10 february 1980

THE HARDER THEY COME

A Novel by Michael Thelwell

This rich novel is roughly adapted—as was the acclaimed feature film of the same title— from the life and exploits of Rhygin, a legendary gunman and folk hero who lived in and around Kingston, Jamaica in the late 1950's. Capturing, with poetry and precision, the rhythms, textures and idioms of Jamaica's disparate cultures, Thelwell records Rhygin's journey from a pastoral, morally coherent peasant culture to the crowded, predatory urban slum of Kingston. We follow Rhygin's painful and exhilarating transformation from country boy to city—wise ganja dealer and reggae star. Ultimately, his rebellion against a corrupt power structure leads him to become a celebrated outlaw.

"This masterly achieved novel shows Thelwell to be one of the best writers to have emerged out of the agonies of the Black liberation movements. The Harder They Come will survive as one of the very few novels worthy of the Black experience in our age." — Harold Bloom, Distinguished Professor of Literature, Yale University.

"Michael Thelwell's profound love of Jamaica has nurtured the content of this beautifully achieved and memorable novel. I haven't experienced a more truthful, passionate and harrowing report on the Third World. Thelwell's book will last and last." -Andrew Salkey

"Michael Thelwell's powerful and poetic new novel—a saga of the struggle—for—life in Jamaica resonating through the African diaspora— is a work of epic proportion." Sidney Kaplan, Commonwealth Professor of Literature, the University of Massachusetts.

"The Harder They Come will take its place among the few great works on the struggles of the Third World. It is a moving and rewarding peice of writing inspired by great love, anger and compassion."-Kwame Ture (Stokely Carmichael(

Michael Thelwell is a Jamaican who teaches third world literature at the University of Massachusetts. His short stories and literary and political essays have appeared in Partisan Review, Black Scholar and The Massachusetts Review, among others.●

Film Spawns A Big Jamaican Novel

By Thomas Lask writer for the New York Times.

Of novelizations of motion pictures there is no end. The practice of fleshing out a popular movie by adding dialogue and description to a script and then marketing it as a quickie mass—market paperback is as common as the flu in winter. But Michael Thelwell's "The Harder They Come," which Grove Press will publish next April, is as much like the standard film novelization as an ocean liner is like a dugout canoe.

The novel is based on the Jamaican movie of the name, which was made by Perry Henzell, a fifth—generation white Jamaican, and which was released here in 1973. It was the first feature film made in Jamaica and is athe story of the destruction of a singer—gangster on that Caribbean island. since its release, "The Harder They Come" has enjoyed a following, especially on campuses, and is frequently shown at revival houses. The movie is as popular for its reggae museic as for its story line and characters.

Among those who saw and liked the film were Barney Rosset, head of Grove Press, and Kent E. Carroll, vice president and editor at the publishing house. Both agreed that "the movie represented a terrific idea and that something more should be done with it.z" So they went right out and bought publishing rights to the story from Mr. Henzell. Mr. Carroll thereupon got in touch with Mr. Thelwell, who teaches third—world literature at the University of Massachusetts and whom he knew only through his writings (short stories and essays). Mr. Thelwell fel in with their ideas, though Mr. Carroll quotes him as saying: "I don't just want to write the novelization of the movie. I want to take the character and situations and build a novel around them."

That was late in 1976, and though there were the usual conferences between author and editor, the work proceeded harmoniously enough. Mr. Carroll and Grove expressed themselves as pleased. The result is a novel that is virtually an in—depth study of Jamaican culture and folkways. It is dense with detail, chronicling the life of the countryside, the culture of the principal city, Kingston, and the effect of each on the other.

The book reveals classic patterns. contrasting the sweet pastoral life with a spirit—destroying urban world. It is a downbeat kind of book in that no aspect of Jamaican life is free from Mr. Thelwell's critical eye. Yet "The Harder They Come" is both local and universal, a blend that all good regional novels aspire to . For, although the events could not be more home grown and intimate (the dialect is endlessly fascinating), the themes could apply to striving people everywhere.●

LET THE VOTERS BE AWARE

Photo by Amira Rahman

By Eugenia Yuille
---Debra Williams

To the Third World Population:

When you vote on March 11th be careful of which candidate you choose as your Student Government President. On Tuesday March 4th an open forum was held for the presidential hopefuls to express their goals if they were elected.

A number of questions were asked of the candidates relating to the Third World Population. Such as:

Why or why not are you in support of the G-Core.

What are your attitudes towards the Third World Caucus• Do you think it is necessary and should it kept.

Campus safety dealing with Third World People.

What has been and will be your relationship with Third World Affairs.

The answers to the questions proved a number of things. One, most of the candidates do not seem to know the difference between the Third World community, the Black community or women. While answering the questions, the candidates keep interelating Black with Third World. This proved that they are not aware that the Third World consists of much more than the Black community. It is a correlation of Black, Hispanic, Asian, Semite and other non-whites.

In addition, the candidates had very little if any contact with the Third World organizations and people. Verbally they were in support of all Third World and Minority Organizations. (But how can you support something you do not know exist.)

The candidates were questioned about the G-Core, (which would be a mandatory class educating students on the issues of racism, sexism and discrimination). The candidates had varied responses.

One candidate but believed it should be a mandatory workshop or colloquium.

Two candidates were in total support. They felt that the issues of racism, sexism and discrimination were too rampant on the campus. "It is high time that something is done about it."

Two candidates wanted the G-Core to be an elective.

Two candidates were uncommitted (due to the fact the they were unaware of how the university would handle the G-Core.

In reviewing their responses, we wonder how such pressing issues can be dealt with in one short workshop. Social Awareness courses are offered by the university, however, many students are not utilizing these courses.

The perspective candidates are in support of the Third World Caucus but they were uncertain of who they are.

Four candidates responsed that the Black voice was essential.

One candidate grouped the importance of the Third World Caucus with the Women Caucus.

Two candidates would respect the needs of Third World Community.

Their response makes one wonder how the Third World People are classified. The Black culture is only a segment of the Third World. As previously stated the Third World Community consists of all non-white groups. Women, however, are considered a minority group not a Third World group.

The candidates response differed on the issue of student safety, with a specific emphasis on Third World People.

Four of the candidates believed that all it would take to solve the problem is more lighting.

Three candidates saw a need for something more than lighting.

Every candidate recognized safety as an important factor. The issue is more than physical safety. Verbal abuse directed toward Third World People is a definite problem which was not given fair consideration or recognition, by the candidates. Putting up more light will not solve the problem. It may only make it more visible.

The previous questions are important. However, we Third World students should give special consideration to the candidates relationship towards the Third World community in the past and their plans for the future.

One candidate has had experience with one Third World person.

All of the candidates spoke of an open door policy, where Third World People could come and voice their opinions.

It is sad to hear that only one candidate has had experience working with Third World people (and that was after he was elected president last year). As a voter what does this mean• Does the open door policy mean your opinions will be acted upon•

When you vote on Tuesday make sure you take everything into consideration. Know the candidates, be aware of their attitudes dealing with Third World Issues but most of all do not stop here in your investigation of the candidates. ●

Ellie Bagli

International Womens Day

At an international socialist convention in Europe in 1911, Clara Zetkin put forward the proposal that March 8 should be declared forever, International Women's Day in commemoration women's role in the struggle to change society. Her proposal came two years after a militant march by women to protest unsafe working conditions and poor pay. Women were also involved in the fight to win the vote for women. There had been two years of struggle in the garment industry where women played leading roles. One of the high points of the struggle was the famous strike of 1909 known as the "Uprising of the 20,000." This strike was instrumental in the organizing of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union.

In 1890 the movement for organization among New York garment workers gained momentum. Many of the immigrant workers in industry had escaped from Czarist Russia and fled to the United States. They shared a socialist background a strong sense that oppression must be fought. As conditions in the trade grew worse, the workers felt that something had to be done about it. For instance, before they were lost, a fine of fifty cents had to be paid for each, the real value of the spools was none. The loss of a numbers ticket was twenty-five cents; the value of the ticket was nothing. In some shops it was forbidden to bring cooked meals from home to the shop, a great hardship for the poor workers.

Five hundred shirtwaist factories thrived in New York. They employed upwards of 30,000 workers at the time of the strike in 1909. Work was seasonal, which meant that there were weeks of unemployment each year. Employees paid for their needles and paid for electricity. They were often even charged for coat lockers. They paid for any damaged work and were fined if they were late. Foremen set the clocks back so that the workers could not calculate how much over-time they had worked.

At the Triangle Shirtwaist Company, workers did not belong to the ILGWU, but to a local company union. ILGEWU sent representatives in and the company did its best to thwart their drive.

> One of the firm appeared before the girls and told them in kind phrases that the company was friendly to the union, and that they desire to encourage it, and that they might give assistance, they would like to know what girls belong to it. The girls, taken in by this speech, acknowledged their membership; only instead of a few that the company had thought to discover and weed out, it developed that one hundred and fifty girls were members. That evening they were told, in the same kind way, that because of a lull in the trade, due to an uncertainty as to fashion in sleeves, there was for a time being no more work. The girls took their discharge without suspicion; but the next morning they saw in the newpaper advertisements of the company asking for shirt-waist operators at once. Their eyes opened by this, the girls picketed the shop and told the girls who answered the ad that the shop was on strike. The company retaliated by hiring thugs to intimidate the girls, and for several weeks the picketing girls were being constantly attacked and beaten. These melees were followed by wholesale arrests of strikers, from a dozen to twenty girls being arrested daily.

Local 25 and the United Hebrew Trades began to consider the possibility of a general strike. The first meeting to discuss this was on October 21. After voting in favor of the proposition a committee of five was chosen, including two women, to develop a plan of action. Local 25 appeared before the general executive board of the ILGWU to ask for their endorsement. The board issued plans to form a committee to investigate the grievances. In the face of this response, local organizers put out the call for an open meeting on November 22 at Cooper Union Hall. Leaflets for this meeting were drawn up in English, Italian and Yiddish. Clara Lemlich was a young heroine of a previous strike, a gifted speaker with a big following among the workers. After hours of discussion she made her way to the platform and spoke in Yiddish.

> "I am a working girl, one of those who are on strike against intolerable conditions. I am tired of listening to speakers who talk in general terms. What we are here for is to decide whether we shall or shall not strike. I offer a resolution that a general strike be declared now." Instantly, in the words of the reporter "the big gathering was on its feet, everyone shouting emphatic affirmative, waving hats, canes, handchiefs, anything that came handy. For five minutes, perhaps, the tumult continued; then the chairman, B. Feignebaum, made himself heard and asked for a seconder of the resolution. Again the big audience leaped to its feet, everyone seconding. Carried off his feet by the emotional outburst, the chairman cried: "Do you mean faith• Will you take the old Jewish oath•" And up came two thousand hands, with the prayer: "If I turn traitor to the cause I now pledge, may this hand wither from the arm I now raise."

TURN TO PAGE 8

Debra Williams

BLACK HISTORY: What It Is

February is recognized in most states across the country as Black History Month. But what does this really mean. Is it a chance for people (both Black and White) to become more aware of the achievements which the Black Race has made or is it something that was given to the race as an outcome of the fight during the 60's, just to make them feel good. This week and following weeks, information will be provide to you on some of the contributions which the Black Race has made in this country.

Most people believe that the history of the black man began with slavery but this is far from true. Few people are aware that the first Black men to venture to America were not among those twenty which set foot in Jamestown, Va. in 1619. But during the 15th and 16th centuries, Black men participated in quite a few exploration made by Europeans to various parts of the New World.

The first Black man to come to the New World was Pedro Alonzo Nino, who was the navigator of the Nina. And as one will recall the Nina was one of the ships, Christopher Columbus sailed to America in 1492. In 1513, about 30 Blacks accompanied Balboa in his discovery of the Pacific Ocean. Six years later, about 300 Blacks were members of Cortez's expedition through Mexico.

Not only were Black men companions of European expeditions but there were a few who led their own crusades. In 1538, Estevanico was a Black explorer, who lead an expedition from Mexico to the southwest territory of America. He is credited with the discovery of what we now call Arizona and New Mexico.

One of the great expeditions took place during the 18th century. A man named Jean Baptiste Pointe Du Sable founded a settlement on the Des Plaines River (now the Chicago River). About 1771, Du Sable and his Indian wife, Chikiwata, bought some land and built a house which 3 years later became the location for a trading post. This trading post was the future site of Es-chi-ka-gou (Chicago).

As you have seen Blacks have done quite a bit in the discovery of America but this was just the beginning. Next week we will talk about some of the achievements which blacks made once America was settled Until next week, peace be with you.●

Foad Vafaei

THE CULTURAL DECAY IN CAPITALIST AMERICA

Despite its wealth and democratic promises, the American society suffers grievous problems, which are threatening its very existence. American troops are no longer decimating the people of Indochina or Korea, but we keep learning about newer blatant cases of intervention by the U.S. in the world to stop the social progress in the underdeveloped countries. The U.S. government ignores pressing needs for health care and environmental protection or solutions for the problem of unemployment, while facilitating the growth of the military industrial complex and serving the interest of the profit–morgerous expansionist multi–national corporations.

American government work hand in hand with American big business. As some of the blatant examples of imperialist intervention in the underdeveloped countries, could be cited the notorious intervention in Guatemala, Korea, Iran, Chile, Dominican Republic, all the above cases have led to the establishment of repressive and oppressive regimes in those countries. Since World War II the concentration of the corporate power and their control over the government has become more extreme. In the capitalist America, the wealthiest 1.6 percent of the population owns over 80 percent of all the corporate stock! The culture is highly dominated by the ruling class. It is merely used to perpetuate and regenerate the capitalist exploitation. Carefully differentiated methods of influencing people, based often based, not so much on reason as on blind emotion, are devised in the course of this process. The huge apparatus for the ideological brain-washing of the masses, primarily the mass media (press, radio, television, cinema) is directed at the minds of millions of people at home and abroad. All these means serve to produce a certain social consciousness, a mass orientation towards standard models of behaviour, opinions and reasoning that are profitable to the monopolies and the state powere. They tend to create a type of person that is easy to manipulate (e.g. the general national anti-Iranian hysteria which was merely created through the media.

For the most part, the so-called "mass"' culture consists of commercially profitable potted enetertainment. Man is a social being. Hence, a necessary condition for the existence of any human society are the means of communication. But in capitalist America all the means of communication are owned by the large corporations (i.e. the ruling class).

A blatant example of that is the control of television: a means to be useds topropagate the dominant ideology and to control the art. The television is under the total influence of the sphere of exchange and consumption of the goods. This has leds to disastrous results such as imposing a consumerist culture upon the society. The most sophisticated techniques a are used to "improve" the economic efficiency of the mindless commercial advertisements in a frenzy drive to create more markets for the corporations. The lower classes are subjected to a constant barrage of propaganda designed to create consuming automata. The capitalist system makes consumption-hugry, irrational, compulsive buying-machines of us all.

The act of buying and consuming has become an end, an aim in itself. To buy the latest gadget, the latest model of anything that is on the market, is the dream of everybody in comparison to which the real pleasure in use is quite secondary. Man is alienated from himself the only relation between people is the cash. The art in general and the production of the films in particular is dominated by the corporations who have no aims other than profits.

On TV mostly commercial films are shown. In the commercial films, violence and sex are used to attract a broad audience. On the other hand the use of the ideal film heroes is a way to release the tensions of social life. A means of the realization of the fantastic world of fantasies, dreams and ideals for the lower-class people who failed to materialize them in the real world.(e.g. figures such as The Six Million Dollar Man, Hulk, Superman, Spiderman, etc.)this explains the bitter fact that an average American spends six hours a day watching television.

But on the other hand, this very fact (the attraction of millions to the commercial films) has led the film-makers to focus on the subjects of sex and violence in those films. This vicious circle has led to many a social problem, e.g. the increase in the violence against women, and also of other sorts of crimes. To be more specific, an average American has watched more than 20 thousand cases of robbery, murder and rape on TV before getting to the age of 20. The facts and figures about the crimes in capitalist America are outrageous. (e.g. up to 2000,000 children are assaulted each year with ropes, sticks, hot irons, and cigarette ends, 400,000 people are addicted to heroin, 7 million are unemployed. Unemployment is a crime, committed by the ruling class against the people.

As this continues, the U.S. government is pushing towards a more militaristic, imperialistic, racist mentality. This proves that humanity has two ways to choose: either to do away with barbaric capitalism (i.e. and move towards socialism and peace) or to move towards a thermo-nuclear war which would mean the total destruction of humanity and American society. A society in which the culture is in already in a stage of death-agony.●

THE FUTURE OF BLACK AMERICA

Curtis Haynes Jr landless and powerless

African Americans first arrived in this country as a piece of property that was to be bought and sold according to the amount of labor and utility that could be extracted from them. After a long struggle, and major changes in the economic system, slavery was no longer a viable source for labor. With the end of the Civil War slaves had gained their freedom. During the reconstruction period in the south, the former Southern Aristocracy had their land taken from them and it was put up for sale by the U.S. Government. Many former slaves realized the importance of this land, especially after all the black breaking they did for their former "owners". They remembered the long hours of misery and hard work that they went through in the fields, so that their owners could make fortunes from the benefits of their free labor. Many of these newely emancipated slaves went to work to buy some of this land. Also, for a short period during reconstruction, the Government was instrumental in helping these slaves get land. To many Black Americans "forty acres and a mule" was nothing but a sick trick played on the displaced slaves, as the government quickly phased out all of the opportunities they had given the blacks to obtain land. Still, in the forty years after the Civil War, blacks in the United States had accumulated over 15,000,000 acres of land. The majority of this land was the very same land that they had been slaving on in their earlier years of captivity.

Today, blacks own less than 4,000,000 acres of land, and they are losing up to 300,000 acres anually. This statistic gives an even more powerful message when you take into consideration that the black population has grown from approximately 6,000,000 at the time of emancipation to over 11,000,000 acres of land. The major reason is that blacks today don't realize the importance of their land. This is mainly to do with the fact that black people are no longer agriculturally oriented. Since the time of the Civil war blacks have been involved in massive migrations to the cities in the search of

TURN TO PAGE 3

Photo by Ed Cohen

M'Boom, re:percussion performed this past Friday evening in the Fine Arts Center. Featured were: back row, left to right- Warren Smith and Joe Chambers. Front row: Omar Clay, Ray Mantilla, Roy Brooks, Max Roach (artistic director of the collective ensemble), Fred King, and Freddie Waits.

Greg Tarpinian

The Reality of the Afghanistan Crisis

Part I

The confrontation with the Soviet Union over Afghanistan initiated by the Carter Administration can only by understood in relation to the series of steps taken over the last year to move the U.S. closer to the launching of a major military action abroad. At the same time, these steps must by viewed as a response to the decline of U.S. hegemony in the world economy and the growing tide of national liberation movements in the Third World directed against the political and economic domination of U.S. imperialism.

A quick view of the past year shows increased rate of inflation and unemployment throughout the captialist world with the worst to come, turmoil in the world's financial markets, successful revolutions in Iran and Nicaragua, the heightening of revolutionary struggle in the Middle East, El Salvador, Zimbabwe, Guatemala, and elsewhere, and a growing wave of working class militancy in some of the major industrial capitalist nations.

The "business climate" for the mult-national corporations does not look good: The Carter Administration has decided that it is time to act.

WHAT HAPPENED IN AFGHANISTAN•

Two years ago, leftist forces came to power in Afghanistan in a social and political revolution. Following the revolution, several million acres of land were seized from large landlords and distributed to the poor peasantry; mass literacy campaigns were introduced and organized among a population that was 95 percent illiterate; there was a tremendous effort to emancipate women from the backward forms of feudal bondage they were subjected to in this country.

Their conditions of power threatened, the big landlords, merchants and tribal leaders, soon began to organize an opposition in the name of Islam. It is clear now that these opposition forces were armed and trained by the CIA, Egypt, Pakistan, Saudi Arabia. A recent issue of the magazine Counter Spy published by ex-CIA officials has published the names of prominent CIA operatives involved in a program of armed intervention in Afghanistan at least one year before Soviet troops entered the nation. The research of Konrad Ege, an editor of the magazine shows that for well over a year a special CIA task force under the command of CIA agent Robert P. Lessard has conducted counterrevolutionary activities against Afghanistan using the U.S. embassy in Islamabab, Pakistan as its headquarters.

Ege points out that several of the leaders of the Afghan "rebels" are U.S. citizens of Afghan nationality. Others have been shown to be strongly linked to U.S. monopoly capital. Ege referred to a recent article in the Canadian magazine McCleans, which states that Afghan rebels have been purchasing arms from the U.S. with massive deliveries of herion, one of the chief cash crops of the Afghan feudal landlords.

The same article said that Chinese men in Pakistan, first identified as "Hong Kong Chinese heroin dealers" later were found to be "Chinese army officers and instructors" sent by Beijing. Their aim was to train the rebels.

Before the clamp of secrecy was imposed upon them reporters from the N.Y. Times, Washington Post, and the Christian Science Monitor wrote about these activites. On February 2, 1979, the Washington Post wrote, "Afghan dissidents are undergoing guerrilla training at a base near here...in a bid to intensify armed opposition to the government in Kabul." The Christian Science Monitor of August 9, 1979 wrote that, "Pakistan received the backing of China and the United States. The Afghan rebels have been trained and armed inside Pakistan..." In April of 1979, the New York Times wrote that China has been using the territory of Pakistan as a base for anti-Afghan activities: "A system of couriers carries information and orders back and forth between rebel fighting units Afghanistan and the planners of the operations at various bases on the Pakistan side of the border." Lastly, the French magazine, Courrier de Politique, wrote, "The road built by the Chinese, linking the Sinkiang region with Pakistan is being used for the transport of weapons, ammunition and propaganda material designed for the carrying out of subversive activities on Afghan soil."

All of this took place before the Soviet Union stepped in!

One must seriously question the mass media in this country for the slant they have placed on the events in Afghanistan. We know by now that the news about foreign and domestic affairs that we get on the major news channels and in the major newspapers is essentially what Washington and the monopoly corporations want us to hear. We were lied to for years about the Vietnam War until popular opposition exposed the lies of the government, and the same was true for twenty-five years of the Shah's reign until the Iranian revolution forced the truth in front of people's eyes.

Currently, the Administration and the media want us to believe that the Soviet intervention into Afghanistan is part of the Soviet Union's grand plan to domination the world. President Carter has called the Afghan crisis the biggest threat to world peace since World War II. We must seriously question such an assessment in light of the 250 U.S. military interventions in foreign countries in the last twenty five years, especially in Vietnam and Korea. At the same time, we must wonder what it is that has changed the Administration and media assessment of the role of Islam. At the same time that they were condeming the "fanatical" nature of Moslems in Iran they were crying out their support for the "Moslem rebels" in Afghanistan. What are the roots of such hypocrisy•

In light of these questionable developments, we are probably correct in suspecting that the situation in Afghanistan is more complex than what CBS, NBC, ABC and the State Department tell us. We must explore the basis for the comment that Senator Joseph Bidden of Delaware made in the Christian Science Monitor of January 9, when he remarked that the crisis in Afghanistan "has created opportunities for U.S. military action abroad which the American people would not have tolerated six months ago."

The question remains: Which country is the main threat to world peace, the U.S. or the U.S.S.R.• Why is it that Carter could claim that the Afghan crisis is the biggest threat to world peace since WWII• Well, ex-U.S. Ambassador to the Soviet Union, George F. Kennan, does not believe that the picture of the expansionist aims of the Soviet Union portrayed by the Administration are accurate. He wrote in the February 1 issue of the New York Times that "this extravagant view of Soviet motivation rests, to date, exclusively on our own assumptions. I am not aware of any substantiation of it in anything the Soviet leaders have said or done. On the contrary, Mr. Brezhenev has specifically, published and vigorously denied any such intentions." Why then the hysteria in the United States•

Continued next week

FAITH RINGGOLD

On March 4th the University of Massachusetts was honored by the presence of the reknowned artist Faith Ringgold. Although Faith was only on campus for a short period of time Nummo News was fortunate enough to get an interview with this dynamic women.

Faith believes that "If black art is art at all, it must be expressive of some deep and pervasive truth; and for the black artist in America the most pervasive truth, the one with which she or he must daily contend, is the unmovable reality that he or she is black in America. To deny this reality, consciously or unconsciously is to indulge one's self in dangerous, pathological fantasy; and if there is one thing that black people and black art have had absolutely enough of, it is fantasy of any kind."

Faith Ringgold is a women whom has dedicated her entire life toward art. When asked if she ever regretted doing so Faith responed that she had at times. "Art is very difficult and it places you in the outside of the mainstream of community life.You're a commodity outside the established professions, she responded." But art is what keeps Faith going on. Her art has allowed her to be an individual and to do things her own way.

An inner feeling compelled her to become an artist. She wanted to spend her time creating art. Faith finds that her greatest inspiration to continue her work in art comes from the people who admire her work. She feels that they encourage her to take part in all the facets of art. Faith is a strong believer that when you get something you have to give something.

Faith, always conveys a message through her art, it is the kind of message that can only be appreciated visually to get its true effect. The message she communicates is clear and concise. Faith states. "I'm know amateur the message is throughout the works, so that what it is,is."

Faith believes that art is not a profession for the young it is something that takes time to obtain a level of competence,and for women it takes a great deal longer to reach a level of public exceptance than for a man.

Faith, views the artist as a person who mirrors a culture. They are able to record it, document it and immortalize it. The artist captures both the positive and negative view of history;and without them life would consist merely of war and violence.

Faith conclued that she viewed the black artist as an enigma that will be understood and appreciated hundreds of years from now.

FROM PAGE 2

paying jobs; also throughout the decades land has been passed from generation to generation. Somewhere tears that went into getting this landwere forgotten. Today the emphasis in our society is on paper money. Blacks, who are most often forced to look at the day to day options for survival are overwhelmingly tempted with the possibility of making some quick cash by selling the property that was inherited to them through the generations. However, most blacks have no idea about the importance of the land they are selling to pay off their debts. This is partially the results of the alienation of blacks from the land their past generations had earned. Most city blacks don't realize how it feels to be able to work and live on their own land and be able to say this land is My land (the capitalist economic system makes it necessary to put emphasis on calling Gods created land as private property.) Besides the powerful feeling that owning land can put in your soul, there are even more economical reasons to own land. First of all, land can appreciate in value more than any other commodity with the possible exception of gold. Land is also excellent collateral for borrowing money. Land owners can also benefit most from area development projects. Another important aspect of owning land is that proper utilization can provide relatively cheap food.

Much of the land lost results because many blacks are not able to afford to keep the land. Many times land has to be sold because the owner could not afford to pay the taxes or because they could not meet up with the terms of the morgage. Sometimes land is just left idle

TURN TO PAGE 6

EL SALVADOR REACHES THE BOILING POINT

By: Jose Trejo.

The conflict between the bourgeois and the left has made the blood in the viens of Salvadorans reach its boiling point. The latest reports from El Salvador describe how imminent has become an "all-out civil war and a leftist takeover" in the months ahead. Some people fear an ever bloodier conflict than the Nicaraguan, that took 30,000 lives. According with U.S. News magazine.

U.S. support of the Junta

President Carter is afraid that another Nicaragua is coming out from the Marxist-revolution-assembling-line in Central America. He proposed in early February to send U.S. "military training groups" and 5 million dollars in military aid to "the embattled" Junta. His strategy behind the stepped up American involvement was "to give the ruling Junta enought time and backing to carry out is reforms and earn the approval of the nation's 5 million people." In real terms Carter's policy in El Salvador was; first, to pay the military-civilian Junta the price of one dollar per head of their citizenship, so they could make them forget their "at the edge of hunger" living conditions. And second,, to send some U.S. SWAT teams to help their 10,000 soldiers and 7,000 members of sercurity forces repress the popular movements of the left. So the right wing coffee growers and multinational investors can continue profiting from their work. The country's most powerful Catholic Archbishop Oscar A. Romero has warned Carter that U.S. intervention could lead to a "major blood bath."

Last January 22, rightist paramilitary groups fired on an anti-government but peaceful demonstration of more than 100,000 persons in the capital, killing 20 and wounding 100 more. Since the beginning of 1980 alone, more than 200 Salvadorans have died in a wave of gun battles, demonstrations, guerilla raids and embassy seizures, reported U.S. News magazine. Using force to resolve internal problems has along history in El Salvador where the army always served as the military arm of coffee growers. In 1932, more than 30,000 peasants were killed by the army over demands for better living and working conditions. Life has been the same since then.

In spite of all that, many army officers are known to be angry at the "ineffectiveness" of the military-civilian Junta and want the armed forces to take charge. Moreover, rich Salvadorans fleeding Guatemala often receive assistance from Guatemalan businessmen and army officers to wage war against the left. A priest predicts a toll of 500,000 death if the left is repressed.

UPI

San Salvador teachers celebrate Feb. 22 after release of hostages they held in Education Ministry.

The Popular Movements of the Left

The left is formed by popular movements, coalitions, organizations and guerilla vanguards that are leading the country to a radical social change. The majority are peasants who live in the worst living conditions of Latin America. Their war is against decades of repression and failed development, supported by the U.S. Government.

The popular organizations, coalitions of mass-based organizations with an open Marxist perspective are sustained by guerilla vanguards. NACLA, report in the Americas magazine last month, informed that the Peoples Revolutionary Block is composed of organization of rural and urban workers, students, teachers and slum dwellers. Its growth in the last two years from 20,000 to 80,000 members has been phenomenal. Its political strategy is "prolonged people's war" as it works to create a farmworker-urbanworker alliance with "proletarian hegemony" leading to socialism. The Block refuses all alliances with either the other popular organizations of the reformist opposition. The vanguard organization of the Block is believed to be the largest and most feared, the Popular Liberation Forces-Faribundo Marti. Take its name from a lieutenant of Nicaragua's Sandino.

The oldest of the popular organizations is the Front for United Popular Action (FAPU). Like the Block, it is composed of separate groups of workers, students and in tellectuals. It maintains a line of general insurrection against the Junta. They had worked toward an anti-fascist united front against the Romero government. The armed wing of FAPU is the Armed Forces of National Resistance (FARN), and they have attracted the greatest international attention throught its kidnapping of multinational business executives. FARN emerged in 1975 from a split within the third guerilla force, the People's Revolutionary Army (ERP) after the latter executed Roque Dalton, an ERP member and El Salvador's most famous poet.

The third and smallest of the three popular organizations, the People's League 28 of February (LP 28) was formed in 1977 after a post election massacre. It tends to be more student dominated than the other two groups. The League called for a general insurrection immediately after the Junta took power. Supporting the LP 28, the People's Revolutionary Army (ERP) is the armed wing of the Salvadorean Revoltionary Party (PRS).

The Junta's days are numbered

Everyday it has become more imminent the long-anticipated unity of these three leftist forces, both the popular organizations and guerillas. They believe the Junta and its U.S. supporters aborted the people's revolution. They promised continued struggle. If they achieve unity, the Junta's days may be numbered. The leftist guerillas already have demonstrated that they will be difficult to defeat. Numbering an estimated 5,000 they are well armed with hand weapons and explosives.

By comparison, Nicaragua's Sandimistas mustered hardly 1,000 only months before their triumph.

The stage in El Salvador is set for the production of Nicaragua II, where U.S. involvement is going to suffer yet another defeat in what they call their "back yard". Isn't the U.S. ever going to learn after Vietnam, Iran, Nicaragua, Afganistan and now El Salvador•

Struggle over QUE TAL AMIGOS not over

Carlos Valdes

The fate of Hispanic programming on public radio station WFCR is still very unclear. The Western Mass. Broadcasting Council, at a public hearing on Feb. 26, passed a resolution to have an advisory committee formed which would advise WFCR general manager on questions of Hispanic programming. This committee, it was agreed, would be formed by students, faculty, staff and other members of the local Hispanic community. The people who showed up at the hearing, however, did not recieve any promises that the Hispanic program Que Tal Amigos would not suffer any cuts in hours or resources.

The purpose of the hearing was to discuss the status of the program and it was attended by about 70 people, most of whom were present moments before in a demonstration downstairs in the Campus Center concourse. The demonstrators were mainly from the Hispanic community and they protested the decision by WFCR general manager Robert Goldfarb which would reduce the hours that the program would be aired, as well as eliminate the professional positions staffing it. This was the third such demonstration held this year in the area against Goldfarb's moves. the Hispanic community has been concerned that the program would eventually be taken off the air.

Que Tal Amigos reaches listeners mainly in western Massachusetts, the Hartford area, as well as parts of New York State and Rhode Island. At the hearing in the Campus Center the speakers expressed their anger that a program which is very im portant to the Hispanic communities in these areas is being attacked by Robert Goldfarb. Several non-hispanic speakers stated the importance of cultural diversity at a public radio station. Many speakers placed the moves against Que Tal Amigos in the context of the general discrimination and racism that Hispanic and other minority people suffer.

Most of the speakers asserted that the program must stay on the air at a suitable hour which would be easily accessible to its present listeners, that the number of hours should not be cut, and that the program's professional positions not be replaced with volunteer positions. Goldfarb said that he had changed his earlier decision and that now had a "new plan" for Que Tal Amigos which he would not reveal at that moment "because of the charged atmosphere." The Broadcasting Council voted unanimously on the forming of the advisory board.

Another aspect of the struggle over Hispanic programming at WFCR is Goldfarb's refusal to increase the salary of Sonia Vivas, the producer of Que Tal Amigos. She has been doing the work of two people since her husband Julio Torres resigned his post as co-producer of the program last December. He, together with Jose Tolson, who produced a black classical music program, resigned from WFCR because of Goldfarb's behavior towards third world programming.

According to Ms. Vivas, Goldfarb told her that a pay increase is not justified because Mr. Torres' position was director of the Hispanic department at WFCR, and she cannot be director of a department that has only one member: herself. Ms. Vivas rejects this reason ing and she has spoken with an affirmative action officer at Whitmore, stating that she has been discriminated against as a minority person and a woman. According to Ms. Vivas he told her that she has the right to make her demand.

Ms. Vivas has told Eco Latino that she is more concerned at this moment in concentrating her efforts in defending Que Tal Amigos position rather than her personal poisition.

Commenting on Goldfarb's moves against the program, she said that he has been "behaving in a non-professional manner, playing with the programming at WFCR without a sufficient understanding of the problems involved. Most stations have a progran director and since WFCR does not, the station manager in this case is making all the programming decisions. Furthermore, the decision are nos are not being done in a democratic way."

Ms. Vivas expressed optimism about the future of the program:" The community has shown a lot of unity and determination to carry out this struggle."What remains to be seen is if Goldfarb will go along with decisions made by the advisory board.

EL SALVADOR: Right-wing kidnapping

UPI

San Salvador militants slain recently at Christian Democratic Party headquarters.

Right-wing forces last week kidnaped a major leader of the Salvadorean popular forces.

The Secretary General of the People's Revolutionary Bloc, Juan Chacon, was seized with his wife and 3-month daughter. The Bloc is the largest of the popular organizations.

Within hours the popular organizations launched protests against the kidnaping. wife and child were released and on March 1, the Bloc notified its supporters around the world of an agreement for Chacon's release.

Chacon's disappearance was just one of many actions taken by the right wing against the popular forces recently. Eleven people were reported to have been murdered by the right's death squads in the last week in February.

Meanwhile, U.S. support for the military)Christian Democrat junta continues. In recent stateménts, however, Washington has attempted to back away from indications that it will send military advisers to El Salvador. According to a State Department spokesperson, what it proposes to send are military trainers who will instruct the Salvadorean Army in new techniques of intelligence, communication and crowd control. They will not be permanently assigned to the country and will not accompany Salvadorean army units in its activities.

The Salvadorean bourgeoisie reportedly continues to arm itself separately. A Salvadorean journalist, recently returned from a visit to El Salvador, told of reports of landing strips on the Pacific Coast which are being used by the right to fly in arms and ammunition. Right-wing leaders reportedly acknowledge they have been purchasing arms in Florida.

In response to calls for assistance from the popular forces, solidarity work in the U.S. is increasing. Efforts at coordinating the activiteis of the various Salvadorean support gorups have led to the formation of a Salvadorean Coordinating Committee in the New York area. Similar efforts are reportedly underway in other cities.

There are also efforts being made at avarious levels to establish linkages between the Salvadorean struggle and the growing antidraft movment, using El Salvador as an example of where draftees would be sent to fight.

Robert Armstrong

COLOMBIA: Embassy seized by guerillas

Bogota plainclothes cops carry coworker after he was wounded in clash with leftists in Dominican embassy Feb. 27.

from the Guardian, Mar. 12

Negotiations continue between Colombian authorities and members of the M-19 guerilla organization, following the guerillas' dramatic seizure of the Dominican Republic's embassy Feb. 27.

Among the hostages taken during the raid are at least 12 ambassadors including the U.S. envoy who were attending a reception commemorating Dominican independence day. The guerillas say they are prepared to blow up the embassy and the hostages if their demands are not met. They are seeking the release of 311 yet-to-be-named political prisoners, presumably including an estimated 200 M-19 members, and a $50 million ransom. "Our compact is to succeed or die," the guerillas' leader told a Bogata newspaper.

One of the guerillas' objectives is to draw international attention to the Colombian government's treatment of political prisoners and the repressive political system in general. Some 2000suspected guerillas were arrested in the past year-and-a-half. Among them are more than 200 alleged M-19 members who face court martial.

M-19, or April 19 Movement, is the most prominent of several guerilla groups in Colombia. Formed in 1974, the organization's most successful action was a raid on an army arsenal last year that netted over 4000 rifles and submachine guns. The well-organized movement reportedly does not explicitly espouse Marxist ideology, but calls for a "truly democratic structure" to replace the domination of the country by a small, wealthy elite.

Guerilla spokespeople say their demands for ransom and the timing of the prisoner release and means of safe passage from the country are negotiable, but the relase is not.

Chicago Latinos attack bias in local media

from the Guardian, Mar. 5

Recently, the Latino Committee on the Media (LCOM) formally petitioned the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to deny the licenses of 21 Chicago radio stations and one TV station. According to the Chicago-based magazine Keep Strong, LCOM charged that the stations discriminate against Latinos in their hiring practices. The LCOM is an alliance representing 10 community organizations.

In its scrutiny of 60 stations in the Chicago area, LCOM found that there are only 23 Latinos out of 1011 employees in the top four job categories. In addition, 18 radio stations employing more than 10 people do not have a single Latino in any job category.

"This is discrimination, plain and clear," said a LCOM spokesperson. According to LCOM's Carlos Quintinilla, "Latinos have no influence, no input in decision-making. There's not a very large number employed as technicians, writers or anything else. You basically find Latinos as secretaries at the bottom level."

The LCOM further charged that Latino applicants who qualify for decision-making jobs are often turned down as "not qualified."

The group has demanded that one radio station, WBBM, implement an affirmative action program and develop a minority training program. Central to both programs, said LCOM, is the hiring of more Latinos for jobs in programming and other decision-making positions.

"If they (radio and TV stations) are going to do programming about the Latino community," said Quintinilla, "whoknows more about programming than ourselves?"

Frank Elam

RESULTADO DE LAS ELECCIONES DE AHORA

Fue elegida la nueva directiva de AHORA el pasado martes dia 4 de marzo en el BCP. La reunion tuvo lugar a las 8:00 PM y asistieron cincuenta y dos miembros de la organizacion. Como resultado de las elecciones salieron elegidos los siguientes estudiantes:

PRESIDENTA
Monica Santiago

VICE PRESIDENTE
Chiqui Garcia

TESORERO
Gabriel Velazquez

SECRETARIA
Monsi Rodriguez

La votacion fue dificil para los miembros de la organizacion porque cada candidato estaba bien preparado para los cargos por los cuales estaban haciendo campana. Despues de las elecciones cada ganador agradecio y expreso sus deseos de trabajar lo mejor posible para el semestre entrante. Los nuevos elegidos estaran trabajando con la actual directiva en organizar las diferentes actividades de este semestre pero sin tomar sus respectivos cargos hasta el mes de julio.

En esta misma reunion se presento un miembro de Black Mass Communications Project invitando a las personas interesadas en trabajar en el nuevo programa que se abrira en WMUA. El trabajo consiste en recopilar diferentes sucesos de la comunidad hispana y pasar las noticias en la radio.

Les agradecemos a las personas que asistieron al mitin ya que era de importancia para toda nuestra comunidad.

Lucy Montes
Silvia Rodriguez

Hispanic community scores major victory against 'conservative caucus'

The Graduate Student Senate budget meeting for fiscal year 1981 was held last Tuesday, where almost $82,000 were granted for financing various campus organizations. Two thirds of the total was given to two organizations: the Transit Service and the Legal Services Office. The remaining 28,000 was distributed among fifteen other groups.

The amount to be granted for every organization who applied for funding was proposed by the Finance Committee, which is mainly composed of members of the so-called "Conservative Caucus" of the GSS. This group of senators and officers was formed last year prior to the elections in order to gain political and economic control of the of the Senate. They have voted against funding for minorities, fringe benefits for GSS employees, minority participation in the Finance Committee decisions, GSS recognition of Tenants Associations, etc.

According to Monte Pearson, president of the GSS, the Finance Committee recommended to cut Eco Latino from the budget because "it was covering mainly national news rather than local-campus issues." This rationale is out of touch with reality since Eco Latino has covered about 50 per cent of its space with local news such as the political analysis of Jorge Palacios' talk at UMass (he is Chilean political exile(, an interview with Pedro Serviat Rodriguez, Cuban revolutionary who came to UMass, coverage of the struggle to keep Que Tal Amigos on the air at WFCR, interviews with Sonia Vivas and Robert Goldfarb, a two-page research article on tenants rights and Family Housing rent increases, the elections of AHORA, the local boycott efforts aimed at Red Coach Lettuce supporting the farmworker's strike, announcements of every Hispanic event on campus, like the concert with Mongo Santamaria, Josi Rodriguez,...the list goes on.

At the meeting Eco Latino made its budget request presentation with three speakers, Jose Trejo, Carlos Valdes and Tony Crayton. Mainly They expressed the Hispanic community's feeling on the Finance Committee's recommendations. Supported by a dozen more Hispanic students from the Bilingual Collegiate Program, AHORA, and the Bilingual Program in the School of Education, who came to the meeting when they were informed of the new attack against the Hispanic community. A roll-call vote was made for Eco Latino's budget decision, and from the $1200 request, $1000 were passed by a large majority, in which the Conservative Caucus suffered an astonishing defeat after a long discussion on Eco Latino funding. Every penny of EL's expenditures was questioned. Despite microscopic review of the budget, the budget request passed by a large margin.

ECO LATINO

Tarafe Khalgh

Why Does Carter Want To Send American Youth To War?

The United States has the largest military complex on earth. Its budget, the biggest in the world, is 126 billion dollars. This is 30 dollars for every human being on earth!

In the words of General Shoup, former head of the U.S. Marine Corps: "We maintain more than 1,517,000 Americans in uniform overseas in 119 countries. We have 8 treaties to help defend 48 nations if they ask us or if we choose to intervene in their affairs."

The U.S. has destructive nuclear weapons all over the world. Their power is 615,000 times the Hiroshima bomb.

Since 1945, 50 percent of all world arms sales were by the USA. Who were they used against• Who benefited• What is the motivation of the U.S. government for all this•

U.S. General Butler said in 1933:

"I helped make Mexico safe for American oil interests in 1914. I helped make Haiti and Cuba a decent place for the boys at National City Bank to collect revenue. I helped pacify Nicaragua for the International Banking House of Brown Brothers 1902-1912. I brought light to the Dominican Republic for the American sugar interests in 1916. I helped make Honduras 'right' for American fruit Companies in 1903...We Marines operated on 3 continents."

It is clear that the U.S. military works hand in hand with the huge American corporations.

In U.S. society the land, industry, minerals, means of transportation and communication are owned by a small rich minority. In order to survive, the majority of people must work for this rich minority who enriches itself by taking the goods made by working people and selling them for huge profits. This small minority consists mainly of the owners of the large corporations and they practically control the U.S. government.

An extreme inequality exists in the United States. It has been proven that the wealthiest 1.6 percent of the population owns over 80 percent of all corporate stocks and virtually all state and government bonds. In 1970 25.5 million Americans were in families with an annual income of less than 3900 dollars. At the same time, the wealthy ruling elite in this country have an income estimated between $50 to $100 million. (roughly $275,000 a day)

The American government (whether dominated by Democrats of Republicans) has proven to be operating in the best interests of these profit-mongering corporations. The corporations having consolidated their control the world economy and to suck profits out of other countries.

All the governments which are "friendly" to the U.S. are simply set up to create fertile ground for the investments of U.S.-based multinational corporations, as well as the extraction of hugh amounts of profits from third world nations.

This process leads to misery and povery for the majority of people of Latin America, Asia and Africa. The allies of the U.S. have to use harshly repressive methods against their own people in order to keep them quiet and to make them work for low wages for the U.S. corporations.

The U.S. helps these governments against their own peoples. Many examples could be cited:

According to the Committee on foreign Affairs of the U.S. House of Representatives:

In Guatemala in 1954 the CIA engineered a military overthrow of the popular-democratic government of Arbenz and installed a pro-U.S. dictator.

In Brazil in 1964 the CIA engineered a military coup against the elected government of Goulart and set up a repressive pro-U.S. dictatorship.

In 1965 the American troops intervened in the Dominican republic to thwart a popular uprising.

In Chile in 1973 the CIA helped overthrow the democratically-elected government of Salvador Allende and installed one of the most brutal dictatorships in the world today.

1964-75: U.S. military intervention in Vietnam.

One of the most blantant cases of intervention in the internal affairs of other countries by the U.S. government. through the CIA, was the of Dr. Mossadegh was elected with 99 percent of the voters. The oil industry of Mossadegh nationalized their property to the benefit of the Iranian oppressive regimes of the world was installed.

While the Shah was in power, his army and secret police force (SAVAK) of Iranians. During the revolution against the Shah an estimated demonstrators shot down in cold blood. Among the methods of torture of the body, the gradual extraction of fingernails, and the burning of victims on electric stoves during interrogation. The torturers were trained and equipped by the CIA.

Can U.S. citizens honestly say they are proud of their government's support for mass murder and intervention in other countries' affairs• Are Americans willing to let their sons and daughters or brothers and sisters be sucked into another Vietnam-style military adventures, this time in the Middle East•

The main enemies of the American people are not abroad. They are here at home. They are the big corporations, the wealthy minority who have created poverty, unemployment, inequality, militarism and racism in this country, and are now trying to get American youth to go overseas to fight for them. ●

Taleb Bizri

a new shah is born

Mr. Sadat's accommodation represents a failure of will rather the success of political acumen. It represents the failure of Arab will to challenge effectively the historic aggression by Israel and by the U.S. Imperialism against the Arab world. Ironically, the Baghdad Summit also represents the victory of Arab accommondation in reaction to specific events in the region. To unite such disparate and radically differing regimes as Iraq, Syria is a feat of accommodation in itself. This kind of accommodation differs, however, from Mr Sadat's in some important respects.

The Baghdad Summit is predicated on certain historical "givens" and certain common denominators. These include the fact that, regardless of ideological learning or political Predilection, the Arab world constitutes a unit bound not so much by emotions, but also by common interests and destiny. By re-establishing an Arab consensus, the Baghdad Summit produced a holding operation, designed primarily to put an end to the process of Arab degeneration into the abyss of capitalation and surrender. Nevertheless, the Baghdad Summitt did not pinpoint U.S. imperialism as the main factor in the conflict and it failed to produce a program of action designed to curtail the rise of U.S. imperialism in the region. It did, however, restore assemblance of order to the Arab position and prevented a further collapse. Perhaps the potential reapproachment between Syria and Iraq could provide the kind of stimulus that will overturn the tide of defeatism and reassert Arab revolutionary will.

To Sadat's credit, he has unconsciously succeeded in clarifying the main issues of this historic conflict. He insisted, for reasons of his own survival that the U.S. be a "full partner" in the negotiations. For the first time, therefore, the U.S. is openly involved in the conflict and can no longer pretend to play the role of an interested and concerned bystander. The scale and the intensity of American diplomacy vis-a-vis the Middle East conflict are unprecedented, except perhaps in the era of the Vietnam War. Judging by this eagerness on the part of the Carter Administration to produce a settlement, one is led to ask an unraised question. If a settlement is so badly needed, why is it that the Carter Administration produced the Camp David Agreement, a far cry from the minimum acceptable to the Arab and the international consensus? This question merits a separate and detailed examination. Perhaps here, we can limit ourselves to sketching some of the main outlines of a possible answer.

The Camp David Agreement were not designed to be a final settlement. Rather, they were supposed to confirm certain developments and certain basic trends and to set the stage for future possible developments in the region. In essence, the Camp David Agreement are part of a process which is supposed to eventually lead to a comprehensive settlement of the Arab-Israeli problem In the initial period, all attention is focused on the signing of a treaty between Egypt and Israel which could then serve as a model for future treaties. Initial opposition to this is expected; but opposition is not so much a threat to prevent the process from opening out. Consequently, Jordnian and Saudi opposition to the Agreements is meaningless at this stage. The most that the Carter Administration hopes for is that neither of these regimes will play an active role in sabotaging the Agreements. Furthermore, the Carter Administration's conceptions of identical with those of Israel. It is no accident, therefore, that the Carter Administration was unwilling to pressure Mr. Begin on any substantive matter. Rather the pressure fell on Mr Sadat. In reality, when it comes to the question of the Palestinians and of the PLO, the Carter Administration has shown absolutely no willingness to consider them as any significant part of the Middle East equation. There is also no evidence whatsoever that the Carter Administration would accept the creation of another state in the area.

In anycase, the Camp David Agreement and the ensuing debate in the Arab world highlight the centrality of the American role in Middle East and thereafter challenging the American control over Iran by overthrowing the "Shah-American" structure, the Carter Administration is proving its failure to impose its dominance on the region. This becomes the central question: What kind of Middle East are we going to have after a settlement of the Arab-Israeli crisis? Will it be an order that will cater to the wealthy elites, ignoring the needs of the masses? Will it be an order that is based on repression and violence rather than on genuine respect for human and political rights?

The answer to these questions cannot be in the affirmative. In the coming decade, the odds are that regimes such as the Shah and Sadat resistance heightened in desperation by the greedy and endless needs of an American empire in decline. This is why the Camp David Agreements are dangerous. They signal the beginning of a new era of active and aggressively overt involvement by the U.S. in the affairs of the region. In this sense, the Camp David Agreements represent a challenge thrown by American imperialism to the forces of progress in the region. In a struggle such as this, we have no doubt as to the outcome. The forces of liberation will eventually triumph and Sadat will join the Shah as the American puppet refugee.

CONT. FROM PAGE 3

and becomes a burden to its owner. Whenever land is sold under the above circumstances the money recieved for this land will probably not be the true value.

However, if landowners knew how to recieve an income from his land (something that is not very hard to do) that person would be able to ward off the hungry land speculators.

Today, blacks need to realize that land is their roots to their survival in this country. The possession of land would be a very viable means of dealing with the many economic problems that blacks have i n this country. It is interesting to note, that during the 50's and 60's when blacks were supposed to be at the hight of their fight for liberation black ownership of land dropped from 12 million acres to less than 5.5 million acres. While we were fighting for our right they were digging up our roots... History has proven that the only way capitalist can maintain a viable labor force is to make sure that labor have no other means of subsistence except for the jobs provided by those said capitalist. Once you take away the means for a people to support themselves they become dependent upon the dominant power in that society.

I would like to conclude by saying that if the present trends continue in respect to the losing of control of black owned land by the early 1980's Black Americans will be a landless people completely dependent on the whites and the desires of those who have the power in this country. It can't be stressed enough that because of the way our society has been formed the private ownership of land is the basis for control in this country. Thus, if Black Americans are to remain a force to be dealt with they must take it upon themselves to keep control of the most powerful asset they have. LAND !

Photo by Barron Roland

GROOVELINE, currently undefeated in the intramurals men's basketball, with a record of 7 wins and 0 loses will be playing Beta Kappa Phi tonight in the quarter finals. YOUR SUPPORT WILL BE GREATELY APPRECIATED. So come out tonight to Boyden at 5:45pm.

A View from Mississippi

Part 2

LEARNING FROM HISTORY

In his statement to the UN committee, Michael Meyers suggested examining three stages of the election process-"voter education and registration, the election itself, and the tally of the vote and election aftermath." At each of these points, he warned, South Africa's white rulers could employ "machinations to try to affect the outcome." At each of these points, Mississippi's white rulers do just that.

•VOTER EDUCATION AND REGISTRATION: In Holmes County, where the population is 72 percent black, "the Circuit Clerk was just refusing to register black people to vote," according to Sister Beverly Weidner, a white nun who has lived in the county for several years. "People would come in an he would tell them the books were closed and send them home."

"The circuit clerk's office is the beginning of the election process," added Joseph Smith, a Holmes County activist in Mississippi's strongest and most active civil rights organization, the United League. "You can take an election with those books."

•THE ELECTION ITSELF: "I could name you people right now who have voted five times remarked jovially early on election day in Holly Springs, county seat of Marshall County at the northern end of the state. Voting more than once is apparently a common practice among whites in Mississippi. During the primary elections, the mayor of Holly Springs was spotted at the polls after he had already voted once by absentee ballot. That method became less popular after blacks won three of five seats on the election commission. From one election to the next, the number of absentee ballots in the county plummeted by 85 percent.

Along with voting several times themselves, whites are also said to have made a practice of bribing blacks not to vote at all. "People have called us and mentioned that a white person offered to pay for their groceries and give them a ride home," Sister Beverly Weidner reported. "White candidates raised a lot of money in this county, but they didn't buy time on the radio with it. You can't tell me they raised the money and didn't spend it."

United League President Alfred "Skip" Robinson voiced similar charges at the League's headquarters in Holly Springs. "They were giving families $50 not to vote and then they had people waiting out in front of the polls with lists to see if they tried to come and vote anyway."

Robinson's claims sounded entirely plausible to two reporters who had been harangued for several minutes on a nearby street corner the day before the elections. When he had finished telling them that medding reporters were the only source of trouble in Holly Springs, their middle-aged white antagonist continued on his way to the local liquor store. A few minutes later, he emerged with several cases of whisky-in pints, a useful denomination of payment if not of consumption.

•TALLY OF THE VOTE AND ELECTION AFTERMATH: While much of the rest of the state has followed the rest of the country into the voting-machine age, Marshall County still relies on paper ballots and on the highly subjective perceptions of the election commission members who county them. While tallying up November's returns, for instance, white members of the Marshall County election commission, who

TURN TO PAGE

James Vanderzee, Black America's foremost photographic historian discussed his work at U. Mass in February, Black History Month
Photo by Ed Cohen

asian affairs

Liu Shaoqi (1949 photo).

From the Guardian
By Fred L. Pincus

Liu Shaoqui Rehabilitated in China

Liu Shaoqui has been posthumously rehabilitated in China.

The late chairman of the Chinese Communist Party (CCP), Mao Zedong, led the struggle against Liu during the cultural revolution of the 1960's.

Liu, chairman of the republic and vice chairman of the CCP, was purged from the party and stripped of his titles in 1968. He was accused of being the number one revisionist and "capitalist roader" in the country.

Liu's defeat led to the consolidation of Mao's political power and paved the way for massive political reforms in China intended to prevent capitalist restoration. The CCP central committee decision to rehabilitate Liu late last month thus constitutes a strong but indirect attack on Mao himself. Many of the policies of the cultural revolution years have already been reversed. The rehabilitation which could only be equalled in the socialist world if Trotsky were exhumed in the USSR also strengthens the political hand of Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping.

PARTY STATEMENT

In an official communique, the CCP described Liu who died in prison in 1969, it has just been revealed as "a great Marxist and proletarian revolutionary (who) was loyal to the party and the people at all times over the past decades, devoted all his energy to the revolutionary cause of the proletariat and made indelible contributions to China's new-democratic revolution and its socialist revolution and construction.

"Because the appraisal on the eve of the cultural revolution of the situation in the party and the country was contrary to fact, an entirely wrong and groundless inference was made, asserting that there was within the party a counterrevolutionary revisionist line and then there was a so-called bourgeois headquarters headed by comrade Liu Shaoqi.

"Seizing upon this to serve their counterrevolutionary purpose of usurping supreme party and state leadership and subverting the dictatorship of the proletriat, Lin Biao (Mao's closest 'comrade-in-arms' at the time), the gang of four (Mao's lieutenants) and company concocted false evidence and deliberately subjected comrade Liu Shaoqi to political frame-up and physical persecution, and they overthrew a large number of leading party, government and army cadres on the false charged of being Liu Shaoqi's agents. This brought extremely grave consequences. This biggest frame-up our party has ever known in its history must be completely overturned."

SERIES OF REVERSAL

This reassessment of Liu Shaoqi was not unexpected. It is the latest in a series of events that have reversed many of the policies that emerged from the cultural revolution. This process began in October 1976, a month after Mao's death, when the late chairman's closet associates in the CCP political bureau were arrested (the gang of four). By July 1977, Deng was himself politically reinstated a second time. Purged as the "number two capitalist roader" along with Liu, Deng returned to political prominence in the mid-1970s, only to be purged again several months before Mao's death.

Last July, CCP Chairman Hua Guofeng declared that class struggle was no longer the principal contradiction in China, previously a Maoist dictum. In September, party Vice Chairman Ye Jianying defined the cultural revolution as "an appalling catastrophe suffered by all our people." This was the first direct official criticism of the cultural revolution.

The important point about Liu's reinstatement is that the policies he promotes and Mao opposed are now being implemented in China. The similarities between the economic and educational policies in China today and those of the early 1960s when Liu and Deng were at the height of their power are striking.

Most observers consider the early 1960s to be a conservative reaction to the great leap forward (1958-1961). Mao used the great leap to break with the Soviet model of socialist development by emphasizing mass political mobilization. The people's communes were developed, the authority structure of industry was democratized, the educational system was reformed and economic incentives took second place to political consciousness.

There were important successes during the great leap, but ultra-"leftism" created a number of problems. Natural disasters and crop failures in 1959, 1960 and 1961 added to the problems. Mao's influence in the central committee was at a low point and the policies of Liu Shaoqi prevailed when the great leap era closed.

BUREAUCRATIC REACTION

Historian Maurice Meisner, in his book "Mao's China," describes the early 1960s as a period of "conservatism" and "bureaucratic reaction."

"Party directives of the early 1960s denounced 'egalitarianism' in the distribution of the agricultural product and encouraged the use of material incentives to promote production...Private plots (were) returned and peasants (were) encouraged to engage in 'sideline' occupations and to trade on the reopened free market."

"The long-term problem of reviving and developing the modern industrial sector was approached through the reintroduction of centralized economic planning from Peking (Beijing) combined with a degree of economic autonomy to individual enterprises and a consequent reliance on semimarket forces, the strengthening of managerial authority, a renewed emphasis on technological and scientific expertise and a heavy stress on financial incentives for workers to spur productivity and raise the quality of what was being produced."

Misner concludes that "The economic successes of the time, based on the use of non-Maoist methods and means, thus produced social and political results that were incongruous with the Maoist vision of China's future. The price for economic progress was bureaucratic and technocratic elitism, the decay of the spirit (if not the rhetoric) of Maoist ideological precepts and the emergences of new forms of inequality in both the cities and the rural areas."

Although 1980 is not 1961, the political perspectives of the two periods are similar. Liu emphasized the primary importance of the development of the productive forces. He argued China had to become industrialized before significantly democratizing the system of industrial management and stressing the primacy of political rather than economic incentives. This is also the thinking behind the current modernization program initiated by Deng Xiaoping.

TURN TO PAGE 8

Michelle L. Laney
HOTLINE TO HEALTH

HOW TO BE ALONE WITHOUT BEING LONELY

Regardless of your situation, it could lead to new enthusiasm and joy.

Social psychology researchers Carin Rubenstein, Ph.D., and Phillip Shaver, Ph.D., of New York University, have observed that loneliness does not necessarily depend on the number of people around us or on life's varied circumstances. Instead, loneliness seems to be the result of how people interpret their situations. Loneliness is a combination of an individual's personal expectations of life and his reactions to his environment.

Everyone may feel lonely on occasion. But apparently the more time people spend alone, the more they get used to it. Eventually their perceptions of solitude can alter.

"A person who is accustomed to living alone won't experience loneliness as much as others, since that person has learned how to cope with solitude," says Dr. Rubenstein. "Older people in their mid – 60 and 70's are much more well adjusted to being alone than younger people. Their need for intimate attachments are less. And they are more likely to spend their time creatively when alone."

Through their research, Drs. Rubenstein and Shaver discovered that when people feel lonely, they generally react in one of two ways. The "sad passivity" reaction means that the person is very passive when feeling lonely. Sleeping, eating and crying seem to be the three major activities in this camp.

The second reaction is "creative solitude" and many older adults fall into this bracket. When they feel lonely they may read, listen to music, work on a hobby, study, write or play a musical instrument.

Conflicts over how best to spend one's time can erupt as early as childhood.

"If a child sits staring at a dandelion for two minutes, some adult will come along and holler, 'What in blazes are you trying to do? Can't you find something to do with yourself?' " says Alexander Reid Martin, M.D., a former head of the American Psychiatric Association's Committee on Leisure. "What the adult fails to realize is that the child is doing something. But the sense of wonder, fascination and enterprise in his solitude is lost after the adult's intrusion.

Try Talking to Yourself

"Talking out loud to oneself privately is healthy and actually may be a better way of tackling problems than suffering in silence," says Murray Halfond, Ph.D., a professor of speech at Temple University. "Saying things out loud when we're alone is a catharis-a tension release. After all, we vocalize when we are under great stress. If we bang our thumb with a hammer, we may swear or say ouch. We do someting to get the experience off our chest."

Dreams, meditation and diaries also can be effective forms of self-communication. "Diaries are good methods of self – Communication if you write more than "I swept the floor and made the beds today." We daydream or fantasize, but we never make any use of those thoughts. Our subconscious could be more important to us than our conscious self. We should tune into it."

Being Alone and Loving it

How many times have you wanted to go somewhere or do something and you couldn't find anyone to accompany you and you stayed home. If this has happened to you more than a few times you should do a little experiment with yourself. Try going to the movies by yourself, if your doing it for the first time a matinee maybe the best bet, try it and see how you feel. Within time you may enjoy spending time doing things by yourself.

So the next time you want to go shopping or to a movie, check it out by yourself, you maybe in for a very rewarding experience. ●

Research by Linda Shaw of PREVENTION MAGAZINE.

Next WeeK How to Fight the Blues and the Blahs When life's Troubles get you Down!

CONT. FROM PAGE 7

Liu Shaoqui

'CAPITALIST ROAD'

Mao viewed the Liu-Deng approach as going down the "capitalist road" by trying to institute the revisionist Soviet model of socialism.

One of the important aspects of Mao's critique of revisionism was that a new class of political officials, managers and technical expert control the centers of decision-making power, depriving the workers and peasant from fulfilling their political role in socialist society. This was to be the new "capitalist class" which Lui Shaoqi was said to be fostering within the party.

Mao stressed the importance of the simultaneous development of the forces and relations of production. Modernization had to accompany of more democratized decision-making, more economic and educational equality and the like. He helped to launch the cultural revolution in 1966 to combat the Liu-Deng political and economic perspective and to set China on a course of both modernization and socialist transformation. Liu and Dent were purged during the cultural revolution and their political perspective suffered a temporary defeat. Since 1976, however, Liu's political ideology and economic political ideology and economic policies have made a strong comeback.

One rarely sees the word "revisionism" in the Chinese press these days and several recent visitors to China have reported that when asked about the term, many Chinese officials respond by saying, "We are reevaluating many things." There have also been reports that the Beijing government is considering removing the revisionist label from the Soviet Union, since Chinese internal policies are increasingly similar to those of the USSR.

The reinstatement of Liu Shaoqi will make it even more difficult for the current Chinese leadership to continue to claim that they are carrying the mantle of Mao Zedong. The CCP has gone beyond correcting the ultra-"left" errors of the cultural revolution. Explicit criticism of the essence of Mao's political-thinking may not be too long in coming. ● had always been stickler for throwing out ballots that used "X" marks instead of checks, suddenly started pushing for a liberal interpretation of the rules when it came to a white write-in candidate. They insisted on counting anything that remotely resembled her name, regardless of spelling or of where it had been written on the ballot. They prevailed because one of the three black members of commission changed his vote and sided with them, reportedly after spending half an hour closeted with the county clerk.

CONT. FROM PAGE 7

That incident highlighted what Robinson called "our second big job" in the aftermath of the elections-"keeping an arm around the people who were elected to see if they function right."

Without an active black organization to keep an arm around them, many of the blacks elected in the past have ended up doing more to disillusion their constituents than to improve their lot. "We didn't have enough strong people prepared to assume leadership," at the time of the Voting Rights Act, commented Henry Kirksey. "So in many cases we just changed the color of the people in office."

Whites have done their best to make that happen, finding compliant blacks to run for office when possible and cozying up to other black candidates once they take office. The only way to combat that strategy, according to Skip Robinson, is to build organized black political power.

That is what Robinson and the United League have been doing for more than a decade, starting in Holly Springs and spreading across most of the state. In November, all those years of work paid off in the election of Marshall County's first black sheriff, along with a number of other black candidates.

It took years of hard work to get to that point. It took dozen of demonstrations escorted by United League members with shotguns to prove that blacks in Holly Springs would no longer back down to Ku Klux Klan terror. On election day, rumors were flying that the Klan would be in the street in front of the polls. They didn't show up but black voters did. And Robinson stated confidently, "The Klan won't show their faces here because they know we're ready for them.

It took months of boycotting white-owned businesses to give black confidence that they could challenge even the entrenched economic power of whites. In the weeks before the election, black sheriff-elect Osborne Bell charged that whites tried to use that power to defeat him. "Some top people in local factories were telling their employees that if I got elected, the factories were going to close up and move out of the county." Bell won decisively anyway.

"When you look at it, we made a lot of gains," Skip Robinson commented after the elections were all over. "We have proved to the system that we can win."

But the most important victories for black in Mississippi, as for blacks in Namibia, Zimbabwe, and South Africa, still lie ahead. Certainly, there are lessons they can learn from each other to hasten success. For their enemies have at least as much in common as they do. And Post-apartheid Mississippi could prefigure many of the structures that may shape post-apartheid Namibia, Zimbabwe, or even South Africa, unless the struggle for liberation does not stop with the attainment of the right to vote. ●

CONT. FROM PAGE 2

The union estimated that 3,000 workers participate. Instead, 20,000 workers showed up. 500 shops were out on strike. Meetings continued to be conducted in three languages. Women assumed the bulk of the picket line duty. The strategy was based on the assumption that the police would be more lenient towards women. They were not.

During the strike, employers sought scabs everywhere. At one point they attempted to hire out black women. Mary Ovington White of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), helped to pass a resolution in the Cosmopolitan Club (an organization of white and black workers to its ranks and encourage their employment in the industry. Herbert Aptheker speaks of the role of black women in this strike:

> They were not only able to persuade the girls of their own race and color from acting as strikebreakers, but they were able to keep wavering white girls from going back to work. In New York, colored girls are not only members of the union but they have been prominent in the union. One has been the secretary of her shop organization all through the strike and has been very frequently at the union headquarters doing responsible work...meetings were held during the strike at the Fleet Street Methodist Memorial Church (colored) in Brooklyn and St. Marks Methodist Church in Manhattan...in both, members of the Ladies Waist Makers Union said definitely and publicly that colored girls were not only eligible but welcome to membership."

As the strike ended, women had proven themselves. A majority of the strikers, they had assumed the heaviest picket duty and voluntarily accepted the lowest strike benefits. They suffered most of the arrest and workhouse sentences. Yet their support never wavered.

Workers at the Triangle Shirtwaist Company returned to work without a union agreement in February 1910 following the Uprising of the 20,000. For them the strike had been lost, largely because of the company's refusal to cooperate and the use of scabs. Two their key demands, therefore were never discussed with the firm: the need to open and unlock the doors to the Triangle Company factory on the seventy, eighth, and ninth floors of the Asch Building so they could get to the street and the need for fire-escape stairs that worked.

Most shirtwaist workers had won the 54 hour week following their strike, but not those of the Triangle Company who still worked 59 hours. So it was that each Saturday groups of union workers going home at union had made it a custom to walk by the Asch Building and call up to the Triangle Company workers. "So long, until victory is yours."

Several weeks after thousands of young garment workers had won this hard foug'ht strike, many of them joined a demonstration on New York's lower east side. Joined by women active in the suffrage movement, immigrant working women raised demands for better living and working conditions, and end to child labor and the right to vote. The date was March 8, 1909.

In March of 1911 a muffled explosion was the first sign of warning that would put a final note on the chapter of history that brought us the Uprising of the 20,000. A fire broke out in the Triangle Shirtwaist Company building. The doors to the fire-escapes were all locked. Hundreds of women plunged to their deaths that day trying to escape the flames.

It is to the memory of working women's role in this struggle that International Women's Day was founded. And it is on this basis that we should continue to commemorate the role of women in our history. It is to this history that we look for the inspiration in the struggles that we face today. ●

Quotes from the book WE WERE THERE written by Barbara Meyer Wertheimer

announcements

drum

We invite you to join us in the interpretations of the Black Experience. Poetry, essays, fiction, photography and artworks are now being considered for the Fall-Spring '79 – 80 edition of Drum. Written material shall be double – spaced, typed, xeroxed copies of the originals.

Photography: black and whites shall be no smaller than 5" x 7" inches prints color photography shall be submitted as slides

Artwork: drawings and paintings (color and black & whites) shall be submitted as slides

All material submitted becomes the property of Drum All submissions should be addressed to;

Drum
115 New Africa House University of Massachusetts Amherst Massachusetts 01003
Deadline date; Wednesday March 12 1980

"Share Your Mind With The World"

Two support groups for women will begin the week of March 2nd at Everywoman's Center. A support group for adult women who were victims of childhood sexual assault-abuse will begin Monday, March 3rd, and will meet at 6-8 pm at EWC. The group will run for ten weeks. To sign up, contact Holly Wheeler at EWC (leave message) or at 256-0364 (evenings). Free and strictly confidential.

A support group for rape victims will begin on Tuesday evening, March 4th, from 7:30-9pm at EWC. The group will run for eight weeks, and is free and confidential. For further information call Everywoman's Center, or contact Lin Morris at 256-0569 (5-6 pm).

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY

Collegian

Tuesday, March 11, 1980 Student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst VOLUME CIX, ISSUE 101

With all the controversy over lighting on campus, Physical Plant workers say the real problem is vandalism. These workers are now spending their time replacing broken fixtures instead of installing new ones. (Staff photo by J. Ferrarone)

Workers name vandalism as real lighting problem

By BRIAN FITZ MAURICE
Collegian Staff

While students, faculty and administrators all seem to have professional opinions about how the UMass lighting problems should be solved, to the men whose job it is to install and maintain the lighting, the problem stems from vandalism.

After a 90 minute discussion with UMass Physical Plant Electrical Foreman Herb Moltion and Physical Plant electricians Ed Kocre and Bob Jenks, it is apparent an increasing number of man hours are spent maintaining and repairing damaged existing lighting fixtures.

"We'd like to concentrate on the dark spots on campus which still don't have proper lighting, instead of spending all our time on the areas that already do," Kocre said.

The UMass Physical Plant Electrical Department is budgeted for $267,000 per year, according to Moltion, Over half this amount is devoted to replacing lighting destroyed by vandalism. Jenks said that out of a possible 80 hours per week spent maintaining outside lighting, about 40 to 50 of the hours are spent repairing broken light fixtures caused by vandalism.

Kocre expressed amazement that nobody had been seriously hurt or even killed while tampering with lighting fixtures. Kocre said, "These kids must be crazy playin' with this stuff. High intensity lights carry over 2300 volts, 110 can turn you into burnt melba toast."

Another problem that besets these men is the notification of downed or damaged lighting. "If they see a light is out all they have to do is call us at the Physical Plant, its our job to replace them," Herb Moltian said.

Half the budget and time appropriated to lighting walkways is taken up in replacement and maintenance of existing lighting. The lighting problem is in placement, and these men, instead having to 'concentrate on replacement, they said.

Campus crime shows increase

By JACK GALLAGHER
Collegian Staff

On-campus crime in 1979 increased 11 percent compared to 1978, according to UMass Public Safety figures.

Of the 2,533 incidents of crime in 1979, 29 percent were solved and 15 percent were alcohol related. The majority, 998, occurred between 3 and 11 p.m., while 774 occurred between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m. Larceny was the most-reported crime, representing 33 percent of the total crimes reported.

According to Gerald T. O'Neil, public safety director, the number of UMass police officers has not increased since 1970, while student enrollment has steadily increased. Statewide, O'Neil said, the average ratio of police officers per thousand population is 2.1, while at UMass the ratio is 1.7 per thousand.

O'Neil said many of the police officers must work stress-causing overtime as a result of that ratio but that the officers are "professionals who care about the community." UMass employs 37 full-time police officers and 31 institution protection men; the latter are unable to make arrests, however.

O'Neil said criminal arrests increased from 213 in 1978 to 257 in 1979, that motor vehicle arrests declined from 95 to 81, and that fire alarms increased from 305 to 441, he said 88 percent of all cases handled in 1979 were service calls, such as "lost car keys," and 12 percent were criminal, such as breaking and entering and rape.

Other crimes that increased from 1978 to 1979 were: drug offenses, from two to 25; breaking and entering, from 88 to 102; vandalism, from 289 to 331; and assault, from 40 to 57. Those that decreased from 1978 to 1979 included traffic citations, from 144 to 106; protective custody, from 268 to 262; attempted larceny, from 40 to 36; and recovered property, from 97 to 71.

"Everyone is concerned with vandalism, intimidation – living in fear. We're getting cooperation from dorms. It's getting to be a campus project," O'Neil said.

Birth rights workers caution against anti-abortion groups

By ANNE MERCIER
Collegian Staff

Members of the New York based "Committee for Abortion Rights and Against Sterilization Abuse" last friday warned a workshop audience of the impending threat from right-wing organizations against human reproductive rights in this country.

This International Women's Week Workshop, facilitated by CARASA member Roberta Russell, was entitled Reproductive Rights Organizing and the New Right Planning Meeting. The intent was to inform the UMass community of CARASA acivities and gain support for reproductive rights.

CARASA uses the term "New Right" to define right-wing organizations like the "Right to Life" groups, some organizations within the Catholic Church, and other political parties who oppose abortion rights, Russell said.

The "New Right" has adopted a single issue strategy, abortion rights, but this obscures both the larger issue of reproductive rights and the "Old Right" political ideals rooted in anti-communishm, racism and sexism, Russell said. The "New Right" still upholds these ideals, but tries to hide them and will endorse any candidate who opposes abortion rights, no matter what his other platforms are, Russell said.

88 percent of the population polled in the abortion issue supported the right to have an abortion

In the United States, 88 percent of the population polled on the abortion issue supported the right to have an abortion, Russell said. But "New Right" supporters are having great effect, given their small numbers because they have waged a populist campaign against abortion. They use direct mail, advertising and marketing experts, political conventions and name-calling to popularize their views, Russell explained.

"It is important to remember," said Helen Wood, another CARASA member, "that reproductive rights would still be threatened if the New Right packs up and goes."

The Human Life Amendment would define the legal rights of a fetus as opposed to and superceding the legal rights of the mother

Mainstream politicians will continue trying to cut off federal funds for abortion, Wood said.

Russell spoke of proposed legislation for a Human Life Amendment the "New Right" is actively endorsing. Sixteen states now support the proposed amendment, and a total of 34 are needed, Russell said.

The Human Life Amendment would define the legal rights of a fetus as opposed to and superceding the legal rights of the mother. The consequences would include, Russell said, "that abortions would be illegal, even in cases of rape or incest, and illegal abortion or self-abortion could be considered first degree murder or manslaughter, and women's deaths from illegal abortions would again increase."

CARASA is also concerned with outdated eugenics laws in this country, which allow forced sterilization of institutionalized "feeble minded and disturbed people," Russell said.

"Sterilization is also performed on prostitutes, petty criminals, maladjusted children, Third World women, and Welfare mothers, sometimes without full-informed consent, and this constitutes sterilization abuse," Russell said. The government encourages women who cannot afford abortions to be sterilized, because the government can pay up to 90 percent of the cost for sterilization, Russell said.

DIGEST

A group of people claiming to be members of the Afghan community in Washington burn a Soviet flag in the nation's capitol yesterday to protest the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan.

NRC finds 10 reactors may have serious cracks

CHICAGO (AP) – The Nuclear Regulatory Commission has identified 10 nuclear reactors nationwide as having potentially serious cracks in turbines, but has ordered no immediate shutdowns.

A spokeswoman said yesterday that inspections have been ordered; utilities have been asked to justify continuing operations until their next scheduled shutdowns, and repairs have been made at some.

"It's something that's been of some concern to us for several months," said Sue Gagner, a spokeswoman for the NRC in Washington, in a telephone interview.

The problem was idenified last summer in a nuclear plant turbine at Surry, Va., she said. Each turbine identified with cracks was manufactured by Westinghouse Electric Corp., with whom NRC officials met in December.

Afterward, a notice was sent to all nuclear plants, including a priority list which "identified 19 plants ... deemed to have the earliest need for inspection," Ms. Gagner added.

The Yankee Rowe plant in Massachusetts is on the prioriety list.

Students retain hostages, Commission visit off

By The Associated Press

A member of Iran's governing Revolutionary Council said the council would not take custody of the American hostages in Tehran and that it was "unlikely" that the U.N. investigating commission would meet the American captives, the official Pars news said last night.

Tehran Radio said the the five commission members would probably leave the Iranian capital Tuesday.

Ayatollah Bahonar, a member of the Revolutionary Council, said the majority of council members expressed their unwillingness to take over the hostages from the militants who seized the U.S. Embassy Nov. 4.

The council met last night after Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini issued a statement saying the U.N. commission should only see those hostages accused of being involved in crimes of the deposed shah.

Rumble breaks out over US's Israel vote

By ANNE S. CROWLEY
Associated Press

MIAMI – Seven chanting members of the militant Jewish Defense League swarmed into a campaign office for President Carter yesterday – one day before theFlorida primary – and swapped punches with staffers in a protest over the administration's Middle East policy.

There were no arrests and no serious injuries in the incident, police said. The demonstrators, who manned telephones while they were inside the office, were back on the street when police arrived.

The protesters, six men and one woman, claimed they took over the office. A Carter staffer called the incident "an attempted takeover."

The demonstrators said after the incident that they didn't want any more trouble and would focus their anti-Carter efforts at polling stations during Tuesday's presidential preference primary.

Former President Richard Nixon walks past the Arc de Triumphe in Paris yesterday after paying tribute to the Unknown soldier. He was in Paris to meet with European publishers of his new book, The Real War, which will be published in May.

Israel appoints hardliner to important cabinet post

By ARTHUR MAX
Associated Press

JERUSALEM – Yitzhak Shamir, a conservative who opposed the peace treaty with Egypt, became foreign minister of Israel yesterday. The appointment strengthened the hawkish government faction that has resisted concessions on self-rule for Palestinians.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin defended his choice for one of the three most influential positions in the Cabinet. "I am proud of this nomination, I am convinced he will succeed in his task for the good of our people," Begin said.

Parliament approved the appointment 55-39. Three members abstained, including Moshe Dayan who left the post five months ago in disagreement over Begin's policy on the future of the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River.

Begin, who had been acting as foreign minister, said he was confident Shamir would faithfully represent the government's policy, even though Shamir opposed the peace treaty with Egypt signed one year ago.

Senior Animal Science major Kate Less chases "Bang," one of her pair of Holstein heifers she is training for the oxen pulling portion of the Livestock Classic later this spring. These calves are about half their potential size, and will eventually be used for milk. (Staff photo by J. Ferrarone)

Reagan and Carter lead in Southern primaries

By PEGGY WALSH
Associated Press

With a timely boost from John B. Connally's withdrawal from the presidential race, Ronald Reagan looked yesterdayfor a sweep of three Southern Republican primaries. President Carter was a sure bet to win big among down-home Democrats.

At stake in Tuesday's primaries in Florida, Alabama and Georgia are 114 delegates to the GOP National Convention this July and 208 Democratic convention delegates.

George Bush, seemingly more concerned about keeping former President Gerald R. Ford out of the GOP race, says he'd settle for a "respectable" showing against Reagan. "Everybody assumes that all three of these states are strong Reagan states, and I know that," Bush said.

The only other major Republican candidate, John B. Anderson, has no campaign organization in the three states and does not even appear on the Alabama ballot. He chose instead to concentrate on the March 18 primary in his home state of Illinois.

Reagan was the man to beat in Alabama and Georgia, where he beat Ford by large margins in 1976. In Florida, where he narrowly lost to Ford four years ago, the former California governor held a comfortable lead over Bush in the latest polls.

The polls were taken before Connally dropped out Sunday, the day after he was thrashed by Reagan, 54 percent to 30 percent, in the South Carolina primary. Bush and Reagan both said they expected to benefit Tuesday from the former Texas governor's exit.

But even Bush said it would help him more in other states, particularly Texas and Illinois. And Reagan, welcoming any Connally campaign strategists who might want to join his camp, correctly observed that he and fellow conservative Connally "were appealing to the same group of voters."

On the Democratic side, Carter was expected to win handily in his native Georgia and neighboring Alabama. A recent poll by a group of Florida newspapers showed 52 percent of Democratic voters favored Carter, 10.1 percent supported Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and 32 percent were undecided.

The only other major Democratic contender, California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., has done almost no campaigning in the three states and is likely to finish far behind.

Workshop examines family alcoholism

By DEBBIE ROBERTI
Collegian Staff

A UMass Alcohol Education Project peer educator discussed the rising problem of alcoholism in the family during an International Women's Week workshop on Saturday.

Lisa Thompson, facilitator for the workshop, Alcohol, Family and Sexuality," discussed some of the reasons why people drink. Explanations such as social pressure, relief of tension and celebration were pointed out, but the most common excuse was "to escape."

"Many think that alcohol is the only way to escape some of the problems they are facing," Thompson said. "Alcohol is an effective escape, but for how long?" she asked.

Alcohol has been considered one of the major life threatening forms of addiction, Thompson said. "It readjusts the chemistry in certain brain nerves, and if an alcoholic does not get any alcohol, he or she could die without medical attention," she said. Medical reports have also shown that the life span of an alcoholic decreases by 12 to 15 years.

"It is a fact," Thompson said, "that children of alcoholics have a 70 percent chance of becoming alcoholics themselves." Because parents serve as role models for their children, parents who drink heavily will have a strong influence on the drinking habits of their children, she said.

Thompson also stated that "a drinking problem not only affects the alcoholic, but everyone around him or her." She discussed some of the problems children face when dealing with an alcoholic parent. "Many children try to be perfect, in order to please their alcoholic parent who will always find something else that is wrong with them anyway," she said.

Sex ed expands awareness around university area

By JACKSON KATZ
Collegian Staff

A Laissez-faire attitude concerning contraception education still linger in the U.S., despite the advances of the so-called "sexual revolution," according to Ron Mazur, coordinator of the Peer Sexuality Education program at UMass.

This attitude towards sex education does not exist everywhere, however. Here at UMass, in fact, an expanding program of human sexuality education serves as a reminder that there are people involved in education who care and are doing something about continuing that "revolution" of human sexual awareness, Mazur said.

In addition to providing comprehensive contraception education, programs sponsored by the Health Education Department of University Health Services deal with numerous aspects of human sexuality. Mazur, stresses that "exploring sexual values is as important a part of our sexuality as obtaining contraceptives." This attitude is reflected in the various workshops, programs, and services available to the University community.

Designed to attract and serve both women and men a fundamental presumption underlying these educational services is that sexual education and the responsibility for using contraceptives properly should not be solely women's issues.

Too often, as Mazur points out, women are expected to take full responsibility for contraception. The statistics on unplanned pregnancies, unwed mothers and abortions, being all statistics about women, make it seem that women are somehow totally responsible. In the sexist way this society looks at so many things, it is never reported that for every woman who gets pregnant, there is a man equally responsible. Mazur even goes so far as to say that men, often with lax attitudes toward their responsibility in contraceptions are the predominant users of abortion as a birth control method.

It is the attitude that men and women should take equal responsibility for contraception, and that all people should be more in touch with their own bodies and sexuality, that literally gives life to the various human sexuality programs run by Health Education.

Commentary

Wavy Gravy recollects counterculture years

By LAURA HANSCOM
Collegian Staff

Wavy Gravy is currently travelling across the country campaigning for "Nobody for President." In the past he has run a black and white pig for President and promoted a rock for President and a roll for Vice President.

Gravy, born Hugh Romney, is a "psychedelic counterculture figure" from the turbulent 1960's. He began his career as a comic, with Lenny Bruce as his manager. Then he varied from a Greenwich Village poet, to an acid-tripper with Ken Kesey's Merry Pranksters to a member of the Hog Farm commune and an emcee at Woodstock. Gravy and the Hog Farmers ran the drug "freak-out" tent at Woodstock.

Besides campaigning for Nobody, he is involved with "SEVA," an organization of doctors working to conquer blindness in Nepal. He arranged a fund-raising concert starring the Grateful Dead. A benefit classical concert for SEVA is being planned for May in either Carnegie Hall or the United Nations building.

Gravy now campaigns in clown costume because he was sick of getting beaten up at demonstrations. "Clowns are safe. You never see a bunch of rowdies get together and say, 'Hey, let's go out and kill us a couple of clowns."

His campaign purpose is to try to make people think about the world they live in. He wants to elevate the consciousness of American culture. "Talking about it doesn't get it done, the only way to change the consciousness is to live it and have fun," Gravy said.

Gravy lives in West Berkely with his wife Jahanara, his son Howdy Do Good Gravy and thirty other men, women and children. The "family" business is the Babylon Answering Service and at Desert Center, there is a group called the Grape Nuts, who harvest grapes and sell them to people's groups.

Gravy re-adjusted his plastic nose which he fills with water and lets drip while he talks, and explained that he is not advocating apathy. "It's important you write in Nobody. Lots of people are sick and tired of the candidates and think that Nobody is qualified."

He became disillusioned with conventional politics after he actively campaigned for Lyndon Johnson in 1964 and Johnson increased American involvement in Vietnam. This convinced Gravy that "Nobody should have that much power."

Playboy magazine has described Gravy as having "the almost mystical genius to make fun out of life without offending anyone's dignity of human existence."

Recently, he appeared in a People magazine article about the Woodstock rock concert ten years later.

Gravy pulled a sponge rock out of his pocket and tossed it across the room. "Just in case anyone wants to get stoned," he explained.

Wavy Gravy campaigned on campus Friday for "Nobody for President" along with getting the U.S. out of North America. Gravy appeared at the Collegian just long enough for a photo and an interview. (Staff photo by J. Ferrarone)

He wrote a book about life on the Hog Farm entitled Hog Farm and Friends, with a forward by Ken Kesey.

B.B. King is responsible for nicknaming Wavy Gravy at the Texas Pop Festival.

In his nearly toothless mouth, Gravy has a rainbow colored bridge. He proudly displayed it, explaining that his dentist gave it to him because "the only flag he would salute is a rainbow one."

Gravy claims that he "still crazy after all these years." His perception of the 1980 campaign: "If Nobody Wins, Nobody Loses."

Energy Board battles student heating woes

By MICHAEL SILVA
Collegian Staff

An Energy Grievance Board, designed to assist students with heating or energy related problems has been organized; Larry Kocot, Student Energy Program Coordinator, said.

Kocot originally became interested in student dealings with the Physical Plant last semester after he read student letters to the Collegian concerning temperature problems in their dorm rooms.

Students were writing about a room being too cold and nothing being done about it, Kocot said. He said "Ninety percent of the calls the Physical Plant receives concerning room temperature are the students' fault. It could be nothing more than a bed blocking a heater, but the Physical Plant has to check on all of them," Kocot said.

The EGB will handle calls from students with temperature problems "or any energy related problem" in their rooms, said Kocot. If a room is too hot or cold, the EGB will send a trained student volunteer to determine whether an energy problem exists.

If a problem is not the student's fault, said Kocot, the EGB will contact the Physical Plant. This will speed up the response from the Physical Plant because the EGB will already have weeded out the crank calls, he said.

Kocot said he is selecting the 12-member student board. "I am looking for people who are really interested," he said. The students will be trained in a colloquium designed to promote energy awareness, and will receive credits for their participation. They will then be able to teach a colloquium.

John Hoffman, Head Energy Coordinator at the Physical Plant, said "students should get involved. They live here." Hoffman also said students really don't understand about energy conservation and EGB would Help. "I think it's a good thing," Hoffman said.

Donbo Linnehan of New York City prepares to beat yet another unsuspecting dart fancier. The freshman History major now resides in Cance Dormitory in the Southwest Residential Area. (Staff photo by J. Ferrarone)

Recyclers will collect paper

By ELIZABETH McGOWAN
Collegian Staff

The Student Senate Recycling Project will institute a new recycling project at the University this semester, according to Project director Steven G. Walker.

The new project consists of recycling of high grade waste paper from office desks across campus, Walker said. The project is modeled after a 1977 Environmental Protection Agency recycling project. Walker said he hopes to draw public attention to the project's progress as well as aid the project financially.

The Recycling Porject is a student-run RSO group and a member of the co-op collective. The group was formed in 1974 as a branch of the Coalition for Environmental Quality. In 1975 the project was discontinued because the price of mixed paper was down to $3.00 per ton. When the price increased in 1977, the project was restarted by UMass students Michael Fager and Russell Cranshaw.

There are now about thirty project members. Twenty of these members are dorm recycling coordinators and receive one academic credit for their work on recycling projects in various dorms. Three students are employed as truck drivers. The project owns a trash truck and pick-up truck. The director, truck drivers, and some dorm coordinator positions are held by work-study students.

The project has glass and paper collection bins located across this campus, on the Hampshire college campus, and at various locations off campus. There are no paper recycling bins in the dorms because of the fire hazard presented.

The mixed paper collected is sold to P. Allen and Son in Northampton and the glass is sold to a plant in Oxford.

Walker said the project has had mixed success in the past and is now in good shape financially. Walker hopes they can pay off their $3,000 deficit soon so the project can become a self-sufficient body. As of now, the Student Senate pays the project's bills and charges the project until they are able to refund the senate.

Donna Lee Kettles, a business/marketing major was presented her winning ticket to Daytona Beach, Fla. on Friday. She won the contest by correctly answering the anagram clues that were run in the Collegian. Making the presentation are Mike La Broad Anheuser-Busch college representative, Jim Sadowsky, vice president of Williams Distributing Corp. and Fred Keillor, Collegian Business manager. (Staff photo by Jim Mahoney)

Candidates talk to Greeks

By JEFF BAGLEY
Collegian Staff

Student Government Association co-presidential candidates met to discuss their platforms and how they plan to represent the Greek system in student government, Sunday afternoon at Alpha Delta Phi in Fraternity/Sorority Park.

Howard Goldman and Kim Kirschner, running mates for SGA co-president, opened the discussion by stating their platform is to counter student non-involvement in university politics and to reach out to the over 110 student organizations for better representation.

Incumbent SGA co-president Richard LaVoice stressed his experience in student government from the dormitory level to one term as co-president of the student body as a major reason to re-elect him and elect his running mate, Richard Moran.

Mike and Joe Sullivan, co-presidential candidates, said they have gained much experience as "Founding Fathers" and officers of Delta Upsilon. The Sullivans said student lack pride in the university because they feel they have no voice in student government. The Sullivans are proposing a monthly newsletter dealing solely with student government, to be distributed with the Collegian.

When asked how they would represent Greek members as SGA co-presidents, Mike sullivan said that because of their involvement in a fraternity they are the most qualified to insure that Greeks are not ignored in student government.

Goldman and Kirschner said they have been attending meetings all over campus to gain insight into student concerns. They said they would familiarize themselves with Greek affairs and do what they could for Greeks.

LaVoice said he was aware of Greek affairs and he was working with the town of Amherst to have taxes lowered on Greek-owned property.

Reporters needed

Experience the glamour, excitement and prestige of writing for the Collegian, learning about the campus and making new friends. Come to a recruitment meeting tomorrow night at 7 in room 113 Campus Center to meet editors and get top assignments.

'American Gigolo' a teaser

By ROBERT B. CARGILL
Special to the Collegian

American Gigolo, starring Richard Gere and Lauren Hutton, was a bit disappointing. Paramount Pictures publicized this film as a depiction of the ultimate "stud" in action, leaving its potential viewers expecting multiple sex scenes, along with, at least, some substantial probing into the psyche of a male prostitute. But the fact that the movie comes off as shallow as the thematic content might suggest, and still succeeds, is the biggest irony of them all.

"American Gigolo" casts Richard Gere as the "highest paid lover in Beverly Hills" and Lauren Hutton as a prospective client who falls in love with him.

As a gigolo, Gere's job is to sexually satisfy rich upper class women who are either: a)too old; b)too ugly; c)too kinky; or d)all of the above—to score their own lovers. Appropriately, Gere's manner is just as glossy and chic as his clientele's; his fashionable wardrobe, the Mercedes he drives and his pretentious attitude seem to say, "Hey, look at me, I'm super-stud!"

Yet he plays the role impeccably. And in the end, when he's been framed for murder he didn't commit, he still retains all the cool and sophistication of a well-trained socialite. At times, his elegance is downright intimidating. Gere's role is quite the opposite to the role he played in "Looking for Mr. Goodbar" as the frenetic, supercharged psychopath.

Lauren Hutton is cast as a wealthy senator's wife, predisposed to have a relationship with Gere, and when she finally does, she proves to be unlike his typical clients. She wants him for more than sex and in one instance, asks him only to kiss her because "as soon as we begin to have sex, you go to work." Of course, Gere is dumbfounded and that line is as deep as the film goes.

The plot? Gere, amidst his innumerable tricks, is framed for an S and M murder he did not commit and spends the majority of the fising to prove he's innocent. Eventually, Hutton saves him and the film ends on one of its few emotional notes.

American Gigolo does not overwhelm you with bed scenes or violence but you cannot escape its sexual overtones. Director Paul Schrader was subtle, though indiscriminate, in his overall thematic presentation. This movie offers little emotion and in turn, evokes little sympathy for Gere, the not-so-innocent victim. American Gigolo is merely a tease, an enticing movie about "sex in the fast lane." The majority of the film trying to prove he's innocent. Eventually, Hutton saves him and the film ends on one of its few emotional notes.

Professor deals with 'math anxiety'

By LISA MAREGNI
Special to the Collegian

At UMass, the problems of "math anxiety" and "math avoidance" are addressed by Professor Doris Stockton of the Math Department. In her Math 104 pre-calculus class, Stockton deals with many students who have always have had trouble with math and who see themselves as handicapped in this area.

The main problem for many UMass students is not the inherent inablitiy to do math, but rather, the student's perceived incompetence, Stockton said. "Very often you can trace it back to some unpleasant experience," she said.

Twenty-tive percent of Stockton's fall semester Math 104 class said one reason for their present anxiety about math was having had a teacher who "didn't know what he/she was doing." "Teachers used to make me feel like I couldn't do it (math)," said Mary Dyer, a UMass sophomore.

A primary concern for Stockton is "developing confidence and making students feel at ease" about math. Thanks to this encouraging atmosphere, Dyer said, "I don't hate math anymore."

"My high school preparation for math) was terrible," said Freshman Laurie Forman. "Now, I'm having no trouble with math."

"Some people are asked to do math before they are ready for it," Stockton said. This is analogous to "teaching a child ballet before he or she knows how to walk."

A proposal is now being formed to establish a Math Learning Center which would help students with math problems and provide a pleasant place to go for assistance, Stockton said.

She acknowledges that everyone feels uncomfortable with mathematics, even mathematicians. The difference lies in whether you look at doing a math problem as a losing battle of as a challenge.

The Wesleyan Math Clinic at Wesleyan University in Connecticut, co-founded by math anxiety authority Sheila Tobias, is another program aimed at helping students overcome their fears and anxieties which have limited career options.

In an article published in "Children Today", Tobias said math avoidance can be a particularly harmful for women and girls. "The adolescent female, confronted by increasing difficulty in mathematics in junior and senior high school, may be permitted by parents and teachers to drop math because it is considered of no great use in the kinds of careers usually open to females and minorities."

Tobias cited some traditional methods used in teaching math: "going to the blackboard to reveal one's 'stupidity' in front of everyone else; timed tests which put a child under inordinate tension; emphasis on the righr answer; no room for discussion and debate..." These methods are frightening and often lead to anxiety and "self-doubt."

"...Math anxiety can never (and perhaps ought not ever) be eliminated. The point is to manage it, as those who work in the field of mathematics learn to do," Tobias said.

Bhutan dancers to perform

By VALERIE HAGFELDT
Special to the Collegian

Dancers and musicians from the Royal Kingdom of Bhutan are touring the West for the first time. They wil. perform tonight at UMass, Bowker Aud. at 8 p.m. Admission is free to UMass students.

Some of the dances were formerly part of the sacred Buddhist religion, performed only for the high monks. Other dances are performed annually to the people of Bhutan at a festival held in Tibet, the capital. In both cases the music of drums and of horns and the colorful costumes and masks are part of the rituals and drama of enacting the legends of earlier Buddhist beliefs.

At the height of most dances a murder is performed by the masked Gods. The act is ruthless and cruel, but this is only out of goodness and compassion. The Gods must kill the evil that cannot be killed by other means.

The legends from which the dances are taken, are said to date back as far as 842 AD. One, The Black Hat Dance, is said to reenact the legend of a Tibetan Monk who distracted and anti-Buddhist King with his dance and then killed him.

A clown represents a lighter side to the dances. The clown pokes fun at the ritual dances and performs obscene jokes. The people know the clown is a sacred Indian teacher because of his mask. He stands for unity and balance in their lives.

In present day, the dances are made public to the people in Bhutan including the most sacred dances. For the first time a small group of 13 of these dancers are performing in the west.

Homemaker rights proposed

By DENISE GORMLEY
Special to the Collegian

Increasingly, high school and college women are becoming-more aware of their changing positions socially and economically. More emphasis is being placed on career development for women and the reality that women are more responsible for their economic and social survival.

However, this is not necessarily true for middle-aged women who have always remained dependent on their spouses. "The women in midlife as portrayed by society is a myth," according to Eleanor Smeal, President of the National Organization for Women. So often she is visualized as a "woman who husband is ever-present, who lives in her own home, surrounded by a white picket fence, with two children," Smeal said. In reality she faces an increasing divorce rate and economic pressures.

The harsh reality is tht women in midlife confront severe limitations in their opportunities for employment and economic security. They contend with an economy that treats women "as a marginal, surplus lab or supply, competing with youngers workers for low paying, dead end jobs," Smeal said.

Statistics show women earn only 58 percent of what men earn, and account for more than 80 percent of the workers in eight of the lowest paying occupations.

What has resulted is women who, in-midlife, have a need or desire for outside employment but cannot compete with others who have career training or education.

As one way of addressing the needs of midlife women, NOW challenged The House Subcommittee on Aging to develop and enact a Homemakers Bill of Rights, consisting of two sections. The following is a summary of the bill.

Educational Rights for Homemakers—(1) A tax policy which enables homemakers to deduct all educational expenses, including transportation cost and child care; (2) Provision of loans at modest rates of interest to homemakers who wish to pursue vocational, professional or graduate training; and (3) Incentives to businesses to train and hire homemakers.

Economic Rights for Homemakers—(1) Revision of federal income tax forms to clearly indicate that all income listed on a joint income tax return is co-owned; (2) Inclusion in the Gross National Product of the value of goods and services produced and provided by homemakers, (3) Provision of independent Social Security coverage, (4) Increase and expansion of flexi- and part-time employment and job sharing opportunities.

Ali Nuernberg, a recent immigrant from Algeria, ponders a chess problem in the Campus Center Coffee Shop yesterday. (Staff photo by Chris Grewe)

The BEATLES
Saturday March 29 in the Hatch

EUROPE by CAR
RENT or BUY
LOWEST PRICES
FOR STUDENTS, TEACHERS
EUROPE BY CAR
45 Rockefeller Plaza
New York, N.Y. 10020
Phone (212) 581-3040
Mail this ad for Special Student/Teacher Tariff.
☐ RENTAL ☐ LEASE ☐ PURCHASE
☐ EURAIL PASS & YOUTH PASS

GOING SOUTH?

the SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st., amherst

PREPARE FOR:
OUR 41st YEAR
MCAT • DAT • LSAT • GMAT • GRE
GRE PSYCH • GRE BIO • PCAT
OCAT • VAT • MAT • SAT • TOEFL
NMB I, II, III • ECFMG • FLEX • VQE
NDB I, II • NPB I • NLE
Flexible Programs & Hours
Visit Any Center And See For Yourself
Why We Make The Difference
In Amherst:
264 N. Pleasant St. (413) 253-5108
Classes Begin:
MCAT 3/31 DAT 3/22
GRE 3/24
Stanley H. KAPLAN EDUCATIONAL CENTER
TEST PREPARATION SPECIALISTS SINCE 1938
Please call the Center for details
Outside N.Y. State Only CALL TOLL FREE: 800-223-1782
Centers in Major US Cities, Toronto, Puerto Rico and Lugano, Switzerland

Editorial/Opinion

Inalienable cultism

The First Amendment of the United States Constitution bears repeating:

"Congress shall make no law respecting the establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press; or the right of people to peaceably assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances."

The amendment was one of ten proposed to the states by congress in 1789 and subsequently ratified by 11 of the 14 states then in existence.

EVERETT HARMAN

I was walking through the Campus Center Concourse the other day when I saw a large mob of people around the CARP table. People in the front were arguing vehemently with the Moonies, while others shouted epithets and advice on where they could go and what they could do with The World Student Times. A female student became extremely excited and started screaming and ripping up some of the papers on the table. When a Moonie raised his voice in return a male student pushed him and warned him to keep his voice down.

My initial thought was "Right on. Let's get rid of these deceptive cultist mind-manipulators," but after a few minutes in the crowd I started to have visions of Germany in 1939. The mob mentality was taking hold. Here was a perfect target for the people's wrath: a group that seizes control of vulnerable individual's minds in order to create a force of proselytizing automatons. But then again, what did I really know about the Moonies? I had read a few disparaging newspaper and magazine articles about them and had even deigned to read a copy of The World Student Times, which I found to be a largely one-dimensional, anti-communist rag sheet. I was in no position to pass judgement on their fate and neither was the mob.

Emotion was in control of the situation and reason was on leave. I sensed that we needed protection from our own most primitive instincts.

The remarkable individuals who helped create the framework for our legal system realized that reason does not always prevail and that human rights must be institutionalized and protected through an elaborate system of checks and balances. Certainly, instances can be cited where technicalities of the law have been used to protect the guilty, but it's a price we must pay for the greater benefits derived.

Sometimes it's difficult to follow the letter and spirit of the First Amendment. Sometimes we feel so right and the offending party seems so evil and lacking in redeeming value. Yet, it is when we are in the grips of self-righteousness that we must be even more cautious than usual. The most horrendous atrocities have been committed by people who felt they were in the right. "Manifest Destiny" supported the displacement and extermination of Native Americans, while the genocide of European Jews was justified by vehemently anti-semitic mythology. "The Domino Theory" allowed us to drop napalm bombs and agent orange on civilians in Southeast-Asia.

Support of the first amendment has not come naturally to us. A recent review of Nat Hentoff's new book The First Freedom: The Tumultous History of Free Speech in America" depicts many instances throughout American history when this basic right was trampled upon by noble passion—the banning and burning of books, the suppression of "subversive" ideas, the interpretation of the law to justify oppression of "undesirable" groups and individuals. The current brethren of the Supreme Court have indicated that only "serious" speech, or speech of "redeeming social importance" is protected. Yet it is when we start making exceptions that the very purpose of the law comes into jeopardy.

The action of the Board of Governors in placing a counter-propaganda table next to that of CARP was very much preferable to banning the group from campus. If the Unification Church is committing unethical and illegal acts then it must be dealt with in a court of law. If we want our rights to be inalienable, they must apply to everybody.

Everett Harman is a Collegian columnist.

You can tell them what you need

Today and tomorrow, March 11 and 12, are voting days for the Student Government Association's Presidential elections. Also this week, surveys are circulated by the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy (SCERA), which attempt to measure student demands for their programs.

BETH SEGERS

Both events are opportunities for students to require more accountability from their student government. Each year the SGA oversees control of nearly $1.5 million in the form of an $84 annual Student Activities Tax Fund. Out of this money, various student organizations are funded.

Included in this week's survey are questions concerning SCERA's research projects (UMass library, budget cuts, sexual harassment, etc.), programming concerts and speakers, and economic ventures.

Three thousand surveys will be distributed all week for on-campus students. Commuters can complete the questionnaire in the Hatch or on the concourse while they vote for SGA presidents.

Results of the survey will be used to change funding and student research if your demands are different from current policy.

As was proven in last Tuesday's state presidential primary, voter turnout can result in changes in leadership. Campus leadership also deserves wide participation from its voters—and that includes YOU.

Beth Segers is a SCERA member.

Letters

OHAG angered

To the Editor:

A letter of notice to the student body concerning Jim Sheehan, a candidate for co-president of the SGA and former Vice President of the Orchard Hill Area Government:

Jim withdrew from his position as Vice President of OHAG to spend time campaigning for co-president of the SGA. Jim was also allocated $450 for an OHAG fund raising project, with the understanding that this sum would be reimbursed to OHAG. The project was the movie "Mean Streets" which aired March 6.

The advertising for this presentation was extremely insufficient. And to date no such refund has been made. Jim Sheehan has not reported to the President of OHAG concerning how much money was lost. He also wasn't present at the meeting to relay to the body his report on the movie. Jim was too busy campaigning. Since the $450 that was to be reimbursed has previously been allocated, OHAG finds itself in a bind. We therefore feel it is our responsibility to publicly announce our reprimand of Jim Sheehan to the University.

Tim Gallagher
Orchard Hill Area Government President

Reasons for support

To the Editor:

This past Friday I withdrew from the SGA presidential race. Why I withdrew is not as important as why I first decided to run. In the past two years I have seen many problems with the SGA in regard to corruption and political fiascos, but worst of all is the attitude that the SGA is the president and the senate. This ignores the primary obligation of our representatives to remember that it is the students they speak for (?) and not themselves. This poor attitude is again seen in the Collegian endorsement of a certain candidacy. The reasons cited were experience and ability to deal with the administration. My problem with this candidacy is its inability to work with students and aid them in their struggle for a better university. This year has seen virtually unopposed budget cuts, substantial tuition increases, no improvements on desperate campus living conditions, severe budget cuts for RSO groups, and an increase in SGA salaries and the SATF.

I believe we have in this election a candidacy capable of working with students for a better, more co-operative university. This candidacy is willing to work for your gains, not their own.

I do therefore whole-heartedly, and without reservation support the candidacy of Kim Kirshner and Howard Goldman in the SGA presidential race.

Michael B. Cohen
Thoreau

Part of our 'job...'

To the Editor:

The Collegian Board of Editors has one hell of a nerve. They have the guts to endorse one candidate out of the entire field of competitors for SGA president. I'm sorry, editors, but I disagree with turning the editorial page into a political side show. It is not the job of the Collegian to create public opinion.

The job of a newspaper is to inform the readership. The article on page one of the March 10 Collegian does this nicely. It gives an outline of each candidate, his/her background and some personal information. This allows the voters a chance to examine each of the candidates and make a well-informed, intelligent decision based on their own individual thoughts.

By endorsing a candidate the Collegian has undermined the whole system of choice. People who don't know who to vote for will probably vote for LaVoice and Moran because they saw their name in the paper. This is hardly a reason to vote for someone.

The Collegian has singled out one candidate, thereby giving LaVoice and Moran the best publicity they could have ever hoped for. They have destroyed any impartiality this election may have had. Endorsing someone in an election as localized as the SGA is deplorable. It is telling the readers who they should vote for.

I don't have anything against LaVoice or Moran. I firmly believe, however, that the editors of the Collegian overstepped their boundaries. They have helped to make the SGA's floundering image a little dimmer.

I can hear you saying, "But newspapers have been endorsing candidates for years." This is true, but it doesn't make it proper just because newspapers have been wrongly trying to shape public opinion. It's time the Collegian*'s editors stopped this antiquated form of politicking and let the student newspaper be the paper for the students—all the students—not just for the narrow viewpoint held by one group of editors.*

Ron Miller

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian

STEPHEN B. KLEIN, Editor-in-Chief; JULIE EAGLE, Managing Editor; FREDERIC M. KEILLOR, Business Manager; JACK GALLAGHER, News Editor; ROB BURBANK, Executive Editor; LISA CAPONE, Women's Editor; RENEE MOBLEY, Black Affairs Editor; JIM MAHONEY, Photo Editor; SUZETTE COURTMANCHE, Graphics Manager; JIM DEGNIM, Sports Editor; JIM MORAN, Fine Arts Editor.

Associate Editors

Jeff Baker, Fran Basche, Ellen Davis, Carolyn Mooney, Hob Stein, Associate Managing Editors; Ed Levine, Brian O'Connell, Associate News Editors; Eric Janssen, Associate Executive Editor; Debbie Wallace, Associate Women's Editor; Marcia Horsedales, Associate Black Affairs Editor; Peter Berry, Associate Photo Editor; Abbe Bjorklund, Associate Fine Arts Editor; Jane Wolfson, Associate Sports Editor; Jeffrey Bianchi, Associate Graphics Manager

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian is a member of the Associated Press. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertisers lies with the individual advertisers.

USPS 333-220

UMass foodland reveals assorted tastes, terrors

By PETER LESSER
Special to the Collegian

Sales of hot dogs, peanuts and crackerjacks at the Curry Hicks Cage suffered greatly because of this year's Minutemen national losing streak. Coffee, donuts, bagels and tab have been forgotten at the UMass coffee shop because the nation's tallest library is falling down. Meanwhile, beer and powerhouses are being avoided because of the raised legal drinking age which allows only the over-20 crowd to frequent the prestigious Blue Wall Bar.

What is happening to our school? Waistlines are getting smaller and University food service managers are frantic.

Our journey of a UMie in foodland starts at the infamous dining commons. As vacationers at orientation, we got our first taste of University feeding. We all ate at Franklin Dining Commons. Pancakes and sausage links all we could eat salad bars, hot dogs, quiche and luncheon meat! Turkey breast with stuffing and all the fixings for dinner. A far cry from Swampscott High School where one was lucky to get a turkey loaf sandwich on the Wednesday before Thanksgiving. After being sold on the high quality food during orientation, students were crazy not to sign up for the 19 meal plan.

Commentary

As a freshman after the first week the novelty wore off. It seemed like veal parmesan was haunting us every day and the 27 varieties of potatoes were becoming the best part of the meal. Arguments during breakfast centered around whether the scrambled eggs were powdered or frozen, at lunch whether the serving women actually ate the food or brown bagged it, while at dinner the argument was whether the sirloin steak was an early April Fools' joke.

Food service is a problem at most major colleges and universities. It is a very difficult job feeding thousands of students every day. If its any consolation, at Harvard University, where students dine under chandeliers, the food is about as good as last Tuesday's leftovers. They don't even serve turkey divan.

Last year as a result of a large freshman class, a shortage of dorm rooms resulted, allowing juniors along with seniors to move off campus. Visions of filet mignon every night in luxury condominiums like Puffton Village seemed more attractive than shephard's pie at the D.C. Although dinners are prepared in apartments, lunches and breakfasts, if not packed in No Nuke lunch boxes, are consumed at a variety of campus cateries. Breakfast might be a donut and coffee at the undergraduate business club table in School of Business Administration or a full course breakfast special at either the Hatch, open until late afternoon; Coffee Shop, open until midnight;or Newman Center, open until 9 p.m.

For a few more cents, and with a much nicer view, the Top of the Campus Restaurant's breakfast can not be beat. All entrees include a selection of juices, fresh fruits, toast, cold cereal, pastry and muffins.

Commuters

Lunch is offered at several stops as well. The Hatch, Coffee Shop, and Newman Center all offer the standard grill specialties, deli sandwiches and salad platters. All are relatively quick but it is tastier to buy hamburgers to order, rather than grab the ones in attractive aluminum foil. Soft ice cream, desserts and junk food are plentiful for all students just getting out of their Food Nutrition 101 course.

In a hurry? Try the quickie lunch on the 10th floor or grab a hot dog in the Campus Center concourse. If you have more time and want to change that biology mark from F to C, take your professor up to the TOC for lunch. The view is excellent and the food is quite good. A salad bar compliments all entrees. Students with a UMass I.D. receive a discount on all menu offerings.

The Blue Wall probably has the best deal at lunch with two or three luncheon specials every day. For the health conscious, Earthfoods in the Student Union is a standby for many. Two entrees, two salads, a starch and soup are offered. Perhaps the best soup at the University is Earthfoods potato soup. Earthfoods is student-run; participants offer an hour of their work in return for a meal. Earthfoods also offers live entertainment. Just behind Earthfoods is The People's Market, run cooperatively, where cheeses, fruits, nuts, yogurt and a gamut of natural goodies can be purchased at low prices.

If it is noon and you are all the way over in the Whitmore Administration Building trying to get independent study credits for Afro Am Sculpture, ("Clay for an A"), stop by the Whitmore snack bar located on the lower level. Prices are low, offerings limited but the food is good.

Finally, a food preparation class in the Hotel, Restaurant and Travel Administration Dept. puts on several luncheons during the week. Full course meals from soup to nuts are prepared and serviced by hotel majors. Prices are very reasonable and inquiries, required before eating there should be made at the hotel department's Flint Laboratory.

Midday Munchies

Three-o-clock and still hungry? Most major classroom buildings have vending machines containing candies, cakes, ice creams and beverages. Popcorn, the staple of many diets, is always available at the Student Union candy counter. Bagels are a favorite of the clergy over at the Newman Center.

Student-run snack bars are located in three residential areas; Subway located in the Sylvan area, Hilltop in the Orchard Hill area and Greenough Snack Bar in the Central Area all stay open until midnight. They seem to be much better deals than cold, delivered pizzas available from the many pizza factories in the area.

Randy Kleiner and Susan Butkewich, Plant and Soil Science graduates, admire the tropical foliage in the Durfee Conservatory. The Conservatory, which has plants from all over the world, is open to the public. (Staff photo by John Bunting)

Future Food

What lies in store for the UMass food service in the near future? Hopefully, a strong recruiting year for the basketball Minutemen will give them a winning team, causing the demand for crackerjacks to go sky high in the Cage. It looks as though the library may operate at full capacity, greatly helping the Coffee Shop's business.

The University food service marketing department has launched a plan to see the Blue Wall undergo some needed change hopefully by next fall. A restaurant design firm has already been contacted. These efforts were made possible by numerous suggestions, from the UMass college community. The University food service maintains they are always open to suggestions and encourage participation.

Unfortunately, the University food experience has to come to a sad end. Some of us will graduate and eat our own organically grown food. Others will eat in exclusive dining rooms, while most of us, I'm afraid, will be munching on McDonald hamburgers and Kentucky Fried Chicken.

STADIUM
U. Mass. Amherst

KEGS— BEER—

LIQUORS WINE—

LIQUORS

Molson Golden Ale, Ale, Beer 2.75 /6 10.49 cs
O'Keefe Ale 12 oz. btl. 2.75 6 pack 9.90 case
Haffenreffer 12 oz. btls.. 1.60 6 pk. 5.90 cs.
Old Milwaukee..... 12 pack 3.10
S.S. Pierce Vodka 1.75 liter..... 7.95
Miller btls or cans..... 7.99 case

Budweiser btls. or cans..... 7.99 case
St. Pauli Girl ..... 3.20 six..... 12.60 case
Tuborg Gold 12 oz. btls. or cans..... 6.99 case
Giumarra Vineyards Mt. Cahblis, Mt. Burgundy, Mt. Rose..... 1.5 liter 3.59
Cuervo Gold Tequila 750 ml..... 6.89

Catch Our Weekly Specials

500—Parking places
Soda—Ice—Munchies

Save money—Save gas—Save time
10 a.m. — 253-5595 — til 11 p.m.

"Flex"– The Lene Lovich Way!

The sedentary life makes stiff creatures of us all. Now! On her long-playing record, Lene Lovich has devised a new exercise regimen that's more than just a good lesson in physical culture.

Ready..."Flex"! Lene Lovich's hefty new album.

On Stiff · Epic Records and Tapes.

Buy it once. Enjoy it a lifetime. Recorded music is your best entertainment value.

Produced by Lene Lovich, Les Chappell, Roger Bechirian and Alan Winstanley.
"Epic" is a trademark of CBS Inc. © 1980 CBS Inc.

Available at For the Record, $4.99
Appearing at UMass March 13

Experience makes the difference:
- Distinguished Visitors Program Chairman
- Students United for Public Education
- Students Senators
- SCERA Residential Team
- Legal Services Board
- Ombudsman's Search Committee
- Physical Planning Committee (Fencing Issue)

VOTE Kim KIRSCHNER / Howard GOLDMAN
SGA Co-President
We're working for your rights.

WINDSHIELDS
Auto Glass Parts

installed While-U-Wait!
(Most parts in stock)
VALLEY Auto Trim and Glass
798 N. King Northampton 584-4837
½ mile North of Calder

Interested in an Internship in Western Massachusetts?

Come to the Internship Fair!

Campus Center Concourse-Lower Level
Wednesday, March 12 - 10 am-3 pm
Sponsored by the:
Office of Internships and the Student Activities Office
16 Curry Hicks Student Union Buildings
545-0727 545-3600
Contact us for more information

Hold it...we think you're gonna like this picture!

"Bruce Woolley & The Camera Club." The American debut of the man people are hailing as the most important new British rock artist. An album of songs for a wired nation, like the electromorphic international smash, "Video Killed the Radio Star."

Get your hands on the music!

"Bruce Woolley & The Camera Club." The first exposure, on Columbia Records and Tapes.

Buy it once. Enjoy it a lifetime. Recorded music is your best entertainment value.
"Columbia" is a trademark of CBS Inc. © 1980 CBS Inc.

Available at For the Record, $4.99
Appearing at Bowker Auditorium March 13

PLANTFAIR

Green and lilly white Gifts! at the PLANTFAIR

Quality Plants at Low Prices!

March 10, 11, 12
9 am - 8 pm
S.U.B.

The Chequers Saloon
Amherst, Massachusetts

If the Quiche, Chicken Cordon Bleu or the Shrimp Stuffed Scrod doesn't get you, the cheeseburger will.

University Drive
Next to Alumni Stadium
549-5861

GOING SOUTH?

the SHOE BIN 187 n. pleasant st., amherst

Collegian Classifieds

To place a Collegian Classified
•Come to Collegian Office CC 113
•8:45 to 3:45 Mon-Fri
•Classified deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day

Collegian Classified Rates
•15c per word
•Student rate 10c per word
•Cash in advance
•5 consecutive days 5 % discount
•Phone number FREE

AUDIO

 Steve Garfield ***
brings the latest in Pure Pop, Rock and New Wave (oldies too) to the airwaves every Friday from 9 am to 1 pm on the Friday Breakdown on WAMH, 89.3 FM stereo "The Pioneer Valleys Best Sound"

40 Channel C.B. Radio new, $65 or B.O. 8 crystal scanner, with crystals, $100 or B.O. Call Bob 256-8292

SONY one point stereo eletret condenser microphone excellent cond. $25 253-3225

MX Receiver 40 watts rms/channel $135 1 year old 6-5637

Realistic Speakers excellent condition 40 watts—Realistic STA-21 receiver LAB 60 turntable BO 546-8919

AUTO FOR SALE

FIX YOUR OWN CAR. The Student Auto Workshop offers tools, space, and assistance. Tues, Wed, Thurs 3-9 pm, Fri 12-5, Sat 10-5. Level one CC garage. 545-0673

'73 Toyota Mark II Wagn 73000 mi excellent shape, yours for $1980 phone Kittye 549-5412

Car for Sale: 1970 Pontiac Lemans. Good condition. Runs well. Rebuilt engine. Only problem: transmission bad. $400 or best offer. Worth it! Call: 549-1661. Best bet-nights & mornings.

74 Pinto Station autom 51000 M 2300 ccm good cond $800 call 549-1388

73 Mod Mercury Stw new A.T. no rust 9 seats A.C. P.S. P.B. ex. cond. $1399 or BO 549-4373

Stn. Wgn. 73 Chrysler T & C needs some work but runs well $400 Sandy after 6:30 323-5711

69 Dodge Van exlnt. cond. no rust, new engine $950 549-5975 Colleen

'76 Camaro loaded with options, very good condition, new paint, call 549-6994 afternoons 2995 or BO

ENTERTAINMENT

How can two people do the work of 13? The Coalition

FOR RENT

Cape Cod Summer Seasonal Rentals: W. Yarmouth & Dennis. 2, 3 or 4 bedroom. Save! 1-617-528-0404

Rooms for Rent $125/mo plus in private home on bus rte in Sunderland. Available Spring and/or Summer 665-7500

One bedroom Colonial Village $112/mo available now 256-6749 Andy or leave message Tobin 509

FOR SALE

Diving Gear new US Divers Equip call Ted at 549-6488

Two tickets to John denver Concert March 16 in Springfield. Excellent seats. Call John 6-8666

Furniture 2 Bancroft Squash Raquets, Housewares call Bill 549-1167 keep trying

Classical Guitar excellent condition with case 253-3012 late or early

For Sale used Parachutes. Great for ceiling, wall decorations, many colors $25.00 each. Drop by Parachute Club Office S.U. 309

FOUND

Found-Brown plastic rimmed glasses in Northeast quad. Call Jeff 6-3210

Women's ring found in Boyden 2-28-80 call 253-9880 for description

Representaion in numbers: . . .The Coalition

HELP WANTED

TV Viewer needs two Advertising Sales reps for Northampton/Amherst area. Part time/full time must have a car and be able to devote 20 hours per week call anytime 533-8554

Make $244/week this summer! Send your school address and phone with stamped self-addressed envelope. Box 213, Amherst MA 01002

The Index has several openings for work study or non work study students who have experience selling advertising space or feel enthusiastic about the prospect of trying. Hours are flexible, payment on a top-dollar commission basis. If you are interested come down to room 103 for an interview on March 11 at 7 PM Index is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer

Paralegal Interns Wanted The Legal Services Office has 8 positions available for full time paralegal interns for Fall 1980 semester. You can receive up to 15 credits from the Office of Internships located at Curry Hicks. These internships will provide exciting, challenging and rewarding work which will include the learning of many legal skills. Interviewing clients, legal research, and maintaining a continuing caseload under the supervision of attorneys. Third World students and women are encouraged to apply. Applications must be submitted bu April 1. 1980

INSTRUCTION

Guitar Lessons—Jim Kimball, formerly with the Bricker band, taking on new students. Call 549-1383

Beginner Folk Guitar Lessons Call Mary 256-6719

Sentics Workshop—"The Miracle of the Possible" call Elizabeth Paton 413 549-3880

Quality Statistics Tutoring Your textbook, your class, your level Stat 121-140 Psych Stat 240 etc. Call John 253-2036 early mornings or late evenings

Basic Auto Mechanics Workshop 28 hours of instruction including classroom theory and shop. Limited enrollment 253-7967 or write for brochure: Autoskills, Box 210, Amherst

LOST

Lost Black Lab named Astro Always seen around campus. If anyone has any info please call Scott at anytime 549-6219. Wears blue collar, keep your eyes open friends.

Lost silver plated cross If found please call Peter at 546-4624 REWARD THANKS

Suede Gloves Amherst/bus Ellen 5-4966

Clipboard with collegian advertising information attached call Kevin 549-4533 or 545-3500

Pair gold-rimmed glasses last Tues GRTWR area. Needed desparately! 546-4246 Sandi

Green pen case my favorite pen inside! Please call 253-2782

Snake design silver bracelet lost. Great personal value. Call Margaret 256-6469

PERSONALS

STICK IT IN YOUR EAR: FREE EAR PIERCING WITH PURCHASE OF STUDS. SILVERSCAPE DESIGNS 253-3324

Pete Jacke call Macky 665-7923

Why pay more? Chocolate Almond Coffee Beans 479 lb Silverscape Cafe 264 N Pleasant St Amherst 8-midnight Mon-Sat 12-midnight Sun

Are we serious?? You bet!! Vote "The Coalition of 13" March 11 & 12

Pi Kappa Alpha presents Florida Warm-up Party at Poor Richards on Tuesday March 11, 8 pm Un-heard of Happy Hour prices all night. Tickets $1 pos ID required Don't Miss This One

Spring Break in Florida?? Female wanted to accompany another. Must pay expenses. Call soon 253-3826 keep trying

Charismatic Prayer B.S. Tuesday March 11 CC 815 8-10 PM

Who is that guy with the hat in the wheelchair, anyway?

Bring back pride and respect to UMass Vote Sullivan/Sullivan SGA co-presidents

To whoever took my green ski jacket from the Pub Thurs. 2/28, it's cold without it. Please return. Call Elizabeth 6-8584

Buddy, Kinks Concert was great. Thanks! Happy Birthday! —Kathy

We can stork, we can march, we will play! 3/23/80 be there aloha!

Dan, "I only wish my words could just convince myself that it just wasn't real but that's not the way it feels" —j. Croce

ATTN! Committee to reevaluate ceilings will meet CC 407. Agenda: Examine spot on Ty's knee

Colleen I could watch you play all night Dave

Fred Winer says vote for Howard Goldman and Kim Kirschner for SGA Co Presidents

See you at Spring Concert love Slim Whitman

Julie, We love you Jill, who cares signed, MaNamara

To the gentleman with the red cap—will you be there Friday the 14th 1215-1230? —Carol

9th floor Washington is a social disease

Slim Whitman for Spring Concert!

I don't know Buddy you are so different from everyone else—free from pretension and games so good, so honest Thanx, Buddy II

Sue Bemb Thanks for everything. You,ve been a great friend and I'll miss you lots. Good Luck in Oregon. With love, your roomate

MAVAW Meeting March 12, 7:30, CC 802

BZ HRTA step 1 affection sm

All Sheehan/Weatherwax Campaign Supporters: THousand thanks for all the help. Make last big push.

SW Vote Sheehan/Weatherwax SW

Forum on the Draft—Confused about the issues? Do you want more information and a chance to ask questions? Come hear Sam Bowles, Ann Ferguson, Michael Thelwell and others Wed. March 12 at 7:30 CC Aud For further info - 545-0341 Sponsored by S.A.D.

K.L., B.C., D.R., and M.B. of SDT — Get psyched for Fla! Only two more days—B.P.

RESIDENT COUNSELORS

Unique program for handicapped children seeks counselors for ten week summer program, located in Westchester county N.Y. Contact: Director, The Children's Aide Society, Box 47, Chappaqua N.Y. 10514

RIDE WANTED

Ride wanted to Florida for Spring Break will share driving and expenses call Mary 546-8317

Looking for a ride to Cincinnati, Ohio or vicinity. Will share expenses and driving. Call Leslie at 586-6578. Leave March 14th

Ride needed Daytona by March 16 Jim Alfano 665-7746

Ride wanted to Long Island or NYC Friday 3/14 before 12 noon. Call Rich at 546-8736 Will share driving and $$$

Need ride to Potsdam N.Y. 3/13 or 14. Call Karen 586-1491

RIDERS NEEDED

Leave N Amherst daily M-F 7:45 am to Holyoke Ctr return at 4:30 Fred 549-6358

ROOMATE WANTED

Male roomate wanted Brandywine call 549-4671

1 room in Rolling Green: all utilities, A.C., furn, bus route; pool, D.W., elec heat vacant now Dave, Pete 256-0340

Calif. summer roomate(s) to share a beach apt. in Santa Barbara area June 16 to Sept 25 Write: Elaine Seymour 6684 Del Playa Apt A Isla Vista CA 93017

SERVICES

Attorney Jason R. Rosenthal Legal Representation. Income Tax Preparation. Days 584-4285 Evenings 253-7617

Laffer T-shirts great silkscreening at great prices professional graphics provided 549-1018

GRANOLA!! Now that we've got your attention, Vote for: The Coalition

TO SUBLET

Summer Sublet/Fall option 1 bedroom Cliffside Apt. Sunderland $192 includes utilities on bus route 665-7966

To sublet—2 bedroom apt. furnished, on bus route, pool, tennis, all utilities incl. Avail. June-Aug $200 665-4839

WANTED

Fast immediate cash for gold-school rings-diamonds- silver Jeff anytime 527-7078 586-0180

WANTED TO RENT

3 bdr. apt on bus route for fall. Willing to take over for summer. Call Raina 546-6500 or Debbie 546-8445

UMass students looking to rent house for fall 80 access to bus route necesary contact Cindy 253-7132 or Carolyn 546-5060

TUESDAYS
2 for 1 Night
(All Mixed Drinks)
9-11
Disco/Oldies
No Cover
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

On March 11th & 12th the students of UMass will have a chance to "clean up" their Student Government Association.

They will have a chance to elect 2 Presidents who will see that their money stops being wasted, and that their demands are acted upon. They will have a chance to vote for two candidates who dare to stick their necks out and who vow to turn the current "Student Government Club" into the "Student Government Association" that it should be.

Don't let this opportunity slip away. . .vote on March 11th and 12th for:

JAMES KELLY
and
RUTH LEIMONAS
S.G.A. Co-Presidents

Nuke the Whale by Danny Guidera

4 by Frank Emery

Bean by Kevin X. McNamara

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

Crossword

UNITED Feature Syndicate
Monday's Puzzle Solved

ACROSS
1 Rhythm
5 Louse
10 Kind of ski lift
14 Unctuous
15 Blackmore girl
16 Mata —
17 Rumor sources
19 Singing voice
20 Calm
21 Assam silkworm
22 Rumple
23 Summit
25 Egyptian god
26 Spanish painter
30 Piece
31 Small cafe
34 Make sleek
36 Fare: 2 words
38 Knock
39 Our tongue: 2 words
42 Mistruth
43 Saltpeter
44 Senior
45 Mortgagee
47 Fish
49 Butte
50 Dawn goddess
51 Fur source
53 Man's name
55 Hindu title
56 Chase
61 Pre-med. subj.
62 Selfish ones
64 Ceremony
65 Mansion
66 Swallow
67 Extorted
68 Panel, e.g.
69 Kill

DOWN
1 Marshes
2 Ireland
3 Winglike
4 Kind
5 Speech part
6 Luau treat
7 Some voting events:
8 Inactive
9 Mr. Arnaz
10 UK river
11 Parapet
12 Liberal —
13 Rivers: Sp.
18 Letter abbr.
24 Number
25 Spree
26 Trance
27 A Ford
28 Reform
29 Far: Prefix
31 — ton
32 Frenzies
33 Tosca, e.g.
35 Ball clubs
37 Fortune telling card
40 Knight
41 City on the Danube
46 Kind of line
48 Leave
51 Instrument
52 Operate
53 Arrowhead
54 Indigo plant
55 Half: Prefix
57 Outfits
58 Kish's son
59 USC's rival
60 See
63 A Stooge

DC Menu

Lunch
Cheeseburger
Liver and Onions

Basics Lunch
Vegetable Chow Mein/
Dry Noodles
Golden Burgers

Dinner
Chicken Cutlet/
Supreme Sauce
Cranberry Sauce
Italian Shrimp and Rice

Basics Dinner
Spinach Casserole
Chicken Cutlet/
Supreme Sauce
Cranberry Sauce

Earthfoods

Buddy's eggplant casserole
Creme of mushroom soup
Green salad
Rice Bulghar
Poppyseed cake

PIZZARAMA
355 College St.
PIZZAS GRINDERS SPAGHETTI
NEW GREEK SALAD $2.00

M-Th 11-1:30 AM
F-Sun 11-2:30 AM
FREE DELIVERY
Phone 253-3808 256-0115

LAST CHANCE
If you Drove to
Sugarbush Ski & Party Week
Come to Ski Club Office CC 106
UMASS SKI CLUB
DO IT NOW!!
545-3437

Notices

PICKET FOR PEACE. There will be a picket in front of the Amherst Post Office – site of future registration for the draft – today from 12-2:00.

EVER WONDER whether anyone out there in the State House really cares? Ever wonder how you can make them care? Come to a meeting of the MASS STATE STUDENT ASSOCIATION, Wednesday at 5 p.m. in CC 177. For information call 545-0341.

AN INFORMATION MEETING FOR STUDENTS interested in studying this summer at Oxford University in England will be held tonight at 7 p.m. in Bartlett 301.

CHERITO PLANAS, exiled opposition candidate for the National Assembly of the Philippines, will present "A Personal Report on the Philippines. Politics, the Military, and the U.S." today at 7:30 p.m. in Seelye Hall 15 at Smith College.

FORUM ON THE DRAFT. There will be a forum tonight at 7:30 in the Campus Center Auditorium to discuss various issues regarding the draft. Speakers include Prof. of Economics Sam Bowles, Prof. of Philosophy Ann Ferguson, and Afro-American Studies Prof. Michael Thelwell, among others.

ECONOMICS PROFESSOR VACLAV HOLESOVSKY will present the anti-war views of Social Democrats U.S.A. tonight at 8 in Campus Center 101. The program is entitled, "War, Peace, the Draft, and You."

THE UMASS PRE-VET CLUB will meet March 25, at 7 p.m. in Paige 202. Dr. Anthony Borton will speak on the UMass Equine Center Project.

VETERANS – Need more money? Job Bank has several part-time and full-time positions available immediately. Come down to VACS and let us help you fine a job. Benson Cooke, our employment counselor is available Monday, Wednesday, and Friday 9:00 - 11:00 and 3:00 - 5:00.

SECOND SEMESTER SOPHOMORES wishing to design individualized majors should contact the Bachelor's Degree with Individual Concentration (BDIC) in 15 Bartlett Hall well before pre-registration for Fall '80. Call 5-0736 for information.

THE UMASS CONSUMER ACTION CENTER can help you get results. The center is open Monday through Friday from 9-5. Its services are available to all Five College students, faculty, staff, and area residents. Located on the second floor of the Student Union in room 423B. For information call 545-0199 or 545-0781.

SUBMIT ENTRIES FOR PHOTO CONTEST by Friday. Open to any UMass student. For B&W or color prints. Prizes of $100, $50, $25 and possible exhibition in the Student Union Gallery (Mar. 31-Apr. 4). Details available at CC 817, and entries are due at the Print Shop at 225 Campus Center.

AFRO-AMERICAN MUSIC SERIES a faculty performance: Dr. Salvatore Macchia, string bass, assisted by Clyde Criner, piano Royal Hartigan, Drum Thurs., 11:15 a.m. Bezanson Hall FAC

THE UMASS STUDENTS AGAINST THE DRAFT are having weekly meeting on Wednesday in the Campus Center 174-176, 4:30-7:30 p.m.

ATTENTION ALPHA ZETA MEMBERS. Second meeting of the semester will be THERE WILL BE A MEETING of the Men Against Violence Against Women group Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Campus Center 802. All interested men are invited to attend."For more information call 546-4554. interested men are invited to attend. For mor information call 546-4554

LESBIANS AND GAY MEN AGAINST VIOLENCE (LAGMAV) will be holding a meeting to discuss action on the movie "Windows" today at 6:30 p.m. in the basement classroom of Brett dorm.

THE UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS SCIENCE FICTION SOCIETY is now accepting short stories, poetry and artwork dealing with science fiction or fantasy for its literary magazine. Submissions are open to anyone. Bring copy to the Science Fiction Society, room 434 Student Union building, or mail it via Campus Mail to Science Fiction Society, RSO 352, Student Union building. Include your name, address, and phone number so we can contact you.

UMASS FLYING CLUB meeting: today March 11, at 7:30 in Campus Center room 174. For more information call Eric at 549-6854.

THE STUDENT HEALTH ADVISORY BOARD will meet today at 6 p.m. in Room 304 of the University Health Services.

NORTHEAST/SYLVAN RACIAL AWARENESS PROGRAM film offering, tomorrow 7 p.m. at Lewis House (basement) – It's Raining in Santiago For more information contact RAP, 106 Johnson, or call 545-0290.

NORTHEAST/SYLVAN RACIAL AWARENESS PROGRAM film offering CONTROLLING INTEREST: The World of the Multinational Corporation today, March 11, 3:30 p.m. in Dwight Lounge and at 7 p.m. in the Crabtree Music Room. For more information contact RAP, 106 Johnson House, or call 545-0290.

THERE WILL BE A SHOWING of Andy Warhol's Dracula (Rated X) in Mahar Aud. on Friday at 7, 9, & 11.

PI KAPPA ALPHA'S 1st annual Florida warm-up party at Poor Richard's today. Happy Hour all night. 50c drinks and 25c drafts. $1 tickets in advance while they last.

TUES.: DISARMAMENT STUDY GROUP led by Traprock Peace Center 7:30 - 9 p.m. at Immanuel Lutheran Church

WED.: CHRISTIAN PRAXIS (Spirituality, New Age Christianity, and social justice involvements) meets from 4-5 p.m. at UCF, 428 SU. Open to serious inquirers. For more info call Pete Sabey 545-2661.

SAT.: "LIBERATION & CONTEMPLATION" a workshop led by Prof. Harvey Cox of Harvard at Traprock Peace Center. For more information contact Chaplain Pete Sabey at UCF, 428 SU. 545-2661

The UMass Arts Council
is proud to present
The Royal Dancers & Musicians
from the Kingdom of Bhutan

Tuesday, March 11, 1980
8 P.M.
Bowker Auditorium

TICKETS: Gen. Pub. $2.00
UMass Students free w/ID
All other students $1.00

Fine Arts Center Box Office—545-0202

WORKSHOP: Wednesday 1 - 3:00 P.M. (March 12)
Campus Center Auditorium
Free

$ $$$$

Sports

Conquistadores face BKP in IM semis

By DONNA SULLIVAN
Collegian Staff

Once again the intramural basketball season is coming to a close and once again the Wizards, the Conquistadors, and Beta Kappa Phi were in playoff action. "Were" is appropriate for out of the three mens' teams, one was eliminated in last night's quarterfinal action at Boyden Gymnasium. The Conquistadors and Beta Kappa Phi moved into tonight's semi-final action but the Wizards, defending champs, were defeated last night by the Ball Hogs 65-57.

This year, the Wizards had two returning from last year's championship team, one way Ray Murphy who scored 31 points last night. Despite the dazzling performance by Murphy and Tom Good who had 12 points including four field goals, the Ball Hogs triumphed to move into the semi-finals.

The Ball Hogs turned out a good team effort led by Mike Wilkins who had eight field goals and one foul shot for a total of 17 points. Brian Fuhrmann contributed seven field goals included in his 19 points. John Sachetti had four field goals and three foul shots for 11 points and Keith Wilkins, Mike's brother, aided the team with seven points. The brothers combined for 11 field goals and 24 points.

The Conquistadors trounced the Pidgeons 78-35. In last year's quarterfinal action the Conquistadors fell in a close one to the Bears 37-33.

This year they did not do any fooling around, they came out fighting and shooting and out shot the Pidgeons on their way to the semis. The Conquistadors were led by high scorers Wayne Stockton and Don Houston.

Grooveline started an eight-point rally in the minute and a half but Beta Kappa Phi maintained its lead to take the game, 39-37, and move into tonight's semi-finals, to play when Grooveline started the rally. Time just ran out on the hyped up "Line."

In the past two years Beta Phi has been to the quarters and as far as the finals where they lost and settled for a second place title.

In last night's action, Beta Kappa Phi was led by Gary Bernson's 15 points, and aided by some fancy offense on TJ Cavaney's part and all around good defense. Ray Young led the scoring drive for the Grooveline with 13 points.

With an amazing Tony DePina on its side, GQ edged by Spike, the final men's team on the trail to the semi-finals. DePina sparked the GQ scoring drive with 24 points including seven field goals. DePina is described by IM officials as an excellent ballplayer of varsity caliber.

DePina was aided by Max Jones with ten points, and Gary Pearson and Dwayne Lopes with eight points each.

Alex Dobbs led the Spike attack with 23 points on nine field goals.

The Ball Hogs will face GQ and Beta Kappa Phi will go against the Conquistadors in tonight's action at Boyden starting at 5:45.

In Men's graduate-faculty action, the Wongsters slipped by Climax 41-38 advancing to the semis in that league. The Wongsters were led by Tom Cafaro with 19 points and Bob Moses with 11 points.

The Wongsters will face Education who defeated the Animal Crackers last night 63-30. Cell Debris will battle Pareto Optimals in the other grad-fac match, starting at 7:45.

Dan Schayes of Syracuse grabs a rebound with Villanova's Mike Mulquin reaching over his back in Sunday's NCAA playoff game, in which the Orange beat the Eastern Eight champs, 97-83. (AP Laserphoto)

Water polo is more than basketball in a pool

By KIRK LEWIS
Special to the Collegian

To many of us who know nothing of the sport, water polo is a bunch of thrashing aquatics playing basketball in a pool. However, to its dedicated disciples, it is the world's toughest and most demanding sport.

Played with two teams of 7 players(includung a goalie), water polo resembles a cross between soccer and basketball. There are four 7-minute quarters with a referee, personal fouls, and penalty shots.

What distinguishes water polo from being just a simple game played in the water is the tremendous amount of coordination and strength which is needed by its adherents. Just imagine trying to stay afloat in water (never mind playing polo) without using your hands!

George Collias, a member of the 11-man UMass Water Polo Club, points out the important role that physical fitness plays with each member.

"It's really not a matter of size," said the graduate student from New Hampshire. "Conditioning plays a big part on any water polo team, and for us, it means the difference between winning and losing."

What people may not realize is that winning seems to be the only thing the polo club does. Last spring, it chalked up a 14-3 mark, establishing itself as one of the top teams in the East.

Funded solely by team members, the club plays in both the fall and the spring. Members of the National Collegiate Athletic Association (in the fall), and the Amateur Athletic Union (in the spring), the team has been invited to tournaments as far away as Florida, Canada, and Philadelphia.

"Our team is much stronger in the spring," says Collias, "because with the AAU, competition and membership is open to everyone. We are allowed to field graduates, alumni, and even faculty for the squad.

"However in the fall," he continued, "the competition is closed to members of the university which takes away from our recruiting."

During the fall season, UMass plays against such schools as Brown University (a national contender), Yale University, Dartmouth College and Harvard. The club manages to make every match it is invited to "We just chip in five dollars for gas, and take off in a few cars," Collias explained.

With its first win safely tucked away (a 12-9 win over Harvard), the UMass Polo Club begins tuning up for their next match. Membership is open to anyone wishing to join and participate in the squad's practice sessions which take place at Boyden Pool each day at 6:00 p.m.

IM hockey playoffs start

By JAMES TUBBS
Special to the Collegian

Starting off with no surprises, the UMass intramural hockey playoffs got off to a flying start Sunday night at the Greenfield Arena. Breen's Bruins, Betal Kappa Phi, Enterprise, and the defending champs What the Puck all advanced to the semi-finals.

By far the most exciting contest of the night was the dramatic comeback win by Beta Phi over the Americans, 2-1. The Americans scored early in the first period on a power play goal by Bill Mortel. Tight checking and fantastic goaltending on both sides kept both teams from scoring until early in the third period when Bob Dow broke the ice for Beta Kappa Phi. Dow said, "it was a nice birthday gift from American goalie Marc Collins," who deflected his centering pass into the goal. Sudden death overtime seemed apparent until Tom Frisbold fired a good low shot past Collins for the winning goal with just two minutes to play.

Ken Richard scored a three-goal "hat trick" to lead the Enterprise team to a 5-1 victory over Thatcher. Despite his three-goal performance, Fichard felt Enterprise goalie Steve Dow was the "star of the game". Dow and his second-seeded them kept Thatcher off the board until late in the third period. Enerprise will have its hands full when it meets Beta Kappa Phi, who has beaten them twice during the regular season, in the semi-final round.

In a game that was much closer than the score indicated, Breen's Bruins triumphed over a "chippy" On Tap team, 6-2. Capt. Tom Breen said "On Tap played a surprisingly tough game, considering how easily we beat them earlier in the season. John Breen's goal early in the third period gave the Bruins a two goal advantage that they never gave up. An insurance goal by Mike Peabody, along with two empty-net goals,

TURN TO PAGE 11

John Mcenroe uses his backhand in Sunday's loss to Guillermo Vilas in Davis cup action. (AP Laserphoto)

Sawyer steals the show—sets three records

By SCOTT SOLOMON
Collegian Staff

SPRINGFIELD—The smiling, gum-chomping kid from Guilford, Connecticut hardly seemed like the type to captivate an audience.

His boyish grin stretched from ear-to-ear as he strolled around the edge of the pool, chatting with teammates. Not the type to ignite a crowd.

Scott Sawyer, the freshman swimmer from Boston University, made believers out of all who witnessed his performance at the New England Intercollegiate Swimming Association (NEISA) Championship this weekend, held at Springfield College's Linkletter Natatorium.

Sawyer rolled to three record-breaking victories, in the 100 and 200-yard breaststroke and the 200-yard individual medley, as well as a combined win in the 400-yard medley relay.

He competed against some of the best swimmers in New England—Mike Feldstein from Tufts University, Ken Bockus from Southern Connecticut State College, John Coombs of Springfield College, and Matt Brahm from the University of Connecticut.

But the 6-1 freshman beat them all.

He coasted into Springfield on Thursday having already recorded the best New England mark in the 200-yard breaststroke, 2:09.6. And he began rapidly on Friday afternoon by shattering that mark during the trial session, and setting up house with a new time, 2:07.42.

With that, he became the NEISA record-holder in the event, surpassing Richard Weaver of UConn, who set a mark of 2:10.71 in 1975.

That night, Sawyer's time of 1:57.1 in the 200-yard individual medley established yet another record. The old mark (1:57.3), was set by Don Winant at the 1978 New England Championship.

But the evening's heroics were not yet complete.

Sawyer's third victory, coming in his first day of competition, came at the end of Friday's events, as he combined with teammates Pete Dierker, Karl Weiss, and Wade Mathis to finish the 400-yard medley relay at 3:34.98, three one-hundredths of a second in front of Tufts University.

TURN TO PAGE 11

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY

Collegian

VOLUME CIX, ISSUE 102 Student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst Wednesday, March 12, 1980

SGA moves to control funds

By STEVEN SEMPLE
Collegian Staff

The Student Government Association is on the verge of spending up to $28,000 for an accounting firm to begin revamping the troubled Recognized Student Organization's accounting system.

Problems of control and accountability culminated last year in an Administration take-over of the previously student controlled one-and-a-half million dollars.

The Systems Review Task Force, a special committee of the SGA treasurer's office, will choose the firm. Members of the committee are William Fitzgerald, SGA treasurer; Richard Moran, assistant treasurer and Al Wallace, financial assistant to the treasurer.

There are three firms under consideration for the job. Peat, Marwick and Mitchell, a firm that has previously done business with the university, estimates a cost of $3,400 to complete the first phase of the operation. Price Waterhouse and Company would do the job for about $7,500 to $8,500. Arthur Anderson estimated the cost to be about $25,000 to $28,000.

Last Wednesday, the Undergraduate Student Senate voted to freeze $60,270.66 to pay for the project.

Phase 1 of the operation includes identifying problems in the existing system and evaluating operating procedures; suggesting alternatives to the system; supplementing the system with new features to fill the needs of a growing RSO program and designing a detailed plan of action to incorporate the new system.

There are many reasons for the change to a new system, Wallace said. The most important goal is to acquire an effective audit trail, which would allow auditors to examine RSO records and assure financial responsibility.

The SRTF also desires flexibility so that as the RSO's needs change, the system can be adapted. One necessary feature is the ability for revenue-generating groups to be able to deficit spend in anticipation of revenue. For example, the Union Program Council would be unable to produce many of its events, including the spring concert, without this feature, Wallace said.

Other features to be included in the new system are designed to provide more accurate and timely data, such as quick payroll processing and data processing with cross reference to aid managerial decisions.

"The fact is, the administration would like to control SATF money—student money."

The system now provides a financial report to groups on a monthly basis, allowing for the possibility of overspending and embezzlement, Wallace said.

While the chosen firm is doing its work, a graduate systems design class, taught by Associate Professor Joseph Sardinas, will be conducting its own research on the project. Wallace said the SRTF will use information provided by Sardinas' group to help evaluate the accounting firm's work. That way, there will be less chance of wasting money on unnecessary equipment or programs, Wallace said.

Moran said there are three possible ways to improve the accountability of the RSO program. First, the present system could be modernized, which would probably be the cheapest solution. Second, RSO could switch to the university system, and lose some control of the money and some services. Third, a new system could be designed to fit the specific needs and goals of RSO organizations.

It is impossible to estimate the cost of a changeover to the university system, Wallace said, but the annual cost to operate would be about $30,000 to $70,000.

The RSO business unit now spends about $100,000 a year for accounting, Wallace said.

Vice Chancellor for Administration and Finance George Beatty, said Friday he had "no comment on what could be done specifically" to adapt the university system to RSO's needs. He did say, however, that the university system could be made flexible enough to accomodate RSO.

Beatty said his major concern is accountability. If it comes to a choice, he would choose accountability before flexibility, he said.

"I'll wait and see what they (SRTF) come up with," he said. "If I feel it's acceptable, I'll say so. If I feel it's not acceptable, I'll say so."

Beatty added that in a meeting with Wallace earlier this month, he volunteered to work with Wallace "as much and as closely as possible."

"The fact is," Moran said, "the administration would like to take over SATF money—student money."

Moran said the accounting issue came up once before in 1976, when the trustees discovered a deficit. That time, Moran said, the SGA decided to handle it politically. They called forth massive student support and won the right to "clean up their own house," but then did nothing, he said.

"We decided to handle the issue in a business fashion, and this time the problems will be cleared up," Moran said.

On April 22, the SRTF will present its case to the UMass Trustees Committee on Budget and Finance in Boston. Accompanying them will be an executive of the chosen accounting firm, probably the senior partner, Moran said.

If the plan is approved by the Trustees, UMass students will once again be assured full control over student funds.

Protesters brave draft

By CAROLYN MOONEY
Collegian Staff

As many as 65 area students gathered in front of the Amherst Post Office yesterday to picket Presdient Jimmy Carter's draft registration proposal, in weather one protester described as "too windy to burn draft cards."

While guitarists strummed anti-draft songs from the 1960's, protesters chanted and picketed the future draft registration site with homemade signs that read "We won't buy oil with blood," and "Hey Jimmy, will Amy go?" A sign proclaiming "Teach peace, live peace, end self-destruction" reflected the peaceful tone of the rally.

It was the third rally sponsored by Students Against the Draft, a loosely organized coalition formed by five-college students after Carter called for draft registration in January. SAD, which has about 60 regular members on campus, opposes registration because "it can only lead to war," said spokesman Joe Gannon.

SAD plans to send a group to the March 22 anti-draft rally in Washington, D.C., he said. Workshops and a debate on the draft are also scheduled for this semester.

Last week, SAD voted against supporting students who choose not to register should Carter's proposal pass.

"We realize it would be illegal to formally advocate not registering for the draft," said SAD member and UMass student Debbie Wald, "But we would moraly support students who didn't register." She said about 20 SAD members are currently being trained to serve as draft counselors in the Amherst area.

"Many students don't equate registration with an actual draft," said Charlie Bagli, a part-time UMass student and former draft resister. He charged the United States government with "using the Afghanistan situation" to gain public approval of draft registration.

"In the anti-war movement, we have to condemn all acts of aggression, whether by the U.S. or the Soviet Union," Bagli said.

Amherst resident Howard Cooper, formerly of Berkeley, California, wore a red plastic clown nose and held a sign which read, "Make funny faces, not war." Cooper said he is an active supporter of "Nobody" for president, the newest candidate to enter the 1980 Presidential race.

According to Gannon, SAD does not endorse any of the presidential candidates. "We don't want to restrict the group, since our members are so diverse," he said.

A group of sign-armed anti-draft protesters march yesterday outside the Amherst Post Office. (Staff photo by Julie Foley)

William Shawcross responds to student questions at a press conference held in SBA 101 last night. Afterwards he lectured on the "Holocaust in Cambodia" in Mahar Auditorium. (Staff photo by Richard Allen)

Shawcross dissects Cambodian tragedy

By MARC FAGELSON
Collegian Staff

"Cambodia is one of the greatest disasters in the 20th century, and it is a man-made disaster," stressed British journalist William Shawcross last night in a speech to a near capacity crowd at Mahar Auditorium.

Shawcross, author of Sideshow—Kissinger, Nixon, and the Destruction of Cambodia, outlined three phases in his speech on "The Holocaust in Cambodia."

The first phase, Shawcross said, was from 1970 to 1975. During this time the Vietnamese war spread to Cambodia, causing an "extraordinary futile and destructive war which destroyed the agricultural system of the country."

Toward the end of the sixties, he said, Cambodia's leader Prince Sianouk began violating Cambodian neutrality by sanctioning Soviet influence in trade agreements. The U.S. began secretive air strikes in 1969. The bombings were concealed so well, Shawcross added, that the Pentagon was unaware of it.

When Lon Nol overthrew Sianouk's government in March, 1970, the U.S. invaded Cambodia. The move was supposed to impress North Koreans, who had shot down a U.S. spy plane earlier in the year, Shawcross added.

"Lon Nol was an absolutely ineffective leader," said Shawcross. "He was a mystic who spread holy water on the ground around the capital during bombings," he added.

The second phase was the takeover and eventual "Draconian rule" of the Khmer Rouge regime. The regime, "whose atrocities are still unknown," Shawcross said, wanted the country to become a totally agrarian culture. To accomplish this, they killed one to three million of the country's seven million, he said. They murdered

TURN TO PAGE 10

20% OFF EYEGLASSES

Bring in your student ID card

All other discounts do not apply.
Offer expires April 15, 1980.

PEARLE vision center™

A SEARLE COMPANY

HADLEY
Rte. 9 at Russell Street
in front of Mountain Farm Mall
Tel. 584-7763
Open Tues. 10-6, Wed., Thurs., Fri. 10-9
Sat. 10-5, closed Mon.
For other locations call toll-free 800 331-1000.

©1980 Searle Optical Inc. Dallas, Texas USA

Draft forum

A draft forum, scheduled for tonight at 7:30 in the Campus Center Auditorium, was announced with the incorrect date in yesterday's Collegian.

ACADEMY of MUSIC
Northampton, Mass.

Only Area Showing
NOW, ENDS TUES.
at 7:00 and 9:00

Werner Herzog's
Nosferatu PG
THE VAMPYRE
KLAUS KINSKI

AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

DIGEST

Hostages' fate dim

By The Associated Press — Iran's president said the American hostages cannot be freed before mid-May because the yet-to-be elected parliament must have time to consider their fate, a French newspaper reported yesterday. It quoted him as saying the militants holding the U.S. Embassy are influenced by pro-Soviet groups.

Carter, Reagan win

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

President Carter and Republican Ronald Reagan marched through Georgia, Florida and Alabama last night, burying their White House rivals in a three-state set of Southern presidential primary elections.

Carter won his home Georgia Democratic primary by a towering margin, polling a dozen votes and more for every ballot cast for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

His Alabama margin was almost as lopsided, and in Floreda he was reaping two-thirds of the vote while Kennedy captured only 16 percent.

Consevative Reagan was the runaway victor over former United Nations Ambassador Goerge Bush in all three states. Florida was the closest thing to a contest; there it was Reagan 56 percent, Bush 31.

Forbert at the Nail: 'Commercial', competent

By TOM ANDERSON
Collegian Staff

The eyes of the campus may have been focused on the Kinks at the Fine Arts Center Thursday night, but just down the road an equally enthusiastic crowd welcomed Steve Forbert in his third area appearance at the Rusty Nail. Forbert, whose folk-rock following has been broadened by his recent hit single "Romeo's Tune," played to a full house of admiring fans.

His song selection included several from his debut album Alive on Arrival and most of the tunes from his latest release Jackrabbit Slim. In addition, he added a few unrecorded songs plus a well-received rendition of the old favorite "Bill Grogan's Goat." Although some of the songs were the same, there were a number of key differences between Forbert's recent show and his last area appearance in April.

Forbert's first album was a very promising collection of fresh, somewhat naive tunes which was well received by critics and sold reasonably well. Jackrabbit Slim is more polished, much more commercial and successful. The same comparison can be drawn between his two shows. In April, he took the stage alone, and played several numbers solo before being joined by his band. He accomplished the difficult task of exuding charm and innocence while still looking as comfortable on stage as though he's been playing there for years.

He began Thursday's show with the entire band playing a beefed-up version of "Goin' Down to Laurel," and only later did he spend a few minutes alone, accompanied by his guitar and, on some numbers, by an accordion.

This central portion of the show was rather disappointing. It lacked the freshness of his April appearance, and the accordion was a rather dubious addition to the band's sound. In addition, Forbert seemed a bit tired, due perhaps to this being the end of an American tour for the band, who are heading off to Europe shortly. Still, even for this rather slow interlude, the audience response was very strong.

The last third of the nearly two-hour show featured the return of the band for a rock 'n' roll set which included the ever-popular "Romeo's Tune" and several new songs, including a rather nasty one titled "If You Have to Ask, You'll Never Know." This upbeat ending continued through the encores, culminating in a long jam built around "You Cannot Win if You Do Not Play."

Although this latest show seemed a bit more commercial and a bit less inspired than his last, it's still clear that Steve Forbert is a strong and entertaining performer, who bears very little resemblence to the "new Dylan" figure he's oftlen painted as. His local following has become larger and more devoted, and his success on the national level now seems fairly secure. Both are well-deserved.

NEW!

"Do-it-yourself"
Copy a one-hour cassette in less than 2 minutes.

Make a Copy of your Favorite Cassette For Only *49¢

*Price includes the copy cassette and the Copying Service! Guaranteed perfect monaural copies, every time.

What can you copy?
The potential uses for cassette copies are endless. Here are just a few of the most common applications: lectures, seminars, language labs, meetings, college classes, sermons, sales messages, weddings, interviews, talking letters, family events, relaxations, exercises, word-processing data, and computer programs.

This coupon is redeemable for one (1) cassette copy of your original cassette for only 49¢. Any additional copies of your original cassette are at the prices below. Simply bring your original cassette and this coupon with you. The copy cassette and the copying service are included in one price.

Your Original Cassette Length	Regular Price Per Copy	High-Speed Copying Time
30 minute	$1.89	1 minute
60 minute	$2.59	2 minutes
90 minute	$3.39	3 minutes
120 minute	$4.39	4 minutes

REZOUND CASSETTE COPYING CENTERS in the campus center at umass

This coupon expires 4/2/80 the UNIVERSITY STORE

Need a study break?

So did Einstein

- Small & Large Pizzas
- Grinders
- Spaghetti
- Tossed & Green Salads

Bells Pizza House

Sun.-Thurs. 11-1 am
Fri. & Sat. 11-2 am
65 University Drive
253-9051 549-1311

Pride & Respect For UMass!
VOTE TODAY!

SGA Co-Presidents

Sullivan & Sullivan

Repair bills drive fire victim to consider legal action

By MARC FAGELSON
Colegian Staff

Michael Morin, a 22-year old UMass junior who suffered 2nd and 3rd degree burns in a Feb. 28 fire in Pierpont Dormitory in Southwest Residential Area is considering taking legal action against the party responsiole for the malfunciton of the room's smoke alarm, Morin said Monday.

Morin hired a lawyer last week.

"I wasn't even thinking about anything like this until I got an $80 bill for room repairs," Morin said. The bill, received March 4, charged Morin $40 for his mattress and $40 for burns in the room's rug, he said.

Before Morin can take legal action, however, he must determine who was responsible for the malfunction, he said. Either the system's installer, its designer, or University maintenance workers are at fault, he said. Morin is not certain who is responsible. He said he has not been told anything.

Donald Robinson, UMass director of environmental health and safety said it was "unfair to put the blame on anyone."

"There is a collective responsibility," Robinson said an overload on the circuit caused the alarm malfunction. Illegal appliances such as toasters and hot plates were discovered on the floor during a search.

Morin had an octopus adapter plugged into his wall at the time of the fire, Robinson said, But Morin contends only a clock and the light which started the fire were plugged in. The appliances which overloaded the circuit were in adjoining rooms, Robinson said. Morin has neither a refrigerator nor stereo.

'I want to see something come of this," Morin said. "This shouldn't happen, and I want to see the alarms put on their own circuit. Otherwise nothing will change."

Morin may have to withdraw this semester because he missed several calsses while recovering in the infirmary, he said.

"I still have to take my showers at the infirmary so they can change my bandages," Morin added.

UMass Economics professor Vaclav Holesovsky presents the anti-war views of the Social Democrats USA in a lecture in the Campus Center last night entitled "War, Peace, the Draft, and You." The thrust of the lecture was that "war, especially the Third World War, must be prevented." (Staff photo by Amira Rahman)

Some special stuff — 'ska'

By MARC FAGELSON
Collegian Staff

THE SPECIALS (Chrysalis)

Ska, the latest British "pop" trend, is finally starting to show signs of support on these shores.

A recent Rolling Stone story about the band Madness no doubt helped. But what Rolling Stone didn't make clear was that Madness, despite being the first of the ska bands to play in America, is not the band responsible for popularizing the trend.

The Specials, and in particular keyboardist Jerry Dammers, are the band that not only created the label to which Madness was originally signed—"Two-tone," they took Madness and label-mates the Selecter along on their answer to punk's "Anarchy Tour" of 1977.

The Specials first mass-produced single, "Gangsters" was voted the year's number one single by the readers of Britain's New Musical Express. Their next effort, "Message to You Rudy" reached number eight, while the album broke the top ten. It was the success and good nature of the band that secured ska's niche in the rock world.

The album is produced by noted racist (ha!) Elvis Costello. Interesting how the man put aside his prejudices to work closely with this integrated band.

Head-Special Dammers wrote most of the songs, wether alone or with the other band members. Many are directly influenced by old "bluebeat" numbers from the sixties. What makes Dammers and the band...well...Special is the way they work the aged sound.

Much of band's energy is a reflection of their line-up. Two singers, one black, one white, give the group an effective two-way attack. The songs white Terry sings have the drive and ceaseless vocal rambling typical of strong punk. Black Neville's songs lean toward reggae, but because the band is the same on all tracks, the usually distinctive styles are injected into each other.

The result takes the best parts from both styles and adds a healthy measure of a simple but sincere message: "Just because you're a black boy/just because you're a white/It doesn't mean you have to hate/It doesn't mean you have to fight."

Never having seen the group, we can only imagine how coarse their sound was before entering the studio. Costello managed to retain much of their urgency, while polishing them enough to give them top ten potential.

The only forseeable problem the band will face is that they are getting too popular too fast.

Tobacco fields in South Hadley patiently await the appearance of the sun and Spring. (Staff photo by Kris Craig)

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding January, June, July, and August, for $15 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003. Second class postage paid at Amherst, Mass. Postmaster: Send address changes to Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

TGI FRIDAY'S

B. M. O. C.??

TGI FRIDAYS--A National restaurant corporation is looking for the BUSINESS MANGER ON CAMPUS. We need people who can meet the challenge of operating a multi-million dollar business with 150 employess--AND are capable of keeping pace with one of the hottest growth opportunities in any industry.

We will be on campus March 26 & 27. Please call Placement for more information and an appointment.

SAVE-ON-TIRES
ROUTE 9 HADLEY, MA.
2 MILES FROM NORTHAMPTON OR AMHERST

MICHELIN - GOODYEAR - LEE - ZENITH - B.F. GOODRICH - ARMSTRONG - CONTINENTAL - PLUS OTHER MAJOR BRANDS.
SUPERSEDES ALL OTHER ADS.

Cash & Carry — TIRES — Cash & Carry
All our tires are new and first line. No Blems or Seconds.

Wholesale to the Public.
We can arrange to have your tires mounted.

CONSUMER NOTE

WHEN COMPARING PRICES, MAKE SURE YOU ALSO COMPARE QUALITY GRADES. EFFECTIVE APRIL 1979 THE N.H.T.S.A. GRADED REGULAR BIAS-PLY TIRES (STANDARD =100) AS FOLLOWS:

NAME	QUALITY GRADE*
FIRESTONE (DLC)	80
ZENITH (PE)	80
GOODYEAR (POWERSTREAK)	70
WOOLCO (ALL AMERICAN)	70
SEARS (GUARDSMAN)	60
K-MART (KM-501	50

* The higher the No.: the longer the tire will last.

DON'T FORGET! IT'S YOUR MONEY

CASH AND CARRY VISA OR MASTER CHARGE
OPEN Mon.-Fri., 9:30-5 Sat., 9:30-1
586-2544

Mechanical pencil fans are all shook-up over the Pilot "Shaker" and NEO-X lead.

Just shake the "Shaker"... out comes a sliding protective sleeve then the lead! Want more lead? Shake it again! That's all it takes to advance the lead in this beautiful, $5.98 mechanical pencil. And it comes with the famous Pilot 2 year unconditional guarantee.

Then there's our extra strength NEO-X lead. We've proven it's the strongest lead in the world. Comes in four diameters and various degrees to fit all mechanical pencils. The "Shaker" mechanical Pencil and NEO-X lead. Shake it or "click it". It'll come out great in the end.

The Shaker MECHANICAL PENCIL PILOT NEO-X LEAD STRONGEST LEAD IN THE WORLD

OUR POWER LIES IN ORGANIZATION
BUILD UNIONISM

Meeting Notice
AFSCME Local 1776
March General Membership Meeting

March 12, 1980
7:30 P.M.
Blue Room Worcester D.C.

Agenda
Report of Officers
Election Committee Report
Business Agents Report

Special Guest
Rep. Jim Collins
Speaks on Tax reform, UMass. Budget
Special Union Sponsored Bills and related topics.

Black Affairs

'No Blackness to Warm My Soul'

By KAREN THOMAS
Black Affairs Staff

Sloshing home through the mud and the rain the other day, I decided to take a detour to New Africa House. As I climbed the steps, I grated my feet against the cement, hoping to knock some of the lovely UMass landscape loose from my feet. I stood in the foyer, waiting to drip dry and I breathed in deeply the pungent smells of Yvonne's food.

At last, I thought to myself, I have found my cultural niche on campus within this predominately white society. I leaned against the wall, waiting for the blackness of the NAH to warm my soul.

"Uh, excuse me, can you tell me where Room 313 is?" I cocked an eye open and looked at a big fellow, with a beard as he pushed a hangling lock of hair from his eyes.

"Yeah, up the stairs," I said and nodded in the direction of the staircase.

In the distance I heard a distinctive beat on a tape player.

"Hip hop, hop hip. Have you ever gone over to your friend's house to eat and the food was just no good?"

I smiled. Here comes the black community now. As the doors swung open I watched five students enter wearing backpacks, Grateful Dead t-shirts and patchwork jeans.

My smile faded.

"Hey, you know like where does Clay and Plaster meet at," one asked.

"Downstairs," I muttered and nodded my head toward the stairs.

"Oh, like do yu know where I can get some mushrooms?"

I didn't answer, I just walked away. Well by now my stomach has begun to rumble and I gave up meeting the black community in the foyer of the building so I headed down to Yvonne's restaurant.

Carrying my overloaded plate of rice and beans, fried chicken and greens with hot sauce I sit at the only available spot with two other girls.

"Um I just love this soul food," one girl said as she tossed a chicked bone to Rover under the table.

"Yeah," the other agreed, "these people really do know how to fry some chicken, this is finger-licking good." She placed her hands under the table and let Rover lick them.

In disgust I picked up my plate, asked for a piece of aluminum foil, buttoned up my coat and headed out the door. As I trudged home happily, at least I knew what to expect there.

Food for Thought

In the Personal section of the Collegian Classifieds on Monday and Tuesday, there appeared the following statement, "Who is that guy with the hat in the wheelchair, anyway," The implication of this remark has a deep historical note, for every brother and sister in the valley.

In the Fall of 1978, the community was shocked to hear of the death of Seta Rampersad, a Third World sister, who was found dead in Motel 6, located in Deerfield, Massachusetts. The incident which was determined as "suspicious," was delayed three months even though there were a number of people present at the time of her death.

Commentary

But Seta's death was only one in a continuous cycle of 15 attacks on Black and Third World personnel. In the Spring of 1977, a women was found lying on the ground between Franklin Dining Commons and Wilder Hall. The person was later identified as Jill Dickerson, a Black grad student at this university. The fact surrounding this incident involved the possibility of a rape, along with an apparent hit and run situation. Unfortunately, because of the lack of cooperation received from the UMass police, no one could be convicted for the incident.

The mystery surrounding the cases of Sister Jill and Seat was followed by the death of Jose Pontes. Repeatedly, the police could not bring anyone to trial. Thus, the community mourned another situation, that has remained uncleared.

The statement which appeared in the Collegian, poses another threat. The implication of attacking a Brother verbally, has led to some type of violence in the past. The remark basically asks "who is the nigger, and why is he here?" This same statement could be addressed to every brother and sister in the valley. Even though this individual is handicapped, we are constantly labeled this everyday.

In conclusion, the statement made could easily be a joke. But historically, the joke has been played on us. The Valley has repeatedly tested our protection of each other. Thus, for individuals who feel this is not the case, ask the families of Seta Rampersand, Jose Pontes, and Jill Dickerson.

Earl Brown

To all Third World Organizations

By now your organization must be aware that the budgets go before the Senate in the spring and all Third World Organizations are in a critical state. The animosity in this campus among Third World Students has gotten to the point where it is threatening the existence of yours and other Third World Organizations in the future. It's time to unite, this is our struggle!

On Saturday March 29th, there will be a Third World Organizational Fair, consisting of all of our groups in a combined effort to recruit young, energetic new members. The affair will be all day, including: speakers, food, music, and most importantly it will provide an opportunity for each group to express why people should get involved.

The following information should be available at the fair for interested students:

- A description of your organization and goals
- Officers
- Office location and hours
- When the meetings or events for this semester?
- What can students do?

A duplicate copy should be sent to the Office of Third World Affairs, to up-keep the files no later than Wednesday March 12, 1980 (today).

Those interested in the planning of this event should call 545-2517.

Cathy—Happy 19th birthday from your favorite brother with the brown hair

[illegible] Tuesday [illegible]
CC 815 8-10 PM

Who is that guy with the hat in the wheelchair, anyway?

[illegible] Happy Birthday [illegible] mate roommate. Love, Gina Jelly Bina

Paul, Happy Birthday from [illegible] tellers P.S [illegible]

Announcements

CCEBS

All students enrolled in the CCEBS Program are reminded that the deadline date for tutorial requests is march 14th.

Meeting

The Third World Women's Center will hold a meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in the DuBois Library, 2nd floor New Africa House. All are welcome.

THE ARK
(Episcopal Church at UMass)

Sundays at	6:00 PM	supper (potluck)
The Ark	7:00 PM	Bible Study, Prayer, Eucharist
Wednesdays	1:15 PM	At Newman

Rev. Ian Montgomery 758 N. Pleasant 549-5929

University & Office Supplies
FRISBEES
Many Styles, Many Colors
A.J. Hastings Inc.
newsdealer & stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

Soviet and East European Film Series
FREE FILM
PIROSMANI
Wednesday, March 12
8 PM Thompson Hall - 106
FREE!
Sponsored by the UMass Arts Council

Yester Morrow

LEARN TO BUILD
ANYONE CAN! DON'T MISS THE FUN OF YOUR OWN HOUSE RAISING. THIS VITAL PART OF THE DWELLING ACT HAS ALMOST DISAPPEARED. WE DEMYSTIFY THIS REWARDING PROCESS OF BUILDING FROM FOUNDATION TO FINISHES.

LEARN TO DESIGN
FITTING A BUILDING TO YOUR FANTASIES IS EASIER THAN YOU IMAGINE. AT YESTERMORROW, WE'LL HELP WITH THE TECHNICAL WORK SO YOU CAN BE MORE CREATIVE.

YESTERMORROW OFFERS INTENSIVE BUT PERSONAL INSTRUCTION WITH MORNINGS IN THE CLASSROOM AND AFTERNOONS ON THE SITE. PRICES START AT $300 FOR TWO WEEKS.

NO EXPERIENCE NECESSARY. FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT
Yestermorrow
Box 344 Warren, Vt.
1-802-496-3437

Friendly Restaurants
Present this coupon with the purchase of a Big Beef Cheeseburger Special and French Fries and receive a Regular Carbonated Drink FREE.
Only redeemable at 454 Russell St. Rt. 9 Hadley
Offer expires 4/4/80

Interested in an Internship in Western Massachusetts?
Come to the Internship Fair!
Campus Center Concourse-Lower Level
Wednesday, March 12 - 10 am-3 pm
Sponsored by the:
Office of Internships and the Student Activities Office
16 Curry Hicks Student Union Buildings
545-0727 545-3600
Contact us for more information

Editorial/Opinion

Restraining deprogram

It is of the utmost importance for a journalist to report every story with as much objectivity as possible. It was with this in mind that I approached the CARP residence in Pelham last Sunday. Nervous and apprehensive about what could happen once I entered, I resolved to keep an open mind, for I was very much aware of the "brainwashing" horror stories I had heard and read regarding the fanatical followers of the Reverend Sun Myung Moon.

BRUCE WARD

I did not identify myself as a reporter for the first hour of my visit. I felt it was important to see how I would be treated as a potential convert and not as a member of a "biased" press. When I felt I had an idea of what their initial techniques of persuasion were like I revealed my true identity and requested permission to get my notebook to more accurately report the interviews.

First, it should be noted that I requested the Pelham meeting. I was not coerced into going. Second, the meeting centered around an intellectual, articulate explanation of the Unification Church's ideology which was filled with a passion not unlike that of any group that firmly believes in what it is doing.

It also should be noted that upon learning my true purpose in coming to Pelham I was not condemned for being duplicitous, although one member ironically noted that opponents of the Unification Church often use the very same methods they accuse the "Moonies" of using.

In the book, "Sun Myung Moon and the Unification Church," philosopher and theologian Frederick Sontag makes a similar point regarding the deprogramming process: "(The Moonie) has been decoyed and removed by physical restraint, and now he is probably in a motel room surrounded only by adversaries who are admittedly there until he recants. After he breaks down he undergoes rehabilitation, again in a controlled atmosphere."

Don't get me wrong, I'm not advocating a "Moonie" takeover. I have some severe reservations about a religious leader who can say things like: "The whole world is in my hand, I will conquer and subjugate the world," and "the time will come, without my seeking it, that my words will serve as law. If I ask a certain thing it will be done. If I don't want something it will not be done."

Also, statements by church members such as, "People in the Unificaiton Church are literally prepared to die for the cause...the kind of army Jesus Christ had...with that we cannot fail" scare me, but there is something that frightens me even more.

To quote Sontag, "The question to be answered is: In a country built on religious freedom, where immigrants come to escape religious persecution, can anyone justify seizing and then physically restraining an adult person in order to subject him to psychological bombardment until he recants. Have we not learned the lessons we fled across the oceans to try and enshrine into law?"

Don't forget, 1984 is only four years away.

Bruce Ward is a Collegian guest columnist.

Public higher vocational training

The recent appointment of Andrew C. Knowles III, Vice-President of the Digital Equipment Corporation, to the UMass Board of Trustees is a logical result of the trends at work in the state's system of public higher education. Simply put, the public system in this state is soon to have its educational mission determined in the corporate boardrooms of the Commonwealth. The appointment of Knowles is of special interest since it is the Digital Corporation which is taking the lead in the effort made by the High Technology Council to make the state's system of public education serve the training needs of the corporate sector of the state.

GREG TARPINIAN

This is no surprise to those who have witnessed the continuous assault on the public higher education system made by the state legislature and the corporations in the last six years. Governor King's proposed 16 percent cut in the University's budget for next year is the most recent attack on UMass. The bid by the High Technology industry of the state to control the mission of public higher education comes at a time when drastic cuts are being made in liberal arts programs. The goal is to make the entire system of public education a vocational training ground.

We will be told that this is good, that the state is just trying to provide a situation where the students will find jobs upon graduation. On the face of things, this justification is palatable. But is it true? And is it the interest of a long-term prosperity of the state? Who does this policy really serve, the graduates and their families who have worked hard to achieve quality higher education or the corporations?

It is clear. This shift of emphasis away from a broad educational program for the youth of this state is directed at the interests of the corporations who, on the one hand are tired of bearing the costs of training their own employees, and on the other, are intent on creating an oversupply of trained workers to compete for a limited supply of jobs so as to be able to drive down the wages they have to pay.

The Springfield Morning Union wrote in December that the objective of the corporations is to make a situation "where the cost of the education would be borne by the student, and...the state rather than the companies themselves." This policy is in the interest of the corporation's drive to maximize profits, not the state's long-term prosperity. What is to happen in five years when the jobs people are training for now are phased out? This would not be a big problem if, at the same time as people were being given a skill at the University, they were also provided with a broad based liberal arts background which allowed them to develop their critical thinking capacities and made it easier to adjust to an always changing, cyclical economy. But, instead, part of the state's plan is to phase out liberal arts education while beefing up technical training which may be obsolete in a short period of time. Ironically, this comes at a time when the elite private schools have shifted their priorities in the other direction, toward a comprehensive liberal program for all its students.

At the same time, the promise of jobs made by the corporations of the state is a false one. They are not interested in full employment, they are interested in creating an excess supply of trained laborers. Therefore, employment promises are nothing but a smokescreen to get the support of the students, and their parents, who are faced with dim future prospects as they eye the economy of the eighties.

As students interested both in a job upon graduation and the benefits of a complete education, we cannot sit by and leave these lies unquestioned. One day Governor King slashes the budget of our school, and the next day he appoints a corporate executive whose interests are inimical to ours and those of the entire Commonwealth.

We should demand that Governor King appoint educators to the Board of Trustees rather than businessmen. We should demand that the Governor fund both vocational and liberal arts programs. If the detruction of the state's system of public higher education is part of King's plan to create a good "business climate" in this state, we must seriously question whether that is the type of climate we will benefit from.

Greg Tarpiaian is a member of Students United for Public Education

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian

STEPHEN B. KLEIN, Editor-in-Chief; JULIE EAGLE, Managing Editor; FREDERIC M. KEILLOR, Business Manager; JACK GALLAGHER, News Editor; ROB BURBANK, Executive Editor; LISA CAPONE, Women's Editor; RENEE MOBLEY, Black Affairs Editor; JIM MAHONEY, Photo Editor; SUZETTE COURTMANCHE, Graphics Manager; JIM DEGNIM, Sports Editor; JIM MORAN, Fine Arts Editor.

Associate Editors
Jeff Baker, Fran Basche, Ellen Davis, Larolyn Mooney, Hob Stein, Associate Managing Editors; Ed Levine, Brian O'Connell, Associate News Editors; Eric Janszen, Associate Executive Editor; Debbie Wallace, Associate Women's Editor; Marcia Hospedales, Associate Black Affairs Editor; Peter Berry, Associate Photo Editor; Abbie Bjorklund, Associate Fine Arts Editor; Jane Wolfson, Associate Sports Editor; Jeffrey Bianchi, Associate Graphics Manager.

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian is a member of the Associated Press. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and commiserate. But final responsibility for all advertisers lies with the individual advertisers.

USPS 333-220

Letters

They wonder WHY

To the Editor:

Recently, John W. Ward, Chairman of the Special Commission (on buildings) announced that the commission will not be investigating the building problems here at UMass, as many of us had hoped. Unfortunately for the students we must now rely on the Administration.

On September 5, 1979 the UMass Board of Trustees directed university staff to work with the UMass Building Authority and the Attorney General to aggressively press claims against any and all parties responsible for the defective condition of campus buildings. To date, we have neither seen nor heard of any positive results of your efforts and we therefore cannot consider your efforts "aggressive" or "effective."

Granted, the library problem is one isolated instance of a real administrative effort to solve a problem, but it took six years to realize that there was one. Why must people's lives be in danger before the Administration will respond? There are buildings all over this campus with major defects that even the Board of Trustees recognize! You have set up task forces to combat racism, sexism, anti-Semitism and even vandalism. Why must we, the students, spend so much time and money doing your work for you; as we did with the lighting, and now as we investigate the building problems as well? Take this opportunity to return some of the credibility and respect to your Administration which you lost (even though it may not have been your direct responsibility) with the closing of the library and the march of the SWAT teams in Southwest. Let's work together on this one.

I call upon you now to set up a University wide task force to thoroughly analyze the extent of these building defects and to aggressively pursue and press claims against those responsible. We can't wait for Gorman's roof to cave in or stalactites to form in the Campus Center Garage. We share your concerns about the survival and reputation of this campus and we want to see action taken soon!

Joseph Cohen
Student Affairs Team
SCERA

NEP head replies

To The Editor—

In response to the letter about concert rumors, I would like to express my feelings of deep regret. The implication that North End Productions was responsible for the Who posters and the accompanying vilifying comments about our business were completely out of line and blatantly incorrect. My regret, however, is that Nancy Seraphin, candidate for the Governor's Council, who submitted the letter falsely accused my organization with no evidence, disregared the serious implications that a false accusation could incur, and, to top it off, did not even have the visceral flacidity to sign her name. Well, Nancy, I hope they didn't spell your name U-P-C on the ballot!

We like to be amused too...

A.J. Letizio
North End Productions President

Cult party

To the Editor:

Having read Herb Mayr's letter in regards to the goals of CARP, I must agree he presents an adequate platform for survival. However, what bothers me is that CARP, like any other political party espousing what it thinks the people would like if they were in a similar position of knowledge and authority (for the elite think of the two as being one and the same), embodies the complete antithesis of its rhetoric.

The goal of CARP, the Republican and Democratic parties and the state Communist party is to leach off of the creative power of the person to further its own elite. The irony of it is that those people who are the strongest in criticizing CARP are probably all going to vote this year for their personalized form of legitimate oppression, such as Ted Kennedy, Ronald Reagan, Jimmy Carter or (if they are enlightened) themselves.

G. Ara Jundanian
Amherst

Our 1st Annual
Lion and Lamb Sale!

Finast
• Roaring good prices!
• Warm as wool friendly personal service!

Low-Fat Milk
Finast half gallon 69¢

Hadley Finast Beer and Wine Shoppe!
Case of 24-12 oz. N.R. bottles Tuborg Beer $5.99
Hardy Burgundy, Chablis Blanc, Red Rose Gallo Wines 1.5 litre bottle $3.19

Tuttorosa Italian Style Tomatoes 35 oz. can 69¢

Fresh Shoulder Pork Butt Whole Bone In 99¢ lb.

Corned Beef Brisket Point Cut $1.49 lb. Flat Cut $1.99 lb.
Corned Beef Round $1.99 lb.
Fresh Green Cabbage 14¢ lb.

FINAST COUPON
Pillsbury Flour 5 lb. bag 79¢ MFG-517
With this coupon and $7.50 purchase or more. Valid March 9 thru March 15, 1980. Limit one coupon per family. Finast

FINAST COUPON
Nestle's Lunchtime 2 1.7 oz. pkgs. $1 MFG-518
With this coupon and $7.50 purchase or more. Valid March 9 thru March 15, 1980. Limit one coupon per family. Finast

FINAST COUPON
Maxwell House Coffee All Grinds 1 lb. can $2.49 FN MFG-516
With this coupon and $7.50 purchase or more. Valid March 9 thru March 15, 1980. Limit one coupon per family. Finast

DINNER BELL Sliced Bacon Regular or Thick 1 lb. pkg. 99¢

Freshly Sliced Chicken Bologna "New" Longacre pound 89¢
Available Only in Stores with Service Deli!

Vine Ripe Tomatoes Salad Size 49¢ lb.

Prices effective Wed., March 12 thru Sat., March 15, 1980 at Finast Supermarkets Only!
First National Supermarkets Inc., 1980. We reserve the right to limit quantities. Not responsible for typographical errors. Illustrations are for design purposes only and do not necessarily depict products on sale.

Our Bass
Spring Line Is Arriving Daily

Heartfelt Leather
103 N. Pleasant St., Amherst
10-6:00 Mon.-Sat. 253-5135

GOODWILL
NEAT STUFF! LOW PRICES!
Jeans * Books * Records * Furniture
37 MAIN ST. NORTHAMPTON
Take PVTA to the Courthouse

THE AMHERST DELICATESSEN
Sandwiches · Cold Cuts
Bagels · Salads
OPEN AT 9 AM · 7 DAYS · 549-6314
FRI. & SAT. 'til 10 PM

DISCO ON DOWN TO...
Rt. 9 Amherst
Poor Richard's DISCOTHEQUE
Beat the Clock on Thursday!
All Drinks
8-9 p.m. 50c
9-10 p.m. 75c
10 p.m.-closing $1.00
Tues. 25c beers
Wed. 50c drinks
Sun. & Mon. 18 & 19 permitted
Fri. & Sat. HAPPY HOUR 8-10 p.m.

...a new life style

Personal Growth...Professional Development

AN AIR FORCE PHYSICIAN.... thru medical scholarships
All tuition and fees plus $400 per month through our Health Professions Scholarship Program.

AN AIR FORCE NURSE....
.....We offer more
An Internship Program to provide excellent transition from beginning practitioner to fully qualified professional nurse.

AN AIR FORCE OFFICER....
The junior executive
Immediate management responsibilities in over 50 career fields, including Science & Engineering.
Advanced education and training throughout your career.

Call 203-432-2384
or write to:
3516th OFFICER RECRUITMENT DIRECTOR
123 WEST MAIN ST., MILFORD, CT. 06460
NAME
ADDRESS
CITY
STATE ZIP
PHONE
THE BEST TIME TO CALL ME IS PHYSICIAN NURSING OFFICER

AIR FORCE
A great way of life.

Working women get spotlight

By SUE BOISSEVAIN
Collegian Staff

"Don't wait too late, open up your eyes. Talk back, fight back, time to organize!" This is the last chorus from the UMass Third World Theater Series first play, entitled "I just Wanted Someone to Know," which was performed by The Labor Theater to an enthusiastic audience of 300 people in Bowker Auditorium Monday night.

"I Just Wanted Someone to Know" is a lively play, with several musical interludes, about the lives of various ethnic working class women from the early 1900's to the present. The Labor Theater's five female actors had to play a gamut of women's roles from various ethnic groups and ages in the many short skits.

The players quickly moved from skit to skit in the lively documentary. The set remained unchanged throughout the play. The backdrop was a large quilt, which consisted of 12 colorful squares, each depicting various stereotypical images of the home and work place.

The only props were a few boxes used for chairs, and the only costume changes were the occasional addition of a hat or change from skirt to pants. The atmosphere was simple and effective because the skits' theme of working women's lives was the most important element.

Several skits showed bits about women who had been taken advantage of by their companies or factories. Other skits showed how poor women have been neglected by

TURN TO PAGE 11

IDB TIPS

Spring Vacation

Spring Vacation begins after the last class on Saturday, March 15. Classes resume on Monday, March 24.

The Information Data Bank
227 Whitmore
545-1555

Want to know about the draft? We'll explain it.

The Umass Students Against the Draft are having a forum this Wednesday evening. We will be discussing the reasons and ramifications behind the present military crisis and registration proposal.

The speakers will include:

Carol Bengelsdorf
Prof. of Social Sciences
Hampshire College
U.S. Foreign Policy

Sam Bowles
Prof. of Economics, UMass
Militarism and Economic Crisis

Ann Ferguson
Prof. of Philosophy, UMass
Woman and War

Bob Rakoff
Prof. of Social Sciences
History of the Draft

Michael Thelwell
Prof. of Afro-American Studies, UMass
Racism and the Draft

This ad is paid for by:
SAD
Students Against the Draft

Mar. 12 7:30 CC Aud

GOING SOUTH?

the SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st., amherst

R.S.V.P.

If Jesus Christ has real meaning in your life as a Catholic, the reason has to be that you are able to hear his voice deep within you.

What is he saying to you about your role as His minister to the men, women and children of tomorrow's world?

He does need priests, deacons, brothers, sisters, lay people.

Would you like to talk about all this? We invite you to write and let us tell you how we feel about you and your God-given vocation.
R.S.V.P.

Mail Coupon Today! S17-1
Please send information on:
☐ Diocesan Priests ☐ Religious Priests
☐ Brothers ☐ Nuns ☐ Lay Ministries
Name
Address
City State ZIP
VOCATIONS COMMITTEE/SUPREME COUNCIL
KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS
New Haven, CT 06507

Getaway Sale
starts FRIDAY, MARCH 7 ...through SAT., MARCH 15

our famous, re-cycled CHINO SHORTS reg. 7.95 4.95

CHINESE SHOES reg. 6.95 3.95
men's & women's sizes

DANSKIN 20% OFF

Roll Bags reg. 21.95 14.95

STRAW HATS 25% OFF
new Spring fashions, including Panamas

FACES
A Store-full of Ideas
Downtown Amherst /Open 10-6, Mon.-Sat.

Collegian Classifieds

To place a Collegian Classified
•Come to Collegian Office CC 113
•8:45 to 3:45 Mon-Fri
•Classified deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day

Collegian Classified Rates
•15c per word
•Student rate 10c per word
•Cash in advance
•5 consecutive days 5 % discount
•Phone number FREE

ANOREXIA NERVOSA

Are you or have you ever been anorexic? A new support group is forming on campus. For more info call Lori 546-6181

ATT. NEEDHAM RESIDENTS

Tickets for First Annual Jack Bergan Memorial Fund Raising Dance $3 Amaru's Dedham Sat March 15 8:00 pm Call 549-4770 leave amessage for Bob Martin, your name, number, number of tickets

AUDIO

 Steve Garfield ***
brings the latest in Pure Pop, Rock and New Wave (oldies too) to the airwaves every Friday from 9 am to 1 pm on the Friday Breakdown on WAMH, 89.3 FM stereo "The Pioneer Valleys Best Sound"

SONY one point stereo eletret condenser microphone excellent cond. $25 253-3225

MX Receiver 40 watts rms/channel $135 1 year old 6-5637

Realistic Speakers excellent condition 40 watts—Realistic STA-21 receiver LAB 60 turntable BO 546-8919

AUTO FOR SALE

FIX YOUR OWN CAR. The Student Auto Workshop offers tools, space, and assistance. Tues, Wed, Thurs 3-9 pm, Fri 12-5, Sat 10-5. Level one CC garage. 545-0673

'73 Toyota Mark II Wagn 73000 mi excellent shape, yours for $1980 phone Kittye 549-5412

Car for Sale: 1970 Pontiac Lemans. Good condition. Runs well. Rebuilt engine. Only problem: transmission bad. $400 or best offer. Worth it! Call: 549-1661. Best betnights & mornings.

68 Dodge Van exlnt. cond. no rust, new engine $950 549-5975 Colleen

76 Camaro loaded with options, very good condition, new paint, call 549-6994 afternoons 2995 or BO

72 Ford Galaxie 75000 mi runs well $500 call Toshio 549-0506

FOR RENT

One bedroom Colonial Village $112/mo available now 256-6749 Andy or leave message Tobin 509

FOR SALE

Diving Gear new US Divers Equip call Ted at 549-6488

Furniture 2 Bancroft Squash Raquets, Housewares call Bill 549-1167 keep trying

Classical Guitar excellent condition with case 253-3012 late or early

For Sale used Parachutes. Great for ceiling, wall decorations, many colors $25.00 each. Drop by Parachute Club Office S.U. 309

Mattress brand new innerspring 65 dollars or best offer 253-7067

Fender Jazz Bass BO Peter 546-4449

Stood up! Must sell 2 tickets to March 16 John Denver concert in Springfield. Cheap!! Sheralyn 546-1457 evenings

FOUND

Found-Brown plastic rimmed glasses in Northeast quad. Call Jeff 6-3210

Women's ring found in Boyden 2-28-80 call 253-9880 for description

Representaion in numbers: . . .The Coalition

Ellen found suede gloves Amherst/bus Karin 549-6479

HELP WANTED

TV Viewer needs two Advertising Sales reps for Northampton/Ahmherst area. Part time/full time must have a car and be able to devote 20 hours per week call anytime 533-8554

Make $244/week this summer! Send your school address and phone with stamped self-addressed envelope. Box 213, Amherst MA 01002

One (1) Secretary/Receptionist position available at the UMass Legal Services Office. Duties include: Legal typing, photocopying, reception, filing, assisting client referral, bookkeeping, ability to deal with people in a self-directed work environment, Sensitivity to the diverse student community is a must. Typing 60 w.p.m. Accurate, experience preferred. 30 hours per week, part-time, $4.25 per hour. bring resumne to Personnel Office, Room 167, Whitmore Building, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Ma. Affirmative Action Employer

Wanted: Chef/Manger, Baker, Cooks for State YMCA camps located in the Berkshires. Two well-equipped kitchens feeding 300 and 350. Competitive salary, plus room and board. Call 413 623-8991 or write: State YMCA Camps, Becket, MA 01223

THis summer earn $1,000.00 to $1,300.00 per month. National company interviewing today. Call 253-2597 for schedule call early!

Rewarding Summer at Educational Camp for special needs children. Lincoln Hill in Foxboro, MA seeks counselors, kitchen, maintainance staff (live-in). Office: 41 South Street, Foxboro, MA (617) 543-3746

INSTRUCTION

Guitar Lessons—Jim Kimball, formerly with the Bricker band, taking on new students. Call 549-1383

Beginner Folk Guitar Lessons Call Mary 256-6719

Sentics Workshop—"The Miracle of the Possible" call Elizabeth Paton 413 549-3880

Quality Statistics Tutoring Your textbook, your class, your level Stat 121-140 Psych Stat 240 etc. Call John 253-2036 early mornings or late evenings

Basic Auto Mechanics Workshop 28 hours of instruction including classroom theory and shop. Limited enrollment 253-7967 or write for brochure: Autoskills, Box 210, Amherst

LOST

Lost Black Lab named Astro Always seen around campus. If anyone has any info please call Scott at anytime 549-6219. Wears blue collar, keep your eyes open friends.

Lost silver plated cross If found please call Peter at 546-4624 REWARD THANKS

Suede Gloves Amherst/bus Ellen 5-4966

Clipboard with collegian advertising information attached call Kevin 549-4533 or 545-3500

Snake design silver bracelet lost. Great personal value. Call Margaret 256-6469

Lost gold digital watch please return reward! 6-1464

Long Black Coat: beaded trim/collar, cuffs. Sentimental value. Reward. 546-8287

Lost gold Timex mens watch sentimental value if found call John 546-6777 reward $10

Gold wire-framed glasses left them on the mirror ledge/ladies room Thomp. Twr on Wed 3/5 Please! call 6-8048

PERSONALS

STICK IT IN YOUR EAR: FREE EAR PIERCING WITH PURCHASE OF STUDS. SILVERSCAPE DESIGNS 253-3324

Pete Jacke call Macky 665-7923

Are we serious?? You bet!! Vote "The Coalition of 13" March 11 & 12

To whoever took my green ski jacket from the Pub Thurs. 2/28, it's cold without it. Please return. Call Elizabeth 6-8584

Dan, "I only wish my words could just convince myself that it just wasn't real but that's not the way it feels" —j. Croce

Fred Winer says vote for Howard Goldman and Kim Kirschner for SGA Co Presidents

Julie, We love you Jill, who cares signed, MaNamara

MAVAW Meeting March 12, 7:30, CC 802

All Sheehan/Weatherwax Campaign Supporters: THousand thanks for all the help. Make last big push.

SW Vote Sheehan/Weatherwax SW

Forum on the Draft—Confused about the issues? Do you want more information and a chance to ask questions? Come hear Sam Bowles, Ann Ferguson, Michael Thelwell and others Wed. March 12 at 7:30 CC Aud For further info - 545-0341 Sponsored by S.A.D.

$$$$$$$ Summer Jobs: Ogunquit, Maine. Thousands of positions must be fil~d NOW in Restaurants, Motels, Banks, and more. Enjoy Maine Seacoast for summer. For job/living information send $1.00 to Ogung Job Placement,. PO Box 107, Amherst, MA 01002

God (alias Per) Social workers are fantasizer's too! We love how do you do's and fagans. Jo + Q P.S. Happy Birthday Party Hearty in the sun!

Chucklet! Happy Wednesday! Don't give up on the driver-go for it! Love, Rosko

Hey don't waste your vote! Elect Sulliavn/Sullivan as your SGA co-presidents

Happy Birthday Pat! Love Joyce

Chew Hong: Waiting for the Saki Juloid

To the girl who took my blue and yellow ski jacket on Friday night keep the jacket, but I desparately need my keys. Please leave them at the CC Info Desk

Baseball Team I wish I was going too but. . .Good Luck hve a good trip I'll be cheering for you Frankie L.

C.B.. Happy 20th Caffy go for it! Love, your fellow shooteres

UMMB is there; with pride and on purpose 3/23/80

Just what is SPECTRUM? Come to a meeting Thursday at 7:00 pm in CC rm 104 to find out Everyone Welcome!

Deborwiah-my-Doobry swelled to X2 its normal size LLL

RESIDENT COUNSELORS

Unique program for handicapped children seeks counselors for ten week summer program, located in Westchester county N.Y. Contact: Director, The Children's Aide Society, Box 47, Chappaqua N.Y. 10514

RIDE WANTED

Looking for a ride to Cincinnati, Ohio or vicinity. Will share expenses and driving. Call Leslie at 586-6578. Leave March 14th

Ride needed Daytona by March 16 Jim Alfano 665-7746

Ride wanted to Long Island or NYC Friday 3/14 before 12 noon. Call Rich at 546-8736 Will share driving and $$$

Need ride to Potsdam N.Y. 3/13 or 14. Call Karen 586-1491

Ride wanted to Cleveland area for Spring Break will share driving and costs call Giles 323-4289

Ride wanted to NYC Saturday March 15 call Alison 549-1046

Ride wanted to North Shore Long Island Friday 14th Erin 549--4778

RIDERS NEEDED

Leave,N Amherst daily M-F 7:45 am to Holyoke Ctr return at 4:30 Fred 549-6358

To Ft Layderdale for Spring Break call Curtiss 545-0194 leave message at night call Deb 253-2018

To Topsfield Friday Call Sue 549-2664

ROOMATE WANTED

Calif. summer roomate(s) to share a beach apt. in Santa Barbara area June 16 to Sept 25 Write: Elaine Seymour 6684 Del Playa Apt A Isla Vista CA 93017

Roomate wanted spacious, quiet, 2 bedroom apartment in Squire Village $135/month call Debbie 665-7766 or 1-617-688-7520

Roomate wanted for Townhouse So Amherst-call 253-7905

SERVICES

Attorney Jason R. Rosenthal Legal Representation. Income Tax Preparation. Days 584-4285 Evenings 253-7617

Lafler T-shirts great silkscreening at great prices professional graphics provided 549-1018

GRANOLA!! Now that we've got your attention, Vote for: The Coalition

UMass Legal Services Office offers free legal services to fee-paying graduate and undergraduate students in the areas of University administrative problems, landlord/tenant disputes, and uncontested divorces and guardianships. LSO also gives advice on Small Claims Court, and limited counselling in criminal matters. Call 545-1995; Room 922 Campus Center, UMass

TO SUBLET

Summer Sublet/Fall option 1 bedroom Cliffside Apt. Sunderland $192 includes utilities on bus route 665-7966

To sublet—2 bedroom apt. furnished, on bus route, pool, tennis, all utilities incl. Avail. June-Aug $200 665-4839

2 bedroom apt Colonial Village on bus rte starting June 1 through August call Lisa or Robin 253-3740 evenings

WANTED

Fast immediate cash for gold-school rings-diamonds- silver Jeff anytime 527-7078 586-0180

WANTED TO RENT

3 bdr. apt on bus route for fall. Willing to take over for summer. Call Raina 546-6500 or Debbie 546-8445

UMass students looking to rent house for fall 80 access to bus route necesary contact Cindy 253-7132 or Carolyn 546-5060

Housing Exemptions

Fall 1980 Housing Exemption Applications are now available in the Housing Assignment Office, 235 Whitmore. Applications are due no later than April 3, 1980.

Applications will not be accepted after this date. Please submit all applications to the Housing Assignment Office, 235 Whitmore.

Thank you.

Do Not Ignore This

It's Benefit Time

For those people who worked 10 or more hours at The Great Ski Snatch

Come to Ski Club Office Before Thurs. March 27th

Ski Club Office C.C. 106 545-3437

UMASS SKI CLUB

Nuke the Whale by Danny Guidera

4 by Frank Emery

Bean by Kevin X. McNamara

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

Crossword

UNITED Feature Syndicate
Tuesday's Puzzle Solved

ACROSS
1 Woe word
5 Crush
9 Some rigs
14 Orifice
15 Inactive
16 Ordinariness
17 Afresh
18 Gloomy
19 Bird
20 Steep
21 Sponsors
23 Foot pedal
25 Thing
26 Man's name
27 Female
29 Time cycle
32 Pale
35 Oil
36 Cut
37 Fruit
38 Surfeited
39 Diminutive suffix
40 Season
41 Briton
42 Niggard
43 Goblin
44 Ogive
45 Flowed
46 Only
48 Of the side
52 Passer's aims
56 Cool drink
57 Items
58 Whoop
59 River to the Colorado
60 Contradict
61 Else: Scot.
62 Exploits
63 Standing
64 Want
65 Pond

DOWN
1 Aside
2 Eremite, e.g.
3 Ridge
4 Stitch
5 Central
6 Peaceful as — —
7 Pivot
8 Frau's spouse
9 Elf
10 Expunge
11 Motions
12 Czech river
13 Japanese coins
21 Asian gulf
22 Clocked
24 Awake
27 Kind of treat
28 Encourage
30 Ceremony
31 Copycat
32 Church part
33 Close
34 Enigmatic expression: 2 words
35 Secular
36 Net
38 Bash
42 Dollies
44 Ready: 2 words
45 Raved
47 Eye
48 Unbound
49 Uplift
50 Psychiatrist Alfred —
51 Rent
52 Dice
53 Unique person
54 Soon after
55 Glaucus' beloved
59 Chicle

DC Menu

Lunch
Make Your Own Pizza
Individual Cheese Pizza/ assorted toppings:
Sausage, Hamburg, Pepperoni

Dinner
Roast Beef/Gravy
Franks with Rolls/
Baked Beans with Pork

Basics Lunch
Make Your Own Pizza
Individual Cheese Pizza/ assorted toppings:
Eggplant, Chick Peas, Tuna

Basics Dinner
Barley-Soybean Casserole
Salmon Cakes/Egg Sauce

Earthfoods

Burritos
Rice salad
Bulghar
Borscht soup
Green salad
cornbread

The Legal Services Office located at Room 922 Campus Center has 9 openings for paralegal internships for the Fall, 1980 semester.

General Statement of Paralegal Intern Duties:
Paralegals assist the attroney at the Legal Services Office with initial client interview, investigations, legal research, negotiations, giving legal advice and referral whenever necessary, preparation of court forms and attendance at hearings in the District, Superior and Probate courts of hampshire and Franklin counties, and participation in administrative hearings and federal litigation. Other duties include the drafting of varoius legal documents, the writing of letters and making of phone calls on the client's behalf; the maintainance of a continuing client case load; meeting regularly with supervising attorneys to discuss cases; the attendance at staff meetings for teachins and case strategy; and the assistance in reception duties.

Qualifications for Paralegal Intern Applicants:

1. Applicants must be full-time UMass students eligable for full-time academic credit through an academic department. Legal studies and social science majors are especially encouraged to apply.

2. Prior experience is helpful but not required.

3. A desire to learn and study the field of law.

4. An ability to work with and relate well with staff and clients of the Legal Services Office which serves a diversified student population.

5. The ability to work with creativeity, diligence, and occasionally under high pressure.

If interested in applying for a paralegal internship position for Fall 1980, please contact the Office of Internships at the University of Massachusetts, Curry Hicks Bldg., and inquire further at the Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, ninth floor. Applications are due Tuesday, April 1, 1980. Writing sample required.

All Third World students and women are encouraged to apply!

Mike's Westview Cafe No. Amherst
T-Shirts
Prizes
Tonight
Schnapps Nite
• Spearmint
• Peppermint
• Cinnamon
80c
• New Drink
"FIREBALL". $1.35
9 pm til closing

ST. PATRICK'S DAY CARDS
Monday, March 17

American Greetings
The Fresh Idea Company . . .
Surprise Someone with a Card
the UNIVERSITY STORE
in the campus center at umass

★ Shawcross

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

everyone tied to Lon Nol and anyone with an education, he said.

The third phase began when the Vietnamese invaded in January, 1979. As a result of the Khmer Rouge's plans to reclaim the Mekong Delta, the food distribution lines in Cambodia broke down, Shawcross said. The country was foodless until the recent response to the situation.

"The destruction and suffering is likely to go on and on," he said. "If we don't do all we can to stop it now, it will be a terrible thing to tell our children about."

TONIGHT
PUB MUG NIGHT
with
JIM PLUNKETT
25c BEERS in PUB MUGS
9 til 1
"An Amherst tradition and now with a great new look"
Serving Food
11:30 AM-9:30 PM
7 Days a Week
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

Wax 'n Wane
Spring Swimwear Sale
20% off
Entire Stock
sassafras
HIGH TIDE

Wax 'n Wane
Downtown Amherst
Open Daily til 5
Friday til 8

NEXT TIME YOU'RE HUNGRY - COME IN
FOR A CHEESEBURGER - THE COKE IS ON THE HOUSE
Get a "Special" Card from the cashier in HAMPDEN or WORCESTER SNACK BAR with your next purchase. . .this card is good for a FREE COKE when you buy your next Cheeseburger
SPECIAL
HAVE A DRINK OF COCA-COLA WITH THE PURCHASE OF A CHEESEBURGER

Offer Good Until March 30, 1980

SEMESTER AT SEA
Plan a college semester at sea aboard the SCHOONER HARVEY GAMAGE. The credits in arts and science earned from Southampton College, a Center of Long Island University, may be transferred. Curriculum includes visits to numerous r du-cational and historical places from Maine to the Virgin Islands.
HARVEY GAMAGE is a 95-foot U.S. Coast Guard inspected auxiliary schooner. For curriculum, cost and schedule, write or phone-
DIRIGO CRUISES
39 Waterside Lane, Clinton, CT 06413
Telephone: (203) 669-7068

WINDSHIELDS
Auto Glass Parts

installed While-U-Wait!
(Most parts in stock)
VALLEY Auto Trim and Glass
796 N. King Northampton
584-4837
½ mile North of Calvin

Roach – a 'sound experience'

By PAUL FERGUSON
Special to the Collegian

The Fine Arts Center was graced last Friday night by the performance of a collection of some of the finest percussionists playing jazz today. Numbering eight in all, the artists showcased a broad spectrum and diversity of percussion music, ranging from chest-beating, to playing a saw with a hammer.

The musicians of M'Boom, Re: Percussion are, in alphabetical order, Roy Brooks, Joe Chambers, Omar Clay, Fred King, Ray Mantilla, artistic director Max Roach, Warren Smith, and Freddie Waits. After a slight delay due to sound system problems, Max Roach introduced the musicians. He stressed the collective nature of the bands efforts, the sharing of good times as well as bad.

The stage was an elaborate and impressive array of percussion instruments. Included were a few sets of conga drums, a set of tympani, several gongs, two full drum kits, numerous cymbals, triangles, a set of steel drums, three sets of vibes/xylophones, countless handheld instruments, a whistle, and a hammer and saw. Max joked that the band had walked from Chicago to Amherst with all that stuff on their backs, in one day.

The concert consisted of eight or nine untitled pieces, in two sets. The textures and rythmic interweavings of these eight masters of sound do not lend themselves well to writing. The long complex pieces allowed for ample improvisation, and solos all around.

★ Women

CONT. FROM PAGE 7

welfare and doctors; how women felt about finally being able to wofk; how women have suffered because of their husbands and children.

"I wanted to do a working class women's view of what it was all about," said Bette Craig, who wrote and acted in the play. The Labor Theater is a repertory group from New York, made up of five women and four men, that opened its second spring tour of the play at UMass. Craig said the group usually only performs for labor unions.

Even though audience reaction was good, the Third World Theater wasn't pleased with the play, according to Roberta Uno, artistic director for the Third World Theater. Last Saturday, the UMass group discovered there were script and cast changes which resulted in the play not representing the lives of working Asian women.

The UMass group placed a flyer in the program which included the statement "(the play) deals with issues of class and sex more than race." However, Uno said, "It was more important to have the play than not." Four different plays will be presented this spring, Uno said.

AMERICAN MULTI CINEMA
ADULTS $2.75 STUDENTS & SR. CITIZENS with AMC CARD $2.25 TWI-LITE SHOW $1.50 Special Engagements Excluded Twi-Lite Show Limited to Seating
TIMES SHOWN FOR TODAY ONLY
HAMPSHIRE 4 — 584-7550 HAMP. MALL ON CAFE SQ. RT. 9, HADLEY, MASS.
DUSTIN HOFFMAN Kramer vs. Kramer — 9 Academy Award Nominations. PG (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
A FORCE OF ONE — PG (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:30
THE FOG — R (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:30
Norma Rae SALLY FIELD — 4 Academy Award Nominations PG (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:15
MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 — 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9 HADLEY, MASS.
James Coburn Marsha Mason Chapter Two — 1 Academy Award Nominatior PG (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:45
GEORGE SEGAL THE LAST MARRIED COUPLE IN AMERICA — R (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
JOHN RITTER HERO AT LARGE — PG (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
Cruising for a killer AL PACINO CRUISING — no one under 18 admitted (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30 R

?

Don't Leave 'Em Guessing 'bout what school you're from while you're on SPRING BREAK
We've got a huge selection of Shorts, Shirts, Warm-ups Jackets to prevent an identity crisis
in the campus center at umass
the UNIVERSITY STORE

GOING SOUTH?
the SHOE BIN 187 n. pleasant st., amherst

TOP of the CAMPUS
A ROMAN-STYLE PRE-SPRING CELEBRATION
IDES of MARCH wednesday, March 12, MCMLXXX
Only 8.95 for two
SPECIAL MENU!
Wear Your Toga! Have a free Glass of Wine.

GOING SOUTH?
Maybe you're going all the way to Ft. Lauderdale or maybe you're only going as far as Myrtle Beach, S.C. It doesn't matter. . . . .if you're traveling Interstate 75, 85, or 95 to get there, Dairy Queen has lots of new stores along the way, waiting for you to stop in.
Clip out the coupon below and keep it in your wallet or purse. . . . .as you visit each store on the coupon, tear off the applicable tab and use it as money!
NORTH CAROLINA, I-95 & S R 44, Exit 150 Buy any hot sandwich and get a Royal Treat at ½ price!
NORTH CAROLINA, I-95 & US 70A, Exit 97 Buy any hot sandwich and get a Royal Treat at ½ price!
SOUTH CAROLINA, I-95 & SR 102, Exit 108 Buy any hot sandwich and get a Royal Treat at ½ price!
SOUTH CAROLINA, I-95 & US 78, Exit 77 Buy any hot sandwich and get a Royal Treat at ½ price!
SOUTH CAROLINA, I-95 & S R 63, Exit 58 Buy any hot sandwich and get a Royal Treat at ½ price!
SOUTH CAROLINA, I-85 & S R 290, Exit 63 Buy any hot sandwich and get a Royal Treat at ½ price!
GEORGIA, I-75 & Willis Still Rd., Exit 24 Buy any hot sandwich and get a Royal Treat for ½ price!
GEORGIA, I-95 & US 17, Exit 6 Buy any hot sandwich and get a Royal Treat at ½ price!
FLORIDA, I-75 & SR 326, Exit 326 Buy any hot sandwich and get a Royal Treat at ½ price!
FLORIDA, I-95 & US 1, Bunnell Exit Buy any hot sandwich and get a Royal Treat at ½ price!
FLORIDA, I-95 & SR 16, Exit 16 Buy any hot sandwich and get a Royal Treat at ½ price!
FLORIDA, I-95 & US 1, Daytona Exit Buy any hot sandwich and get a Royal Treat at ½ price!
Buy any Hot Sandwich and get ANY Royal Treat at ½ price!
Limit. . . . .One coupon per customer, please!
Offer good only at stores on coupon.
"LET'S ALL GO TO DAIRY QUEEN"

Dairy Queen
® U S Pat Off. Am D Q Corp Copyright 1976 Am D Q Corp

Sports

IM hoop finals set

By NANCY PARKS
Special to the Collegian

Beta Kappa Phi edged the Conquistadors 48-43 and GQ beat the Ball Hogs 60-43 in semi-final action last night in men's intramural basketball playoffs at Boyden Gymnasium.

It was a close first half ending with the Conquistadores up, 25-21. The Conquistadores worked the ball well, driving to the basket past the man-to-man defense of Beta Phi. But Beta Phi hit well from the outside and played excellent team ball to stay close in the second half. Play in the second half was dominated by neither team with the score constantly fluctuating within four points in favor of either team.

High scorers for Beta Phi were Gary Bernson and Bernie (B.J.) MacDonald, both hitting for sixteen points. For the Conquistadors, the high scorers were Proctor Daniels and Don Houston with ten and nine points respectively.

In another fast-paced men's game, GQ led the Ball Hogs throughout the action with a halftime score of 34-22. GQ had an advantage in height over the Ball Hogs which helped in its domination of the boards, both offensively and defensively. It also gave the Ball Hogs difficulty in working the ball in, forcing them to take outside shots around the GQ defense.

High scorers for GQ were all five starters, Tony DePina, (21 points), Gary Pearson (12 points), Wilbur Jackson (10 points), Dwayne Lopes (8 points) and Max Jones (7 points). For the Ball Hogs the high scorers were Brian Fuhrmann and Mike Wilkins with 20 and 11 points respectively.

In women's action, the Peps and Sugar and Spice will advance into the final competition tonight. The Peps beat Airborne in a 33-28 semi-final game, with Sugar and Spice beating the Whimps by a score of 29-20.

40-year old Carl Yastrzemski is still diving for fly balls, no shoes even, at the Red Sox's spring training camp at Winter Haven, Florida. (AP Laserphoto)

Mitmen ready gloves for spring

By DAVE BRADLEY
Collegian Staff

The sounds of baseball have replaced the echoes of the bouncing ball in the rafters at Curry Hick's Cage as UMass gets ready to open its season Friday against the University of Richmond in Georgia. The sport made famous by a Chico Escuela impersonation has finally returned.

Aluminum bats belt hardballs, gloves nap as leather meets leather, players beat out imaginary throws to first base and all the summeritme memories associated with baseball add to the anticipation of the coming season.

Last year UMass finished second in the New England Eastern Collegiate Athletic Association Conference (ECAC) division one playoffs. Doug Welenc, Mr. Versatile, led the team in both pitching (9-2, 1.33 ERA) and hitting (.365 average) as the Minutemen went 24-17 before losing to the University of Connecticut in the playoffs.

But Welenc is gone this year, having signed a contract with the Houston Astros organization after his junior year, and all eyes now turn to captain Mike McEvilly.

McEvilly, a senior, quarterback of the Minutemen football team, batted .313 while playing center field and first base last season. This year it is hoped he will be the Willie Stargell of UMass.

"Of course we're counting on Mike McEvilly to be our leader," said assistant coach Jim Bedard. "He has a steadying influence on the younger players. He did it in football and now we hope he'll do it in baseball."

UMass has five of its top six pitchers back from last year with junior Mark Brown expected to be the team's top preformer. Brown, a righthander, won five games while losing four last year, but three of those losses were by one run and the other was by two. Brown had an ERA of 2.21, pitching 65 innings.

"When he's in command of his pitches nobody will hit him," Bedard said.

Senior Chris Collins (3-1 last year, 1.93 ERA) "keeps getting better and better," Bedard said, and Chuck Thompson is expected to be a big contributor. Thompson beat Holy Cross 2-0 in the ECAC New England Championship game in 1978, his first varsity start as a freshman, but tore a muscle in his back after that, preventing him from having a good season last year. Bedard said his back is betternow and Thompson looks strong.

According ot Bedard, UMass' "biggest question mark would have to be the infield. We're not sure whose going to play second base."

Last season second base was manned admirably by Mike Stockley, a "dominant" player who made only four errors in 41 innings of play. Stockley was graduated last year.

The other question mark is at short stop. Vin Bonanno, a junior who saw action in only six games last year, has been playing well in practice, Bedard said. "We're just not sure how Vin Bonanno is going to do the whole year."

UMass to host Union sports tourney in '81

By DONNA SULLIVAN
Collegian Staff

The Association of College Unions—International holds a tournament each February in which athletes from all over the region compete for a chance to go the the nationals in such sports as ping pong, billiards and backgammon. UMass belongs to region one and according to Campus Center Games and Recreation Manager Marty Fallon, UMass will probably play host to about 400 athletes next February as they host the 1981 Region one ACU—I's.

The ACU—I's include seven sports; frisbee, bowling, chess and foozball (alias table soccer) along with ping pong, billiards and backgammon. Each member school holds a tournament to decide who they will send to the region tourney in February.

In February of '81 it is pretty certain that UMass will be the host school, according to Fallon. At the same time Fallon would like to hold a "College Bowl," a sort of college level "As Schools Match Wits." "There's enough brains on this campus as well as brawn to have it," he said.

In this year's ACU—I's held February 23 at the University of Connecticut, Steve Mareno, president of the UMass ping pong club and his partner Adele Fox, placed first in the ping pong mixed doubles category. They will not advance to national competition though for only mens' and women's singles winners advance.

Marceno and Fox both placed fourth in singles competition. Marceno, a junior here at UMass has been playing since he was 14 and currently teaches two classes for the physical education department. Throughout his average day, Marceno manages to squeeze in four or five hours of ping pong—every day!!!

In billiards action, Cory Margolis won the UMass tourney to qualify for the regionals. Barry Grimes was the runner up.

According to Fallon, UMass plans to include all seven sports when it plays host to the multitude of athletes next year, but if one event such as bridge, has a very low attendance, another sport will possibly be slipped in.

The tournament envelope, please

Mike Estrada

I admit I fell victim to the notion that DePaul was going to make the final four. That just tells you what the polls know. I still feel that the Mideast regional champ will win it all, though don't totally overlook the East.

Georgetown is simply the hottest team in the land. If it gets by Maryland this weekend at Philadelphia, the Hoyas will definitely go to Indianapolis. Syracuse will beat Iowa by six and Georgetown will dump the Orangemen for the third time this season.

In the Western Regional, Clemson, one of three Atlantic Coast Conferences teams still alive, will beat upstart Lamaar. They will just as quickly lose to the balanced Ohio State squad, which will go to the Final four. The Battle in the Mideast Regional will be between Duke and Kentucky, but give the edge to Duke, simply because they have had to come back all year. The other pairing in the Mideast has Purdue and Indiana, but neither has the stuff to make the final four.

It's a toss-up in the Midwest Regional, but Missouri beat Notre Dame, and is worthy of making Indianapolis. The national champion? Duke, in one-point overtime game over Georgetown.

Jim Degnim

First of all, I think the real NCAA championship will take place Saturday in Lexington, Kentucky when Indiana and Kentucky play for the Mideast regional championship. Whomever wins that one will be the eventual winner in Indianapolis.

In the other three regions there is only one easy pick for the Final Four, and that is Ohio State in the West. The Buckeyes won't be taking UCLA lightly after the Bruin win over DePaul, but should beat them and either Clemson or Lamar to advance to Indianapolis.

The East figures to have some close games. Georgetown, Maryland, Syracuse and Iowa are good teams. I'm picking Maryland to emerge from the East regional as the winner.

In the Midwest, Louisiana State should handle a slow, inexperienced Missouri team and Louisville will have no problem with Texas A&M. The Cardinals and the Tigers will have a close game, but Louisville will win and advance to the Final Four. Louisville won on a buzzer-beater Saturday. When teams are getting breaks, pick them.

If you were paying attention, you noticed that I didn't decide between Indiana and Kentucky yet. Well, here goes. Kentucky is a good team. Kyle Macy is a fine point guard and Sam Bowie, Fred Cowan and Lavon Williams form a solid frontline. In addition, the Wildcats will be playing in front of 23,000 home court fans.

Somehow, though, I'm going to pick the Hoosiers. One reason is that Al McGuire likes them, and he knows college hoop. Another is that Indiana won the Big Ten, a league whose teams have played very well in the tournament. And Mike Woodson is showing no ill effects from his back surgery. Throw in one of the best guards in the country in freshman Isaiah Thomas and you have the national champions.

DAve Bradley

My friends and collegues are, of course, just kidding with their predictions. How absurd. Nice joke, guys. You really know how to sling it. Ha Ha, sigh.

Now, this is the way anyone with half a cranium would predict the 1980 NCAA playoffs:

Winning it all, cutting down the nets in Indianapolis to wear as the halos of champions, will be Syracuse University, and In-Your-Mug, rockin' and stickin' Orangemen of the East. It is a foregone conclusion, right? How could a team whose fans make fun of the oppositions' players by shouting in unison, "Whose he? So what? Who cares?" when the starting line-ups are introduced lose?

And their opponent in the finals will naturally be U.C.L.A. You know, the Bruins. The guys who beat de hell out of number one DePaul.

I can just hear it now. The public address announcer will say, "At forward for the Bruins, James Wilkes," and the Syracuse faithful will holler back, "Whose he?" Then the P.A. man will say, "At guard, Rod Foster," and the crowd will chant, "So what?" etc. And it will be over quickly.

In the regional semi-finals Maryland will beat Georgetown; Missouri will top Louisiana State; Texas A&M will crush Louisville; Kentucky will drop Duke; Indiana will edge Purdue; and Lamar will upset Clemson.

Can Eric Floyd and Georgetown win the NCAA tourney? See what Collegian writers think above. (AP Laserphoto)

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY

Collegian

VOLUME CIX, ISSUE 103 Student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst Thursday, March 13, 1980

LaVoice, Moran top field of seven in a coast to SGA co-presidency

Most of rest finish far back

By ED LEVINE
Collegian Staff

UMass students handed Richard LaVoice his second Student Government Association presidency last night, electing him and Richard Moran to the office with 39 percent of the vote.

LaVoice and Moran won over second-place finishers Kim Kirschner and Howard Goldman by more than eight percentage points. LaVoice and Moran received 1,685 votes, or 38.9 percent, to Kirschner and Goldman's 1138 votes, or 30.1 percent.

Joseph and Michael Sullivan finished with 7.2 percent; James Sheehan and Robert Weatherwax with 6.6 percent; the "Coalition of 13 with 4.5 percent; Ken Marquis and Scott Cashman with 4.2 percent; and James Kelly and Ruth Leimonas with 3.4 percent. About 3.5 percent of the votes cast were for write-in candidates and one percent of the ballots were void.

Last year LaVoice and Brian Burke were elected co-presidents with 54.7 percent of the vote, from a field of five candidates.

About 24 percent of the undergraduate student body voted in this year's election. A total of 4332 votes were cast, 21 more votes than last year.

If no candidate had received at least 33 percent of the vote, the election would have been decided by a run-off between the top two finishing teams.

"I tried to work hard for the students this year," LaVoice said last night follow ng his victory. "The folks who have dealt with me in the past supported me again."

LaVoice also said he was pleased with the number of students who voted. "I think students are beginning to take government more seriously. This is the second year in a row we've had a high turnout. When I say something, I'm talking for those people. The students have given us a good mandate," he said.

Brian Burke, current SGA co-president who will leave office at the end of the semester, said he was pleased with the results.

"It's good to see that the students recognize the good job LaVoice did and Moran's competency," he said.

Burke said he did not seek re-election with LaVoice because he found the job very time-consuming and wanted to spend his senior year concentrating on academics. However, Burke said he would "stay involved" with student government.

Members of the Undergraduate Student Senate's Governmental Affairs Committee counted the ballots last night in Dickinson Hall. Committee Chairperson Merrell Green said she was satisfied with the way the election went.

"This year's election went a lot smoother than last year's," she said. "The process has been refined and we're still going to sit down and correct problems to ensure everything goes properly next year."

Green also said she was pleased with the voter turnout.

"The turnout was good for the campus. Unfortaunately, more students didn't get out to vote and more candidates didn't go to the students. This was a campaign by posters, not in person," she said.

Green thanked administration officials who assisted in supervising the election and the town of Amherst, which loaned several ballot boxes for the election.

The winners

LaVoice/Moran

39%

The others

Kirschner/Goldman	30%
Sullivan/Sullivan	7%
Sheehan/Weatherwax	7%
Coalition of 13	4%
Marquis/Cashman	4%
Write-in	4%
Kelley/Leimonas	3%

Total votes cast—4,332 24% turnout

Royal Dancers from the Kingdom of Bhutan perform at a lecture demonstration yesterday afternoon in the Campus Center ballroom. The tour is sponsored by the Asia Society's Performing Arts Program, and marks the first time the company has danced in the west. (Staff photo by Wayne Rosenberg)

Section cut angers class

By MARC FAGELSON
Collegian Staff

Section seven of Spanish 140 class was cancelled yesterday and students, some of whom need the course to graduate, may not be able to reschedule it.

Alberto Rivas, the course's original instructor, became ill this semester and was replaced "after three or four weeks" by Teaching Associate Jose Torres, said course chairperson Nina Scott.

Torres took over the course out of friendship but was not receiving payment for his efforts, Scott said. A teaching associate normally receives $1100 in pay for a semester, Torres said. When he decided to teach the class, Torres said his main concern was that Professor Rivas be paid for the semester.

"There is a lot of deciding going on over how to cover the situation with the resources present at this time," Scott said. Students were polled yesterday in class to determine free time blocks in an effort to switch the students to an open section, she added. "Everything is still very much up in the air," she said.

The problem with rescheduling, students say, is that classes proceed at different paces, take different approaches to the course, and have instructors whose styles may vary. "The class was finally getting to the point where everyone was interacting," said sophomore Peter Cary. Cary began drafting a petition yesterday in an effort to get the course reinstated. The administration whould have an answer to the petition by Friday, Cary added.

"I've experienced too much here to be a person who goes jumping around and screaming when something like this happens," said senior Douglas Feinberg. "All I want to do is get my credits and get out of here. I absolutely need the class to graduate," he added.

"We're almost done with the text for the course," said sophomore Steve Pisini. "I don't want to have to go to a different class and do all the other work they've been doing."

Lack of salary money kept Torres from continuing the section. But, he added, "I would still like to teach the class."

DIGEST

A jury of seven men and five women found John Wayne Gacy, Jr. guilty on all counts of the 33 sex-related murders of young men and boys in Chicago on Wednesday. Gacy buried most of the victims under his house. The jury took less than two hours to reach its verdict. (AP Laserphoto)

Carter seeks Olympic embargo

WASHINGTON [AP] — The Carter administration yesterday asked U.S. companies not to export to the Soviet Union an estimated $20 million in products relating to the Summer Olympics.

Products range from soft drinks to souvenirs and athletic apparel.

The embargo, which would be voluntary, followed the suspensionon Tuesday of sales of U.S. stamps and postcards commemorating the Olympics to be held in Moscow this summer.

Both actions were intended to show U.S. displeasure with continuing Soviet military involvement in Afghanistan, the administration said.

U.S. Olympic Committee Officials have indicated they will go along with Carter's recommendation, but have put off a formal decison until their meeting April 11-14 in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Seal hunt reaches limit of pups

MONTREAL [AP] — The seal hunt in the Gulf of St. Lawrence closed for large vessels yesterday when the two Canadian boats licensed to hunt in the area reached their combined limit of 19,750 pups, the federal fisheries department said.

Meanwhile, the main hunt off the north coast of Newfoundland is not expected to begin until tomorrow because harbor seals there were late in pupping.

About 6,495 seal pups, sought after for their white fur, have been caught, well below the 19,250 for the Gulf area, with little likelihood of increasing the catch because of more bad weather expected, a fisheries spokesman said.

The total catch in the annual Newfoundland-Labrador seal hunt is allowed to reach 160,400 pups.

King's office hosts Mondale

BOSTON (AP) — Speaking at a breakfast arranged by Governor Edward J. King's office, Vice President Walter Mondale said yesterday that President Jimmy Carter is in a "tight contest" with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in next week's Illinois primary. He declined to comment on former President Gerald Ford's possible entry into the GOP race.

The vice president told a $250-a-plate fund raising breakfast that everywhere Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy have been tested—except in Massachusetts—the president has won, usually by overwhelming margins.

At a later news conference, Mondale refused to predict the outcome in Illinois.

Shah due for spleen operation

PANAMA CITY, Panama [AP] — Doctors and officials worked under tight security yesterday to prepare a local hospital ward for a delicate spleen operation on the deposed Shah of Iran, medical sources said.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, said Paitilla Hospital — a private Panamanian clinic — was declared a security area by authorities and all employees and medical personnel were ordered not to talk about what they were doing.

A New York spokesman for the deposed monarch said the shah's spleen is inflamed, and that he will undergo an operation soon to have it removed.

English Department offers Summer program at Oxford

By FRANK PAPSADORE
Collegian Staff

The UMass English Department offers University students a unique five-week summer program at Trinity College at Oxford, England.

Trinity College, considered by many scholars to be one of the finest universities in the world, features classes with a maximum attendance of 12 and 24-hour access to an outstanding library, said program coordinator Prof. C. Kav Smith. Smith and Prof. Richard Haven, both of the UMass English Department, run the UMass Oxford summer program.

Any UMass student can study English or Humanities at Oxford this summer. There are a few minor requirements and the program costs $1300, but openings for about 20 more students are still available.

Classes are offered on eighteenth-century English poetry, paleography, the modern British novel and such authors and poets as Milton, D.H. Lawrence, and Shakespeare. Students are required to take one major four-credit course in these or other subjects, and also may participate in an optional, lesser credit course of their choice.

Scholarship money is available to those who can prove actual need, Smith said.

"The Oxford program is really worth every penny," he said. There is approximately $4000 to $5000 in scholarship money to be divided into awards of $300 and $400, and low-interest loans have been offered in the past, he said.

At Trinity College there is one faculty member for every nine students. Classes are much more personalized, and teachers are much more accessible, Smith said. During a class week, students see their professors in private tutorials to discuss papers. Papers are not marked, and are generally used only to stimulate views and conversation at the tutorials.

Located within the university is a medieval beer cellar where students can go to relax. "English beer is a bit different from ours," commented Smith, "but you get used to it as well as the social activity. Outside the university there are many pubs where you can get a taste of British life, as well as meet students from all over the world."

The seminar is a nonprofit educational program enabling Umass students to participate in a curriculum for far less than it would otherwise cost.

The deadline for applications is March 17, but Smith said he will be "flexible" about it. A down payment of $150 is required with the application. For further information, Smith is available in Bartlett 266.

Future of Iran commission subject of Vance meeting

UNITED NATIONS [AP] —Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance met with U.N. officials yesterday in an effort to determine if a special international commission can still be used to end the crisis over the holding of some 50 American hostages in Iran.

Vance conferred with U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim and members of the U.sponsored commission who returned from Iran on Tuesday after failing in their mission to see the American hostages.

Carter administration officials, speaking privately, said they wanted to make sure there was no possibility of making progress through the commission before abandoning it and deciding on a new strategy.

"We have no false expectations about the chances the commission can still do something positive. But we have no very desirable options, either," one official said.

Another acknowledged that the commission members may advise Vance that there is no point in continuing their efforts.

Members of the commission were sent to Iran to investigate Iranian charges against the deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi with the understanding they would be allowed to see all the American hostages. But after completing their work they were denied permission to see the Americans, who have been held hostage since the U.S. Embassy in Tehran was seized by Moslem militants more than four months ago.

Iranian revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, changing signals on the commission, refused to allow the international panel to see the hostages unless they released their report on the shah's regime before leaving the country.

The commission members refused the demand and returned to New York, where Waldheim indicated the panel's report would not be released.

And in Iran yesterday Khomeini urged his countrymen to "dash the hopes" of enemies of the Islamic Republic, including the oppressive U.S. government," by voting in parliamentary elections yesterday. Khomeini and other top Iranian leaders have said the parliament will decide the American hostages' fate.

Khomeini urged the election of those who are free of tendencies toward left or right, and are renowned for their good record and commitment to Islam. The nation should know that to stray from this important Islamic task would be treason to Islam and the country." His message was broadcast by Tehran Radio.

A second round of parliamentary voting is scheduled for April 4, and the legislature, known as the Majlis, is expected to convene several weeks later. It is not known when the Iranian parliament will consider the hostage question.

Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr said Tuesday the captives won't be released from the U.S. Embassy in Tehran before "mid-May at the earliest" because the parliament needed time to consider the situation.

The official Soviet news agency Tass, in a dispatch from Tehran, quoted Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti, the justice minister, as saying the conditions for the hostages' release have not changed. Tass quoted him as saying Iran was still demanding the return of the deposed shah and the money he allegedly plundered.

The BEATLES

Saturday March 29 in the Hatch

EUROPE by CAR
RENT or BUY
LOWEST PRICES
FOR STUDENTS, TEACHERS
EUROPE BY CAR
45 Rockefeller Plaza
New York, N.Y. 10020
Phone (212) 581-3040
Mail this ad for Special Student/Teacher Tariff.
☐ RENTAL ☐ LEASE ☐ PURCHASE
☐ EURAIL PASS & YOUTH PASS

$1 off an any name Pitcher of beer with this coupon only valid on Thursdays
Barselotti's
Downtown Amherst
Don't forget our special Happy Hour on Fridays!

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding January, June, July, and August, for $15 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003. Second class postage paid at Amherst, Mass. Postmaster: Send address changes to Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Ma 01003.

Find it all— find it fast in Collegian classifieds

BLUE WALL
Campus Center
UMass
Presents—Thursday
Special Brew Night
with Mug & T-shirt give aways
Paradise Rhythm Shoes Band
Happy Hour everyday 3-6 p.m.
TOC sticker & valid ID required to purchase alcohol

Listing of infectious agents begins

Experiments pose health threat

By DAVID MOORHEAD
Special to the Collegian

The University is compiling a list of all hazardous biological agents used in experiments on campus, Fredrick Byron, Dean of Faculty of the School of Natural Sciences and Math, said this week.

Dr. Curtis B. Thorne of the Microbiology Department said several infectious agents, including ones that are capable of causing anthrax, food poisoning, or syphilis, are used in University experiments. Thorne chairs the Biological Hazards Committee which is attempting to find out where the hazardous agents are.

"Hazardous biological agents have been used in experiments since the early part of this century," one faculty member said.

Director of Public Affairs Dan Melley, said the Faculty Senate became more concerned about increasing the degree of environmental safety because it anticipated future federal guidelines.

Thorne's committee was formed last spring in response to a Faculty Senate recommendation that the University "expand the existing occupational health program of environmental and bio-medical monitoring."

"We were concerned about potential hazards," Melley said. "We didn't want to wait for federal guidelines because we have a commitment to ensure environmental safety without having to be told."

The faculty senate recommendation that led to the creation of the Biological Hazards Committee was presented to the senate by Secretary Harvey Kline last May.

"We were reacting to an asbestos scare and to some complaints from women who were having menstrual irregularities after working in the Graduate Research Tower," Kline said.

The Biological Hazards Committee distributed questionaires to researchers on campus last semester asking for a list of the agents which would show at a glance where they are, Byron said.

"The department heads know what agents are being used in their departments, but there is no central registry where someone can find out where the agents are," Byron said.

Thorne said no amount of guidelines or recommendations can ensure safety. "Department Heads and chief investigators are responsible for lab safety," he said.

"A possible problem could arise," Thorne said, "if investigators were to try to experiment with an agent with which they had no experience. This is something the Biological Hazards Committee was designed to prevent."

Another area of environmental safety that concerns the committee is risk assessment.

"By and large we go by the U.S. Department of Health Education and Welfare regulations. They classify risk into four categories. I have not heard of any experimenters here that use any agents in the two classifications of highest risk," Thorne said.

Thorne is experimenting on an agent called bacillus anthracis, categorized in the second class of risk. The first class is the least risky, while agents in the fourth class cannot lawfully be brought into the country without permission from the federal government.

Another agent, Bacillus Thoringienus, is a pesticide closely related to the anthrax agent. Thorne is studying its genetics to determine whether or not it can mutate into Bacillus Anthracis, the agent that causes anthrax. Anthrax is usually fatal in humans, if left untreated.

Besides vaccines, the HEW guidelines suggest counseling for pregnant women, tests of barrier systems and sterilization equipment, and periodic blood tests.

According to a source who did not wish to be identified, the University does have counseling for pregnant women and does test barrier and sterilaization equipment but does not take blood tests of lab personnel, due to a lack of funding.

'We were concerned about potential hazards. We didn't want to wait for federal guidelines because we have a commitment to ensure environmental safety without having to be told.'

'The department heads know what agents are being used in their departments, but there is no central registry where someone can find out where the agents are.'

UM favors Olympics

By LARRY DWIGHT
Collegian Staff

UMass students do not support President Jimmy Carter's decision to boycott the 1980 Summer Olympics in Moscow, according to an informal campus survey taken yesterday.

Of the 317 students surveyed, 52 percent favored going to Moscow; 28 percent did not; and 10 percent were undecided.

"The athletes are not supported by the United States government," one student said, adding, "They spend their own money and time training for the Olympics. What right does the government have telling them they can't go?"

When asked what they thought of Carter's decision to boycott the Moscow games to protest the Soviet invasion of Afganistan, 81 percent of those who favored going to Moscow said Carter made a poor decision.

The performance of the U.S. Olympic Team in the Winter Olympics last month did not affect most students' opinions. Even before the Lake Placid games, 93.8 percent favored going to Moscow this summer. Only 6.2 percent changed their minds because of performances by American athletes.

Those who supported Carter's decision favored moving the games to an alternative site over moving the games to a permanent location by a 3 to 1 margin. They also favored moving the site over boycotting the games, by a 2 to 1 margin.

One of those undecided said ongoing events in Afganistan and Iran would affect his decision to support the athletes, or Carter.

The poll was taken in the Campus Center concourse, the Campus Center coffee shop, and the 'Hatch' cafeteria.

UMass professor of philosophy Ann Ferguson speaks on "Women and War" at the forum on the draft held last night in the Campus Center Auditorium. (Staff photo by Carolyn Casey)

Profs.speak against draft, US militarism

By KATHERINE MORTON
Collegian Staff

Speaking at a forum sponsored by Students Against the Draft, a panel of five prominent professors last night told a Campus Center audience of about 300 that privileged Americans are promoting a war for their own economic interests.

The forum featured sociology Prof. Dan Clawsin, economics Prof. Samuel Bowles, philosophy Prof. Anne Ferguson, and Afro-American studies Prof. Michael Thelwell, all from UMass, and Hampshire College social science Prof. Bob Rakoff. They focused on the economic, political and moral implications of a possible military draft.

Rakoff addressed the issues of current draft proposals as well as the history of the draft. He said "throughout American history, drafts have been inequitable. The poorer and less white you are, the more chance you have of getting drafted."

Currently, according to Rakoff, the proposition is "militarily useless.

"It doesn't respond," he said, "to any of the legitimate problems of the volunteer army. The main problem being the government's inability to obtain career personnel." Rakoff believes "registration to be truly symbolic."

"It is part of a general campaign to prepare us to think about war." He further said "this kind of forum promotes resistance against the censor of war."

"The policy of sharing the burden of military service couldn't be spread more equally than other burdens of society," Rakoff said.

Speaking of foreign policy was Clawsin. He said foreign policy is "not decided by the American people, but instead by the ruling class. Their interest is in dominating the world

TURN TO PAGE 6

Lighter rape sentence topic of pending bill

By MARCIA MURPHY
Collegian Staff

A proposed "rape staircase bill" which calls for lighter sentences for rapists if convictions increase would probably affect the Amherst area less than the rest of the state if it is made into law.because Hampshire and Franklin Counties currently have the highest conviction rates for rapists in the state, said Myra Hindus, coordinator of the Everywoman's Violence Against Women Task Force.

"Convictions and prosecutions are generally low but in this area convictions are the highest, so this bill could affect us a little less," said Hindus.

The bill would call for sentences as lenient as two and one-half years in jail for certain forms of rape, with up to life terms for rape and kidnapping, robbery, or other felonies.

On March 4, feminists in Boston told a legislative panel they were willing to have some rapists serve lighter sentences if it would make juries convict more of the assailants.

The women told a state Judiciary Committee that Massachusetts law, which permits judges to impose life imprisonment for rape, keeps many jurors from returning guilty verdicts.

Only about 33 percent of rape charges in the state end in conviction, according to statistics from the state probation commissioner, but sexual cases reduced to lesser offenses have a 92 percent conviction rate.

Rep. Michael Flaherty, a conservative Boston Democrat who was co-chairman of the legislative panel in Boston, warned that the bill could lead to more plea-bargaining and said some rapists might end up serving only a few months in jail.

Flaherty also questioned the validity of the commissioner's statistics and said Hampden County statistics informed him of a 60-plus conviction rate for rapists.

Last year a "rape staircase bill" was presented in the Legislature, but died at adjournment.

"The problem with lighter sentences would be coaxing the jury to convict," Hindus said. This could mean many people could talk their way out of convictions.

"We'd like to look into the bill more. It could have both positive and negative effects," she said.

Hindus said the Counselor Advocate group at the Everywoman's Center generally feels that higher sentences for higher crimes is a good idea.

Beth Rosenberg, a rape couselor advocate at Everywoman's Center and a paralegal at Legal Services, spoke with several lawyer-

TURN TO PAGE

HARVARD this summer

Harvard Summer School
The nation's oldest summer session offers a full range of open enrollment liberal arts courses and pre-professional programs along with access to the University's outstanding libraries, museums, athletic facilities and calendar of cultural activities.

Liberal Arts and Education
Undergraduate and graduate day and evening courses in more than 30 liberal arts fields, including intensive foreign language classes. Four-week graduate courses and eight-week evening programs in education.

Pre-Professional Offerings
Basic courses as preparation for careers in medicine, law and business.

Special Programs
Six-week Dance Center and Career Strategies Workshop.

Academic Calendar
June 23-August 15

For further information
Return the coupon below or contact
Harvard Summer School, Dept. 27
20 Garden Street, Cambridge, MA 02138.
Telephone: (617) 495-2921

Harvard Summer School
of Arts and Sciences and of Education

Harvard University does not discriminate in admissions, educational policies, scholarship and loan programs, athletics, or other programs on the basis of race, religion, age, sex, national origin, color or handicap.

Please send Harvard Summer School catalogue and application for:
☐ Arts & Sciences and Education
☐ English as a Foreign Language
☐ Secondary School Student Program
☐ Dance Center

Name _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____

Return to Harvard Summer School,
Department 27 20 Garden St
Cambridge, MA 02138

Pressure for UM budget needed from students

By RICHARD NANGLE and VICKI NEWCOMBE
Special to the Collegian

"Talk to your legislators and plug the University budget with your parents back home - it can make a real difference," Vice-Chancellor of Student Affairs Dennis L. Madson told the Southwest Assembly Tuesday night.

Madson said the University budget for fiscal year 1980 is $84.7 million, but said he hoped it would be increased to $89.5 million for fiscal 1981. Governor Edward J. King wants to allocate $86.2 million, a 1.7 percent increase which hardly competes with the rise of inflation, he told the assembly.

Prior to the meeting, signatures were collected on letters to be sent to the UMass Board of Trustees requesting further review of the proposed V.I.P.U.S. Program, which would allow dormitory residents to pay extra for single rooms. Admitting it was an attempt to collect badly needed revenue, Madson expressed the administration's view that a single room represents "something of additional value. The idea was to charge people who have an advantage for that advantage," Madson said.

Speaking on housing improvement, Madson told the Assembly about three plans currently being considered to obtain dorm repair money. The money would come from rent increases, from capital monies from the state (an uncommon practice among universities), or take excess money from the construction account, he said.

It was also announced the Southwest radio station has changed its call letters from WSCR to WZZZ. Station meetings will be held Sunday nights at 9.

Do Not Ignore This
It's Benefit Time
For those people who worked 10 or more hours at The Great Ski Snatch
Come to Ski Club Office Before Thurs. March 27th
Ski Club Office C.C. 106 545-3437
UMASS SKI CLUB

Editorial/Opinion

Italian—Jewish rift

NANCY MAFFUCCI

There is a movement for just about everything these days. Civil rights movements condemn racism; feminism and gay liberation condemns sexism; and there are pro-life groups and anti-nuke collectives, to name just a few. Well, what about starting another one? Certainly there's room enough in this society to protest religious prejudices as they apply to young lovers. While this problem has been diminishing in recent years, there are many areas of the nation in which it's running full force and causing many senseless heartaches.

Early in life parents interfere: "I don't want my son dating a gentile." Rumors spread: "You know what they say about Jewish boys?" And as time passes the rumors worsen. Religion seems to interfere with life's natural course. "To hell with it," I say, "I've had enough."

My first date in high school was with a nice Jewish boy. His parents invited me over for a spaghetti dinner insisting that Jewish mothers could make pasta and tomato sauce that's just as tasty as that of Italian mamas. I never doubted her cooking ability and graciously accepted the invitation. Dinner was delicious; I even went back for seconds. (I was an athlete-in-training so it was in vogue for me to go back for round two.) I liked this boy a lot. In fact everyone said we made the perfect couple.

I thought we'd be high school sweethearts forever. But "forever" lasted three weeks until his parents forbade him to date an Italian (albeit nice Italian) girl.

I guess in high school I reasoned that his parents were controlling his life. He was being supported by them which compelled him to do as they wished. I looked forward to college: a place where people would be free from these ties—free from Mama's apron strings and Daddy's belt. At college the free spirits could flourish. To my surprise that isn't the case. Now the same line is given to me, only this time the deliverer was my date himself. I guess because we are so much older, plans for the future creep up in a relationship sooner than you might ordinarily expect, especially since those nasty rumors never ceased.

I was dating a man for less than a year and found out that our relationship had gone sour because if we were ever to be married (no one told me about this) mere conversion of religions wouldn't suffice. (At one point he mentioned conversion as a possible solution to the problem, but I never once had to consider it for myself—"we were just dating," I thought.) From my possible ex-husband-to-be's standpoint, I should have been reborn so I could experience the same kind of upbringing that he did so our children would also experience the kind of upbringing that we both did.

Wait a minute, where did the children come in? I though we were just dating. You know, we go to the movies sometimes, and on Saturday night we go out to dinner and watch Saturday Night Live. Who has time for children anyway? Besides, I thought we both agreed that we were right for each other because we didn't plan on marriage for a long time. And certainly after we both accomplished all that we intended, life's experiences would probably pull us apart. And what's wrong with my heritage anyway? Wasn't it he who said Jewish grandmothers are just like Italian grandmothers—always shoving food down your throat, especially starch; whether pasta or matzo, it was always something fattening. Well, there's no sense harping on it; I wasn't planning on getting married anyway. He was, but it wasn't going to be to me— the nice Italian girl!

Nancy Maffucci is a Collegian columnist.

Letters Policy

Letters to the editor should be kept as short as possible, preferably no longer than two pages. They should be typed at 67 characters per line, triple-spaced.

All letters should contain the author's name, address, and telephone number for verification. Telephone numbers will not be printed.

EDITORIAL CARTOONISTS NEEDED!

If you can fill this space, see Rob Burbank or Eric Janszen at the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center.

Before you don caps and gowns....

TRACEY ANNE EASTMAN

At the risk of sounding ignorant, it wasn't until I saw the movie "Norma Rae" that I realized the struggle that the U.S. garment workers have faced. I've often seen those odd little ILGWU tags on my shirts and have just as often ripped them off and tossed them away. The strangest thing is that I never knew what ILGWU stood for until I opened a letter received by the Southwest Women's Center yesterday. It stands for International Ladies Garment Workers Union. This informal little letter modestly informed me that the Local 163 of ILGWU, located in Albany, N.Y., is on strike. The employees of Cotrell and Leonard, the manufacturers of graduation caps and gowns with which UMass has a contract, are striking to protest what they call "numerous unfair labor practices committed by the company." That little phrase strikes a nerve with me everytime I hear it. Remaining calm I read over the list of violations. From the first violation, I felt my teeth grinding together: "Threats to close the factory should employees choose to be represented by the Union." The letter continued with: "interrogation of employees and surveillance of Union activities; threatening that employees who were on strike would never be allowed to return to work; and stating that no suspected Union sympathizers would be hired." To add a little icing to the proverbial cake, Cotrell and Leonard allegedly attempted to keep their unlawful conduct from reaching the outside and threatened to discharge an employee accused of giving information to the Union.

As I read deeper into the letter, I felt an overwhelming wave of anger. Look at this! Last year, the women who did the sewing on the caps and gowns for our own Class of '79 were earning only $2.90 an hour. But it gets worse. They received absolutely no retirement benefits, and payment for any medical insurance they wanted came out of their own pockets. One unsanitary, inadequately ventilated bathroom serves over forty women.

My anger was rapidly intensifying.

"Surely that must be all, Tracey! Things just aren't that bad today. The Union Workers have come a long way!" you may say.

Well, my friends, these fine, hard working women, along with bearing the conditions mentioned above, have one more small worry. The factory has no fire escape. They are working with the added fear that if the factory should ever catch fire, these fine, hard working women would be trapped.

"Okay, so what do they want!" you ask. Not much, just to let the concerned UMass students know that the ILGWU has informed our administration of the strike and the reasons for it, and are requesting that we order our caps and gowns from a more respectable firm. As of yet they have received no reply from the administration. Luckily, our contract with Cotrell and Leonard contains a clause which states "It is agreed that no charge will be made for outfits cancelled 28 days before graduation or use date." Therefore the administration shall have no contractual tangles in that sense.

It is my firm belief that the women working for Cotrell and Leonard are having a rough go of it, and undeseredly so. Michael Winston, Educational Director for the Union, wants to see this issue developed at UMass. Personally, I would like nothing more than to see Cotrell and Leonard's regard for their employees improve drastically. Until such a change occurs, I shall make good use of the "formal wear-rental" section of the Yellow Pages when May, 1982 rolls around.

But these ladies are asking for support now. Seniors, please keep this issue in mind this May. Everyone, please see the positive effect your consciousness of the workers' plight can have. Write to Michael Winston to request more information and especially to show your avid support. The Southwest Women's Center will gladly give you the address. Thanks.

Tracy Anne Eastman is a member of the Southwest Women's Center.

Letters

Vandalism, my ass!

To the Editor:

Tuesday afternoon, I was going to class when my attention was caught by a couple of our illustrious Physical Plant workers attempting to back over the curb in front of Thoreau dormitory. After tearing up the muddy ground, they got the truck onto the sidewalk and promptly backed into the concrete light post and knocked it over. The passenger got out, laughed, and said "Who put that there?"

Later, my roommate observed two other workers picking up the shattered lamp, cursing students and their vandalism all over campus. We feel that this irresponsible behavior should be made public. Most likely, the $1500 to replace the light will come out of students' pockets. Carelessness is no excuse for tuition and housing rate increases.

Eliot G. Starbard
Thoreau

Praise from afar

To the Editor:

This letter is in reference to John C. Parker's editorial (Collegian 2/19/80) issue concerning: "On judging a homophile by its cover."

I am a UMass alumnus who recently left the Amherst area and I am currently residing in Southern California. I am also gay and have been so for a number of years.

During the six years that I attended school and worked at UMass I listened as my friends joked about and stereotyped gay people. They did not realize that they actually knew one, personally. I opened many of their eyes when I "came out" to them. The reaction was generally, "You're kidding, you don't look or act gay." But the fact is, that I am! They all did not understand, at first, but they tried. I am lucky because these friends accepted me for being myself, for being a human being. Their support was overwhelming.

On the other hand, I had a friend whom many people suspected was gay or bi-sexual because of his somewhat effeminate mannerisms. But he wasn't! He was as straight as...let's say Clint Eastwood.

"Straight" comes in many shapes and sizes, as does "gay!" I agree with Mr. Parker's thesis. You can't judge a book by its cover. In our complex world, stereotyping is a necessary evil, as it serves as a convenient means to categorize the large number of people that we must deal with daily. Too often, though, we allow these stereotypes to interfere with our seeing things with a proper perspective.

I am the same person that my friends always knew, but they got to know ME a little better, the real me! Think about it!

Thank you, John, for telling it like it is.
A Friend.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian

STEPHEN B. KLEIN, Editor-in-Chief; JULIE EAGLE, Managing Editor; FREDERIC M. KEILLOR, Business Manager; JACK GALLAGHER, News Editor; ROB BURBANK, Executive Editor; LISA CAPONE, Women's Editor; RENEE MOBLEY, Black Affairs Editor; JIM MAHONEY, Photo Editor; SUZETTE COURTMANCHE, Graphics Manager; JIM DEGNIM, Sports Editor; JIM MORAN, Fine Arts Editor.

Associate Editors

Jeff Baker, Fran Basche, Ellen Davis, Carolyn Mooney, Rob Stein, Associate Managing Editors; Ed Levine, Brian O'Connell, Associate News Editors; Eric Janszen, Associate Executive Editor; Debbie Wallace, Associate Women's Editor; Marcia Hospedales, Associate Black Affairs Editor; Peter Berry, Associate Photo Editor; Abbe Bjorklund, Associate Fine Arts Editor; Jane Wolfson, Associate Sports Editor; Jeffrey Bianchi, Associate Graphics Manager.

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian is a member of the Associated Press. Publication of news material does not constitute endorsement.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertisers lies with the individual advertisers.

USPS 333 220

BLUE WALL
Campus Center
UMass

IRISH PARTY
2 til closing

Live IRISH Bands All Day

Special Happy Hour
2 til closing
IRISH DRINKS

TOC sticker and valid ID required
to purchase alcohol

LET THE RUSSIANS PLAY WITH THEMSELVES

PROTEST THE MOSCOW OLYMPICS
WHITE POLY/COTTON T-SHIRT
WITH RED AND BLUE IMPRINT
ONLY $5.95
add $1.00 for mailing & Handling

Send Check to:
T. GETTS ENTERPRISES
Box B-1120
Hanover, NH 03755

S__ M__ L__ XL__ TOTAL__

Name _____
Address _____
City _____
State _____ Zip _____
(Please Print)

★ Rape

CONT. FROM PAGE 3

and judges about the bill at Northampton District Court last Wednesday.

"They feel that since there are many convictions already in the area, it (the bill) could lower the amount of convictions," said Rosenberg.

"It separates assault and rape into such fine categories that each category has its own maximum amount of sentencing. A jury might hear the maximum sentence and be afraid to convict," she said.

The bill also implements health care so women won't have to pay for abortions or gynecological exams after the rape, according to Rosenberg.

★ Forum

and they are willing to risk more to do so."

Clawsin said he considers draft and war an "exploitation of the afflicted class." He pointed out that foreign policy goals "remain the same, while the world changes."

President Carter, he believes, is making political use of the situation. "No wonder why even the ruling classes in the Third World don't want anything to do with the U.S." In opposition to the draft, he proposed that "we all unite to fight it, to fight miltarism."

Bowles said the issue is "not the draft itself, but militarism. Increases in both military spending and personnel will not solve the problems of U.S. capitalism. The problems are declining living standards and inflation.

"The solution is to reorganize the economy to meet the needs of the American people," he said, "not to promote draft which will solidify our economic stagnation."

Merrill Lynch invites you to a free Seminar.

The last undervalued "collectible."

In a period where people are frantically looking for "collectibles" in the hope of appreciation, you may be surprised to learn that there is one that has been sadly neglected.

While prices of the "collectibles"—antiques, stamps, art, etc.—have already experienced dramatic advances, this neglected "collectible" is still selling at 1960 prices. What is it?

The answer: Common Stocks.

At Merrill Lynch, we watch thousands of common stocks every day, and we see many indications that convince us that common stocks are the prime investment for the 1980's.

We see interest rates at levels that cannot be sustained indefinitely. We see high corporate profits and dividends, and stock prices that have not yet begun to reflect them. And inflation is steadily pushing the value of corporate assets upwards.

In fact, many stock prices have already begun to outpace other forms of investment. And we think this is only the beginning of a long-term trend.

May we tell you more?

Merrill Lynch is holding a free Seminar, and there are several good reasons to come. We'll discuss all the factors which we think make common stocks such a good investment now. We'll give you three lists with names of 30 stocks we consider to be especially outstanding now—for a variety of investment objectives, such as: speculative appreciation, high current yield and long-term capital growth. We'll give you up-to-the-minute facts on the stocks most asked about. And we'll send you the latest data on any three commonly traded stocks of your choice.

All of it free and without any obligation.

Date: Thursday, March 20th Time: 7:30 p.m.
Place: UMASS Campus Center, Room 165
Amherst

For reservation, mail the coupon or call Mr. Eisenberg toll-free at 800-332-9476.

Mail to:
Merrill Lynch
P.O. Box 3219
Springfield, MA 01101
Attn: Mr. Eisenberg

☐ Please reserve____ seat(s) for me at your free Seminar on common stocks. Also send me research reports on these 3 commonly traded stocks:

_____
_____
_____

☐ I cannot attend. Please send me your free information kit on common stocks, plus research reports on the 3 stocks I've listed above.

Name _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____
Business Phone _____ Home Phone _____
Merrill Lynch customers, please give name and office address of Account Executive: _____

Merrill Lynch
Merrill Lynch Pierce Fenner & Smith Inc.
A breed apart.

© Copyright 1980 Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. Member, Securities Investor Protection Corporation (SIPC).

Add experience to your degree.

The world can be big and bad for some. For others it looks much easier. Survival means different things to different people. Is it luck or preparation?

Preparation seems to be the key. Consider the leadership training and management skills you can develop in Army ROTC. The edge. That margin of difference that can put you ahead in the big, bad world of tough job competition.

You may be a sophomore. Or have just two years remaining in school. It's not too late to add Army ROTC. And add experience to your degree. Contact

Captain Phil Turner
545-2321 or 545-2322

Army ROTC.
Learn what it takes to lead.

Around campus

Concert planned

Sigma Alpha Mu Fraternity in conjunction with Musicland presents the music of the Beatles in a magical mystery night, at the Hatch Cafeteria, University of Massachusetts Student Union Building, on Saturday, March 29th, at 9 p.m. Admission at the door is $1.50 per person. All ages are welcome, and there will be a cash bar.

Learn self-care

"Self-Care: For the Health of It", is a three-part series on self-care, sponsored by the Valley Health Plan. Both men and women are welcome and encouraged to attend these free workshops at the Bangs Community Center in Amherst, which begin on March 26, 7 to 9 p.m.

Correction

Students Against the Draft did not vote against supporting those who choose not to register for the draft, as reported in yesterday's Collegian, but rather voted against advocating for people not to register, since such action would be illegal under federal law once registration is implemented.

Student, 77, dies

UMass student Sallie M. Swan, 77, of Indian Orchard, died last Sunday. Swan, who was a sophomore in the University Without Walls program, began her education here at age 75. She was the widow of George W. Swan II, who died in 1965.

College Drug Store
4 Main St., Amherst

ACADEMY of MUSIC
Northampton, Mass.

Only Area Showing
NOW, ENDS TUES.
at 7:00 and 9:00

Werner Herzog's
Nosferatu
THE VAMPYRE (PG)
KLAUS KINSKI
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

Mike's Westview Cafe No. Amherst

Thurs. Nite
Penny Nite

Every Third Drink
1c.

Pinball Machine

Bowling Machine

Attitude Readjustment Period
Mon.-Fri. 4 pm - 6 pm

Giant Sandwiches-Turkey, Roast Beef and Ham with chips and pickle $1.95

New Drink - Sourballs

Old Milwaukee $1.95 a pitcher
Domestic Bottled Beer 75c
Spearmint & Cinnamon Schnapps 80c

Friday Afternoon
Free Smorgy During
Happy Hour 4p to 6p

After Vacation, Watch for these Groups at

The Bluewall

Van Duren

The Mundanes

Robin Lane and the Chartbusters

The Stompers

The Neighborhoods

TOC sticker and valid ID required to purchase alcohol

GO TO ALE

The Big Reason Beer Drinkers Are Going To Ale.

Everyday, more beer drinkers are coming around to the very special taste of Ballantine Ale. That's because Ballantine Ale is brewed to be more hardy than beer, but not thick like a malt liquor. Sure, you can expect to pay slightly more, but then Ballantine Ale is brewed to be the best there is. When you're that good, you deserve to be America's largest selling ale.

P. Ballantine, Cranston, R.I.

Collegian Classifieds

To place a Collegian Classified
•Come to Collegian Office CC 113
•8:45 to 3:45 Mon-Fri
•Classified deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day

Collegian Classified Rates
•15c per word
•Student rate 10c per word
•Cash in advance
•5 consecutive days 5 % discount
•Phone number FREE

ANOREXIA NERVOSA

Are you or have you ever been anorexic? A new support group is forming on campus. For more info call Lori 546-6181

AUDIO

 Steve Garfield ***
brings the latest in Pure Pop, Rock and New Wave (oldies too) to the airwaves every Friday from 9 am to 1 pm on the Friday Breakdown on WAMH, 89.3 FM stereo "The Pioneer Valleys Best Sound"

SONY one point stereo eletret condenser microphone excellent cond. $25 253-3225

Realistic Speakers excellent condition 40 watts—Realistic STA-21 receiver LAB 60 turntable BO 546-8919

AUTO FOR SALE

FIX YOUR OWN CAR. The Student Auto Workshop offers tools, space, and assistance. Tues, Wed, Thurs 3-9 pm, Fri 12-5, Sat 10-5. Level one CC garage. 545-0673

'73 Toyota Mark II Wagn 73000 mi excellent shape, yours for $1980 phone Kittye 549-5412

68 Dodge Van exlnt. cond. no rust, new engine $950 549-5975 Colleen

76 Camaro loaded with options, very good condition, new paint, call 549-6994 afternoons 2995 or BO

72 Ford Galaxie 75000 mi runs well $500 call Toshio 549-0506

FOR SALE

Diving Gear new US Divers Equip call Ted at 549-6488

Furniture 2 Bancroft Squash Raquets, Housewares call Bill 549-1167 keep trying

For Sale used Parachutes. Great for ceiling, wall decorations, many colors $25.00 each. Drop by Parachute Club Office S.U. 309

Mattress brand new innerspring 65 dollars or best offer 253-7067

Fender Jazz Bass BO Peter 546-4449

Ski Equip. Ex. Cond.: Kneisel SSL Short Star Skis 160 cm, Geze Plate Bindings $85, Kneisel Midlength Skis 180 cm Geze Bind $100, Kneisel Jr. racingTeam 170 cm Geze Bind. plus Koflach boots sz 9 ladies $75 256-0680

FOUND

Found-Brown plastic rimmed glasses in Northeast quad. Call Jeff 6-3210

Ellen found suede gloves Amherst/bus Karin 549-6479

Found set of keys, four on ring, found in lot 22, call Bill 546-5072

HELP WANTED

TV Viewer needs two Advertising Sales reps for Northampton/Amherst area. Part time/full time must have a car and be able to devote 20 hours per week call anytime 533-8554

Make $244/week this summer! Send your school address and phone with stamped self-addressed envelope. Box 213, Amherst MA 01002

Wanted: Chef/Manger, Baker, Cooks for State YMCA camps located in the Berkshires. Two well-equipped kitchens feeding 300 and 350. Competitive salary, plus room and board. Call 413 623-8991 or write: State YMCA Camps, Becket, MA 01223

Rewarding Summer at Educational Camp for special needs children. Lincoln Hill in Foxboro, MA seeks counselors, kitchen, maintainance staff (live-in). Office: 41 South Street, Foxboro, MA (617) 543-3746

INSTRUCTION

Guitar Lessons—Jim Kimball, formerly with the Bricker band, taking on new students. Call 549-1383

Beginner Folk Guitar Lessons Call Mary 256-6719

Sentics Workshop—"The Miracle of the Possible" call Elizabeth Paton 413 549-3880

Quality Statistics Tutoring Your textbook, your class, your level Stat 121-140 Psych Stat 240 etc. Call John 253-2036 early mornings or late evenings

LOST

Lost Black Lab named Astro Always seen around campus. If anyone has any info please call Scott at anytime 549-6219. Wears blue collar, keep your eyes open friends.

Lost silver plated cross If found please call Peter at 546-4624 REWARD THANKS

Snake design silver bracelet lost. Great personal value. Call Margaret 256-6469

Lost gold digital watch please return reward! 6-1464

Long Black Coat: beaded trim/collar, cuffs. Sentimental value. Reward. 546-8287

Gold wire-framed glasses left them on the mirror ledge/ladies room Thomp. Twr on Wed 3/5 Please! call 6-8048

REWARD: for leather knapsack taken from South College T.V. Studio. Contents needed desparately. Please return. No questions asked. Call 253-5182

PERSONALS

STICK IT IN YOUR EAR: FREE EAR PIERCING WITH PURCHASE OF STUDS. SILVERSCAPE DESIGNS 253-3324

Pete Jacke call Macky 665-7923

To the girl who took my blue and yellow ski jacket on Friday night keep the jacket, but I desparately need my keys. Please leave them at the CC Info Desk

Carol, I'll be there. The Gent with the Red Cap

Attention: Political Science Assoc./Pi Sigma Alpha (Nat. Poli. Sci. Honor Society) will meet tonight. All people welcome Rm CC 164

Lisa: Have an excellent time in N.C. and don't forget the postcard Love SS

Maryellen Have a Great Vacation MMMM

J.F. I love you more now than L.P. Have a Happy St. Patricks Day Love, Jifry

Happy Birthday lovely Nancy from your pals on the eighth Hope it's a great day

Hey Alpha Omicrons: Thats you—Bob, Dave, Don, Eric, Rick and Kevin. Congrats for a great raid-kidnapping you guys are a lot of coffee Pi Lam

Fellow E.W.F. lovers, where are the cascades? You're a heartbreaker, dream maker! Hey mugscheck the head. . .I hate the word tripping—who gave the baby the hanger? If you can't call me Twiggy. . .Rhode what? Formally Kelly? 34 35 36 37 Free the Fat Hostages! Four's a traffic jam, but someday we'll look back on this and it will all seem funny

Chucklet! Rosko here. Texas countdown is now 3! Have a great trip and come back a bronze beauty. Oh yeah—Happy TT.G.I.F. in advance. Love Your Roomie

Tim E. Would you do me a favor? I could wait all night

Danny Guidera! You Hot Shit!

To the girl with the fat fingers and nubby legs do it up in Lauderdale you're great Love, H.D.T.

Joey absence could not make this heart grow fonder I miss you already Love, Ellen Dan have a great 21st birthday! Some of us remember. Have fun in Florida! I'll take good care of your scarf. Love, Nancy

Happy Birthday "Janie" Love 8th floor Washington

Jimma—Six months of the best! I love you. Wanna play tonight? Barb S.

Chenz Bathballs Juana & crew—Picnic weather is almost upon us. BE PREPARED

Slim Whitman!!! Yes, you too can sing along with that incomparable master of song with the all-new Slim Whitman Sing-A-Long-Throw-Up-Along Songbook!!! Includes "Una Paloma Blanca-Ah-Aieee" and "Red River Val-leee"!!! Call after midnight tonite 549-5471 keep trying

Mike says goodbye to the best people in the world (well Southwest anyhow) God bless you, I'll miss you

Thurs Nite Comedy Revue; you sat opposite myself: front row blonde hair, striped sweater. I'd like to meet. Thurs. CC Coffee Shop 9:00 PM

Here we come Holyoke get out of our way we whailed at Lowell we'll blow you away!

RESIDENT COUNSELORS

Unique program for handicapped children seeks counselors for ten week summer program, located in Westchester county N.Y. Contact: Director, The Children's Aide Society, Box 47, Chappaqua N.Y. 10514

RIDE WANTED

Ride wanted to Long Island or NYC Friday 3/14 before 12 noon. Call Rich at 546-8736 Will share driving and $$$

Need ride to Potsdam N.Y. 3/13 or 14. Call Karen 586-1491

Ride wanted to Cleveland area for Spring Break will share driving and costs call Giles 323-4289

Ride wanted to NYC Saturday March 15 call Alison 549-1046

Ride wanted from Binghamton/Ithaca to Amherst Sun March 23 Dianne 546-6256

Ride wanted from Wash DC to Amherst March 21 or 22 Please call Debbie 323-6843 will share $ DC # is (202) 234-9366

Ride needed to Boston Fri March 15 Please call Diane at 546-5417 will share expenses Thanks

RIDERS NEEDED

Leave N Amherst daily M-F 7:45 am to Holyoke Ctr return at 4:30 Fred 549-6358

To Ft Layderdale for Spring Break call Curtiss 545-0194 leave message at night call Deb 253-2018

To Topsfield Friday Call Sue 549-2664

ROOMATE WANTED

Calif. summer roomate(s) to share a beach apt. in Santa Barbara area June 16 to Sept 25 Write: Elaine Seymour 6684 Del Playa Apt A Isla Vista CA 93017

Roomate wanted for Townhouse So Amherst call 253-7905

SERVICES

Attorney Jason R. Rosenthal Legal Representation. Income Tax Preparation. Days 584-4285 Evenings 253-7617

TO SUBLET

Summer Sublet/Fall option 1 bedroom Cliffside Apt. Sunderland $192 includes utilities on bus route 665-7966

To sublet—2 bedroom apt. furnished, on bus route, pool, tennis, all utilities incl. Avail. June-Aug $200 665-4839

2 bedroom apt Colonial Village on bus rte starting June 1 through August call Lisa or Robin 253-3740 evenings

Puffton Village 2 bedroom 2 bath air conditioned pool tennis bus route 210 mo 549-4797 available June 1-August 31

WANTED

Fast immediate cash for gold-school rings-diamonds- silver Jeff anytime 527-7078 586-0180

WANTED TO RENT

UMass students looking to rent house for fall 80 access to bus route necesary contact Cindy 253-7132 or Carolyn 546-5060

SELL IT Collegian Classifieds SELL IT

EVERYONE'S GETTING HIGH ON grass™

Government officials and students get off on GRASS™

The intoxicating new involvement card game GRASS™. Fun for the novices and challenging for fanatics. 104 beautiful cards in your own personal burlap, polylined pouch. This draw adult card game for 2-6 players has 28 contemporary original art work cards. Make a fortune in Peddie Money or watch your smoke go up in smoke.

As vicarious dealers you can battle for hours competing for supremacy of stashes, hassle piles, wasted piles and the ultimate "Score".

• 104 beautiful cards: Paranoia, Nirvana, Skim & Protection, etc.
• Official Rules
• Negotiation Regulations
• Scoring & Strategy Guidelines
• Diagrams & Illustrations

The intoxicating new card game GRASS™
6 ounces of GRASS™ only $7.95 each.

Name _____
Address _____ City _____
State _____ Zip _____ 20K

Send check or money order for 6 ounces of GRASS™ only $7.95 each postage paid, to Vulture Corp., 711 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017. Allow 3 weeks for delivery.

TM — Euro-Commerce Corp.

silverscape café
"The Yellow House" 264 N. Pleasant St., Amherst 253-3447
Natural Vegetarian Food • Full Liquor •
Coffee Beans, Valley's Lowest Prices
8-mid Mon.-Sat. 12-mid Sun.

TONIGHT

GREEN BEER IRISH MUSIC
9—1
Lunch
Served until 3 p.m.
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

Nuke the Whale by Danny Guidera

4 by Frank Emery

Bean by Kevin X. McNamara

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

Crossword

UNITED Feature Syndicate
Wednesday's Puzzle Solved

ACROSS
1 Elite
6 Drama
10 Clock face
14 Thus
15 Assess
16 Sicilian city
17 Untied
18 Olympic entrant: 2 words
20 — Friday
21 Charpoy
22 Girl's name
23 Rip
25 Aptitudes
27 Concur
30 Banish
31 Pursue
32 Specks
33 Black in
36 Royal or Blanc
37 Storage places
38 Satellite
39 Moray
40 Industrialist Cyrus —
41 Nova Scotia cape
42 — Sunday
44 Girdle
45 Break
47 Skirt style
48 Short tale
49 Club
50 Cocks
54 Hospital workers
57 Swivel
58 Conflicts
59 Former
60 Agave
61 Opening
62 Secures
63 Credo

DOWN
1 Dull sound
2 Western city
3 Within: Prefix
4 Conclusive trial: 2 words
5 Teaching deg.
6 Earlier
7 Milk: Prefix
8 Consumed
9 Affirmative
10 More cherished
11 Goals
12 In re
13 Household gods
19 Metric units
21 House pet
24 Chem. suffix
25 Grand — National Park
26 Imitates
27 Summit
28 Loafer, e.g.
29 California city: 2 words
30 Anguish
32 Bishop's cap
34 Snout
35 Nodule
37 Glut
38 Canada's — Provinces
40 Chemical compound
41 Burbot
43 Bear witness
44 Townsman: Abbr.
45 Barges
46 Hourly
47 Spars
49 Defeat
51 UK river
52 Shaft
53 Let it stand
55 Limb
56 Wrath
57 Dab

DC Menu

Lunch
Fried Fish Squares/ Tartar Sauce
Hot Corned Beef on Rye

Dinner
Chicken Cacciatore
Baked Ham/Fruit Sauce

Basics Lunch
Garden Medley Casserole
Fried Fish Squares/ Tartar Sauce

Basics Dinner
Garbanzo Cheese Loaf
Chicken Cacciatore

Earthfoods

Ratatouille
Rice Bulghar
Creme of carrot soup
Spinach salad
Bannana rice bars

STILL WANT NURSING?

If the answer is yes, it's not too late.

For more information, call (617)732-8359 or write Anne Howard, Admissions Counselor.

New England Deaconess Hospital School of Nursing
One Autumn Street, Boston
Committed to the concept of equal opportunity in education.

The UMass Fine Arts/Literary Magazine

SPECTRUM

will hold a

Staff Meeting

Thursday at 7:00 pm in CC rm. 104

NEW MEMBERS WELCOME!

note;
Submission deadline for spring issue - April 11th

EXPEDITIONS

Needed Immediately. Students who want to join university professors and professional explorers on serious, non-commercial expeditions.

Anthropology, Archaeology, Ballooning, Cave Exploration, Mountaineering, Ocean Sailing, Oceanography, Polar Exploration, SCUBA Diving, and Wildlife Research on all seven continents and at sea.

Registrants receive resume forms, equipment discounts, and monthly issues of EXPLORATION, which lists expedition opportunities throughout the world. To register send $15 (students) $20 (regular), or write for further information.

Expedition Research, Inc.
P.O. Box 467K
Cathedral and Franklin Streets
Annapolis, MD 21404

安城中國飯店

AMHERST CHINESE FOOD
62 Main St 253-7835

"Where you can get the best homestyle Chinese dishes at a very reasonable price."

Closed Wednesdays

IDB TIPS

Spring Vacation

Spring Vacation begins after the last class on Saturday, March 15. Classes resume on Monday, March 24.

The Information Data Bank
227 Whitmore
545-1555

KACO VILLA

Are Subs & Pizzas Getting Boring?

TREAT YOURSELF TO A REFRESHING CHANGE

JOIN THE MEXICAN FOOD EXPERIENCE

Wholesome • Quick • Inexpensive

Center of Downtown Amherst & N'ton
Mon.-Thurs. 11-9 Fri. & Sat. 11-11 Sun. 3-9

Christian Dior Lip & Nail

College Drug Store
4 Main St., Amherst

Take a warm, comfortable TRAILWAYS or PETER PAN bus to Boston, New York and many other places. Play it safe!

TRAILWAYS & PETER PAN BUS LINES

MAKE LIFE SIMPLER FOR YOU.

For Information, Schedules and Prices, contact: Springfield Bus Campus Center Bus Office - 545-2006, or 549-6000

Western outlook bleak unless –

By NIKKI FINKE
Associated Press

LONDON (AP) — The outlook for the West is bleak unless the Soviet Union's expanding power in the Persian Gulf is rebuffed by a bigger U.S. and NATO commitment there, says an analysis for a think-tank on world defense and security.

The report released yesterday by the International Institute for Strategic Studies said the West cannot hope to control events in the region but only aim for a "balance of influence" with the Soviets.

"If the West is entangled in this volatile region, the U.S.S.R. will...find it far from easy to gain positions of advantage," wrote Sharham Chubin, an Iranian citizen and Mideast expert in the analysis. "Western states will need to be more rather than less involved."

Chubin said that without a long-term strategy, the West will soon find itself in a crisis—as in Iran—because of its continued dependence on such a volatile region for oil.

Are You An Ideal Candidate?

Find Out When PRIME COMPUTER Comes on Campus
Monday, March 24

You are if you're seeking opportunities to use your technical education to maximum advantage with a company that will recognize and reward your contributions.

PRIME Computer is such a company. In just seven years we've become a leader in the design, manufacture, and marketing of state-of-the-art minicomputer systems renowned for their extended memories and diverse capabilities.

Our success has resulted in the expansion of every part of our company: product lines, size and number of manufacturing and sales offices, and our technical staff.

Few, if any, computer companies can offer you better or more consistent opportunities to learn, grow, and achieve ever-higher levels of professionalism than PRIME.

In an era that will be increasingly dependent on computer technology, PRIME will play a significant role in creating the systems that will enable this country and the world to deal with the huge volumes of information that must be analyzed, processed, and stored.

The choice is yours...make the most of it. Make a special point of getting together with PRIME COMPUTER.

To arrange an interview appointment and for further information, contact the Career Placement Center.

PRIME Computer, Inc.
40 Walnut St., Wellesley Hills, Mass. 02181
An Equal Opportunity Employer M/F

Sports Notices

SPRING RECESS FACILITY SCHEDULE—MAR. 15-23

NOPE: March 15-23: Basketball/volley, courts closed. NOPE POOL— Handicapped Swim: 9 am-10 am Mar. 17-21.

BOYDEN: March 17-21: Basketball Cts/Wt. Rm. 12 pm-7:30 pm. Squash Cts/Universal 7:30 am-7:30 pm. Sat. March 15 & 22: Basketball Cts, Weight Room, Squash Courts: 10 am-5:30 pm. Sun. March 16 & 23: Basketball Cts, Weight Room, Squash Courts: 12 pm-7:30 pm.

BOYDEN POOL: Sat. & Sun., March 15 and 16—closed. Mon, March 17-Friday, March 21: 11 am-3 pm. Saturday, March 22: 12 pm-5:30 pm. Sunday, March 23: 12 pm-7:30 pm.

HICKS: March 15-23—Pool closed. Hicks Track: March 17-21, 8 am-4:30 pm.

BOYDEN BOWLING LANES: Sat. & Sun. March 15 & 16, 22 & 23: Closed. Mon., March 17-Fri., March 21: 12 pm-4 pm.

Intramural Softball & Soccer— late entries are being accepted—Get them in as soon as possible.

Men's, Women's Intramural Tennis singles entries are due Monday, March 10th.

Men's varsity tennis—Meeting today in Boyden, room 230 at 3:00. All those interested in spring tryouts please attend.

Important rugby meeting tonight at 7:00 in the Commuter Lounge. Bring checks as unclaimed jackets will be sold. Trip to Europe next spring will be discussed.

Schedules for Intramural Soccer and Softball for those teams that met the deadline (Mar. 3rd) are ready to be picked up. Please do so before Spring Recess as games begin March 24th, the first day back.

Intramural Sports Photographs from this semester and last are available—contact Intramural Office, Rm. 215, Boyden 545-2693—Ask for Gene.

Men's, Women's Co-Rec Intramural Badminton Doubles are due Monday, March 10th.

Yawkey in Hall of Fame

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) —Tom Yawkey, the late owner of the Boston Red Sox and one of the original big spenders in baseball, was named to the baseball Hall of Fame Wednesday by the Veterans Committee.

Named with him was the late Chuck Klein, who batted .320 in 17 years in the National League.

They will be inducted in the Hall Aug. 3 with Duke Snider and Al Kaline, who were elected earlier by members of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Yawkey died in July 1976 in Boston at age 73, more than 40 years after he acquired the club.

In Feb, 1933, four days after his 30th birthday, he bought the Red Sox for $1 million. In the previous 11 years, the club had finished last nine times and never higher than sixth.

Yawkey immediately started to rebuild Fenway Park and strengthen his team with such additions as Lefty Grove, Jimmy Foxx, Joe Cronin and Rick Ferrell.

With Cronin as player-manager, the Red Sox finished second to the New York Yankees four times in the five-year stretch between 1938 and 1942. But it wasn't until 1946 that Yawkey's Red Sox gained the first pennant for him.

He had to wait until 1967 for his second and got a third in 1975. The Red Sox three times lost the World Series in seven games.

BLUE WALL
Campus Center
UMass

Presents—Thursday
Irish Party
2 til closing
Live Irish Bands all day

Happy Hour everyday 3-6 p.m.
TOC sticker & valid ID required to purchase alcohol

THE AMHERST DELICATESSEN

Sandwiches · Cold Cuts
Bagels · Salads
OPEN AT 9 AM · 7 DAYS · 549-6314
FRI. & SAT. 'til 10 PM

CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER

Your Local
AMTRAK
Agent

CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
CENTER UNIV OF MASS
AMHERST, MASS 01003 413-545-0500

Help Wanted

The Housing Administration Intern Program will soon be seeking Freshmen and Sophomores for paid positions in our Management Training Program. This is a two semester job/program and all majors are welcome to apply. Brochures and applications will be available March 24. See ads after Spring Break for more info or call 545-0890, 545-1960, or 546-5532.

AMERICAN MULTI CINEMA
ADULTS $2.75 STUDENTS & SR. CITIZENS with AMC CARD $2.25 TWI-LITE SHOW $1.50 - Special Engagements Excluded Two Lite Show - Limited to Seating
TIMES SHOWN FOR TODAY ONLY

HAMPSHIRE 4 584-7550 HAMP. MALL ON CAFE SQ. RT. 9, HADLEY, MASS.
DUSTIN HOFFMAN Kramer vs. Kramer — 9 Academy Award Nominations — PG (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
A FORCE OF ONE — PG (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:30
THE FOG — R (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:30
Norma Rae SALLY FIELD — 4 Academy Award Nominations — PG (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:15

MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9 HADLEY, MASS.
James Coburn, Marsha Mason — Chapter Two — 1 Academy Award Nomination — PG (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:45
GEORGE SEGAL THE LAST MARRIED COUPLE IN AMERICA — (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45 R
JOHN RITTER HERO AT LARGE — PG (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
Cruising for a killer AL PACINO CRUISING — no one under 18 admitted (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30 R

GOING SOUTH?

Maybe you're going all the way to Ft. Lauderdale or maybe you're only going as far as Myrtle Beach, S.C. It doesn't matter. . . . .if you're traveling Interstate 75, 85, or 95 to get there, Dairy Queen has lots of new stores along the way, waiting for you to stop in.

Clip out the coupon below and keep it in your wallet or purse. . . . .as you visit each store on the coupon, tear off the applicable tab and use it as money!

NORTH CAROLINA, I-95 & S R 44, Exit 150
Buy any hot sandwich and get a Royal Treat at ½ price!

NORTH CAROLINA, I-95 & US 70A, Exit 97
Buy any hot sandwich and get a Royal Treat at ½ price!

SOUTH CAROLINA, I-95 & SR 102, Exit 108
Buy any hot sandwich and get a Royal Treat at ½ price!

SOUTH CAROLINA, I-95 & US 78, Exit 77
Buy any hot sandwich and get a Royal Treat at ½ price!

SOUTH CAROLINA, I-95 & S R 63, Exit 58
Buy any hot sandwich and get a Royal Treat at ½ price!

SOUTH CAROLINA, I-85 & S R 290, Exit 63
Buy any hot sandwich and get a Royal Treat at ½ price!

GEORGIA, I-75 & Willis Still Rd., Exit 24
Buy any hot sandwich and get a Royal Treat for ½ price:

GEORGIA, I-95 & US 17, Exit 6
Buy any hot sandwich and get a Royal Treat at ½ price!

FLORIDA, I-75 & SR 326, Exit 326
Buy any hot sandwich and get a Royal Treat at ½ price!

FLORIDA, I-95 & US 1, Bunnell Exit
Buy any hot sandwich and get a Royal Treat at ½ price!

FLORIDA, I-95 & SR 16, Exit 16
Buy any hot sandwich and get a Royal Treat at ½ price!

FLORIDA, I-95 & US 1, Daytona Exit
Buy any hot sandwich and get a Royal Treat at ½ price!

Buy any Hot Sandwich and get ANY Royal Treat at ½ price!

Limit. . . . .One coupon per customer, please!
Offer good only at stores on coupon.

"LET'S ALL GO TO DAIRY QUEEN"

Dairy Queen

(R) U.S. Pat. Off. Am. D.Q. Corp. Copyright 1976 Am. D.Q. Corp.

Sports

GQ takes intramural hoop title

By NANCY PARKS
Special to the Collegian

Wilbur Jackson scored thirteen points and Tony DePina and Dwayne Lopes added twelve points each to lead GQ to a 52-46 victory over Beta Kappa Phi in men's intramural basketball championship last night at Boyden Gymnasium. In the women's title game, the Peps just got by Sugar and Spice by a score of 39-33.

In the first half of the men's game, action started out slow. After the first five minutes, the score was only 4-2 in favor of Beta Phi with GQ having a tremendous amount of turnovers. The half went on with Beta Phi holding a slim lead until the last fifteen minutes when GQ started to pull ahead and ended the half with a lead of 22-19.

GQ started the second half stronger, with the team scoring a fast nine points in the first four minutes of action. From there on in, GQ kept the lead working the ball to the basket well despite Beta Phi's switch from man-to-man defense to an aggressive zone defense. Beta Phi did not let up, however, taking advantage of GQ's turnovers and scoring a few points of their own to come within five points of GQ in the last five minutes of the game. But the combined efforts of the talented GQs and the large crowd cheering them on was enough to give the win to GQ.

In women's action, the Peps edged Sugar and Spice by a score of 39-33 to clinch the championship in the finals.

Throughout the game the scoring was balanced with neither team taking a considerable lead over the other. Into the first ten minutes of the first half the score was tied 4-4 with both teams playing consistently and moving the ball well. With five minutes left in the first half the score remained close at 14-12, the Peps taking the lead. At half-time the Peps were still ahead, 17-14.

The second half showed both teams coming on stronger and pressuring each other for the lead. In the first two minutes of the second half, the Peps came on with a strong six points, taking the lead at 23-14. But Sugar and Spice held on and came back with seven minutes left to up the score to 27-24. Neither team took a commanding lead throughout the game.

Tony DePina of GQ grabs a rebound in last night's championship game against Beta Kappa Phi. (Staff photo by Michael Chan)

Maureen Sullivan

Ol' man Fenway

Fenway Park lies dormant for the moment; it stands within the confines of metropolitan Boston like a grand old gent—gray, dignified, and quiet. Its carpet of grass and mounds of dusty brown appear undisturbed, like the interior of an old man's home—musty, dignified, and quiet. The very word for this moment is quiet.

Not for long, Gramps. The kids are coming back for the summer. The TV crews. The radio crews. Martin, Harrelson, and Woods. The crowds, all those kids with their souvenir bats, gloves, and sticky fingers. The older kids and their smuggled Buds and Coors and Frisbees. The young-at-heart with the hot dogs and programs.

Let's not forget our stars, old man Fenway—our boys in white and red, our Olde Towne Teame, the Boston Red Sox.

Even now, the BoSox are preparing for their onslaught on the coming 150-plus game season; all the action at Chain O'Lakes Park in Winter Haven, Florida, symbolizes hope that Our Old Towne Teame will not perform a masterful choke with two months left in the season and fall a million miles away from a pennant they should've won.

Second baseman Jerry Remy slid the other day, and walked away from his target; the ankle that he broke last year did not bother him. Center fielder Fred Lynn cleared the 360-foot mark with ease; he does not seem to have let up from last year's incredible performance. And Carl Yaztremski still stretches out and practices as if he's still 23 or 24. He may be 40 years old, and he may not look like a sleek youngster in that semi-skintight uniform, but hey, Yaz is Yaz.

And Rice is Rice, Hobson is not Hobson with that melon-sized elbow, and lousy pitching may still be lousy pitching. But wait, old man Fenway, listen—there may be hope. Mike Torrez appears to be concentrating on actually throwing strikes in the first three innings instead of letting a few runs pass. Chuck Rainey may provide some welcome good pitching, and the backups could just give the Sox a needed helping hand—if they last, of course.

I know, you're still wondering about Carlton Fisk. So is everyone, old man. We gotta wait and see.

Speaking of waiting and seeing, old man Fenway, it looks like the players are going to hit the pavement and strike unless they get what they want. We all must wait until April Fools' Day and see whether they strike or not.

So don't take off the covers yet, Gramps. The kids might stay home this year.

UMass' Strong eyes Olympics

By MIKE ESTRADA
Collegian Staff

This Sunday, after a year of training and agonizing uncertainty, UMass sophomore Judy Strong will find out if she is a member of the United States Olympic field hockey team slated for this summer's games in Moscow.

She will get the word from coach Vonnie Gros who will spare no one's emotions by announcing her decisions in front of all 22 candidates who have made their way to the final tryout site in Philadelphia. For six of them, months of travelling and training in places like Vancouver and Colorado will come to an abrupt end. For the rest, but especially for Judy Strong, a year of circumstances that turned into an unbelievable situation could reach its ultimate conclusion.

"I'm 19. I'm scared. I'm still a kid," Strong said this week. If things go her way, she will represent UMass in the Olympics and will be the only field hockey player from the New England region. Like the men from the Boston area who were on the U.S. Ice Hockey team, Strong might be about to enter the greatest experience of her life. We were sitting around that Sunday when the hockey team won the gold medal," Strong recalled. "After the game, you could sense the feeling that that could be us."

For the first time, field hockey will become a recognized Olympic sport. The United States is already seeded third behind Holland and England after round—robin qualifications at Vancouver last summer. Despite the recommendations to boycott the Summer Olympics in Moscow, Strong and others are preparing as hard as if they were absolutely making the August trip.

For the past seven weekends, Strong has flown to Philadelphia to Friend's Select Private School, where the last tryouts have taken place. This is the eighth weekend and a decision will be made.

"I don't know what my chances are, I don't know what they are looking for," she said. Considering some of the women on the U.S. team have played together for seven years, Strong, the team's youngest candidate at 19, lacks experience. "Some of the individual players are the best in the world." They play a different kind of field hockey just like we play our own brand of hockey here at UMass."

Judy Strong is simply one of the best hockey players in the East, a haven for the sport. She scored 24 goals in 24 games last season, including five in the three—game Eastern Championship, to help the Minutewomen capture their second straight fourth—place finish nationally. At the nationals in Princeton, N.J. she scored twice in each of the first two games.

Strong's story is an example of an athlete who literally went right to the top. She is a player of Olympic caliber with only six years of competition experience. She comes from Hatfield, just up Route 91, and attended Smith Academy. The Academy was a perennial finalist in the state field hockey tournament. Entering her senior year with 99 high school goals, the forward went berserk, scoring 36 goals and leading her team to a second place finish state—wide behind Weston.

She had been riding the bench last year as a freshman, but then to move things around offensively, in a game against Yale, coach Pam Hixon moved Strong from her wing position to center. She promptly scored a hat trick and has started ever since.

Last summer, the whole Olympic hope started. Strong was invited to attend "C" camp in Springfield. It was the lowest tryout stage. Out of about 1100 players nationwide, Strong and 89 others were invited to the next level, the single "B" camp at Penn State University in early July. From there, Strong, the perfect combination of speed and strength, was one of the 35 to travel to the "A" camp in Colorado.

"If she tells you you made it, you can't really get excited because other people will be there. You have to wait till you get out of there and then go crazy. I don't want to hurt anybody but that's the way the competition is. You're not making the decision, Vonnie is, and she knows what she's doing, that's for sure."

Breen's Bruins upset What the Puck

By JAMES TUBBS
Special to the Collegian

The semifinals of the UMass intramural hockey tournament held Tuesday night at the Greenfield Arena saw defending champs What The Puck fall to the no. 1 seed Breens Bruins 2—1 and Enterprise squeaking past Beta Kappa Phi 4—3.

The no. 2 seeded Enterprise scored three goals on a "defensively out of it Beta Phi team" during the first ten minutes of the game. The first goal scored by Rich Cremmen came when he stole a clearing pass and shot a wrist shot past goalie James Crowley. Within minutes of one another Jody Ferrilli and Brad Turnball scored to give Enterprise a 3—0 lead after one period of play.

Beta Phi started its comeback with a goal by Claude Tetro at the 11:30 mark of the second period. The rest of the period produced end to end action but no more scoring.

At 10:50 in the third period Gene Crowley scored for Beta Phi to cut the margin to one goal. One minute later John Muldone was awarded a penalty shot when defenseman Jack Ryan of Enterprise was caught covering up the puck in the crease. Enterprise goalie Steve Dow who stopped Muldone said, "I knew he (Muldone) was going to shoot instead of trying to make a move, so I held my position and he made a good shot and I was fortunate to get my stick on it." Beta Phi bounced back and tied the game with 8:10 remaining.

With just 47 seconds left Enterprise center Matt Pippen was given credit for the winning goal that Beta Phi defenseman Jim Jefferson accidentally knocked in his own goal.

"It took a total team effort to keep a good Beta Phi team from taking our nine game winning streak away," said capt. Jack Ryan, who was quick to point out that, "it was Beta Phi who was the last and only club to beat us this season."

"It was like beating the Russians," proclaimed Bob Angelosanto, after his team, Breens Bruins, upset defending champs What The Puck 2—1. It took a late third period goal by Bruins left wing Peter Cavicci to knock the champs out of the playoffs.

"We had plenty of chances but just didn't get any breaks," said capt. DeanLiacos of WTP. The chances Liacos was referring to were the numerous shots that Bruin goalie Paul Castaldo turned back.

"They deserve the title because they beat the champs...this was the championship game...just like when the Boston Bruins lost to the Canadians last year in the Stanley Cup playoffs." said an obviously disappointed Doug Lamone of WTP.

Players on both the Bruins and WTP felt that their semifinal match was the championship but Enterprise may have had something different to say last night as they faced the Bruins for the title.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY

Collegian

VOLUME CIX, ISSUE 104 Student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst Friday, March 14, 1980

Action momentarily stops as the campus pond's lone winter inhabitant gets up on the ice for a closer look at the skaters. (Staff photo Paul Price)

Workers suing trustees

By MARC FAGELSON
Collegian Staff

The union representing UMass maintenance workers filed a suit Wednesday against the UMass Board of Trustees for violations of their entitled salary as set by state law, said Director of Education and Public Relations for the union's UMass council John Harvey.

Council 93 of the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees filed the class action suit in Hampshire Superior Court, Harvey said. The suit was filed on behalf of 10 Amherst campus maintenance workers, he said.

According to chapter 149, public employees on a public works contract are to receive 80 percent of the existing outside wage, Harvey said. "University workers are being paid much less than that," Harvey added.

The suit states that since July 1, 1974, when the law went into effect, UMass workers were not paid the determined wage for doing work covered by the law.

"We want the trustees to cease and desist from violating the law," Harvey said. "The Union did its best in filing the suit. All we can say is we've pushed the situation to litigation," he added.

A spokesperson for UMass President David C. Knapp, Carol Cohen, said, "Nobody in the administration has been made aware of any details (about the case) yet."

Power plant problems

By MARC FAGELSON
Collegian Staff

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of articles which will appear from time to time detailing various construction and maintenance problems plaguing the campus.

A 480-volt panel and a 2300-volt disconnect short circuited causing $32,000 damage when water dripped into the panel located in the basement of the University's power plant on boiler number eight.

Allen Newton, chief engineer of the power plant, did not know the exact date of the accident, but said it happened before he assumed his position here in April, 1978.

The water began leaking when the boiler's haze recorder, which is a gas analyer for the boiler, malfunctioned, Newton said. The boiler pass, a section attached directly to the boiler began leaking the water, Newton said.

The leaking water shorted the 480-volt panel as well as a 120-volt sub-panel and the sub-panel's transformer, said Physical Plant electrician Norman Kessler. The panel sent smoke and fire through the open-grated ceiling, an eyewitness said, and eventually short circuited the 2300-volt primary line, Kessler said.

Leaking water in the power plant is hardly a new problem, Kessler said. Three

TURN TO PAGE 3

COMMENT/
JOE QUINLAN

IRA, music, St. Pat's Day

Every Saturday when I was in high school, my father would jack up the volume of the kitchen radio, tune it to WRYT on the AM dial and IRA lyrics would sound through the household and the neighborhood, like a stereo at "10" blasting the Grateful Dead through the Quad or the Southwest courtyard.

And as religiously as my father would listen to Irish music, I would make it a point to be gone for the day.

Years later—last October—I went to the Dubliner pub in Washington D.C. to meet a friend. It was a Saturday night and the place was wall-to-people, some listening attentively to the music and others deeply engrossed in conversations. I ordered a pint of light and turned to the singer, perched on a stool against a backdrop of caricatures of Brendan Behan, Sean O'Casey and James Joyce.

The lyrics were familar, but I didn't turn and leave. I listened and I watched and I mouthed the words.

The singer was Paddy Reilly of Dublin. He was singing the ballad of Willie McBride, the young Irish boy buried in Flanders, who died in 1919 in the war "...to end all wars..." Reilly's face expressed the

TURN TO PAGE 10

The still before the storm. (Staff photo by Jim Mahoney)

DIGEST

Carter to reveal inflation plan

WASHINGTON (AP) – President Carter will unveil today his newest anti-inflation strategy, which is expected in include the first balanced budget in 12 years and a new tax that would raise gasoline prices 10 cents a gallon.

White House officials said Carter will announce his anti-inflation plans at 4:30 p.m. EST in a White House speech and will hold a news conference today at 9 p.m. EST to discuss them further.

In announcing Carter's plans, officials said all details of the strategy have not yet been worked out and will be announced later.

In addition to seeing a higher tax on gasoline, Americans also are likely to feel the bite of the new Carter program in higher interest rates, credit controls and an end to Saturday mail delivery, among other things. Carter is expected to propose $12 billion to $15 billion in spending cuts for 1981, and to impose a new tax on imported oil that would raise the price of gasoline an additional 10 cents a gallon.

Election may solve problems

(AP) – Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said yesterday upcoming parliamentary elections will allow the government to "dominate the power in the streets" and solve the issue of the American hostages "quite quickly."

In a radio interview broadcast in Paris, Ghotbzadeh said he believed the nation was losing patience with the militants who this week defeated government efforts to take custody of the approximately 50 Americans held hostage in the occupied U.S. Embassy since Nov. 4.

"Time is working against the students. The people were entirely with them before. Today, that is no longer the case," Ghotbzadeh said in an interview broadcast by France-Inter.

A five-member U.N. commission remained in Tehran 17 days investigating Iranian charges of mass murder and corruption by deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and seeking to question all of the American hostages.

Revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini threw his support behind the militants, setting what the U.N. panel said were unacceptable conditions to the proposed visit to the hostages. Subsequently, the governing Revolutionary Council withdrew its backing for efforts by Ghotbzadeh and President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr to take custody of the Americans.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (US 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding January, June, July, and August, for $15 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003. Second class postage paid at Amherst, Mass. Postmaster: Send address changes to Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

Jury finds Ford Company innocent in homicide trial

By LISA LEVITT
Associated Press Writer

WINAMAC, Ind. – A jury from the nation's heartland yesterday found Ford Motor Co. innocent of reckless homicide charges in the first criminal prosecution of a corporation in a products defects case — a verdict the prosecutor said "vindicates" the giant automaker.

Defense attorney James F. Neal said the acquitals on charges stemming from the fiery highway deaths of three teen-agers showed even a giant corporation can win the day if it has "a fair and reasonable story."

The three teen-agers were burned to death when their 1973 Pinto exploded in flames after being hit from behind by a van on an Indiana highway in August, 1978. The state contended defects in the subcompact's fuel system made it likey to leak fuel in rear end crashes at low to moderate speeds. Ford attorneys said the force of the impact, rather than any alleged defect, caused the gasoline tank to explode.

The verdict came in the fourth day of the jury's deliberations, including a marathon session that went into the early morning hours Thursday.

Chief Prosecutor Michael Cosentino said after the verdict that there was a "strong possibility" he would appeal the judge's rulings in the case.

Defense attorney Neal, whose fee in the case has been reported at $1 million, said of a possible appeal: "I don't care about the appeal. They can appeal all the points of law they want. I'm through with the case."

He said later: "I'm awfully pleased. It is the most difficult case I've ever tried. The state had an easy emotional case, but we had a less emotional case because we were defending a big corporation."

Cosentino, who led a spartan state effort that included funding of about $20,000 and the use of volunteer help, said the verdict "vindicates" Ford.

He said: "It means to me that manufacturers can make any kind of car they want to and it's up to the public to decide if they want to buy it or not. I do not personally believe that corporations are doing what they can to help the people of this country, but the jury apparently does."

Earl Ulrich of Osceola, Ind., father of two of the three victims in the 1978 crash on U.S. 33 near Goshen, Ind., said of the verdict: "I'm very disappointed...But this has nothing to do with us. This was the state of Indiana against Ford Motor Co."

Killed in the crash were Judy Ulrich, 18, the driver, her sister, Lyn Ulrich, 16, and their cousin Donna Ulrich, 18.

Because a corporation cannot be imprisoned, a conviction in the case could have carried a maximum penalty of a $10,000 fine on each of the three counts. But the case was considered a landmark battle because of its possible effect in other such cases and on pending civil suits concerning the Pinto.

School prayer law struck down

By STEVEN A. COHEN
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON – Massachusetts' new law reintroducing prayer in the public schools was found to violate the constitutional separation of church and state and was struck down by the state Supreme Court yesterday.

The court enjoined the state from enforcing the law and in a five-page order said, "The program contemplated by the statute and as actually carried out in the schools was religious in character."

The state argued at a hearing before the full bench last week that the law, which took effect last month, accommodates religion rather than sponsors it.

The attorney general's office said it would await a more detailed ruling, promised by the court, before deciding whether to appeal to the federal courts.

"We find a religious program, which was sponsored and put into effect by state and local officials under aegis of state statute, was conducted from day to day by teachers employed as public employees in public schools, and was carried out on public property, during school time, and as part of the school exercises," the court said.

"The applicable precedents are clear that such a statute with such implementation violates the Establishment Clause" of the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

"According to the precedents, the statute could not be saved from unconstitutionality by the fact that the prayers were spoken by volunteer pupils, or that pupils could choose to be excused from the exercise."

The law passed last fall requires that public school teachers ask each day if any student wishes to offer a prayer. If one does, the prayer is said, and pupils not wishing to participate can leave the room.

The law took effect Feb. 5, and separate suits seeking injunctions were filed the next day by students and parents from the Framingham and Marblehead school systems.

Meanwhile, state Education Commissioner Gregory Anrig sent letters demanding compliance to school committees in five communities where the law wasn't being enforced.

WEEKEND THEATRE

A University of Wisconsin student protesting the war in Vietnam is blocked from entering the Wisconsin State Capitol by National Guard troops. (Photo credit: Roger Turner, Wisconsin State Journal)

'War at Home' — fast-paced

By JOHN MARTINDALE
Special to the Collegian

While "Deerhunter" and "Apocalypse Now" have dealt with the Vietnam War, they did not focus on the politics, demonstrations and confrontations that ended the United States' involvement there. "The War at Home" depicts the anti-war movement in the United States in general and Madison, Wisconsin in particular.

As the opening narration sums up, "(In 1963) Madison is the American prescription – scenic beauty, nice homes, good jobs, and a great university." After showing us film clips of this "American Dream" the film reveals a darker side to all the patriotism and football victories; the boosting of American intervention in Vietnam.

With the first significant anti-war protest in Madison, the struggle there had begun. As the war escalated so did the scope of the conflict at home. Through a skillful use of interviews, news footage and music the viewer is taken through the history of the Vietnam War and the transformation of Madison into a battleground where American foreign policy and values were challenged and changed.

Some of the events covered in the film include the 1967 protest of the Dow Chemical Corporation (producer of napalm) recruiters, (in which students of the University of Wisconsin were beaten by police), the Kent State massacre, the Chicago Democratic Convention of 1968, and Nixon's invasion of Cambodia.

"The War at Home" concludes with the dramatic massive protest against the war in May 1972. These protests propelled the signing of the Paris Peace Agreements in January 1973, formally ending the United States military intervention in Vietnam.

The film is fast-paced and at times confusing, but by and large an excellent documentary. The contrast between the relaxed setting of the interviews juxtaposed with news footage of demonstrations communicates well what it was like to be involved in the anti-war movement.

Also, the contrast between what a military officer explained about napalm and news footage showing a Vietnamese victim of it makes one feel the frustration of the protesters. Another effective technique was the sound of police clubs, striking students in demonstrations.

This is an important film because it raises questions which confront us today. It brings to life once again the question which confront us today. It brings to life once again the questionable Vietnam intervention and is certain to fan the flames of the anti-draft movement. Despite a somewhat desultory style of presentation, "The War at Home" is an affecting piece about Vietnam with a new focus. Directed by Glenn Silber and Barry A. Brown, this film is playing through Saturday at Pleasant St. Theatre, Northampton.

'Hedda Gabler': UMass drama on Victorian age

By SARAH HAMMAN
Collegian Staff

Henrik Ibsen's Hedda Gabler reveals the personality of a deceptively uncourageous society woman. The title character is a complex, mysterious, intentionally-atypical Victorian-Age lady, married out of necessity to a weak-willed, unlikely mate. Intense yet controlled, her presence dominates the musty, fashionably decorated parlor setting of the play.

The daughter of General Gabler, renowned for his military and shooting expertise, Hedda is married to a quiet-mannered, intellectual professor. In him she has found a suitor who will treat her both respectfully and honestly. Husband Tesman adores "dear, lovely Hedda." Throughout the play's four acts, Hedda successfully manipulates her husband, and schoolmate Thea. However, she cannot control the keenly insightful Judge Brack. Before the play closes, Brack sees through Hedda's surface calm and confidence, and into her obsessive dreams.

Shrewd and calculating, Hedda has a childlike fantasy with her father's prize pistols. This, coupled with her strange preoccupation with sunlight and fire, puts the audience on edge, expectantly awaiting the explosive climax.

Although Hedda marries Tesman, her mind is occupied with Eljert Lovborg, her former lover. According to Ibsen, Lovborg is the focus of Hedda's frightening and alluring fantasies. Thea, the third corner of the delicate love triangle, provides continual support for Lovborg. Honest and courageous, Audrey Jacques' Thea quickly captured the audence's favor.

In the past, the role of Hedda has been interpreted by such actresses as Ingrid Bergman and Glenda Jckson. Melissa Keeler played Hedda in this production, and chose to include physical mannerisms inconsistent with her character. A woman raised in proper society would not repeatedly slouch in her living room chair, particularly while entertaining influential society leaders like Judge Brack. Joseph Donohue played the role of the Judge, and he delivered his stuffy, dry-witted lines with ease.

Keeler relaxed as the play progressed. Although many of her lines fell flat in the first act, she gained better control of her character by the end of the second act. Her husband, the timid Tesman, played by David Farland, often seemed almost comical. At times, marriage between the academic Tesman and the forceful Hedda appeared strange and unrealistic.

With her bouncy, fretful gait, Happy Robey as the maid brought a light touch of humor to the production.

DA aids victims

By BARBARA LEBLANC
Special to the Collegian

Victims and witnesses of violent crimes are now being given emotional support and a better explanation of the judicial system thanks to a unit of the District Attorney's office in Northampton.

The Unit is called the Franklin/Hampshire County Victim/Witness Assistance Unit. According to Co-Director Diane Fernald, the unit is also designed to encourage more reporting of violent crimes.

"People are not reporting crimes because of a fear of the system and a fear of reliving horrible things that happened to them," Fernald said. "We try to humanize the court process."

An explanation of court procedure, a tour of an actual court room (maybe an opportunity to sit on a witness chair), and an explanation of required testimony are services the victim receives from the Uni.. They will be introduced to the prosecutor of the case, placed on call to avoid unnecessary time spent in the court room, and accompanied by a unite member during the court appearance, Fernald said. Crisis counseling is available to victims throughout the process and, if necessary, a referral to long term counseling.

Established in March 1978, the Unit also includes co-director Nancy M. Gray, assistant Mary A. Mello, and Franklin County Domestic Violence Specialist Ellen Cain. Rising out of a need identified by the District Attorney's office to reduce the mystique surrounding the judicial system, the offices is presently equipped only to assist victims and witnesses of violent crimes, which includes any crimes of sexual nature, child abuse, assault, and armed robbery. "The witnesses of violent crimes are given the same services as the victims. They may feel more objective about a crime, but they still have the same fears of the judicial system," Fernald said.

The victims, about 60 percent female and 40 percent male, and witnesscs are contacted through the arraignment files at the District Court Clerks' offices or through police references.

"The response has been positive," Fernald said. "You hear things like, 'I didn't know you existed, the police didn't tell me anything.' Some people don't even know where their case stands." The Unit knows the position of every violent crime case in the two counties.

The office also serves as a link between the prosecutor and the victim. "We are a victim-oriented office. We will pass onto a prosecutor what the victim would like to see in the case. If it is a domestic violence case and the beating has been going on for years, the victim might like the fact brought out in court so that it will affect how the defendent will be handled," Fernald said.

The Unit was involved in the two Rape Protocol Groups that established uniform procedure for treatment of rape victims at Cooley Dickinson Hospital and Franklin County Public Hospital in Greenfield. It also helped form the Franklin County Domestic Violence Project that is now part of the unit's office.

The program is presently educating the community on its work and what a victim of a violent crime should do through brochures and talks given at police departments and high schools. A legislative bill is pending through which the state would continue the funding of the Unit when its present funds end in October, 1980, and provide a network of such units across the state. Once this is established, Fernald would like see the Unit expanded to assist victims of all crimes, with special sections for sexual assault victims and the elderly.

The Unit is important, Fernald said, because it results in more reporting of violent crimes. "If a crime is not reported, it does not get in the system and it doesn't get resolved," she said.

Two new minors backed

Brian Burke addressed the Faculty Senate for the final time yesterday. He thanked the senate and wished his successor, Richard Moran, the same fortune that he had as president. (Staff photo by Jim Mahoney)

By BRIAN O'CONNELL
Collegian Staff

The UMass Faculty Senate yesterday voted to recommend to the University administration that it approve proposed minors in the departments of Chemistry and Mathematics.

If approved by the administration and passed by the UMass Board of Trustees, students will be able to declare minors in Chemistry and Mathematics hopefully by next year, according to a spokesman for the Senate's Academic Matters Council.

Faculty Senate Secretary Harvey Kline also reported proposed minors in the English, German, Spanish and Political Science departments had been approved by UMass Provost Jeramiah M. Allen earlier this week. According to Kline, the motion, which was passed by the Senate two weeks ago, must still be approved by the Board of Trustees.

In other business, the Senate voted to form an ad hoc committee to study a proposed memorial garden for Frank T. Waugh, UMass Director of Planning and Development in 1903. The Senate voted to include three members of the Campus Physical Plant Committee and three members of the Landscape Architecture and Regional Planning Department. The committee will report on their findings no later than April 10, 1980, according to Secretary Kline.

Student Government co-President Brian Burke addressed the Senate for the last time yesterday, telling Senate members he "expressed gratitude to the Senate", adding "I hope you'll be as patient with the next president as you were with me."

Profs discuss media influence

By MICHAEL MASCIS
Special to the Collegian

In a forum Wednesday night, three UMass professors agreed the news media has become so important to the presidential election process that candidates are influenced by what the media expects of them, and gear their campaigns to the media.

The forum, sponsored by the University Honors Program, featured Professor James Boylan of the journalism department, Jay Savereid of Communication Studies, and Jerome Mileur of the Political Science department. The professors presented their respective views and concerns over the controlling role the media plays in the nomination, presentation, and selection of candidates for the presidency of the United States.

Savereid began the forum by commenting on the effects the journalists themselves have upon the campaigns. He stated that campaign journalism has two major effects: to eliminate as many qualified candidates as possible, and to conceal tangible information concerning what the candidates have to offer. Savereid said because journalists operate under constant pressure to get out ahead of the pack, they often declare the race over before it ends and we never really get a clear, complete view of each candidate.

Boylan focused his remarks upon the political managers that run the campaigns, pointing out advertising agencies have been used by candidates since 1952, when the Republicans first "sold the president much as we sell dog food."

Boylan fears control of the campaign is passing from the hands of the candidates into the hands of these managers. He said while the professional manager does not determine the candidate's personal views on the issues, he does control how those views are presented and emphasized, and how the candidate's funds are spent.

Boylan said the advertising agencies attempt to appeal to the voters who are not well-informed or who really don't care much about politics by entertaining them through the media. He said voters are so affected by the media that if a candidate is presented well, he will get votes.

Mileur emphasized how television has revolutionized the presidential campaign. He said the former role of the political parties in recruiting and nominating candidates has been absorbed by TV. He also said the primaries have increased in importance and number as a direct result of TV coverage. The electoral process itself has been affected because in the last four elections, whoever has won the primaries has won the elections, he said.

Mileur maintained campaigns are primarily geared to TV and the bulk of a candidate's resources is now put into TV. The candidates try to get as much television exposure as possible; they plan their daily schedules in order to attend events that will put them on the evening news. He said the result of this TV orientation has been for the candidates to shift from presenting complete programs to an emphasis upon single issues.

Another result Mileur identified was that campaigns are increasingly being run by technicians without any real political experience; they know how to get candidates elected, but don't know how to deal with Congress. Mileur also suggested the incumbent has a distinct advantage over the other candidates because of his ability to command access to TV coverage whenever he wants it.

The forum presented a somewhat negative opinion of the role of media in the presidential campaign. But Boylan said one benefit of the media is that the coverage is so widespread, candidates are forced to stick to their professed views; it is no longer possible for a candidate to say one thing in one part of the country and another thing in some other part of the country.

Joel Siegel, UMass Flying Club member, preflights the club's Cessna C152 before takeoff from Franklin Airways in Turner Falls. (Staff photo by Paul Price)

Fewer students vote

By ED LEVINE
Collegian Staff

With all the votes counted and the final tallies in, it appears as if slightly less students voted in Student Government elections this year than last.

Undergraduate students elected Rich LaVoice and Rich Moran co-Presidents of the Student Government Association Wednesday night. LaVoice and Moran were elected with 38.9 percent of the vote, 8 percent ahead of Kim Kirschner and Howard Goldman, who received 30.7 percent.

According to the official election results compiled by Associate Dean of Admissions Robert Brooks, who assisted in supervising the election, 21 percent of the student body cast ballots Tuesday and Wednesday. Brooks' results cite 3941 student votes for the seven candidates, with several other ballots cast for write-in candidates.

Last year 24 percent of the student body elected LaVoice and Brian Burke SGA co-Presidents.

Voters in the Southwest Residential area voted the most, with 37.7 percent of the population going to the polls. This represents a decrease in the turnout from last year, when 363 more students cast ballots in Southwest.

Turnout in the other areas was also low with 32.6 percent in Northeast, 29.3 percent in Central, 27.4 percent in Orchard Hill, 27.3 percent among the Greek community and 19.8 percent in Sylvan. Voter turnout was lowest among the commuters, where only 7.1 percent of eligible students voted.

★ Plant

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

transformers also located in the power plant's basement were endangered by leaking water shortly after their installation over ten years ago, he said. To solve the problem, holes were drilled in the wall behind the transformers, but the floor is still moist, he added. "It's a hazard for the guys who work down here," Kessler said.

The power plant is taking steps to remedy the situation, Newton said. The ceiling should be cemented in permanently, he said, but as of now, the new panel, which contains a water-resistant lip, is covered by a water-streaked tarp.

"No panel should be in the basement" he added.

Black Affairs

The five college community was treated to the performance of "Spiritness," a musical debut of vocalist and pianist Bobby Davis, accompanied by Gail Hart of UMass and Shirley Hirston. The capacity crowd in the Top Of the Campus Restaurant came away with their fill of good vibes.

Davis Thrills Audience in Campus Show

By JOYCE MCLAURIN and RENEE MOBLEY
Black Affairs Staff

Despite the obstinate public address system that prevented the performance last Friday and posed problem on Saturday, pianist and vocalist, Bobby Davis presented a successful debut.

Davis' rapport with the audience must have been partly responsible for that success. The atmosphere was open and familiar as if Davis was performing in his living room for a group of family and friends.

"The theme of his performance is just to feel everybody as we are," said Davis. "I hope we can get everyone to participate."

The Top of the Campus restaurant was filled to capacity, the audience settled back as Bobby Davis and two female vocalists Gail Hart and Shirly Hirston warmed their souls.

Davis is a talented and versatile musician. Aside from his smooth and mellow singing voice, he is well-known for his musical ability on the keyboard and the drums.

In his rendition of "On Broadway" much of the audience was treated to Davis' vocal talent for the first time.

Though it was Bobby's show he was not the only to exhibit excellent music ability.

Gail Hart sang a solo of "Sweet Thing," done originally by Chaka Khan. Ms. Hart is a UMass student who is known for her work in the Voices of New Africa House Choir and in the Afro Am Vocal Jazz Ensemble of the UMass music department.

Davis' other vocalist Shirley Hirston came from out of town to sing at his debut. She can be noted for her solo "I Feel Like Making Love" as well as for the duet, "The Closer I Get to You," sung with Davis.

Hirston, when asked why she had traveled so far to perform here, said, "We spent a lot of time on this and as artists we want to give."

They came together to enjoy the feeling of giving the precious gift of music and they seemed to love the giving of it. At first they were a little audience shy but as Davis mellowed into his role as leader of the show the other performers followed and the show couldn't have been anything but a success.

As with all musical performances much of the credit must be given to the accompanying musicians: Clyde Criner on keyboards provided the direction and the tempo for the other players. Jimmy Bridges on guitar, Fred Spence on Bass and Royal Hartigan on grums filled in the spaces to contribute to a well-blended and amuch enjoyed production.

African Summer Study Programs Announced

The American Forum for International Study will begin its 13th year of African travel/study programs in July with four distinct programs.

Dr. Melvin Drimmer, President of the American Forum, announced that its AFRICA '80 programs will travel to Senegal, Ghana, Togo, Benin, and Nigeria in West Africa, Ethiopia and Tanzania in East Africa, and to Egypt. All Forum programs meet with leading African statesmen, writers, artists, and cultural representatives as well as traveling on extensive field work programs throughout the countries visited.

The featured program is Comparative Cross African Societies which in 22 days will visit Senegal, Ghana, Togo, Benin, Ethiopia, Tanzania, and Egypt. The first program begins July 11. The second program begins August 1.

Two new programs will also be featured. These include a Comparative West African Societies program which travels to Senegal, Ghana, Togo, Benin, and the Ivory Coast. The program lasts fifteen days. The second program is Comparative East African Societies which travels to Egypt, Tanzania, and Ethiopia, and is also 15 days in length. Both programs have July and August departures.

The final program is African Studies in Nigeria and it will be held on the campus of the University of Ibadan under the auspices of the world reknown Institute of African Studies. The program lasts three weeks. Field trips are scheduled to various sites in western Nigeria. The program begins July 11th.

Adelphi University will award graduate or undergraduate credit for those who take the program for academic credit. Enrollment is optional.

Leaders of these nationally recognized programs will be Professor Margaret Burroughs of the DuSable Museum, Chicago; Professor Cyril Packwood of the City University of New York; and Professor Harold Rogers of the City Colleges of Chicago.

Costs for the programs range from $1960 to $2780. Selective scholarship assistance is anticipated.

At the conclusion of the programs, participants may spend an optional week in Cairo, Athens, the Middle East, Israel, or Amsterdam.

All American Forum programs are interracial and interreligious. Participants include educators at all levels from all across the United States, Canada, and the West Indies. Clergy, journalists, artists, social workers, librarians, and health professionals also participate in the programs. Students can participate upon recommendation from their colleges.

Now in its 13th year, the American Forum was the pioneer in the development of summer study programs for educators in African Studies in Africa. More than 1800 have participated in the Forum's 34 previous programs.

A Catalogue and additional information about the programs may be obtained by writing the American Forum for International Study, 14311 South Woodland Road, Shaker Heights, Ohio 44120 or by calling 216-751-7171.

The American Forum is a private non-profit educational teacher run organization providing participants a chance to learn more about African culture, history, developments through programs at African universities and in person to person meetings with leading African leaders, intellectuals, artists, writers, etc. About 75-100 take part in our programs each summer. All of our programs are fully accredited for undergraduate and graduate credit by Adelphi University of Garden City, New York.

We also try to provide some scholarship assistance to participants. Last year we distributed $16,000 in grants. In 1978, we had $34,000. The amount varies from year to year. At this moment we have no idea just what might be available and we suggest that those interested in our programs get in touch with us individually.

G.Q. expressing their joy in the victory of the finals game against Beta Kappa Phi. These gentlemen have proudly won the title of "Campus Champs" in mens intramural basketball.

They finished the season with an outstanding record of 10 wins and 0 losses. Positive accomplishments such as these give our brothers and sisters of this community something to take pride in.

G.Q. is the first Black men's team to win in intramural basketball since the McKimmie Lions won the title two years ago. CONGRATULATIONS FELLAS. (Photo by Barron Roland)

To the Third World Community

The Office of Third World Affairs will be sponsoring "Beyond The Class Room." This Will be a Third World Experience, to instill pride in the uniqueness of our cultures and help us to unite in the spirit of Brotherhood.

It will also be the perfect opportunity for students to learn the issues concerning Third World Students here at the University. All Third World Organizations will be present and will be recruiting new members. This is your chance to learn about these organizations and to join them in our struggle.

Presentations will be made by Tony Crayton, Lancelot Lane Music Workship and Bob Suzuki. A Buffet dinner will be prepared by Yvonne. So be there, March 29th on the 10th floor of the Campus Center from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

The Staff of Black Affairs wishes everyone a very safe and enjoyable Spring break. Study a little, Party a little and we'll see you next week!

LUTHER

By Brumsic Brandon, Jr.

Announcements

Cultural Center Open

The Orchard Hill Third World Center is now open! Come check us out! Hours: Monday-Thursday 7:30-11:30 p.m. Dickinson Dorm-First Floor. Look for further information on our Backgammon Tournament!

Editorial/Opinion

State wrong on red

BILL HALLISEY

Every time I stop at a red light I feel somehow cheated. The law says I can turn right but the sign says I can't. It's a paradox worthy of Kafka.

If you've ever been out of the state you've probably noticed that the roads out there are really no different from our own. The only thing that distinguishes a Massachusetts red light from any other red light is the sign. People out West turn right at red lights all the time; no problem. How come they can do it and we can't?

This question has baffled many a motorist. It's a difficult question to answer. There may be no answer at all.

Back in August of '79 Governor Edward King signed the right on red proposal into law making Massachusetts the last of the fifty states to comply to the "Western Rule." It was a momentous day indeed. The Governor had a blinking traffic signal hauled into his office just for the occasion, bringing pageantry to the Statehouse the likes of which hadn't been seen since King appointed Ronald McDonald Honorary Chairman of Dental Health Month.

King claimed that by conforming to the law the state would save $2.1 million in gasoline annually. (I'd like to know where he came up with those figures.) But that's not why we adopted the law. We complied to the Western Rule because the Federal Government threatened to withhold energy funds from the state if we didn't.

Officials who were opposed to the right on red law had their reasons—mostly honorable, but somewhat unsubstantiated. Rep. Robert F. Larkin Jr. said, "There is no sense in adopting a law which endangers and intimidates the blind and disabled just because 49 other states have refused to recognize the intimidation and fear which right turn on red breeds in these defenseless pedestrians."

Larkin failed to point out that the other states didn't recognize the intimidation and fear because it simply wasn't there. What does he know about right on red anyway? He's from Massachusetts.

Some officials claimed that Bay State roads were not conducive to right on red. Others made snide allusions to our driving ability. But by far the most common reason for opposing right on red, although not explicitly stated, was profound ignorance.

The people in the decision making process simply could not comprehend a rule allowing drivers to stop, look, and go. "How can this be?" they pondered. "Next thing you know they'll be asking us to stop for green lights."

The state found a solution: print up 11,000 signs saying "No Turn on Red" and post them at 90 percent of its intersections. Nothing would change. And that's what they did. And nothing has changed.

How much did those no-turn signs cost? Oh, about $400,000–and do you know who paid for most of them? The Federal Government, the same people who wanted so badly for us to turn in the first place.

Last year, to appease the federal gods, we agreed to take right turns at intersections with signs saying we could. Cities and towns in the state received guidelines from the Department of Public Works to help them determine what intersections were worthy of signs. Strictly applying the state guidelines regarding pedestrian counts, line of vision, and what-have-you, the municipalities erected them. Sparingly. Only 10 percent of the traffic signals in the state earned turn signs.

This year's guidelines are just a mirror image of last year's. Now there are signs where there were no signs and no signs where there were signs. The rules have changed but it's still the same old game.

But cheer up. Rumor has it that the DPW is requesting that cities and towns revaluate the situation. I imagine this whole thing must be pretty embarrassing to them. Who knows, maybe the signs will come down after all. No need to throw them away. We'll just stash them away with the 3,000 other signs that were never put up.

EDITORIAL CARTOONISTS NEEDED!

If you can fill this space, see Rob Burbank or Eric Janszen at the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center.

Peace by peaceful means

DAVID HYMAN

This column is addressed to you and all others with an interest in the draft—both for and against.

I will not allow myself to be drafted into the armed forces of the United States for the following reasons.

I will not allow myself to kill another human being—whatever the pretext. Nor will I act in a way that would support or condone the formation of, and/or application of, any armed forces unit whose purpose is to kill others. Secondly, I feel that war in any part of the world would be a detriment to mankind. I feel very strongly that the answer to men's problems can not be solved with war and violence.

The Constitution of the United States says: "We the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, ensure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the Blessing of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this CONSTITUTION for the United States of America."

Nowhere in this passage does it sanction acts of violence. It does say, "to provide for the common defense." This means to ensure freedom and life for all Americans. If killing promotes life, then I submit to you that something is very wrong with the way people think. The Constitution's preamble also says, "(to) ensure domestic Tranquility." If marches and rallies and other active anti-draft, anti-war protests are signs of domestic tranquility, then once again I say—something is very wrong.

The Second Amendment to the Constitution, ratified in 1791, calls for the establishment of a well regulated militia. "Regulated" does not mean, and could not imply, the conscription of men or women for armed service. "Regulated" means to be governed or directed according to rule. This refers to a well run organization, not the formation of one.

The Thirteenth Amendment, ratified in 1865, states: "Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude...shall exist in the United States, or any place subject to its jurisdiction."

Servitude is defined as, "the state of subjection to another that constitutes or resembles slavery or serfdom." (Webster's New Students' Dictionary, p. 797). A serf is one who is more or less subject to the will of his lord; a relationship analogous to that of a soldier to his officers. A soldier is nothing more than a serf in uniform. This is an act of slavery condemned by the Thirteenth Amendment.

The basic beliefs set forth in the Constitution are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. I was born a free man and taught to believe in the Constitution and yet now I am being asked to waive these basic beliefs.

It can and should be inferred from this letter that I am opposed to the draft. But I am opposed to it because of its consequences, not the act itself. The draft is not the cause of the problem, it is just a reaction to the cause of the problem. The cause is war itself. I am opposed to war and any action that would bring about death in the name of peace. It is all war, not only the potential war for which the draft is being reinstated, that is wrong. Peace should be attained through peaceful means.

It has been said that war is hell. Why not harness the efforts and resources that are being used to drive us closer to hell, and use them to reach for the heavens.

Years before I was born, I was granted the freedom to live my life as I see fit so long as I don't infringe upon the freedoms of others. I choose to live my life without war, without killing, and without needless and senseless bloodshed. I choose to live in Peace and to help in whatever way I can to ensure that peace through active, nonviolent means.

David Hyman is a Collegian guest columnist.

Letters

"Dracula" offends

To the Editor:

We, the undersigned, represent concerned residents and staff-persons in Southwest Residential Area—concerned and alarmed over the presentation of Andy Warhol's "Dracula" at the Student Union Ballroom this past weekend. Most movie-goers associate Warhol's name with the intellectual and avante-garde; this film is anything but, neither in its content nor its subtle yet dangerous message.

Once again, the university is condoning violence against women. "Dracula," like Warhol's "Frankenstein," completely robs the female characters of personhood. In addition to the constant brutality throughout the film and the perverted heterosexual interpretations of lesbian lovemaking, the viewing audience receives the impression that women enjoy being beaten, raped, depersonalized, and objectified.

THIS IS NOT ART NOR CREATIVE EXPRESSION! It is one of various forms of woman-hating in the media and should not be ignored or taken lightly! We are angry that the Business Club showed this film during Women's Week (and that it continued on International Women's Day). We hope those of you fortunate enough to miss "Dracula" last Friday night will not pay to see it in the future. If you did attend, we hope you had the good sense to walk out. For those who stayed, particularly the sponsors of the film, we hope this letter serves as food for thought as to all possible consequences and repercussions of these forms of "entertainment."

Caroll McGrath-Emerson
Cathy Moscatelli-Cance
Susan Twohig-Cance
David Soboff-Cance
Gregory White-Cance
Mel Barkley-H.R. JQA Lower
Karen Flathers-JQA Lower
Sharon Kipetz-H.R. JQA Middle
Jeffrey Weemer-R.A. JQA Middle
Sabhash Agrawal-R.A. JQA Middle William McNamara-H.R. JQA Middle and concerned Southwest residents

Coast, slide, squeak...

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter in regard to the Collegian's choice of title in announcing the SGA presidential election results on March 13, 1980. The Collegian chose to consider the LaVoice/Moran win as a "coast to the SGA co-presidency." I feel that this is a poor presentation of the facts. Many students who read this title will have assumed that the LaVoice/Moran candidacy won by a large margin. This is NOT the case. Winning by nine percent (and with only 39 percent of the vote) does not qualify as coasting. I feel the Collegian has misinterpreted the vote. How the Collegian may consider to call itself an unbiased news source is beyond my comprehension.

Stacy Crynock
Melville

Editor's note: The final vote count, 1685 to LaVoice/Moran and 1138 to Kirschner/Goldman, represents a substantial margin of 547 votes, or 19 percent. Perhaps "coast" was a poor choice of words, but no misrepresentation was intended.

Incommunicative

To the Editor:

With hopes that President Carter may happen upon this day's Collegian, I take pen in hand.

Dear President Carter,

Why have American-Soviet communications degenerated to mass-media name calling? Could it be that We are just as much assholes as They?

John Masse
Brown

'Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde Bar': An uneven soap

By DAVID AMBOS
Collegian Staff

I categorize as one of my most unfavorite things, along with a visit to the dental hygienist and dismemberment, the experience of confronting someone intimately connected with a show I was not overly-wild about. It's especially bad if you're reviewing it, because you tend to reflexively fall into one of several poses; none of which are entirely sincere. Fortunately , I was able to avoid all the hypocritical stances when talking with playwright/composer/director/performer Douglas Cohen about his musical updating of Robert Louis Stevenson entitled, Dr. Jekyll and the Mr. Hyde Bar, which had its' premiere at Amherst College this part weekend. Frankness was called for, and I was blunt. I told him honestly that I liked it. Well; almost honestly. I mean, I did enjoy it, sort of. It was a brave attempt and, all in all, the show wasn't half bad. Admittedly, the fraction was pretty close; say 7/16 or so. Up until shortly before intermission it had considerable charm, but then the production took a nose-dive; sinking into a light coma, falling into vapid melodrama, and plunging to a bathos deeper than the Marianas Trench. In the second half of the play the playwright virtually aborted his most engaging characters and forsook his initial explorations of social satire in favor of turning the show into a soap-opera murder mystery.

Before the end of the first act, I thought I had the main problem with the production nailed as a lack of punch. The first act introduced the imaginative concept of the "Mr. Hyde Bar", a place where people go to live out their sublimated fantasies, as well as several of the stranger characters who populate the bar. These included a salesman who pretends he's Frank Sinatra, a husband and wife team of celebrity psychologists who play out romantic fantasies by pretending to be strangers meeting by chance in the bar, and a piano player who is symbolically made to be a player-piano; an automaton oblivious to what goes on around him. Despite the clever dialogue, nice songs, and a couple of bright performances, the first act lacked the verve and excitement of a traditional musical. Missing were the production numbers, the harmonic ballads, and the rousing dancing that I wistfully waited for.

As the second act developed, I kept waiting for a Chlorox commercial, so much did the play begin to resemble an episode of "General Hospital." The plot began to concentrate more on the bar-crossed relationship of the two main characters; humanitarian Dr. Henry Jekyll and Ivy, the self-proclaimed "whore with a heart of gold" he has fallen for. Critics analysing a play often complain that, while a playwright has succeeded in fleshing out the main characters, he has left the lesser roles more or less one-dimensional. Apparently, Mr. Cohen thought it would be innovative to reverse the situation. But there was really no percentage in it. Making the two major characters dull and cliche did not endear them to the audience, and thus it didn't generate either sympathy or horror when guilt-haunted Jekyll killed Ivy in the end.

Of the cast, only David Breske as Ol' Blue Eyes and Douglas Cohen as the Piano Player were engrossing enough to establish a real connection with the audience. If Mr. Cohen had gone further in investigating the plentiful satiric possibilities of his concept, and had avoided reverting to soap-opera, the production might have been more solid. As it was it was half a play and a half-turn of the stomach on the edge of night.

THE CLASH

British punk 'torchbearers': a smash on third US tour

By JIM MORAN
Collegian Staff

The Clash, March 9
Orpheum Theatre, Boston

The Clash, Britain's "torchbearers" of punk rock, played here to a sold out house Sunday, in a concert which marked their "breakthrough" to commercial success as well as serving to strengthen the loyalty of their already-large legion of fans.

Playing a generous, well-balanced set of 23 songs from their three released albums, the group proved worthy of the compliment given them in a September 24 review in the Collegian, which called them the "best band out of England since the Rolling Stones."

The Clash opened their concert with "Clash City Rockers" from their hit single which was included on the American release of their first album, The Clash. The group then performed five songs from their most recent album, London Calling, the highlight of which was a reworked and faster-paced version of "Jimmy Jazz," with lead singer Joe Strummer turning in a fantastic vocal performance.

Guitarist and co-writer (along with Strummer) Mick Jones delivered a more powerful version of his anthem "Stay Free," from the Give 'Em Enough Rope album, and bassist Paul Simonon took center stage with a somewhat raspy-throated rendition of the reggae-influenced "Guns of Brixton." Without question, Jones is the best vocalist of the group in a "Paul McCartneyish" sort-of-way, while Strummer can be counted on for the politics and powerful force of vocal strength, much the same way as John Lennon contributed to the Beatles.

Perhaps the highlight of the whole night was the group's rock-out deliveries of "Working for the Clampdown," followed by "Janie Jones," added to with the visual effect provided by the backdrop of an industrial landscape showing factories and a Three Mile Island-looking nuclear plant. This was much in line with the group's very political tradition of left-wing songs and statements, live and recorded.

The group came back for two encores, the first including a reggae collaboration, done with Mikey Dread, a Jamaican DJ and "dub" artist, who was one of the three opening acts. The second encore featured "Tommy Gun" and "London's Burning," the last perhaps a statement of the current regime of British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher. Noticeably missing from their repertoire was the song "I'm So Bored With the USA," a tune which was performed on both previous tours. And perhaps that is a statement indicative of the group's sense of hope for the United States after having toured here and being able to separate the American people from the perceived image presented by propaganda. Truly, the Clash are part of the "new" British invasion that wants to do some innovative things musically and socially and, unlike the hedonistic seventies intelligently.

Of the three opening acts, none was worse than the local band—The B Girls. Though the group did a nice version of "Great Big Kiss," they were too cutesy. Deborah Harry does it better folks, and even she makes you want to overdose on Bazooka bubblegum. The Girls dedicated a song to the Clash head cook, Joe Strummer, but the delivery made it sound like just another unneeded version of "Hey Joe," which Hendrix already covered with class. Their anthem song, "B Girls," has a line in it: "Who says girls can't rock?" After seeing you, honeys, I say it. Model yourself after someone like Joplin or Slick or Patti Smith instead of bopping around like a bunch of bleached-blonde Beach Boys. Actually, the lead singer looked a heck of a lot more like Edgar Winter than Deborah Harry.

The Clash are, from left—Joe Strummer, Mick Jones, Paul Simonon, Nicky "Topper" Headon. (Photo courtesy of Epic Records)

Next to the Clash, Lee Dorsey, the soulish artist of the 1950's and 60's who hails from New Orleans, was the big hit. As John Rockwell said in the New York Times (amazingly accurate coming from someone who writes for that overrated bastion of surfaceskimming), "The Clash with him (Dorsey) paid its biggest debt of all, to the forgotten black veterans of rock-and-roll."

Dorsey, like Bo Diddley and Sam and Dave before him, was included on the tour to pay homage to and revive an interest in the "roots" artists of rock. Also, the Clash have taken to implementing a policy of getting diverse acts in their concerts; picking up all-female or Third World acts. Dorsey was in great form, doing a nice version of "Yes We Can," (covered by the Pointer Sisters in 1973) and a lively rendition of "Working in the Coal Mine" (circa 1966) and an animated delivery of "Ya Ya" (circa 1961). You really believed he was "sitting on his ya-ya waiting for his la-la."

All in all, a much tighter, more even show than their last tour. The group still has the same drive they had on their first tour, but as with their last tour, the acoustics of the Orpheum prove detrimental to their blaring sounds. A concert hall or perhaps, a club, would be more suited to their tastes. Maybe they'd even sound great outdoors.

After the concert, I spoke with Jones and Strummer. When reminded of their number 45 status on Billboard's Hot 100 albums, Strummer responded, "I never thought it would happen." When this writer hinted that they might, just possibly be, in spite of their seriousness and superb quality, a "success," and that this could be a "breakthrough tour," Strummer added, "It just could be this time. It feels great."

Mick Jones said it would be "hard to say" when they might next tour, but added "I think we'll be back real soon."

FOUR SEASONS

Michelob 12 0z. btl.	case	8.79
Budweiser Beer 12 oz. btl.	case	7.99
Schmidts Bock 12 oz. btl.	cases	5.99
Jim Beam Bourbon	1.75 ltr.	11.99
Cossack Vodka 80 proof	1.75 ltr.	8.99
Cartier Blanc de Blanc	750 ml.	2.29

Open 9 am - 11 pm
Mon. - Sat.
Wines/Liquors
rte.9, hadley, ma./584-8174
in front of the malls

"THE BEST AMERICAN FILM OF THE YEAR!"
–Bruce McCabe, Boston Globe

"A POWERFUL AND THOUGHT PROVOKING EXPERIENCE!"
–David Harris, Boston Phoenix

ACADEMY AWARD NOMINEE
BEST DOCUMENTARY
FILM OF 1979

It started in Vietnam and exploded in the streets of America.

at 6, 8 and 10 with
SAVE THE PLANET (at 8 & 10)

ACADEMY of MUSIC
Northampton, Mass.

Only Area Showing
NOW, ENDS TUES.
at 7:00 and 9:00

Werner Herzog's
Nosferatu
THE VAMPYRE PG
KLAUS KINSKI
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

Tech Hifi's St. Patrick's Sale.

Saturday 3/15 thru Saturday 3/22

$189

Our $189 St. Patrick's Sale system offers good sound at an amazingly low price! It has a TDC 1500 stereo receiver, with T-Lock tuning for drift-free FM. The loudspeakers are wide-range TDC 1's, and the automatic turntable is a Collaro 1251, completely-equipped with a base, dustcover, and a magnetic cartridge.

$339

This $339 St. Patrick's Day combination is easy on your ears – and your budget! It has a beautifully-engineered Sony STR-V1 receiver. The loudspeakers are Pioneer T-200's, which combine deep bass and high efficiency. The automatic turntable is a Garrard 630, complete with a Pickering cartridge.

$445

Clear, accurate sound – plus especially fine FM reception – are what you'll get from our $445 St. Patrick's Sale system. It has an exciting Vector Research 2500 stereo receiver, plus popular KLH Classic 1 loudspeakers (with handsome oak vinyl veneer enclosures), and a belt-driven Kenwood 850 programmable automatic turntable with a Pickering cartridge.

$545

This $545 system delivers amazing range and depth. And it's priced for St. Patrick's Day savings! You get a great-sounding Philips 7831 stereo receiver, rave-reviewed Ohm L 3-way loudspeakers (with genuine walnut veneer enclosures), and a precise Hitachi 324 belt-drive turntable with automatic shutoff and an Audio-Technica 90E cartridge.

$699

If you like your music loud and clean, check this specially-priced $699 St. Patrick's Day system! It has ultra-efficient Cerwin-Vega 1230 3-way loudspeakers (with massive 12-inch woofers), a high-performance SAE R3C stereo receiver, and a fully-automatic Toshiba 451 single-play turntable with a professional-quality Micro-Acoustics 282e cartridge.

GREAT CASSETTE DECK SPECIALS

Toshiba PCX10 Dolby* cassette deck with 3-position tape selector $139
Vector Research 300 cassette deck, metal tape, sendust head, fluorescent display $300 master charge

tech hifi
Quality components at the right price.
VISA*

15 East Pleasant St., Amherst 253-3100
Marshall's Plaza, Boston Rd. & Parker St., Springfield 782-5544
Stores also throughout Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Vermont, New York, New Jersey, Michigan and Ohio.

Collegian Classifieds

To place a Collegian Classified
•Come to Collegian Office CC 113
•8:45 to 3:45 Mon-Fri
•Classified deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day

Collegian Classified Rates
•15c per word
•Student rate 10c per word
•Cash in advance
•5 consecutive days 5 % discount
•Phone number FREE

ANOREXIA NERVOSA

Are you or have you ever been anorexic? A new support group is forming on campus. For more info call Lori 546-6181

AUDIO

 Steve Garfield ***
brings the latest in Pure Pop, Rock and New Wave (oldies too) to the airwaves every Friday from 9 am to 1 pm on the Friday Breakdown on WAMH, 89.3 FM stereo "The Pioneer Valleys Best Sound"

SONY one point stereo eletret condenser microphone excellent cond. $25 253-3225

Realistic Speakers excellent condition 40 watts—Realistic STA-21 receiver LAB 60 turntable BO 546-8919

AUTO FOR SALE

FIX YOUR OWN CAR. The Student Auto Workshop offers tools, space, and assistance. Tues, Wed, Thurs 3-9 pm, Fri 12-5, Sat 10-5. Level one CC garage. 545-0673

'73 Toyota Mark II Wagn 73000 mi excellent shape, yours for $1980 phone Kittye 549-5412

Car for Sale: 1970 Pontiac Lemans. Good condition. Runs well. Rebuilt engine. Only problem: transmission bad. $400 or best offer. Worth it! Call: 549-1661. Best betnights & mornings.

68 Dodge Van exlnt. cond. no rust, new engine $950 549-5975 Colleen

76 Camaro loaded with options, very good condition, new paint, call 549-6994 afternoons 2995 or BO

72 Ford Galaxie 75000 mi runs well $500 call Toshio 549-0506

1970 Volswagon Squareback Radial tires, good engine, 80,000 miles, some rust. $500 or BO call 665-2802

Toyota Landcruiser Parts & Alfa Parts call 648-9197 after 6:00 pm Bernardston

FOR RENT

One Bedroom in 2 bedroom Cliffside Apartment - Semi-furnished call 665-4602 evenings

Cape Cod Summer Rental 5 bdrms E. Dennis after 5 253-5017

FOR SALE

Diving Gear new US Divers Equip call Ted at 549-6488

For Sale used Parachutes. Great for ceiling, wall decorations, many colors $25.00 each. Drop by Parachute Club Office S.U. 309

Mattress brand new innerspring 65 dollars or best offer 253-7067

Fender Jazz Bass BO Peter 546-4449

Ski Equip. Ex. Cond.: Kneisel SSL Short Star Skis 160 cm, Geze Plate Bindings $85, Kneisel Midlength Skis 180 cm Geze Bind $100, Kneisel Jr. racingTeam 170 cm Geze Bind. plus Koflach boots sz 9 ladies $75 256-0680

Fender 12-string Guitar w/hard shell case $150 John 665-3679

FOUND

Found-Brown plastic rimmed glasses in Northeast quad. Call Jeff 6-3210

Ellen found suede gloves Amherst/bus Karin 549-6479

Found set of keys, four on ring, found in lot 22, call Bill 546-5072

Found folder in GTWR 219. Contains paper on Chemistry Research on DNA call Jeff 253-7208

HELP WANTED

Make $244/week this summer! Send your school address and phone with stamped self-addressed envelope. Box 213, Amherst MA 01002

Wanted: Chef/Manger, Baker, Cooks for State YMCA camps located in the Berkshires. Two well-equipped kitchens feeding 300 and 350. Competitive salary, plus room and board. Call 413 623-8991 or write: State YMCA Camps, Becket, MA 01223

One (1) Secretary/Receptionist position available at the Umass Student Legal Services Office. Duties Include: Legal typing, photocopying, reception, filing, assisting client referral, bookkeeping. ability to deal with people in self-directed work environment, Sensitivity to the diverse student community is a must. Typing 60 w.p.m. Accurate, experience preferred. 30 hours per week, part-time, $4.25 per hour. Bring resume to Personnel Office, Room 167, Whitmore Building, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA. Affirmative Action Employer

Counselors: Camp Waziyatah for Girls Harrison, Maine. Openings: Tennis (varsity or skilled players); Swimming (WSI), Boating, Canoeing, Sailing; Waterskiing; Gymnastics; Archery; Team Sports; Arts & Crafts; Theatre Director (musicals), Pianist; Pioneering & Trips; Secretary. Season: June 21 to August 21. Write (Enclose details as to your skills, etc.) Director, Box 153, Great Neck, N.Y. 11022. Telephone: 516-482-4323. Faculty inquiries invited re Dept. Head positions in above activities.

INSTRUCTION

Beginner Folk Guitar Lessons Call Mary 256-6719

Sentics Workshop—"The Miracle of the Possible" call Elizabeth Paton 413 549-3080

LOST

Lost Black Lab named Astro Always seen around campus. If anyone has any info please call Scott at anytime 549-6219. Wears blue collar, keep your eyes open friends.

Lost silver plated cross If found please call Peter at 546-4624 REWARD THANKS

Snake design silver bracelet lost. Great personal value. Call Margaret 256-6469

Lost gold digital watch please return reward! 6-1464

Long Black Coat: beaded trim/collar, cuffs. Sentimental value. Reward. 546-8287

REWARD: for leather knapsack taken from South College T.V. Studio. Contents needed desparately. Please return. No questions asked. Call 253-5182

Cross pen engraved SCOTT in SU 409 I think Heineken reward 549-6129

The guy who walked out of the Music Library with my blue parka Monday night return to CC Information Desk much appreciated

2 Notebooks taken from PHB mensroom near Auditorium at 11:10 Tues. Please return to 406E Brown or call 6-5732

PERSONALS

Pete Jacke call Macky 665-7923

To the girl who took my blue and yellow ski jacket on Friday night keep the jacket, but I desparately need my keys. Please leave them at the CC Info Desk

Slim Whitman!!! Yes, you too can sing along with that incomparable master of song with the all-new Slim Whitman Sing-A-Long-Throw-Up-Along Songbook!!! Includes "Una Paloma Blanca-Ah-Aieee" and "Red River Val-leee"!!! Call after midnight tonite 549-6244 keep trying

Laura F. Happy 2oth. Have a wild and crazy time in Florida. Love Rosebud

Sheil—You're always there. Thanks! See ya tomorrow. Maybe??? 1-4-3, your sis from where?

Colleen, I could watch you play not only all night but all day as well. Thank God for the women with the pink roses. David

To Bob I met at BKO who when asked to dance said simply "no"; "Hi" from the forward one

Racquel, Happy Belated Birthday, your first personal, Capebound, California, summer, Harleys much love Tommy

Paul E.—Congratualtions! Also, you throw good parties, when are we going to have our own? —MB

To whom it may not concern, JJG and JS are in business again! We settled the firendship contact all by ourselves. P.S. Thanks you guys--you know who you are. Love ex-roomies but still friends---The Two J's.

Brenda Ware Beane Happy Birthday! May you never lose your hat to the wind! Love ya! Kit and Kath

Roxane Happy Birthday, Janet

CD Happy 24th May little prince and tamer love your Fox and Unique Rose

To Supressed Women Who Need Help: Come forward and talk to me in complete confidentiality. Please contact me, J.D. at the Collegian Women's Dept. I want to help if I possibly can.

Judy: You're much too likeable! Happy Birthday! Love, Ed

SOL—Happy St. Patrick's Day to someone very special. Love you always. Din

Juloid: You can turn me on. . .to Jazz of course - Chew Hong

Kim Hills—Happy Birthday!! From the other 2 Muskateers

Happy Birthday Margie: Although we can't be with you we wish you the happiest 21st. This week! you apply goop we apply oil. Thinking of you. . .Love Janice & Lindsey

Dave C Happy Anniversary Love Joan PS see you Sunday

Hey Gumba! Happy Birthday! "Don't know why I havta have a birthday anyway. Ain't never gonna use it." Love, Ramona

Happy Birthday Wanda! Remember—for beauty is easy enough to win; but one isn't loved everyday. Love, your devoted "husband"

Power, Pride, Class. We'll do it our way. AAAAgain. Sunday 3/23/80

Kegsley: Happy 20th (finally) How was I supposed to know there was rat poison in the cake? Sorry Spike. Anyway, I hope this year is the best Lisa (HIT)

Fish-n-Chips Brez?

3rd floor V.M.N. Have a great vacation SW

To my sister Merrell—Happy Birthday! As always, I love you. Debbie

RESIDENT COUNSELORS

Unique program for handicapped children seeks counselors for ten week summer program, located in Westchester county N.Y. Contact: Director, The Children's Aide Society, Box 47, Chappaqua N.Y. 10514

RIDE WANTED

Ride wanted to Long Island or NYC Friday 3/14 before 12 noon. Call Rich at 546-8736 Will share driving and $$$

Ride wanted to Cleveland area for Spring Break will share driving and costs call Giles 323-4289

Ride needed to Boston Fri March 15 Please call Diane at 546-5417 will share expenses Thanks

RIDERS NEEDED

Leave N Amherst daily M-F 7:45 am to Holyoke Ctr return at 4:30 Fred 549-6358

To Ft Layderdale for Spring Break call Curtiss 545-0194 leave message at night call Deb 253-2018

To Topsfield Friday Call Sue 549-2664

ROOMATE WANTED

Roomate wanted for Townhouse So Amherst call 253-7905

Female share rm in Brit Man $70/mth Furnished 253-7363 Ellen

Northampton Coop seeks mature sixth non-vegetarian bus route 586-1415

Woman roommate wanted immediately own room in Puffton Village reasonable non-smoker 665-2804

SERVICES

Attorney Jason R. Rosenthal Legal Representation. Income Tax Preparation. Days 584-4285 Evenings 253-7617

TYPING Experiencec typist, reasonable rates 256-6360

TO SUBLET

Summer Sublet/Fall option 1 bedroom Cliffside Apt. Sunderland $192 includes utilities on bus route 665-7966

To sublet—2 bedroom apt. furnished, on bus route, pool, tennis, all utilities incl. Avail. June-Aug $200 665-4839

2 bedroom apt Colonial Village on bus rte starting June 1 through August call Lisa or Robin 253-3740 evenings

Puffton Village 2 bedroom 2 bath air conditioned pool tennis bus route 210 mo 549-4797 available June 1-August 31

1-4 Bdrms in 4 bdrm apt June-Aug w/option Lori 256-8233

WANTED

Fast immediate cash for gold-school rings-diamonds- silver Jeff anytime 527-7078 586-0180

WANTED TO RENT

UMass students looking to rent house for fall 80 access to bus route necesary contact Cindy 253-7132 or Carolyn 546-5060

THE AMHERST DELICATESSEN
THI AMHERST DELICATESSEN
FRI. & SAT.
9 A.M.-10 P.M.
SUNDAY 9 A.M.- 6 P.M.
Serving Sandwiches, Bagels & Lox, Quality Cold Cuts & New York Cheesecake
The Carriage Shops, Amherst
549-6314

家酒園南湖
Hunan Garden Restaurant

MANDARIN SZECHUEN CUISINE
"The Best Chinese Food"
Luncheon Specials Dinner Specials
Take-Out Service Full Cocktail Menu
Sun.-Thurs. 11:30 a.m.-10:00 p.m.
Fri. & Sat. 11:30 a.m.-11:00 p.m.
10 Belchertown Rd., at Route 9, Amherst
256-0251 next to: Poor Richard's 256-0252

Newsense — 24x Kicker The Collegian will begin accepting new intern applicants beginning March 25, at 5 p.m. in Campus Center 113.

Nuke the Whale by Danny Guidera

4 by Frank Emery

Bean by Kevin X. McNamara

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

Crossword

UNITED Feature Syndicate
Thursday's Puzzle Solved

ACROSS
1 So. American rodent
5 Vise
10 Chums
14 Nipa palm
15 The —, So. Holland
16 Oriental nurse
17 Splendor
18 Exercise
19 Taciturn
20 Current unit
22 Pro —
24 Comprehend
25 Flower
27 Reading desk
29 Shilly- —
32 Expire
33 54, to Nero
34 Fruit
36 Valleys
40 Barren
42 Supply again
44 Mellow
45 Bike part
47 Bare
49 Sawbuck
50 Scepter
52 Notched
54 Electrical instrument
58 Tiny
59 Constellation
60 Stride
62 Be imminent
65 Trampled
67 Nautical order
69 Chinese port
70 Indian city
71 Bane
72 Yield
73 Grass
74 Warms
75 Asses: Fr.

DOWN
1 Mama's mate
2 Kind of bomb
3 Presidents' retreat: 2 words
4 Supplicate
5 Shoddier: Slang
6 Slack
7 Ripener
8 Wall decor
9 Stroked
10 Card
11 Entertain
12 Subsequently
13 Luster
21 Watercourse
23 Tart
26 Asian land
28 Rip
29 Strike
30 Charter
31 Settees
35 U.S. missiles
37 Alcott novel: 2 words
38 Sword
39 Remit
41 Venture
43 Wood eaters
46 Plenty
48 Small drink
51 Unhitch
53 Wool source
54 Acolyte's milieu
55 Join
56 Poet Thomas —
57 Stage show
61 Turkish coin
63 Swelling
64 Stains
66 Parent
68 Super jet

DC Menu

Lunch
Torpedo Grinder
Tuna Noodle Casserole

Dinner
Veal Cutlet/Tomato Sauce
Baked Haddock with Lemon Slice

Basics Lunch
Flat Bread Sandwich
Tuna Noodle Casserole

Basics Dinner
Polynesian Vegetables
Baked Haddock with Lemon Slice

Earthfoods
Curry rice w/apples, raisins
Baked potatoes
Sliced acorn squash
Creme of carrot soup
Rice bulghar
Green salad
Bran bread

Happy Hour at
Barselotti's
Every Friday from 3-6
Draft Beer 50c
Most Bottled Beer 75c
Pitchers of
Old Milwaukee $2.00
Most Drinks 75c
25c Drafts with a Barse's Mug
Free Whole Wheat Pizza
Free Peanuts
2 T.V.'s
Barselotti's
Downtown Amherst

It is not too late to spend next year in Denmark, Finland, Norway or Sweden
• live and study in a small, residential school among Scandinavians
• become fluent in a new language
• discover another way of life and gain new perspective on yourself
For further information about our 1980-81 program (cost, departure, college credit, etc.) contact:
SCANDINAVIAN SEMINAR
Scandinavian Seminar - Dept. 33
100 E. 85th St., New York, N.Y. 10028
(212) 734-8340

ENGINEERS
Federal government agencies are involved in some of the most important technological work being done today... in energy fields, communications, transportation, consumer protection, exploring inner and outer space, and the environment.
Some of the jobs are unique, with projects and facilities found nowhere else. Salaries are good, the work is interesting and there are excellent opportunities for advancement.
Our nationwide network can get your name referred to agencies in every part of the country.
For information about best opportunities by specialty and location, send a coupon or your resume to Engineer Recruitment, Room 6A11
United States of America
Office of Personnel Management
Washington, D.C. 20415
An Equal Opportunity Employer
Name
Address
City State Zip
Engineering Specialty Degree Level
Date Grad Yr Grad
Geographic Preference
Tel. No.

LONDON SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS

STUDY THE SOCIAL SCIENCES IN LONDON

The London School of Economics and Political Science offers junior year study, postgraduate diplomas, one-year Master's degrees and research opportunities in the heart of London in a wide range of social sciences. Subjects include Accounting and Finance, Actuarial Science, Anthropology, Business Studies, Econometrics, Economics, Economic History, Geography, Government, Industrial Relations, International History, International Relations, Law, Management Science, Operational Research, Philosophy, Politics, Social Administration, Social Work, Sociology, Social Psychology and Statistical and Mathematical Sciences.

Fees £2000 (approx. $4500) a year. Limited financial assistance available.

Application blanks from:
Pro-Director, L.S.E., Houghton Street, London WC2A 2AE, England.
Please state whether junior year or postgraduate.

ICELANDAIR TO EUROPE ON A BIG BIRD AND A LOW FARE

$499 Roundtrip from New York to Luxembourg

$533 Roundtrip from Chicago to Luxembourg

No restrictions

Confirmed reservations • free wine with dinner, cognac after • no restrictions on stays to 1 yr. or advance purchase. Prices valid from U.S. from March 10 thru May 14, 1980. All schedules and prices subject to change and government approval. Purchase tickets in the U.S.

See your travel agent or write Dept. #CN
Icelandair P.O. Box 105,
West Hempstead, NY 11552.
Call in NYC, 757-8585; elsewhere, call 800-555-1212 for the toll-free number in your area.
Please send me: ☐ An Icelandair flight timetable.
☐ Your European Vacations brochure.

Name
Address
City
State Zip

ICELANDAIR
Still your best value to Europe

After Vacation, Watch for these Groups at

BLUE WALL

Campus Center
UMass

Van Duren

The Mundanes

Robin Lane
and the Chartbusters

The Stompers

The Neighborhoods

TOC sticker and valid ID required to purchase alcohol

★ IRA, music, St. Pat's Day

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

pains and sorrow of the lyrics.

I was won over, and every weekend it was at least one night at the Dubliner, an evening full of sing-alongs as well as tearjerking melodies.

One night during a break, Reilly was approached and asked about Northern Ireland and the IRA. He shook his head and condemned the terrorist attacks and the violence wrought by the British troops and provos alike. He also said he was a member of the older wing of the IRA, and like any good Irishman, he would like to see one Ireland.

Every year at UMass—especially in the spring when the weather is warm—you can see student activists staging a march, a rally or occupation to protest whatever cruel acts of the world are being reported in the media. This year we've already seen draft protests, and I'm sure Afghanistan and Iran will become issues again.

But I don't think you'll see anyone marching against Britist imperialism in Ireland, even though Northern Ireland is one of the oldest colonies in existance.

And I don't think you'd see any anti-British marches anywhere else in the country either. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., and New York Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan and Gov. Hugh Carey once criticized British involvement in Northern Ireland. The British response? Quit appeasing your Irish American consituency and mind your own business.

When British journalist William Shawcross, author of Sideshow, the book that exposes American atrocities in Cambodia during the Vietnam War, was asked this week if any of his colleagues in England have exposed or will expose similar British acts in Northern Ireland, he said no. Such government policies are not open for public scrutiny, and Conservatives in Parliament have even considered jailing sources and journalists responsible for reporting such acts detailed in government documents.

The Irish, like the Jews and the Blacks, have been kicked around in their own country and oppressed for thousands of years. The atrocities practiced by English colonists against Native Americans were first tried ot by British leaders like Cromwell against the Irish.

Yet, for some unknown reason, there has never been a strong national or worldwide movement for Irish freedom. How many United Nation resolutions are there condemning the British government for its action in Northern Ireland?

This week and next, everyone will be Irish for St. Patrick's Day. "Kiss me, I'm Irish" buttons will adorn many lapels and every face will be smiling and eyes twinkling. And I will drink, smile and sing as much as anyone else, as I did last year at the Dubliner.

In Ulster, the trouble continues. Northern Ireland violence rarely makes the front page because it's old news—centuries old indeed—and Iran and Afghanistan are problems that affect us more. We may be drafted and we continually pay more for gasoline and heating oil, if there's any available.

But as long as children are gunned down and families decimated by British soldiers retaliating for an ambush earlier in the day, and as long as Irish families are divided and separated by imprisonment without a fair trial, Americans—you and I—will be guilty of these atrocities by virtue of indifference.

And one day of drinking Stout and singing Irish tunes every March won't vindicate us.

The healthful alternative. All natural. No caffeine.

The Celestial feeling is a mellow, relaxed feeling that says no caffeine and all natural. A welcome relief from that old tea and coffee grind. A refreshingly alive feeling that is so downright unique you'll want to share it with the whole family or the whole office. Celestial Seasonings® Herb Teas. Three exciting flavors and all you add is a little water and a little love.

15¢ COUPON — STORE — CELESTIAL SEASONINGS HERB TEAS — COUPON 15¢

STOREKEEPER: As our agent, you may accept this coupon from retail customers on the purchase of any box of Celestial Seasonings tea. We will pay you the face value plus 5¢ handling for each coupon redeemed. Any other use may constitute FRAUD. Proof of consumer purchases must be submitted upon request. This coupon is void if taxed.

Licensed, restricted or wherever prohibited by law. Customer must pay any sales tax. Good only in USA, its territories and Canada. Redeemable at health food and grocery stores everywhere. Cash value 1/20 of 1¢. Send to Celestial Seasonings, PO. Box 1049, Clinton, Iowa 52734. OFFER LIMITED TO ONE COUPON PER PACKAGE. Expires 2/27/81.

70734 100202

AMERICAN MULTI CINEMA
TIMES SHOWN FOR TODAY ONLY
ADULTS $2.75 STUDENTS & SR. CITIZENS WITH AMC CARD $2.25 TWI-LITE SHOW $1.50
SPECIAL ENGAGEMENTS EXCLUDED TWI-LITE SHOW – LIMITED TO SEATING

HAMPSHIRE 4 584-7550 HAMPSHIRE MALL, ON CAFE SQ. RT. 9 HADLEY, MASS

DUSTIN HOFFMAN
Kramer vs. Kramer
9 Academy Award Nominations
Fri.-Sat. (4:45 @ $1.50) 7:30-9:45
Sun.-Thur. (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
Matinee (Sat., Sun.) 2:15
PG

AUDIENCES WILL SIMPLY CHERISH
5 Academy Award Nominations
BREAKING AWAY
Fri.-Sat. (5:00 @ $1.50) 7:30-9:45
Sun.-Thurs. (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:15
Matinee (Sat., Sun.) 2:00
PG

Norma Rae
SALLY FIELD
4 Academy Award Nominations
Fri.-Sat. (4:45 @ $1.50) and 8:00-10:15
Sun.-Thurs. (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:15
PG Matinee (Sat., Sun.) 2:00

THE ROCKY HORROR PICTURE SHOW
R
also
X The Story of O
Shown Fri. and Sat. at Midnight - $2.50

Chuck Norris
Jennifer O'Neill
A FORCE OF ONE
Fri.-Sat. (5:15 @ $1.50) and 7:45-9:55
Sun.-Thurs. (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:30
PG Matinee (Sat., Sun.) 2:15

MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9 HADLEY, MASS

ROY SCHEIDER
ALL THAT JAZZ
9 Academy Award Nominations
Fri.-Sat. (4:45 @ $1.50) 7:30-9:55
Sun.-Thurs. (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
R Matinee (Sat., Sun.) 2:00

James Caan
Marsha Mason
Chapter Two
Academy Nomination for Best Actress
Fri.-Sat. (4:45 @ $1.50) 7:30-9:55
Sun.-Thurs. (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
Matinee (Sat., Sun.) 2:00
PG

JOHN RITTER
HERO AT LARGE
Fri.-Sat. (5:00 @ $1.50) and 7:45-10:15
Sun.-Thurs. (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
Matinee (Sat., Sun.) 2:15
PG

Courage of Lassie
Sat. and Sun. at 2:15
all seats $1.50
G

GEORGE SEGAL
THE LAST MARRIED COUPLE IN AMERICA
Fri.-Sat. (5:00 @ $1.50) and 7:45-10:15
Sun.-Thurs. (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
R

Sports notices

SPRING RECESS FACILITY SCHEDULE—MAR. 15-23

NOPE: March 15-23: Basketball/volley, courts closed. NOPE POOL—Handicapped Swim: 9 am-10 am Mar. 17-21.
BOYDEN: March 17-21: Basketball Cts/Wt. Rm. 12 pm-7:30 pm. Squash Cts/Universal 7:30 am-7:30 pm. Sat. March 15 & 22: Basketball Cts., Weight Room, Squash Courts: 10 am-5:30 pm. Sun. March 16 & 23: Basketball Cts, Weight Room, Squash Courts: 12 pm-7:30 pm.

BOYDEN POOL: Sat. & Sun., March 15 and 16—closed. Mon, March 17-Friday, March 21: 11 am-3 pm. Saturday. March 22: 12 pm-5:30 pm. Sunday, March 23: 12 pm-7:30 pm.

HICKS: March 15-23—Pool closed. Hicks Track: March 17-21, 8 am-4:30 pm.

BOYDEN BOWLING LANES: Sat. & Sun. March 15 & 16, 22 & 23: Closed. Mon., March 17-Fri., March 21: 12 pm-4 pm.
Intramural Softball & Soccer—late entries are being accepted—Get them in as soon as possible.

Schedules for Intramural Soccer and Softball for those teams that met the deadline (Mar. 3rd) are ready to be picked up. Please do so before Spring Recess as games begin March 24th, the first day back.

Intramural Sports Photographs from this semester and last are available—contact Intramural Office, Rm. 215, Boyden 545-2693—Ask for Gene.

Johnson: Capt. to coach

By BOB MITCHELL
Collegian Staff

After becoming involved with gymnastics during his high school years, he slowly spun, swung, vaulted, and tumbled his way to become coach of the UMass men's gymnastics team.

Roy Johnson was introduced to the sport of gymnastics during his freshman year at Marblehead High School.

"I was going to the local YMCA for a swimming class and saw that a gymnastics class was starting," he said, slouching back into his padded office chair. "I went to the first class and found I enjoyed it; it built from there."

Johnson, the slim, yet muscularly built coach, competed mainly in AAU and YMCA meets during his high school gymnastics career. He trained hard however, and made the UMass squad as a freshman in 1972.

He soon blossomed into a fine all around performer for the Minutemen and was elected team captain in both his junior and senior years. Johnson graduated in 1976 with a BS in zoology but chose not to go into the field.

"I just could not picture myself working in some lab," he said, hesitating slightly. "I like working with people, that is why I like working in gymnastics schools in New York State.

"I worked at Hudson Valley and Cape Anne for one year each," he recalled. "Then I taught briefly at Boston University before I came back here(UMass)."

Johnson decided to return to his alma mater to work for a masters degree in Sports Management. He took over as coach of the UMass gymmen that same fall(1978). He has coached the squad to two consecutive winning seasons and will return next fall as the Minutemen mentor.

When he gets a break from his hectic gymnastics schedule he heads for the slopes. Johnson enjoys downhill skiing almost as much as coaching. He also enjoys soccer as both a participant and a spectator.

Johnson, who is single and resides in Amherst, said he would have to "re-assess his goals" after next season before deciding on his future. "I am happy right now, but I will have to sit down and think if I am getting enough out of it," he said.

Johnson, an opinionated individual, said the UMass Athletic department is "doing as good a job as it can with the resources it has.

"It will be important for the various programs to go out and raise funds for themselves," he said from behind his well-groomed sand-colored moustache.

The UMass coach said he has "mixed feelings" about the Olympic Boycott. "You cannot separate sports and politics; nobody else in the world does, so we (the US) cannot," he said.

Former Boston Bruin John Bucyk waves to the Boston Garden crowd last night during ceremonies retiring his number nine. (AP Laserphoto)

Gymnasts seeded third

By SHARON PANNOZZO
Collegian Staff

The women's gymnastics team, after a very successful 10-2 season, will travel to Pennsylvania next week for the Eastern Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women meet to be held at Penn State University March 21-22. The team will have to be at its best if it hopes to qualify for the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women national meet held in Louisiana in April.

Eight teams compete in the EAIAW's. The seedings for the participants are as follows: 1). Penn State University; 2). West Virginia University; 3). UMass; 4). University of New Hampshire; 5). University of Pittsburgh; 6). Yale; 7). Cornell; 8). Rutgers.

UMass and the other top four seeded squads will compete in the final rotation. March 21 the team and the all-around competition will take place. The following day the top ten performers in the all-around will compete in the individual finals.

The Minutewomen will be facing some high-powered competition in Penn State and West Virginia. Penn State has been consistently scoring above 140.00. In its last meet they scored a phenomenal 143.00. West Virginia also has a seasonal average above 136.00. Therefore, the gymwomen must aim for their highest team score of the season, surpassing their previous high of 135.50, if they are to rival these top-flight squads.

Competing in the all-around for the gymwomen will be Liz Marino, Lisa Martin, and Karen Clemente. Coach Virginia Evans is till not sure who the fourth all-around will be, but it will probably be either Karen Ginsberg or Chris Wilson. Specialists Heidi Milender, Amy Burke, and co-captains Debbie Smith and Laurie Knapp will also be making the trip. There is also a remote possibility that beam specialist Amy Riuli, who has been out of action due to an aggravated shoulder injury, may also compete.

The gymwomen will try to better last year's 4th place finish in this meet. In 1979 EAIAW action, Penn State finished first, followed by Clarion State, and the University of Pittsburgh.

Although UMass has only an outside chance of winning, its primary goal is to score high enough to be considered as one of the seven at-large s[illegible] in the country. These seven at-large qualifiers, as well as, the victors of the nine regional meets, will compete in the nationals.

Sports

Bill Morrison speaks candidly on his last season

By FRANK PAPSADORE
Collegian Staff

Senior co-captain Bill Morrison of the UMass basketball team did not make the post-season trip to the Eastern Eight Tournament. He feels he had good reason not to play in what would have been his final appearance in a UMass uniform.

Morrison received very limited playing time vs. George Washington University on "Senior Night" at the Cage. He feels that he was treated "unfair" by head coach Ray Wilson.

"I didn't deserve the treatment I received all season," Morrison said, "Ray (Wilson) kept telling me all year to hang on when I felt like quitting, and in the end, he let me down."

Morrison and Wilson get along fine off the basketball court, but have conflicting attitudes and ideas on the court.

"We needed to run more," Morrison commented, "and all Ray wanted to do was play control. There were lots of times all season where I would get benched five or 10 minutes for being too 'hyper'. He didn't give us a chance to really get into the game.

"It was the same in practice," Morrison continued. "We never did any real running. That's probably why we could go out and play a good first half, and just slow down and die in the second half. Wilson stifled 'fast' ball players like Ty Nedd, for example."

Morrison was a member of UMass' last successful basketball team during the 1977-78 season. Performers like Alex Eldridge, Mike Pyatt and Mark Haymore excited fans with their charisma and fast-paced play.

"Things have really changed since then," Morrison aded. "First of all, it's changed because we're not winning now. Back then, we were a contender with 10 or 11 Division One starters.Now, we have guys that would have only backed them up, with a few exceptions. UMass has to start getting those kind of players back to the Cage."

UMass has a black head coach. Morrison feels that is unimportant in recruiting players.

"Ray is a little helpful off the court talking about school and stuff," Morrison said, "but it's not necessarily going to help in recruiting new talent. In some places it might work, but in general, no. But white or black coach, the team needs more discipline."

Morrison commented tnat assistant coach Ray Ricketts deserves a great deal of credit for holding the team together and for helping the players develop their talent.

"Ricketts was a freshman coach when I was a freshman player," Morrison said. "We both came up together. He's always given me and the team alot of help."

Ricketts favors the "running practices" and disciplined workouts that Morrison spoke of.

"When Ricketts took over practice while Wilson was gone," Morrison added, "we all had a far better workout. We'd do a lot of running and a lot more offensive work. If we had done that all season, I think we'd have had a better team."

Morrison said that he was sad, but not too sad about the way his UMass basketball career ended. He says that now, though, he has the time he never had before to relax after classes and on weekends. He also has time to spend with his 19 month-old son and to concentrate on his studies of education and juvenile justice. Morrison is still happy he chose UMass despite what he termed his "rollercoaster" basketball career, but wishes he got the fair shake he feels he deserved.

Brad Fark of the Bruins scrambles for the puck with two Red Wings in last night's 4-2 Boston win. (AP Laserphoto)

Sox vote own 'boycott'

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) – The Boston Red Sox became the eighth major league team Thursday to authorize a strike if the Players Association cannot reach agreement with club owners.

Marvin Miller, the association's executive director, said after a one-hour meeting behind closed doors that the Red Sox had voted unanimously, or 40-0, to give the executive board authority to call a strike on or after April 1.

Miller said the overall vote now is 216-1 with one player on the Kansas City Royals the lone dissenter "because of his own principles."

Miller said that although there "still are a lot of issues in dispute," negotiators for both sides will meet again next Monday and Tuesday in Ft. Lauderdale. Other meetings are scheduled in Arizona later this month before the association's executive board convenes in Dallas April 1.

"I hate to be a pessimist," Miller said of the owners' demands for a salary structure for players the first six years and a change in the free agency rule, "but if the proposals remain the same I don't see any chance of an agreement."

"They want to cut the heart out of free agency, and the salary structure is something that I've never seen in any negotiations before," the veteran labor leader said.

Under the owners' proposals, maximum salaries would be fixed for players for six years and a team signing a player as a free agent would be able to freeze just 16 players and the club losing the free agent would have its pick after that as compensation.

One of the players' chief demands is to lower the time from six years to four when a player could enter the free agency market.

Meanwhile, The United States, Britain and Australia nave invited two dozen nations protesting Soviet intervention in Afghanistan to discuss alternative games to the Moscow Olympics at a meeting next Monday, it was learned Thursday.

Holland and Kenya have agreed to attend so far, with replies from other countries still coming in.

Organized at ministerial level, the conference will be held in Geneva, the sources told The Associated Press. A Geneva state protocol spokesman confirmed it would be held there.

Western Europe, African and Arab governments which don't want to send athletes to Moscow to protest the Soviet thrust into Afghanistan have been invited, British informants said.

The U.S. State Department said two dozen countries were asked to attend, but officials declined to name them.

The International Olympic Committee declined official comment. But a spokesman said the "vast majority" of Olympic committees are in favor of supporting the Moscow Games.

Strong aims toward Olympics

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a two part story on Olympic hopeful Judy Strong.

By MIKE ESTRADA
Collegian Staff

When speaking in terms of the Olympic team, Judy Strong's biggest asset is her youth. In field hockey, a game where speed and agility are of utmost importance, Strong has yet to peak. If she doesn't make the 1980 team she will go for 1984, when the Olympics themselves might be a more positive thing.

"Once you're 25, they start looking back towards the 19-year-olds so they can build the program back up again. Some of the people on the team now could play forever, they are just that way. I was talking with Pam (UMass coach Pam Hixon, a member of the U.S. team for ten years) and she said a person probably won't be able to go more than five years. Mentally it is just too much. Your body has got to be worn out. I can see why, I'm tired now."

The last few weeks have been long ones for Strong. After she was picked following the Virginia tryouts, Strong started running and lifting weights. Since the weekend trips to Philadelphia, she has been doing anything but resting. She works on her stick work when Hixon runs scrimages in NOPL Wednesday nights. She is also on the lacrosse team which holds daily practice.

"I pity my roommates. When its time to leave on Friday I say I don't want to go just because I'm so tired. But once I get down there, I enjoy myself, I have a good time, I just can't believe I'm doing this."

Vonnie Gros (pronounced 'grow') has only been the full-time coach of the U.S. field hockey team since its Olympic recognition two years ago. Prior to that, she was the coach of West Chester State College in Pennsylvania, consecutive national champions from 1975-78. Its last championship was when the Minutewomen captured their first fourth place finish at Ellensburg, Washington.

"She is one smart lady," Strong said. "She knows more about field hockey than anyone I've ever known. She has a reason for everything she does."

One weekend, Gros asked the team to return home early from lunch so the players could take a written exam. Amidst the groans of athletes, Gros handed out sheets of paper which asked players to catalogue their mates according to who was best and worst at certain aspects of the game. Which goalies were good on penalty corners and what were their weeknesses? It all related to lectures she had given weekends before.

Once, Strong said, Gros asked the players to diagram every goal of a high-scoring indoor game when not in the game themselves. When several players, including Strong, found the task too difficult, Gros pointed out that that knowledge is practically given when the player is in the game physically and mentally.

"You can't second-guess her. Some kids, just for the fun of it, sit and try to think of what she's going to do. She'll do the total opposite."

Strong is one of only three full time students still on the team. Jan Snyder from Penn State and Jan Collarusso from Yale are the only others. All are shooting for a dream. But Strong looks at the dream realistically. She has already started to evaluate the experience in terms of what it will mean if she gets cut this weekend.

"I've never learned so much in my life," she said. "I'm still learning stuff each weekend. I can't think if there is anything else I can learn, but somehow I seem to."

"I never thought I had a chance for the 80 Olympics. But I did so well last summer, When I got picked I said even if I don't make it I've got a chance to play with kids who are going to play in the '80 Olympics."

"That's why it would be a big disappointment if they don't go. That will be it for some of these kids. They won't be back because they'll never last till '84."

"Carter really can't tell us not to go, he can only advise us. But if it comes to a team vote, the team really wants to and will go. If I made the team or even if I didn't I'd really like to go."

"I would say 12 positions are secure; the starting 11 and the back-up goalie. That leaves four people left." This weekend is the decision.

"When we went to Virginia, they sent out letters. I was at home when I received mine. I made it. But I didn't know from whom I made it. (Laura O'Neil, another UMass athlete was cut after Virginia.) I didn't have to see anyone's hard feelings. I like it that way personally. If I make it (this Sunday) or anyone else makes it who didn't go to the Olympic qualifications (for world teams) at Vancouver, we could be replacing one of the kids that did go and that could be a lot of hard feelings."

So as Judy Strong takes off for the last weekend of tryouts at Philadelphia, she will return an Olympic athlete or just one of the best 22 field hockey players in the United States. Either way, its not too bad.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY

Collegian

VOLUME CIX, ISSUE 105 Student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst Monday, March 24, 1980

30,000 protest draft in D.C. rally

By DEBBIE WALLACE
Collegian Staff

WASHINGTON – "No Registration, No Draft, No War."

That was the prevailing chant here Saturday, as 30,000 demonstrated on the Capitol in protest of President Carter's draft registration proposal. Among the student, political, religious, women's and veteran's groups were 49 UMass students who belong to Students Against the Draft, a newly formed organization that has sponsored various anti-draft forums in Amherst.

The "No Registration, No Draft, No War" theme was chanted and visible on signs, banners and buttons here in 35-mile-an-hour winds. Reminiscent of the 1960's anti-war movement, 30 speakers addressed the throng, expressing a wide range of political views, but agreeing registrations and the draft are "unnecessary."

David Harris, a leader in the draft resistance two decades ago, said: "The Carter Doctrine pledged to treat territory 11,000 miles from home as our own. He called for us to fight for a set of people who don't want defend their country." Harris said Carter has a choice, "to shed blood or save gasoline. And he has chosen to shed blood."

But Bella Abzug, president of Women USA, former congresswoman and former chairperson of Carter's Commission on Women, expressed herself somewhat differently, saying there is a "phoney war hysteria. And this time they have a new gimmick: to send young women as well as young men." Abzug said instead of talking about the Persian Gulf, Carter would do better "if he came out to listen to you and save this country. Men and women have a right not to give their lives for Exxon profits."

CHARMICHAEL

Meanwhile, Carter conferred over the weekend with the National Security Council at Camp David, Md., on the Iranian crisis.

Abzug said women are just as patriotic as men but that "We are not going to allow ourselves to be pushed into a draft," adding that Carter "should stop hiding behind executive privilege and face the real question: The future of the American hostages should not be linked to the Shah's spleen." (Meanwhile, The Associated Press reported that the deposed shah, Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, yesterday was preparing to leave Panama, where he has been in exile since Dec. 15. See story, page 2.)

Paul Shoul, a member of UMass' SAD, said "The idea behind attending the march is to educate and spur people to increase involvement."

Some schools, such as George Washington University, has as many as 500 students at the rally. GWU is situated in the Georgetown section of this city of 700,000, in its Northwest sector.

Students interviewed from New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Vermont and California agreed they are strongly "anti-militaristic." Others, from schools in the Midwest and West Coast that did not send large contingencies to the rally, said they were concerned about registration and the draft as well.

The demonstration was organized by the Mobilization Against the Draft, a group formed one month ago – as a result of Carter's State of the Union address in January, in which he advocated registration. Steve Honeyman, a MAD organizer, said "The rally will have an impact. There will be a snowball effect encouraging others who are reached by anti-draft protesters.

ABZUG

Three of 30,000 people protesting registration and the draft in Washington, D.C. Saturday carry a sign expressing their sentiments. About 50 UMass students participated in the march. (Photo by Paul Shoul)

Abzug to lobby against draft

By DEBBIE WALLACE
Collegian Staff

WASHINGTON – At the anti-draft rally here Bella Abzug hastily spoke to reporters after her Capitol speech, saying she is planning to lobby Congress against the draft.

"I will continue stirring up the anti-draft movement young people have started. It is important to call attention to the potential of nuclear war." She believes the government will respond to the protest. "Carter and other legislators will always hide – but they get reports," she said.

'In the 60's the emphasis was on mobilization. In the 80's we need organization.'

– Charmichael

In her speech at the Capitol, Abzug said, "This is a bad and confusing time for Americans, but the American young people stopped the war in Vietnam, got rid of Nixon and they can send a message to Carter. The rally is a symbolic letter that we don't want their draft, are not going to accept budget cuts, and we're not going to send out sons and daughters to the Persian Gulf to fight for oil. Your presence here today can end registration."

Abzug opposed Carter's message to women that they should support draft legislation if they want equal rights. She said, "We refuse to fall into that trap. Speaking of equal rights, since Carter came into the White House not one additional state has ratified ERA. He has to get his cronies to ratify." She added a one-sex draft is "unconstitutional" and that "lawsuits will follow if women are barred from the draft. But our obligation is to make sure no one is registered."

Former chairperson of Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee and leader in the Black Power movement, Stokley Charmichael said in an interview, "In the '60s, the emphasis was on mobilization. In the 80s, we need organization." He said, "We need to build organizations that oppose the draft in order to make a victory."

'This is a bad and confusing time for Americans.'

– Abzug

"The capitalistic system is a racist system using minorities on the front lines," he said. "This anti-draft movement will expand; there is no question. The only threat to the American people is the threat of capitalism. In order to make a victory we need to send the anti-draft message to Congress. They want to get reelected so they will listen."

Women discuss ecology

By TINKER READY
Special to the Collegian

Over 500 women from all over New England and New York Converged on the UMass Campus this weekend for "Women and life on Earth: A Conference on Eco-Feminism in the 80's."

The two and a half day event began Friday afternoon with introductory remarks from local and regional conference organizers, an open microphone speak-out for all conference participants and the opening of a collaborative art exhibition in the Student Union and Herter Galleries.

Many of the first women speakers expressed enthusiasm for the creation of ongoing networks among women involved in ecological issues.

After an early morning exercise/yoga session and breakfast, Saturday events began with a panel discussion on "Women and Life on Earth: The Issues." Panelists included representatives from Women of the New York Mohawk Nation, the Love Canal Homeowners Association and The Institute for Defense and Disarmament Studies. Participants then broke up into workshops that covered such diverse topics as Women and the Arms Race, the Politics of Diet and Confronting Racism. Workshop facilitators included women from a wide range of fields and organizations all across the Northeast.

The afternoon workshops and panel discussion was on the connections between feminism and ecology and the development of an eco-feminist theory. Saturday evening cultural/events featured poetry readings, dance and theatre performances and music.

Yesterday's events focused on action and strategy for the various issues that were discussed on Saturday. Workshops covered topics such as the media, the anti-nuclear movement, women's health and food co-ops. Women in energy technology workshop made a solar window box heat grabber.

The closing panel, "Women and Ecology: Taking Action," was moderated by Anna Gyorgy, one of the conference organizers and the author of No Nukes: Everyone's Guide to Nuclear Power. Panelists included representatives from such organizations as the New England Alliance of Anti-Nuke Women, New York City Community School District #3 and the Akwesasne Nation who discussed different problems facing organizers. The conference ended with an open microphone, during which women made comments and criticisms about the weekend.

Vegetarian meals were prepared for the participants by a collaborative effort between the Common Womon Club of Northampton and Earthfoods and childcare was provided.

Spring brings sailboats to the waters of the Upper Mystic Lakes, Winchester. (Staff photo by Susanna Peters)

DIGEST

The deposed shah of Iran, accompanied by his wife, bows his head as he leaves his Contadora Island retreat enroute to Egypt yesterday. (AP Laserphoto)

Charge card charges

BOSTON (AP) — State Banking Commissioner Gerald T. Mulligan says he thinks the Legislature probably will go along with imposing membership fees on bank credit card accounts like Mastercharge and Visa.

"If I'm going to handicap Beacon Hill, and that is always a dangerous undertaking, I would say there was going to be a limit, and that that limit will be $10," said Mulligan, who spoke Friday at a state banking seminar concerning fast-changing federal and state regulations.

Hub closings disputed

BOSTON (AP) — An order from U.S. District Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr. that would close 12 city elementary schools in June because of declining enrollment has upset teachers and administrators, predictable ones affected by the cuts.

Garrity's ruling came late Friday, and Boston School Superintendent Robert C. Wook, former UMass President, plans to issue the school department's first public statement on the decision today.

Storm causes damage

(AP) — More than 800 families in a five-county area in eastern New York spent Sunday cleaning up the damage caused by a storm that dumped up to 10 inches of rain and then 10 inches of snow Friday night and Saturday.

The storm also caused damage in Connecticut and western Massachusetts.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (US 333 220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding January, June, July, and August, for $15 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003. Second class postage paid at Amherst, Mass. Postmaster: Send address changes to Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Ma 01003.

Shah flees to Egypt

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — The deposed shah of Iran left Panama yesterday aboard a specially charterd plane bound for Cairo, Egypt, a Panamanian air force officer said.

Robert A. Powers, spokesman at the U.S. Embassy here said, "We understand that the shah has departed Panama for Cairo, Egypt, accepting the long-standing invitation of President Anwar Sadat." However, spokesman for Sadat denied the shah would go there.

Iran's revolutionary regime, which was seeking to extradite the shah from Panama, has said that his departure from that country would delay the release of the American hostages in Tehran.

The Panamanian air force officer, who asked to remain unidentified, said White House adviser Hamilton Jordan also left Panama yesterday, aboard a U.S. government jet. Jordan had arrived here Friday.

Sources in Washington and Panama City said Saturday that Jordan was in Panama trying to arrange for American surgeons to travel to Panama and remove the shah's inflamed and possibly cancerous spleen.

The Panamanian officer said the shah was aboard a DC-8 jet chartered from the Everglades Co.

Channel 2, a private television station here, reported that the shah had taken off from Panama City's Tocumen Airport aboard a chartered jet. A spokesman for the station said he could not disclose the sources for security reasons, but that he understood the plane would refuel "somewhere in Portuguese territory."

At midday, Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, 61 and his wife Farah, flew on a small private plane from their residence on Panama's Contadora Island to an unspecified destination, accompanied by former Panamian ambassador to the United States, Gabriel Lewis.

"The empress and I have spent very happy moments on Contadora," he said in a brief news conference at the island landing strip. Visibly sad, the former shah thanked Panama for its hospitality.

"Our thanks to Gen. Omar Torrijos and President Aristedes Royo. We will always remember Panama with gratitude," he said and added that fecilities extended him went "beyond mere humanitarian hospitality."

In an unattributed report, ABC News said the shah would leave Panama for "somewhere in the Bahamas." ABC correspondent Sam Donaldson said "the former shah of Iran is about to leave Panama, apparently for good. His immediate destination appears to be somewhere in the Bahamas. Just where he will go from there is unknown."

Donaldson said the shah might go on to Egypt from the Bahamas, still in pursuit of an adequate medicial facility for the complicated surgery he needs. "That is not clear," however, he said.

"Over and above this medical problem," Donaldson reported, "it now appears that the government of Panama believes the shah has overstayed his welcome, and they simply want him out — particularly since on Monday Iran is to file extradition papers in the Panamanian government to try to extradite the shah back to Tehran.

"So, Panamanian officials want him out of the country before then," the ABC correspondent said.

TURN TO PAGE 6

Israel may settle in Arab city

By ARTHUR MAX
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM — In a decision likely to complicate already stalled Palestinian autonomy negotiations, the Israeli Cabinet voted yesterday for the first time to let Jews settle in an occupied Arab city.

The Cabinet approved by an 8-0 vote, with three abstentions, a proposal to establish two schools in which Jewish students would live full-time in the Arab city of Hebron on the West Bank of the Jordan River. The last Jewish residents of Hebron left the city after Arab rioting in 1929.

Opponents of the settlement plan said they would appeal the vote to the Foreign Affairs and Security Committee in the Israeli Parliament, and Prime Minister Menachem Begin agreed to delay action until the committee meets. The Parliament begins a one-month recess Thursday.

Israel has built more than 50 settlements on the occupied West Bank but has not allowed Jews to settle in Arab cities. However, Begin has come under pressure from right-wing Israelis to carry out the Hebron move.

The settlement issue is regarded as one of the major stumbling blocks to a successful conclusion, targeted for May 26, of Palestinian autonomy negotiations. There has been little progress in the talks to determine the nature and extent of the autonomy, and President Carter has summoned Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to Washington for separate meetings next month.

Begin said yesterday he would respond in the next few days to a letter he had received from Sadat and would call a special Cabinet session before leaving for his meeting with Carter.

Israeli news reports said the letter from Sadat to Begin placed responsibility for the outcome of the autonomy talks entirely on Israel. The Egyptians have

TURN TO PAGE 6

YOU MAKE CENTS SHOPPING ARCHER KENT

Archer Kent

BUFFERIN TWICE AS FAST AS ASPIRIN
60 count
Bufferin $1.18

Body on Tap shampoo regular or oily
98c
7 oz.

Jergens Lotion with free Jergens Soap
$1.18
10 oz. extra chrg

Anusol 99c
ointmnet
1 oz.

PARKE - DAVIS throat discs
53c
sixty discs

BIC disposable lighter
38c

Pertussin wilberry cough syrup
88c
3 oz.

No Doz tablets
15 count
59c

5 subject notebook
200 count
8½"x11" $1.99

Wilkinson Bonded blades with FREE RAZOR
99c

Amherst - 191 North Pleasant St.
SALE DATE March 19, 1980 through March 23, 1980
Quantity Rights Reserved

After a long winter, a stolen banana peel from the Hamden Dining Commons seems like a delicacy to this hungry squirrel. (Staff photo by Nancy Nutile)

Ward still probing

By The Associated Press
and the Collegian Staff

While UMass was on vacation last week, a blue ribbon panel in Boston was probing corruption in state and county building construction.

The Special Commission Concerning State and County Building Contracts, also known as the Ward Commission, heard testimony in the State House last week that Masiello & Associates, a Worcester-based architectural firm, was awarded 132 state and county building contracts between 1971 and 1978. Those contract amounted to nearly $130.8 million, the commission was told.

Among the contracts, one-third of which have yet to be completed, awarded to Masiello were: 39 with the Department of Correction, 36 of which were at Concord State Prison, and amounted to $1.58 million; 20 with the Department of Mental Health, ammounting to $1.03 million; with Worcester County Commissioners; and four with Suffolk County and the City of Boston.

James A. Kelly Jr., former chairman of the Senate Ways and Means Committee, who was once a close friend of William Masiello's — head of Masiello & Associates — was in office when $6.4 million in contracts was awarded to Masiello.

"The firm subsisted on public work," said Mark S. Demorest, an investigator for the commission.

When testimony began Monday, John William Ward, commission chairman and former president of Amherst College, said: "We have found corruption."

On March 6, however, Ward said the commission would not investigate any state university structures, because of time and resource limitations. The UMass/Amherst campus has been plagued by faultily designed buildings, such as the 28-story library and the Campus Center Complex.

Testimony will resume tommorrow at the State House, where Francis Masiello, William's younger brother, is expected to testify on his company's operations and its relationship to legislators. The Masiello firm is still in existence, but it is inactive.

The commission was formed in 1978 after a UMass/Boston construction extortion scandal that led to federal prison senteces for two state senators.

The commission has recommended extensive legislation to revamp public contracting procedures in the state.

Juvenile rape in county: 'unprecedented' increase

By TRACY CHAMBERLAIN
Special to the Collegian

The incidence of juveniles committing rape in Hampshire Country has increased 20 times from 1978 to 1979, according to figures released from the Hampshire County District Court.

Two incidences of rape in the county committed by youths under the age of 17 in 1978 jumped to an unprecedented 39 in 1979. And although there was an increase of rape in 1979, the number of juveniles involved in other crimes actually decreased during that time.

Many of those 39 cases were the result of repeated offenses, according to Probation Officer, Kevin Lucey. "I think there were about 11 juveniles involved," he said, "and they range from about 12 years old to the oldest who is 16."

The highest concentration of these attacks has occurred in the areas of highest population: on the UMass campus, in the town of Amherst, and in Northampton, Lucey said.

Asked whether there was a high incidence of "acquaintance rape" where the victim knows the rapist, Lucey said that from his experience in working with juveniles in the county "none have known the woman. Sometimes the victims have been girls younger than themselves."

"It's not an impulsive attack," he added. Lucey said the youth always followed the victim before he attacked. "The attack was always premeditated. But you ask these kids why they did it, and they say they don't really know."

Lucey cited several reasons why he thought they committed rape, among them feelings of inferiority, psychological problems, and the breakdown of parental and school authority. He added he did not know of any sexual assaults that involved either drugs of alcohol.

The Everywoman's Center has had more rapes reported to them in the fall semester than in the whole of last year, said Teri Anderson, a rape counselor and advocate at the center.

The incidence of rape has increased, Anderson said. Also more rapes are being reported because the EWC program has been well publicized, she said.

Anderson added that she is familiar with "quite a few" cases of juvenile rape, and in her experience they usually involve peers.

Lucey, who offered no opinions as to why juvenile rape has increased dramatically, said there are serious problems with the way the juvenile offender is being handled within the system.

"If you want to know the truth," said Lucey, "the juvenile justice system is a little screwed up."

After the youth is arrested, the court then decides whether he will be released into the custody of the Division of Youth Services for 30 days of "diagnostic treatment, which," Lucey said, "amounts to about one 2-hour interview with the kid in the whole 30 days," or to a psycho-residential center (if the

TURN TO PAGE 14

This paper tacked onto the Campus Center Garage sign seems to voice the opinion that UMass students are dissatisfied by the condition of several campus structures. (Staff photo by J. Ferrarone)

Stress awareness subject of four day-long program

By LAURA OWENS
Collegian Staff

A stress awareness program begins tonight at 7:30 in rooms 162-171 of the Campus Center.

The program, "Stress Awareness Days: Causes, Coping and Change," is being co-sponsored by the Health Services, Mental Health and Health Education divisions and the Student Development and Counciling Center. Totaling 37 sessions, the program will run over a four-day period. From tonight until Thursday afternoon, faculty, students and staff members will speak on a wide range of topics concerning the many aspects of stress and related problems.

According to Renee Spring, a Mental health staff member and coordinator of the projict, the program will not concentrate on any one particular form of stress nor view all stress as undesirable. "Stress can be both positive and negative," said Spring. "In its broadest terms stress is defined as energy and can motivate us towards production. In many cases it is emotional and physical discomfort, but not always, and the program will not concentrate on just the psychological and emotional aspects of stress alone," she said.

Tonight Richard Ingrassci M.D., who is also the Health editor for New Age magazine and a founding member of the American Holistic Medical Association, will speak on "stress and psychological factors." Other will begin accepting new intern applicants beginning March 25, at 5 p.m. in Campus Center 113.

TURN TO PAGE 14

The Collegian

DR. ZE'EV BINYAMIN BEGIN
(son of the Prime Minister of Israel):

"THE MIDDLE EAST, POST CAMP DAVID"

Monday, March 24 8:00 PM
Campus Center 804-08

Sponsored by B'nai B'rith Hillel

YOU'VE STUDIED HARD TO BE A DOCTOR. BE A DOCTOR.

The U.S. Navy can offer you the kind of practice you studied so hard for. Devoting your time solely to the practice of medicine.

As a Navy physician, we'll give you a challenging and rewarding practice—a practice with a minimum of paperwork and no administrative overhead. It's a practice complete with excellent facilities and support personnel.

In addition, you'll find a Navy practice allows you time to spend with your family. Associate with other highly motivated physicians. Further your schooling. Even enjoy 30 days' paid vacation every year.

All this, plus a starting salary of $30,000 a year—more, depending on your experience.

If it all sounds like the practice you studied so hard for, call us for more information. Just contact:

Lt. Paul Quinn Medical Programs Officer
Navy Information Team 221 Asylum Street
Hartford, Ct. 06103 203-243-4213

BE THE DOCTOR YOU WANT TO BE. IN THE NAVY.

AFSCME
the union that cares

UMASS EMPLOYEE'S LOCAL 1776
COUNCIL 93 / AFSCME, AFL-CIO
417 GRADUATE RESEARCH TOWER B
545-2831

BERTHA CAPEN, Custodian, Wants A Fifth Week's Vacation.
She's voting for AFSCME.

Under the proposed ALLIANCE contract, Bertha Capen, a UMass/Amherst custodian with 19 years service stands to gain an additional week's vacation.

The ALLIANCE (AFSCME/SEIU, AFL-CIO) contract, a pacesetter in wages and benefits for all public employees across the Commonwealth, is presently before the 30,000-member state workforce for ratification.

In addition to annual wage hikes that are on the high side of the President's wage guideline, the ALLIANCE contract contains a fifth week of vacation for Bertha Capen and her co-workers with a minimum of 19½ years of service.

"I think the ALLIANCE pact is good as we can get; we're lucky to do this well," she recently confided.

The long-service worker also cited a sick leave buy-back provision in the new ALLIANCE contract as "rewarding faithful workers." The provision allows an employee upon retirement to cash-in 20 percent of the unused sick leave dating back to the first day of service. In the event of the death of an employee at this time, the buy-back feature could be excercised by the worker's survivor.

"The 20 percent buy-back on sick leave is a good start," she said. "This is something we never had before; it rewards failthful workers."

On March 26, Bertha Capen is voting for AFSCME. "I'm staying with a union I trust and believe in," she confided.

VOTE
☒ ☐ ☐
AFSCME Council 93
Local 1776 AFL-CIO

Memorial Hall
March 26

Lene Lovich flexes her muscles in Bowker hall

By TOM ANDERSON
Collegian Staff

I never thought I'd see the day when the halls of UMass would ring with cries of "Lene...Lene...!" Who would've expected UMies, so long associated with the laid-back likes of the Grateful Dead and Lynard Skynard, to greet a somewhat eccentric new wave rocker with such enthusiasm? Yet that's exactly what happened a scant few hours before the start of Spring vacation, when Lene Lovich played to a packed house in Bowker Auditorium.

I've lamented before in these pages over the shortage of decent female rockers, but things are looking up. Lovich is one of the most promising young woman singers to appear in years. Her debut album Stateless extended her appeal beyond the Stiff fanatics, and yielded two of 1979's best singles, "Lucky Number" and "Home." Her second album, Flex, was released a few weeks prior to her appearance here. Judging by the response, many UMies had heard at least part of it by showtime.

On top of all her other talents, Lovich managed quite deftly to avoid the so-called "second album syndrome." She didn't fall into the trap of recording part two of her debut album, nor did she turn more commercial. Instead, she came out with a record that is probably more quirky and eccentric than her first. Flex incorporates all sorts of diverse rhythms, including the "polka-rock" for which she is most noted. The backup band's playing and the production is excellent, and her lyrics are more intriguing than ever.

Finally, of course, there is Lene's voice. Even if she had nothing else to recommend

TURN TO PAGE 14

Lene Lovich entertains a sold-out crowd at Bowker Auditorium last Thursday. (Staff photo by Nancy Nutile)

Shakespeare's life in play

By GARY EYNATIAN
Special to the Collegian

"A Cry of Players," a play about William Shakespeare written by William Gibson, will be presented March 27 to 30 at 8 p.m. by the Spectrum Stage, a theater company located at 18 Main Street, Northampton.

Shakespeare experienced the many passions of youths—their loves, doubts and periods of recklessness—and "A Cry of Players," which Gibson dedicates to "all the young who will not obey what is," shows this.

A cast of local talent, featuring Hampshire college student Peter Cantwell as Shakespeare and area resident, writer and actress Pippin Ross as his wife Anne, will present the play under the direction of Paul Moser.

Moser, who studied dramatic literature at Brown University and has worked in many college and professional productions in Rhode Island and New York City, hopes to see Spectrum Stage develop into a successful professional theater, drawing area talent as well as "guest artists" from New York into its future productions.

Guild presents 'Applause'

The UMass Music Theatre Guild will present "Applause," the widely-recognized musical written by the Broadway team of Betty Comden and Adolph Green, March 27-30 and April 3-4 at 8 p.m. in the Bowker Auditorium of the University's Stockbridge Hall.

"Applause" is the story of an aging screenstar, Margo Channing, and her ambitious protege-understudy, Eve Harrington. Eve, through false pretenses and deception, canives her way to the top, at Margo's expense.

The show, which originally premiered on Broadway in 1970, had a run of over 700 performances, winning Tony Awards for best musical, best actress (Lauren Bacall) and best director (Ron Rield) in the 1970 ceremonies.

"Applause" is an adaptation of the Broadway play "All About Eve," written by Mary Ore, which was later done as a 1950 movie version, starring Betty Davis and Marilyn Monroe.

The Music Theatre Guild, producers of the show, is an entirely student-run organization which has been entertainting audiences in the Amherst area for 40 years. Recent Guild Productions include the Broadway hits "Anything Goes," "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" and last fall's student-written "Just Friends of 1923."

The March 27 performance of "Applause" is a special discount preview, with ticket prices set at $1.50 for students, $2 for the general public. Prices for the other performances are $2.50 for students, $3 for general admission. Tickets are on sale now at the Bowker Auditorium Box Office.

University & Office Supplies
Thesis Paper
& Typing Paper
A.J. Hastings Inc.
newsdealer & stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

INFLATION FIGHTER'S SPECIAL!

Shampoo, Cut & Blow-Dry Styling $10
Regularly $12.50
No Appt. Necessary

GREAT EXPECTATIONS®
PRECISION HAIRCUTTERS
Hampshire Mall
Hadley

sound economy

LP & CASSETTE SPECIALS

CHUCK MANGIONE
Fun & Games
A & M Records
8.98/8.95 series
only $5.55

J. GIELS BAND
Love Stinks
emi records
8.89/8.95 series
only $5.55

THE KNACK
But the Little Girls Understand
Capitol Records
8.98/8.95 series
only $5.55

RONNIE LAWS
Every Generation
United Artists
7.98/7.95 series
only $4.75

TAVARES
Supercharged
Capitol
7.98/7.95 series
only $4.75

RECORDS ARE A GREAT ENTERTAINMENT VALUE!

your record store
the UNIVERSITY STORE

N-plants at standstill

This aerial view shows the cooling tower of a power plant in Willow Island, West Virginia, the day after the left tower collapsed during its construction, killing 51 men. (AP Laserphoto)

EDITOR'S NOTE — The Three Mile Island accident galvanized anti-nuclear sentiment in many countries besides the United States. But one year later, some of those countries say they still want nuclear power. The following, based on a survey by The Associated Press, examines the status of nuclear energy worldwide.

By KEVIN McKEAN
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Although hard times and the Three Mile Island accident brought nuclear power expansion in the United States and parts of Europe to a virtual halt, other nations remain committed to nuclear energy either by choice or necessity.

France, Britain, South Korea and the Soviet Union and its allies have all expanded nuclear plans since the March 28, 1979, accident.

Some developing countries — Brazil, Argentina, Pakistan and India are examples — have ambitious plans on the drawing board. And Japan, after two studies of TMI, wrote new safety rules and resumed plans to quintuple its nuclear capacity in the next 15 years.

However, an Associated Press survey shows that the Harrisburg, Pa., accident was a factor in putting the brakes on an already staggering nuclear industry in Sweden and West Germany, among others.

Nuclear power generates only 7 percent of the world's electricity, but contributes a big share in some of the 22 nations that have it.

Belgium and Sweden get onequarter of their power from nuclear, Switzerland nearly a fifth, and France, Germany, Japan, Korea, the United States and Britain more than a tenth.

In West Germany, where demonstrators last spring chanted "We all live in Pennsylvania," environmental lawsuits have pushed the lead time for new plants to more than a decade.

Swedes were voting in a nuclear referendum yesterday, but none of the three options would have added to the 12 reactors built or planned.

"We were not going anywhere quickly with nuclear energy before Three Mile Island, but it certainly did not speed things up," said one official at Italy's National Committee for Nuclear Energy.

The accident prompted Denmark to delay plans for nuclear expansion. Holland and Austria had taken similar decisions the year before.

And Chang Bin, China's vice minister of electric power, told visiting Pennsylvania Gov. Dick Thornburgh this month that a nuclear station near Shanghai was canceled after public concern that a TMI-style accident could happen near the world's most populous city.

But the nuclear industry was already in a slump when TMI hit.

"Everybody in the industry expected the four-fold increase in the gasoline price after 1974 to be a tremendous boost for nuclear," said David Fischer of the United Nations-affiliated International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna, Austria.

"In fact, it had the opposite effect. It induced recession or slowed growth practically everywhere, and the utilities couldn't raise money for any new plants, whether they were coal, nuclear or anything else."

Most Western power companies had overestimated the growth in electric demand. Reactor orders in the second half of the 1970s fell to one-third the rate for the first half of the decade.

es. U.S. manufacturers have most to lose: they hold twothirds of the market.

Two members of the group, Mans Lonnroth of Stockholm and William Walker of London, said the "widely felt" public concern over nuclear safety was having different impacts in different nations:

"Countries, such as France and the United Kingdom, where government policy proposals have traditionally been less exposed to wide public debate at early stages of consideration, have had comparatively little difficulty in promoting nuclear power," they said. "Still less difficulty has, of course, been encountered in closed political systems such as the U.S.S.R."

Yet even the Soviets have safety problems. A nuclear plant accident is believed to have contaminated an area of the Urals in 1957 or '58, although the Soviets never reported it.

★ Shah

CONT. FROM PAGE 2

Yesterday morning, reporters saw two U.S. government jets standing ready at Howard U.S. Air Force Base here, but Panamanian government officials and base spokesman Maj. John Moscatelli refused to comment on the planes, their passengers, or possible destinations.

ABC said the shah "apparently will leave, headed for the Bahamas" and "may go on the Egypt," though that was not certain.

White House spokesman Ray Jenkins and State Department officer David Nall both refused comment regarding any possible travel plans by the shah.

Sources in Washington and Panama City said Saturday that White House adviser Hamilton Jordan was in Panama trying to arrange for American surgeons to travel to Panama and remove the shah's inflamed and possibly cancerous spleen. Jordan was believed still to be in the country Sunday.

Panamanian television reported Saturday that Jordan and Torrijos, a former Panamanian president, met with the shah on Contadora Island, where the former monarch has lived since Dec. 15 after receiving medical treatment in the United States.

The revolutionary regime which deposed the shah in February 1980 is seeking to extradite the ousted ruler for trial on charges of mass murder and corruption, and a legal representative for the regime said Saturday he planned to meet a Monday deadline to file evidence to support the case.

Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh warned Saturday that any attempt to transfer the shah from Panama would delay the release of the Americans who on Sunday began their 21st week as hostages in Tehran.

Ghotbzadeh attributed attempts to move the shah to former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and New York banker David Rockefeller, and made no mention of Jordan's presence in Panama.

"I think that this action by Kissinger and Rockefeller, if they succeed in moving the shah from Panama and stopping extradition proceedings, will have a disastrous effect in Iran."

★ Israel

CONT. FROM PAGE 2

placed greater emphasis on progress being made by the date set in the Camp David peace accords.

Israel, Egypt and the United States began negotiations on Palestinian autonomy last May with a one-year deadline for establishing an autonomous Arab administration on the West Bank and Gaza Strip where there are 1.2 million Palestinian Arabs. The territories were occupied by Israel in the Mideast War of 1967.

The United States and Egypt have been pressing for an end to Jewish settlements on the West Bank. Washington has criticized the settlements as an obstacle to peace.

The Israeli Cabinet declared in February that Jews have the right to settle anywhere in the Biblical land of Israel, which includes the West Bank and Hebron, a city of 50,000 Arabs 20 miles south of Jerusalem that is the burial site of the patriarch Abraham and is considered holy by both Moslems and Jews.

However, the vote on the Hebron settlements was postponed more than a month because of its controversial nature.

do it !

Make your appointment for your Senior Yearbook Portrait this week call 545-2874 or stop by Room 103, Campus Ctr. LAST CHANCE!

SPRING into the 5-college crowd at

Time Out

TWO TV's

Friendly People!

Friendly Prices!

Free popcorn at Amherst's biggest little bar 37 N. Pleasant St.

WELL-ADJUSTED

When you buy a cassette deck from Sound & Music, you don't just get one of the world's finest cassette decks. You also get a machine that has been individually adjusted and calibrated by our technician to deliver its best possible performance.

It takes time and costs money to optimize these machines, but it makes a difference you can hear. That's why every cassette deck we sell is "well-adjusted."

harman kardon hk 705

NEW!

The world's first cassette deck with Dolby HX.

Dual C-830

Our finest 3-head cassette deck.

ONKYO TA-630D

A proven "best-buy"

TEAC CX-211

In a class by itself among low-priced decks. $159.00

SOUND & MUSIC

90-92 King Street (Rte. 5) Northampton

"Good Advice — Honest Price"

VISA

Thursday & Friday 'til 9 Mon.-Sat. 10-5 584-9547

Editorial/Opinion

Fiction's friends

I have just arrived at a friend's house and he offers me a drink. I accept. He makes the drink, hands it to me and I put it to my lips. It smells like aftershave. I think: so what? I sip the drink, it tastes like aftershave, or maybe brake fluid. I gag. Certain messages from the thalmus: No. You do not want to drink this it will make you feel BAD.

"No thanks," I said putting the drink down on a table by the couch.

"You don't like it?" queried my host, leaning on the mantel above the fireplace and sighting me from the corner of his eye.

ERIC JANSZEN

"That's true," I said. "Sorry."

"Sorry?!" he blurted, spinning around to face me, staring as if at someone who'd just set fire to his dissertation. Trembling, tears oozed from his eyes like juice from a pressed grapefruit. Avoiding his glare, I reached for the drink and held it up consideredly.

"Maybe you made this one wrong..." I said. Before I could finish, my host ran at the open window and in one grand leap jetted-out into the damp summer night and down three floors onto a cluster of trash barrels.

I'm not sure if he survived, but that doesn't matter since none of this happened anyway—it's fictional. Not that I don't hope he survived. Real or imagined, I hope all my friends survive. But I didn't really understand this one even though I made him up. It's all the same, so here is a description of a few friends I don't have.

The first friend is a heavy drinker, maybe an alcoholic, but probably not. With her in mind I wrote the following poem.

I like to drink a lot
A lot is what I like to drink.
For when I drink a lot
It is easier to think.
And when it's easier to think
I think a lot, though it is not,
The kind of thought I'd think
If I didn't drink a lot.

The second friend is due to graduate this May. He is anxious and depressed because he feels that, from now on, he has to take himself too seriously, fight for what was before given to him and fight very hard for anything more. He would see this as a great challenge, he says, except he has no idea what his chances are.

He asks me how the hell he's supposed to draw inspiration from such uncertainty. I suggest he not panic, that he is an ambitious and capable sort, that his misgivings will subside.

"You'll make it," I say. He smiles and is sure I don't know what I'm talking about.

The third friend has no fear, loves to take big chances.

"The worst that could happen is I might get killed. That really would disappoint me!" she quips, her eyes gleaming with perfect defiance. You can look at her on any given day at any given time and her face gives you all her energy. Having learned to draw strength from pain, strength from anger, strength even from confusion, she now wins the battle with cynicism and despair.

Congratulations.

Eric Janszen is the Collegian's Associate Executive Editor

'CAPTAIN — SOMEONE HAS TO GO OVER THE SIDE...'

The Anderson-Kennedy difference

The heightened student interest in the presidential candidacies of Illinois Rep. John B. Anderson and Massachusetts Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, based upon the presumption that these two candidates represent the "liberal" perspective on issues near and dear to the hearts of younger voters, prompts one to examine closely the credibility of the two candidates in an effort to determine whether the progressive label can be legitimately affixed to their respective nomenclatures.

On the issue of nuclear power, Republican John Anderson is very Republican indeed. In a December 9, 1979 Boston Globe poll of presidential candidates on the issues, Anderson responded affirmatively to the question "Do you support nuclear energy development?" So did all his Republican contenders. Democrat Edward Kennedy, like California Gov. Jerry Brown, supports a moratorium on development of "new" nuclear plant construction, such as the Seabrook facility, until the questions of safe waste disposal and preparation for emergency measures (in the event of nuclear plant malfunctions) can be resolved.

On health care, Anerson is opposed to both the Carter and Kennedy-Waxman national health care plans. Says Anderson, "Any response to the crisis in health costs must include the private sector." Anderson becomes sympathetic only when the issue of catastrophic illness costs are brought to the fore. Otherwise, as Anderson says, "consumer choices are essential." Under this guise of "giving" the consumer the option in choosing her/his own health care plans, Anderson ignores the segment of our populace which cannot afford high insurance premiums. By limiting national health care coverage to mere catastrophic illnesses, Anderson discourages preventive medicine and enhances the view that only serious illnesses need attention. In addition, Anderson plays right into the hands of the Blue Cross, Prudential thinktanks, who have a vested private interest superceding the legitimate public demand for low-cost health care.

Kennedy has filed his own national health plan which provides for fuller preventitive education programs in schools, at licensed physician's offices and hospitals. Kennedy's pla favors full health coverage from major medical to minor services, inclusive of dental and psychiatric treatment. Kennedy's concept would place the responsibility for regulation in the public sector, and would draw its financial support from the Federal Treasury via a supplemental employment tax—a valid proposal for a system which would benefit everyone in the nation.

When one examines the issue of energy, specifically our dependence upon crude oil as a source of the same, the Anderson-Kennedy approaches become more distinct. Anderson favors a 50-cent gas tax which would take money from those who could least afford it, masking it with the benevolent purpose of strengthening the Social Security system.

Kennedy favors across-the-board rationing based upon "real need" and without correlation to income.

Yet this difference in approach is not beyond comprehension. After all, John Anderson is a member of the Trilateral Commission, a bi-partisan, "exclusive" collaboration of individuals who work for the ultimate goals of Third World exploitation and multinational dependence upon Chase Manhattan, Exxon Oil, and the vested interests of their leader—one David Rockefeller. Other "country club" members include: former Berlin Mayor and West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, President Jimmy Carter, former CIA Director George Bush, former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, and Vice-President Walter Mondale, among others. Kennedy is not a member of the Commission.

When one matches up Kennedy's 17-year record in the United States Senate versus that of Congressman Anderson, the actions most representative of a left-wing ideology were those taken by the Massachusetts Senator, whom the Americans for Constitutional Action (a right-wing group) have called "the most left-wing, anti-defense spokesman in the Senate save George McGovern." Anderson, by contrast, voted for the Gulf of Tonkin resolution in 1965 and for development of the Neutron Bomb in 1976.

Anderson has been likened to former Sen. Eugene McCarthy for the way he has brought out the student vote on his "crusade," speaking out on issues like the draft, and the Iranian "crisis."

Yet it was Kennedy who first criticized the President, coming out against draft registration and conscription in his Georgetown speech. It was Kennedy who first suggested what it has taken Jimmy Carter three months and a 180-degree turn to conclude: that the ex-Shah of Iran should be subject to international trial in order to secure the release of the American hostages.

In the March 4 edition of the Collegian, there appeared on the editorial pages an endorsement by the newspaper of Rep. Anderson's candidacy, based upon a selected number of issues which he has taken liberal viewpoints on. Yes, Anderson is the most "liberal" of all the Republicans seeking the GOP nomination. But like the patient in a terminal cancer ward whose malignancy is least advanced, we must ask ourselves, "Are we really any better off in the long run?"

Clearly then, Kennedy is the "benign" alternative. Considering our monopolistic, two-party system, he is the most progressive candidate that can "realistically be elected President.

Jim Moran is the Fine Arts Editor of the Collegian

Letters

Right to our opinion

To the Editor:

This is in response to Ron Miller's letter on March 11 stating that the Collegian Board of Editors had "underminded the whole system of choice" by endorsing one candidate for SGA president.

Mr. Miller, while newspapers ideally exist to state the facts, the Op/Ed page is reserved to take these facts and interpret them. The Board of Editors have every right (remember the First Amendment?) to examine the candidates' platform and endorse the team that they feel is best suited for the job, just as you have the right to submit a commentary or a letter to the editor about why you feel so and so is the best candidate. If the Board of Editors have no right to comment on the SGA race, then they also have no right to comment on any other issue, and accordingly, neither do any of us.

Public opinion cannot be, as you put it, created, but it can be enlightened. The majority of the Collegian Board of Editors were stating their opinion, just as any other paper interprets the issues. That's what the Op/Ed page is for.

Debbie Wayne
Leach Dorm

Dear Militants...

To the Editor:

I propose a simple resolution to the Iran situation:

The objective of the militants holding the hostages, as I see it, is to make Americans aware of what has occurred in Iran. With this in mind, send a letter to the militants saying:

Dear Militants,

I am disgusted with the realization that my goverement put the Shah into power. I understand your position and shall be completely against any retaliation by the U.S. if you would send the hostages home.

DO IT! I already did.

John Masse
Brown

Letters Policy

Letters to the editor should be kept as short as possible, preferably no longer than two pages. They should be typed at 67 characters per line, triple-spaced.

All letters should contain the author's name, address, and telephone number for verification. Telephone numbers will not be printed.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian

STEPHEN B. KLEIN, Editor-in-Chief. JULIE EAGLE, Managing Editor. FREDERIC M. KEILLOR, Business Manager. JACK CALLAGHER, News Editor. ROB BURBATK, Executive Editor. LISA CAPONI, Women's Editor. RENEE MOBLEY, Black Affairs Editor. JIM MAHONEY, Photo Editor. SUZETTE COURTMANCHE, Graphics Manager. JIM DROUIN, Sports Editor. JIM MORAN, Fine Arts Editor.

Associate Editors

Jeff Baker, Fran Batiche, Ellen Dacey, Jamie Mooney, Rob Sisk. Associate Managing Editors, Ed Lavine, Brian O'Donnell. Associate News Editors, Eric Janszen. Associate Executive Editor, Debbie Wallace. Associate Women's Editor, Marcia Hernandez. Associate Black Affairs Editor, Peter Betry. Associate Photo Editor, Abbe Bankund. Associate Fine Arts Editor, Jane Wulfson. Associate Sports Editor, Jeffrey Bianchi. Associate Graphics Manager.

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian is a member of the Associated Press. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertisers lies with the individual advertisers.

USPS 333-220

ENTER TODAY

3-2ND PRIZES
A TRIP TO HAWAII FOR TWO OR 1 MILLION S&H GREEN STAMPS!

40-3RD PRIZES
RCA 19" COLOR TV OR 250,000 S&H GREEN STAMPS!

100-4TH PRIZES
120,000 S&H GREEN STAMPS! (100 BOOKS)

Louis
FINE FOODS
N. PLEASANT ST., AMHERST, MASS

Enter today and you may win!

It's so easy. NO PURCHASE NECESSARY! First, pick up your exciting, new Ideabook '80, in-store. Free! Then, picture yourself the proud winner of any one of these wonderful prizes. Finally, just fill out the entry blank in this ad and mail it to the address given. Follow the rules. Closing date is June 30th, 1980. So, don't wait. Enter as often as you like. One prize per family.

*From your favorite Green Stamp Supermarket.

OFFICIAL RULES

1. Pick up your new S&H Ideabook '80, in-store.
2. To enter the "Go For The Green Sweepstakes" fill out the official entry blank or on a 3x5 card send your complete name and address to:
   "Go For The Green" Sweepstakes
   P.O. Box 66
   New York N.Y. 10046
   You must answer the following question in order to be eligible to win any of the prizes: The S&H Ideabook Item 3 on page 48. Code #A1521 is
3. Enter as often as you like. All entries must be mailed separately and all entries must be received by June 30, 1980, in order to be eligible to win.
4. Winners will be selected in random drawings from all eligible entries under the supervision of Marden-Kane, Inc. an independent judging organization whose decisions are final. All prizes will be awarded. Only one prize per family. All taxes are the responsibility of prize winner. Odds of winning are dependent upon number of entries received. Winners will be required to sign an affidavit of eligibility and release. There is no substitution of prizes permitted.
5. Sweepstakes open to all residents of continental USA except employees of Sperry and Hutchinson Company, its subsidiaries and affiliates, advertising agencies, print and production agencies, Marden-Kane, Inc. and their immediate families. Sweepstakes void in Missouri and wherever prohibited by law. All Federal and State regulations apply.
6. For a list of all major prize winners, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to:
   "Go For The Green" Sweepstakes
   Post Office Box 75
   New York, N.Y. 10046
7. NO PURCHASE NECESSARY.
8. ALL WINNERS WILL BE NOTIFIED BY MAIL.

ENTRY BLANK. CUT OUT AND FILL IN.

GO SWEEPSTAKES — GO FOR THE GREEN

Fill out and mail entry blank to:
Go For The Green Sweepstakes
P.O. Box 66, New York, N.Y. 10046

Mail entries no later than June 30, 1980. Enter as often as you like. One prize per family. Winners will be notified by mail.

You must answer the following question to be eligible to win any of the prizes:
The S&H Ideabook Item 3 on page 48
code # A1521 is: _____
My favorite Green Stamp Store is: _____
NAME _____
ADDRESS _____
CITY _____ STATE _____ ZIP _____

A-165

GO YOU GET MUCH MORE AT A GREEN STAMP STORE — S&H GREEN STAMPS

SPECIALS EFFECTIVE MARCH 24-MARCH 29

Louis
FINE FOODS
N. PLEASANT ST., AMHERST, MASS

Top Round Roast U.S.D.A. CHOICE $2.19 LB

London Broil Steak U.S.D.A. CHOICE SHOULDER CLOD $2.09 LB

USDA CHOICE BONELESS Blade Steak	LB $2.09	LEAN CHUCK Stew Beef	LB $1.99
OSCAR MAYER Beef Franks	1 LB PKG $1.79	WINDSOR BRAND PLAIN Veal Patties	LB 99¢
OSCAR MAYER Meat Weiners	1 LB PKG $1.59	WINDSOR BRAND BREADED Veal Patties	LB 89¢
OSCAR MAYER Bacon	LB PKG $1.79

WITH COUPON PLUS $7.50 PURCHASE OR MORE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & TOBACCO LU85
STARKIST Chunk Light Tuna IN WATER OR OIL 39¢ 6½ OZ CAN
VALID MARCH 24-29 LIMIT ONE AT LOUIS FOODS — Louis FINE FOODS

WITH COUPON PLUS $7.50 PURCHASE OR MORE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & TOBACCO LU86
REYNOLDS WRAP Aluminum Foil 12 IN X 25 FT ROLL 19¢
VALID MARCH 24-29 LIMIT ONE AT LOUIS FOODS — Louis FINE FOODS

WITH COUPON PLUS $7.50 PURCHASE OR MORE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & TOBACCO LU87
SOS Scouring Pads 10 CT PKG 29¢
VALID MARCH 24-29 LIMIT ONE AT LOUIS FOODS — Louis FINE FOODS

WITH COUPON PLUS $7.50 PURCHASE OR MORE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & TOBACCO LU88
PRE-SWEETENED All Flavors Kool-Aid 6-6 OZ PKG 29¢
VALID MARCH 24-29 LIMIT ONE AT LOUIS FOODS — Louis FINE FOODS

WITH COUPON PLUS $7.50 PURCHASE OR MORE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & TOBACCO LU89
CAMPBELL'S Pork & Beans 16 OZ CAN 9¢
VALID MARCH 24-29 LIMIT ONE AT LOUIS FOODS — Louis FINE FOODS

FRESH PRODUCE

FRESH CALIFORNIA Carrots	5 1 LB PKGS $1
Wax Turnips	PRINCE EDWARD ISLE	2 LBS 25¢
Eggplant	FRESH FROM NEW MEXICO	EA 39¢
Grapefruit	EXTRA LARGE WHITE SEEDLESS	4 FOR $1
Oranges	FRESH PICKED FLORIDA	12 FOR $1

Not reseponsible for typographical errors.

BE HEALTHIER-USE LESS SUGAR Diet Shasta ALL FLAVORS 5 12 OZ CANS 99¢

KLEENEX Facial Tissue 280 CT PKG 79¢

MOTT'S Applesauce 35 OZ JAR 79¢

ARM & HAMMER Laundry Detergent 70 OZ PKG $1.59

We reserve the right to limit quantities.

GREEN GIANT LeSueur Peas	2 17 OZ CANS	99¢
JESSO CALIF WHOLE Tomatoes	2 28 OZ CANS	89¢
PURPLE OR GOLDEN Juicy Juice	32 OZ BTL	69¢
PETER PAN CREAMY & CHUNKY Peanut Butter	28 OZ JAR	$1.69
SWEET LIFE Pure Honey	16 OZ BTL	$1.19

FROZEN & DAIRY

SWEET LIFE Orange Juice	12 OZ CAN	69¢
Fish Sticks TASTE O'SEA BATTER DIP	8 OZ PKG	89¢
Ore Ida Crispers	2 10 OZ PKGS	99¢
Sippity ALL FLAVORS YOGURT DRINK	3 8 OZ BTLS	$1
Hood Apple Juice	½ GAL	99¢

DIET DELIGHT Fruit Cocktail	16 OZ CAN	69¢
DIET DELIGHT Bartlett Pears	16 OZ CAN	69¢
DIET DELIGHT Cling Peaches SLICED OR HALVES	16 OZ CAN	59¢
RY-KRISP Seasoned Crackers	8½ OZ PKG	79¢
VLASIC KOSHER DILL OR Polish Spears	24 OZ JAR	79¢

Around campus

Globe comes to UM

Bob Healy, Boston Globe political columnist, and Marty Nolan, the Globe's Washington Bureau Chief, will discuss the presidential primaries on Wednesday, March 26, at 8 p.m. in Campus Center room 168. The event is sponsored by the UMass journalism department.

Citizens' Party

The Western Massachusetts chapter of the Citizens' Party invites all to a campaign meeting on Friday, March 28th, at 7:30 p.m. in the UMass Campus Center, Rm. 174, Amherst. Orientation will be given to campaign workers, and the Citizens' Party drive to be put on the November election ballot will be explained.

People may also come to hear more detail about the Party, its platform and its process.

The Western Massachusetts chapter of the Citizens' Party was founded in February, 1980. Groups are now organizing in North Adams, Greenfield, Northampton, Amherst, Holyoke and Springfield.

License dogs now

1980 dog licenses are now available in the Amherst Town Clerk's office. Last year's licenses expire on March 31.

All dogs three months old and over are required to be licensed, and proof of vaccination against rabies must be presented. Rabies vaccination must be repeated every two years.

License fees are $4 for males, $4 for spayed females and $7 for unspayed females. A certificate from a veterinarian showing a female has been spayed must be presented.

UM profs. honored

Three professors at the University of Massachusetts have been selected as distinguished scholars by the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) and will help lead a series of eight-week seminars working with undergraduate faculty interested in advanced research from selected institutions.

Jules Chametzky, department of English, Robert H. McNeal, department of history and Gareth B. Matthews, department of philosophy will each work with twelve college teachers who have received stipends from the NEH for the summer of 1980 to study on the Amherst campus.

Chametzky's seminar will study selected classics of immigrant and ethnic literature; McNeal's seminar will deal with the Stalin era by examining Soviet documents, memoirs, and literature; Matthews' seminar will address basic questions concerning life and death.

The purpose of the program is to provide opportunities for faculty at undergraduate and two-year colleges to work with distinguished scholars in their fields in settings with library collections suitable for advanced research. NEH will offer 120 eight-week seminars across the country this year.

SAM Beatles night

The Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity and Music Land will present the music of the Beatles at 9 p.m., March 29, in the Hatch cafeteria. The event is open to the public. Tickets will be $1.50.

Hillel events...

Thursday, March 27 at noon is the deadline for signing up for all specially prepared Kosher for Passover meals. Students not already on the Kosher Meal Plan may sign up for the Seders and other Passover dinners at the Franklin Dining Commons Meal Ticket Office for a small additional fee.

Regular meal tickets will be accepted at the "Kosher Meal Line in Hampden Dining Commons for all breakfasts and lunches during Passover. Three meals a day will be served throughout the Passover holiday (including weekends) at the following hours: Breakfast, 7:30-9:00 a.m.; Lunch, 11:15 a.m.-1:00 p.m.; Dinner, 5:00-6:30 p.m.

The Seders on March 31 and April 1 will begin at 5:15 p.m.

Because of limited space and preparation time, all students must sign up in advance at Franklin D.C. by noon on March 27. Questions can be directed to the Hillel office, 545-2526.

Ze'ev Binyamin Begin, Ph.D., son of the Prime Minister of Isreal, will speak at UMass on Monday, March 24 at 8:00 p.m. in Campus Center 804-08.

Dr. Begin received his M.Sc. in Geology from the Hebrew University in Jerusalem and his Ph.D., also in geology, from Colorado State University. He is presently under the employ of the Mapping Division of the Geological Survey of Isreal to perform geomorphological and geotechnical studies.

On Mar. 24, Dr. Begin will speak on "The Middle East, Post Camp David." The community is invited to attend.

Counseling service

The Counseling Work group at Everywoman's Center in Wilder Hall, offers a free personal counseling service for area women and couples.

Walk-in hours are scheduled daily for women interested in finding out more about this service. Regular appointments with a counselor can be scheduled to begin within a week to 10 days of the initial walk-in visit.

Everywoman's Center also maintains a comprehensive list of feminist therapists working in the area, and can make referrals when desired. For information or to make an appointment, contact Everywoman's Center at 545-0883.

Hillel sponsors film

UMass Hillel will present the film "The Pawnbroker," starring Rod Steiger and Geraldine Fitzgerald. The film is a memorable portrait of a Jewish pawnbroker who survived the Nazi concentration camps, but is haunted by his memories in America. The film will be shown on Tuesday, March 25, at 8 p.m. in SBA 120. The film is free and the public is invited to attend.

Support Group forms

A support group for older women, over the age of 35, who have been victims of child sexual assault or abuse will be held Wednesday evenings, beginning April 2, from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Bangs Community Center in Amherst. To sign up call Holly Wheeler at the Everywoman's Center, 545-0883 or 256-0364. The service is free and strictly confidential.

Anti-nuke training

Logistics training for people participating in the protest at the Vermont Yankee Nuclear Power Plant will be held tomorrow, March 25, from 6 to 10:30 p.m. in Campus Center rooms 804-808. Non-violence training will be held on Wednesday, March 26, from 6:30 to 10 p.m. in a location to be announced.

Anti-porn meeting

Women interested in area organizing around the increasing use of images of violence to women in pornography and the media are encouraged to come to a strategy meeting on Thursday, March 27th at 7:30 p.m. in Room 177 of the Campus Center, UMass. The meeting will focus on developing specific goals and objectives of the group, with the intention of sponsoring a consciousness-raising event in the spring.

Childcare will be provided.

Join the Collegian

The Collegian news department will be accepting applications from students interested in learning about journalism through the new Collegian intern program beginning Wednesday, March 26 at 5 p.m. at the Collegian offices in room 113 Campus Center.

How To Get A $1,615 A Week Job In Alaska

Even If Totally Unskilled Start At $1,020 Weekly

Anchorage, Alaska (Special)—Jobs in Alaska are now among the most highly paid in the world. And by high paying we mean big money—$1,020 to over $1,600 a week, plus room and board, either free or at nominal cost. The key to all this is overtime—plenty of it. If you don't mind working about 70 hours a week at a relatively unskilled job, $12 to $19 an hour with time-and-a-half and even double time adds up to those big fat checks you've always dreamed about. So no matter whether you can run a dozer, weld, handle a shovel, fly a helicopter or even wait on tables, local and multinational corporations will be quite eager to forward transportation. And that is where we come in. We are the experts on the companies who are hiring. We developed the ALASKAN EMPLOYMENT KIT, a complete instruction manual and directory listing 1,320 current employers in the Arctic. Plus sample inquiry letters, resumes, application letters with pre-printed labels and procedures. And the jobs will go to those who know where and how to apply. This kit can be obtained by sending $9.95 cash, check or money order to ALASKAN EMPLOYMENT, Dept. 134 894 National Press Building, Washington, D.C. 20045. On COD's add $1 goodwill deposit (deductible). Keep it for 90 days. If for any reason you do not obtain Alaskan employment within that time, or are not satisfied with the employment offered, simply return the ALASKAN EMPLOYMENT KIT and your monies will be refunded promptly and without question. Do not delay. Tear out this message as a reminder. Send for your NO-RISK copy today.

©1978 Personal Vision Agency Inc.

Find it all—find it fast in Collegian
classifieds

REBEL WITHOUT A CAUSE

with James Dean

Wednesday March 26

CCA 7, 9, 11 PM $1.00

LEARN WILDERNESS

In the rugged mountains of Wyoming and Washington, NOLS is teaching the essential skills of backcountry living.

On the Alaskan artic tundra and the grasslands of Kenya, East Africa, NOLS students are learning the challenges of enjoying and preserving the wild lands of the earth.

For fifteen years THE NATIONAL OUTDOOR LEADERSHIP SCHOOL has trained wilderness leaders for most of the major outdoor programs in this country. Today, the unique non-profit educational center offers over 30 different backcountry courses which range in length from 2 weeks to 3½ months.

If you want to LEARN WILDERNESS this summer send for your free copy of the 1980 NOLS catalogue of courses.

COLLEGE CREDIT AVAILABLE

Write: NOLS Dept. J
P.O. Box AA
LANDER, WYO 82520
or call (307) 332-4381

NOLS

Straight Talk — First in a Series

Who Says Henna Is Old Fashioned?

By Hasan Elkhatib
Worldwide authority and consultant on henna. BS—MS in Chemistry. Director of Research, Meta Henna International Doesn't henna just turn hair "red"?

Year's ago, you would have been correct. But not today! Henna is far more than just a hair color. It's a wondrous conditioner, and a fabulous shampoo. As well as a glorious Hair Coloring.

Scientific advances have taken henna out of the "mix a paste, put on the hair, and wait 30 minutes for a result you couldn't count on," days into a whole new era.

If henna is so good, why haven't I heard more about it?
Sometimes, good news travels slowly. But more and more people are looking for products made from natural ingredients. They have heard and read about the troubles with ammonia and peroxide. So, today henna is just coming into its own. It has arrived!

What's so special about Meta Henna Creme?
It's what we do with the natural henna leaves that makes our products very special and unique. We grow three varieties of henna—black, red and a neutral. From selected leaves, we make a fine powder and then extract the color. The result is a family of 100% organic, n[illegible]al base, pure leaf henna products in a creme form. And I discovered how to [illegible]duce six different colors, as well as a "neutral." To my knowledge, no one else has achieved this control over the natural henna leaf.

On the hair, Meta Henna Creme seals the hair shaft, makes it smooth and lustrous. It does not penetrate the hair shaft. Thus, because it coats the hair, Meta Henna Creme thickens it, increases body, even helps repair split ends. Importantly, it adds highlights and depth to the hair's natural color—gently, more safely than any other hair color.

I have formulated a complete System of henna products: a Shampoo, the Hair Color, and an Intensified Conditioner. If you would like 2 oz. samples of the Shampoo and Conditioner, send me your name and address, along with $1.00 for postage and handling, to the address below, attention Dept. CM-1.

Do I have to use all three products?
For optimum results, it's best to use the 3 in sequence. First, the pH-balanced Shampoo, then the Hair Coloring, finally the Conditioner to lock-in the color. Of course, the Shampoo and Conditioner may be used separately. Neither will change hair color—but both will give the hair lustre and sheen.

We call our Meta Henna products "Nature's way to youthful hair," and that's exactly what they do.

About Mr. Elkhatib
Mr. Elkhatib has devoted his life to the creation of 100% organic hair care products. He has authored countless articles, lectures world-wide and serves as a consultant for several companies both here and abroad.

Meta Henna International, Inc.
850 Nicholas Blvd. • Elk Grove Village, Illinois 60007 U.S.A.

...Nature's way to youthful hair

These fine Meta Henna Hair Care Products are now available in food and drugs stores everywhere.

USDA A GRADE

Marval Brand Turkeys Fresh 10 - 13 lbs. 65¢ lb

Now is the time to enjoy a delicious, money saving turkey with all the trimmings. These meaty birds are great for family dinners...and the leftovers are perfect for sandwiches. Get your Stop & Shopsworth!

USDA CHOICE Shoulder London Broil Beef Chuck USDA Choice $1.99 lb

Cube Steak Beef Chuck USDA Choice $2.19 lb

26%* Ground Beef Approx. 3lb. chub $1.49 lb
*Contains not more than 26% fat.

Sun Glory Bacon Sliced 1 Pound Package 89¢ lb

Fresh Roasting Chicken Family Feast Brand 5-6 pounds 59¢ lb

Fresh Brisket of Beef For Roasting Flat Cut $1.99 lb

1st of the White Gem Chicken Legs Whole with Thigh "White Gem" 69¢ lb
Delicious broiled or southern fried!

Fresh Cod Steak Bake or fry delicious! $1.69 lb

Domestic Cooked Ham
Sectioned & Formed $1.89 lb
We will slice this good, lean ham to order for you.
Available in stores with a service deli.

Incredible Offer!
EKCO ETERNA Stainless Steel Flatware
THIS WEEK'S FEATURE: Salad Fork 3 Pieces for $1
With each $3 food purchase

EKCO ETERNA Kitchen Tools
THIS WEEK'S FEATURE: Small Turner 2 for $1
With each $3 food purchase

Stop & Shop
Honest values are what we're all about

2 for 1 Photo Sale!
Get an extra set of color prints, FREE of extra charge with every roll of 110, 126 or 35mm print film brought in for processing...now through May 31, 1980.

Stop & Shop French Fries 9 ounce pkg. Reg. or Crinkle Cut 10¢ With Coupon

Chicken of The Sea Tuna 6½oz. can Chunk Light in water or oil 49¢ With Coupon

Tropicana Orange Juice ½ gallon carton 100% Pure 89¢ With Coupon

Scott Towels Jumbo 119 count 1ply pkg. Decorator, Arts & Flowers or Assorted 49¢ With Coupon

5lb bag Potatoes U.S. No.1 Maine 39¢ With Coupon

Stop & Shop Coupon — With this coupon and a $7.50 purchase — 10¢ Regular or Crinkle Cut STOP & SHOP FRENCH FRIES 9oz. pkg.

Frozen — Stop & Shop Coupon — With this coupon and a $7.50 purchase — 49¢ 6½oz. can Chunk Light in water or oil CHICKEN OF THE SEA TUNA

Grocery — Stop & Shop Coupon — With this coupon and a $7.50 purchase — 89¢ ½ gallon carton TROPICANA ORANGE JUICE 100% Pure

Dairy — Stop & Shop Coupon — With this coupon and a $7.50 purchase — 49¢ Decorator, Arts & Flowers or Asst'd. JUMBO SCOTT TOWELS 119 count 1ply pkg.

Grocery — Stop & Shop Coupon — With this coupon and a $7.50 purchase — 39¢ U.S. No. 1 5lb. bag MAINE POTATOES

Produce

SAVE 50¢ — 6.4 ounce tube AIM FLUORIDE TOOTHPASTE — Grocery

SAVE 10¢ — 8oz. container BIRDS EYE COOL WHIP — Frozen

SAVE 25¢ — 32 ounce jar MAMA ROMANO SPAGHETTI SAUCE — Grocery

SAVE 25¢ — Random Weight pkg. STOP & SHOP SHARP CHEDDAR CHEESE - WHITE OR YELLOW BARS — Dairy

SAVE 1.00 — 16 ounce bottle CLAIROL Reg, Oily Dry or Treated CONDITION SHAMPOO — Grocery

SAVE 10¢ — 12oz. can BIRDS EYE AWAKE — Frozen

SAVE 25¢ — 10 ounce jar CHOCK FULL O' NUTS INSTANT COFFEE — Grocery

SAVE 30¢ — STOP & SHOP PIZZA Any Size Sold fresh in our Meat Dept. — Meat

Route 9 at the Hadley-Amherst Line. 8a.m.-10p.m., Mon.-Sat. We redeem your Federal Food Stamps.

Collegian Classifieds

To place a Collegian Classified
•Come to Collegian Office CC 113
•8:45 to 3:45 Mon-Fri
•Classified deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day

Collegian Classified Rates
•15c per word
•Student rate 10c per word
•Cash in advance
•5 consecutive days 5 % discount
•Phone number FREE

AUDIO

SONY one point stereo eletret condenser microphone excellent cond. $25 253-3225

AUTO FOR SALE

FIX YOUR OWN CAR. The Student Auto Workshop offers tools, space, and assistance. Tues, Wed, Thurs 3-9 pm, Fri 12-5, Sat 10-5. Level one CC garage. 545-0673

'73 Toyota Mark II Wagn 73000 mi excellent shape, yours for $1980 phone Kittye 549-5412

Car for Sale: 1970 Pontiac Lemans. Good condition. Runs well. Rebuilt engine. Only problem: transmission bad. $400 or best offer. Worth it! Call: 549-1661. Best bet-nights & mornings.

1970 Volswagon Squareback Radial tires, good engine, 80,000 miles, some rust. $500 or BO call 665-2802

Toyota Landcruiser Parts & Alfa Parts call 648-9197 after 6:00 pm Bernardston

1970 Impala excellent condition, rebuilt small V8, new disc brakes, reupholstered, new radials, over 2,000 invested $800 or BO Jonathan 546-5576

1972 Toyota LC Wagon 4wd runs good call 667-5792 or 527-5464 after 6 PM BO

BENB ON MARS

Martian Highway hosts Aluminum Foil Publishing Party Wed. Mar. 26 QR Disco lots of cartoons and twirleys

ENTERTAINMENT

Soundsystem for Hire perfect for bands, doscos, coffeehouses Rick 584-4105

FOR RENT

One Bedroom in 2 bedroom Cliffside Apartment - Semi-furnished call 665-4602 evenings

Cape Cod Summer Rental 5 bdrms E. Dennis after 5 253-5017

FOR SALE

For Sale used Parachutes. Great for ceiling, wall decorations, many colors $25.00 each. Drop by Parachute Club Office S.U. 309

Mattress brand new innerspring 65 dollars or best offer 253-7067

Fender Jazz Bass BO Peter 546-4449

FOUND

Found-Brown plastic rimmed glasses in Northeast quad. Call Jeff 6-3210

Found folder in GTWR 219. Contains paper on Chemistry Research on DNA call Jeff 253-7208

HELP WANTED

Exp. Cocktail Waitress for late Spring and Summer. Apply Poor Richards 8-9 PM Daily

Paralegal Interns Wanted The Legal services Office has 8 positions available for full time paralegal interns for Fall 1980 semester. You can recieve up to 15 credits from the Office of Internships located at Curry Hicks. These internships will provide exciting, challenging and rewarding work which will include the learning of many legal skills. Interviewing clients, legal research, and maintaining a continuing caseload under supervision of attorneys. Third World students and women are encouraged to apply. Appliations must be submitted by April 1, 1980

INSTRUCTION

Beginner Folk Guitar Lessons Call Mary 256-6719

Sentics Workshop—"The Miracle of the Possible" call Elizabeth Paton 413 549-3880

LOST

Lost Black Lab named Astro Always seen around campus. If anyone has any info please call Scott at anytime 549-6219. Wears blue collar, keep your eyes open friends.

Cross pen engraved SCOTT in SU 409 I think Heineken reward 549-6129

2 Notebooks taken from PHB mensroom near Auditorium at 11:10 Tues. Please return to 406E Brown or call 6-5732

PERSONALS

Pete Jacke call Macky 665-7923

To Bob I met at BKO who when asked to dance said simply "no"; "Hi" from the forward one

To Supressed Women Who Need Help: Come forward and talk to me in complete confidentiality. Please contact me, J.D. at the Collegian Women's Dept. I want to help if I possibly can.

Three females looking to take over a three bedroom apartment in Rolling Green for Fall Semester. Willing to take over lease for summer if necessary. Please call 546-9636 or 546-1867

Oooh, do I love you, with all my heart? I do now, yes I do! Love ya, Tricia!--Dave

Don't graduate without doing it! Get your yearbook portrait taken--call 545-2874 for your appointment. Don't be left out of the 1980 Index

Win $500 cash for vacation this summer. No obligation. To recieve entry form send addressed envelope to Summer Sweepstakes, P.O. Box 730, Couer d'Alene, Idaho 83814

To John M: Here's a Happy 22nd Birthday Wish, filled with love, just for you. Love always, your cute, tiny, Little Pumpkin

Charismatic Prayer & BS Tuesday March 25 CC 911-915 8-10 PM

An empowering interdisciplinary education at a young accredited state college: The Evergreen State College. Programs include political economy, appropriate technology, women's studeies, small-scale farming, expressive arts, outdoor education. Extensive equipment, maximum accessibility. Intimate teacher contact, emphasis on learning and individual projects. BA or BS. On Olympic Penninsula. Be prepared for the contradictions inherent in a state-supported institution. Write: Grapevine: UMass, POB 2618, Olympia, Washington, 98507. Students and Alumni of Evergreen

Go Away. . .with Umass Travel Club Mon (3/24/80) 4:30 at CC 905-909

Slim Whitman for Spring Concert? No way Jose! Texas hates him with passion

Dr. Strangelove Tues March 25 Mahar Aud 7, 9, 11 PM

To my little Karen—Happy 20th Birthday Kerr, you're precious! Love your pal Mar

Joker Joker and Kerr for $100, Jack Correct! A brand new pair of xsulant socks and since its your birthday we'll throw in the pink bathroom scale Happy 20th Love all your xsulant friends.

ROOMATE WANTED

Roomate wanted for Townhouse So Amherst call 253-7905

Female share rm in Brit Man $70/mth Furnished 253-7363 Ellen

Northampton Coop seeks mature sixth non-vegetarian bus route 586-1415

Woman roommate wanted immediately own room in Puffton Village reasonable non-smoker 665-2804

SERVICES

Attorney Jason R. Rosenthal Legal Representation. Income Tax Preparation. Days 584-4285 Evenings 253-7617

TYPING Experiencec typist, reasonable rates 256-6360

UMass Legal Services Office offers free legal services to fee-paying graduate and undergraduate students in the areas of University administrative problems, landlord/tenant disputes, and uncontested divorces and guardianships. LSO also gives advice on Small Claims Court, and limited counselling in criminal matters. Call 545-1995; Room 922 Campus Center UMass

TO SUBLET

2 bedroom apt Colonial Village on bus rte starting June 1 through August call Lisa or Robin 253-3740 evenings

Puffton Village 2 bedroom 2 bath air conditioned pool tennis bus route 210 mo 549-4797 available June 1-August 31

1-4 Bdrms in 4 bdrm apt June-Aug w/option Lori 256-8233

WANTED

Fast immediate cash for gold-school rings-diamonds- silver Jeff anytime 527-7078 586-0180

DJ wanted for party and or formal call 6-9850 6-9851

WANTED TO RENT

UMass students looking to rent house for fall 80 access to bus route necesary contact Cindy 253-7132 or Carolyn 546-5060

NEW!

"Do-it-yourself"
Copy a one-hour cassette in less than 2 minutes.

Make a Copy of your Favorite Cassette For Only *49¢

*Price includes the copy cassette and the Copying Service! Guaranteed perfect monaural copies, every time.

What can you copy?
The potential uses for cassette copies are endless. Here are just a few of the most common applications: lectures, seminars, language labs, meetings, college classes, sermons, sales messages, weddings, interviews, talking letters, family events, relaxations, exercises, word-processing data, and computer programs.

This coupon is redeemable for one (1) cassette copy of your original cassette for only 49¢. Any additional copies of your original cassette are at the prices below. Simply bring your original cassette and this coupon with you. The copy cassette and the copying service are included in one price.

Your Original Cassette Length	Regular Price Per Copy	High-Speed Copying Time
30 minute	$1.89	1 minute
60 minute	$2.59	2 minutes
90 minute	$3.39	3 minutes
120 minute	$4.39	4 minutes

REZOUND CASSETTE COPYING CENTERS in the campus center at umass
This coupon expires 4/2/80 the UNIVERSITY STORE

COMING!
"APPLAUSE"
A Backstage Musical
mar. 27, 28, 29, 30 apr. 3, 4 8 p.m.
bowker auditorium, stockbridge hall
For Tickets Call 545-0783

TGI FRIDAY'S

B. M. O. C.??

TGI FRIDAYS--A National restaurant corporation is looking for the BUSINESS MANGER ON CAMPUS. We need people who can meet the challenge of operating a multi-million dollar business with 150 employess--AND are capable of keeping pace with one of the hottest growth opportunities in any industry.

We will be on campus March 26 & 27. Please call Placement for more information and an appointment.

WINDSHIELDS
Auto Glass Parts

installed While-U-Wait!
(Most parts in stock)
VALLEY Auto Trim and Glass
798 N. King Northampton 584-4837
½ mile North of Calder

Join the Collegian and help us to keep our community informed!

Nuke the Whale by Danny Guidera

4 by Frank Emery

Wimpman by Evan Carlson

Crossword

ACROSS
1 Servant
5 Jai alai racquet
10 Yarn ball
14 Heraldic bearing
15 Church item
16 Unique
17 Plant part
18 Heavenly models
20 Dirigible, e.g.
22 Ontario metal
23 Accordingly
24 Converse
25 Profession
28 Go-getters
32 Arab garment
33 Honeydew, e.g.
35 Auto style
36 Marsh bird
38 Ate
40 Without: Latin
41 Fools
43 Dreamer
45 Beverage
46 Playhouses
48 Turned into money
50 Extinct
51 Garment
52 Purloined
55 Bowls
59 Art work
61 Corner
62 Man's name
63 Green shade
64 Serf
65 Insects
66 Graded

DOWN
1 Plateau
2 Stake
3 Roman road
4 Lower
5 Took
6 Greece, to Greeks
7 Instrument: Suffix
8 Color
9 Coliseums
10 Crepitates
11 Bird
12 Great Lake
13 Well-being
19 Careens
21 Noah's son
24 Melodies
25 Weight unit
26 Disconcert
27 Lift
28 Baseballer — Wagner
29 Girl's name
30 Rajah's wife
31 Sam —: PGA great
34 Applied calcium oxide
37 Free of Pb.
39 Said
42 Pilot
44 Foray
47 Ill will
49 Grudges
51 Range
52 Sponge
53 Insipid
54 Indian
55 Skirt feature
56 Celestial bear
57 Carte
58 Kernel
60 Palm leaf

UNITED Feature Syndicate
Friday's Puzzle Solved

DC Menu

Lunch
Chicken stew
Grilled cheese
Basics lunch
Grilled cheese
Chicken stew
Dinner
Veal parmesean
Baked fish
Basics dinner
Spaghetti
Baked fish

Housing Exemptions

Fall 1980 Housing Exemption Applications are now available in the Housing Assignment Office, 235 Whitmore. Applications are due no later than April 3, 1980.

Applications will not be accepted after this date. Please submit all applications to the Housing Assignment Office, 235 Whitmore.

Thank you.

Spring SHOES to BOOT $5 OFF Spectacular
Welcome the New Manager
Shoes to Boot * Hampshire Mall
$5 OFF with coupon
Except Sale Merchandise
Good thru 3/24-3/29
Classy Selection of Spring Shoes & Handbags
9 West Eastrabs Mia Scandal & Frye Clogs Bass Naturalizer
Hampshire Mall 584-9676
Holyoke Mall 532-3176

Rebates available for dorm problems

By LAURA OWENS
Collegian Staff

Many students on campus who suffer with undue housing problems are unaware that help is available through the UMass Residential Appeals Committee.

Composed of three students and three faculty members, the Residential Appeals Committee hears individual grievances and enables students to receive rebate money for physical deterioration of both dormitories or rooms or any mental hardships suffered. Rebate money is allocated from rent revenues.

A hearing date is then set where the Committee meets with all parties involved.

A student whose room was sprayed for cockroaches by the Physical Plant filed for damage incurred to personal property. The cost to replace the item was $7.50 plus tax and he received $7.50. Another student claimed a leak in his closet caused water damage to pair of leather boots and stained his clother. He was asking $89 for the boots and $3.90 for dry cleaning costs. Compensation in this case was $53.90, taking into consideration depreciation of the damaged articles.

Another student had two pairs of shoes totaling $60 damaged from a leaking roof. She was reimbursed $37. Another student was rebated $7.50 after he reported paint stains on two jackets which were damaged by the physical plant. Two women filed complaints after finding bugs in their closets. The physical plant took three weeks to respond by spraying the room. The bugs returned and the two students received $80 each. And still another student was reimbursed $132.00 for a non-inhabitable room which he had been assigned to.

In Brett dormitory in the Central Residential Area, 170 people filed complaints because they were told their dorm (which they moved out of in December of 1978) would be finished in August, 79. Upon moving back in and paying a $30 increase for a renovated dorm, they found it was not finished. Rooms had no mirrors, there were no shower doors, lounges couldn't be used because of repairs and the noise level was due to construction. There were also several oversights. Renovated as handicapped dorm, only blind student's doors had the room numbers written in Braille.

Also, only the doors of the handicapped rooms are large enough for a wheelchair to fit through, alienating handicapped students. All 170 students who filed were reimbursed $20.

A claim for for deterioration in the dorms can be obtained either from the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy at 420 Student Union, Anne Koskei at Berkshire House or from Dave Soboff in room 442 Cance. The complaint form is then filed at any Residential Area Director's Office in the following locations: Southwest - Jim Wallace in Kennedy Lobby; Northeast/Sylvan in the basement of Leach; and Orchard Hill/Central with Don Pelky in the basement of Baker.

★ Lovich

CONT. FROM PAGE 5

her, that bewitching vocal work would merit immortality.

Many of the praises I've heaped upon Lene's two albums carry over for her UMass appearance. The music was so tight and compelling that the audience was literally on its feet for the entire show. As on record, the band was superb, and Lene's vocals were extemely strong. Unlike virtually any other rock singer (male or female) Lene isn't afraid to open up and let her voice take command.

With the exception of one brief instrumental, all of the songs for the show came from her two albums, and most lived up to or exceeded the recorded versions. As I noted at the beginning of this article, it was really rather surprising how familiar the audience was with her material. Neither of her albums has been a best-seller, and thus far she has received little, if any, airplay on most radio stations. But, somehow, the crowd seemed to know both Lene and her music well, and she rewarded them with one of the best shows this campus has ever seen.

I should also say more than the obligatory one line about the opening act, Bruce Wooley and the Camera Club. Their set was energetic if a bit muddy at times, and consisted largely of material from their debut album. The best received was "Video Killed the Radio Star," a Wooley original better known through the Buggles' rather silly hit version.

★ Stress

CONT. FROM PAGE 3

topics include: The Faces of Depression; Assertion Training; Exercise: The Stress that Reduces Stress; Caring, Feeling, Touching for Relaxation and Stress Reduction; Taking Control: Smoking, Eating, Drinking and Drugs; Meditation; The Ultimate Technique; Anxiety Management and Test Taking; and Stress and Nutrition.

A few of the sessions are designed for individual groups such as: Women: Life Changes and Stress; Women, Health and Stress; Stress and the Bilinqual Student: Identifying Sources and Means of Coping; Stress and the Third World Student; Parent Burnout; and the Hassles of Sexual Liberation: One Male's Point of View.

Evaluation forms will be handed out for those attending to indicate in what areas they feel help is needed. "If a high interest level is shown," said Spring, "I'm sure followup measures will be taken."

According to Spring, several of the sessions have been offered in the past as workshops on campus. There is no fee and no preregistration required.

★ Rape

CONT. FROM PAGE 3

parents or a lawyer can get him in), or home.

"Since the whole philosophy of the juvenile justice system is geared toward keeping the child out of jail," said Lucey, "the offender is more often than not released in the recognizance of his family," and subsequently back out on the street.

He will not even see a probation officer until his court trial, which can be two, three, or even four months later, "which is long," said Lucey.

After his court trial, the youth is then released on certain conditions to his probation officer, whose power it is to arrest him or surrender him to the court if he violates any of the conditions of his probation.

Asked if therapy was one of the conditions, Lucey replied that the offender is only obligated to see his probation officer once or twice a week, "which is really only minor counselling."

"We have no financial resources," he added. "Under the law all we can do is hope someone (an agency) will take them in (for counselling). Sometimes the school will pay for therapy, even residential placement," said Lucey.

SELL IT
SELL IT
in the Collegian Classifieds
SELL IT
SELL IT

AMERICAN MULTI CINEMA
ADULTS $2.75 STUDENTS & SR. CITIZENS with AMC CARD $2.25 TWI-LITE SHOW $1.50 - Special Engagements Excluded Twi-Lite Show - Limited to Seating
TIMES SHOWN FOR TODAY ONLY

HAMPSHIRE 4 — 584-7550 HAMP. MALL ON CAFE SQ.—RT. 9, HADLEY, MASS.
DUSTIN HOFFMAN Kramer vs. Kramer — 9 Academy Award Nominations (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:15 — PG
AUDIENCES WILL SIMPLY CHERISH BREAKING AWAY — 5 Academy Award Nominations (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:15 — PG
Chuck Norris Jennifer O'Neill He hears the silence A FORCE OF ONE (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:30 — PG
Little Darlings (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:30 — R

MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 — 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9—HADLEY, MASS.
PETER SELLERS SHIRLEY MacLAINE BEING THERE — Best Actor Nomination (5:45 @ $1.50) 8:30 — PG
ROY SCHEIDER ALL THAT JAZZ — 9 Acedemy Award Nominations (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30 — R
JOHN RITTER HERO AT LARGE (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45 — PG
James Coan Marsha Mason Chapter Two — Best Actress Nomination (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30 — PG

"THE BEST AMERICAN FILM OF THE YEAR!" "A POWERFUL AND THOUGHT PROVOKING EXPERIENCE!" ACADEMY AWARD NOMINEE BEST DOCUMENTARY FILM OF 1979
THE WAR AT HOME
It started in Vietnam and exploded in the streets of America.
at 6, 8, 10

安城中國飯店
AMHERST CHINESE FOOD
62 Main St 253-7835
"Where you can get the best homestyle Chinese dishes at a very reasonable price."
Closed Wednesdays

INTERNATIONAL WEEK
MONDAY MARCH 24
4:00 Commonwealth Room
Dr. Zev Begin
"Israeli-Arab Conflict"
7:00 Fashion Show
Marks Meadow Aud.
Round the World Women

"DR STRANGELOVE"
Tues, March 25
Mahar Auditorium
$1.00 7. 9. 11 P.M.

Paid Intern Positions
The Housing Administration Intern Program is currently seeking interested freshmen and sophomores for paid positions in our management training program. All majors are encouraged to apply. Applications are currently available at Whitmore, CCEBS, The Woman Center, and BCP and at Berkshire House. For more info call 545-0890, 545-1960, or 546-5532.

FRIDAY, MARCH 28, 1980 AT 8 P.M.
Music of Haydn, Bartok and Schubert
General Public $7, $6, $5
Senior Citizens $6, $5, $4
UMass Student Discount Tickets $3.50, $3, $2.50
TICKETS NOW ON SALE AT FINE ARTS CENTER BOX OFFICE (M-F, NOON-5 P.M.; 545-2511) AND TICKETRON OUTLETS.
Phone Reservations • Mail Orders • Group Discounts • Group Dinner • Theater Packages Available.

Old Dominion's Inge Nissen exults after her twenty points helped the Monarchs defend their national women's basketball title. (AP Laserphoto)

Monarchs retain title

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich. (AP) — With All-Americans Inge Nissen and Nancy Lieberman combining for 32 points, Old Dominion cruised to its second straight Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women college basketball championship Sunday, smothering coldshooting Tennessee 68-53.

Nissen a 6-foot-7 senior forward from Denmark, scored 20 points and Lieberman, a flashy point guard, added 12 for the Lady Monarchs, who never trailed in the game.

Old Dominion led 32-24 at halftime and broke the game open in the early stages of the second half, outscoring the Lady Volunteers 8-2 in the first two minutes. Old Dominion built its lead as high as 18 points before sending in the reserves.

Tennessee, which played Old Dominion even only in the opening phases of the game, shot a miserable 33 percent from the field and made just 13 of 23 free throw attempts.

All-American Jill Rankin topped Tennessee with 17 points but sat out much of the game in foul trouble.

Center Anne Donovan, a 6- foot-8 freshman, had seven points for Old Dominion and blocked a half dozen shots.

The Lady Monarchs finished the year with a 27-game winning streak and a 37-1 record. Tennessee, which finished third in the AIAW finals a year ago, closed out with a 33-5 mark.

In Sunday's consolation game at Central Michigan University's Rose Arena, Evelyn Johnson scored 21 points as South Carolina nailed down third place with a 77-69 victory over Louisiana Tech.

Johnson, a native of nearby Lansing and the sister of pro basketball rookie star Earvin "Magic" Johnson, scored 13 points in the second half, including several key baskets and free throws that thwarted comeback efforts by the Lady Techsters.

Sophomore forward Sheila Foster added 18 points for the winners, who finished their season with a 30-4 mark.

Louisiana Tech, led by center Pam Kelly's 19 points, closed at 40-5.

South Carolina never trailed, leading 34-24 at halftime. Louisiana Tech closed within three points in the second half, but Rita Johnson made three shots from long range and Foster controlled the boards to keep South Carolina in front.

Bruins feel fallout after Creighton firing

BOSTON (AP) — Another National Hockey League season nears an end, and the Boston Bruins' management finds itself scrambling again.

First it was a coach (Don Cherry) who had winning ways but wouldn't listen to the front office. So they fired him.

Then it was a coach (Fred Creighton) who gets along well with management, but whose team had gone into a nosedive — 1-2-4 in the last seven games and winless, 0-1-3, in the last four. They fired him too, on Saturday afternoon, right before the Bruins met Creighton's old team, the Atlanta Flames.

Harry Sinden, the Bruins' general manager, sat behind the bench as coach Saturday and steered them to a 5-2 win over the Flames. Sinden says he will coach the remainder of the season.

The win was nice but did little more than take the edge off the subdued atmosphere in the locker room.

"I really felt bad when I heard the news," said forward Bobby Lalonde, who Creighton brought with him from Atlanta this year. "He's a great individual, but when you get in this game, you have to take the bad with the good. He's my coach and my friend."

Goalie Gerry Cheevver said the firing came unexpectedly. "There seemed to be something in the air that there might be a change, but I didn't think there would. I'm sure it's a shock to Fred, and unfortunately, it's the coach who has to suffer.

"I respected Fred and I am sorry," Cheevers said.

Sinden gave every indication that the firing was amicable and that Creighton is welcome to stay around in management if he wishes.

"Murder," was the way Sinden described his task of breaking the news to Creighton, who was let go by the Flames last year after 4¼ years. He signed a two-year contract with the Bruins last July for $75,000 a year.

"Fred was stunned. He pleaded his case, and I almost changed my mind because he made many valid points. If he wants to stay in the organization, we'll welcome him," Sinden said. Creighton will draw his salary next year, whether he stays with the team or not.

Sinden proved his worth as a coach, taking the Bruins to the Stanley Cup in 1970, then directing Team Canada past the Soviet Union in 1972, his last coaching assignment. Sinden says he doesn't even own a pair of skates and would rather not buy a pair.

"It's very unlikely that I would continue next year," Sinden said, implying that the search is on for a successor to Creighton.

"Maybe it's the players who are wrong," Sinden said. "But there's no way I could replace 20 players. A player will never, ever blame himself, and a coach has to recognize that. We've had some pretty atrocious performances."

Gymnasts finish third in Regionals

The UMass women's gymnastics team finished third in the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women division one eastern meet Saturday at University Park, PA.

Top-seeded Pennsylvania State University won the meet with a team score of 148.55. West Virginia University, seeded second, finished in that spot with a score 135.70, edging the number three seed Minutewomen, who totalled 134.35.

"I think we could have beaten West Virginia," UMass coach Virginia Evans said, "but we had some unfortunate mishaps along the way."

Liz Marino was the top UMass finisher as her all-around total of 34.85 was good for seventh place. Lisa Martin and Karen Clemente turned in scores of 33.95 and 32.30.

Senior Debbie Smith, performing in her last meet with the team, executed her best ever Tsukahara vault, according to Evans.

While it is almost certain the UMass team will not be chosen for the nationals April 4 and 5 in Baton Rouge, LA, according to Evans, Marino and Martin have a chance at being selected.

Sports notices

Schedules for Intramural Soccer and Softball for those teams that met the deadline (Mar. 3rd) are ready to be picked up. Please do so before Spring Recess as games begin March 24th, the first day back.

Intramural Sports Photographs from this semester and last are available—contact Intramural Office, Rm. 215, Boyden 545-2693—Ask for Gene.

Facilities are primarily for the use of students, faculty and staff. Limited use is permitted by spouse/dependents and guests. All participants must present validated identification when entering recreation areas. Your cooperation is appreciated.

RECREATIONAL FEES-Faculty and Staff, Graduate and Cont. Education Students may purchase recreational stickers at Boyden Ticket Office, Room 255, Mon-Fir, 8 AM-12 PM, 1 PM-4:30 PM. Guest passes may be puchased by host members from the Boyden Ticket Office, Mon-Fri., 8 AM-12 PM, 1 PM-4:30 PM, from Boyden/NOPE Building Supervisors, Equip. Cages: Fridays 5-9:00 PM, Sat/Sun. during Recreation Activity hours, Building Supervisors or Equipment Cages. Host MUST show current recreational acivity sticker BEFORE purchasing a guest pass. NOTE: When facilities are not utilized for recreational activity classes, intramural competition or varsity practice is scheduled.

PRETERM
If you have an unwanted pregnancy...
talk with one of our counselors about your decision.
Abortion/Gynecological Care/Vasectomy/ Tubal Ligation
A licensed non-profit Reproductive Health Center
1842 BEACON ST., BROOKLINE, MASS. 02146 (617) 738-6210
PRETERM

CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
Your Local
AMTRAK
Agent
CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
CENTER UNIV OF MASS
AMHERST, MASS 01003 413-545-0500

Day Camp in Bedford seeks
GYMNASTIC COUNSELOR
& Regular Counselors
$good pay$
call 617-275-1392
or write: Bedford Rec. Dept.
16 South Rd.
Bedford, MA 01730

Our Bass
Spring Line Is Arriving Daily

Heartfelt Leather
103 N. Pleasant St. Amherst
10 6:00 Mon. Sat. 253-5135

The Stables
MONDAY
11 am
Reuben Sand. $1.75
4 pm
Spaghetti & Meat Sauce (seconds on us) $1.99
TUESDAY
Mushroom & Cheese Crepes $1.75
THURSDAY
Pot Roast $2.89
WEDNESDAY
Roast Chicken $2.75
FRIDAY
Potato Pancakes with Ham $2.10
DON'T HORSE AROUND AROUND, EAT AT THE STABLES
Rt. 9 Hadley Opposite Mt. Farms Mall

Sports

Celtics sputter roped by Nets

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer

BOSTON — Mike Newlin poured in 38 points to lead the New Jersey Nets to a 101-96 National Basketball Association victory over the Boston Celtics Sunday.

The win snapped a four-game losing streak for the Nets, who beat the Celtics for the first time in six games this season.

New Jersey led 78-67 early in the fourth quarter, but Boston scored the next seven points to close the gap to four. Gerald Henderson started the streak with a driving layup; Larry Bird followed with a threepointer for his only basket from the field, and Eric Fernsten hit a layup.

But, the Nets took control and scored the next eight points, with Newlin getting four of them, to make the score 86-74 with 7:52 left in the game.

The closest the Celtics could come the rest of the way was five points.

New Jersey scored the first 10 points of the game and led 26-20 after the first period. The score was tied 49-49 at half time, and the Celtics scored the first three points of the third quarter.

The Nets countered with 10 unanswered points and never trailed again.

Maurice Lucas scored 16 for the Nets, and Robert Smith added 14. The Celtics were led by Henderson with 16 and Pete Maravich with 14.

Gerald Henderson of the Celtics blocks a shot by Robert Smith of the New Jersey Nets in yesterday's Nets win. (AP Laserphoto)

Rick Burleson of the Red Sox throws to first to complete a double play in yesterday's 4-2 Boston win. (AP Laserphoto)

Harriers impressive in Holyoke

By JANE WOLFSON
Collegian Staff

Amid the over 1200 runners competing in the annual Holyoke St. Patrick's Day Road Race, members of the UMass track team made impressive showings placing five men within the top 36 spots Saturday afternoon.

Sophomore Steve Snover finished first for the Minutemen placing 16 overall. Cross country captain Rick Walls finished directly behind Snover in seventeenth place. Miler John Caffrey was the first Irishman to cross the line on the afternoon in the 24 spot, and was awarded a fifth of irish whiskey, a case of beer, and an Adidas sweat suit for his efforts.

Sophomores Kevin Corcoran and Dan Fitch also competed on the eight mile course with Corcoran finishing 26 and Fitch 36.

The race was won by Chicopee native Dan Dillon with a time of 35:10. Placing fifth was UMass women's cross country coach Pete Pftizinger, at 36:40. Defending champion Mike Slack from the Chicago Track Club finished fourth.

First ever cash softball tournament slated; $100 prize for winners

By DONNA SULLIVAN
Collegian Staff

UMass students will get the chance to play the field for money when the intramural department holds its first week-end softball tournament with a 100 dollar first place prize. The tourney will be held May 3-4 with first, second and third place cash prizes.

Gene Grzywna, IM staff assistant, brought the tourney idea, along with numerous others, back from an internship at the University of Miami.

According to Grzywna, in Miami, beer companies sponsor various events including the softball tournament and first prize is ten cases of beer, but then the drinking age in Florida is 18.

Up north is Massachusetts where one must be at least 20 to indulge in the brew, local softball tournaments offer money for prizes, along with the 100 dollar first prize 50 dollars will be given to the runner up and 25 dollars to the third place team. There will be men's and women's divisions in the double elimination tourney. If less than 32 teams enter, it will be single elimination and without the cash prizes.

A week-end tennis tourney will be another special event sponsored by the intramural department this spring. Students will be able to compete in singles, doubles and mixed doubles tennis action April 12-13. According o Grzywna, the IM department would like to make it an annual event and this year they are going to see what kind of participation they get. Each division will be single or double elimination based on the number of entries.

Rules governing regular intramural competition will apply to both special events, and sign ups will be sometime during the week before each event.

Along with the two special events Grzywna has brought some new ideas to the UMass intramural department, one of which is a hyped up promotion campaign. Table tents for sutdents to read while delighting upon the DC food, and Pabst posters in all the dorms are two parts of the campaign. Both list the events and when the entries are due.

A mailing list of team mangers has been compiled under Grzywna's direction of all team managers and academic departments to make them aware of upcoming events.

Grzywn'a plan is to make the entire UMass population more aware of intramural activities. "We are presenting the intramural program in a different way," he said, "I have been able to carry out the new ideas and they seem to liven up the program. We are actively going out and seeking people to participate," he said.

There is a marked decrease in participation in the five major sports, some are down by one half or more. "Getting as many students as possible involved, is the intramural philosophy and that is what we are trying to do," he said.

Grzywna has been with the UMass intramural- department for four years. He started as an undergrad for two years, worked as a graduate assistant last year and is back this semester as a staff assistant. He was in Miami last semester on a sports manger internship. Grzywna has also run the IM summer program for the past two summers.

Cards, Bruins go for title

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS — For the teams involved, the NCAA basketball championship game Monday night will be just like lookmg in the mirror.

"It's going to be a classic matchup of two quick teams," underscored Louisville Coach Denny Crum Sunday in the ceremonial pre-game press conference prior to the game against UCLA.

There's more to it than that, though.

Along with the similar attributes of quickness, the finalists also have relatively short lineups and are similarly studded with young players. Louisville has three sophomores and a freshmen among its top five players and UCLA starts an allfreshman backcourt.

The comparisons continue down to the type of offenses the teams run — the high-post. Both coaches got the idea from former UCLA Coach John Wooden.

There's a reason for that in Crum's case, of course. He played at UCLA and coached there under the ultra-successful Wooden, who won 10 NCAA championships with the Bruins.

"I had the opportunity to learn from the best coach I've ever seen," Crum said about Wooden.

Crum also had the opportunity to learn from his own experience in these NCAA playoffs. He coached in the 1972 and 1975 championship round, ironically losing both times to UCLA in the semifinals.

He holds no animosity against UCLA as a result of those losses, however.

"I wouldn't be here today without them," said Crum. "I learned everything I know from UCLA."

One of the crucial things that Crum learned was the importance of the pressing defense — a tactic that has carried the tough Cardinals through the Midwest Regionals and past Iowa into the national final with a stately 32-3 record.

"A lot of people look at us as a run-and-gun team," said Crum, "but our strong point is our defense. You don't get this far without it."

Most everyone in Market Square Arena, though, no doubt will be more cognizant of Louisville's offense — particularly, Darrell Griffith's offense. The Louisville "skywalker," with the 48-inch verticle jump, scored 34 points in the Cardinals' 80-72 victory over Iowa in Saturday's semifinals.

UCLA Coach Larry Brown hopes to keep the 6-foot-4 guard considerably below that figure Monday night.

"We haven't decided yet who's going to guard Griffith," said Brown.

NUMMO

March 24, 1980 Volume 9, Issue 18

Coalition to fight for QUE TAL AMIGOS

The Coalition for Public Involvement in Public Radio has been formed to defend the Spanish-language program Que Tal Amigos from cutbacks on WFCR-FM. Members of the local Hispanic community and other supporters of the program have been engaged in a struggle since last December, when newly-arrived station general manager Robert Goldfarb announced that the program would have to be cut back because the station, he said, "has other priorities."

The Coalition presented its list of demands at the press conference. Some of the demands are as follows:

Suspend Robert Goldfarb
The governing board of WFCR must include at least two Hispanics and two Blacks
Que Tal Amigos must stay on prime time
More hours of Hispanic programming
Que Tal Amigos must be produced by paid professionals
WFCR cease to impose non-minority ideology and programming on minority producers
The WFCR governing board publicize WFCR budget allocations and expenses

Que Tal Amigos is presently scheduled to be moved from prime time to late in the evening and its hours reduced from six a week to only two a week, starting April 1. By July 1 the program is to be produced entirely by volunteers instead of the two professionals who have been responsible for the program for ten years.

The coalition, which includes both Latino and non-Latino individuals and organizations from the Five College Area, said at a press conference last Tuesday that "WFCR, as a public station, should serve the needs of the total community, which is composed of different ethnic and language groups." WFCR's listening area includes western Massachusetts, the Hartford area, and parts of Rhodeisland and New York.

The WFCR governing board is the Western Mass. Broadcasting Council, and it held a public hearing in the Campus Center last month. A pro-Que Tal Amigos demonstration was held at that time. At the hearing members of the local Hispanic community and their supporters expressed their opposition to the attacks on Hispanic programming, pointing out the importance of Que Tal Amigos to the Hispanic communities in WFCR's listening area.

At the hearing the Council passed a previously-prepared resolution establishing an advisory committee which would make recommendations to WFCR on Latino programming. The committee was to report back by May 10, but the changes in hours in the program are scheduled to go into effect on April 1.

The coalition thus characterized the advisory committee as a "buffer" which would serve to dampen opposition to the cutbacks. Goldfarb, in a recent memo to the Broadcasting Council, said that he was pleased with the outcome of the public hearing, stating that it was a "safety valve".

The coalition spokespeople said that copies of the demands would be sent to the Council, and also to the UMass trustees who are responsible to the Federal Communications Commisssion for WFCR's operations. The coaltion members said that, if necessary to defend the program, they would contact the FCC themselves, publicize the case nationally, and ask listeners to withhold monetary support to WFCR until the problem is cleared.

Speaking for the coaltion, Marcel Ringawa, a UMass student, said that although the group is primarily concerned with Que Tal Amigos, it intends to work for public involvment in general, in the decision-making at WFCR. The coaltion will be holding a meeting in the Campus Center on the 9th floor this Tuesday at 7:30 pm.

Carlos Valdes

Meet the World at the International Fair

By Tomas Petersen

Once a year people in the 5 College Area get the opportunity to expereince an all-day event celebrating the diverse cultures of the world. Music, food, dance, handicrafts, informational material, clothes, and exhibits from all over the world come together in one organized event: the International Fair. It will be on Saturday March 29 in the Campus Center auditorium from 11am to 4:30pm.

The International Fair is a yearly event presented by the International Students Association, the representative organization of the foreign students at UMass. There people from 90 different countries in this area, and the I.S.A. organize the Fair as a means of bring them together in an effort to promote the appreciation of people's cultures.

Booths from the different countries circle the inside of the campus center auditorium, and there will be performances on stage throughout the day. Featured among these are a classical Thai dancer, song and dance by Les Petits Chanteuts de la Vallie de Appiges, an Indian classical dancer, Irish music and much, much, more.

The I.S.A. is organizing a raffle, and the drawing for prizes will be at 3:30pm at the Fair. The major prizes will include a black and white TV and meals at local restaurants.

In the evening, starting at 9pm there will be a Not-Just a Disco Dance in celebration of the Fair in the Auditoruim. Everybody is invited to come and dance to the beat of reggae, new wave, disco and funk.

The Fair Will be preceeded by the International Week which will be made up of various events each day, including two separate discussions on the question of Palestime, a slide show on Afghanistan, and a lecture on mental health in Cuba. On Tuesday night there will be a Franco fete, featuring the film "The Red Ballon" and French entertainment. Thursday will be Turkish night, with music, dancing, slides and food. Friday will be India Night, featuring an award winning dramatic film.

For further details see the Collegian pages or stop by the International Table in the campus center this week. See you at the fair.

Third World Students Unite

News Notes: Channel 4 News in Boston reported that on March 18th Third World Students at Harvard University charged that institution with racism and protested their insensitivity to the needs of Third World Students. The protest was organized by a coalition from the Black Student Association and the Asian Student Association at Harvard. They demanded that Harvard create an Ethnic Studies program, increase Third World tenured Faculty, increase Third World Admissions staff, provide more financial aid for students and provide a Third World Center. They called on Harvard to pay for these demands by increasing their fundraising skills which they said Harvard was known for Nationwide. They also said if Harvard does not comply they will organize a drive to get the Alumni to stop their support to the institution.

Third World Organizational Fair

By now your organization must be aware that the budgets go before the Senate in the spring and all Third World Organizations are in a critical state. The anomosity on this campus among Third World Students has gotten to the point where it is threatening the existence of yours and other Third World Organizations in the future. It's time to Unite, This is Our Struggle!

On Saturday March 29th, there will be a Third World Organizational Fair, consisting of all our our groups in a combined effort to recruit, young energetic new members. It's imperatives to rebuild our strength in numbers before going to the Senate. The affair will be all day, including; speakers, food, music, and most importantly it will provide an opportunity for each group to express why people should get involved.

The following information should be available at the Fair for interested students:

- A description of your organization and goals
- Officers
- Office location and hours
- When the meetings or events for this semester:
- What can the students do:

This will be one of the last chances for each Third World Organization to demonstrate their strength and support for each other so our efforts and groups don't become a thing of the past. So spread the WORD!!!

Support grows for Willie Sanders

from the Guardian
Boston

"I'm going to give you a notion of what it's all about," Clarence Norris told law school students and supporters of his up victim Willie Sanders. "I've gone as far as you can go in this system — death row."

The last surviving member of the Scottsboro Boys was referring to the racist system of justice that put him on Alabama's death row for five years for a rape that never occurred. The same system has Willie Sanders, a Boston Black, facing several possible life terms for three Brighton rapes he did not commit. Norris, sentenced to death in 1931 and on death row until 1936, was finally pardoned in 1976 in what was the most famous rape frame up in U.S. history.

Norris, 68, addressed the crowd at Northeastern University March 13 as part of a 3-day tour of Boston to put the Sanders case in an historical perspective and build support for the Black house-painter. His tour was sponsored by the Northeastern chapter of the National Lawyers Guild and the Willie Sanders Defense Committee.

Sanders was arrested solely because a rape took place in a building where he worked and it was committed by a Black man, according to the defense committee. There had also been a series of rapes in the area, leading to loud demands for police action.

But overwhelming evidence pointed to Sander's innocence. He was at home with his family on the day of the rape: Christmas Day 1978. He matched the assailant's description only slightly. Last November, a multinational jury with nine women speedily acquitted him of that rape.

Sanders, however, faces trial for three more sexual assaults, despite the prosecution's admission that it has already pr[illegible] [illegible]nest case.

Police racism in the framing of Sanders and their apparent indifference to apprehending the actual rapist or rapists have also shown that "the police are no more concerned about the safety of women than they are about third world people,'" According to Sunny Robinson of the Sanders Defense Committeee and the National Alliance Against Racist and Political Repression (NAARPR). A variety of feminist, antiracist and constitutional rights groups, including the Women Unite to Take Back the Night movment, have joined in the demand for Sanders' freedom.

The increasing effectiveness of the Sanders Defense Committee has resulted in surveillance and investigation of the defense committee by the Suffolk County district attorney's office.

Before the November trial, District Attroney Newman Flanagan, a Boston antiabortion leader, subpenaed five defense committee members and the organization's records of financial contributors, according to John Roberts of the Civil Liberties Union of Mass. (CLUM). The subpenas were quashed when they were challenged by CLUM lawyers as violations of the five's First Amendment rights.

The Sanders case took on a whole new dimension," according to Roberts, when the New England Telephone Co. notified Magnolia Sanders, Sander's sister and leader of the defense committeee that her August-Nobember phone records had been secretly subpenaed by Assistant District Attorney Sandra Hamlin. Magnolia Sanders was not notified until Nov. 23, the date of her brother's acquittal, because the district attorney can prohibit the phone company from notifying the customer involved for 90 days.

Even the liberal daily Boston Globe argued in a recent editorial, "Secret police activities against political organizations...cannot be justified."

The CLUM has sued the district attorney's office on behalf of the defense committee.

EAY&CV

Letter to the Editor

By Stephen J. Nojeim

It is obvious from his article (Nummo News 3-10-80) that Foad Vafaei needs a lesson in capitalism. But before that, I think it's important to clear up his claim that 1.6 percent of the U.S. population ownes over 80 percent of all corporate stock. The fact is the 60 percent of all corporate stock outstanding is controlled by workers' pensions funds.

Now on with the lesson. The theory behind Capitalism is the "invisible hand" first proposed by Adam Smith in the 18th century. When all individuals set out to better their own lots in life, they do so with a net benefit to soceity as a whole. For any individual to become wealthy, s-he must provide a service for which the rest of the individuals in the society are willing to pay. The more valuable the service performed, logically, the greater the reward. The profit motive may not be the most selfless way to build society. It certainly is not an altruistric way. But it is the way that leads to the best quality of life for the greatest portion of the population. You don't see other Socialist countries pouring money and technology into helping Third World countries in their quest for modernization. The reason is because they don't get anything out of it.

Take a look at what our miltinational corporations have provided for developing countries in exchange for raw materials and petroleum. Third World countries now worry less about starvation, disease and shelter. American Capitalism has brought them advanced health care and medicine, schools, transportation and communication systems, and the technology for increased production of food and better sanitation.

American government may, as Mr. Vafaei suggests, work hand in hand with American big business. This is only because our government realizes that business is the provider of jobs for the nation's work force. Without industry we'ld all be farmers, praying every summer for good weather so we don't starve during the following winter. The converse of his statement, however, is false: American big business does not work hand in hand with American government. As evidence, consider that the American Business Association condemned almost unanimously the federal bailout of the Chrysler itself.

Capitalism -- and the competitive forces that arise naturally from it - is the reason Americans can afford to be the consumers we are. With one State-run corporation existing for the production of each commodity, as is the case in Socialist countries, there is little incentive for efficiency and quality. In Capitalism corporate survival depends on efficiency. Businesses are searching constantly for - inventing - ways to produce goods, seen as desirable by consumers, at lower cost. They do it for profit but the State-run monopolies don't do it at all. Evidence for this statement includes the two major State-run "businesses" in the United States: the rail roads and the postal service. The American rail system has been in a constant state of decline ever since the federal government began regulating the fares it charges and the routes it services. The postal system has been run at a deficit every year since its inception. Why? Inefficiency caused by the absence of competitive forces.

My final argument is with Mr. Vafaei's statement that American mass media molds us into standard models of behavior. American mass media provides choices. Right here in Amherst we can choose from at least eight television stations, countless radio stations, and many, many newspapers, including the anti-American publications our government allows to be disseminated freely. In Socialist countries there is one State television station, one State newspaper, and the movies are screened by the government. The State determines what it wants its populace to see and read. A constitutional amendment prevents this censorship in America.

If "the Capitalist system makes consumption-hungry, irrational, compulsive buying machine of us all," it is not saying much for the intelligence of the human race. Capitalism has created choice. It is up to each individual to use it wisely. Americans may choose the hospital in which we are treated, the foods we eat, the books we read, the colleges we attend, and the cities and homes in which we live. If Mr. Vafaei believes that Capitalism is evil, it follows that he believes choice is evil. I relish the freedom of choice I have as an American Capitalist, and I will go to war - if that's what it takes - to protect my freedom from anyone who attempts to deprive me of it.

Convenant with Apartheid

Monday, March 24th at 8pm the son of Meanachem Begin, Israel's Prime Minister, Ze'ev Binyamin Begin, will lecture on "The Middle East Post Camp David." The lecture that will be held in the campus center room 804-808 will provide students the opportunity to question the speaker on issues of grave concern to the Third World.

It was reported in all the major News Services that Manachem Begin and Egyptian President Sadat will meet separately at Camp David because of the breakdown in the Palestinian "autonomy" talks that are targeted to be resolved by May 26th 1980. The deadlock has been created mostly because of the Israeli governments insistence on seizing more and more land from Palestinians to create Israeli settlements in violation of their own agreements at Camp David over two years ago. Palestinians for example in the West Bank have lost more than one fourth of their lands, they have been denied control of their own water resources and are completely surrounded by settlements hostile to their presence and the Israeli Army.

Channel 4 News reported March 19th that Defense Minister Ezen Weizman went on a secret three day mission to racist South Africa to discuss their mutual Defense concerns. This meeting further demonostrates the much discussed relations Israel continues to court with the South African Government and is a matter of grave conern to many. A mutual defense pact clearly indicates Israel's rediness to defend the racist South African Government that most nations condemn.

This lecture therefore, should provide the opportunity to clarify from a well informed Israeli source precisely what this convenant with Apartheid is and its implications.

BLACK HISTORY: What it is

The Frontiermen

By Debra Williams

When we look at Westerns whether on television or at a movie theatre we rarely see a black man or woman. Is it because blacks did not go West? This is not true because there were quite a few black cowboys. Bill Pickett and Nat Love are just a few of the many blacks who went West.

BILL PICKETT

Most people have never heard of Bill Pickett, a black cowboy who invented the art of "tailing" and "bulldogging," which have become two permanent attractions in all rodeo touraments. "Dusky Demon" as most people called Bill, parentage was a mixture of Indian and black. His mother was a full-blooded Choctaw Indian and his father was of mixed Indian and black extraction. Despite the fact he was raised in Mexico and the scarcity of black blood in his veins, Dusky Demon considered himself to be a black man all of his life.

Bill Pickett was admired by most of the cowboys of his era because of his art of mastering the rodeo touraments. In 1905, he joined Colonel Zack Miller's Wild West extravaganza. Being a horsemen by nature Dusky became the star attraction. He was a marvelous horsemen and he could rope a steer (bull) under tremendous odds.

For example, while in Mexico in 1908, Miller wagered $5,000 that Pickett could stay in the arena with any bull of the Mexican's choice for 10 minutes. While accomplishing this feat, Dusty was almost killed by a bottle which was thrown at him while he was roping the bull. If it hadn't been for a fellow cowboy, who distracted the bull at the end of the 10 minutes, Dusky Demon would have died. But instead Dusky went on to become a well known cowboy in his circle.

NAT LOVE

In June 1854, Nat Love, a slave child was born in Davidson County, Tennessee. He grew up with very little education and his first job was taming colts at a neighbor's ranch. He was paid 10 cents for each animal which he conquered. While working on the ranch, Love became very interested in riding horses. One day, he was challenged by a group of white youths to ride a wild stallion. They said that they would pay him 25 cents if he could stay on a horse of their choice without falling. Since Love had a special talent with horses, he was able to stay on the horse for 45 minutes and he won the bet.

Realizing the talent which he had, he decided that the only place for him to make it was out West. For the next three years, he became one of the thousands of black cowboys riding the Panhandle. Love developed into an all around cowboy, and like most of the frontiersmen of his time, he spoke Spanish fluently and more than once he was the best man in his crew to converse with the Mexicans.

In 1876, Love won every event in a Riding, Roping, and Shooting Contest organized by the gambling and mining men of Deadwood. Here is where he earned his title of "Deadwood Dick." Deadwood was a master of the rodeo activities. He was a cowboy in heart and soul.

Since the only recounts of his adventures are those written by him, most people are likely to believe that his memoirs are not as authentic as Bill the Kid or Jesse James. But still Deadwood was a black man who made a living as a cowboy until he turned in his spurs and ropes and became a "red cap" on the Santa Fe train.

El Salvador: civil war beginnining

from the Guardian

A general strike in El Salvador called on March 17 ended in gun battles between the government and the popular forces as the left fought back against increasing repression.

The strike was called by the Revolutionary Coordinator of the Masses, the organization representing all popular forces of the left. It successfully shut down the capital city of San Salvador.

Shooting broke out, however, in the capital as well as in the major cities. Bombs exploded in government buildings. Reportedly, a 3-hour gun battle raged at the National University between the popular forces and government security units. Conservatively, 60 people were killed in the day's confrontations.

The general strike, undertaken in defiance of the state of siege, was the first coordinated effort by the popular organizations to strike back at the wave of government repression begun at the end of the first week in March.

The new repression occurred simultaneously with a program of agrarian reform and bank nationalizations. Since the reforms were announced, over 70 people have been killed by security forces or right-wing death squads. This brings the total dead in the first tow-and-one half months of 1980 to over 700. Several key leaders of the left have been among those killed.

Officially, U.S. military involvement is supposed to be still in preparation. A military aid package for El Salvador, including arms and military advisors, has been presented to Congress. Since the $5.7 million arms request is a recycling of already appropriated funds, Congress is given 15 days to express its disapproval. The 15 days is up on March 19.

According to Washington sources, $300,000 for Mobile Training Teams--i.e, training advisors--was approved for El Salvador in December. The sale of $200,000 in riot control equipment was authorized by the U.S. government in November. And El Salvador still has almost $475,000 in military funds "in the pipeline" from previous years' authorizations.

The government of El Salvador refused U.S. military aid in 1977 after being criticized for human rights abuses. It however continued to build its military capability with weapon sales from Israel, Brazil and France.

As the bloodshed continues, government and military personnel openly admit that their strategy is reform with repression. The reform is designed to win the support of the masses while the repression. The reform is designed to win the support of the masses while the repression is geared to decapitate the left of its leadership.

The Salvadorean and U.S. governments hope that the promise of one's own land will be tantalizing to landless farmworkers. A U.S. official was quoted as saying that the nationalizations were intended to make capitalists out of the hundreds of thousands of rural workers. One U.S. official was quoted by the New York Times saying "There's no one more conservative than a small farmer. We're going to be breeding capitalists like rabbits."

The winning of the rural sector to the new plan will be difficult, however, since repression continues on a massive scale. In parts of Chaletenango, a northern province, people do not sleep in their homes at night for fear of National Guard searches. Last week in the eastern area of La Union, 500 peasants and rural workers reportedly fled guard attacks and took refuge in the offices of the Archbishop in San Salvador, a highly vocal opponent of the government's repression.

Pesants have also reportedly taken refuge on the campus of the National University. At the same time, strong pressure is being aplied by the rural workers on the popular organizations, especially the People's Revolutionary Bloc, to give them arms to fight back.

adult trial

Orangeburg, S.C.

The 13-year-old white youth charged in the Santee Massacre murders will be tried as an adult and not as a juvenile, according to Orangeburg County Family Court Judge Alvin Biggs. Biggs also set a bond of $150,000 for Brian Sanders.

The Sanders youth has been charged with two counts of murder and two counts of assault and battery with intent to kill for the Jan. 21 shotgunning of four Black children.

The children were attacked without warning as they played within a few hundred yards of their homes in Santee, S.C. Eight-year-old Juanit Summers and 9-year-old Kevin Gadson were both killed instantly. Two other children were injured.

Orangeburg County Sheriff Vance Boone stated last week that although he has found no motive for themurders, his office has never seriously believed that racims was the cause. Blacks in the area disagree, citing the region's long history of attacks on Black people.

Guardian

CONGRESSIONAL BLACK CAUCUS CALLS PRESIDENT'S BUDGET "DISASTROUS" FOR THE AMERICAN PEOPLE

The President's Fiscal Year 1981 Federal Budget is an unmitigated disaster for the poor, the unemployed and minorities. The budget is deceptive and the American people have been misled as to its meaning. There are real suts in domestic program spending, budget policies which will increase unemployment and a massive long-term increase in military spending. Yet, the President's budget has been presented to the American people as one which continues current services for domestic programs while making modest defense spending increases.

Nothing could be further from the truth. This is a budget which will, by the Administration's own admission, increase unemployment by 1 and a half million persons to 7.5 percent by the end of 1980.

This is a budget which has the Administration postponing the Full Employment Act's unemployment target of 4 percent unemployment for two more years until 1985, and the inflation target of 3 percent for five years until 1988.

This is a budget which not only increases the military budget by 5.4 percent above inflation rates in Fiscal Year 1981, but then locks in an additional 4.3 percent in FY 1982, 4.4 percent more in FY 1983, 4.2 percent in FY 1984, and 4.2 percent more in FY1985 with only the passage of the Fiscal Year 1981 budget. This means the military budget which stood at $127.8 billion in 1979 will be over $248 billion in FY 1985.

This is a budget which as a whole continues at a current service level, but which, because of the massive defense increase, clearly cuts social programs below even the levels they were openly cut to last year.

This is a budget which claims to initiate a new $2 billion youth jobs program, but which actually will give half that amount to school systems for illusory benefits, and provide few new jobs or training opportunities with the other half. In fact, there will be a devasting two year delay before the program becomes effective.

And this is a budget which, because it implements the same ineffective economic policies of several years, will neither reduce unemployment nor inflation nor the deficit. In fact, at the same time as the Administration continues to call 'inflationary' spending for the programs which could make the unemployed productive, tax-paying workers, it massively increases defense spending, the most inflationary and waste-ridden Federal expenditure of all. And by focusing on the effect on inflation, it ignores the very reason for the budget -- the well-being of our people.

Why has the public been led to believe that this budget proposal makes little change from last year? That impression has been created through a failure to look behind the numbers and the rhetoric.

The employment budget and policy is the clearest example. First, the Administration which demanded flexibility in the Humphrey-Hawkins Act timetable, used that flexibility rather than offering alternative economic policies. After following economic policies which are creating a recession and increasing unemployment in an ineffective effort to stem inflation, it tells us that 4 percent unemployment is an unrealistic goal for 1983. The Administration also assumes "high employment" to be a 5.1 percent unemployment rate, in direct contravention of the Full Employment Act.

If the white male unemployment rate could stand at 3.7 percent at the end of last year, why cannot the same be done for the rest of the nation? It is not inflationary to hire Blacks, women, Hispanics and youth who could produce needed goods and provide needed services. Are Blacks to stand silent when the official Black unemployment rate rises from 11.4 percent in November to 12 percent in December to 12.6 percent last month?

The budget actually reduces the number of job slots under the Title VIpublic service jobs program. By providing funds for only 450,000 jobs slots under the Title II and Title VI programs, it provides for less than one-half of the level authorized by law to respond to the unemployment rate of 7.5 percent which the Administration itself, predicts.

What of the new $2 billion youth employment program? Only $300 million of that amount is requested for youth employment programs in Fiscal Year 1981, and only $100 million, or about 9.8 percent above current outlayings, will actually be spent in FY 81. Most of this coming year's money -- $900 million in budget authority -- is to be spent for training through the same public schools which have failed to train too many of our young people in the past. In addition, because the program is forward funded, it would not become fully operational until Fiscal Year 1982. The number of service years under the Youth Employment and Demonstration Project Act, Summer youth and Job Corps programs actually declines from 404,000 in FY '80 to 403,000 in FY '81.

But most of all, the misdirected economic policies which have put youth unemployment at 16.3 percent, and Black youth unemployment at 37.2 percent in January, will lead to an increase, rather than a decrease, in the youth unemployment rate.

Our young people are being told that money can be found to send them to war but not to put them to work. They are held hostage to the military budget.

Much is also made of the housing budget. We are toald that the number of subsidized housing units will increase by 24 percent to 300,000 for Fiscal Year 1981. Yet 300,000 subsidized units is what the Administration claimed it was providing for Fiscal Year 1980, but provided money for far fewer, and only 240,000 are now expected to be produced. And the 300,000 figure was itself roundly criticized last year as a significant decrease from the 400,000 subsidized units provided for in recent years.

There are further deceptions in a budget which claims to hold poor people harmless. The budget for the revenue program, set again at $6.9 billion, does not add any money, much less the increase necessary to cover inflation. So-called "Cash Management Initiatives," whereby tax receipts will be collected earlier in the year, is used to create the illusion of a lower-deficit. These manipulations of budget figures are still being analyzed, but the massive increase in the military budget at the same time as the overall budget remains level tells us that there are many more real cuts in domestic programs.

The military budget is most frightening of all. Prepared even before the Russian invasion of Afghanistan, the military budget is increased over 5 percent beyond inflation. And Secretary of Defense Brown has already informed the House Armed Services Committee that he will be back for further supplemental requests during the coming months.

When we read that other countries have subjugated domestic needs to their military machine we should understand that that is exactly what this budget is doing to our own country.

Most terrifying is that this is really a watershed year for the military budget. If Congress approves this 5 percent real increase, it is setting in motion weapons and personnel expenditures which will require increases of at least 4 percent each year through Fiscal Year 1985 and beyond.

The American public must become involved in the debate on this budget. The shape of our lives for many years is at stake, and for many, if not all of us, it is our very lives which are at stake.

The Reality of the Afghanistan Crisis

Part 2

Greg Tarpinian

What is Really Happening?

To this point, the evidence suggests that by inciting fear into the hearts and minds of the American public the media blitz about Afghanistan has made it easier for the Administration and the Pentagon, along with the major weapons producers, to carry out the war plans they have been developing for the past year or so. As in the past, Anti-Sovietism is the chief mechanism through which it has instigated the war hysteria, it began with the hullabaloo over Soviet troops in Cuba and the detainment of the Soviet ballerina at Kennedy airport. Each of these events was met by laughter, by the public. The Afghanistan situation is the newest attempt at developing an Anti-Soviet, pro-Cold War viewpoint on the part of the American public. Thus far, it has been more successful, but that is because the real issues have not been exposed on a mass basis.

The facts speak for themselves. The Carter Administration has been talking about Detente and Salt II, but is still intent on making it possible for the U.S. to strike first with nuclear weapons against the Soviet Union. In the so-called "Carter Doctrine" speech, he accused the Soviet Union of not reciprocating U.S. moves towards peace, and of being the number one threat to world peace. If we look at the events of the past year we can see that this is nothing but a hoax, an attempt, along with all of the others, to move the U.S. to a war footing.

In the first place, the Soviet Union proposed a total ban on the production of any new intercontinental ballistic missles. The U.S. rejected it. The Carter Administration rejected Soviet proposals to end all nuclear weapons testing. The U.S. rejected a Soviet proposal on mutal balanced force and equal troop reductions in Europe, a proposal initially put forth by NATO.

Following the Soviet announcement of a unilateral withdrawal of 20,000 troops and 2,000 tanks from the territory of the German Democratic Republic, and a unilateral proposal to withdraw Soviet missles from Central Europe, the Carter Administration forced the NATO alliance to accept 572 additional Cruise and Pershing II missles in Western Europe -- missles which can reach and destroy all Soviet cities. At the same time, Carter announced the decision to increase the military budget five percent above the rate of inflation for the next five years.

Simultaneously, the Administration has ordered the formation of a special strike force of 110,000 men for "combat in the Persian Gulf and other areas of the Third World." Twenty one U.S. warships have been massed in the Northwest Indian Ocean on the edge of the Persian Gulf. The U.S. recently signed an agreement for twenty six new bases on Turkish's soil, adding further to the missle encirclement of the Soviet Union. Egyptian and American air force units have recently conducted joint military maneuvers in Egypt. The Carter Administration is seeking new bases in Egypt, Somalia, Israel and Oman, to supply and service the rapid deployment force, to be used for intervention in the Middle East. The Administration has also refused to consider SALT II.

It is apparent that these actions are part of the sixty year attempt to encircle the Soviet Union. Intervention in and around the Soviet Union since the October 1917 revolution has been continuous. The acts cited above are nothing but those of an aggressor, and in this case in the name of the preservation of imperialism and the high rates of profit for U.S. multi-national corporations this implies. We need only ponder what the Carter Administrations' response would be if the Soviet Union decided to place missles in Mexico and Canada aimed at the major U.S. cities within a range of six minutes. The decision to arm Pakistan and China can only be understood in relation to this policy of encirclement. Likewise, the support provided to the Afghan counter-revolutionaries can only be correctly viewed as part of this global imperialist strategy.

It should be clear now that the case of Afghanistan is not so simple as Walter Cronkite and Frank Reynolds portray it. As with the situation of the Shah's rule, time will show the U.S. to be on the side of reaction, against the tides of progress. These international events, placed in the context of anti-Sovietism, are at one and the same time serving the interests of U.S. monopoly corporations both at home and abroad. The real question is: Are the interests of the monopolies the same as those of the masses of people in this country?

WHOSE "NATIONAL INTEREST?"

When Carter speaks of "our national interests" he is really talking about the interests of U.S. monopoly corporations. The only real threat to our national security and our national interests is an internal one, coming from the ivory halls of the White House and the Pentagon, and the mile-high skyscrapers of Exxon, Mobil, and Chase Manhattan. Carter has carried out the directives of the Trilateral Commission -- the Rockefellor-led policy think-tank -- to the letter: In order to be able to pursue policies that are against the best interests of the people, it is necessary to create an external foe; first it was OPEC, then the Iranians, now the Soviet Union.

The real meaning of the military buildup is that the people of the United States must be prepared to accept a shrinking standard of living in order to support the greed of the monopoly corporations. While the war budget grows and arms industry stocks shoot sky-high, social services are being cut drastically, prices of basic commodities are escalating at a rate of 18 percent a year, heating oil is at $1 a gallon, our cities are decaying, hospitals are being closed down, tuition at public schools is being raised incessantly, unemployment is on the rise, plants are being closed down, and the Ku Klux Klan is experiencing a resurgence. All of this is going on at a time when all Carter talks about is the boycott of the Olympics.

It is Exxon and Chase Manhattan which are threatened by the Iranian revolution and the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan. Washington and the big corporations will not meet the needs of the people at home, but they want us to shed our blood to protect their investments abroad, in the name of the Afghan, heroin-pushing, "freedom fighters." Let's not allow anti-Sovietism to be a smokescreen for the troubles we face in this country: unemployment, inflation, racism, and a decline in the level and quality of social services.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

SCERA

The Student Affairs Team of SCERA is making a list of job openings (paid positions) at groups in the Pioneer Valley which work for social change. These include co-ops, non-profit organizations, community action groups and legal services.

Many of these businesses cannot afford to recruit students regularly throught placement offices or advertisements. We are providing a neglected but vital service to students seeking meaningful jobs, as well as to businesses which need concerned people to work for them.

The Student Affairs Team needs volunteers to contact businesses and keep up to date job listings. For more information contact Lauren Lee at 545-0341 in room 422 Student Union.

"Personal Report of Southern Africa"

"On Wednesday, March 26th, Bill Sutherland will give a talk on Zimbabwe entitled, 'Personal Report: Analysis and Interpretations of the Elections.' Bill Sutherland is the American Friends Service Committee representative for the five frontline states in southern Africa, and has spent the last two months, in Zimbabwe observing the leections, as well as the great part of 1979 and 1980, there. The talk well be in Mc Connell Hall, Smith College, at 7:30pm and is free and open to the public.

"Checking Out Your Mind"

Johnson House RA Series Presents:
"Checking Out Your Mind"

A evening of Poetry and Social Commentary by Mr Mulazimuddin Rasool

Tuesday, March 25, 1980 at 7pm
Johnson House, Northeast

Admission FREE!!

Film and Lecture

Palestine

•There will be a lecture and film updating the events on Palestine and the Israeli)Palestinian conflict on March 26, 1980 in the Machmer Building 37 East at 7pm. This event is part of the International Fair.

Job Openings

Upward Bound

Summer Employment with Upward Bound. Application for Summer Residential Counselor and Instructors are available at the Upward Bound Program Office.

Upward Bound
205 New Africa House
University of Massachusetts

BA or BS degree required for teaching positions.
Deadline April

Equal Opportunity Employers

Michelle L. Laney
HOTLINE TO HEALTH

Ever have one of those weeks where nothing seems to be going your way; and your on a complete down from the top of your head to the tips of your toes. Well you could do one of two things. You could sit home in a state of depression, which has a way of growing more intense by the moment, or you could cheer yourself up.

People with the blues can take their own initiative and cheer themselves up. "We don't need to wait for speacial occasions to celebrate." Anytime you do something you enjoy, you celebrate life."

"Every person knows in his own way what will make him happy," sayd Herbert Holt, M.D., a practicing psychiatrist in family and marriage counseling in New York City and author of the book "Free to Be Good or Bad" (Evans, 1977). If you are sitting around feeling sad, a little creative imagination can lift you out of that state. One person might enjoy painting, another might prefer going swimming or calling up an old friend they haven't spoken to for a long time. You might just enjoy taking a walk outside for a change of atmosphere. If you do go for that walk, try to notice little things you never paid attention to before.

"There are tremendous benefits when people focus away from their routines and give themselves a little celeobration," Dr. Holt states. "We don't use as much energy when we shift away to something more pleasant. We don't need tranquilizers or other drugs to feel better either. Our bodies have magnificent mechanisms called endorphins (and enkephalins), which will go into action to uplift our spirits or soothe us." Researchers have discovered that these substances released from the brain, apparently neutralize unhappy moods in people when they spend time with people they like or begin doing things they enjoy.

A few months ago I was in a real depressed mood. Everything had been going down hill the entire week. The clencher came after getting a low grade on an exam I had spent a great deal of time studying for. On my way home I picked up a friend whom was hitchhiking to work. He asked me how I'd been and I said awful. I asked him the same, and he informed me that things couldn't have been better for him. He was hesitant to share his happy disposition with me, not wnating me to feel worst about my own situation. I then told him that I could use some good news, so he began telling me everything that had been happening to him. It seemed that the more things I heard to more positive I felt. By the time we reached his place of employment we were both laughing and my depression had left me completely.

At some time in our lives we all fall into moods of depression. Sometimes we know why other times we do not, but depression can come and go due to the daily changes we face in out lives. How we handle our depression can have deep long range effects on our mental as well as physical being.

If you know someone who's been feeling life's hard knotts take them to a movie or out to lunch. Just knowing that someone cares can make all the difference in the world.

Research by Linda Shaw of PREVENTION MAGAZINE, Revised and edited by Michelle Laney.

Next Week: A look at the ozone and how that plane flight could be killing you!!

Smith College Events

Northampton, MA – B. Elizabeth Horner, Myra M. Sampson Professor in Biological Science at Smith College, will give this year's Katharine Asher Engel Lecture Tuesday, March 25, at 8:30pm in Wright Hall auditorium at the college.

Miss Horner's topic, "Australian Mammals, Paradoxes and Changing Perspectives," will be an illustrated lecture interweaving the roles played by history, speculation, and advancing knowledge in solving some of the mysteries that have come to be associated with one of Australia's greatest puzzles: its unique array of terrestrial mammals.

Miss Horner, who received the B.S. from Douglass College and the M.A. from Smith, returned to Smith to teach after receiving the Ph.D. from the University of Michigan.

The general orientation of Miss Horner's research has been directed towards a better understanding of the complex interplay of behavioral and anatomical adaptations of animals with physical and biotic features of their environment. Her approach combines field and laboratory techniques, and she is as much at home in the deserts of Nevada as in the Australian "outback." Her primary contributions have been in the area of functional morphology of rodents, where her studies of climbing and feeding adaptations are widely cited, and in the areas of systematics and behavior of Australian rodents and marsupials, where her research is equally well known.

She has studied important mammalian research collections in museums in London, Oslo, Leiden, and all major Australian cities; and speciments she has collected in her field work are now part of permanent museum collections in Australia, at the University of California at Berkeley, at the American Museum of Natural History, New York, and at the Universidad Nacional Autonoma de Mexico, Mexico, D.F.

Miss Horner's scientific articles have appeared in American journals such as the Journal of Mammalogy and those published under the aegis of the University of Michigan and the American Museum of Natural History; in Australian journals, such as the Australian Journal of Zoology and CSIRO Wildlife Research, and in the British journal Nature.

Among her professional affiliations are memberships in the American Society of Mammalogists, the Australian Mammal Society, and the Animal Behaviour Society. She is a fellow of the American Association for the Advance of Science.

The Engel lectureship is granted annually to a Smith faculty member who has made an outstanding contribution to his or her field. It wes established in 1958 by the Nationa Council of Jewish Women to honor the memory of the late Mrs. Engel, who was graduated from Smith in 1920 and served as the group's president from 1949-55.

The lecture is open free to the public.

Northampton, MA – Bill Sutherland, American Friends Service Committee Southern African representative since 1974, will present "A Personal Report on the Transition in Zimbabwe)Rhodesian," Wednesday, March 26, at 7:30pm in McConnell Hall at Smith College.

Sutherland, who spent most of January and February in Zimbabwe as an observer of the transition period and elections for a new government there travels regularly to Botswana, Mozambique, Tanzania, and Zambia, the Frontline States of Southern African, in the capacity of a two-way communicator between African liberation movements, and the U.S. government.

His involvement as a pacifist began while he was a high school student in the 1930s and, has continued through World War II, and the U.S. civil rights, internationsl anti-war, and African liberation movement.

The lecture, which will be presented by the Smith international affairs organization, is open free to the public.

Everywoman's Center

Everywoman's Center is pleased to announce a series of workshops, courses, panels and films which will be offered from April 7 through the end of May. The series is designed to offer educational alternatives for women who want a supportive environment in which to examine their lives, develop new skills and explore societal issues affecting the lives of women.

Registration, credit, and or child care arrangemtns can be made through Susan Markman at Everywoman's Center (545-0883) in Wilder Hall at the University of Massachusetts.

The educational alternatives offered through this Spring series is a descentdant of Everywoman's Center's nationally acclaimed PROJECT SELF. The workshops in the educational alternatives series offers a more varied range of learning experiences with a focus on survival issues. The educational alternatives offered include:

Study Skills – dealing with math anxiety, writing and study habits

Work Life Planning – skills assessments, time management, and job searching.

Health Issues for Older Woman – how to deal with doctors and medical choices; information on hysterectomy, hormone treatment, and social issues

Family Health Care Issues and Alternatives – nutrition, contraception, alternative health practices.

Home Economics and West Indian Cooking – budgeting, nutrition, West Indian cooking techniques, meal planning – and money saving tips

English Language Skills – speaking and writing English for native Spanish-speaking women.

Racism Awareness for White Women – personal and political look at manifestations of racism.

Single Parenting – resources, information, skills and support for single parents.

Lesbian Alternatives – a group for women examining whether they are lesbians.

Community Organizing – leadership, publicity, fund-raising, outreach and organizational skills.

Physical Fitness – beginning, infomral skill, stamina and exercise class.

Financial Management – how to handle money for people with little or none; budgeting, insurance, and family money handling.

Child Sexual Assault – intensive groups fo women who were victims of sexual assault as children.

New Woman Film Series – March 28, April 17, and May 5 – films on women who define their own lives in the work-place, the family, and in the community.

Concrete Survival Skills – a topical series which includes legal aid, violence in the home, energy saving, organizing against sexual harassment, child-care resources etc.

Registration for the Everywoman's Center Educational Alternatives will take place weekdays from March 24-April 4. Time commitments on each workshop vary from one to eight sessions. Call Susan Makman at Everywoman's Center, 545-0883, Monday-Friday from 9am to 7pm for further information.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY

Collegian

VOLUME CIX, ISSUE 106 — Student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst — Tuesday, March 25, 1980

Photo by Doug Paulding

Judy Strong advances the ball against Keene State this past season.

UMass' Strong named Olympian

By MIKE ESTRADA
Collegian Staff

UMass Sophomore Judy Strong was named last week to the first United States Olympic Women's field hockey team in history.

Strong's acceptance came just prior to the announcement by President Carter that the United States will not attend the 1980 summer games in Moscow because of the Soviet presence in Afghanistan. Alternatives to U.S. representation in Moscow are being discussed by Olympic officials.

At 19, Strong becomes the team's youngest member and the only representative from New England. She survived cuts at three different levels before the news of her final success came in the form of a posted list at Philadelphia's Friend's Select Private School on March 16.

'They let us gt early at s1:30,' she recalled. 'I went to get a drink and when I came back the list had already been up for a while. As I walked in I saw a few empty faces."

Strong's name was not missing. A year of intense training and eight consecutive weekend trips to Philadelphia had paid off. The forward who paced UMass to their second straight fourth place finish nationally was now part of the field hockey elite. Of the 22 to make it to the Philadelphia tryouts in front of coach Vonnie Gros, Strong was picked as one of 16 women for the team. 1980 is the first year women's field hockey has been sanctioned as an Olympic sport.

Strong leaves Thursday for Amsterdam, Holland, where for a week the squad will face club teams. Starting April 5th, the U.S. will meet the USSR, England and top-ranked Holland before they return home April 10.

Despite Carter's resounding statement, Strong said an official position will be reached when the U.S. Olympic Committee meets April 11.

One possible alternative to be discussed is the selection of an alternative site for the summer games. Strong said if European countries support Carter's boycott the games will be held in West Germany. If the European countries decide to send their ahtletes tc Moscow, a site in the U.S. is a possibility.

Another alternative is the inclusion of the U.S. in the Moscow games, but not in the opening or closing ceremonies. U.S. athletes, Strong said, would also not accept their medals.

For the time being, Strong and the rest of the athletes are unsure. Her celebration in honor of making the team has gone on

TURN TO PAGE 7

UM employees choose union for bargaining

By MARC FAGELSON
Collegian Staff

Employees in the University's bargaining unit will vote tomorrow to determine which union, if any, will represent them when their new contract is negotiated in October.

The American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees (AFSCME), the University's elected union since 1963, is opposed by the National Association of Government Employees (NAGE).

The University's bargaining unit, the service and maintenance workers, food service workers, security force members, and farm workers will decided whether AFSCME, a branch of the AFL-CIO, will bargain for the University's workers contract, said AFSCME Local 1776 President Johnathan Tuttle.

The two unions provide different representation for their employees, said Tuttle. "Local 1776 gets trained officers and stewards who are experienced at representing employees at this University for over 17 years," he said.

NAGE represents its workers with lawyers skilled in labor laws and the representation of collective bargaining, said Stephen Kozloski, head of the University's physical plant safety department. Kozloski is a former steward of AFSCME's unit three which includes skilled tradesmen; plumbers, electricians, and carpenters.

The dues systems of the two unions differ, Kozloski and Tuttle both said.

AFSCME collects $8.66 per month from its employees, said Tuttle. The dues are submitted to the local's treasurer who in turn sends the dues to higher levels of the union. $1.42 of each member's monthly dues is retained by the local for its own, unspecified use, he said.

NAGE receives about $9 per month from its members, Kozloski said. The money is sent to Boston by the union covered activity, he said. NAGE returns a small percentage to the union's local, he added.

The reason NAGE retains more of its members dues, Kozloski said, is that the national office covers all legal and attorney's fees as well as providing $10,000 in full-time accident coverage for its members.

"We want both social security benefits and state pension," Tuttle said. "We know what we can deliver. We've bargained and worked on this contract since last year," he added.

"I left AFSCME because I didn't know what I was voting for," Kozloski said.

NAGE represents the UMass police force, Tuttle said.

Kennedy, Bush run scared

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy feverishly courted New York while Texas Yankee George Bush sought revival in his childhood Connecticut yesterday on the eve primaries which threatened to shred their once impeccable credentials as serious presidential contenders.

Despite his claim that New York – where a whopping 282 Democratic convention delegates were at stake – would put his withering challenge to President Carter back on track, the latest polls indicated that Kennedy would reap only ruin from the Empire State.

The New York Daily News said that while Kennedy ran about even among the state's Jewish voters – about one third of the total – he still trailed the president by 20 points, or 56 to 36.

At least two Kennedy aides were prepared to tell him to quit if he loses New York badly. But Kennedy said he wouldn't do that, since he was "chemically and viscerally" suited to nothing less than a fight to the end.

On the Republican side, frontrunner Ronald Reagan was already a winner in New York, where the GOP contest effectively boiled down to a choice between his slates of delegates and those who were uncommitted. There was no preferential vote in the GOP balloting, in which a total of 123 delegates were to be allocated.

Reagan had nine delegates already, since they were uncontested. Bush had 6 uncontested delegates, but was head-to-head against Reagan for only 31 more in 11 of the state's 39 congressional districts. Uncommitted slates were uncontested in races for 61 delegates, but many of those were likely to support Reagan, since he was the favorite of the state party organization.

That left Bush focusing on Connecticut, the state where he grew up and the spot where he vowed only a week ago he would

TURN TO PAGE 7

How sweet it is! Victory is the cause of Doug Cole's elation as he wins a cub scout pine wood derby car race in Armonk, New York recently. (Staff photo by Doug Paulding)

DIGEST

Govt. travel expenses rise despite energy, budget cuts

BOSTON (AP) – For public officials in Massachusetts, and Gov. Edward J. King in particular, inflation and budget cuts apparently aren't putting a damper on travel plans.

The governor has been up and down the eastern seaboard and across Canada during March, and Massachusetts officials will be in China, Canada and Europe during this week.

King, in Canada at the moment with his state transportation and energy secretaries, his acting press secretary and a state trooper, heads to the Middle East next month. The current Canadian trip, according to King's office, is being financed by the provincial governments visited.

Meanwhile, Lt. Gov. Thomas P. O'Neill 3rd leads a delegation to China on Wednesday, and Environmental Affairs Secretary John Bewick is on a tour which inclues Scotland, Norway, Denmark and London. Federal money is financing both trips, according to their respective offices, although businessmen traveling with O'Neill will pay their own way.

King has been a regular traveler for much of his term in office with Washington a frequent destination. He went to Washington the first week of the month, then on to Florida to vacation and attend a meeting of the National Association of Corporate Real Estate Executives.

Seabrook cost radiates up $500 million, inflation cited

CONCORD, N.H.(AP) – Inflation and high interest rates have driven the estimated cost of the Seabrook nuclear power plant up more than $500 million to a total of $3.16 billion, the builder of the plant announced yesterday.

David Merrill, vice president of the Public Service Co. of New Hampshire, blamed inflation for most of the increase from previous estimates of $2.6 billion, but he added that the cost of labor at the plant also has increased.

"General inflation increased the estimate by 15.3 percent, and the component of inflation that had the greatest impact was the rising cost of money," Merrill said.

Merrill's announcement came after the company filed papers with the New Hampshire Public Utilities Commission indicating that costs estimates had increased by $260 million, excluding financing charges.

The commission is considering the company's request for an 8.4 percent permanent increase in electric rates. In testimony before the PUC, the company has warned it could be faced with financial ruin if the increase is not granted.

Iran reacts as Shah settles in

By ELIAS ANTAR
Associated Press Writer

CAIRO, Egypt – The deposed Shah of Iran settled into a hospital room overlooking the Nile River on yester day, finding a permanent refuge in Egypt after a year's wandering around the world.

Angry Iranian officials warned that the shah's latest move, his eighth since fleeing the Iranian revolution in January 1979, would obstruct progress toward resolving the crisis over the U.S. Embassy hostages in Tehran. One official revived the threat of putting some hostages on trial.

Tehran radio called for a march on the occupied embassy today to denounce what it said was a "treacherous plot" by the United States and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to help the shah escape extradition proceedings in Panama.

The Moslem militants holding the Tehran embassy said again their 50 American hostages, captive for 142 days, would not be freed until the shah and his fortune

TURN TO PAGE 7

Former Shah of Iran Reza Mohammed Pahlavi settled into what is said to be his new permanent home in Egypt yesterday. His departure from his island home in Panama has once again cast a shadow on the hopes of freeing the American hostages still held in Tehran.

Shah's spleen cripples policy

By JACK GALLAGHER
Collegian Staff

"The future of the American hostages should not be linked to the shah's spleen."

So spoke Bella Abzug, former congresswoman, at an anti-draft and anti-registration demonstration in Washington last weekend. She didn't specify how the two were linked. It goes without saying.

Yesterday, it was reported that American officials are wary in the wake of Reza Mohammed Pahlavi's flight from an island off the coast of Panama, a country in Central America noted for its canal, to Egypt, a country in the Mideast. Evidently, they fear the Iranian students, who have held 50 Americans hostage for 143 days, will frown on the shah's travel and subsequent accommodations. The council had called for the deposed ruler's extradition to Iran, where he would face trial for human rights violations.

News Analysis

But the 61-year-old ruler is sick, with lymphatic cancer and spleen problems. He is in need of medical treatment, which he apparently could not receive in Panama, and he felt "alienated" in the Central American country as well. Anwar Sadat says the shah will remain in Egypt "permanently."

Obviously, however, there are questions.

U.S. officials wanted Pahlavi to remain in Panama, for fear of further complicating the Iranian crisis. But the crisis cannot become more complicated than it is now: resolution, though hinted at, is still – between the council and the U.S. – an untranslatable, devoid-of-meaning word. Iran wants the shah.

What will come about instead is further complication of the Mideast crises. Because his country is predominantly Moslem, Sadat is running the risk of alienating his largest constituency, of rallying his Moslem population into co-frenzy with Iran. Sadat must have an ulterior moive.

Though U.S. officials didn't want Pahlavi in Egypt, the deposed ruler is there – and that might have been Sadat's motive.

In light of increased Israeli-Egyptian tensions on the West Bank, the shah could prove to be Sadat's trump card in procuring increased U.S. diplomatic leverage on Israel, to stay out of the now-Egyptian occupied territory. The Israeli cabinet Sunday voted to establish two schools for Jewish students in the Arab city of Hebron on the West Bank of the Jordan River.

And the U.S., which instigated the Mideast peace accord, is stuck in the middle between two countries with which it is friendly. The shah is now linked to Palestinian autonomy.

In short, Ms. Abzug, the shah's spleen is linked to the American hostages future – as well as to other, darker prospects.

Lucky callers chortle as Carter workers blush

WASHINGTON (AP) – If the Republicans needed any help in lampooning President Carter, they could have gotten it last weekend from none other than Democratic Party headquarters.

Callers who dialed a certain telephone number at the Democratic National Committee heard a recorded spoof of the president, complete with background banjo music, taped excerpts from Carter speeches and at least one raw expletive from a country-rock star at a Carter concert.

Embarrassed Democrats said the message, entitled "Quest for the Presidency 1976," was all a terrible mistake.

It was a party tape, they said, and was being used in a live test of telephone equipment for a dial-in message service at the Democratic National Convention in New York next August.

When party officials discovered yesterday that people had learned of the gag tape and were dialing the number at Democratic headquarters to listen to it, the tape was quickly yanked.

Callers who dialed the number – 202 797 5959 – yesterday afternoon were out of luck; there was no answer.

"We were just testing out the equipment," pleaded Bob Hirschfeld, chief of broadcast services for the committee's news department. "We weren't expecting anyone to call during that time. That number has been out of service for at least a year a half."

Hirschfeld said he erased the entire three-minute tape. "It will never be on again," he said.

On the tape, heard by reporters before it was removed from the playback machine, a serious voiced narrator said Carter obtained "seed money" to start his 1976 presidential campaign by signing on as a donor for the "Atlanta Sperm Bank."

Official won't disclose $

By DAVID HERN
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON – The State Ethics Commission heard oral arguments but deferred a decision yesterday on the dispute about former Administration Secretary John R. Buckley's refusal, on privacy grounds, to disclose family financial interests.

The case probably will end in the courts; if Buckley pursues it to the limit, an adverse ruling could cost him his present $40,000-plus job as president of the Community Colleges board.

Frank L. Bridges, Buckley's attorney, protested that the commission asked for information in its "Statement of Financial Interest" that is not required by law. He asked that the complaint against Buckley be dismissed.

"If the commision's interpretation is correct," Bridges added, "then the statute is unconstitutional."

Robert J. Cordy, associate general counsel, defended the law which, he said, "is far less intrusive and demanding than many in the country." He said that Buckley was well aware of the issue "and he made it clear he wanted to contest."

Buckley – while responding to questions pertaining solely to himself – failed to report financial interests that involved members of his family. He also said that family members chose not to reveal certain information that he would have to include in the controversial statement of finances.

Members present for the brief discussion were James Vorenberg, chairman, David Brockman, Linda H. Kistler and the Rev. Bernard P. McLaughlin, the only appointee of Gov. Edward J. King. Also on hand were most of the commission's fulltime staff.

Collegian recruitment

Are you interested in training for an exciting, rewarding career?

If so, the Collegian is offering students an opportunity to train as news reporters through a new credit-free internship program.

Qualified applicants will be assigned news stories and will work with Collegian news advisor Alvin Oickle on their writing. Interns who perform successfully will be promoted to news reporters and full staff members next fall.

Applications will be accepted at an introductory meeting tomorrow, March 26, at 5 p.m. in the Collegian office, 113 Campus Center.

YOUR COLLEGE RING
—FREE—
PLUS A CASH REBATE!

When you trade-in your men's 10K gold high school ring for on a Lustrium college ring, America's newest fine jeweler's alloy ... $99.00
$68.95

Your rebate $30.05

Trade in your women's 10K gold high school ring for $38.00 and buy your Lustrium college ring for only $30.95

10K gold high school trade-ins also apply on all Josten's 10K gold college rings.

Date Wed. March 26 & Thurs. March 27 Time 10 am - 4 pm

Place the University Store

JOSTEN'S
THE RING PEOPLE.

March only

in the campus center at umass
the UNIVERSITY STORE

March vacation meant different strokes for different folks. Trish Hammond and Terri Strider play in the sun while former Olympic ski racer Rod Taylor of Woodbury Ski Area bursts throug a slalom course. Jeff Falter takes a break from hiking for a sip of fresh water on the Long Trail and Kathy Szczeblowski tries to get a little ahead on her school work. (Photos and layout by Doug Paulding)

UMass vocal ensemble performs on concourse

The Vocal Jazz and Afro-American Music Ensemble of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst will appear in concert at the Campus Center Concourse on Wed., March 27, 1980 at 12 noon.

The Ensemble, one of six vocal groups of the Deparment of Music at the University is unique in that the twenty-five member group is dedicated to the performance of native American music-jazz, blues, soul and gospel.

Performing from a repertoire which includes compositions of such giants of jazz as Duke Ellington, Fats Waller and Eubie Blake, the Ensemble moves through the blues of Gertrude "Ma" Rainey, Bessie Smith and B. B. King, to the soul songs of Ray Charles and Stevie Wonder to the contemporary gospel songs of James Cleveland and Andrae Crouch.

Preview

Stylistic nuances are a feature of the Ensemble and to insure stylistic sounds, a rhythm section of piano, bass guitar and drums is employed, more as a complement than as accompaniment.

Organized in 1976, and now serving as the practical experience for those vocal concentrates in the Bachelor of Music degree in Afro-American Music and jazz in the department, the Ensemble has appeared on the University campus, as well as in several cities in New England.

In April of this year, the Ensemble will appear at the National In-Service Meeting of the Music Educators National Conference at the Fontainebleau Hotel in Miami Beach, Florida. One of only eighty-one groups from throughout the United States to receive such an invitation, the Ensemble will present a concert including such jazz standars as Duke Ellington's "Take The A Train" and the Lambert, Hendrick and Ross version of John Coltrane's "Dig Mr. P. C."

The Ensemble is directed by Horace Clarence Boyer, a native of Winter Park, Florida. Boyer received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Bethune-Cookman College at Daytona Beach, Florida, and furthered his study of music by earning M. A. and Ph.D degrees from the Eastman School of Music of the University of Rochester. His teaching career includes positions at Albany State College in Albany, Georgia; Florida Technological University at Orlando and the University of Massachusetts, where he is presently an Associate Professor of Music Theory and Afro-American Music.

With his brother, James, a Professor of Education at Kansas State University, Boyer has travelled through 32 states performing gospel music as the Boyer Brothers.

The concert of the Vocal Jazz and Afro-American Music Ensemble is free and open to the public.

'Being There' satirizes TV society

By ROBERT G. CARGILL
Special to the Collegian

Being There is a fascinating film statement concerning the role of television in our society.

The film depicts an America as superficial as its television programs, a country which learns its values through the media, and which has great difficulty in distinguishing reality from illusion. It's a stark portrayal of an impressionable America, a country which blindly follows the trends set by its media. Being There is mysteriously profound and uncannily to the point, presenting a scary, yet funny, view of a media-manipulated society.

Review

Chance (Peter Sellers) is cast as an illiterate and an immature television addict, one whose character is controlled by the influence of the "tube." He has spent his whole life watching T.V. and gardening, never venturing out of his home to experience the real world. His only companionship has been a black maid who's fed him his meals and an old man we know nothing about. When the old man dies, the maid goes away and the house is taken over by attorneys, and suddenly, Chance is out on his own. This is where the story begins.

Chance, as fate would have it, stumbles into the lives of the country's most powerful people, wealthy industrialists and politicians, and his simple ideas concerning gardening are, ironically, heeded by the President. The President interprets Chance's talk of seasons and planting as a sort of "economic forecast" and the media merely glorifies this philosophy, transforming Chance into a respected opinion leader. Thus Chance, as the newest rage, is revered for everything he says.

Directed by Hal Ashby, based on the novel by Jerzy Kosinski, and co-starring Shirley MacLaine, Melvyn Douglas, and Jack Warden, Being There is a potent movie, both artistically and commercially. It is entertaining in that Sellers gives a masterful performance, remaining seriously intent while being funny, and often resembling the late Charlie Chaplin in his ability to use understatement so effectively.

Sellers, as Chance, repeatedly dumbfounds us with his simplistic notions and innocently naive view of the world. Chance mechanistically repeats practically everything he witnesses, and is particularly outrageous whenever he expresses his lack of awareness. All he knows is what he sees on T.V.!

Being There's artistic merits are that it portrays Chance as an ultimate symbol, a victim of T.V. addiction. Consequently, it raises many pertinent questions concerning the role of television in our society today. At once, it displays the glorified image of the society we see on television and the harsh reality that actually exists. Then, it persuades us to analyze the implications presented.

Notices

ART BUS TO NEW YORK CITY, this Sat. and April 12. Leave Campus Center Circle at 7 a.m., return 9:30 p.m. $17 plus $1 annual membership fee. Includes coffee, donuts, wine, cheese. Sponsored by UMass Art Club. Sign up with payment (no checks please) in FAC 439 545-1991.

THE SCHOOL OF EDUCATION'S SEMI-ANNUAL PROGRAM fair originally scheduled for March 27 will be held April 17, from 1-4 p.m. at the School of Education in room 121. For further information call the Student Affairs Office at 545-2701.

SPECTRUM, THE UMASS FINE-ARTS/LITERARY MAGAZINE, has set a submission deadline of April the Spectrum Office, Rm. 104, CC., or mailed to Spectrum, RSO #102, Campus Center, UMass, 01003.

VETERANS. We have full and part-time jobs in our files NOW. If you could use the extra money, stop by VACS and let us help you find a job. Employment counselor Benson Cooke is available Monday, Wednesday and FRiday 9-11 a.m. and 3-5 p.m., Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday 9-11 a.m. and 3-5 p.m.

BIOCHEMISTRY AND RELATED MAJORS: There will be a second organizational meeting of students interested in forming a Biochemistry Club. We will meet tomorrow at 7 p.m. in GTWR 1033. All are welcome.

TAKE NOTE: A SPECIAL three day educational event is coming soon. "Stress Awareness Days: Causes Coping, and Change," is a series of workshops, information sessions, films, and speakers about STRESS sponsored by the Mental Health and Health Education Divisions of University Health Services and the Student Development and Counseling Center, UMass, March 24 through March 27.

A KEYNOTE ADDRESS, "Stress and Psychological Factors in Health and Illness," by Richard Ingrasci, M.D., M.P.H., Health Director of Interface, Newton, Ma., and health editor of New Age Magazine will take place 7:30-9:30 p.m., March 24, Campus Center Auditorium, UMass.

TODAY, TOMORROW, THURSDAY AND FRIDAY, a variety of 36 educational sessions will be presented in the Campus Center. There events are open to the public without charge; no pre-registration is necessary. For listings of particlar workshop times, places, and content call either Mental Health, UHS, 545-2337, or SDCC, UMass 545-0333.

TIRED OF STARING AT BLANK WALLS? Then come to the 1st Annual Union Records Unltd. Poster Auction, Tuesday March 25, 7-9 p.m., in CC 174-176. Store posters and more auctioned to the highest bidder. Proceeds to benefit the American Cancer Society.

JOHNSON HOUSE RA SERIES PRESENTS: "Check out Your Mind". An evening of Poetry and Social Commentary by Mr. Mulazimuddin Rassool today, at 7 p.m. Johnson House, Northeast, Univ. of Mass. Admission.

NORTHEAST/SYLVAN RACIAL AWARENESS PROGRAM film offering, today at 7 p.m. at Lewis House (basement) "STRANGE VICTORY"—the story of racism and anti-semitism in the United States after World War II. For more information contact RAP, 106 Johnson House, or call 545-0290.

NORTHEAST/SYLVAN RACIAL AWARENESS PROGRAM film offering—"LAST GRAVE AT DIMBAZA"—a documentary which exposes the South Africa's government policy of Apartheid, today at 4 p.m. in the Dwight House Lounge. For more information contact RAP, 106 Johnson House, or call 545-0290.

VERMONT YANKEE TRAININGS: Logistics: today, 6:30-10 p.m., CC 804-8. Non-Violence: tomorrow, 6:30-10 p.m., place to be announced. Contact Brad Wye at 549-0303.

4th ANNUAL BEAUX ARTS BALL. Sat April 5 9 p.m.-1 a.m. S.U.B. MASQUERADE prizes for best costumes. Music by Tom Abdow and Paradis Rhythm Shoes. Cash Bar. $3 students, $5 non-students.

THE UNION OF IRANIAN STUDENTS in Amherst is sponsoring a program on Afghanistan. There will be a speaker from the Afghan Support Committee in the U.S., Campus Center Room 917, tomorrow at 7:30 p.m.

THE L-5 SOCIETY will be meeting Thursday at 7 p.m. in Room 903 Campus Center. There will be a nasa film.

THE AUDIT: HOW BAD OFF ARE WE? today at 7:30-9:30 p.m. at the Jones Library, will focus on where energy goes in Hampshire County, where the County can conserve, and what Country goals toward achieving greater energy self-sufficiency could be.

THE FUTURE RESOURCE CENTER will hold a computer graphics demonstration with UMass engineering Prof. Sandy Hill today from 3 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the Futures Resource Center, lower level of the School of Education. The presentation will describe the basic captabilities of the Apple II and compare it with other microcomputers as an educational tool.

THERE WILL BE A meeting of the Astronomy Club tomorrow at 7 p.m. All interested people please attend. Progress report on the telescope repair project.

THE MOUNT HOLYOKE COLLEGE Coalition Against Nukes will sponsor an All-Night Vigil commemorating the one year anniversary of the Three Mile Island accident Thursday at 10 p.m. in Mount Holyoke's Abbey Chapel.

SCHEDULED FOR THE SPRING SEASON are: "East West in Review," at 8 p.m., March 31, in Bowker Auditorium; "Lucky Strikes Legacy," at 8 p.m., April 18-20, and 25-27 in Southwest; "The 8 Million," at 8 p.m., May 5, in Bowker Auditorium.

DR. INDERJIT SINGH of the John F. Kennedy Institute in Baltimore, Maryland will conduct a lecture/seminar on Ceramide Synthèsis in Developing Rat Brain at 4 p.m. tomorrow, Room 203, Graduate Research Center. Coffee will be served at 3:45 p.m.

THE EVERYWOMAN'S CENTER at UMass/Amherst has scheduled the following films to be held in Herter Hall, room 227 at 7:30 p.m. Friday March 28—"Women in the Media, The Women's Movement;" Thursday April 17—"Women in a Mining Town, Women Garment Workers" and "Union Maids" and on Monday May 5—"Black Women, U.S.A." Each evening will include informal discussion. All films are free and open to the general public. For further information or to arrange for child-care call 545-0883.

AMHERST RADIO STAION WFCR-FM will air a two-hour documentary on Three Mile Island in commemoration of the first anniversary of the accident at the Pennsylvania Nuclear power plant, March 30 at 3 p.m.

THE DUKE ELLINGTON MUSIC SERIES is offering a program of black classical music conCerts called "Solos and Duos." The schedule for the concerts is as follows: Monette Sudler, solo guitar, March 28; Michael Gregory Jackson, solo guitar, April 4; Buster William, bass, and Kenny Barron, piano, April 11; Iqua Colson, vocalist, Adegoke Steve Colson, piano and reed instruments, April 25; and Chico Freeman, reed instruments, Cecil McBee, bass, May 9. The concerts will be held in the Cape Cod Lounge of the UMass Student Union at 8 p.m., except the final concert, held in the Student Union Ballroom. Admission will be $2.

KOSHER FOR PASSOVER MEALS will be served in the Kosher Dining Commons starting with dinner on March 31 through and including dinner April 8. Three meals a day are available for the entire week. Special meal tickets, available to anyone, must be purchased in advance at Franklin Dining Commons Meal Ticket Office between 8:30-4. The LAST DAY they will be sold is noon meal Thursday. For price information and sign-up procedure, go to Franklin Dining Commons by March 27.

SOUTHWEST RESIDENTIAL AREA Intermediate Women's Self-Defense Colloquium Offering. Prerequisite: Introductory colloq. with Sharon Anderson or some prior martial arts or self-defense training. Priority to S.W. area women. Thurs. 7-9 p.m. Washington 19th floor. Sign up in Academic Affairs Office, J.A. Lobby 545-2803(4).

HUNGER AWARENESS DAY, scheduled for Thursday, will include films, slides, literature and a Hunger Banquet. For more information, stop at the HUNGER TASK FORCE table in the Campus Center.

THE T'AI CLUB is sponsoring a film series beginning March 27, called "Understanding Consciousness and Ego" at 7:30 p.m. in room 905-909 of the Campus Center. Admission is free.

TONIGHT, AT 8, Hampshire College's School of Language and Communication will feature Village Voice columnist James Ridgeway who will speak on Covering the Campaign 1980 in the Franklin Patterson Hall lounge.

FEDERAL GOVERNMENT is currently hiring people as Enumerators to take the 1980 census. Bilingual people are especially needed. The pay will be $4.00 an hour for a regular 40 hour week. Part-time positions at the same rate of pay are available. The starting time is now through April with most jobs lasting about six weeks. Applications can be made and the hour-long written test taken at the Campus Center, Rm. 905, Wednesday at 10 a.m.

THE TWO FINAL GREAT DECISIONS 1980 forums in the Orchard Hill/WFCR Series take place in the Main Lounge of Noah Webster House tomorrow at 7 p.m. and Wednesday, at 8:30 p.m.

ENVIRONMENTAL DESIGN COMPETITION for outside of Campus Center/Student Union complex. Students only eligible. Prizes range from $100-250. Design proposals accepted for entire exterior, one particular site or any major section. Entry formats can vary from detailed to conceptual, and must include a written rationale. Entries are due in CC 817 by April 18. Furtherinformation is available at CC 817, or 5-0194.

THE PRE-MED SOCIETY will present third year Tufts University medical student Neil Catz, tomorrow at 7 p.m., in CC 174. All interested students are invited to attend. Mr. Catz will be discussing medical school life and will be glad to answer any questions. A brief Pre-Med Society meeting will follow.

FLAI STREET
Brattleboro
802-254-8257
FRI. & SAT.
MAR. 28 & 29 $2
DARLING
TUES. APR. 1
$6.50
the Electrifying
THE PAT METHENY GROUP
Shows at 7 & 10

Tickets @
Faces Amherst
Platterpus Records
N'ton
APRIL 4 & 5
WILLOW
TUES. APRIL 8
The Rockin
STEVE MARDELLA
PHOTO I.D. REQUIRED

PRECISION HAIRCUTS

Includes:
FIRST—a professional consultation
SECOND—a precision style cut selected individually just for you
THIRD—our stylists will show you how to take care of your hair
All for $5.50
with this coupon only
With personal style cut, shampoo and blow dry $8.00, long hair slightly more.
With this coupon only,
limited to new customers only
Styles by Deborah I & II
65 University Dr.
Amherst, MA
549-5610
Shirmack
62 Main St.
Easthampton, Ma
527-2411

ADVENTURE WORLD 80
EUROPE AND BEYOND!
Traveling the open road Freestyle. There's something about it that means the best experiences you'll ever have. That's the kind of vacation we're offering you.
Take a modern coach, add young people from all over the world, and hit the road.
And you have over thirty options of which road to hit: the glamour cities and colorful villages of the real Europe, the Greek Islands, Scandinavia, Russia, the Middle East, Africa, India: city to city, detail to detail, adventure to adventure.
Call or write for our free full color brochure.
FLYING
INTER COLLEGIATE HOLIDAYS INC
☐ Yes! Send me more information about AdventureWorld 80!
Name
Address
Telephone
School

Pleasant St. Theater
"THE BEST AMERICAN FILM OF THE YEAR!"
"A POWERFUL AND THOUGHT PROVOKING EXPERIENCE!"
ACADEMY AWARD NOMINEE BEST DOCUMENTARY FILM OF 1979

at 6, 8, 10
22 Pleasant St. Northampton 586-0935

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding January, June, July, and August, for $15 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003. Second class postage paid at Amherst, Mass. Postmaster: Send address changes to Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Ma 01003

SELL IT
SELL IT

Collegian Classifieds

An open letter to Chancellor Koffler

We are writing to you in this open letter because we feel that this is the best way to deal with the problem of increased and better lighting on campus—honestly.

We are extremely disappointed in your response to the needs of students to live in a safe and comfortable atmosphere. Last spring, students from SCERA submitted the results of an extensive survey of lighting conditions to your office. This report includes detailed information on where new lighting must be installed and where old lighting must be improved.

In the fall of the present academic year, two students from the Women's Issues Team of SCERA interviewed Jack Littlefield concerning plans for lighting. The report submitted then is identical to the one that we have recently received from your office. In fact, he said that the plan would begin to be implemented this spring, while education would begin last fall. We have seen no results.

Last semester, you chose to deal with student violence by sending SWAT teams into the dorms. This set off a wave of protest and increased wonderment as to how and where money is spent at the University.

We have submitted numerous copies of the lighting survey report to your office. We have outlined specific areas that are desperately in need of lighting (Lot 44 behind Sylvan, the P lots and numerous others). Yet, once again, we are offered a plan that ignores those areas.

We feel that the plan to establish a lighted corridor will be ineffective, and probably dangerous, for the following reasons:

Chancellor Koffler's proposal:

Section a) "an improved level and quality of light along approximately ten miles of designated walkways..."

The ten mile area chosen for the corridor does not take into account the most isolated and darkened areas of the campus. We feel that these conditions will encourage an attitude similar to the pattern which has developed, in the past, where women are Public Safety Officers along these other words, this will develop into the mentality of, 'Well, if you weren't on the path, it was your own fault.' There are areas off the paths which students must travel to get to their classes, dorms, buses and cars.

Section b) "a concentration of patrols by Public Safety Officers along thesse walkways during certain time periods..."

If concentration of patrols along the walkway suggests that surveillance will be decreased on other areas of campus, this proposal has overlooked the fact that poorly lit areas of campus will continue to be ignored. It is precisely these areas, as we have repeatedly informed you, that are in need.

Section c) "An aggressive public awareness campaign to inform the campus community about security, and to encourage after-dark use of the designated walks and the campus bus service."

We do not need a public awareness campaign "to encourage after-dark use of the designated walks," but rather, we need a public awareness campaign that will deal with the issues of violence on this campus. Violence is a manifestation of far deeper problems, and these are what must be addressed. Historically, it has been women and Third World people who have been victims of attack on this campus. This plan ignores that fact and proposes no positive means of addressing this social reality.

You have asked for our input in the past and we have been more than willing to make our voices heard. We have attended many meetings and explored every avenue you suggested possible. In addition, last fall, students marched to Whitmore to ask for better lighting. This was followed by a candelight vigil, three days later, to your very doorstep.

We would like to continue to cooperate with the administration in creating a safe and comfortable atmosphere on campus. but, we feel that we must have some assurance that our voices will be heard. The time to talk is slipping away, The time to act is now.

We extend an invitation to you to respond publicly in the Collegian. However, if this is not appropriate, we would be willing to meet with you; any dark alley will do. There are many on campus.

Sincerely,
The Women's Issues Team of SCERA

Editorial/Opinion

Giants on the Earth

The sun never sets on multinational corporations, companies in some cases with greater financial resources than the governments with which they deal. Their power, influence, and extent rival—some say surpass—that of the great colonial empires of previous centuries.

Though it has long been said that "a corporation has no soul," when it comes to the multinationals, that mild phrase can conceal more than mere benign amorality.

JOHN PARKER

When hazardous products are removed from shelves in the U.S. and Europe, a multinational can still peddle them in third world countries. Also, products benign in industrialized society are sometimes introduced into the developing world to offset shrinking markets elsewhere. These products can then become lethal, and their vendors, merchants of death.

The grim story of pharmaceutical marketing in Latin America gives clear examples of impropriety. Drugs whose use is severely restricted or is prohibited entirely here are frequently granted the status of panaceas south of our border, and are often either available over the counter, or are prescribed indiscriminately by doctors whose source of information about a given drug may, ultimately, be the firm marketing the compounds. Vital information concerning possible reactions, optimum dosage, contraindications, and even the drugs' effectiveness and the diseases and conditions it can be used to treat can be ommitted, distorted, falsified, or buried in a brochure whose content is meant more to sell than to educate.

As of 1975, for example, two firms were marketing the same anabolic steroid in Latin America. This particular drug was a synthetic male sex hormone, the use of which "can cause serious disturbances of growth and sexual development in young children..." Its reputation for toxicity has caused responsible physicians here to limit its uses to none but the most pressing but one of the companies selling it, Winthrop Products Inc. (a subsidiary of Sterling Drug) marketed it as Winstrol. In Mexico, Winstrol was recommended "for beneficial action to increase strength, interest, and general well being..." as well as for improving "poor appetite." Winstrol is but one instance of a continuing pattern of misrepresentation in the pharmaceutical trade.

The following quotation, given in Senate Hearing testimony by a former medical director of Squibb and Sons, is chilling. "The incidence of disease cannot be manipulated and so increased sales volume must depend in part on the use of drugs unrelated to their real utility or need..."

What applies to pharmaceuticals also goes for a seemingly harmless thing like infant formula. When introduced to people with little understanding of the importance of sterilizing bottles and nipples, and often no method of doing so, bottle feeding can be a killer. Add to this the lack of refrigeration and the poverty which causes most of the mothers who use formula in the developing world to dilute it, and you have a formula for infant malnutrition, disease, impaired development, and mortality. Bottle feeding has been called a "formula for death" in the third world.

Several companies peddle infant formula in the third world, the largest seller being Nestle, the Swiss multinational, which was ranked fifth largest foreign multinational in 1979 by Business Week, with a reported revenue worldwide from all activities at $11.8 billion. Their aggressive salesmanship includes "milk nurses," company-paid medical personnel whose job is to sell formula, and the distribution of free samples to maternity wards of hospitals, both of which help to insure that women for whom bottle-feeding is inappropriate for economic and sanitary reasons will start the practice. Thus the cycle of malnutrition, disease and infant mortality continues.

There are other corporate abuses abroad: influence buying, overthrow of foreign governments, support of apartheid in South Africa, exploitation of workers, and maintenance of unsafe working conditions are among them. Until there is a substantial social control of the multinationals, the only way to provide these behemoths with some form of conscience is to guide their behavior at home and abroad with consumer awareness, boycotts, and lobbies for reform of the laws governing those which are American-based.

John C. Parker is a Collegian columnist

Letters

A plea from Pennsylvania

Dear Friends:

As the Mayor of Middletown, Pennsylvania, I urge citizens throughout New England to participate in "Nuclear Moratorium Day" on Friday, March 28, 1980.

One year ago, on March 28, 1979, my community was the scene of the Three Mile Island accident. This year, as we approach the first memorial, I hope you will devote at least part of the day to educating yourselves and others about the nuclear issue.

If you are anti-nuclear, then keep it up. Sponsor educational events in your town. Demonstrate the reasons for your opinion. Stand up and be counted. Foster a healthy debate on the issue, but I would like to advise you to do all of these things in a peaceful manner.

If you are pro-nuclear, then at least use this day in an effort to make nuclear plants safer. Do your best to assure that no more towns will have to go through what mine did.

If you are still undecided, then devote part of this day to educating yourself on this very important question. Attend the events sponsored by the Vermont Yankee Decommissioning Alliance and other groups. Look into both sides of the issue. Make an educated decision based on the facts.

The nuclear issue is not just Middletown's problem; it's yours, too. Nuclear Moratorium Day, 1980, offers each and every one of us the opportunity to exercise our democratic right to free speech. Your participation can prevent the Vermont Yankee nuclear plant from becoming another Three Mile Island.

Thank you for your concern.

Sincerely,
Robert G. Reid, Mayor
Middletown, Pennsylvania

Smoothing out the Kinks

To the Editor:

As a dedicated Kinks fan I feel obligated to clear up some of the mistakes in Norma Coates' story on the recent Kink's concert. First off, the opening number was not a new song, but a cut from their 1975 album, "Schoolboys in Disgrace," entitled "The Hard Way." This song has been part of their stage show since 1977. As far as new material, the Kinks only played one song not previously recorded by them or some other group. This they introduced by saying, "You've never heard us do this one before."

The following list of songs should also clear up the misconception that the Kinks placed most of their emphasis on newer material: "You Really Got Me," "All Day and All of the Night," (1964), "A Well Respected Man," ('65), "Till the End of the Day," "Where have all the Good Times Gone," ('66), "David Watts," "Death of a Clown," ('68), "Victoria," ('69), "Lola," "Get Back in the Line," ('70), and "Stop Your Sobbing," which is unlikely to turn up on their new album since it was released on their first album, "You Really Got Me", in 1964. Someone has not been doing their homework.

Robert Humphrey
Brown

Sexism goes to the dogs

To the Editor:

It seems that this society's patriarchal values have been extended to the animal kingdom. That owners of fertile female dogs must pay more for a license than owners of spayed female dogs I can understand and accept as a method of controlling the canine population. That the same distinction does not apply to male dogs I find totally unacceptable, but not surprising. Throughout history women have been forced to literally bear the consequences of living in a male dominated world. The time has come for males to share the responsibility of reproduction equally. It takes two to tango, as they say.

Judy Weiss
Hadley, Ma

Staff photo by Doug Paulding

FRESHMEN SOPHOMORES JUNIORS

Get the Most out of your College Years

We're looking for a few good college men and women, with enough back-bone to grab responsibility, enough pride to be Marine Officers. Prove to us that you have what it takes to become a Marine Corps Officer through the Platoon Leaders Class "PLC" Program, the primary college officer commissioning program of the Marine Corps.

* * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *

PLC has no on-campus drills or grooming standards. PLC allows you to experience Marine training with no obligation.

* * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *

PLC's can receive $100 montly, for up to three years. PLC is the only commissioning program which provides pay credit for "time in service" during college.

* * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *

PLC guarantees pilot training for those that qualify. Interested? See us when we're on campus or call collect in Hartford 244-2168/244-2169

UMass - we will be visiting your Campus on Wed. & Thurs. March 26 & 27 and will be located Campus Center 26th-Rms. 901, 902 27th-Rms. 802, 902 Your Marine Representatives are Capt. Yarrington & Gysgt. Prothro

Please Return form to:
United States Marine Corps
Officer Selection Office
135 High Street
Hartford, CT 06103

_____I would like to arrange a personal interview with a Marine Representative.
_____I would like additional information about Marine Corps Officer Programs.
Call me at (Area Code)_____
Name_____
Last First Middle
Address_____
_____
City State Zip
Date of:_____
Birth College Graduation
University _____ GPA _____

The Few, The Proud, The Marines

★ Strong

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

despite the controversy. About 150 friends and family gathered Monday in the American Legion Hall in Hatfield to congratulate the Olympian.

Strong said before spring vacation that she had a gut feeling she would not make the team. That feeling proved untrue.

'The had a tough time between a few people because everyone played so super. But I think they had an idea who was going to make it. My chances were so slim they were one in six,'' she said.

Strong has had no experience touring with the team while two of the women not chosen had travelled with the team for a year. The United State's third seeding for the Olympics was gained last summer at Vancouver, Canada. Strong first played with the U.S. team at Colorado where she scrimmaged against the established squad. She fell into direct competition for the team with all the athletes later in Virginia.

Strong gained experience through the camp system. Out of 1100 hopefuls nationwide, Strong was one of 90 women to make the 'B' camp at Penn State University in early July, 1979. She survived the cut to 35 to travel to Colorado. Even if there is an Olympics Games this year, she will have to keep making the team each year, starting from the 'B' level.

''I've got to thank my teammates who have helped me go through the weekends. It was hard to go away but when I came back they encouraged me. I want to be able to play for them too,' she added.

Find it all—find it fast in Collegian classifieds

★ Shah

CONT. FROM 2

are returned to Iran.

In Washington, a senior Carter administration official dismissed the threat of hostage trials, but the State Department nonetheless issued a warning that "the Iranian government is aware of the consequences and condemnation that would take place" if the Americans were tried.

The ailing Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and his wife, Farah Diba, took off from Panama on Sunday aboard a chartered American jetliner that refueled at a U.S.-Portuguese air base in the Azores islands and landed in Cairo on Monday.

★ Primaries

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

rebound from a string of disastrous showings. But a University of Connecticut poll showed Reagan with a sizable lead, though Bush sought salvation from an unusually large bloc of undecided votes.

Bush scoffed at the poll's finding that he trailed Reagan by seven points among Republicans who had made up their minds. "I don't care what it shows," he said. "I couldn't care less. ... I'm going to plug ahead, in Connecticut, Wisconsin and Pennsylvania."

Rep. John B. Anderson, RIll., also was on the ballot in Connecticut, but he was seen running third in the contest for the state's 35 GOP delegates.

"DR STRANGELOVE"
Tues, March 25
Mahar Auditorium
$1.00 7. 9. 11 P.M.

SUMMER JOBS
We are offering jobs for the Summer to Undergraduates who have experience working with Digital Hardware.
CALL
Production Services Corporation
Waltham. Massachusetts
617-891-8460

Tired of Staring at BARE WALLS? Then COME to the 1st Annual Union Record's

POSTER AUCTION

Tuesday, March 25, 7-9 PM, CC 174-76
Store Posters & MORE
Auctioned to Highest Bidder
Proceeds to the American Cancer Society your student run record store

STADIUM
U. Mass. Amherst
KEGS— WINE—
BEER— LIQUORS
LIQUORS

Tuborg bottles	6.90	case
St. Pauli Girl	12.60	case
Miller	7.99	case
Budweiser	7.99	case
Dragone Lambrusco 1.5 L	2.99
Carlo Rossi's 4 L	4.95

Save money—Save gas—Save time
10 a.m. — 253-5595 — til 11 p.m.

Collegian Classifieds

To place a Collegian Classified
•Come to Collegian Office CC 113
•8:45 to 3:45 Mon-Fri
•Classified deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day

Collegian Classified Rates
•15c per word
•Student rate 10c per word
•Cash in advance
•5 consecutive days 5 % discount
•Phone number FREE

AUDIO

SONY one point stereo eletret condenser microphone excellent cond. $25 253-3225

AUTO FOR SALE

FIX YOUR OWN CAR. The Student Auto Workshop offers tools, space, and assistance. Tues, Wed, Thurs 3-9 pm, Fri 12-5, Sat 10-5. Level one CC garage. 545-0673

'73 Toyota Mark II Wagn 73000 mi excellent shape. yours for $1980 phone Kittye 549-5412

Car for Sale: 1970 Pontiac Lemans. Go 1 condition. Runs well. Rebuilt engine. Only problem: transmission bad. $400 or best offer. Worth it! Call: 549-1661. Best betnights & mornings.

1970 Volswagon Squareback Radial tires, good engine, 80,000 miles, some rust. $500 or BO call 665-2802

1970 Impala excellent condition, rebuilt small V8, new disc brakes, reupholstered, new radials, over 2,000 invested $800 or BO Jonathan 546-5576

BENB ON MARS

Martian Highway hosts Aluminum Foil Publishing Party Wed. Mar. 26 QR Disco lots of cartoons and twirlevs

ENTERTAINMENT

Soundsystem for Hire perfect for bands, doscos, coffeehouses Rick 584-4105

FOR RENT

One Bedroom in 2 bedroom Cliffside Apartment - Semi-furnished call 665-4602 evenings

Cape Cod Summer Rental 5 bdrms E. Dennis after 5 253-5017

FOR SALE

Fender 12 string Guitar w/hard shell case $150 John 665-3679

Emerson Stereo w combined AM-FM, turntable & cassette deck, spkrs, 7 mos. old. $100. Jeff 546-6305. Keep trying!

FOUND

Found-Brown plastic rimmed glasses in Northeast quad. Call Jeff 6-3210

HELP WANTED

Exp. Cocktail Waitress for late Spring and Summer. Apply Poor Richards 8-9 PM Daily

Paralegal Interns Wanted The Legal services Office has 8 positions available for full time paralegal interns for Fall 1980 semester. You can recieve up to 15 credits from the Office of Internships located at Curry Hicks. These internships will provide exciting, challenging and rewarding work which will include the learning of many legal skills. Interviewing clients, legal research, and maintaining a continuing caseload under supervision of attorneys. Third World students and women are encouraged to apply. Appliations must be submitted by April 1, 1980

INSTRUCTION

Beginner Folk Guitar Lessons Call Mary 256-6719

Sentics Workshop—"The Miracle of the Possible" call Elizabeth Paton 413 549-3880

LOST

Lost Black Lab named Astro Always seen around campus. If anyone has any info please call Scott at anytime 549-6219. Wears blue collar, keep your eyes open friends.

Roach Clip with fisherman's keychain, extreme sentimental value, please call Dave 6-9547

PERSONALS

Pete Jacke call Macky 665-7923

To Supressed Women Who Need Help: Come forward and talk to me in complete confidentiality. Please contact me, J.D. at the Collegian Women's Dept. I want to help if I possibly can.

Three females looking to take over a three bedroom apartment in Rolling Green for Fall Semester. Willing to take over lease for summer if necessary. Please call 546-9636 or 546-1867

Don't graduate without doing it! Get your yearbook portrait taken--call 545-2874 for your appointment. Don't be left out of the 1980 Index

Win $500 cash for vacation this summer. No obligation. To recieve entry form send addressed envelope to Summer Sweepstakes, P.O. Box 730, Couer d'Alene, Idaho 83814

Charismatic Prayer & BS Tuesday March 25 CC 911-915 8-10 PM

Dr. Strangelove Tues March 25 Mahar Aud 7, 9, 11 PM

Freaks—Happy 20 1 more week and I'll be joining ya at the Pub!! Love Fla Buddy

"Balloons by Ken" Balloon animals at the CC Concourse, can make octopus, bumblebee, giraffe, monkey, elephants, swans, etc. One day only, Thursday Mar. 27th

Relax! The Amherst Cent Saver is coming

ROOMATE WANTED

Roomate wanted for Townhouse So Amherst call 253-7905

Northampton Coop seeks mature sixth non-vegetarian bus route 586-1415

Woman roommate wanted immediately own room in Puffton Village reasonable non-smoker 665-2804

SERVICES

Attorney Jason R. Rosenthal Legal Representation. Income Tax Preparation. Days 584-4285 Evenings 253-7617

TYPING Experiencec typist, reasonable rates 256-6360

TO SUBLET

4 bdrm summer sublet on bus route $440. mnth includes utils. call 256-8070.

2 bedroom apt Colonial Village on bus rte starting June 1 through August call Lisa or Robin 253-3740 evenings

1-4 Bdrms in 4 bdrm apt June-Aug w/option Lori 256-8233

WANTED

Fast immediate cash for gold-school rings-diamonds- silver Jeff anytime 527-7078 586-0180

DJ wanted for party and or formal call 6-9850 6-9851

The Collegian

will begin accepting new intern applicants beginning March 25, at 5 p.m. in Campus Center 113.

The Chequers Saloon
Amherst, Massachusetts

If the homemade French onion soup, London broil, or Baked Stuffed Shrimp doesn't get you, an omlette will. University Drive next to Alumni Stadium 549-5861

Sponsored by Governors Program Council

SUB/UMass 7, 9, 11
Wed. March 26 $1.00

Considering a Management Career?

Explore an unusual Master of Science in Management (MSM) Program offered by Arthur D. Little Management Education Institute in Cambridge, MA. Our program emphasizes International Business, Agro-Industrial and Economic Development. Come to an information session scheduled on Thursday, March 27 from 10:30-12:00 and from 1:00 to 4:00 pm. Members of the MEI staff will give a slide presentation followed by a Q & A period. Contact Career Placement Pffice (ext. 2224) for seminar room and to pick up MEI literature.

Friendly Restaurants

Present this coupon with the purchase of a Big Beef Cheeseburger Special and French Fries and receive a Regular Carbonated Drink FREE.

Only redeemable at 454 Russell St. Rt. 9 Hadley
Offer expires 4/4/80

Do Not Ignore This
It's Benefit Time
For those people who worked 10 or more hours at The Great Ski Snatch
Come to Ski Club Office Before Thurs. March 27th
Ski Club Office C.C. 106 545-3437

UMASS SKI CLUB

COMING!
"APPLAUSE"
A Backstage Musical
mar. 27, 28, 29, 30 apr. 3. 4 8 p.m.
bowker auditorium, stockbridge hall
For Tickets Call 545-0783

Nuke the Whale by Danny Guidera

4 by Frank Emery

Wimpman by Evan Carlson

Bean by Kevin X. McNamara

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

Crossword

ACROSS
1 Work units
5 Muffler
10 Land bodies: Fr.
14 Jump
15 Basketballer
16 Dainty
17 Greek island
19 Knowledge
20 Dominion
21 Lockjaw
23 Hobbles
26 Arid
27 Most precipitous
30 Big groups
34 Retained
35 Panoply
37 Spigot
38 Limb
39 Glands
41 Peer Gynt's mother
42 To and —
43 Some beans
44 Bird
45 Tuft
47 Most untidy
50 Beverage
51 Faint
52 "Odyssey" nymph
56 Immature period
60 Verbal
61 Menaced
64 Harass
65 Raise
66 Crust
67 Go by
68 Lariat: Var.
69 Weaver's reed

DOWN
1 Otherwise
2 Bevel out
3 Umbrella: Brit.
4 Rotted
5 Diagram
6 Vehicle
7 Turkish title
8 Straight: Prefix
9 Liberated slave
10 Fillings
11 Celebrity
12 Color
13 Notices
18 Stumble
22 Salvers
24 Sacred song
25 Flows
27 Arrow
28 — firma
29 St. — Fire
31 Glower
32 Comforts
33 Exhausted
36 Stitch again
39 Repose
40 Column
44 Victors
46 Fashions
48 Composition
49 Carbon
52 Bus. abbr.
53 Melody
54 Young chaps
55 Czech river
57 Dye source
58 Factor
59 Vortex
62 Turmeric
63 Outside: Prefix

UNITED Feature Syndicate
Monday's Puzzle Solved

DC Menu

Lunch
Hamburg on roll
Quiche Lorraine
Basics lunch
Oatburgers
Quiche Lorraine
Dinner
HAWAIIAN LUAU
Roast pork
Chicken hawaiian with Hoomalimali sauce
Basics dinner
Polynesian vegetables
Chicken hawaiian

INTERNATIONAL WEEK
TUESDAY MARCH 25
6:00 P.M. FARLEY LODGE
FRANCO-FETE FILM
"THE RED BALLOON"

SELL IT in the Collegian Classifieds SELL IT

Paid Intern Positions
The Housing Administration Intern Program is currently seeking interested freshmen and sophomores for paid positions in our management training program. All majors are encouraged to apply. Applications are currently available at Whitmore, CCEBS, The Woman Center, and BCP and at Berkshire House. For more info call 545-0890, 545-1960, or 546-5532.

Day Camp in Bedford seeks
GYMNASTIC COUNSELOR
& Regular Counselors
$good pay$
call 617-275-1392
or write: Bedford Rec. Dept.
16 South Rd.
Bedford, MA 01730

TUESDAYS
2 for 1 Night
(All Mixed Drinks)
9-11
Disco/Oldies
No Cover
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

AFSCME

the union that cares

UMASS EMPLOYEE'S LOCAL 1776
COUNCIL 93 / AFSCME, AFL-CIO
417 GRADUATE RESEARCH TOWER B
545-2831

ROGER MESSIER, Groundskeeper Wants A Pay Hike "Now" He's voting for AFSCME.

Under the proposed ALLIANCE contract, Roger Messier, a UMass/Amherst groundskeeper for the past three years, stands to gain $64-a-week in 27 months. On April 1, 1980, he would win a job upgrading.

The ALLIANCE (AFSCME/SEIU, AFL-CIO) contract, a pacesetter in wages for public employees across the Commonwealth, is presently before the 30,000-member state workforce for ratification.

There's a 33.3 percent wage hike in the offing for Roger Messier in the ALLIANCE pact. It raises his weekly pay from $193 to $257 by July 1, 1982.

"I feel employees here at the UMass/Amherst will accept that offer," he stated recently. "We need the money now," he explained.

Today, this father of four school-age children works part-time delivering heating oil, earning an average of $50-a-week during the winter.

Tomorrow, with the ALLIANCE pay hikes under his belt, he may be able to cut free from his second job and spend more time with his growing family.

This UMass worker is mad at NAGE for "petitioning for an election and holding up negotiations."

ON MARCH 26, ROGER MESSIER INTENDS TO "GET EVEN WITH NAGE" BY REAFFIRMING HIS FAITH IN HIS UNION, AFSCME. His vote for AFSCME will secure a $64-a-week pay hike by July 1, 1982. "That's something I can't pass up; my family's already counting on it," he confided.

VOTE

☒ ☐ ☐

AFSCME
COUNCIL 93
LOCAL 1776 AFL-CIO

MEMORIAL
HALL
MARCH
26

UNA PALOMA BLANCA! JUST WHAT YOU'VE BEEN WAITING FOR! SLIM WHITMAN TEE-SHIRTS ARE COMING! WATCH FOR DETAILS.

Sports notices

All candidates for the women's golf team should report to Boyden room 223 on Wednesday at 3:45 p.m. for a meeting.

HANG GLIDING - The hang gliding club will hold a meeting Wednesday at 7:00 p.m. in the Campus Center.

All members are urged to attend.

INTRAMURAL SOFTBALL UMPIRES MEETINGS: Tuesday, March 25th at 3:45 PM in Boyden, Romm 249. You MUST attend to be scheduled for any more games.

LATE ENTRIES: Are being accepted in Softball, Badminton, and Tennis. Softball requires a $10 refundable forfeit fee. If enough late teams enter, leagues will be set up.

SCHEDULES READY: Intramural Softball, Soccer, Badminton, and Tennis Schedules are ready to be picked up. Do so as soon as possible as games, matches, began Monday, March 24th.

FORFEIT CHECKS READY: For Basketball—IM Office, Rm. 215

★ Emerald Isle

CONT. FROM PAGE 12

"Some dude on the other team came up to our point-guard and told him to stop dribbling so hard—it was killing our heads."

This year Trinity, again, lost in the finals to Queen's University.

"When we went up for our awards I could see all the Intervarsity directors cringe," McCluskey said. "They thought we were going to do something again. But we had agreed beforehand not to do anything because we got put on probation at school last year. So, we just stood there, like gentlemen, and freaked everyone out. I think they thought we were doped up."

"We were," he said.

SUMMER JOBS

MAYHEW, a program for low income New Hampshire boys, located on a 55 acre island in a central New Hampshire lake, has residential staff openings in its summer component. Positions include General, Health & Emergency First Aid Counselor, Crew Rowing/Sailing Counselor, General Activities Counselor and Cook.

All positions are for 8-10 weeks and include salary, room, board and laundry.

Job descriptions and applications can be obtained by calling (603) 744-8494 or writing MAYHEW, P.O. Box 127, Bristol, NH 03222.

THE LATEST in HIGH STEPPERS

ESKIL'S NEW HIGH HEEL CLOGS.

When it comes to keeping up with the latest foot fashions, Eskil's always rises to the occasion. Our brand new Western heeled clogs feature comfort and durability while looking as smartly stylish as a pair of shoes can.

So slip your feet into our new High Stepper clogs. And step out in the height of fashion.

$5.00 off any style with UMass ID WITH THIS AD

7 Pleasant St.
N'ton 586-2528
Take 5-college bus to N'ton

ESKIL'S CLOG SHOPS

PACIFIC COLLEGE of NATUROPATHIC MEDICINE

The Pacific College of Naturopathic Medicine, a four year Naturopathic medical college granting the degree of Doctor of Naturopathic Medicine is accepting applications for its Fall, 1980 class. Our professional program includes the traditional basic medical sciences as well as comprehensive training in botanicals, chinese medicine, homeopathy, nutrition, physiotherapy, manipulation, and psychology.

Write for a free brochure or send $2.00 for a complete catalogue.

Admissions Department
Pacific College of Naturopathic Medicine
P.O. Box 189, Monte Rio,
California 95462

TRANSFER LETTERING

The prices for transfer lettering from both Charpak and Letraset have increased. However, we will hold our prices for two more weeks to give you an opportunity to save!

chartpak

Velvet Touch©

	Single Sheet	Two Sheet Set
New List Price. . .	$3.50. . .	$6.00
Our New Discount Price.	$2.95. . .	$4.95
OUR OLD PRICE*. . . . . effective until 4/5/80	$2.50. . .	$4.50

* no special orders

LETRASET

Instant Lettering©/Letragraphica©

	Single Sheet	Two Sheet	Symbol Sheet
New List Price. . . .	$5.95/$6.95	$10.50/11.25	$5.95
Our New Discount Price.	$4.95	$8.35	$4.75
OUR OLD PRICE*. . . . effective until 4/5/80	$4.50	$7.95	$4.25

* no special orders

Professional Quality at Student Prices

the art store within a store
the UNIVERSITY STORE

Graduation Checklist

☐ make restaurant reservations for Mom, Dad and me, May 24

☐ pickup cap and gown

☐ finish incomplete from sophomore year

☐ pay lab fees

✓ DO IT!

get senior yearbook portrait taken. Call 545-2874 or stop by room 103 Campus Center to make an appointment

AMERICAN MULTI CINEMA

ADULTS $2.75 STUDENTS & SR. CITIZENS with AMC CARD $2.25 TWI-LITE SHOW $1.50 - Special Engagements Excluded Twi-Lite Show - Limited to Seating

TIMES SHOWN FOR TODAY ONLY

HAMPSHIRE 4 584-7550 HAMP. MALL ON CAFE SQ.—RT. 9, HADLEY, MASS.

DUSTIN HOFFMAN Kramer vs. Kramer
9 Academy Award Nominations (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:15 PG

AUDIENCES WILL SIMPLY CHERISH BREAKING AWAY
5 Academy Nominations (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:15 PG

Chuck Norris Jennifer O'Neill
He hears the silence
A FORCE OF ONE
(6:15 @ $1.50) 8:30 PG

Little Darlings
(6:15 @ $1.50) 8:30 R

MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9—HADLEY, MASS.

PETER SELLERS SHIRLEY MacLAINE BEING THERE
Best Actor Nomination (5:45 @ $1.50) 8:30 PG

ROY SCHEIDER ALL THAT JAZZ
9 Acedemy Award Nominations (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30 R

JOHN RITTER HERO AT LARGE
(6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45 PG

James Caan Marsha Mason Chapter Two
Best Actress Nomination (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30 PG

Sports

Hoop on Emerald Isle

By KEVIN CULLEN
Collegian Staff

CORK, Ireland—The first thing one notices while standing in Gwocanabroher Gymnasium in Cork City is that it's so cold that smoke billows up in front of one's face after exhaling a breath. The lighting is poor, the dusty floor warped in some places. Two teams try to warm up, literally, and the kids with red goose-bumped legs blow into their hands as they stand in the lay up lines. An old broken man hobbles around the gym before the game, begging for pennies. This is college basketball in Ireland.

The Intervarsity Championships, Ireland's equivalent to the NCAA's, is played with considerably less enthusiasm and attention—which is understandable in this country of 3½ million people. College basketball is made up of basically just eight university-level teams, including two teams from Northern Ireland.

The crowd at any tournament game was always under 300, and consisted almost entirely of the teams involved who weren't playing at the moment.

"What can you do?" asks John McCluskey, a 6'3 forward for Trinity College. "There's just not the same kind of money put into this as there is back in the (United) States."

Indeed, the Guinness Brewing Company, brewers of Ireland's most famous drink, sponsor the tournament. But their presence is felt only in the huge banner which hangs in the gym every year. The cost of transportation to and from the tournament is picked up by the schools involved, but the bulk of the bill is paid by the individual player.

McCluskey was born in Belfast, Northern Ireland, but grew up in Jackson Heights, New York, playing his basketball on the glass-littered playgrounds of his neighborhood. His family moved back to Ireland four years ago, settling in the quiet town of Malahide, just a few miles outside Dublin. His accent is a curious mixture of Queens and Dublin, and he still travels back to New York every summer to work and play in a summer league.

"It's kind of funny," McCluskey says," going back and forth (between Ireland and the U.S.), because I really have to change styles on the court."

As for the style of the Irish basketball, it is enough to give any American coach cardiac arrest with its cross-court passes and shots from assorted locations on the floor, many of which can be called anything but percentage.

"If my high school coach ever saw me throw some of the high lobbying cross-court passes I throw over here, he'd kill me," McCluskey says. "But that's just the way the game's played here. They're much rougher over here, not as refined as American style. Christ, not nearly as smooth. But, they get the job done, all the same."

Objectively speaking, the eventual Intervarsity Champions, Queen's University of Belfast, would have trouble beating any good American high school team. And a few of the university teams entered in the tournament would probably come in last place in a co-ed intramurals at UMass.

For the moment though, college basketball players on the Auld Sod are content with themselves. The Intervarsiities are, in fact, as much a social affair as anything else. Players look forward to the drinking and socializing which accompany the tournament—perhaps more than the games themselves.

"Jesus," McCluskey recalls, "we played one game at 10 o'clock in the morning, and we were all so hungover it wasn't even funny."

TURN TO PAGE 11

Louisville's Darell Griffith passes around UCLA's Michael Holton during last night's NCAA championship in Indianapolis in which Louisville squeaked by UCLA to a 59-54 win in the last minutes of the game. Griffith scored 23 hard-earned points bringing the Louisville Cardinals their first NCAA basketball championship.(AP Laserphoto)

New York Yankee hard throwing relief pitcher Rich Gossage shown here in action during Spring training. (AP Laserphoto)

Baseball season begins

By JANE WOLFSON
Collegian Staff

Fun in the sun turned out to be not so much fun as the UMass baseball team was rained out of four games and managed a 2-4 record as it traveled south during the week of spring break.

The Minutemen were rained out of their last two games of the nine-day road trip as the wet weather forced the cancellation of contests against the University of Maryland and Princeton Universiy.

UMass dropped a two game series to Duke Universiy on March 19 and 20. Thursday while playing in a steady rain Duke defeated UMass 6-3. Due to the wet, the game was called in the eigth. The Minutemen held a 2-0 lead over Blue Devils in the first inning when Senior Captian Mike McEvillv reached base on error and scored on a line drive double by first basemen Mark Brown.

Brown scored on catcher Jim Aulenbach's single. UMass added another run in the sixth inning on a solo homerun by Brown, his second of the year.

Minuteman right hander Chris Collins held Duke scoreless throughout the first five innings, retiring 15 out of 16 batters. Through those five innings Collins pitched outstanding baseball, according to UMass coach Dick Berquist.

Duke's offense flared as the Blue Devils scored two runs in each of the last three innings. Collings was the losing pitcher, his record at 1-1.

The day before, UMass fell to Duke 7-3.

"We didn't play that well that day," said Bergquist. Brown was the losing pitcher with sophomore righthander Vin Todd in relief in the seventh.

Against the University of North Carolina the Minutemen suffered a 12-5 trouncing. The starting and losing pitcher was Jim Lewis. UMass committed five errors in that game.

The Minutemen defeated the Virginia Military Institute by a whopping 15-1 score. Righthander Chuck Thompson pitched a one hitter for UMass.

In the second inning UMass exploded for 13 runs. Aylward, playing right field, had six RBI;s in that inning, hitting a grand slam and two run double. Seventeen Minutemen came to bat that inning.

UMass was rained out of both its games with James Madison.

In a doubleheader in Richmond the Minutemen were beaten 1-0 then came back strongly to defeat the Spiders 10-3, giving Collins his first victory of the season.

Steve Cooperman

For hoop junkies only

To most of you students, spring break means tanning in Florida or, at the very least, dreaming of tanning in Florida and not doing all that schoolwork that you planned to do. But I spent the week as a total hoop junkie in what was practically the ultimate basketball orgy.

Last Friday after classes, Grover (not his real name) and I drove to Springfield, press passes in hand, for the NCAA Division II semi-finals. If you stop reading here because of lack of interest in Division II basketball, you'd have plenty of company. But this lack of interest is undeserved. Only 3,406 and 3,555 attended the Friday and Saturday sessions of the tournament, a shame considering the quality of play which, in some respects, is not too far from the Louisville and UCLA teams that played for the national championship. Co. ider, for example, that one of the tourney's participants, Florida Southern, defeated an NCAA tourney qualifier (Holy Cross), almost defeated another (Florida State), and finished 8-4 against Division I opponents.

But the play should be evaluated on its own level, that of saomewhat smaller teams that play pressing, fast-paced yet disciplined basketball. Friday's first game featured N.Y. Tech, led by All-American Kelvin Hicks and crowd favorite Bobby Jones, black high tops and all, and North Alabama, the defending national champions. In a game played mostly above the rim, Tech took a 72-66 decision.

In the other semi-final, top ranked Florida Southern was knocked off by Virginia Union, a super quick team whose quickest, 5'9 Derwin Lilly and 5'11 Willard Coker (love those names) make Rocket Rod Foster look like he's going in reverse. (A slight exaggeration, but I made my point.)

Saturday morning I woke up just in time to catch the UCLA-Clemson game and the beginning of the Purdue-Duke game before heading back to Springfield for the third and first place games. for the second night in a row, we watched two games that went down to the wire. Florida Southern beat North Alabama by one in the consolation game and in the finals Virginia Union held off NY Tech, 80-74. Tech's Hicks, a 6'7 forward from Brooklyn and a sure pro (you heard it here), played outstanding individual defense which by itself will get him a spot on an NBA squad. V.U.U.'s senior guard Keith Valentine scored 45 points in two games and was his team's leader, earning him the outstanding player award, whose past winners include Earl Monroe, Marvin Webster, and Jerry Sloan.

After a late, late Saturday night, I drove home to New Hampshire with just enough time to make lunch, get to the tube, and give a "Let's go, Hoyas!" Despite Eric "Sleepy" Floyd's incredible performance (you'll see Eric in the NBA soon, too), Georgetown lost the heartbreaker (sob) in the final seconds to Iowa. I recovered from my disappointment, though, watching Louisville demolish a very good LSU team and seeing what was one of the all-time dunks (and definitely the most replayed) performed by Darrell Griffith.

The rest of the week is remembered for Ralph Sampson's effort in the NIT (Is there any question who the Celtics should persue?) and the C's laugher over the Nets in Piscataway. These games made the week pass fast enough to get to Saturday's overhyped college semi-final doubleheader. If I hear "Some say this is the greatest day in sports" one more time I am going to burn my Al McGuire Fan Club card.

Only the outstanding play of Louisville's Griffith and UCLA's Kiki Vanderweghe saved what could have been two boring games. Griffith proved that he has reached the level expected of him as a freshman, and Vanderwegne showed with the two stuffs in Joe Barry Carroll's face that he can play with the big fellas.

Sunday's NBA coverage and the women's AIAW championship finished off, somewhat anti-climactically, the vacation. I know, taking in most of the games on TV takes something away from my performance, but don't worry—I copied down the right address, got my money order, and I promise not to mail the ticket request until April first so that next year at this time I can be high on life at the Philadelphia Spectrum.

Spring final exam schedule listed inside Pp. 8, 9

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY

Collegian

VOLUME CIX, ISSUE 107 Student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst Wednesday, March 26, 1980

Kennedy Bush

Underdogs Bush and Kennedy, above, beat frontrunners Reagan and Carter.

Reagan Carter

The races become clouded; Kennedy, Bush score wins

NEW YORK (AP) –Sen. Edward M. Kennedy upset President Carter in the New York and Connecticut primary elections last night, revitalizing his challenge for the White House.

George Bush put new spark into his Republican campaign with a victory over Ronald Reagan in Connecticut.

"I think the bubble's burst for Jimmy Carter," said Tom Southwick, Kennedy's spokesman. He said the voters had decided "they cannot nominate a president with 20 percent inflation and a foreign policy that is a disaster."

Carter's campaign chairman, Robert Strauss, conceded New York but called it "only a dip in the road that will lead to the president's renomination."

"Put a smile on your faces," he told downcast Carter supporters. "When you lose, lose with class."

Reagan led Bush in the New York Republican primary, a proxy contest in which delegates, not presidential candidates, were on the ballot.

Reagan led for 69 delegates; uncommited for 40, Bush for 5.

With 65 percent of the precincts counted in New York's delegate-rich Democratic primary, the results read:

Kennedy 330,725 or 57 percent, for 162 delegates.

Carter 247,547 or 43 percent, for 120 delegates.

Kennedy had won only one primary befpre, in his Massachusetts home. His twin victories last night reversed a string of defeats. They were the more dramatic for the public opinion polls that had rated Carter a big favorite — and they came just one week after the president had buried Kennedy in an Illinois primary landslide.

This was the picture in Connecticut:

Democrats, with 99 percent of the towns counted:

Kennedy 95,746 votes or 47 percent, for 29 convention delegates.

Carter 84,607 votes or 41 percent, for 25 delegates.

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. had 3 percent. Six percent of the ballots were uncommitted.

On the Republican side, it was:

Bush 68,509 or 39 percent, for 16 delegates.

Reagan 59,122 or 34 percent, for 13 delegates.

Rep. John B. Anderson of Illinois 39,484 or 6 delegates.

Rep. Philip M. Crane of Illinois got 1 percent; the balance went to a minor candidate and three entries who already have withdrawn from the campaign, with 2 percent uncommitted.

Through long weeks of defeat, Kennedy had been saying that voter wrath over inflation would catch up with Carter. Last night, it apparently did. In addition, Kennedy scored heavily in New York among Jewish voters angered at the administration's errant U.N. vote against Israeli settlements in occupied Arab territory. He also did well with Catholic voters, the state's other large bloc.

Kennedy's New York victory was fashioned state-wide. His biggest margin came in New York City, but his lead was also considerable upstate where Carter was expected to do best.

Builder reveals bribes behind state contract

By The Associated Press
and The Collegian Staff

A former Massachusetts building contractor, appearing in Boston before the Special Commission Concerning State and County Building Contracts, testified yesterday that former Massachusetts Governor John A. Volpe's chief fund-raiser awarded his construction firm a state building contract in exchange for a $22,000 campaign contribution in 1968.

The Commission, popularly referred to as the "Blue Ribbon" or Ward Commission, is headed by former Amherst College President John William Ward, and was formed to investigate corruption in state and county construciton in Massachusetts. Ward said, however, the commission would not be able to investigate any state university structures due to time and resource limitations. UMass has been plagued in recent months by nagging building problems, including the University's 28-story library and the leaking campus center garage.

Frank R. Masiello, formerly of Sutton, Massachusetts and now living in Palm Beach, Florida, said Albert "Toots" Manzi of Worcester, a key fund-raiser for both former Governors Volpe and Francis W. Sargent, agreed to give Masiello's firm, then known as Masiello and Healy of Worcester, a contract to design Holyoke Community College.

Masiello told commission members Manzi made it clear that without a contribution, he (Masiello) "had no crack at the design job." Originally, Manzi had sought between $70,000 and $80,000 for the contract, Masiello said.

According to Masiello, the Holyoke job was estimated to cost $9 million, with design fees expected to be around $800,000. Masiello testified the total cost escalated to $29 million.

The $22,000 payment was agreed to, Masiello said, by representatives of a Los Angeles based architectural firm, Daniel, Mann, Johnson and Mendenhall, who had recently combined with Masiello and Healy. Masiello testified that he picked up Manzi, then a member of the Massachusetts Turnpike Authority, at his Worcester grocery

TURN TO PAGE 11

Firm to study GRC vents after 2 years of problems

By MICHAEL FOLEY
Collegian Staff

A contract will be signed within one month with a consulting engineering firm to study the ventilation system in the Graduate Research Tower and design corrective measures, Associate Chancellor Terry Burke said yesterday.

The administration will choose from three firms recommended by the Bureau of Building Construction to examine problems with the ventilation system, which have plagued the building for more than two years, according to Burke.

Burke said, referring to the ventilation system, "we estimate that within about a month a contract will be signed, so we can get on with the work to correct it."

Arlyn Diamond, who has overseen the Massachusetts Society of Professor's grievance concerning working conditions in the building, pointed out the need for an ongoing program to monitor the health of campus employees.

"We know that the ventilation system is inadequate," she said. "Everybody agrees on that, but we don't know if that is the cause of the (health) problem. That's why we need some sort of on-going health program."

Chancellor Henry Koffler sent a letter last week to the MSP grievance committee notifying them of this new development and other measures that would be taken concerning the health problems which, according to the committee, still persist in the building.

The other measures apparently include further "epidemiologic" studies, according to Susan Chenman, MSP member.

A copy of Koffler's letter was unavailable.

In May of 1978, women working in the building first reported menstrual problems, including unusually heavy bleeding, irregular periods and serious cramps. Male and female

TURN TO PAGE 5

Contrast

A lone tree off East Pleasant Street in Amherst provides a striking graphic. (Staff photo by Amira Rahman)

DIGEST

TMI-nuke builders sued

PARSIPPANY, N.J. (AP) — General Public Utilities Corp. filed a $500 million negligence suit yesterday against the manufacturer of the crippled Three Mile Island reactor.

The action came three days before the first anniversary of the worst accident in the history of American commercial nuclear energy.

The suit, filed in federal court in New York City, charges Babcock & Wilcox Co. with gross negligence and failing to abide by its contractual obligation to provide written procedures and training services necessary for the operation of the plant.

Also named as a defendant was J. Ray McDermott & Co. Inc, parent company of Babcock & Wilcox.

Connally backing Reagan

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — John B. Connally, who recently withdrew from the Republican presidential race, yesterday threw his support to Ronald Reagan, calling him "the second-best man I can think of."

Meeting at Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport, where Reagan arrived from upstate New York, Connally made the joint announcement, arm in arm with the former California governor and GOP front-runner.

"I am very proud and happy to announce I have the support of Governor John Connally," Reagan said.

Connally, who pulled out of the race March 9 after he was soundly defeated by Reagan in the South Carolina primary, said Reagan has the support of a "broad, broad segment of America. I had it proven to me conclusively in South Carolina. His broad appeal reaches beyond the Republican Party."

Arabs strike threatens pact

HEBRON, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Palestine Arabs staged a general strike yesterday throughout the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River to protest Israel's plan to settle Jews here, and there were signs the already-strained Israeli-Egyptian Palestinian autonomy negotiations faced new trouble.

Special U.S. Ambassador Sol Linowitz called the Israeli decision to establish two live-in schools in Hebron "disturbing" and added: "I found it, as a negotiator in the autonomy talks, a cause of some concern. I conveyed this to the prime minister. We are regretful the decison was made."

Bombings follow murder

SAN SALVADOR, El Savador (AP) — Terrorists bomb explosions rocked the capital yesterday, schools closed and the government called for national mourning for Archbishop Oscar Arnulfo Romero, a critic of violence felled by an assassin's bullet while he was saying Mass.

Authorities said at least 30 bombs exploded throughout the country between 3 a.m. and 6 a.m. EST, a dozen in the Salvadoran capital, in apparent angry reaction the the death Monday night of the 62-year-old Roman Catholic archbishop.

Inflation rates settles high

WASHINGTON (AP) —Consumer prices in February jumped 1.4 percent for a second straight month, providing new signs that inflation my be settling in at an 18 percent annual rate, government figures released yesterday showed.

the buying power of the average American wage earner fell by a record 7.3 percent during the previous 12 months, the government said in a separate report.

A top Carter administration inflation adviser called the new figures a "very ominous trend," and said consumer prices will continue to rise at nearly the same rate for several months as recent hikes in interest rates and wholesale energy prices show up at the consumer level.

But R. Robert Russell, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, said he believed inflation would not get any worse, and would begin declining later this year. He based his forecast on the assumption that surging increases in gasoline prices would level off and interest rates would decline from their record levels.

SCI-FI Double Feature!

Fantastic Voyage & The Andromeda Strain

Campus Center Auditorium

TIMES:
Andromeda Strain—6 & 10
Fantastic Voyage—8:00

Both Shows: $1.00!

UNA PALOMA BLANCA! JUST WHAT YOU'VE BEEN WAITING FOR!

Jeans $1.00
GOODWILL
37 Main St. N'ton
(take PVTA to the Courthouse)

WINDSHIELDS
Auto Glass Parts

installed While-U-Wait!
(Most parts in stock)
VALLEY Auto Trim and Glass
786 N. King Northampton 584-4837
½ mile North of Calder

UNA PALOMA BLANCA-AAAAAAAA!

OMEGA BOOKS galore!
COMICS
MOVIE POSTERS
BUY AND SELL
(SOME TRADE) QUALITY USED BOOKS
213 MAIN ST. NTON
10-1230 2-500 MON-SAT

Sponsored by Governors Program Council

SUB/UMass 7, 9, 11
Wed. March 26 $1.00

BLUE WALL
campus center at u mass

Thursday, March 27
VAN DUREN
The McCartney Sound
$1 Cover Charge

Friday, Mrach 28
LAZARUS
Formerly Ellis Hall's Band
$2 Cover Charge

Saturday, March 29
THE MUNDANES
with Special Guest
$2 Cover Charge

ALL AGES WELCOME
TOC sticker and valid ID required to purchase alcohol
in association with UPC
Productions info: call 545-2892

SUMMER JOBS
We are offering jobs for the Summer to Undergraduates who have experience working with Digital Hardware.
CALL
Production Services Corporation
Waltham. Massachusetts
617-891-8460

Troubles fail to squelch Spanish course

By MARC FAGELSON
Collegian Staff

The financially troubled section seven of the Spanish 140 course will continue for the remainder of the semester, Martha Francescato, chairwoman of the Spanish and Portuguese department said yesterday.

"The course was never cancelled," Francescato said. "It was a question of who would teach the course and how."

Students enrolled in the section were asked to submit their open blocks of time for possible rescheduling of the section. Many students were seniors who needed the course to graduate. Others had no free time corresponding to openings in other sections of the course.

The section's instructor, Alberto Rivas, became ill three weeks into the semester, Francescato said. Jose Torres, a friend of Rivas, filled in but did not recieve compensation for the first four weeks he taught the course. Torres said he wanted to continue teaching the course.

"We reached an agreement internally and it was decided Jose will teach the course until Professor Rivas returns," Francescato said. "He will be given something in return," she added, "although I can't say exactly what it is since it was decided internally."

Torres will teach the section until Rivas recovers, Francescato said. "Professor Rivas has improved considerably since his operation and is expected to return sometime during the semester to resume teaching the section," she said.

If Torres didn't teach the section in Rivas' absence, Francescato said, "we could have taken turns teaching it. Everyone was willing to help. Jose agreed to the arrangement and everybody's happy," she said.

Smile!

Senior Leonard Kruimer looks at the camera as photographer Alan Symkus focuses his camera for a yearbook picture. (Staff photo by Chris Grewe)

Coalition takes on WFCR

By SEAN HARVEY
Collegian Staff

A group of Hispanic and non-Hispanic listeners of five-college radio station WFCR have formed a coalition to protest the reduction and rescheduling of the program Que Tal Amigos, according to supporter Marcel Ringawa.

The "Coalition to Protest WFCR Policies", Ringawa said, is very frustrated because of the "deaf ear that has been turned our way so far."

"WFCR is acting out of bad faith and not paying attention to community needs," Ringawa said.

Robert Goldfarb, WFCR manager, said yesterday the decision was made because Que Tal Amigos attracts a small audience for a prime time scheduling.

Que Tal Amigos presently runs from 7:30 pm to 8:30 pm Monday through Friday, and Saturday from 7 pm to 8 pm. In the change over, which will take effect April 1, the program would air from 10 pm to 11 pm twice weekly.

Sonia Vivas, recently appointed producer of Que Tal Amigos, after former producer Julio Torres resigned in protest over the reduction and recheduling, said the program attracts a large audience.

According to Vivas, the show not only serves Hispanic persons, but also non-Hispanics who want to learn another culture and language. She said she has received many letters from persons supporting the latter position.

Torres said he has received over 400 letters, mostly in support of the coalition.

"I want our audience to win this battle," Torres said.

WFCR is a public radio station broadcasting from Hampshire House. It is not a student-run station, however.

Que Tal Amigos consists of Latin American music with public service announcements and weather forecasts all in Spanish.

A rap with the 'Say When' lady

By BRETT MILANO
and NORMA COATES
Collegian Staff

After her arresting performance in Bowker Auditorium on March 13, Lene Lovich took the time to answer a few questions from the local press. Offstage, she retains an aura of mystery which is often played up in press releases, but is also surprisingly honest. Above all, Ms. Lovich appeared to be a humorous, thoughtful, and intelligent person.

Below is the transcript of the interview which took place after her performance:

BM: So, what do you think of Amherst audiences, and of the reaction tonight?

LL: It was very good, one of the best. We were worried when we saw the seats here...in fact, we had decided that if the audience wasn't standing up by the time we came onstage, that we would put three chairs out front and sit down! But it was good; we didn't have to do that.

BM: This is, I believe, your first tour on your own, after the Be Stiff Tour? (a tour by artists on the Stiff Records label).

LL: Yes, first tour in North America. We've done tours on our own in Europe.

BM: What was the atmosphere like on the Stiff tour? We've heard a lot over here about a general chaotic atmosphere on the road, with an interesting collection of people. (Note: The Be Stiff Tour, which played mainly in Europe but came to America briefly in January 1979, included Lene Lovich as well as Rachel Sweet, Wreckless Eric and the Record).

LL: Yes,that's a fair description of it. It went quite well, all considered...in fact we got along so well that Wreckless Eric and myself thought it was getting a bit boring, so we were making up nice stories to tell to the press over here!

BM: Yeah, I think we got a few of those over here.

LL: It was an excellent way to travel, because we were going mostly by train, one of the old-fashioned ones where there were lots of compartments. So if anyone was feeling fragile they could just hide, just pull the blinds down.

BM: And you did just one show in the States for that tour? I know you came to New York...

LL: We played four nights, did two shows a night.

BM: I remember reading, in another interview, that you get inspiration for some of your songs from dreams. Can you tell us a bit about that?

LL: Well, sometimes you have a dream, and it's too strong to ignore. Sometimes a dream stays with you. Most times, your dreams disappear quite quickly, as soon as you wake up, but now and again you have, well, a really big dream. And I think you should take notice of these dreams. The times that I have made songs are the times when these dreams have been big ones. And in a way, it's almost like my way of getting the dream out of my mind...to try and resolve it, to understand it.

'Most times, your dreams disappear quite quickly, as soon as you wake up, but now and again you have, well, a really big dream. And I think you should take notice of these dreams. The dreams that I have made songs are the times when these dreams have been big ones.'

Read tomorrow's Collegian to hear more about Lene's dreams.

Lene Lovich (Staff photo by Nancy Nutile)

Black Affairs

Monette Sudler, solo guitarist will perform in concert at the Cape Cod Lounge, Student Union, on Friday March 28 at 8 p.m. The concert is a production of the Duke Ellington Music Memorial SOLO and DUO Series. Admission is free.

Political Conflict Continues

SAN SALVADOR (AP) – The assassination of Archbishop Oscar Arnulfo Romero, an outspoken advocate of social reform, is the latest act in a leftist-rightist terror war that has claimed more than 700 lives this year in El Salvador.

Right-wing terrorists were suspected of shooting the archbishop Monday night as he celebrated Mass, although no group claimed responsibility.

Both rightist and leftist groups have conducted their own brands of terrorism in the political strife that has dominated Salvadoran life in recent years.

Leftist groups resort to guerrilla-style attacks, strikes, occupations of public buildings and kidnappings. They have raised more than $85 million for their "war chests" by kidnapping dozens of wealthy businessmen, diplomats and government officials in the past four years. Sometimes the kidnap victims are killed.

On the other side are secret right-wing killer squads who torture, bludgeon, strangle and shoot scores of leftists each month, according to police, diplomats and human rights officials.

These authorities claim rightist elements are also responsible for blowing up government offices in an apparent effort to delay agrarian reforms.

Sources say the rightists are fighting a terrorist war in the belief they are stopping a leftist drive for a Marxist government in this nation of 4.8 million.

Three known rightist groups are the White Warriors Union, ORDEN the Spanish work for "order", and the anti-communist Front for the Liberation of Central America.

Diplomats say the groups are made up of off-duty or retired military men and seem to be allied with each other.

This month, a number of leftist leaders have been quietly murdered.

"It looks like an extermination campaign to get us all," said Hector Bernabe Recinos, an organizer of the leftist Popular Unified Action Front.

"This murder campaign is forcing us leftist leaders to go underground. We are all scared, but it won't stop us."

When a few moderate colonels led the Oct. 15, 1979, coup to oust rightist President Carlos Humberto Romero no relation to the slain archbishop, they said they acted to end rightist repression, bring the left and right into the political process and end the threat of civil war between the extremes.

Even though the junta established by the colonels pushed through sweeping land reforms and nationalized banks to make credit easier for all, it has been unable to stop the political violence.

Junta member Col. Adlolfo Majano said last month that violence would no longer be tolerated from either political extreme. The government impossed a state of siege, forbidding political gatherings and banning unauthorized public gatherings, all in an effort to prevent trouble as farms were expropriated and banks were nationalized.

Diplomatic sources said the right believes the banking and land reforms are communistic, while the left argues that the changes do not go far enough.

Archbishop Romero had called the reforms "a positive step" but added "without an end to the right, the program will never work."

Since the military had ruled here for 47 years prior to the coup, the right has had substantial time and money to build its power base.

When rumors of the impending banking and agarian changes began, the wealthy began transferring their families and money to Miami, Fla. according to U.S. Embassy sources. From there they have a power base to pipe funds to their killer squads in El Salvador the same sources said.

Martin Luther King Week

Editor's Note
Martin Luther King, civil rights leader, was assasinated on April 4, 1968. Starting next week there will be a series of events to commemorate his death. The schedule of events for Martin Luther King Week is as follows:

MONDAY MARCH 31, 1980
EVENT: Dr. Ivanhoe Donaldson, Lecturer
PLACE: Campus Center Rm. 905-909 /UMass
TIME: 7:00 PM
ADMISSION: FREE

TUESDAY APRIL 1, 1980
EVENT: Rev. Arthur Langford Jr. Theatrical Performance about Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. with musical selections by the Voices of New Africa House Choir
PLACE: Student Union Ballroom/UMass
TIME: 8:00 PM
ADMISSION: FREE

WEDNESDAY APRIL 2, 1980
EVENT: Lecture by Carolyn Reed, Executive Director of the National Committee on Household Employment
PLACE: Campus Center Rm. 101/UMass
TIME: 3:30 PM
ADMISSION: FREE

EVENT: Gospel Concert by the Third Baptist Church Sanctuary Choir of Springield, MA
PLACE: Student Union Ballroom/UMass
TIME: 7:00 PM
ADMISSION: FREE

EVENT: Modern Jazz Dance Performance by the Frank Hatchett Dance Company of Springield, MA
PLACE: Student Union Ballroom/UMass
TIME: 8:00 PM
ADMISSION: FREE

THURSDAY APRIL 3, 1980
EVENT: Lecture by Dr. Collin Prescod, co-producer of the film, "Blacks Britannia" PALCE: Campus Center Rm. 917/UMass
TIME: 7:00 PM
ADMISSION: FREE

Organizational Fair

"Beyond the Classroom" a Third World Organization fair will be held at 10th floor Campus Center, on March 29th, Saturday, from 1 to 4 p.m. All Third World students are encouraged to attend this important informative event with speakers, music and food.

The fair will consist of all Third World groups in a combined effort to recruit young energentic new members. It's imperitive to rebuild our strength in numbers, before going to the senate.

The affair will be all day, including: speakers, food, music, and most importantly it will provide an opportunity for each organization to express feelings about why people should get involved.

This will be one of the last chances for each Third World organization to demonstrate their strength and support for each other so that our efforts and the efforts of those who have gone before us will not be wasted and our groups will not become obsolete.

Announcements

Palestine lecture

There will be a film and lecture on Palestine on March 26, 1980 at Herter Hall 3rd floor lounge at 7:00. This is part of International week March 24-30, 1980.

Lecture

Bill Sutherland, American Friends Service Committee Southern African representitive since 1974, will present "A Personal Report on the Transition in Zimbabwe Rhodesia", Wednesday, March 26 at 7:30 p.m. in McConnel Hall at Smith College.

Malcolm X

The Malcolm X Center is hosting a "Fun and Games Night" at the center on Thursday, March 27th. The event will start at 7:30 p.m. Refreshments will be available.

China Night

Experience Chinese culture—attend China night Campus Center Auditorium Sunday March 30 at 8:00 p.m. Chinese music and folk dances, Kung-fu demonstration, and a movie about Chinese opera. Chinese traditional costume will be displayed.

LUTHER

By Brumsic Brandon, Jr.

SUMMER EMPLOYMENT WITH UPWARD BOUND
APPLICATIONS FOR TEACHERS AND COUNSELORS AVAILABLE UNTIL APRIL 7 AT THE UPWARD BOUND PROGRAM, 205 NEW AFRICA HOUSE UMASS
BA OR BS DEGREE REQUIRED FOR TEACHING POSITIONS
APPLICATIONS AND RESUMES NOT ACCEPTED AFTER APRIL 7, 1980. UPWARD BOUND IS AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER.

★ GRC

CONT FROM PAGE 1

workers reported a high incidence of dizziness, nausea, and headaches.

Workers reported smelling chemical fumes and, at first a chemical solvent, toluene, was suspected.

The National Institute for Occupational Safegy and Health (NIOSH) studied the building's ventilation system. The limited study, completed in August 1979, was unable to "discern a common pattern" between menstrual difficulties and location in the building.

NIOSH recommended further epidemiologic investigation, improvement in the ventilation system and environmental control, as well as changes in work patterns.

REBEL WITHOUT A CAUSE
with James Dean
Wednesday March 26
CCA 7, 9, 11 PM $1.00

University & Office Supplies
Theses Binders
A.J. Hastings Inc.
newsdealer & stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

THE ARK
(Episcopal Church at UMass)
Sundays at The Ark 6:00 PM supper (potluck) 7:00 PM Bible Study, Prayer, Eucharist
Wednesdays 1:15 PM At Newman
Rev. Ian Montgomery 758 N. Pleasant 549-5929

SPECTRUM, THE UMASS FINE ARTS/LITERARY MAGAZINE, has set a submission deadline of April the Spectrum Office, Rm. Material may be submitted at the Sprectrum Office, Rm. 104, CC., or mailed to Spectrum, RSO #102, Campus Center, UMass, 01003.

Considering a Management Career?
Explore an unusual Master of Science in Management (MSM) Program offered by Arthur D. Little Management Education Institute in Cambridge, MA. Our program emphasizes International Business, Agro-Industrial and Economic Development. Come to an information session scheduled on Thursday, March 27 from 10:30-12:00 and from 1:00 to 4:00 pm. Members of the MEI staff will give a slide presentation followed by a Q & A period. Contact Career Placement Pffice (ext. 2224) for seminar room and to pick up MEI literature.

THE AMHERST DELICATESSEN
NEW EXTENDED HOURS
Opens daily at 9 a.m.
Starting April 4th
Open Fri. & Sat. till 2 a.m.
Serving Sandwiches, Bagels & Lox, Quality Cold Cuts & New York Cheesecake
The Carriage Shops, Amherst 549-6314

TOMORROW!
"APPLAUSE"
A Backstage Musical
mar. 27, 28, 29, 30 apr. 3. 4 8 p.m.
bowker auditorium, stockbridge hall
For Tickets Call 545-0783

Great Prices
Spring Clothes
Jewelry & Gifts
THE MERCANTILE
AMHERST CARRIAGE SHOPS
Daily 10 am - 6 pm

This Week's Health & Beauty Aid SPECIALS!

SILKIENCE 7 oz. Reg. and Extra Body our reg. 1.61 only 1.09
NEUTROGENA reg. 3½ oz. our reg. $1.24 only 89c
CREST 7 oz. reg. & mint our reg. $1.69 only $1.15
Johnson & Johnson Baby Shampoo 11 oz. our reg $2.43 only $1.69
BAUSCH & LOMB Lens Care Products for Soft Contact Lenses
Lens Lunricant our reg $2.18 only $1.65
Saline Solution 8 oz. our reg. $1.69 only $1.29
Daily Cleaner 1½ oz. our reg 2.18 only $1.65 look at our regular low prices while you're in
in the campus center at umass
the UNIVERSITY STORE

David Whitman
Hair Shack
is proud to announce
Roger Davignon
and
Richard D'Amico
have joined our talented staff

124 Amity Street
Amherst
549-5111
David Whitman
Hair Shack
A Total Service Salon

AFSCME
the union
that cares

UMASS EMPLOYEE'S LOCAL 1776
COUNCIL 93 / AFSCME, AFL-CIO
417 GRADUATE RESEARCH TOWER B
545-2831

This is Your Day!
To Vote For

★ Substantial Pay Hike

★ Job Security

★ Improved Seniority

★ Job Protection

★ Safe-Level for Night Lighting

★ No Parking Fee

★ Restoration of Veterans Leave

★ 80 Percent of Prevailing Wage Rate for Bldg. Tradesmen

VOTE

AFSCME
COUNCIL 93
LOCAL 1776 AFL-CIO

MEMORIAL
HALL
MARCH 26

Editorial/Opinion

Long Island dreaming

There is a minority group on this campus that has yet to be the subject of documentaries, yet to be the recipient of charity donations, and yet to secure their own section in the Collegian. Still, this suppressed mob continues to multiply on this very campus and it is feared by some that they will one day take over. The group I refer to consists of none other than those who, by some quirk of fate, are forced to reside on Long Island. Through no fault of my own I have lived there, in flat, over-crowded suburbia, for the past 12 years, yet my ears burn anytime I overhear a fellow UMie sarcastically crack, "Some of my best friends are from Long Island." L. I'ers are the victim of stereotype after embarrassing stereotype, and it is about time someone put a stop to all this. So take out your notebooks and #2 pencils and take notes:

DEBORAH WAYNE

Myth #1: Long Island is a quaint little village in New York. Absolutely false! LONG ISLAND IS THAT THING UNDER CONNECTICUT THAT LOOKS LIKE A FISH. There are a few million uptight inhabitants on this glacier deposit who spend half their lives on the Long Island Railroad commuting back and forth to Manhattan.

Myth #2: Long Islanders talk funny. Change funny to differently. For example, when we ask for the "potty" we are looking for the nearest bathroom, not the nearest get-together. When things are "wicked" we are usually referring to witches from "The Wizard of Oz". Ask for a "black 'n white soda with sprinkles" and you will get vanilla ice cream with chocolate syrup garnished with those little brown specks on top. I'd hate to see what you'd get if you ordered that in Boston.

NOT ALL LONG ISLANDERS TALK AS IF THEY HAD NEVER LEFT BROOKLYN, but a lot do, and in varying degrees. True Brooklynites imitate Barbra Streisand, or perhaps it's the other way around. Although I haven't met a L.I'er yet that pronounces "Island" like the word "Guyland," I know a lot of in-state students who do.

Myth #3: Long Islanders hate their local sports teams. This is a flagrant distortion of the truth. LONG ISLANDERS ARE SIMPLY FICKLE. And what, may I challenge, is wrong with always rooting for the winning team? Die-hard Mets fans back in 1969 were applauding someone else by 1970. Rangers and Islanders lovers sing nothing but praises for Montreal when playoff time rolls around.

In conclusion, a L.I'er's favorite pasttime is neither baseball, football, raquetball, nor mahjong, but off-track betting. OTB was created some years ago so penniless L.I'ers wouldn't have to go all the way to the track to lose even more. And speaking of money:

Myth #4: All Long Islanders are Japs. I am still amazed by how many people, on hearing where I live, immediately conclude that I am rich, spoiled, and Jewish. First of all, for those of you who still believe that Japs are those wonderful people from Tokyo, it's about time you lost your innocence. Jap is the acronymn for Jewish American Princess, which refers to those who are rich, spoiled, and Jewish. Actually, there's a lot more to it that that.

YOU DO NOT HAVE TO BE JEWISH TO BE AN AMERICAN PRINCESS. There are Caps (Catholic), Paps (Protestant), Maps (Moonies), you name it.

The layman can spot a Jap simply by listening to their conversation with Mommy in a department store. We paupers fret about the inflated price of underwear; Japs argue over whether they should go to the Bahamas this Easter or visit Grandma in Miami for the umpteenth time.

Oh, do the above descriptions remind you of acquaintances from home? Small wonder; next time we will destroy myth #5: All Japs live on Long Island.

So next time you spot a Long Islander, do not treat him/her with contempt. Accept members of this minority as if they were just like everyone else, but God knows they're not. Class dismissed!

Deborah Wayne is a Collegian commentator.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian

STEPHEN B. KLEIN, Editor-in-Chief; JULIE EAGLE, Managing Editor; FREDERIC M. KEILLOR, Business Manager; JACK GALLAGHER, News Editor; ROB BURBANK, Executive Editor; LISA CAPONE, Women's Editor; RENEE MOBLEY, Black Affairs Editor; JIM MAHONEY, Photo Editor; SUZETTE COURTMANCHE, Graphics Manager; JIM DEGNIM, Sports Editor; JIM MORAN, Fine Arts Editor.

Associate Editors
Jeff Baker, Fran Basche, Ellen Davis, Carolyn Mooney, Rob Stein, Associate Managing Editors; Ed Levine, Brian O'Connell, Associate News Editors; Eric Janssen, Associate Executive Editor; Debbie Wallace, Associate Women's Editor; Marcia Hospedales, Associate Black Affairs Editor; Peter Berry, Associate Photo Editor; Abbe Bjorklund, Associate Fine Arts Editor; Jane Wolfson, Associate Sports Editor; Jeffrey Bianchi, Associate Graphics Manager.

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian is a member of the Associated Press. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertisers lies with the individual advertisers.

USPS 333 220

Guardian angel of bricks

In the seven months since UMass closed the library tower for fear its facade would fall, the university has adapted. Godell became the library, and eventually the tower was reopened.

Everything is almost back to normal. Cross-campus traffic routinely makes the hairpin turn around the fence in front of Machmer. There is even talk of putting some animals behind the fence along with a big sign saying "ZooMass." In fact, the hay for the horses has already been brought in.

JIM GAGNE

Having adapted so well, a lot of people are now waiting for the tower's red shell to peel off. Seniors are actually hoping to see the spectacular crash before they graduate, but with May approaching, they're becoming discouraged.

Disappointed students feel, "nothing's going to happen...Koffler was just trying to cover his ass...bricks don't just fall off of buildings."

I've done some "digging," as they say in the news business, and found that brick facades do indeed fall from buildings. And these facades fall for the same reasons the library was closed. For the non-technical layperson these reasons can be summarized as improper anchoring and gravity.

Last fall a section of brick facade separated and tumbled from a paper mill near Halifax, Nova Scotia. The sceptics here at UMass are sure to say, "Ah, but that was Canada, they don't know what they're doing up there."

So I dug deeper until I found the man who has to be the expert on brick facades: Clayford T. Grimm, Associate Director of the Center for Building Research at the University of Texas in Austin.

"It happens all the time," he said.

Sure enough, last summer the 12-story World Trade Building in Houston lost a 24 by 12 foot section of its facade. According to an account in the Houston Chronicle, "the face brick was not properly anchored; expansion and contraction from water and heat caused the wall to bow."

Grimm referred me to an article he wrote in Architectural Record called "Designing brick masonry walls to avoid construction problems." Unfortunately, he didn't write it until 1977, three years after our library was completed.

There was one section in this otherwise impossible-to-understand article that should lift some spirits around here. Writing about a 33-story building in Dallas, Grimm says, "the brick veneer was not well anchored to the concrete, and 100-sq. ft. of masonry buckled, tore off the building and fell 20 stories through the roof of an adjacent building."

Wow! I guess they didn't have any old tires stacked on the adjacent building.

Grimm didn't recall any of the details of the Dallas crash, including the date or name of the building. However, we know it could not have been a library because everyone knows UMass has the world's tallest library.

Grimm did remember that the wall in Houston crumbled onto the street at about 6 p.m.

"An hour earlier, people would have been killed," he said.

We have been very lucky, according to Grimm, because no one has ever been killed by a falling brick facade.

His explaination? "There's a guardian angel that looks after bricks."

Jim Gagne is a Collegian commentator.

Letters

Moratorium memorandum

To the Editor:

This Friday has been declared National Nuclear Moratorium Day. The date marks the one year anniversary of the day the Three Mile Island nuclear reactor core came within 30 to 60 minutes of a meltdown. All across the US, people will be gathering at rallies, marches, and pickets to protest the licensing, building, and operating of nuclear power plants. We see nuclear power as a very real threat to the existence of life on earth.

Scientific studies have proven that radiation is a direct cause of genetic mutations and cancers. Nuclear power plants are a source of radiation. So are nuclear weapons fabricating plants, breeder reactors, and nuclear wastes. To people who take the anti-nuclear stand, these side effects of nuclear power generation are not worth the power that these plants may give us during their projected 30 to 40 year life spans (after which the plants can no longer operate and have to be decommissioned) at prices that are ever increasing. (The price of concentrated uranium ore rose 500 percent in just two years and plant construction costs continue to escalate.)

Radiation can take years to manifest itself in the human body. In the US up to 20 percent of Uranium miners die within a 20 year period of mining. US soldiers who were exposed to nuclear bomb explosions in the 1950s have been dying of leukemia in numbers disproportionate to the general population over the last two decades. Radiation affects fetuses and young children more immediately because their cells divide at a very fast rate. After the TMI accident, there was a record-setting number of human stillbirths in the Harrisburg area.

Because we do not live near TMI doesn't mean that we're safe from nuclear threat. Twenty-seven miles from Amherst is the Vermont Yankee nuclear power plant in Vernon, Vt., listed as the fourth most hazardous nuclear power plant in the country by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. The NRC shut down Vt. Yankee in February, 1980 for non-compliance of safety standards and has allowed it to reopen without rectifying those violations. Another nuclear power plant (Mass. Yankee) is located in Rowe, Massachusetts.

On our campus this Friday, UMass students can wear an armband against nuclear power. The armbands will be distributed in the Student Union. If you do not want to wear an armband, I urge you to take time on this day to learn about nuclear power.

This Sunday, many UMass students and Amherst residents will go to the Vermont Yankee plant in Vernon. There they will join with other residents of Mass., Vt., and N.H. to rally and protest the reopening of the plant. I encourage everyone to come and show their support. Some of the people there will participate in a non-violent sit-in at the plant gates. This action has been coordinated by the Vermont Yankee Decommissioning Alliance (VYDA) with help from the UMass chapter of the Student Coalition Against Nukes Nationwide (SCANN) and Amherst Alternative Energy Coalition (AEC).

Maureen Micek 1983
Brett House

Victim of un-educational ripoff

To the Editor:

Recently, I spent an extremely frustrating evening in Goodell Library. I was researching a case for a management course. All I wanted to do was copy a few articles from various issues of Business Week. The first two articles I looked up had been ripped out, and the next two whole volumes were missing!

I was not the only person who experienced this problem. A few other people wree also swearing to themselves, having been victims of the same situation.

It is an outrage that people are so inconsiderate as to tear out articles rather than photocopy or abstract them.

If I ever see anyone with a ripped out article in their hands or, better yet, in the process of ripping, I will ask them where they got the article, take their name and student number and attempt to have them thrown out of the University, or at least have them put the article back.

Sincerely,
Stephen Garfield
Amherst

Just what you've all been waiting for —

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS
AMHERST
FINAL EXAMINATION SCHEDULE
MAY 1980

I. The two-hour examination periods are identified by code numbers according to the following chart:

	THUR MAY 15	FRI MAY 16	SAT MAY 17	MON MAY 19	TUES MAY 20	WED MAY 21
8:00 a.m.	1	5	9	13	17	21
10:30 a.m.	2	6	10	14	18	22
1:30 p.m.	3	7	11	15	19	23
4:00 p.m.	4	8	12	16	20

COURSE	SECTION	PD.
GERMAN 240	1-3	17
ASTRON 100	1-2	2
	3	4
POLSCI 214	2	7

17 -----implies that sections 1, 2 and 3 of GERMAN 240 will be examined TUES, MAY 20 at 8:00 a.m.

2 -----implies that ASTRON 100, sections 1 and 2, will be examined THUR, MAY 15 at 10:30 a.m.

4 -----implies that ASTRON 100, section 3, will be examined THUR, MAY 15 at 4:00 p.m.

7 -----implies that only section 2 of POLSCI 214 will have an exam, and it will be FRI, MAY 16 at 1:30 p.m.

NOTE: WHEN SECTION NUMBERS WITHIN A COURSE ARE LISTED, ASSUME THAT ANY UNLISTED SECTION IS NOT SCHEDULED FOR AN EXAM.

II. See your instructor for information on the place of examination. He or she will NOT have this information before April 23, 1980.

III. CONFLICTS or MORE THAN TWO EXAMINATIONS IN ONE DAY.

Students who have conflicts in their examination schedule (as published in this schedule) or who have more than two examinations scheduled for one calendar day, may report to the Schedule Office (168 Whitmore) for resolution of these problems.

THE SCHEDULE OFFICE WILL NOT ASSIST IN RESOLVING PROBLEMS UNLESS THEY ARE REPORTED ON OR BEFORE MAY 8, 1980. SO, PLEASE REVIEW THIS SCHEDULE CAREFULLY.

UMASS/AMHERST FINAL EXAM SCHEDULE, MAY 1980 (See Code, Page 1)

COURSE	SECTION	PD.
ACCTG
221	1,3	18
	4-5	2
	6-7	2
	8	6
	9	4
	10	18
222	1,8	3
	2,10	2
	3,7	3
	4	18
	5,9	15
	6	8
	11-12	2
222H	1	16
311	1-2	22
321	1	10
	2	11
	3	6
322	1	7
	2,4	7
	3	20
331	1-2	5
335	1-2	9
371	1	1
AN SCI
502	1A-2B	13
504	1	21
506	1	6
508	1	3
513	1	1
516	1	9
521	1	22
522	1	10
290C	1	8
311	1	13
372	1	3
412	1	15
420	1	7
430	1	18
432	1	16
ANTH
100A	1	4
100B	1	20
103A	1	11
103B	1	2
105	1	3
204	1	3
281	1	7
331	1	14
337	1	6
338	1	16

COURSE	SECTION	PD.
ANTH (Cont.)
370	1	21
371	1	18
376	1	2
521	1	23
525	1	13
AR PK
512	1	5
ARABIC
140	1	11
146	1	17
297B	1	18
ARTHIS
115	1	1
522	1	17
536	1	4
ASTRON
100	1-2	2
	3	4
	4-5	22
105	1	10
112	1	9
222	1	11
538	1	11
B A
497	2-3	8
	4,6	2
BIOCHM
205	1	4
205A	1	4
211	1	21
420	1	5
	2	19
524	1	8
BOTANY
100	1A	5
	2B	18
101	1	5
225	1	15
226	1-4	19
250	1	22
510	1	20
522	1	8
524	1	9
526	1	22
528	1	12
541	1	7
570	1	13

COURSE	SECTION	PD.
C E
201	1	12
202	1	18
240	1-2	7
241	2-3	16
310	1	10
330	1	22
331	1	16
333	1	1
342	1-2	11
357	1	13
360	1	13
370	1	12
385	1	20
420	1	9
471	1	21
511	1	6
535	1	17
536	1	8
561	1	6
562	1	3
569	1	21
590D	1	19
590H	1	18
CH E
225	1	17
226	1-3	4
333	1	22
	2	21
338	1-2	9
358	1	15
446	1	19
562	1	13
CHEM
102	1	2
108	1	22
110	1	3
111	1-2	3
112	1-5	3
114	1	7
227	1	19
241	1	3
250	1	11
261	1	2
262A	1	18
262B	1	3
264A	1-3	12
266	1	12
342	1-2	6
472	1	23
476	1	23
	2	3
489	1	14

UMASS/AMHERST FINAL EXAM SCHEDULE, MAY 1980 (See Code, Page 1)

COURSE	SECTION	PD.
CHEM (Cont.)
504	1	13
513	1	13
519	1	2
551	1	15
585	1	20
CHINSE
451	1	12
CLSICS
100	1	21
105	1	13
197A	1	19
224	1	10
290B	1	12
COINS
201	1	22
250	1	10
287	1-2	18
320	1	23
502	1	20
577	1	8
COMDIS
314	1	14
315	1	4
COMLIT
101C	1	8
102	2	18
110	1	17
COMSTU
121	1	10
150	1	6
221	1	20
226	2-3	3
	4	3
234	1	21
250	1-2	15
	4,6	2
	7	5
262	1	4
266	1	19
340	1	12
444	1	22
491D	1	6
514	1	9
546	1	23
DUTCH
120	1	10

COURSE	SECTION	PD.
ECE
211	1	12
212	1-2	18
302	1-2	9
358	1	23
361	1	15
401	1	19
410	1	6
411	2	10
465	1	14
542	1	8
560	1	2
567	1	16
571	1	7
579	1	18
581	1	17
585	1	14
ECON
100A	1	4
103A	1	1
103B	2	7
103C	3	7
104A	1	11
104B	2	20
104C	3	20
104E	5	10
104F	6	8
106	1	10
141	1	6
203	1	20
204	1	21
	2	13
	3	5
	4	15
	5	8
204H	1	13
311	1	12
322	1	8
361	1	8
383	1	10
491D	1	23
491E	2	4
491F	3	14
505	1	22
	2	12
	3	5
513	1	10
531	1	15
532	1-2	7
547	1	6
552	1	2
582	1	19

COURSE	SECTION	PD.
EDUC P
551	2	22
ENGIN
103	1	16
ENGL
115A	1	4
125	1	5
126	1	21
131H	1	16
132	3-4	14
133	2	17
140	1	23
	2	10
	5	1
163	1	12
171	1	14
	2	17
	4	9
172	2	5
	4	17
203	1	20
203H	1	4
222	2	14
	6	20
236	1	4
252	1	9
253	1	16
261	1	13
262	1,3	8
272	2	4
	3	2
273	1	23
	2	3
273H	1	23
281C	1	15
290A	1	8
312	1	18
313	1	3
335	1	9
344	1	21
351	2-3	18
	7-8	1
505	1	9
ENVDES
335	1	16
391A	1	21
544	1	18
548	1	8
556	1	10
574	1	13

UMASS/AMHERST FINAL EXAM SCHEDULE, MAY 1980 (See Code, Page 1)

COURSE	SECTION	PD.
ENVSCI
502	1	23
EXCSCI
130	1	6
190A	1	22
210	1	22
261	1	1
290G	1	13
304	1	7
	2	14
305B	1	14
390B	1	5
474	1	21
478	1	22
F&R EC
503	1	15
508	1	4
	2	12
515	1	14
524	1	8
536	1	9
102	1	19
121	1	5
211	1A	13
	2B	16
262	1	16
312	1	3
390E	2	12
397A	1	19
452	1	5
461	1	17
474	1	22
FD ENG
503	1	15
505	1	12
507	1	22
512	1	4
281	1	12
381	1	6
531	1	7
562	1	23
576	1	2
584	1	4
FISH
470	1	12
FOREST
212	1	7
316	1	13
324	1	19
329	1	15
334	1	3

COURSE	SECTION	PD.
FRENCH
110	1-8	16
120	1-16	16
123	1	15
126H	1	13
130	1-7,9-11	15
141	1	14
	3	23
	5	11
	6	11
142H	1	2
143	1	3
144	1	15
	2	17
	3	17
145	1	16
	2	8
146	1	16
147	1	5
147A	1	10
150	1	14
151	1	20
	2	4
172	1	13
	2	15
181	1	21
182	1	19
182H	1	6
271	1	8
282	1	2
311	1	15
344	1	17
390H	1	18
FS&N
101	1-2	13
102	1	17
130	1	18
230	1	17
261	1	19
465	1	8
467	1	6
467A	1	10
524	1	9
542	1	3
552	1	3
562	1	5
572	1	22
577	1	11
578	1	1
582	1	20
590A	1	13
590B	1	9

COURSE	SECTION	PD.
GB FIN
260	1,5,6	16
	2,11-12	22
	3-4	20
	7	5
	8	16
	9-10	7
301	1,5	18
	2,6	4
	3-4	23
	7-8	4
	9-10	13
	11-12	15
302	1	23
303	1	9
	2	1
304	1	3
310	1	2
320	1	6
330	1-2	21
333	1	9
340	1	22
362	1	12
364	1	23
370	1	5
	2	17
412	1	19
472	1	3
GEOG
145	1	10
155	1	8
331	1	10
350	1	19
363	1	6
388	1	3
391A	1	12
394A	1	18
420	1	23
466	1	15
GEOL
101	1	17
	2	22
103	1	8
	2	4
106	1	1
280	1	7
285	1	1
310	1	5
320	1	6
430	1	9
449	1	19
511	1	1

Final exam schedule

UMASS/AMHERST FINAL EXAM SCHEDULE, MAY 1980 (See Code, Page 1)

COURSE	SECTION	PD.
GERMAN
110	1A-4D	16
120	1A, 3C, 4D, 7G, 8H	16
	2B, 5E, 6F	17
120	9I	6
230	1-3	16
240	1-3	17
242	2	12
246	1	2
248	1	8
251	1	8
261	1	19
265	1	7
291A	1	1
297A	1	15
310	1	5
320	1	14
325	1	4
391G	1	2
411	1	10
433	1	19
496	1	3
585	1	13
GREEK
111	1	7
140	1	6
142	1	11
210	1	1
291B	1	21
HEBREW
102	1-3	5
202	1-2	18
HIST
101	1A	12
	2B	6
	3	19
	4	8
111	1	12
121	1	23
131	1	13
140	1	17
	2	13
141	1A	6
	3	21
150	1A	13
	3	8
	4	9

COURSE	SECTION	PD.
HIST (cont.)
150	5	1
151	1A	11
151	2B	10
151	3	8
151	4	12
151	5	20
151	6	13
231	1	23
284B	1	12
303	1	4
305	1	22
308	1	16
309	1	5
312	1	15
316	1	11
321	1	23
329	1	13
333	1	19
335	1	14
346	1	14
351	1	21
354	1	17
355	1	8
364	1	1
367	1	20
368	1	11
373	1	9
375	1	17
379	1	10
381	1-2	22
382	1	14
400	1	12
HOM EC
265	1-2	22
270	1	23
272	1	22
276	1	3
300	1	21
305	1	10
374	1-2	1
393A	1	15
594E	1	9
595B	1	2
HRTA
100	1	5
156	1	22
202	2	17
211	1-2	13
220	1	22
221	1	9

COURSE	SECTION	PD.
HRTA (cont.)
291A	1	7
300	1	20
301	1	21
330	1-2	6
351	1	20
367	1	15
391A	1	4
391B	1	11
391C	1	22
392A	1	7
393	1	9
491A	1	3
493A	1	10
HUMDEV
440	1	13
I E
453	1-2	15
455	1	9
472	1	5
473	1-2	17
480	1-2	2
520	1	11
522	1	23
ITAL
120	1-3, 5	11
126	1	5
140	1	19
JAPAN
110	1	20
JUDAIC
102	1-2	13
LATIN
110C	1	22
115	1-2	16
125	1-10	15
135	1-2	18
140H	1	16
145	1-3	9
210	1	23
LING
201	1	5
201	4	15

UMASS/AMHERST FINAL EXAM SCHEDULE, MAY 1980 (See Code, Page 1)

COURSE	SECTION	PD.
LS&R
264	1	5
320	1	12
362	1	23
M E
101	1	10
201	1-2	7
210	1-2	10
211	1-2	17
220	1	20
230	1-4	14
310	1	4
313	1-3	17
315	1	20
330	1	8
340	1-3	13
344	1-2	21
345	1	1
351	1	7
352	1	16
354	1-2	2
355	1	19
385	1	23
580	1	12
MATH
504	1	18
011	1	18
104	1	1
104A	1	10
104S	1	1
110C	1	17
110S	1	11
113	1	23
114	1	6
120	1-6, 8, 10-12	3
121	1,4-6, 12,17	23
127	2-15, 17-18	23
128	1	23
	2	15
	3	1
	5	17
	6	19
	9	11
	11-12	23
	13	6
	17	23
	21	21
128B	1	12
131	2-4,6-7, 9,11-13	23

COURSE	SECTION	PD.
MATH (Cont.)
132	1-18, 21-24	19
132E	1	19
133	1	22
233	1-2	21
	3	21
	4	2
	6	22
	7	2
	8	23
	9	21
	10	19
235	1-2	21
	3	3
	4	15
	5	3
	6	15
	7	11
	8	22
236	1-2	11
421	1	2
426	1	17
431	1	5
	2-3	5
	4	6
	5-6	6
431C	2	1
442	1	4
452	1	16
461	1	10
534	1	14
563	1	13
597C	1	19
MGT
301	1-2	14
314	1-2	8
	4	8
	5	4
	6	8
330	1-2	11
	3-4	17
331	1	18
	2-3	22
347	1	15
	2	13
	3	20
365	1-3	7
442	1	6
444	1-2	5
445	1-2	19

COURSE	SECTION	PD.
MICBIO
160	1	4
320	1	21
630	1	6
MILSCI
142	1-2	20
290A	1-2	7
313	1-2	23
413	1	10
MKTG
301	1-2	19
341	1-2	10
	3	2
410	1-2	14
	3-4	16
412	1-3	19
421	2	3
423	1	9
425	1	11
	2	14
437	1-2	15
459	1	9
491	1	5
MUSIC
100	1	9
	2	12
103	1	7
110	1	3
	2	11
	3	5
111	1	5
112	1	8
113	1	13
	2	8
213	1	14
	2	20
300	1	1
504	1	5
514	1	18
NAREST
100	1	21
NEAST
101	1	13
NURSE
210	1	13
301	1	10
390C	1	11
410	1	4
420	1	23
430	1	15

UMASS/AMHERST FINAL EXAM SCHEDULE, MAY 1980 (See Code, Page 1)

COURSE	SECTION	PD.
NURSE (Cont)
440 1A	3
490A 1	22
OHI
101B 1	4
131B 1	2
PEP
211 1	2
310 1	4
370 2	20
401 1	9
PHIL
100 1A	1
3C	12
4	11
110 1	4
2	4
3	22
4	14
5	6
160 1	5
2,4	13
3	1
220A 1	20
291A 1	11
514 1	20
550 1	15
562 1	13
PHYSIC
100 1-2	9
114 1	3
115 1	13
117 1	3
119 1	11
139 1	20
141 1	20
142 1-2	14
161 1-2	14
162 1-2	13
172 1	9
263 1	14
282 1	2
290B 1	4
423 1	22
424 1	13
530 1	1
531 1	18
532 1	6
553 1	11

COURSE	SECTION	PD.
PLPATH
100 1	13
520 1	22
590A 1	13
PLSOIL
504B 1	10
518 1	20
520 1	23
524 1	7
528 1	8
530 1	13
536 1	20
105 1	9
120 1	14
225 1	13
250 1	20
260 1	18
290A 1	6
545 1	7
565 1	8
570 1	10
POLISH
102 1	16
POLSCI
101 1A	10
2B	17
4N	11
5N	4
111 1	7
121 1	18
131A 1	12
131B 1	2
141A 1	20
151B 1	4
208 1	2
214 2	7
219 1	14
255 1	9
258 1	13
270 1	5
302 1	6
	2	1
320 1	14
321 1	6
325 1	12
326A 1	22
326B 1	4
326C 1	20
327A 1	3
334 1	21

COURSE	SECTION	PD.
POLSCI (Cont)
337 1	15
350 1	6
351 1	23
354 1	21
356 1	11
360 1	17
362 1	19
362A 1	19
371 2	5
374 1	2
378H 1	18
391H 1	5
PSYCH
100A 1	1
100B 1	21
100C 1	12
105 1	10
110A 1	6
110B 1	2
110C 1	22
110D 1	21
150A 1	21
150B 1	19
150C 1	2
150D 1	17
190X 1	20
205A 1	7
208 1	12
240A 1	20
240B 1	4
240C 1	11
240D 1	1
280A 1	6
280B 1	18
310 1	9
315A 1	3
315H 1	22
320A 1	4
320B 1	23
320H 1	21
330A 1	7
330H 1	14
335A 1	22
350A 1	19
350B 1	10
350C 1	18
355A 1	18
360A 1	11
370A 1	23
370H 1	6

UMASS/AMHERST FINAL EXAM SCHEDULE, MAY 1980 (See Code, Page 1)

COURSE	SECTION	PD.
PSYCH (Cont)
390L 1	17
480 1	8
486 1	14
543 1	11
583 1	7
590B 1	12
590M 1	13
590N 1	13
591B 1	8
PUB HL
123 1	21
2	17
302 1	19
331 1	16
360 1	7
540 1	18
552 1	23
563 1	8
564 1	22
590B 1	4
590D 1	16
RHET
140B 2	20
RUSS
101 1	16
102 1-2	15
202 1	9
297D 1	18
302 1	2
553 1	4
556 1	23
560 1	12
S BA
523 1	3
541 1-2	23
572 1-2	19
SOCIOL
103 1	8
104 1	17
105 1A	21
2B	6
106 2	14
211 1	11
2	7
222 1	6
240 1	4
241 1	1
2	8

COURSE	SECTION	PD.
SOCIOL (Cont)
261 1	2
297A 1	11
311 1	3
311H 1	3
321 1	3
323 1	10
323H 1	10
326 1	8
441 1	20
440 1	13
460 1	4
460H 1	4
SPAN
110 1-8	15
111 1	16
120 1-16,18	16
126 1-2	9
130 1-10	15
140 2-10, 12-14, 16-17,19	16
190A 1-2	22
220 1	2
221 1	22
SPORST
150 1	4
150A 2	20
150B 2	8
200 1	21
201 1	16
202 1	17
203 1	15
STATIS
121 1,10	2
2	1
3	14
4	5
7,9	2
11	20
140 1-2,4-6, 9,12,14	9
415 1	4
2	9
416 2	21
451 1	4
SWEDSH
246 1	8
291S 1	20

COURSE	SECTION	PD.
THEATR
100 1	20
120 1	14
160 1	7
222H 1	14
241 1	23
WDTECH
404 1	10
506 1	21
WILDLF
362 1	11
564A 1	18
564B 1	18
ZOOL
101 1	9
102 1	9
103 1	9
190C 1	5
200 1	13
235 1	15
430 1	10
510 1	4
521 1	8
523 1	1
531 1	6
532 1	13
535 1	3
537 1	17
542 1	2
544 1	2
548 1	12
550 1	20
560 1	12
560A 1	12
568 1	16
570 1	11
571 1	19
580 1	14

Pull out and save for future reference

Our Sale is on Sale!

The Lodge has taken an additional 50% OFF on all sale merchandise.

Amherst Lodge only.
Good 3/26 - 4/5.

THE LODGE at harvard square®

Route 9. Hadley. 584-9690.
Monday to Friday, 10:00-9:00. Saturday till 6:00.

©The Lodge at Harvard Square

WELL-ADJUSTED

When you buy a cassette deck from Sound & Music, you don't just get one of the world's finest cassette decks. You also get a machine that has been individually adjusted and calibrated by our technician to deliver its best possible performance.

It takes time and costs money to optimize these machines, but it makes a difference you can hear. That's why every cassette deck we sell is "well-adjusted."

harman/kardon hk 705

NEW!

The world's first cassette deck with Dolby HX.

Dual C-830

Our finest 3-head cassette deck.

ONKYO TA-630D

A proven "best-buy"

TEAC CX-211

In a class by itself among low-priced decks. $159.00

SOUND & MUSIC

90-92 King Street
(Rte. 5)
Northampton

"Good Advice — Honest Price"

VISA

Thursday & Friday 'til 9
Mon.-Sat. 10-5
584-9547

INTERNATIONAL WEEK
Wednesday, March 26
7:00 Herter Hall 3rd floor
w/film/slide show on Palestinian Struggle

SALE-ON-TIRES

ROUTE 9 HADLEY, MA.
2 MILES FROM NORTHAMPTON OR AMHERST

MICHELIN - GOODYEAR - LEE - ZENITH - B.F. GOODRICH - ARMSTRONG - CONTINENTAL - PLUS OTHER MAJOR BRANDS.
SUPERSEDES ALL OTHER ADS.

Cash & Carry — TIRES — Cash & Carry

All our tires are new and first line. No Blems or Seconds.

Wholesale to the Public.
We can arrange to have your tires mounted.

CONSUMER NOTE

WHEN COMPARING PRICES, MAKE SURE YOU ALSO COMPARE QUALITY GRADES. EFFECTIVE APRIL 1979 THE N.H.T.S.A. GRADED REGULAR BIAS-PLY TIRES (STANDARD #100) AS FOLLOWS:

NAME	QUALITY GRADE*
FIRESTONE (DLC)	80
ZENITH (PE)	80
GOODYEAR (POWERSTREAK)	70
WOOLCO (ALL AMERICAN)	70
SEARS (GUARDSMAN)	60
K-MART (KM-50)	50

* The higher the No.: the longer the tire will last.

DON'T FORGET! IT'S YOUR MONEY

CASH AND CARRY VISA OR MASTER CHARGE

OPEN Mon.-Fri., 9:30-5 Sat., 9:30-1

586-2544

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST
FINE ARTS CENTER CONCERT HALL
presents
THE GUARNERI STRING QUARTET

FRIDAY, MARCH 28, 1980 AT 8 P.M.
Music of Haydn, Bartok and Schubert

General Public $7, $6, $5
Senior Citizens $6, $5, $4
UMass Student Discount Tickets $3.50, $3, $2.50

TICKETS NOW ON SALE AT FINE ARTS CENTER BOX OFFICE (M-F, NOON-5 P.M.; 545-2511) AND TICKETRON OUTLETS.

Phone Reservations • Mail Orders • Group Discounts • Group Dinner • Theater Packages Available.

Paid Intern Positions

The Housing Administration Intern Program is currently seeking interested freshmen and sophomores for paid positions in our management training program. All majors are encouraged to apply. Applications are currently available at Whitmore, CCEBS, The Woman Center, and BCP and at Berkshire House. For more info call 545-0890, 545-1960, or 546-5532.

★ Bribery

store and drove to an ice cream parlor in West Boylston, Massachusetts. They discussed the payment while sitting under a tree eating chocolate ice cream cones, he said.

When asked by a commission member how Manzi knew he was interested in the Holyoke job, Masiello answered, "I always thought Manzi had a spy network second to none," adding that many state employed owed their jobs to Manzi.

Masiello, who promised to reveal exactly how the money was paid, was the first witness to talk publicly about financial demands associated with public contracts.

Manzi, meanwhile, recently underwent cancer surgery at Massachusetts General Hospital. His lawyer, James Reardon, said he has not been able to talk with Manzi about the allegations "and until I am able to communicate with Mr. Manzi, I shall not be able to comment."

LSAT GMAT/GRE

CCI John Sexton's TEST PREPARATION CENTER

Classes now forming in Amherst, Hartford, New Haven & Storrs

You've worked hard in college but so has everyone else who's taking the test — Sexton Test Preparation Courses can give you a real edge.

Call: 413-733-2940
77 MAPLE STREET, SUITE ONE
SPRINGFIELD, MA 01105
"AMERICA'S LEADING EXPERTS IN TEST PREPARATION"

Bausch & Lomb's Campus Quest '80...

A search for industrial engineers by a company on the move.

We're bringing our professionals to this campus . . . to give you a briefing on Bausch & Lomb:

. . . its resources, as a Fortune 500 company . . . record-breaking results in 1979 . . . and the prospects ahead.

. . . the ways B&L has utilized its optical capabilities to become a world leader in the vision care field.

. . . our Consumer Products Division, which manufactures leading consumer products for sports, leisure and safety.

Our continuing growth has created expansion-generated entry level positions within the Frame Center . . . our Consumer Products Division's principal manufacturing facility. Candidates should be self starters with the desire and potential to advance to senior engineer, manufacturing supervisor, or related position.

Reporting to the Industrial Engineering Supervisor, you'll be able to put your training to use with responsibility for a manufacturing department or area. Specific duties will include work measurement, plant layout, capital equipment justification, cost reduction, work place layout and human factors evaluation. The successful applicants will be provided with extensive in-house training in work sampling, plant layout, methods engineering and MTM.

BS degree in Industrial Engineering, Mathematics or Industrial Management is required. Applied project and/or Co-op experience helpful but not as important as the ability to interface effectively with manufacturing supervisors, employees and other service organizations.

These challenging positions will be located in the suburbs of Rochester . . . a city nestled between Lake Ontario and the beautiful Finger Lakes region of Western New York State. Rochester is ranked among the East's most desirable cities and is ideal for recreational, educational and cultural pursuits.

Don't miss this opportunity to get direct, realistic information on a company on the move—from B&L's own professionals.

CAMPUS INTERVIEWS
April 1, 1980

Contact your Placement Director to arrange an appointment with our representative.

BAUSCH & LOMB

P.O. Box 450, Rochester, New York 14602
An Equal Opportunity Employer, M/F

The Red Hot Connection

The Great American Hot Dog Place
NOW OPEN
15 E.Pleasant St. Amherst
Mon-Sat 11 am-2 am
Sunday 12-12
For Delivery
549-5151

52 Center St. Northampton

The Legal Services Office located at Room 922 Campus Center has 9 openings for paralegal internships for the Fall, 1980 semester.

General Statement of Paralegal Intern Duties:
Paralegals assist the attroney at the Legal Services Office with initial client interview, investigations, legal research, negotiations, giving legal advice and referral whenever necessary, preparation of court forms and attendance at hearings in the District, Superior and Probate courts of hampshire and Franklin counties, and participation in administrative hearings and federal litigation. Other duties include the drafting of varoius legal documents, the writing of letters and making of phone calls on the client's behalf; the maintainance of a continuing client case load; meeting regularly with supervising attorneys to discuss cases; the attendance at staff meetings for teachins and case strategy; and the assistance in reception duties.

Qualifications for Paralegal Intern Applicants:

1. Applicants must be full-time UMass students eligable for full-time academic credit through an academic department. Legal studies and social science majors are especially encouraged to apply.
2. Prior experience is helpful but not required.
3. A desire to learn and study the field of law.
4. An ability to work with and relate well with staff and clients of the Legal Services Office which serves a diversified student population.
5. The ability to work with creativeity, diligence, and occasionally under high pressure.

If interested in applying for a paralegal internship position for Fall 1980, please contact the Office of Internships at the University of Massachusetts, Curry Hicks Bldg., and inquire further at the Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, ninth floor. Applications are due Tuesday, April 1, 1980. Writing sample required.

All Third World students and women are encouraged to apply!

Collegian Classifieds

To place a Collegian Classified
•Come to Collegian Office CC 113
•8:45 to 3:45 Mon-Fri
•Classified deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day

Collegian Classified Rates
•15c per word
•Student rate 10c per word
•Cash in advance
•5 consecutive days 5 % discount
•Phone number FREE

AUDIO

SONY one point stereo eletret condenser microphone excellent cond. $25 253-3225

Record Care: "DiscTracker" for warped records. 'Zero Stat' anti-static gun $15 ea. 549-6836

Intense new Advent walnut speakers 280$ or B.O., Harmon Kardon 330C Receiver 20 watts 150 or BO call Anton 546-5607

AUTO FOR SALE

FIX YOUR OWN CAR. The Student Auto Workshop offers tools, space, and assistance. Tues, Wed, Thurs 3-9 pm, Fri 12-5, Sat 10-5. Level one CC garage. 545-0673

'73 Toyota Mark II Wagn 73000 mi excellent shape, yours for $1980 phone Kittye 549-5412

1970 Volswagon Squareback Radial tires, good engine, 80,000 miles, some rust. $500 or BO call 665-2802

1970 Impala excellent condition, rebuilt small v8, new disc brakes, reupholstered, new radials, over 2,000 invested $800 or BO Jonathan 546-5576

1976 Chevy Nova 6 cyl., good MPG, power brakes/steering, air, radio, great condition call 323-4996

1964 Volvo P1800S Sports Coupe 115 HP 6 spd Michelins Bilsteins AM-FM good for parts or restoration 34 mpg call 549-5359 eves asking 600

73 Nova SS 4-speed excellent condition 542-2942

ENTERTAINMENT

Soundsystem for Hire perfect for bands, doscos, coffeehouses Rick 584-4105

1974 FORD

F-100 Standard P.S. 72,500 mi. no body rot $1785 549-2651 ask for John

FOUND

Found-Brown plastic rimmed glasses in Northeast quad. Call Jeff 6-3210

Keys found near Alumni Stadium call 6-5007

Found set of keys near Hamlin call Joyce 546-1409 to identify

HELP WANTED

Exp. Cocktail Waitress for late Spring and Summer. Apply Poor Richards 8-9 PM Daily

Western Mass Bus Lines is now accepting applications for bus driver training for part time work in Sept. 1980 Qualified applicants must be students of one of the 5 colleges, experienced with standard trans., and willing to commit themselves for 2 semesters. Apply in person at our garage/office behind the Phone Co. bldg. on Pleasant St. Northampton

Summer work, $1,210.00 monthly, travel Car owner preferred but not required. Send SASE Box 213, Amherst MA 01004

INSTRUCTION

Sentics Workshop—"The Miracle of the Possible" call Elizabeth Paton 413 549-3880

LOST

Lost Black Lab named Astro Always seen around campus. If anyone has any info please call Scott at anytime 549-6219. Wears blue collar, keep your eyes open friends.

Roach Clip with fisherman's keychain, extreme sentimental value, please call Dave 6-9547

MOTORCYCLES

1977 Honda CB125S Mint Condition 75-90 MPG $550 6-4554

FOR RENT

One Bedroom in 2 bedroom Cliffside Apartment - Semi-furnished call 665-4602 evenings

Cape Cod Summer Rental 5 bdrms E. Dennis after 5 253-5017

One bedroom Colonial Village $112/mo available immediately 256-6749 Andy or leave message Tobin 509

Cape Cod Summer Rental West Yarmouth 2 miles from Seagull Beach $450 to share room $800 for single 546-9569

FOR SALE

Fender 12 string Guitar w/hard shell case $150 John 665-3679

Gold coke spoon for sale never used 75$ or trade, also silver jewelry fine for gifts 546-9898

Tan Wallabees 8½ mens new $30 6-9991

PERSONALS

Pete Jacke call Macky 665-7923

To Supressed Women Who Need Help: Come forward and talk to me in complete confidentiality. Please contact me, J.D. at the Collegian Women's Dept. I want to help if I possibly can.

Three females looking to take over a three bedroom apartment in Rolling Green for Fall Semester. Willing to take over lease for summer if necessary. Please call 546-9636 or 546-1867

Don't graduate without doing it! Get your yearbook portrait taken--call 545-2874 for your appointment. Don't be left out of the 1980 Index

"Balloons by Ken" Balloon animals at the CC Concourse, can make octopus, bumblebee, giraffe, monkey, elephants, swans, etc. One day only, Thursday Mar. 27th

Jody—Guess who gave us the social disease? Love and kisses 9th floor Washington

Dave L. Congratulations on becoming H.R. of Moore—Good Luck next semester! Love, Lorri

All University Women invited to Rush Parties at SDT for more info call Robyn 545-0527

D.J. needed for Soroity Formal May 2 call Louise C. 5-0527

TMP, Hi Friend, JAG

Do you like the convenience of Dorm living but can't study in your dorm? If so come to a meeting tonight at 8:30 in CC 801 or call 546-7036 before Sat.

To the person that gave me a ride from 202 to Shirley Thanks!

Snake-Man's buddies from Southwest Miami—It's been a wild and crazy week, hope to do it agian soon love No T-s

Come see Woody Allen's comical masterpiece—Everything You Wanted to Know About Sex playing tomorrow in the Campus Center Aud. at 7, 9, & 11 only $1

Studley--Facatious factor I.S!! Should have gone to Tiff's at 3:00 AM. Had a great time down in Fla! Should have done it the French Way! Remember the C.T. at the CT. Watch Out!

Dear Mel Things could be worse, like world destruction maybe. Help Fight Hyperextension!! From your evertactful friend Atilla

10th floor JA Thanks for the party, you're the best, miss you. The Colorado Kid

Slim Whtman loves D.F.

To mingle or to rape the RA, that is the question. For answer see Mark—KDC

I'll evict you my pretties, and destroy your cat too! Esta, The Tenant Molester

Be Cool! The Amherst Cent saver is closer

REWARD

For return of Silver Bracelet lost near Iron Horse Coffee House Friday. Has great sentimental value. Generous reward offered. Call 253-5605

RIDE WANTED

Ride needed to Maine 28th call 6-5330

Ride wanted to NYC Friday Mar. 28 call Alison 549-1046

ROOMATE WANTED

Northampton Coop seeks mature sixth non-vegetarian bus route 586-1415

Two bedrooms in a three bedroom Townehouse apt available June 1 549-1833

ROOM WANTED

Need a summer roomate for your Vineyard home? Call Beth 549-6534

SERVICES

Attorney Jason R. Rosenthal Legal Representation, Income Tax Preparation. Days 584-4285 Evenings 253-7617

TYPING Experiencec typist, reasonable rates 256-6360

UMass Legal Services Office offers free legal services to fee-paying graduate and undergraduate students in the areas of University administrative problems; landlord/tenant disputes; and uncontested divorces and guardianships. LSO also gives advice on Small Claims Court, and limited counselling in criminal matters. call 545-1995; Room 922 Campus Cemter, UMass

SLIM WHITMAN

The Union Program Council is proud to announce that due to popular demand they are in the process of booking the incomparable master of song--Slim Whitman--drop by UPC and say thanx

Slim Whitman--The Mass Fruit Growers Assoc. supports Slim for Spring Concert--dodge a tomato--Aieeeegh! Awaaaay!

TO SUBLET

2 bedroom apt Colonial Village on bus rte starting June 1 through August call Lisa or Robin 253-3740 evenings

1-4 Bdrms in 4 bdrm apt June-Aug w/option Lori 256-8233

1 bdrm in 4 bdrm apt w/kitch, lvrm, bath Phillips St $80/mo Wendy 549-1005

Furnished 2 bedroom Brandywine for the summer A/C pool 2 buses rent negotiable call 549-2832

2 L6 bdrooms Brandywine Apts perfect location furnished balcony pool tennis reasonable price call 549-5959

Apartment Brittany Manor June-Aug 300.00 mos. 253-5120 after 6

2 bedroom furnished on bus route June-August $195-mo Fall option 665-4720

3 bedroom apt. take over in Fall ¼ mile from Campus 549-1462 evenings

2 bdrm Twnhs So Amh on bus rt avail My-Aug w fall opt rent neg 256-8650

WANTED

Fast immediate cash for gold-school rings-diamonds- silver Jeff anytime 527-7078 586-0180

DJ wanted for party and or formal call 6-9850 6-9851

Seeking Glamour and Excitement?

The Collegian Advertising Department is searching for advertising reps, so if you are very motivated and easily excited, drop down to the Collegian office and ask for Ken. Boring people need not apply.

A Car is Required

The Collegian is an Equal Opportunity Affirmative Action Employer

Bass SUPER SUNJUNS SALE

2 STYLES
2 COLORS
medium & narrow widths
all sizes available
Reg. $38
SALE $26.95

Heartfelt Leather
103 N. Pleasant St., Amherst
Downtown Amherst
10-6:00 Mon.-Sat. 253-5505

AMC AMERICAN MULTI CINEMA
ADULTS $2.75 STUDENTS & SR. CITIZENS with AMC CARD $2.25 TWI-LITE SHOW $1.50 - Special Engagements Excluded Twi-Lite Show - Limited to Seating
TIMES SHOWN FOR TODAY ONLY

HAMPSHIRE 4 — 584-7550 HAMP. MALL ON CAFE SQ.—RT. 9, HADLEY, MASS.
DUSTIN HOFFMAN Kramer Vs. Kramer — 9 Academy Award Nominations (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:15 PG
AUDIENCES WILL SIMPLY CHERISH BREAKING AWAY — 5 Academy Award Nominations (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:15 PG
Chuck Norris Jennifer O'Neill — He hears the silence A FORCE OF ONE (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:30 PG
Little Darlings (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:30 R

MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 — 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9-HADLEY, MASS.
PETER SELLERS SHIRLEY MacLAINE BEING THERE — Best Actor Nomination (5:45 @ $1.50) 8:30 PG
ROY SCHEIDER ALL THAT JAZZ — 9 Acedemy Award Nominations (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30 R
JOHN RITTER HERO AT LARGE (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45 PG
James Coco Marsha Mason Chapter Two — Best Actress Nomination (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30 PG

Nuke the Whale by Danny Guidera

4 by Frank Emery

Wimpman by Evan Carlson

Bean by Kevin X. McNamara

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

Crossword

ACROSS
1 River isles
5 Heads
10 Problem
14 Hoof sound
15 Gladden
16 Title
17 Malign
19 Finials
20 Despot's wife
21 Certifies
23 Garbage
25 Ad —
26 Lurch
29 Ran
34 Tart
35 Biblical weed
37 Think
38 Sun
39 Fish-eating hawks
41 Dined
42 Hair
44 Only
45 Raised
46 Book part
48 Teeth
50 Mature
51 Vista
53 Apparent
57 Discover
61 Pier
62 Church tribunal
64 Bakery worker
65 Clumsy
66 Biblical town
67 Fewer
68 Rent
69 Curse

DOWN
1 CPA, e.g.
2 Bantu language: Pl.
3 Indian weight
4 Gushed
5 Banners
6 Pseudonym
7 Japanese pagoda
8 Girl's name
9 Boil
10 Leg part
11 Dozes
12 Leave out
13 Girl's name
18 Muck
22 Bulls: Sp.
24 Painful fears
26 Social class
27 Oak fruit
28 Vexed
30 Rind
31 Coronet
32 Go in
33 Acts
36 Church part
39 Indian
40 Kind of Arab
43 Diggers
45 Baaed
47 Writing tool
49 Units
52 Moon points
53 Man's name
54 Sotto —
55 Islands: Fr.
56 Shade
58 List
59 Mine car
60 Psalm
63 Education org.

UNITED Feature Syndicate
Tuesday's Puzzle Solved

DC Menu

Lunch
Deli Ham on Water Roll
Turkey Divan

Basics Lunch
Tofu Salad Plate
Turkey Divan

Dinner
Lasagna with Meat Sauce
Chopped Beefsteak Special

Basics Dinner
Baked Fish/Newburg Sauce
Chili Cheese Puff

PIZZARAMA
355 College St.
PIZZAS GRINDERS SPAGHETTI
NEW GREEK SALAD $2.00

M-Th 11-1:30 AM
F-Sun 11-2:30 AM
FREE DELIVERY
Phone 253-3808 256-0115

YOUR COLLEGE RING
—FREE—
PLUS A CASH REBATE!

When you trade-in your men's 10K gold high school ring for ... $99.00 on a Lustrium college ring, America's newest fine jeweler's alloy $68.95

Your rebate $30.05

Trade in your women's 10K gold high school ring for $38.00 and buy your Lustrium college ring for only $30.95

10K gold high school trade-ins also apply on all Josten's 10K gold college rings.

Date Wed. March 26 & Thurs. March 27 Time 10 am - 4 pm

Place the University Store

JOSTEN'S
THE RING PEOPLE.

March only

in the campus center at umass
the UNIVERSITY STORE

FREE
What is Consciousness? What is Ego?
a film
Thursday, March 27, 7:30 PM
Campus Center Room 905-909
sponsored by The T'ai Chi Club

Day Camp in Bedford seeks
GYMNASTIC COUNSELOR
& Regular Counselors
$good pay$
call 617-275-1392
or write: Bedford Rec. Dept.
16 South Rd.
Bedford, MA 01730

Do Not Ignore This
It's Benefit Time
For those people who worked 10 or more hours at The Great Ski Snatch
Come to Ski Club Office Before Thurs. March 27th
Ski Club Office C.C. 106 545-3437
UMass Ski Club

TONIGHT
PUB MUG NIGHT
with
JIM PLUNKETT
25c BEERS in PUB MUGS
9 til 1
"An Amherst tradition and now with a great new look"
Serving Food
11:30 AM-9:30 PM
7 Days a Week
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

Join the UMass Phonothon '80. The dinner is free and you'll be helping internships, scholarships, sports, fine arts, and many other special programs. Monday thru Thursday, March 3-6, 10-13, 24-27, 31-April 3, and April 7-10. For more info, call 545-2317 or drop by Room 8 Memorial Hall.

SELL IT SELL IT in the Collegian Classifieds

THE LATEST in HIGH STEPPERS

ESKIL'S NEW HIGH HEEL CLOGS.
When it comes to keeping up with the latest foot fashions, Eskil's always rises to the occasion. Our brand new Western heeled clogs feature comfort and durability while looking as smartly stylish as a pair of shoes can.
So slip your feet into our new High Stepper clogs. And step out in the height of fashion.
$5.00 off any style with UMass ID
WITH THIS AD
7 Pleasant St.
N'ton 586-2528
Take 5-college bus to N'ton
ESKIL'S CLOG SHOPS

ADVENTURE WORLD 80

EUROPE AND BEYOND!
Traveling the open road. Freestyle. There's something about it that means the best experiences you'll ever have. That's the kind of vacation we're offering you.
Take a modern coach, add young people from all over the world, and hit the road.
And you have over thirty options of which road to hit: the glamour cities and colorful villages of the real Europe, the Greek Islands, Scandinavia, Russia, the Middle East, Africa, India... city to city, detail to detail, adventure to adventure.
Call or write for our free full-color brochure.

FDING
INTER-COLLEGIATE HOLIDAYS INC.
501 Madison Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10022
(212) 355-4705

☐ Yes! Send me more information about AdventureWorld 80!
Name
Address
Telephone
School

Program
Documentary Film: "The Golden Crescent"
Turkish Sweets
Slides of Turkey with commentary
Turkish Music
Displays of Turkish Crafts

we will be happy to share with you some aspects of Turkish culture

Thursday, March 27 - 5:00-9:00 P.M.
Commonwealth Room, Student Union Bldg.
Turkish Knight is presented as part of International Week

ACADEMY of MUSIC
Northampton, Mass.
Filmed on Location At Smith College
Now, Ends Tues.
At 7:00 and 9:15
(note: no Showing Sat. Mar. 29)

ELIZABETH TAYLOR
RICHARD BURTON
ALBEE'S WHO'S AFRAID OF VIRGINIA WOOLF?
GEORGE SEGAL SANDY DENNIS
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

Woody Allen's Everything you wanted to know about sex*
Thurs, March 27 at 7, 9, 11 pm
Location: Campus Center Aud. only $1
(*but were afraid to ask)

How to impress your date, eat great, and save a few bucks
(all in one night.)

Treat her—or him—to any one of our nationally-famous specialities listed below in our money-saving coupons. Because, even when the money's a little tight, you deserve the best.

UM324
Pizza Hut® 424 Russell Street, Hadley 253-9490
$5.99 Spaghetti Dinner for 2!
Dig into 2 large spaghetti dinners with meat sauce, garlic bread and two salads. Beverage not included. Coupon good for eat-in or take-out. Not valid with any other coupon or special. Offer expires ___April 26, 1980___
Cash redemption value 1/20¢ ©1980, Pizza Hut, Inc.

UM324
Pizza Hut® 434 Russell Street, Hadley 253-9490
$4.99 Pizza Dinner for 2!
Splurge on one small SuperStyle pizza with your choice of two toppings plus two salads. Beverage not included. Coupon good for eat-in or take-out. Not valid with any other coupon or special. Offer expires ___April 26, 1980___
Cash redemption value 1/20¢ ©1980, Pizza Hut, Inc.

UM324
Pizza Hut® 424 Russell Street, Hadley 253-9490
$4.99 Sandwich and Salad Dinner for 2!
Take your pick of 2 of our big, delicious sandwiches and two salads. Beverage not included. Coupon good for eat-in only. Not valid with any other coupon or special. Offer expires ___April 26, 1980___
Cash redemption value 1/20¢ ©1980, Pizza Hut, Inc.

UM324
Pizza Hut®
2 Beers for the price of 1! With the purchase of any large pizza.
424 Russell Street, Hadley 253-9490
When you buy any large pizza, this coupon is valid for up to 4 glasses of beer or 1 pitcher when an equivalent amount of beer is purchased. Coupon good for eat-in only. Not valid with any other coupon or special. Offer valid through April 26, 1980
Cash redemption value 1/20¢ ©1980, Pizza Hut, Inc.

If it's sick to love a pen, then the world's going crazy.

People are fanatics when it comes to their Pilot Razor Point pens. They're reluctant to give them up. And when someone borrows one, what happens is inevitable.

First, they love the way it writes. Really smooth and extra-fine. They go wild over its clever metal collar that helps keep the point from going squish. Naturally they "forget" to give it back, although it's only 79¢.

This can be very embarrassing when they're caught in the act.

Others have pocketed Pilot's Fineliner pen. The one with the slightly less delicate stroke. It's only 69¢.

So if you borrow someone's Razor Point or Fineliner pen you'd better be prepared to pay the consequences. But, for much less than a dollar, you'd be smart to buy your own.

PILOT
fineline marker pens
More than just something to write with.

WAX n WANE

'Spring Jean SALE!!

All Fashion Jeans
Landlubber
A. Smile
Faded Glory
H.I.S.
$5.00 OFF

"Chic" Jeans
Reg. 27.95 Now. . . $20.95

Chic Leisure Pants
Reg. 28.95 Now. . . $21.95

WAX n WANE
Fairfield Mall Chicopee
63 N. Pleasant Amherst

Gorillas to face Big Red

By JONATHAN HAMILTON
Collegian Staff

It happened nearly a year ago on a bright sunny Boyden field. The UMass lacrosse team leading throughout the game found itself tied with the Big Red. The thought of an upset was going through everyone's minds. But as fate had it that day, Cornell's Ned Gerber stole the ball away from goalie Don Goldstein in overtime and scored the winning goal.

The lingering memories of that game are sure to be remembered today as Garber's Gorillas travel to Ithaca, New York to square off against Cornell at 3:00 p.m.

The Big Red of Cornell, always a national power, will play host as UMass begins its campaign as the 11th ranked team in the nation. Coach Dick Garber, a legend as Minuteman coach, will begin his 26th season at the helm.

Garber's Gorillas, ranked number one in New England in the preseason polls, are coming off their fourth consecutive New England Championship and their third trip to the NCAA's in the last four years. Last year in the tournament UMass lost a tough battle to Navy in the quarterfinals, 16-14.

Cornell, ranked sixth in the nation and winners of national championships in 1976 and 1977 is expected to be a tough opponent as Dick Garber explains. "This is our fifth meeting in four years and we haven't won one yet. Last year was a very close one though."

UMass junior attackman Skip Vosburgh was one of the team's leading scorers last year and is expected to be in the starting line-up for the Gorillas today at Cornell. (Staff photo by David Rodgers)

This year the attack, without All-American Brooks Sweet, will consist of sophomore Jim Weller, senior Dave Martin and juniors Chris Corin and Skip Vosburgh. The second line of attack who will share the offensive chores is junior Co-captain Peter Schmitz, Tom Walters (excellent at faceoffs according to Garber) and sophomore Mike Lavin. Garber talked about the offense and what he expects to see from it. "I'm pleasantly surprised. All (the attack) have played well collectively. When Brooks was playing all the guys seemed to follow his movements. They should be a good unit working together."

Defensively, junior Co-captain Paul Kinnane has been moved from midfield to defense because, as Garber says, "He's such a great athlete." Along with Kinnane are juniors Ray Cozzi and Mark Fierro to share defensive duties. In reserve are junior Joe P. Bellavia and sophomore Steve Martino.

As far as goaltending is concerned Garber had four players vying for the job. Saying it was a real dog fight between three of them the mentor has decided to start Tom Curran,a sophomore. The two other candidates that have impressed Garber thus far are freshmen Chris Benedetto and Dan Altschuler.

Garber is optimistic about his 26th season. "We should be an exciting team to watch. We have some new faces and more outward enthusiasm than last year."

Trackmen open season

By KENNETH D. ROLT
Special to the Collegian

The UMass men's outdoor track team opens its season this Saturday at the Westfield Invitationals Relays, at Westfield State College.

Rick Trunfio, Francisco Ginja and 1980 New England AAU 60 yard dash champ Bill DeVarney will be relied on in the sprints through the season, with Rick Cady and Bob Pearson seeing duty in the longer dashes of 400 meters.

Versatility in the middle distance and distance races will be the key to the success of the Minutemen this season. Solid and Strong were Coach Ken O'Briens comments on the corps that rolled up many points during the indoor and cross country campaigns of this year.

Rick Walls, Paul Beaulieu, Steve Macdougall, Mickey Baugh and the Doiron brothers, Mike and Rick, will run the gamut of races from the middle distance 800 meter to the 25 lap 10,000 meter.

Geoff Durant, DeVarney and Yankee Conference Champion triple jumper Mark Grasso will highlight the horizontal jumps. Senior Jim Larabee needs only four more inches on his best vault to equal the outdoor pole vault mark at UMass, 14'4" by Eric Gudmab in 1975.

Returning to the weight circles will be hammer thrower Kirk Skinner and freshman shotputter Stephen Hyder.

John Rasku, Paul King and John Wright will handle the hurdles this spring, and Wright may compete in the sprints or jumps. As well as being the Boston Globes All Scholastic high hurdler last year in his first in racing the outdoor highs, he also was a State class long jumper.

Kentucky Governor and former Boston Celtics owner John Y. Brown Jr. congratulates Darrell Griffith of the NCAA basketball champion University of Louisville during ceremories in Frankfort yesterday. (AP Laserphoto)

Dave Bradley

Lobe-otomy

Did anybody else happen to notice the size of former UCLA basketball coach John Wooden's earlobes during a televison interview before the NCAA championship game the other night? I did. They were huge!

Informed sources say Wooden's lobes get like that just before UCLA is about to lose a basketball game. It is also rumored that the reason Wooden quit coaching when he did was because his earlobes were almost touching his shoulders before the start of the 1975-'76 season and he took this as a bad omen.

That is a very rare spectacle in sport, shoulder-length earlobes. There are numerous other sights in sport that you see very rarely, and some you are likely never to see, such as:

Bob Cousy teaching a speach class; Don Zimmer in a bathing bikini; Jimmy Connors reading Penthouse magazine; Terry O'Reilly hosting Saturday Night Live; Ray Clayborn buying tickets to a Boston Globe sportswriters dinner; Carlton Fisk without a pound of chewing tobaccos in his cheek; or Muhammed Ali win another boxing title.

And speaking of loudmouths (actually I like The Greatest), sportsfans can be pretty cruel to referees and players alike. A UMass basketball fan once told a referee, "Hey ref, your shoes are having a party. Why don't you invite your pants down so you can see the ball!" And Luis Tiant, former Red Sox pitcher now with the New York Yankees, was pitching in exibiton last week against the Atlanta Braves when a fan accosted him with "Hey Luis, only one player to a uniform!"

But before I get sidetracked, I'd like to come to the point of this piece which is the criticism that sportswriters and broadcasters use too many cliches in there respective work areas. This criticism has become especially vicious these days with the NCAA tournament just concluded and I think it's time for a sportswriter's view.

Sportswriters and the people in the broadcast profession do not deal only in cliches, far from it. A sportswriter may have a hard time covering an event once in a while but when the going gets tough the tough get going. A good sportsperson knows there is no tomorrow when it comes to describing the thrill of victory and the agony of defeat. For the sportswriter there are no holds barred, he goes for the gold because he wants to known as a winner. Winning isn't everything, but losing is nothing and a sportwriter knows this. So he gives it his best shot and rarely comes up empty.

Of course the ball may not always bounce his way and the writer may have to resort to a cliche to cross the figish line first, but that's the way the cookie crumbles sometimes. He just has to dig deep and come up with that extra effort. Even with deadline time approaching like a freight train, he knows he still has a chance to hit the long ball because the opera ain't over 'til the fat lady sings. He knows this is it.

I don't want to overstep my bounds and belabor this point until night turns to day, but I did want to nip this criticism in the bud. A stitch in time saves nine, as they say.

And that's what it is in sports.

Track's Judy McCrone a premiere distance runner

By JIM GRAHAM
COLLEGIAN STAFF

With the beginning of warm weather at UMass comes the hoards of recreational joggers out to begin their yearly ritual to get in shape and lose winter flab in order to fit into summer bathing suits. One UMass runner who is neither just a fair weather jogger or concerned with losing winter flab is sophmore Judy McCrone, the top distance runner for the Minutewomen this year.

McCrone, a native of Dover, New Hampshire, began running in eighth grade and hasn't stopped improving since. During last fall's cross-country season McCrone was consistently the top runner for UMass. She led the team to win the New Englands, place fourth out of 70 teams in the Easterns and finish 20th in the Nationals held at Florida State. Besides leading the UMass women's team to victory, McCrone also scored some personal vctories this fall when she became the sixth ranked cross-country runner in New England and 12th on the East coast—not bad afor a sophmore who was only seventh runner on her own team the year before.

"When I came here as a freshman I was a little too cocky and was quickly put in my place, so last summer I ran over 50 miles a week, lost some weight and ran about 12 road races," the 112 pound, five-foot-five inch McCrone said.

Before coming to UMass, McCrone had gained some recognition running for Dover High School when she became state champion in the mile run during her senior year with a time of 5:08. But things have not always gone so well for the 19-year-old McCrone. "When I first went out for track in Dover we had a lousy coach who just told us to run until we got tired. I ran the quarter and the half-mile until my junior year and I had to run on the guy's cross-country team until they started a girl's team my junior year. It was pretty bad, at that time I was only running about 35 miles a week," said McCrone who often runs twice as much distance per week now.

"We got a new coach who was much better during my junior year when I started to run the mile and two-mile. I also joined a track club called the Seacoast Striders and I ran meets and road races with them. That's really when I started running year-round," McCrone said as she passed her hand through her midlength dirty blond hair that was still wet from showering after a tough workout on the track.

As her junior and senior years in high school passed McCrone began winning local road races and running consistent 5:20's in the mile. The small track team of Dover eventually won their regional championships and McCrone began to look at colleges.

"I wasn't highly recruited and I wrote to UMass and asked about the running program. I also applied to URI and UConn but I liked Umass and knew the area well since my sister went to Smith," said McCrone, who was ranked sixth in New England and ninth in the East in the mile her freshman year with a best of 5:08.

During the winter season McCrone was the top UMass miler, breaking the five minute barrier several times. She qualified and traveled to the Nationals this winter for the two-mile but missed her race due to a scheduling foul-up. McCrone's qualifying time of 10:33, run at the New Englands where she finished second, was her best two-mile by 15 seconds and ranked her among the top 15 two-milers in the country.

"I'd like to maintain my running at a national level and keep improving. This spring I hope to make the Nationals in the two mile or the 5000 meters. Whatever happens I'm sure I'll run and compete all of my life or as long as I'm able," McCorne, who wants to go into sociology or community services, said. With two more years of college track ahead of her and many more years of prime distance running ahead we should all be hearing a lot more form UMass's premier woman distance runner, Judy McCrone.

Former UM hoop coach named

AMES, Iowa (AP) —The Iowa State Athletic Council, without a dissenting vote from the 10 members present, voted Tuesday to hire Michigan's Johnny Orr as the new ISU basketball coach. Orr was head coach at Umass from 1964-66. He complied a 39-33 win-loss record."Johnny Orr is one of the finest coaches in the country," said ISU Athletic Director Lou McCullough at the conclusion of the council voting.

Orr was flown to Ames Tuesday to be present for interviews by the news media following the council session.

Orr replaces Lynn Nance, who resigned with a month left to go in the season.

"It's the toughest decison I've ever made," Orr said in an interview before he left Michigan. "I love Ann Arbor and I love Michigan and I hate to leave. But I feel this is a new challenge and it's a great opportunity. I want to see if I can build this (Iowa State's) program."

Orr, a 12-year Michigan coaching veteran, said the six year contract ISU offered by a major consideration.

He said the contract includes a $45,000 annual starting salary. He is now paid $33,665 at Michigan.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY

Collegian

VOLUME CIX, ISSUE 108 Student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst Thursday, March 27, 1980

Afghan history troubled

By SEAN HARVEY
Collegian Staff

The history of Afghanistan has been the history of repression by puppet rulers, and the Afghan people will never accept a foreign yoke, a member of the Afghanistan Support Committee based in the United States told a Campus Center audience last night.

"It is not a coincidence that there was a revolution in Iran and then one in Afghanistan," speaker Ghulam Ali said. "There is a long history of struggle in Afghanistan."

"Beginning in 1900," he continued, "Afghanistan was under the rule of British influenced puppet governments. The Afghan people were not ruling the country. Afghanistan was a strategic point by which the British could protect their interests in India."

TURN TO PAGE 8

Voting delayed for new Iranian parliament. Page 9.

The Ayatollah speaks in Tehran. (AP Laserphoto)

Workers confident in union

AFSCME supported 2 to 1

By MARC FAGELSON
Collegian Staff

The American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees won the union election yesterday by "better than 2 to 1," according to a taped message from the union's headquarters.

Johnathan Tuttle, president of AFSCME Local 1776, said Monday the one issue in the election was whether the University's bargaining unit—the service maintenance, food service, security, and farm workers—would be represented by a union.

AFSCME was opposed on the ballot by the National Association of Government Employees and by 'no union.' Figures for the final margin of victory and the percentage of voter turnout were not available.

One of AFSCME's priorities will be to bargain for a contract which will insure its members pay increases in an attempt to keep pace with inflation, Tuttle said.

"We may be facing a federal freeze on wages. If we get on the wrong side of that," Tuttle said, "we may not get raises for a long time and we just can't afford it."

Steven Kozloski, physical plant safety department head and a NAGE supporter, said the union members do not have a good contract and will suffer from it.

"AFSCME, the bureaucracy, won. But the UMass employee lost," he said.

TURN TO PAGE 14

Employees to vote on union

By MARC FAGELSON
Collegian Staff

Employees of the University's clerical union will vote today and tomorrow whether to retain or decertify the union representing them.

The election was called when William Marcouiller, a technical

TURN TO PAGE 8

Moo?

Unharried by term papers and final examinations, this cow is completely oblivious to the University behind her yesterday in Hadley. (Staff photo by Wayne Rosenberg)

SGA approves finance revamp

By MICHAEL SILVA
Collegian Staff

The Student Government Association last night approved a motion allocating "not more than $32,000" to a professional accounting firm for the reorganization of the SGA accounting system. The SGA also agreed to support the Union Program Council Spring Concert and students' rights to house guests in dormitories during the concert weekend.

The contract, awarded to Arthur Anderson and Co., will take effect on April 7.

Reorganization of the present accounting system was deemed necessary by the UMass Board of Trustees following a 1979 auditors' report citing a "high rate of non-compliance" with standard accounting procedures.

Al Wallace, financial assistant to the treasurer, said last night that a move to revamp the SGA accounting system would save student money in the long run. Wallace said a changeover to the University system will cost between $30,000 and $70,000 annually. Wallace also stressed the importance of maintaining student control over student funds.

SGA Co-president Rich LaVoice said it is "paramount to maintaining our own funds" and "paramount to reducing deficits" that students maintain control over their funds by reorganizing the present system.

A motion by SGA Co-president Brian Burke urging the SGA to support UPC Spring Concert plans and student rights to have guests in dormitories during the concert weekend passed unanimously.

Art Edelstein of the UPC said last night that problems may occur if guests are not allowed to stay in the dormitories during the concert weekend. Edelstein said that despite last year's well-planned concert and the "minimal" problems which developed, the Office of Residential Life is debating whether or not to allow guests. The question on guest policy is up before Vice-Chancellor of Student Affairs, Dennis Madson, Edelstein said.

Funding for the Spring Concert, set at $250,000, is dependent upon te selling of guest tickets, Edelstein said. If guests are not allowed on campus they will most likely stay in Amherst, and, as one senator said, "Amherst will not allow a concert if it will have to accomodate an estimated 20,000 people."

DIGEST

Hub youths convicted

BOSTON (AP) — Two white youths charged with the shooting of a black high school football player during a game last fall pleaded guilty yesterday to a lengthy list of charges and received sentences at Concord state prison.

Joseph Nardone, 17, of Charlestown was sentenced to 20 years in prison after he pleaded guilty to the armed robbery of a convenience store in Boston's North End.

Stephen McGonagle, 17, also of Charlestown received a 15-year sentence of the same offense.

Both teen-agers also received 10-year concurrent sentences for the shooting of Daryl Williams, a 15-year-old Jamaica Plain High School student who was shot as he stood on a Charlestown football field last September.

Carter exempts elderly

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter promised the nation's elderly yesterday that the federal government's two biggest programs for the aging, Social Security and Medicare, will be exempt from wide-ranging spending cuts he wants to produce a balanced budget.

Nor will the cuts reach Suplemental Security Income, the federal welfare program for the aged, blind and disabled; Meals on Wheels; federally assisted housing; the Council on Aging, or the White House Conference on Aging, Carter promised.

CIA reports on Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — The CIA said yesterday that the Soviet Union may be forced to import lead and zinc in the 1980's.

The Soviets are currently the world's largest zinc producers and are second only to the United States in lead production. But a special CIA report says Soviet mines are being depleted and ore quality is declining as the Russians face rising domestic demand. At the same time, development of new mining, concentrating and smelting capacity is slowing, the CIA said. For the next few years, development of new mines and expansion of existing facilities should ensure moderate rates of growth, the CIA said. But this growth may be only barely adequate to satisfy demand.

Buckingham Palace has branded as "nonsense" published reports in the U.S. and Britain that Prince Charles will soon become engaged to Princess Nora of Lichenstein. The reports were sparked by an announcement that Queen Elizabeth would visit the tiny principality. (AP Laserphoto)

Chaplin still controversial

LONDON (AP) — Charlie Chaplin may have been born and raised here, but some Londoner oppose a city plan to put up a life-size statue of the Little Tramp in the motion picture center of Leicester Square.

The situation comes to a head Thursday when the Westminster district planning committee decides the statue's fate.

"Chaplin was a cummunist who never did a thing for this country or for America," said Irene Wolfe, leader of a petition drive that has collected 47 signatures.

Nicholas Thompson, Chaplin's chief opponent on the planning committee, claims the actor "doesn't deserve" such a prominent site, even though he was knighted in 1975

Americans evacuated

WASHINGTON (AP) —

About 20 dependents of U.S. government employees in El Salvador have been evacuated as a security precaution following the assassination of Archbishop Oscar Romero, the State Department said yesterday.

This was the latest in a series of security measures taken to protect Americans in that violence-plagued country.

In recent months, non-essential embassy employees have been withdrawn from El Salvador and a travelers' advisory has been issued warning Americans that a dangerous situation exists.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said there are about 25 U.S. diplomats in El Salvador, excluding U.S. foreign aid personnel.

Other officials, who asked not to be identified, said no decision has been made on whether the administration will send a representative from Washington to attend Romero's funeral.

Ford interested again

CINCINNATI (AP) — Former President Gerald R. Ford said yesterday he would accept a convention draft in Detroit this summer as the Republican presidential niminee, although he termed such an offer "a very, very remote possibility."

Speaking at a breakfast fundraiser for Rep. Bill Gradison, R-Ohio, he also accused President Carter of "flip-flop policies in the foreign field," and blamed him for the 18 percent annual inflation rate because of "his inability to understand simple economics."

Ford said his March decision not to enter the GOP presidential race came after a pragmatic assessmen of his chances of winning the nomination with a late entry in the campaign.

"It wasn't an easy decision," Ford said. "I think it's proven by the polls that if I could get the nomination, I could beat Jimmy Carter - period," Ford said. "The realities were, the odds didn't look like it was very encouraging to get the nomination."

Holyoke corruption exposed

By DAVID HERN
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — An agent of a Los Angeles architectural firm made a $6,000 part-payment — in $5 bills that allegedly came from Korea — toward a $27,000 payoff for a Holyoke building contract, a star witness said yesterday.

Frank R. Masiello, a former Worcestor contractor now living in Florida, said an official from Daniel, Mann, Johnson, & Mendenhall of Los Angeles gave the bag of money to Albert (Toots) Manzi at his market in Worcester in August 1970.

Later, the officer also gave $15,000 in cash to Manzi, the witness said.

The "political contributions" were related to DMJM's contract for designing the Holyoke Community College.

The details came in Masiello's second day of testimony before the special commission probing construction corruption, headed by former Amherst College President John William Ward. Masiello has been granted immunity from prosecution.

Earlier, Masiello told the commission that Mazi, former Gov. John A. Volpe's chief fund raiser, awarded his firm the Holyoke contract in exchange for a $22,000 campaign contribution in 1968.

Originally, DMJM agreed to pay $22,000 but boosted this by $5,000 when the work was expanded, Masiello said. His testimony, so far, accounted for $26,000 in cash payoffs.

Masiello's brother, Bill, delivered an initial payment in cash to Manzi at his Massachusetts Turnpike Authority office in the Prudential Tower. The ailing Manzi is an MTA member until June.

Manzi was at the meat counter when Frank Masiello and DMJM's Barry Mountain arrived with the 1,200 $5 bills in an attache case as another part of the payment. He had called DMJM "deadbeats" because payments were late, Masiello said.

"What the hell am I going to do with $5 bills?" Masiello quoted Manzi as saying.

"Did he return the money?" Michael B. Tracy, commission lawyer asked.

"I never knew Manzi to turn back any money he received," Masiello replied.

The commission did not clarify why the money came from DMJM's Korea operation.

Frank Masiello spoke repeatedly of "intolerrable" pressure from Manzi for contributions, allegedly because Manzi was under pressure to produce.

The first installment, he said, was from a $5,000 check that DMJM sent him at his Florida home. He endorsed it and sent it to Bill Masiello to convert to cash at the Capitol Bank and Trust Co. which was controlled by Sherwood Tarlow, a former judge and the chief fund-raiser for Democratic Gov. Endicott Peabody, who served between Volpe's first two terms.

Masiello said Tarlow was told the money was for a cash contribution "and (he) understood." The money was put in a plain envelope marked "Toots."

Frank Masiello then was secretary to the state Board of Registration of Architects. Lewis H, Weinstein, a corruption commission member, asked Masiello if his board duties concerned the ethical conduct of architects.

"Yes," Masiello replied.

Manzi was at the meat counter when Masiello arrived with 1,200 $5 bills in an attache case as another part of payment.

Two unidentified children of the deposed shah of Iran stand on the balcony of their father's hospital room at a Cairo military hospital yesterday. The shah, who reportedly requires speedy surgery to remove a cancerous spleen, has been offered permanent asylum in Egypt by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

House reconsiders federal budget

By ROBERT PARRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — House budget-writers, reopening consideration of the balanced 1981 federal budget they approved less than one week ago, yesterday deleted proposed changes that would have taken a $3.5 billion bite out of various tax breaks.

The House Budget Committee voted 18-7 to delete the package of tax revisions, which included reductions in the business-lunch deduction and elimination of some tax breaks for the oil industry.

Committee liberals favored the tax changes as a way to force wealthy Americans to share in the sacrifices needed to balance the budget.

The move reduces the committee's proposed budget surplus from $5.5 billion to $2 billion.

Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, DConn., committee chairman, urged removal of the $3.5 billion package of tax revisions, saying it was included in the main budget by mistake amid the confusion of approving the budget last Thursday.

By a 18-7 vote, the committee also rejected a liberal proposal to add $500 million for local revenue sharing to help cities. President Carter is expected to make a similar recommendation.

Last week, the committee proposed elimination of the $1.7 billion federal revenue-sharing program for states, a move that would cut back funds for some localities.

The House committee has proposed a $611.8 billion budget for fiscal 1981, which starts Oct. 1. If approved by Congress, it would be the first balanced federal budget in 12 years.

The House committee action came as the Senate Budget Committee began drafting its own budget proposals.

Tim Twomey proudly shows off his day-old son Christopher Gene at a Sacramento hospital yesterday. Twomey was born without testicles and received a transplant in 1977 from his identical twin, in the first operation of its kind. (AP Laserphoto)

Boston Globe staff members Marty Nolan and Bob Turner spoke to about 75 faculty and students last night on the current political situation in the country. They were sponsored by the Journalism department. (Staff photo by Jim Mahoney)

Globe writers speak at UM

By CARL HOFFMAN
Special to the Collegian

The American voter may finally be waking up to the issues surrounding the 1980 presidential race, said Martin Nolan, Washington Bureau Chief for the Boston Globe, speaking at a panel discussion last night.

The campaign, which until the New York and Connecticut primaries had been a personality contest between the candidates, has now become a campaign of issues, Nolan said. Voter frustration over the Carter administration's inability to deal with inflation, the crisis in Iran, the Russian invasion of Afghanistan and the flip-flop of the United Nations vote on Israel resulted in Sen. Edward Kennedy's victories in the New York and Connecticut primaries Tuesday, he said.

Nolan spoke at a panel discussion sponsored by the UMass journalism department which included Robert Turner, the Globe's state house reporter and Managing Editor John Driscoll. About 150 people attended the forum, including Chancellor Henry Koffler, many journalism students, faculty members and other members of the UMass community.

"If I were Carter I would be very nervous," Nolan said, in reference to Carter's narrow two percent victory in upstate New York which the Carter camp had expected to win by a large margin.

Turner said the next couple of weeks will show whether there will be a major change in the campaign due to Kennedy's latest victories, or whether they are a "cyclical thing." When Kennedy is up in the polls and he seems to be a viable candidate, people begin to think about Chappaquidick and have second thoughts, he pointed out.

WTTT fading out

If you're tuned into WTTT this morning — 1430 on the AM dial — and the signal is faint, it's not your radio's fault.

Yesterday, at about 9 a.m., the Amherst station's transformer, which had been in use since 1963, "blew out," said Public Affairs Director Don Freeman. Freeman said WTTT has sent to Quincy, Ill. for another transformer, which costs more than $1,000 and weighs 331 pounds.

Freeman said the transformer was expected at Bradley International Airport, Windsor Locks, Conn., on a special delivery, 9:41 a.m. flight this morning. He said the station, which is on the air from dawn to dusk, would borrow a 500-watt transformer from a consultant in Vermont. WTTT normally operates at 5,000 watts.

He said the station yesterday received "lots of phone calls from listeners as far as Greenfield" and that town political advertising, which was to begin being aired yesterday, would be "made up to candidates during the course of the campaign." Town elections are April 8.

TMI commemorated

By MARC FAGELSON
Collegian Staff

To commemorate the anniversary of the first accident at Three Mile Island Nuclear Power Plant, the Student coalition Against Nukes Nationwide is planning an armband day for Friday, SCANN member Brooke States, said yesterday.

SCANN members will distribute the armbands between 9 a.m. and noon in front of the Student Union Building, States said. SCANN will also have a table in the Student Union Friday.

"An armband day will be an effective way for people to show their support of the anti-nuclear movement, States said.

Another reason for the armband day is to inform students of the plant's venting of radioactive Krypton gas into the atmosphere, he said.

"We feel it is particularly important to bring the issue alive again," Sates said. "The plant has other alternatives," he said, "but venting the gas is the cheapest way to rid the plant of the radioactivity," he added.

Several New England Colleges and Universities will participate in the armband day, States said. The schools participating have SCANN organizations and include UMass Boston, BU, Boston State College, the University of Vermont, Williams College, and Mt. Holyoke, as well as several others, he said.

"We are urging all UMass students who oppose nukes to wear the armband," States said. "And if any students are in favor of nukes, we'd appreciate it if they would come to our table and read some of the information.

Union Records Limited raised a total of $224.75 for the American Cancer Society by auctioning off a group of posters. The poster that brought the highest bid was this one of The Who which sold for $30.00. With the poster are buyer Jim Phillips (left) and shop manager Daniel Salce. (Staff photo by Chris Grewe)

Combating racism

In Southwest...

By RICHARD NANGLE
Special to the Collegian

Members of the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy told the Southwest Assembly Tuesday night that the area's dorms should form committees to encourage "anti-racist behavior."

SCERA members Naureen Geraghty and Mark Woolridge also said the proposed G core courses in racial and sexual awareness would give students an education about people, rather than just books.

Calling the courses an "analysis in which to understand all different kinds of oppression," Geraghty advocated the courses, which would possibly eliminate a C or D core requirement.

Residents of Thoreau Dormitory also expressed their concerns over the painting of the building. Fesidents said workers were painting over entire walls, even if certain murals are requested to be left uncovered. If residents vote to preserve corridor murals, they will remain untouched, residents said.

The Assembly also discussed a party with the "KIDZ" which will take place this Friday night in Hampden Commons and the annual Southwest spring concert, to be held on Saturday, May 3. Carolyn Moss, Martian Highway, Manana and another undecided band will perform at the concert.

Lovich offers insight, denies hockey pucks

By BRETT MILANO and NORMA COATES
Collegian Staff

The following is the rest of an interview with Lene Lovich, New Wave artist, after her appearance at Bowker Auditorium on March 13. The first half of the interview was run in yesterday's Collegian.

BM: Do you sometimes see a dream as a song – when you wake up, can you envision a song being created out of it, or is that more of a conscious process?
LL: No...I just get really excited about it, and I want to record it in some way, because it has this big impression upon me. And – it just, more or less, doesn't really have much to do with me at all, actually. It just has a life of its own, I don't really have much to do with it.

NC: Are you interested in the occult at all?
LL: Well...that's a very, sort of vague category. I just think that there are many things that have not been fully explained. And even though they haven't been explained, there is just too much evidence from my personal experience, to ignore them. So I am interested, yes. But still, I'm not obsessed by the idea.

NC: Do you put any of that into your songs?
LL: If I feel strongly about it at the time, yes. But it's not the only purpose of my songwriting, it's just one of the things I take notice of.

BM: How about musical influences?
LL: It's difficult to say, really, because I'm not really a devout fan of any one musical style. In fact, I'd rather be free to choose from any musical style that I wanted to. You see, most bands, particularly rock bands, have a limited amount of rhythms that they can use. Maybe three or four rhythms, and then all they can do is maybe make them fast or slow. So they have maybe six rhythms that they can choose from. But I feel more free, to choose from other rhythms.

BM: Yes, and I was remembering, that one of my favorite songs of yours is a B-side you had a while ago, called "One Lonely Heart" (Note: B-side of British "Say When" single.) That sounded almost like a Marlene Dietrich type of song.
LL: Ah, yes!

BM: I'd like to hear one done live sometime, perhaps?
LL: Yes! We might do that. It's just that this band, here, has only been together since the summer. So we don't know all of the songs. We had to make a choice as to what songs to do, and we thought it would be best to choose from the two LP's. It's about half and half.

BM: So what we've heard tonight is most of what you're playing on this tour?
LL: Oh yes.

NC: What direction do you see yourself going in musically, for the next album?
LL: It's hard to say, because I keep an open mind about it, and I don't like to plan too far ahead. I like to surprise myself. I like to keep myself interested. So I'm not really planning so far ahead, to allow for circumstances that might occur.

I haven't really been doing this for very long, to write my own songs and to be the main singer in a band. It's only been two years now, so there's a lot of things I haven't done yet.

BM: Are there any bands in particular that you like?
LL: I like a lot of bands for different reasons, and I don't always like them all the time – it just depends on how I feel. I think there's a lot of good bands in Ireland at the moment, like the Undertones. You should definitely check them out if they come over.

BM: Good band, the Undertones – they played with the Clash on their second tour.
LL: I did one small thing on their album, it's a talking bit.

BM: One silly question out of curiosity: we've been trying to figure out what the objects on the cover of Flex are, the most frequent guess is hockey pucks...

LL: Oh! (laughs) And they're about the same size as hockey pucks. But they're not hockey pucks...and I don't want to tell what they are!

Photo Courtesy Stiff Epic Records

Arts & Club Calendar

Club Listings

Blue Wall, Campus Center – March 27 Van Duren, $1 cover, March 28 "Lazars," $2, March 29 "The Mundanes," $2.

Carbur's, Elmwood Shops, Rte. 9, Hadley – Happy Hour Mon-Fri. 4-6 p.m., 9-11. Double drinks and cheese and crackers during all happy hours and chicken and wings daily 4-6.

Creedo's Coffeehouse, 111 Pleasant St., Northampton – March 27 David Calo, March 29 "Just One More String Band."

Flat Street Club, Flat St., Brattleboro, Vt. – Nightclub.

Hot-L Warren, South Deerfield – Drinks served daily.

Hungry-U, 55 University Dr., Amherst – Thurs. nights 5-midnight – pitchers of beer half price with purchase of large pizza.

Mike's Westview, Old Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst – Fri. night Happy Hour, free buffet.

Plumbley's, 30 Boltwood Walk, Amherst – Happy Hour Mon-Sat. 2-7 p.m. Live entertainment by Katie Jay Sat. night.

Poor Richard's, 10 Belchertown Rd., Amherst – Disco and drinks.

The Pub, 15 East Pleasant St., Amherst – Wed. is "Pub Mug Night" and Thurs. is "Two for One Night" with live entertainment by Two Way Street on Fri. and Sat. Disco with Casey Sun. and Jim Plunkett Wed. $1 cover.

Quonset Disco, 239 Russell St., Hadley – Wed. free dance lessons. Thurs-Sat. disco. $1 cover.

Rahar's, 70 South St., Northampton – open at 6 p.m. Happy Hours Mon-Fri 4-8 p.m. Sat., Sun. and Mon. free pool and 35 cent Miller draft, half-price drinks. March 27 "Fat" rock and roll, March 29 "Saturday Night Riders"-Southern rock, March 29 "Cheri Gates Band," March 30 "Valley Big Band," $2 cover for all shows.

Rusty Nail, Hadley Rd., Sunderland – March 27 and 28 "Loose Caboose," March 29 "Fat," March 30 "A.T. Doe and the Dividends." $2 cover all shows.

Rusty Scupper, 539 Belchertown Rd.

Five College Arts

THURSDAY, MARCH 27
"Applause," presented by Music Theatre Guild, 8 pm, Bowker Auditorium, $2.50 for students. March 27-30, April 3, 4.

"Conversation," Smith Theatre Department, 8 pm. March 28-30 in the T.V. Studio of the Theatre Building. Play by imprisoned Czech playwright, Vaclav Havel.

The Smith College Museum of Art is exhibiting "Promoted to Glory: The Apotheosis of George Washington" now through April 6.

Film: "The Grateful Dead," sponsored by Washington Middle, $1 adm., 5:30, 8, 10:30, Mahar Auditorium.
Film: "Everything You Wanted to Know About Sex...," sponsored by Index, $1 adm., 5, 7, 9, 11 pm, Campus Center Auditorium.

Friday, March 28
Monette Sudler, solo guitarist, presented by Duke Ellington Music Series, 8 pm, Cape Cod Lounge, SU.

Film: "Andromeda Strain" and "Frantastic Voyage," sponsored by Butterfield Dorm, $1 adm., 6, 8:15, 10 pm, CC Aud.

Film: "Attack of the Kung Fu Girls/Kung Fu Gold" sponsored by the Commuter Collective, Free, 8 pm, Thompson 102.

Film: "Night's End," sponsored by International Club. Free, 7 pm, Thompson 104. Guarneri String Quartet, 8 pm, FAC.

Amherst College Dance Concert, Kirby Theatre, 8 pm.

Exhibit, Student Union Gallery, "The Quilt Room," 10 am-5 pm.

Auditions for Hitting Town, Smith Theatre Dept., 7:30 pm in Rehearsal room T107 of the Theatre Building at Smith.

Smith College Chamber Orchestra, music by G.F. Handel, 8 pm, Sage Hall at Smith College, free.

Michael Tree, violist from Guarneri Quartet performing at FAC 8 pm, is giving master class, RM. 44, 3:30-5:30 pm.

Saturday, March 29
"Conversation," by Vaclav Havel, 3:45 pm at Wright Hall, Smith College. Free. Sponsored by Smith College Theatre Department and Amnesty International. By a Czechoslovakian dissident.

Jury's Irish Cabaret, FAC, 8 pm.

Exhibit at University Gallery, Chester Michalik, Photography by a Massachusetts artist, through May 4.

Auditions for Hitting Town (see March 28) at 4 pm.

Exhibit, Frank Gohlke, Photographs of Midwestern landscape, University Gallery, Through April 27. Exhibit, Sculpture on the Wall: Relief Sculpture of the Seventies, University Gallery, through May 4.

Sunday, March 30
Lisa Vercollone, artist, will exhibit her MFA Thesis through April 1 at Herter Gallery. Opening today 2-5 pm.

Poet and Photographer, James Baker Hall, will read from his work at 3 pm in the Jones Library's Burnett Gallery.

Michael Gilber, electronic music, 8 pm, Bezanson Recital Hall.

Monday, March 31
Anne Marcure, organ, 8 pm, FAC Rm. 36.
"East West in Revue," Third World Theatre, Bowker Auditorium, 8 pm.

Wednesday, April 2
Julian Olevsky, violin, 8 pm, Bowker Auditorium.

Burroughs Corporation

Announces a presentation in the Electrical and Computer Engineering Graduate Seminar by Dr. David B. Weisman, Project Engineer, Systems Software

Monday, March 31, 1980
4:00 PM
Engineering Auditorium
East Engineering Building
"The Burroughs Loop"
A Fail-Safe Distributed Processing System"

This presentation describes a distributed processing system referred to as the Exploratory System Control Model (ESM) Multiloop Network which consists of five interconnected microcomputer controlled loops, interfacing various equipment. In addition, a brief tutorial will be given on loop oriented distributed processing systems, including a comparison of loops with serial busses.

This presentaion will be of special interest to students majoring in Electrical Engineering, Mathematics and Computer Science.

All That Jazz — a landmark film

By MICHAEL MARINEAU
Collegian Staff

Let's get one thing straight at the outset. All That Jazz is a work of genius. It is also one of the most pretentious, self-indulgent films of all time. Oddly enough, its pretentiousness is one of the movie's chief assets.

Director and co-writer Bob Fosse has given us a thinly-disguised autobiography of a talented, charming, womanizing, self-destructive director-choreographer, Joe Gideon. Although Gideon's story is the story of Bob Fosse, Gideon is presented as anything but a saint.

Gideon, played passionately by Roy Schieder, is lousy father and husband. His life as a choreographer is documented through several memorable sequences, brilliantly photographed by Giuseppe Rotunno. His cinematography for many of Fredrice Fellini's films included 8¾, to which All That Jazz has been favorably compared.

The film is presented as a flashback. Gideon conversing with a white-clad spectre of death, (played by Jessica Lange) on his life and philosophy. It is a brilliant device, giving Gideon dimension that the script narrative does not provide. Eventually, Gideon's high living catches up with him, and he is hospitalized with the first of three heart attacks. He continues his high living, dispite doctor's warnings, and dies.

In such a totally-autobiographical film, Fosse indulges himself in the ultimate fantasy. Schieder rises out of a coffin and goes out in a huge, dazzling production number set to "Bye, Bye Love." To Fosse's credit, he doesn't let us forget this is a fantasy. At the end of the number, which takes place before everyone Gideon had over known, our final image is Gideon's corpse being zipped up in a plastic bag. "There's No Business Like Show Business' is sung over the closing credits.

We are given plenty of the famous Fosse choreography during the movie, with a fabulously-edited opening of a cattle-call dance audition, and "Airerotica" a sensual production number in Gideon's show that he is rehearsing.

Buoyed by Oscar-calibre performance by Schieder and ably supported by Ann Reinling as Gideon's girlfriend, and Leland Palmer as his ex-wife, All That Jazz, with its nine Oscar nominations, is a movie that it's impossible to remain neutral about and its cynically humorous script make it a landmark film not to be missed.

Ben Vereen as O'Connor Flood and Roy Scheider as Joe Gideon in a fantasy talk show sequence taken from 20th Century Fox and Columbia Picture's All That Jazz.

All That Jazz is currently showing at the Mountain Farms 4 cinemas.*

Fatso is pretty slim

By SUSAN RING
Special to the Collegian

"Fatso" a film written and directed by Anne Bancroft, deals with a heavy problem in a light manner.

Unfortunately, The humor and the drama of the film are not blended as smoothly as they might have been. The frivolous tone of the work as a whole suggests that the weightier moments might have been omitted for the sake of unity.

Dom DeLuise is Fatso. His character shares the first name of the actor as well as the background of food-oriented Italian family.

DeLuise has always had a weight problem and in the opening sequence his growth is revealed through flashbacks. When he cried as a child he was breast-fed to be quieted, chicken pox were combatted with spaghetti, he survived his First Communion with a Hershey bar, and in the first scene of the film he deals with the death of his favorite cousin and eating buddy by crying over the spaghetti sauce – and tasting it.

As a result of the family's distaste for oversized coffins and funerals in general, Dom is delivered into the hands of a diet doctor. The thin, chain smoking doctor hacks his way through Dom's rigorous exam. His dried up nurse reads aloud the short list of "do eats" and the exceedingly long list of "do not eats." Although exaggerated, this is close enough to the real world for many of us compulsive over eaters. This type of diet doesn't usually help real people and it doesn't help DeLuise either.

DeLuise's performance does not consist of as much howling as his usual style displays and evokes; and yet he whines too much to be a sympathetic soul. His character comes to understand the reasons behind his problem and also makes some important reflections on being accepted by loved ones and accepting oneself. DeLuise's silly delivery of these observations flows with the film but at the same time does not do justice to the lines.

Bancroft portrays the reigning matriarch of the family. She's irritating as she swears in English and Italian through the entire film. The best line that she has given herself comes through at the wake which opens the film. Carrying on hysterically (not an unusual sight), she sobs to Dom that, "The good people are the fat people and the fat people die young." She's a concerned sister and Bancroft makes her as annoying as she should be.

Ron Carey, as Dom's younger brother, has transferred well from TV's (Barney Miller) to film. He is credible in his frustration over trying to help DeLuise. The humor in his performance is more subtle than that of the others; his serious lines are delivered with sensitivity. The film would be more enjoyable on the whole if this type of balance were maintained in the development of the other characters.

Candace Azzara plays the love of Dom's life. As a blonde, half Italian Catholic, she's everything he wants in a woman. Ms. Azzara, as Lydia, is a silly looking proprietress of a N.Y. City gift shop which is located around the corner from Dom's card shop. Sweets make her nauseous but she does like Chinese food, and her favorite stone is apatite. Dom's appetite for food is decreased when kissing Lydia provides him with an alternate source of oral gratification. He is able to lose weight without dieting. However, since substitution is not a solution, Dom is not really released from his affliction.

Fatso isn't as uniformly funny as I had thought it would be.

There's no place like home, and we make it easy to get there. TRAILWAYS and PETER PAN offer convenient express service to Boston, New York, and many other points.

TRAILWAYS & PETER PAN BUS LINES

MAKE LIFE SIMPLER FOR YOU.

For Information, Schedules and Prices, contact: Springfield Bus Campus Center Bus Office - 545-2006, or 549-6000

Friendly Restaurants

Present this coupon with the purchase of a Big Beef Cheeseburger Special and French Fries and receive a Regular Carbonated Drink FREE.

Only redeemable at 454 Russell St. Rt. 9 Hadley
Offer expires 4/4/80

SHOES TO BOOT

$5 OFF
Spring Spectacular
Welcome the New Manager
Shoes to Boot * Hampshire Mall

$5 OFF with coupon
Except Sale Merchandise
Good thru 3/24-3/29
Minimum of $25 purchase

Classy Selection of Spring Shoes & Handbags
9 West Bandolino Mia, Scandal & Frye Clogs Bass Naturalizer

Hampshire Mall 584-9676
Holyoke Mall 532-3176

Women's therapy improving

Women seeking therapy to help them with psychological problems have more choices these days in the type of therapy they can select, says UMass psychologist Alexandra Kaplan, according to a UMass News Bureau release.

Over the past 10 years or so, she said, a feminist therapy has developed which takes more account of women's place in society and related psychological problems than did traditional therapy.

"Feminist therapy is no women, and an understanding of the therapy relationship and an understanding of the place of women in society."

Feminist therapy, like the traditional psychotherapy from which it sprang, is a "working through of problems to reach a very complicated personal understanding," Kaplan said. Its intent is to lead to "a real change, not just of specific behavior, but a fundamental restructuring of personality."

Most people seek such therapy, she said, to overcome serious personal problems, such as depression. Other common problems are eating disorders such as self starvation, or emotional difficulties such as a low self esteem, feelings of inferiority, or an inability to accept independence.

More women than men seek therapy, she said, apparently because they are more in touch with their feelings, know when they need help, and are more willing to acknowledge that need.

One of the earmarks of feminist therapy, Kaplan said, is the attempt by the therapist to reduce the inequality of the therapist/client realtionship, because this relationship tends to be "a repetition of the patriarchal structure in which the woman is subordinate."

"We try to demystify our role by being open about our reactions; by maintaining and revealing our humanity, although not at the expense of eliminating our role as therapist," she said. "There is a real difference between a therapist and a friend."

Besides trying to defuse the power involved in a therapist/client relationship, feminist therapists also try to avoid what Kaplan called "the pretty systematic violation of women's self respect and abuse of their strength," which she said sometimes occurred in traditional therapy. This so-called violation came about, she said, because male therapists expected female clients to live up to the culture's stereotypes about women and to be "dependent, passive, and responsible for the nurturance and care of others."

Male therapists ignored their female client's wishes to be independent, and instead reinforced "the idea of the feminine woman, downvaluing the more independent, assertive and self enhancing experiences that a woman might be working toward," she said.

Although feminist therapy is not intended to represent any political ideology, she said, it is probably true that, as traditional therapy encouraged women to live up to traditional and stereotypical expectations for women, the new therapy encourages women to look beyond that traditional point of view.

"Most feminist therapists don't force women to adopt feminist ideas. A feminist therapist would explore with a frustrated married woman what about her situation contributes to her depression, if she's suppressing her own needs too much," Kaplan said. "But if a woman wants to stay married, she'll stay married. I don't think a feminist therapist would have the power to convince someone away from being a wife and mother."

INTERNATIONAL WEEK
Thursday March 27
5:00-9:00 PM
Turkish Night
Commonwealth Room
Student Union
Music Food Film

Man Cannot Live On Books Alone

* Greek Salads
* Tossed Salads
* Pizzza
* Grinders
* Spaghetti

Bells Pizza House
Sun.-Thurs. 11-1 am
Fri. & Sat. 11-2 am
65 University Drive
549-1311 253-9051

TONIGHT!
"APPLAUSE"
A Backstage Musical
mar. 27, 28, 29, 30 apr. 3, 4 8 p.m.
bowker auditorium, stockbridge hall
For Tickets Call 545-0783

Computer Science and Engineering Graduates
A Mutual Investment Plan for Your Career

What you can learn about us may well be the answer to your career needs. Our business is the development of sophisticated banking and brokerage systems for the world's financial institutions, complex intelligence systems for government and military application, deep ocean sonar surveillance systems, electrical and electronic components, deep pile fabrics and much more.

At Bunker Ramo, we recognize that meeting the challenge for the future lies in our ability to continually attract and develop new talent. As a result, we're dedicated to this fundamental concept: by investing in your future, we can achieve a significant return on our own, and that's one of the best investments we can make.

We're a Fortune 500, multi-national corporation, with locations throughout the United States and abroad, and sales nearing $500 million per year. We are not so large that we don't know our people well, but large enough to provide excellent opportunities for those willing to invest their talents in us.

If you'd like to find out more about how we can fit into your plans, please send us your resume:

BUNKER RAMO
Bunker Ramo Corporation
Career Opportunities
900 Commerce Drive
Oak Brook, Illinois 60521
AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER (M/F)

SALE!
ONE DAY ONLY...
SATURDAY, MARCH 29
JERGAS
ORIGINALLY: ~~14.95~~
OUR SPECIAL PURCHASE PRICE: ~~9.95~~
SAT. ONLY...
6.95

FACES
A Store-full of Ideas
Downtown Amherst /Open 10-6, Mon.-Sat.

Editorial/Opinion

Joe Friday on Monday

MICHAEL MARTINEAU

It was a Monday. The kind of Monday where your blood races and your nerves are on edge. A day where anything can happen, and usually does. On a day like this, mild-mannered accounting majors stare at calculators and consider slipping out of the store without shelling out any dough for them. Pens and notebooks find their way into the pockets of otherwise modest and unassuming students. That's where I come in. My names Grnklt. I work security.

I walked the aisles of the University Store Monday with my partner, O'Brien, a green rookie, quick on his feet with a temper to match. He wanted some action.

"When are things going to pick up?"

"Relax, kid. It'll happen, and soon. I feel it in my gut."

Sure enough, it did. My gut is never wrong. A guy I had been eyeballing had just slipped two combs into his pocket. O'Brien and I began to trail him. He was every joker who ever browsed through the National Lampoon at the magazine stand, or bought a puddle-jumper on the Concourse when the weather got warm. Floor parties, Fridays at the Bluewall, intercession in Florida—this guy had seen it all. And now this. Nice racket. Great town, Amherst. I almost felt sorry for the sap.

I felt my pulse quicken as our pigeon lifted a pencil and eraser and deposited them in his coat. It was all I could do to keep O'Brien quiet, as our man headed toward the exit. At one point, he jumped out and yelled, "Freeze, dirtbag!"

Fortunately, our collar had turned the corner, and didn't hear when I gave O'Brien a left cross and warned him not to lose his head. My temper can be quick. I'm hard, I'm bitter. My childhood was less than ideal. When you're born without any vowels in your last name, you learn to fight to survive. I ended up on the right side. The guy with the combs wasn't so lucky. I went into action.

"Store security, come with me."

The kid looked at me as if he had seen a ghost. He was smart, though. He followed me without a struggle. I asked him a few preliminary questions and the kid cracked like an egg. I had heard it all before, theater major, wrote a column for the paper, liked to be in shows, had a girlfriend, it was all the same. I put him through the motions, quick and easy, and got rid of him. I knew I never had to worry about him again, but what about the others?

I knew what I needed that night. A good drink, a good book, and a good woman to mark my place. I called Sherry, a redhead I met once. It felt good.

Michael Martineau is a Collegian columnist (or ex-klepto maniac)

The Goldring-Moran difference

ERIK S. GOLDRING

I do appreciate the fact that Jim Moran undertook the task of defining the differences between presidential candidates John Anderson and Edward Kennedy, but I don't feel biased, shoddy reporting is a worthy substitute for good journalism.

First, let's get the facts straight. John Anderson has clearly stated that he supports further development of nuclear power plants only on the condition that there is first an established method for the storage of nuclear wastes. Did you know this Jim, or did you just exclude the truth for convenience's sake?

On the issue of national health insurance I feel Sen. Kennedy has a clear edge over Congressman Anderson, but the reality of the present dictates that the administration must first reorganize the federal budget and clean up our messed-up economy before embarking on costly, massive social programs. John Anderson has addressed this side of the coin far more competently and rationally than Kennedy has.

Mr. Moran then boo hoos Anderson's 50 cent gas tax as a rip off of the needy, and as a poor disguise for the upgrading of our social security system. Here, Jim, you are blatantly wrong. Anderson's plan would call for using the money from the tax to cut social security taxes in half (worth $626 on a 20,000 salary) which should more than compensate for the extra gas expenses. Part of it would be used to cut the employers' tax as an anti-inflationary measure and as an effective way to save jobs. No rip-off would occur, because every cent would return to the American public and it would be done in the most beneficial way. Most importantly, however, this would act as an effective deterrent at the gas pump, where we must curb our excessive appetite if we are to kick the foreign oil habit and effectively fight inflation.

You then seem to imply that Kennedy has a better energy plan through rationing, but you fail to mention that this won't necessarily cut down our oil imports, or that the implementation of a rationing system costs so much it may actually worsen inflation. Mr. Moran's inclusion of the fact that Anderson is a member of the Trilateral Commission and that Kennedy isn't does little to justify his contention that Kennedy has a superior energy plan.

Mr. Moran then compares congressional records to show that Kennedy is the liberal of the pair. Yes indeed, but liberal is a word that has long lost any meaning, and it does little to shed light on the nature of John Anderson. Anderson has evolved from a rather non-progressive man to a very progressive, innovative man during the course of his 20 years in congress, which shows that he has matured with knowledge and experience. Liberalism doesn't entail progressivism unless it sensibly addresses the new politics of 80's with rational, progressive thinking that realistically incorporates innovation with the worthy facets of Washington politics. I think Mr. Moran has failed to recognize this.

I am incensed to see that you state the negative aspects of Anderson's record withot stating that he has been at the forefront of the civil rights and conservation movements. Yes, Anderson did vote for the Gulf of Tonkin resolution, but you didn't mention that he has been the only man having the courage to admit that he is sorry for "having given the United States Vietnam." Both Anderson and Kennedy spoke out against Carter's draft registration bill, but it was Kennedy who made the front page.

And, finally, your analogy of Anderson to a cancer ward patient is demeaning and obtuse. Do you think that you can salvage the mess you have written and hope to give Kennedy any credibility by saying that the most liberal republican is no match for the most liberal democrat?

I hope Mr. Moran's objective was to write an editorial plugging Kennedy, because if his intention was to provide an unbiased account of the differences between Anderson and Kennedy he has failed miserably and aroused my anger in the process.

Yes, I am an Anderson man, and this is because I have taken a hard look at the issues, not just the image. This is something Mr. Moran will have to do if he is to convince me that Edward Kennedy is more progressive than John Anderson.

Erik S. Goldring is a Collegian commentator.

Letters

Oh, yeah?

To the Editor:

Please allow me to quote from the 3/13 issue of the Collegian: "About 24 percent of the undergraduate student body voted in this year's (SGA) election. A total of 4,332 votes were cast, twenty-one more votes than last year." And now a quote from the following day's issue of the Collegian: "It appears that slightly less students voted this year than last year...results cite 3,941 student votes." If anything "appears" it is that the Collegian somehow managed to lose almost four hundred votes overnight.

I can't decide which is more ludicrous; the loss of 400 votes or the absence of an explanation. Even more appalling is the fact that it was the same Collegian editor who wrote both accounts of the election returns. Let's not dwell on the 400 phantom votes, though, for there is a larger issue at stake.

I am referring to the "majority opinion of the editorial staff" which saw fit not only to endorse a SGA presidential candidate but a US presidential candidate as well. I question the right of the Collegian editors to endorse political candidates. A publicly owned newspaper like the Collegian which exists by taxes paid by students should not be used by a politically partisan group. Only privately owned newspapers and their editorial staffs can arbitrarily endorse candidates because they are just that, privately owned. Shades of Mr. Loeb and his Manchester Union Newspaper pass before my eyes when I read the Collegian's large type endorsement of a presidential candidate. The editors of the Collegian have clearly overstepped their boundaries and in so doing have done a disservice to the students at this university.

Though the "right" of the editors to endorse candidates is questionable, the ability of the editors, as evidenced by the first half of this letter clearly indicates their incompetence to do so.

Sincerely,
F. Noel Collins
Pres. UPSA

Editor's note:

The figures published in the Collegian articles were provided by members of the SGA Governmental Affairs committee. The election night results were corrected the following day by Robert Brooks, associate dean of admissions, who supervised the elections. Any discrepancies are the fault of these two parties.

It should also be noted that Mr. Collins submitted a letter to the editor prior to the election in which he endorsed the candidacy of Howard Goldman and Kim Kirschner.

Fed up with crisis

Dear Editor:

The crisis in Iran has gone on long enough. Every American citizen, myself included, is fed up with the situation in Tehran concerning the fifty American hostages. The whole affair has virtually been a stalemate and it is extremely long overdue for someone to break it.

There are many parties involved in this matter and not one of them seems to be willing to make a compromise of any sort. The major issue appears to be the militants' demand for the return of the Shah. Apparently, the United States will not, and as of now, probably cannot return the Shah. But this still leaves the United States the responsibility of finding an alternative solution to the problem.

The first move has to be taken by the American government and this in turn could [illegible] Why couldn't the administration take some meaningful action that would at least indicate that the United States means no harm toward Iran? The government could offer to give medical treatment and aid to thsoe Iranians who are victims of the Shah's regime. We could also agree to assist in any legal effort necessary to recover the twenty billion dollars that the Shah allegedly exported in assets. Other measures might also be possible, which could show the United States' grave concern toward the whole affair. The United States can not change the past, but they must attempt to make up for it.

Eric Kirby Brown

Letters to the editor should be kept as short as possible, preferably no longer than two pages. They should be typed at 67 characters per line, triple-spaced.

All letters should contain the author's name, address, and telephone number for verification. Telephone numbers will not be printed.

★ Union

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

assistant in the physical plant, submitted a petition to the Massachusetts Labor Relations Commission with more than the required 30 percent of the union's members in favor of decertifying the union. The decertification vote would oust the University Staff Association Union (part of the Massachusetts Teachers Association and the National Education Association) from representing University employees.

Marcoullier began his decertification drive in April, 1979 by informally soliciting responses from other dissatisfied workers, he said. The petition was drafted and circulated in November. Within two weeks, the goal of 30 percent was reached, he said. The amount of decertification signatures is now over 50 percent, he added.

Marcoullier wants the union decertified "because they had a bad attitude toward the employees. And I think everybody recognized it because they all helped when I asked for support," he said.

Svetlana Speyer, a grievance officer for the union, said the employees may have difficulty getting a new union if the USA/MTA/NEA is decertified.

"I think some of the problem has to do with money," she said. "But I think other unions won't want to touch employess that have decertified another union."

★ Afghans

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

Ali cited as an exampie the 1919 overthrow of the British by the Afghan people, by which an independent government was set up under Prince Amir Amunullah.

Amunullah was a democratic ruler who ruled well and opposed the British, Ali said, but he was not progressive enough to solve one of Afghanistan's major problems: exploitation of farmers by the large landholders in the country. These landholders still had power and were determined to get the British back, Ali said.

In 1929, he said, with the help of the landholders the British established spy networks in Afghanistan to spread rumors about Amunullah. That same year Amunullah was overthrown and an illiterate bandit named Bacha Saqo took control.

"Saqo ruled for nine months," Ali said, "during which time schools were burned and factories closed. He tried to wipe out all signs of civilization."

From 1929 to 1930 a general of Amunullah's ruled Afghanistan, Ali said.

Nadir Shah executed all of Amunullah's forces and gave tremendous power to the clergy before he was shot by an Afghanistan student in 1933.

Shah's 18 year old son Zahir, who is still alive in Italy today, was established as a puppet ruler with British help, Ali said.

"From 1933 until he was overthrown in 1972, Zahir Shah ruled Afghanistan," Ali said. He called this period "the darkest age in the history of Afghanistan.

CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
Your Local
AMTRACK
&
EURAILPASS
Agents
CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
CENTER UNIV OF MASS
AMHERST, MASS 01003 413-545-0500

Attention
Women's Dept. Reporters!
There will be a meeting to discuss story ideas and department policies on Tuesday, April 1 at 7 p.m. in Campus Center 102. New reporters are welcome. Please plan to attend.

capezio
Mosaic
the SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st., amherst

PREPARE FOR:
OUR 41st YEAR
MCAT · DAT · LSAT · GMAT · GRE
GRE PSYCH · GRE BIO · PCAT
OCAT · VAT · MAT · SAT · TOEFL
NMB I, II, III · ECFMG · FLEX · VQE
NDB I, II · NPB I · NLE
Flexible Programs & Hours
Visit Any Center And See For Yourself
Why We Make The Difference
In Amherst:
264 N. Pleasant St. (413) 253-5108
Classes Begin:
MCAT 3/31 DAT 3/22
GRE 3/24
Stanley H. KAPLAN EDUCATIONAL CENTER
TEST PREPARATION SPECIALISTS SINCE 1938
Please call the Center for details
Outside N.Y. State Only CALL TOLL FREE: 800-223-1782
Centers in Major US Cities, Toronto, Puerto Rico and Lugano, Switzerland

Jubilation
"China Night"
Chinese traditional music
Chinese costumes display
Folk Songs Folk Dances
Kong Fu Movie etc
March 30, 8 PM
Campus Center Aud. FREE

Three of the Thirty Books on this Week's
The New York Times
BESTSELLER LIST
At the University Store we give you $2.00 off the cover price on any book on that week's hardbound best seller list — general and fiction. And if, for some reason, we are out of stock we will order it for you at the special price.
A copy of the current bestseller list is posted next to the section.
"the bookstore"
in the campus center at umass
the UNIVERSITY STORE

Mike's Westview Cafe No. Amherst
Thurs. Nite
Penny Nite
Every Third Drink
1c
Pinball Machine
Bowling Machine
Attitude Readjustment Period
Mon.-Fri. 4 pm - 6 pm
Giant Sandwiches-Turkey, Roast Beef and Ham with chips and pickle $1.95
New Drink - Sourballs
Old Milwaukee $1.95 a pitcher
Domestic Bottled Beer 75c
Spearmint & Cinnamon Schnapps 80c
Friday Afternoon
Free Smorgy During
Happy Hour 4p to 6p

Voting delayed for new Iranian parliament

By The Associated Press

Iran's foreign minister said yesterday the second round of voting for the new parliament has been postponed, which could mean a further delay in a decision on the fate of the 50 American hostages.

Meanwhile, renowned American surgeon Dr. Michael DeBakey arrived in Cairo to "fulfill his commitment" to deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, who reportedly requires speedy surgery to remove a cancerous spleen.

Debakey declined to speak to the press upon his arrival at Cairo airport. Reporters on the tarmac observed seven boxes labeled human blood and several larger ones believed to contain equipment unloaded from DeBakey's plane.

Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said the ruling Revolutionary Council decided to postpone the second round of voting — originally scheduled for April 4 — to investigate charges that some of the initial parliamentary voting was rigged. Even under the original timetable, the parliament, to which Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has assigned the task of deciding the Americans' fate, had not been expected to consider the question until May.

There were conflicting reports from Iranian leaders Wednesday on whether the hostages will go on trial, apparently signaling a split within the council over Iran's next step in the crisis.

Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti, first secretary of the Revolutionary Council and Iran's dustice minister, told reporters in Tehran that the majority of the council supported such trials.

THIS PASSOVER COME HAVE THE SEDERS AT OUR HOUSE
•Traditional Seder Service
•The Joy of a Holiday Celebration as only Chasidim can •Full sumptuous meal
•An experience you will cherish
•One Seder $4.00 Both $7.00
Mon. March 31 7:30 PM
Tues. April 1 8:30 PM
Call for Reservations by Friday March 28
CHABAD HOUSE
30 N. Hadley Rd. Amherst, Ma 01002
(413) 253-9040

AE
Open Rush
All interested men invited
Friday at 6:00 pm
March 28
Refreshments & beverages served
Call 256-6815 for info
College Pizza
Sunset Ave
AE
Fearing St.
South West

Great Prices
Spring Clothes
Jewelry & Gifts
THE MERCANTILE
AMHERST CARRIAGE SHOPS
Daily 10 am - 6 pm

THE AMHERST DELICATESSEN
NEW EXTENDED HOURS
Opens daily at 9 a.m.
Starting April 4th
Open Fri. & Sat. till 2 a.m.
Serving Sandwiches, Bagels & Lox, Quality Cold Cuts & New York Cheesecake
The Carriage Shops, Amherst 549-6314

Meet the World International Fair '80
Saturday, March 29 CCA 11 am - 4:30 pm
Exhibits Food Music Entertainment
Raffle Free Admission
& The Not-Just-A-Disco Dance
CCA 9:00 pm - 1:00 am $1.50

Media Arts Program 1980-81
Women's Interart Center
New York, New York
Integrated Media Arts
A year-long, full time course of study in film, video and theatre arts. The narrative mode of expression is emphasized through hands-on production training. Financial aide and college credit for eligible candidates is available. October-June.
Interterm Narrative Film Course
A one-month intensive course in which crews of five to six people produce three narrative films working six to seven days a week, 14 to 16 hours a day. All necesary equipment and supplies are provided. January 1-31.
Margot Lewitin, Artistic Director of the Women's Interart Center, will be conducting a seminar on the Center's programs and will be available to speak with interested candidates after the seminars. These seminars are for students of these colleges only.
Amherst College 10 AM - 12 PM Alumni House
Hampshire College 2 PM - 4 PM Cole Science Center Rm 112 (Options Office)
These Sessions Are Open to All Students of The Five Colleges

INFLATION FIGHTER'S SPECIAL!

Shampoo, Cut & Blow-Dry Styling $10
Regularly $12.50
No Appt. Necessary
Great Expectations
PRECISION HAIRCUTTERS
Hampshire Mall
Hadley

Around campus

Poetry reading to be held

The Women's Studies Program will present a poetry reading Wednesday, April 2 at 4 p.m. in Thompson sixth floor lounge by Donna Kate Rushin, Janet Aal's, and Carol W. Potter. The reading is part of the Women's Studies Colloquium Series.

Film series starts tomorrow

The Everywoman's Center invites interested people to a series of films on women's issues, in room 227 Herter Hall at 7:30 p.m. The films will be shown Friday, March 28; Thursday, April 17; and Monday, May 5, and will deal with subjects such as Women in the Media, Women Garment Workers, and Black Women in America.

Each evening will include an informal discussion, and all films are free to the public. For information and to arrange childcare, call 5-0883.

Women's workshops offered

Everywoman's Center announces a series of workshops, courses, panels and films to be offered from April 7 through the end of May. The series is designed to offer educational alternatives for women who want a supportive environment in which to examine their lives, develop new skills, and explore societal issues affecting the lives of women.

Registration, credit, and/or child-care arrangements can be made through Susan Markman at Everywoman's Center (545-0883) in Wilder Hall at the University of Massachusetts.

Correction

The Vocal Jazz and Afro-American Music Ensemble performance which was scheduled for yesterday in the Campus Center Concourse will be held today at 12 noon.

Hunger awareness today

Awareness of the inequality of food distribution in the world will be the theme of this month's Hunger Awareness Day today at UMass. Culmination of the day will be a Hunger Banquet at Earth Foods at 5:30. A limited number of tickets for this conciousness-raising event (donation $1) are available at the Hunger Table in the Campus Center at Earth Foods, and at UCF in 428 Student Union.

The Hunger Task Force, which last semester raised over $5200 for Oxfam's Cambodia relief efforts, is urging all UMass people to consider missing a meal, fasting, or simply contributing some money for the on-going struggle to save a people.

SELL IT
SELL IT
Collegian
Classifieds
SELL IT

If you haven't tried a chocolate chip cookie from Entenmann's
SINCE 1898
you haven't had the chocolate chip cookie
available at
in the campus center at umass
the UNIVERSITY STORE

July 11 to 20, 1980
A ten day performance seminar for strings and piano

Reduced rates for Amherst residents and members of the five-college community
For further information please contact:
John Cook,
EH, Hampshire College
Amherst, Massachusetts 01002
413 549-4600
extension 524

THE HAMPSHIRE COLLEGE
CHAMBER FESTIVAL
WITH THE OLEWSKY TRIO

Carter's budget worries mayors

WASHINGTON (AP) — An overwhelming majority of the nation's cities are headed for financial problems that will be worsened if some of President Carter's anti-inflation measures go through, the U.S. Conference of Mayors said yesterday.

The conference said a survey of 100 of the larger U.S. cities showed that more than three out of four are facing or will soon face financial problems.

The survey said these cities will have an even harder time if they lose federal aid through cuts in either the state or local shares of the general revenue sharing program.

The Carter administration has proposed eliminating the state share of revenue sharing, which is about $2.3 billion a year. An average of 44 percent of the state share is passed through to local governments.

"The nation's cities are still in fiscal trouble," said John Gunther, executive director of the mayors' group. "This is no time for hasty budget cuts which would force them to sharply raise property taxes or curtail basic services."

A coalition of Arab, Muslim and African students march across the street from the White House Wednesday, to protest Israeli settlements on the West Bank.

Sailor rescued after 21 days

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) —Kenneth Enoe, the 30 year-old Grenadan sailor who drifted alone in a life boat for 21 days, was in good condition yesterday after an overnight stay in a hospital.

The boatswain's mate from the Panamanian ship Marvina stepped onto land Tuesday afternoon after he was rescued Monday by the crew of the tanker Cova Navigator about 200 miles southwest of New Orleans.

Enoe, who said he "couldn't believe it" when asked how he felt when he saw land again, was given a brief medical examination at the U.S. Coast Guard base in Galveston and taken to the hospital Tuesday evening.

Dr. Dan Smith, who performed the initial examination, said Enoe was in "surprisingly good conditon" after his ocean odyssey began March 3.

Coast Guard officials said the Marvina radioed it was sinking about 300 miles southwest of New Orleans around 1 a.m. March 3. Enoe later told Cova Navigator crew members he fell overboard while trying to lower a lifeboat.

Do Not Ignore This
It's Benefit Time
For those people who worked 10 or more hours at
The Great Ski Snatch
Come to Ski Club Office
Before Thurs. March 27th
Ski Club Office C.C. 106 545-3437
UMASS SKI CLUB

RUSSELL'S
LIQUORS
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441

Check our other in-store specials
Almaden California Burgundy 750 ml. $2.49
Giumara California Wine 1.5 L Mt. Vin Rose, Mt. Chablis, Mt. Burgundy $3.99
Vodka 80° special.... $4.95 qt.
Harvey's Bristol Cream 750 ml. $7.49
1976 Cote's Du Rhone ..... $2.49 fifth
Liebfraumilch 23 oz.. 1.99 fifth & up

CHECK THESE PRICES!
Growers Wines
Red, White, Rose
.99 750 ml.
2.99 ½ gal.
4.99 gal.
Schlitz 12 oz. NR's. . 6.99 cs 1.99/6
Tuborg 12 oz. NR's. 6.99 cs 1.99/6
Schmidt's 12 oz. NR's. . . 6.59 case

Sale record town and record village Sale

lp's~8 tracks~cassettes
$4.79 each
CHOOSE FROM THESE PICTURED TITLES ON WARNER AND ATLANTIC RECORDS AND TAPES
MARSHALL TUCKER "TENTH"
GORDON LIGHTFOOT "DREAM STREET ROBE"
CHRISTOPHER CROSS
PRETENDERS
GARY NUMAN "PLEASURE PRINCIPLE"

the best of the best
SAVE ON THESE "GREATEST HITS"
$4.79 each
LP'S 8 TRACKS CASSETTES
THE DOOBIE BROTHERS
ELECTRIC LIGHT ORCHESTRA
K.C. & THE SUNSHINE BAND
THE EAGLES
JAMES TAYLOR

blank tapes
TDK D:C 90 MINUTE CASSETTES
$1.49 each
LIMIT 12 per customer
$2.98 Package of Two record town

THE LARGEST SELECTION AT THE LOWEST POSSIBLE PRICES and record village
HOLYOKE MALL AT INGLESIDE
HAMPSHIRE MALL, HADLEY
STORE HOURS 10-9:30 Mon.-Sat.
SALE GOOD THROUGH SAT. MARCH 29

To place a Collegian Classified
•Come to Collegian Office CC 113
•8:45 to 3:45 Mon-Fri
•Classified deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day

Collegian Classifieds

Collegian Classified Rates
•15c per word
•Student rate 10c per word
•Cash in advance
•5 consecutive days 5 % discount
•Phone number FREE

AUDIO

SONY one point stereo eletret condenser microphone excellent cond. $25 253-3225

Record Care: "DiscTracker" for warped records. 'Zero Stat' anti-static gun $15 ea. 549-6836

Intense new Advent walnut speakers 280$ or B.O., Harmon Kardon 330C Receiver 20 watts 150 or BO call Anton 546-5607

AUTO FOR SALE

FIX YOUR OWN CAR. The Student Auto Workshop offers tools, space, and assistance. Tues, Wed, Thurs 3-9 pm, Fri 12-5, Sat 10-5. Level one CC garage. 545-0673

'73 Toyota Mark II Wagn 73000 mi excellent shape, yours for $1980 phone Kittye 549-5412

1970 Volkswagon Squareback Radial tires, good engine, 80,000 miles, some rust. $500 or BO call 665-2802

1970 Impala excellent condition, rebuilt small V8, new disc brakes, reupholstered, new radials, over 2,000 invested $800 or BO Jonathan 546-5576

1976 Chevy Nova 6 cyl., good MPG, power brakes/steering, air, radio, great condition call 323-4996

1964 Volvo P1800S Sports Coupe 115 HP 5 spd Michelins Bilsteins AM-FM good for parts or restoration 34 mpg call 549-5359 eves asking 600

73 Nova SS 4-speed excellent condition 542-2942

Convertible 67 Buick Wildcat $300 Mark 586-1322/546-8908

1975 Toyota Corolla $1100 call after 6 PM 256-0258

ENTERTAINMENT

Soundsystem for Hire perfect for bands, doscos, coffeehouses Rick 584-4105

Curelope and Brava for Spring Concert

1974 FORD

F-100 Standard P.S. 72,500 mi. no body rot $1785 549-2651 ask for John

FOR RENT

One Bedroom in 2 bedroom Cliffside Apartment - Semi-furnished call 665-4602 evenings

Cape Cod Summer Rental 5 bdrms E. Dennis after 5 253-5017

One bedroom Colonial Village $112/mo available immediately 256-6749 Andy or leave message Tobin 509

Cape Cod Summer Rental West Yarmouth 2 miles from Seagull Beach $450 to share room $800 for single 546-9569

Summer Sublet fully furnished 2 room 5 minutes from UMass 190 + utilities Call Dan or Bridge late eves 549-5798

FOR SALE

Tan Wallabees 8½ mens new $30 6-9991

Stereo-Turntable, Receiver, and Speakers working condition $75 OK BO 546-8988

Tennis new Snauwaert B. Gottfried 4½ L-M strung gut $40 546-5738

Spalding Lancer 190cm Skiis w/Salomon bindings size 8 Nordica boots, poles, all used only twice $130 253-3377

Jennings Adjustable Compound Bow 45-75 lbs. 29"-30" draw $85 or BO 253-3377

Teledyne Microphone with stand $60 Dearmand acoustic pickup $35 665-7992

Teac A103 mint 6 months old 170 new 125 now Honda moped brand new perfect extras 450 new 375 now call Dan late eves 549-5798

FOUND

Found-Brown plastic rimmed glasses in Northeast quad. Call Jeff 6-3210

Keys found near Alumni Stadium call 6-5007

Found set of keys near Hamlin call Joyce 546-1409 to identify

HELP WANTED

Exp. Cocktail Waitress for late Spring and Summer. Apply Poor Richards 8-9 PM Daily

Western Mass Bus Lines is now accepting applications for bus driver training for part time work in Sept. 1980 Qualified applicants must be students of one of the 5 colleges, experienced with standard trans., and willing to commit themselves for 2 semesters. Apply in person at our garage/office behind the Phone Co. bldg. on Pleasant St. Northampton

Summer work, $1,210.00 monthly, travel Car owner preferred but not required. Send SASE Box 213, Amherst MA 01004

Paralegal Interns Wanted The Legal Services Office has 8 positions available for full time paralegal interns for the Fall 1980 semester. You can receive up to 15 credits from the Office of Internships located at Curry Hicks. These internships will provide exciting challenging and rewarding work which will include the learning of many legal skills. Interviewing clients, legal research, and maintaining a continuing caseload under the supervision of attorneys. Thrd World students and women are encouraged to apply. Applications must be submitted by April 1, 1980.

Houseparents needed to manage American Youth Hostel Hampshire College June 1 August 25 free apartment plus small earnings send resume to Summer Programs Hampshire College

Counselors for Boys Camp in Maine. Openings in most specialties. Write: Camp Cedar, 1758 Beacon St. Brookline, MA 021466 or call 617-277-8080

Work study positions available at SCERA for recruitment coordinator, office assistant and women's issues team. Contact SCERA for application or call 545-0341

INSTRUCTION

Sentics Workshop—"The Miracle of the Possible" call Elizabeth Paton 413 549-3880

Jewish Community of Amherst needs both Hebrew and Jewish Studies teachers for September 1980 call 549-0223 for application. Experience preferred

LOST

Lost Black Lab named Astro Always seen around campus. If anyone has any info please call Scott at anytime 549-6219. Wears blue collar, keep your eyes open friends.

Roach Clip with fisherman's keychain, extreme sentimental value, please call Dave 6-9547

MOTORCYCLES

1977 Honda CB125S Mint Condition 75-90 MPG $550 6-4554

PERSONALS

Pete Jacke call Macky 665-7923

Three females looking to take over a three bedroom apartment in Rolling Green for Fall Semester. Willing to take over lease for summer if necessary. Please call 546-9636 or 546-1867

Don't graduate without doing it! Get your yearbook portrait taken--call 545-2874 for your appointment. Don't be left out of the 1980 Index

"Balloons by Ken" Balloon animals at the CC Concourse, can make octopus, bumblebee, giraffe, monkey, elephants, swans, etc. One day only, Thursday Mar. 27th

Jody—Guess who gave us the social disease? Love and kisses 9th floor Washington

All University Women invited to Rush Parties at SDT for more info call Robyn 545-0527

D.J. needed for Soroity Formal May 2 call Louise C. 5-0527

To the person that gave me a ride from 202 to Shirley Thanks!

10th floor JA Thanks for the party, you're the best, miss you. The Colorado Kid

In loving memory of my seamonkies that recently passed away those who knew them loved them. May they find much happiness in seamonkey heaven

Happy Birthday Nancy H Love Us

Happy Birthday Norah Mahoney best of luck with your FLIJ have a great day your friend from 4 east

Merrill—A belated Happy Birthday to a Wonderful One! Platonic love and French-Canadian kisses, PF

Wimpman meet me at noon Apl 12 at the Hatch 4 the Wimpout Tournament first round. I want to sure to make it into the 2nd round Snorky Maverick

Tonight—Sands but no Styx. Meet us there—you know where. 8:00 pm HH for HB

Donny if you want a wonderful surprise on Friday, tell Brock to go away

Young Life Leadership Christian outreach ministry March 31 7:30 more info Denise 538-3583

Heart Breaker Misery Maker Love taker The Big Brigs

Chew Hong: Jazz & saki - good combo! Juloid

Richard—I'd like to have a real conversation—Christine

J.P. What's Wring? B.

Norah Mahoney—your the best Have a very happy Birthday! Love Michele

Tonight—Woody Allens Everything You Wanted to Know About Sex only $1— at the Campus Ctr Aud go for it!

Finally, The Amherst Cent Saver is at you doorstep

So here's to Old Chapel, The home of the Band, Everyone knows we're the Best in the land. We are the Power, The Pride and the Class. We do it all for G.N.P. And UMass!! Get Psyched for Band Camp!!

REWARD

For return of Silver Bracelet lost near Iron Horse Coffee House Friday. Has great sentimental value. Generous reward offered. Call 253-5605

RIDE WANTED

Ride needed to Maine 28th call 6-5330

Ride wanted to NYC Friday Mar. 28 call Alison 549-1046

ROOMATE WANTED

Two bedrooms in a three bedroom Townehouse apt available June 1 549-1833

Mellow partying people seeking two of the same for roomates in Brittany Manor Apt. Call Michael 546-4175 Ellen 546-6629

ROOM WANTED

Need a summer roomate for your Vineyard home? Call Beth 549-6534

SERVICES

Attorney Jason R. Rosenthal Legal Representation. Income Tax Preparation. Days 584-4285 Evenings 253-7617

TYPING Experienced typist, reasonable rates 256-6360

SLIM WHITMAN

The Union Program Council is proud to announce that due to popular demand they are in the process of booking the incomparable master of song--Slim Whitman--drop by UPC and say thanx

Slim Whitman--The Mass Fruit Growers Assoc. supports Slim for Spring Concert--dodge a tomato--Aieeeegh! Awaaaay!

TO SUBLET

Summer sub-let Four bedroom Swiss Village apt. on busroute. Call 256-8070.

2 bedroom apt Colonial Village on bus rte starting June 1 through August call Lisa or Robin 253-3740 evenings

1-4 Bdrms in 4 bdrm apt June-Aug w/option Lori 256-8233

1 bdrm in 4 bdrm apt w/kitch. lvrm, bath Phillips St $80/mo Wendy 549-1005

Furnished 2 bedroom Brandywine for the summer A/C pool 2 buses rent negotiable call 549-2832

2 L6 bdrooms Brandywine Apts perfect location furnished balcony pool tennis reasonable price call 549-5959

2 bedroom furnished on bus route June-August $195-mo Fall option 665-4720

3 bedroom apt. take over in Fall ¼ mile from Campus 549-1462 evenings

2 bdrm Twnhs So Amh on bus rt avail My-Aug w fall opt rent neg 256-8650

Northwood 2 bedroom furnished AC DW pool garden plots bus-line June 1-August 31 $150 per month call 665-4850 after 4 pm

Squire Village Sunderland summer sublet 2 bdrm, 2 bathrooms, on bus route avail June 1-August 1, call 665-3660

4 bedroom apt Swiss Village for summer option of Fall bus route all utilities included 256-8616

Puffton 1 bedroom furnished June 1 - August 31 549-5941 evenings

1-4 bedrooms summer sublet in large house on bus route Can take over lease for next fall Call evenings 253-3915

Townehouse Apt two bdrms for the summer call 549-4734 anytime

2 bedroom apt Lantern Court Sunderland off bus route June 1 through August 665-7750

3 bdrm apt in Puffton Vill for the summer with option for Fall & Spring ask for Jim if busy keep trying 549-4012

Three bedroom apartment June first with option for fall close to campus on bus route air conditioned large living room 549-0699

Brittany Manor Jun-Aug 300.00/mos 253-5128 after 6

WANTED

Fast immediate cash for gold-school rings-diamonds- silver Jeff anytime 527-7078 586-0180

DJ wanted for party and or formal call 6-9850 6-9851

Wheat back pennys 65c per 50 original Beatle albums 584-7961 after 5

Used Electric Typewriter call andy 546-6785 evenings

Joel Brave and Mark Curelop for Spring Concert

WANTED TO RENT

3 women looking for housing in Hyannia area for Jun-Aug call Lisa 546-8006 or Toby 546-7436

SUPERIOR PIZZA
Free Delivery
Small & Large Pizzas
Hot Oven Grinders - Spaghetti
Steak Grinders - Dinners
We deliver every day
Starting at 5 Sundays Starting at 2
17 Montague Road
Next to N. Amherst PO
549-0626
COUPON 25c on large pizza

The Chequers Saloon
Amherst, Massachusetts
If the homemade french onion soup, London broil, or Baked Stuffed Shrimp doesn't get you, an omlette will. University Drive next to Alumni Stadium 549-5861

TONIGHT!
Woody Allen's
Everything you wanted to know about sex*
7, 9, 11 pm only $1—
at the Campus Center Aud
* are you afraid to ask?
go for it!

Nuke the Whale by Danny Guidera

4 by Frank Emery

Wimpman by Evan Carlson

Bean by Kevin X. McNamara

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

Crossword

UNITED Feature Syndicate
Wednesday's Puzzle Solved

ACROSS
1 Sweetheart
6 Embrace
11 Attain
14 Hippodrome
15 Let down
16 Cheer
17 Mouth defect: 2 words
19 Japanese volcano
20 Neophyte
21 Unctuous
22 Prongs
24 Space
26 Vend
27 Kitchen tool
30 Gleams
32 Hermit, e.g.
33 Equine
34 Scottish cap
37 Curves
38 Embers
39 Forbidden
40 Earth: Prefix
41 Firm
42 Nickel-copper alloy
43 Tangled
45 Instrument
46 Girls' slacks
48 Girl's name
49 Sick one
50 Antitoxins
52 Roman emperor
56 Anger
57 Of refuse
60 Soak
61 Obliterate
62 Meaning
63 Poem
64 Appointments
65 Snares

DOWN
1 Milk: Prefix
2 Paris airport
3 Swerve
4 Constrains
5 Rodent
6 Demand
7 Recline
8 Out
9 Fixed
10 Feign
11 Stadium structure
12 Artist's aid
13 Pronouon
18 Inferior
23 Fish
25 Above: Poet.
26 Desserts
27 Dross
28 Erudition
29 Deficient
30 Sedate
31 Detained
33 Lone
35 Seth's brother
36 Pack animal
38 Small beds
39 "The Man Who Came — —"
41 Agitated
42 Hr. part
44 Exist
45 Lather
46 African city
47 Ventilated
48 Evergreens
50 "Begone!"
51 Gaelic
53 Volcano
54 Hand tool
55 Soanish cheer.
58 Time period
59 Superlative ending

DC Menu

Lunch
Roast Beef Grinder
Pork Fried Rice

Basics Lunch
Vegetable Grinder
Vegetable Fried Rice

Dinner
Simmered Corned Beef/Steamed Cabbage
Chicken Fillet/Supreme Sauce, Cranberry Sauce

Basics Dinner
Manicotti with Sauce
Chicken Fillet/Supreme Sauce, Cranberry Sauce

Thursday
Two Way Street
This week's special
Miller - Miller Lite
50c Mugs - $2.50 Pitchers
"an Amherst tradition & now with a great new look"
Serving food
11:30 am - 2:00 pm
Seven Days a Week
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

Rolling Rock
12 oz. ret. $7.30 & deposit
Cartier Blanc de Blancs 750 ml
.....2.25 bottle 23.99 case
Folonari Bardolino ValPolicella Soave
1.5 L.....3.99 bottle 21.50 case
Canadian Mist qt.....6.95
C & C LIQUORS
Behind the Police Station
For Off Campus Delivery
253-3091

Mass. tax subject of legislation

BOSTON (AP) – The state income tax surcharge – which drained $113.8 million from Massachusetts taxpayers last year – would be phased out under a bill endorsed by the Legislature's Taxation Committee.

If the proposed legislation is approved, the surcharge would be repealed over a three-year period, returning the tax on earned income to 5 percent and unearned income to 10 percent. One third of the surtax would be eliminated each year.

Currently, earned income and interest from Massachusetts banks are taxed at 5.375 percent; dividends and interest from out-of-state banks are taxed at 10.75 percent. The decimal part would be eliminated.

The total amount raised by the income tax in the last fiscal year was $1.63 billion.

Rep. Gerald Cohen, D-Andover, House chairman of the committee, said in an interview yesterday his committee also plans to endorse an increase in the personal income tax exemption from $700 to $800.

The surtax phase-out bill was sent to the House Ways and Means Committee this week for consideration, Cohen said.

The House Ways and Means Committee, however, is grappling with the $5.9 billion budget proposed by the King administration for the next fiscal year – which, if approved as submitted, would put the state about $100 million in the red.

A badly wrecked military bus lies in a 150-foot ravine after it smashed into a guard rail and rolled over the precipice, crashing onto the rocks and killing 17 near Barcelonnette, France Sunday. (AP)

★ Vote

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

"The people feel they need more money," Kozloski siad, but the average increase in the take-home pay of an employee will be close to $1.50 per week, he added.

Tuttle was not available to respond to Kozloski's comment.

AFSCME will also strive to insure its members of social security benefits as well as state pensions, Tuttle said. Union members receive state pensions, but because the union supports universal coverage, Tuttle said, they may qualify for social security benefits.

AFSCME will enter its 18th year as the University's maintenance and construction workers' union.

OMEGA BOOKS catere. COMICS MOVIE POSTERS BUY AND SELL (SOME TRADE) QUALITY USED BOOKS 10-1230 2-500 MON-SAT 213 MAIN STREET NORTHAMPTON

Jeans $1.00
GOODWILL
37 Main St. N'ton
(take PVTA to the Courthouse)

SCI-FI Double Feature!
Fantastic Voyage
&
The Andromeda Strain
Campus Center Auditorium
Friday Mar 28
TIMES:
Andromeda Strain–6 & 10
Fantastic Voyage–8:00
Both Shows: $1.00!

Academy of Music
Northampton, Mass.
Filmed on Location At Smith College Now, Ends Tues. At 7:00 and 9:15 (note: no Showing Sat. Mar. 29)

ELIZABETH TAYLOR RICHARD BURTON
ALBEE'S WHO'S AFRAID OF VIRGINIA WOOLF?
GEORGE SEGAL SANDY DENNIS
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

Day Camp in Bedford seeks
GYMNASTIC COUNSELOR
& Regular Counselors
$good pay$
call 617-275-1392
or write: Bedford Rec. Dept.
16 South Rd.
Bedford, MA 01730

WINDSHIELDS
Auto Glass Parts

installed While-U-Wait!
(Most parts in stock)
VALLEY Auto Trim and Glass
798 N. King Northampton 584-4837
½ mile North of Caldor

THEY DON'T CALL IT THE GREEN MONSTER FOR NOTHING.

IT'S 16 ice-cold fluid ounces of private stock. A combination of the choicest, most expensive ingredients and extensive cellar aging to deliver a taste that grabs you like no other. Maybe that's why people call Haffenreffer Malt Liquor "the Green Monster"... If you go near it, you might just get bitten.

Narragansett Brewing Co., Cranston, R.I.

HAFFENREFFER MALT LIQUOR

Golf's Heritage Classic Tournament begins today

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

HILTONHEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) – The first time winners, those hopeful, hungry young men who have had such a strong influence on the Professional Golf Association tour in recent months, probably will have to take a back seat in this week's $300,000 Heritage Classic.

"They can take a week off this week," said Hubert Green. "There's no guess-work this week. You've got to know what you're doing. You've got to know where it's gonna come down."

The tournament, which gets started Thursday on the quiet, soft southern beauty of the 6,804-yard Harbour Town Golf Links, has proved itself to be the private preserve of the game's most accomplished, recognized players.

"It tells you something about the course," said veteran Bob Goalby. "you'll find that good players play best on the good golf courses."

And Harbour Town, though not long by tour standards and relatively flat, is one of the best. The leading players are in agreement on that point. It has produced a list of former champions that is as impressive as any tournament in golf.

They include two-time winners Johnny Miller, Hale Irwin and Green. Arnold Palmer won the opening Heritage in 1969 and Goalby, a former Masters champion, won the next one.

UNA PALOMA BLANCA!
JUST WHAT YOU'VE BEEN WAITING FOR!

FREE
What is Consciousness?
What is Ego?
a film
Thursday, March 27, 7:30 PM
Campus Center Room 905-909
sponsored by The T'ai Chi Club

Paid Intern Positions
The Housing Administration Intern Program is currently seeking interested freshmen and sophomores for paid positions in our management training program. All majors are encouraged to apply. Applications are currently available at Whitmore, CCEBS, The Woman Center, and BCP and at Berkshire House. For more info call 545-0890, 545-1960, or 546-5532.

$1 off an any name Pitcher of beer with this coupon only valid on Thursdays
Barselotti's
Downtown Amherst
Don't forget our special Happy Hour on Fridays!

The rusty nail Inn
Friday, April 4

presents
Rick Derringer
Tickets $5 in advance
Rt. 47
Sunderland

Saturday, April 5
The Elevators
Thursday, April 10
Loose Caboose (25c Draft)
Friday, April 11
James Cotton
Saturday, April 12
Tom Rush
Tickets available at all Ticketron Outlets
Open till 2 665-4937
24 hour taped message

You'll be amazed at all the opportunities and advantages the Army offers men and women with BSN degrees:
- Excellent starting salaries and benefits, including a liberal vacation policy.
- Real opportunity for advancement and professional growth—every Army Nurse is a commissioned officer.
- No basic training for nurses; just a basic orientation course to familiarize you with the Army Medical Department.
- The chance to travel; time to do the things you enjoy.
- Opportunity to qualify for specialized roles, teaching or additional education.

See if you qualify.
Call collect to 301-677-4891
The Army Nurse Corps.
For more information, write:
The Army Nurse Corps,
Northeast Region, U.S. Army Recruiting
Fort George G. Meade, MD 20755
Name
Address Apt.
City, State, ZIP
Phone Age
CASS-NURSE

AMC AMERICAN MULTI CINEMA
ADULTS $2.75 STUDENTS & SR. CITIZENS with AMC CARD $2.25 TWI-LITE SHOW $1.50 Special Engagements Excluded Two-Lite Show Limited to Seating
TIMES SHOWN FOR TODAY ONLY
HAMPSHIRE 4 584-7550 HAMP. MALL ON CAFE SQ. RT. 9, HADLEY, MASS.
DUSTIN HOFFMAN Kramer vs. Kramer
9 Academy Award Nominations (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:15 PG
AUDIENCES WILL SIMPLY CHERISH BREAKING AWAY
5 Academy Award Nominations (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:15 PG
Chuck Norris Jennifer O'Neill
He hears the silence
A FORCE OF ONE
(6:15 @ $1.50) 8:30 PG
Little Darlings
(6:15 @ $1.50) 8:30 R
MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9-HADLEY MASS
PETER SELLERS SHIRLEY MacLAINE BEING THERE
Best Actor Nomination (5:45 @ $1.50) 8:30 PG
ROY SCHEIDER ALL THAT JAZZ
9 Acedemy Award Nominations (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30 R
JOHN RITTER HERO AT LARGE
(6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45 PG
James Coburn Marsha Mason Chapter Two
Best Actress Nomination (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30 PG

GO TO ALE

The Big Reason Beer Drinkers Are Going To Ale.
Everyday, more beer drinkers are coming around to the very special taste of Ballantine Ale. That's because Ballantine Ale is brewed to be more hardy than beer, but not thick like a malt liquor. Sure, you can expect to pay slightly more, but then Ballantine Ale is brewed to be the best there is. When you're that good, you deserve to be America's largest selling ale.
P. Ballantine, Cranston, R.I.

Sports

Cornell tops laxmen, 13-9

By JONATHAN HAMILTON
Collegian Staff

ITHICA, NEW YORK – Cornell's Charlie Wood scored seven goals while his teammates contributed defensively as the Big Red marched to a 13-9 triumph over the Minutemen yesterday. The winning surge came late in the second period as Cornell broke a 4-4 deadlock and scored three unanswered goals.

In the first period both teams played evenly, scoring three goals apiece. UMass' Tom Walters won the opening face off as UMass controlled the first minute of play. At 1:16 Dave Martin, off a pass from Skip Vosburgh, fired the first goal of the season past Cornell netminder Tom Wagner. Just two minutes later though, Cornell came right back as Wood scored the first of his four consecutive goals at 3:16.

Wood put his team ahead momentarily when he beat UMass goalie Tom Curran for his second goal at 5:20. Peter Schmitz tied things up at 11:28 with an assist from Jim Weller.

Early in the second period UMass went ahead on a great individual effort by Vosburgh who ran past the Cornell defense, spun around and rifled the ball past Wagner. Wood's third goal at 1:44 and his fifth at 2:50, made it 4-3, Big Red.

UMass' Jim Weller matched the score for the fourth time at 6:21 in the sea-saw battle.

Late in the second period though Cornell began to control the tempo largely because of UMass' inability to control the ball and clear it as well. This gave Cornell the opportunity to press in the UMass end and it proved effective, and they scored three unanswered goals. Three unassisted goals by Cornell's Norm Englke, Joe Taylor and Wade Bollinger upped their lead at the half to 7-4

The Big Red increased its margin in the third period as goals by Bryan Stuke (0.50) and Wood (1:34) again made it 9-4. UMass got one back as Vosburgh took a good pass from Mike Lewis at 3:48 to cut the lead to four, 9-5. Both teams in the period played evenly.

In the last stanza UMass made a slight surge closing to within three, 10-7. Chris Corin at 4:38 and Vosburgh at 5:02 momentarily brought some hope to the UMass charges, but once again Cornell forged ahead as Wood and Engelke provided the cushion goals at 5:40 and 5:59. UMass collected the final two goals coming off the sticks of Pat Downes at 11:28 and Coring at 13.50.

"We had a great effort but our execution was not good. When the score was tied at 4-4 I thought we were playing as well as they were," UMass coach Dick Garber said.

"We played inspired in the second and third periods and we had good enthusiasm. Tom Wagner made some good saves for us. I think we really accelerated in the second half. UMass is a fine team though," Cornell coach Richie Moran said of his team's first win.

UMass covered 54 ground balls to Cornell's 50 and also outshot Cornell 40-38. Goalie Curran had nine saves and Dan Alschuler had eight while Wagner recorded 15. Vosburgh had 3 goals and two assists, Corin had two goals.

* The laxmen travel to Storrs, Connecticut Wednesday to battle the Huskies of UConn.

Dave Cowens of the Celtics battles for a rebound with the Knicks' Marvin Webster in last night's 129-121 Boston win which insures the Celtics of at least a tie for the Atlantic Division title. (AP Laserphoto)

New York Mets' Jerry Morales reaches back for the plate in Wednesday's exhibition game against the Philadelphia Phillies. (AP Laserphoto)

UMass' Phillip Fisher tops in his racquet

By DONNA SULLIVAN
Collegian Staff

Phil Fisher used to play handball but when racquetball became the sport to play he switched sports and for seven years has been chalking up win after win in tournaments all over Massachusetts.

Last weekend, Fisher, a freshman business major at UMass, won the United States Racquetball Association State Open in the men's open division. Fisher, who has made quite a name for himself, was seeded first.

A few weeks ago, in the American Amateur Racquetball Association tournament, held in Needham, Fisher upset the first seed in the semi-finals and the fourth seed in the quarterfinals before losing in the finals. There were 15 participants in the tourney aged 17-32 in the men's open division.

Fisher has won the Massachusetts Championship in the 18 and under division for the past three years. He expects to teach racqueball in the School of Physical Education next semester.

On April 25, he will travel to Providence to compete in the New Englands where Fisher expects to be seeded. Then it's on to the Nationals late in May. Currently Fisher plays for a club in Danvers and competes against other clubs and in various leagues.

Howard Peele of the UMass School of Education is another racquetball enthusiast who participated in the AARA tourney. Peele placed first in the seniors division.

A clash of two boxers and two religions

(Editor's note – Collegian reporter Kevin Cullen is siending the year studying at Trinity College in Ireland.)

By KEVIN CULLEN
Collegian Staff

GLASGOW, Scotland – Charlie Nash is a quiet guy. You probably wouldn't think he was a professional boxer unless you saw him in his sweats, doing his daily roadwork on the streets of Derry (called Londonderry by the British), Northern Ireland. Nash had a chance to win the world lightweight title when he met champion Jim Watt, in Glasgow, three days before St. Patrick's Day. In a fight that everyone but Charlie Nash himself billed as a sectarian clash, he came looking for a world championship to bring back to the people of Derry.

It was easy, perhaps too easy, to bill the bout a grudge fight: Nash, a 28-year-old Catholic, runs a pub in Derry; Watt, 31-year-old Protestant car salesmen, was fighting in his home town.

Nash has had his share of pain outside of the ring, in the streets of Derry, where the troubles of Northern Ireland are more real than being caught against the ropes with your guard down.

Nash's brother was one of 13 person killed in Derry when British troops opened fire on civil rights demonstrators on the infamous Bloody Sunday of 1972. Nash's father was shot and wounded in the gunfire when he went to the aid of his son.

Nash, an intense family man, trained hard and long for the title fight. Though he denied it, many considered the fight Nash's first chance to bring international pride back to Derry, a predominantly Catholic community which has, with the possible exception of Belfast – suffered most from the troubles in Northern Ireland.

Charlie Nash entered the Glasgow ring in his green and gold robe, showing a few days growth of beard, while the Irish who had made the cross-channel passage to Scotland hooted and hollered as they stood on their seats. When Watt entered the ring, the Irish were drowned out by the partisan Glasgow crowd. Nash wasted little time and came after Watt from the monent the bell rang. Mid-way through the first round, Irish cheers were again dominant in the hall as Watt lay on the canvas, felled by a vicious combination by Nash.

Watt was up before the count, though, and Nash came in again, looking for the kill. It wasn't there. Instead, in a clinch where heads knocked, Nash pulled away with a gash over his left eye.

Nash came to the quick and rational realization that he had to go for a knockout, as he couldn't last very long with such a gash over his eye. This realization produced some hurried, choppy and messy boxing on his part – everything that Charlie Nash usually doesn't do.

Watt wisely bided his time for a few rounds before becoming the aggressor. He went after the punched-out Nash with a series of lefts to the head which left the Irishman dizzy and in trouble. In the fourth round, Nash went down for eight counts twice. When he got up after the second count, the referee stepped in and stopped the fight.

Charlie Nash had lost.

At first, only Nash's immediate entouage, including two priests, were allowed into the dressing room. When the press was allowed to enter, it found Nash sitting there on the rub-down table, dejected, but not depressed. He was disappointed for the people of Derry, he said, disappointed for his family and friends. He was not disappointed for himself, he said. He'd get a few more cracks at the title before he was done. He was sure of that.

He frowned a bit when a reporter asked whether he considered the bout a grudge fight.

"It wasn't a grudge fight," Charlie Nash said. "It was just two guys fighting for a title."

But all those gathered in the room – perhaps even Nash himself included – wondered whether those words were totally believable.

For the time being, though, it was back to the streets of Derry, with their armed patrols and bomb-sniffing dogs, for more roadwork.

Charlie Nash will be back. No one doubts that.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian
VOLUME CIX, ISSUE 109 Student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst Friday, March 28, 1980

Campus lighting – adequate?

SCERA team criticizes administration response

By SHERI SIMONTON
Collegian Staff

None of the fighting recommendations made by the UMass Committee to Study Violence Against Women in June 1979 have been implemented according to Mary Jane Paika, a member of the Women's Issues Team of the Student Center of Educational Research and Advocacy.

The SCERA team conducted an Area Survey for Campus Lighting and Accessibilty from Fall 1978 to February 1979 to formulate its proposals. The survey contended 30 percent of the campus had lighting below minimum standards.

The team's recommendations included the instaliation of spotlights on the perimeters of all parking lots and the placing of emergency telephones in strategic campus areas. Jill Tregor, also a team member said the survey cited the Sylvan Residential Area and the parking lots as high priority areas desperately in need of lights.

Paika said the team had not yet heard anything substantial from UMass Chancellor Henry Koffler. The chancellor did issue a memorandum in early January to several constituent groups on campus. The memorandum included tentative plans for installing a pedestrian after-dark safety program based upon the concept of "corridors of safety."

Littlefield also said prototype lighting fixtures will be installed near the stadium in two weeks. Lights will also be

The program would improve the quantity and quality of lighting available along 10 miles of designated campus walkways on campus. It would also implement an increased concentration of patrol units along these walkways during specific time periods. One of the essential features of this program, vitally necessary for its successful implementation, is an intensive public awareness campaign to inform the campus about security, and to promote the use of the walkways and the campus bus service Paika said.

Each constituent group has been asked to review the administration's proposal and offer their coments and recommendations by March 31. University Director of planning Jack Littlefield said the memorandum was designed to ascertain the feasibility of the proposed walkways and increased security patrols. Littlefield said the groups' recommendations will be used with the utility company's estimated costs as a criterion for developing a more definite program for lighting improvement, security effort and a public awareness campaign.

placed near Haigis Mall, the Fine Arts Center and the School of Business Administration in two to four weeks.

Paika said administrative changes, even though they fall short of SCERA's recommendations, are in response to pressure from students following the publication of an article attacking UMass in Boston Magazine last fall. After the article appeared students rallied outside the Campus Center and the Chancellor Henry Koffler's house in hopes of inciting some administrative action in dealing with the lighting problem. Koffler said at that time that the University would either buy or lease lights to rectify the situation, according to Paika. He also promised to contact the Women's Issues Team in January or February to discuss further proposals.

Tregor said the memorandum merely asked the same questions which had already been answered by the SCERA team. She said Koffler "could do a lot more than he has" and that he "hasn't made the effort he should have." Tregor also cited the existence of a 1967 Collegian article emphasizing the need for better lighting. She was disillusioned by the fact that "the issue has just been shoveled around for thirteen years."

The new proposal has "Made it easy for cops to sit in cars and drive around," Tregor said. Campus walkways proposed exclude many areas identified as high priority candidates for lighting improvements, she said.

Ken Stein demonstrates his technique of balloon tying to a passerby yesterday on the Campus Center Concourse. (Staff photo by Robin Manoogian)

University will remove Nestle goods from campus

By MICHAEL FOLEY
Collegian Staff

Auxilary Services Director Art Warren has ordered the removal of all Nestle products from the UMass campus, the chairman of the Campus Center Board of Governors said last night.

At a meeting of the Board, Chairman David O'Mally said Warren's action would remove Nestle products from the Munchy stores, dining halls, and vending machines.

Nestle products were removed from the Campus Center/Student complex last month by the Graduate Student Senate, the Undergraduate Student Senate, and the Board of Governors.

Because of a misunderstading with the TRICO vending company, however, Nestle products were still being stocked in vending machines outside the Campus Center, O'Mally said. O'Mally said he got Retail Services Director Winn Commings to correct that problem, then went to Warren about removing the products from other areas.

In other action last night, the Board learned that renovations to the Top of The Campus Restaurant, where a sit-down bar was installed, cost the Campus Center $107,000. An additonal 15 percent of that sum was also paid to the architectural firm of Ruth, Shives and Williams.

Vice-Chair Dennis Foley also resigned his position last night, saying he didn't have the time to fulfill the twelve-hour minimum work load which the position requires.

"I don't have the time," he said, "now that he semster is half over, I'm forced to take stock of the work load ahead."

Foley, a second year graduate student, will remain on the Board in a less demanding position. Replacing Foley will be Curtiss Wohlers, chairman of the Operations Committee.

Newly elected Board member Lori Dratch was nominated to fill the Operations Committee Chair.

Weekend course questioned

By BRIAN O'CONNELL
Collegian Staff

The existance of a three-credit, one weekend, University course was questioned by UMass faculty members at yesterday's UMass Faculty Senate meeting.

The course, Educational and Instituional Racism, was offered by the UMass Center for Racial Studies as a one weekend, three-credit course earlier this month, according to Rules Committee Chairman Robert Jones.

Jones, speaking on behalf of individual faculty members, expressed concern over a University course offering three semester credits for "one weekend" course duration. Jones also questioned the validity of students registering for an approved University course after the add/drop period, which ended February 13.

UMass provost Jeriamah Allen, responding to Chairman Jones, said the course was, "approved by the University", adding the course required a "significant amount of reading" before the class actually met, a "six to eight-hour structured class period after the three-day workshop", as well as a final exam.

Citing the course as "unusual" in nature, Allen added he didn't know whether or not students were allowed to register for University approved courses after the add/drop deadline.

In other business, the Senate voted to approve certain by-law amendments proposed by the Rules Committee. The changes include a proposal to form a Status of Minorities Committee, which would be included in the Faculty Senate. The committee would recommend policies on all matters affecting minorities on campus, according to a report released by the committee.

DIGEST

Hostage decision delayed

(AP) – The U.S. Embassy hostages will probably languish in their Tehran imprisonment for at least two more months, possibly into the summer, a member of the U.N. investigatory commission on Iran was quoted as saying yesterday.

In Washington, the State Department indicated new measures were being prepared to win release of the hostages. Ronald Reagan called for "extreme pressure" on the Iranians that could "touch on a threat of force."

The man at the center of almost five months of crisis, the exiled shah, was examined by celebrated surgeon Dr. Michael DeBakey in Egypt.

Jailing of reporter delayed

BOSTON (AP) – A state Supreme Court judge agreed yesterday to keep a news reporter out of jail at least until she decides the technicalities of his appeal of a contempt citation for refusing to talk to a grand jury.

Reporter Paul W. Corsetti of the Boston Herald American had been ordered to go to jail next Monday for refusing to testify before a grand jury investigating a murder.

But after a hearing Thursday, Associate Justice Ruth Abrams said, "If I can't get it (a decision), out by Monday, I won't let him go to jail until I've sorted this out."

Prosecutors want Corsetti to recount his interviews with a suspect in the case. The reporter has refused on the grounds that such testimony would violate his First Amendment right to gather news without being used as an investigative arm of law enforcement.

Windfall tax OK'd

Carter calls bill "good news"

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON – The Senate gave final approval yesterday to a bill that imposes a $227.7-billion "windfall" tax on the oil industry and earmarks most of the money for individual and business incometax reductions.

The 66-31 final vote sent the measure to President Carter for his signature, 11 months after he proposed it as a cornerstone of his energy policy. The tax is only about 80 percent as tough as the president wanted, but Carter was enthusiastic about its approval.

"This is good news for the country and, I think, good news for the whole world," the president said after the Senate vote.

The president predicted the tax will generate "almost a quarter of a trillion dollars" in revenue over the next 10 years. He said the measure also will help combat inflation and ease U.S. dependence on foreign oil.

Seventeen Republicans joined 49 Democrats in approving the compromise measure; only eight Democrats opposed it.

Some oil-state senators fought the measure to the end, saying it would drain off money that the oil industry needs to increase exploration and development. "There is no justification for a windfall-profits tax except our greed to grab some more tax dollars," said Sen. Henry Bellmon, R-Okla.

But Sen. Russell B. Long, DLa., manager of the bill and the oil industry's champion defender in Congress, said, "Those who will pay the tax can afford to. ... You're not going to see anybody go on welfare."

The tax will be paid by about 12,000 oil producers and the estimated 2 million royalty-owners who lease their lands for oil production. The money will come out of the estimated $1 trillion that consumers are expected to pay in the 1980s because of Carter's decision to end federal controls on the price of U.S. crude oil.

The president made that decision in an effort to spur greater domestic production and lessen dependence on imports. The Carter administration anticipates the higher consumer prices caused by decontrol also will cut consumption of gasoline.

U.S. youth smoking pot earlier

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press

WASHINGTON – Government health officials sounded alarms yesterday that American youths are smoking more potent marijuana and starting at earlier ages despite new evidence that marijuana poses serious health hazards.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare said in a report to Congress that marijuana smoking "now often begins at a much earlier age and is more likely to be frequent rather than experimental use" in comparison with 1970.

It said the potency of street marijuana has increased markedly in the past five years while the percentage of highschool seniors who smoke marijuana daily has jumped from 5.7 percent for the class of 1975 to 10.3 percent for the class of 1979.

It said that although marijuana has not been conclusively linked to lung cancer, "it appears likely that daily use of marijuana leads to lung damage similar to that resulting from heavy cigarette smoking."

The 48-page report, "Marijuana and Health – 1980," was prepared by HEW's National Institute on Drug Abuse. It is the eighth such report to Congress.

It cited one study that found smoking less than one marijuana joint per day diminished a smoker's ability to breathe deeply as much as 16 cigarettes did.

It also said some animal and human studies indicate marijuana may lower the sperm count in males and affect fertility in females. "Given the many unknowns concerning the effects of marijuana on fetal development, the use of marijuana during pregnancy should continue to be strongly discouraged," it said.

The report, citing surveys by the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Services, said 60 percent of last year's highschool seniors had tried marijuana and 37 percent were current users, smoking it in the month prior to the survey. At the same time, the survey found that the percentage of those seniors who first tried marijuana in the ninth grade was more than 30 percent, up from 17 percent in the class of 1975.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (US 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday excluding January, June, July, and August, for $15 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003. Second class postage paid at Amherst, Massachusetts. Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center Postmaster: Send address changes to Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003

家酒園南湖
Hunan Garden Restaurant

MANDARIN SZECHUEN CUISINE
"The Best Chinese Food"
Luncheon Specials . Dinner Specials
Take-Out Service Full Cocktail Menu
Sun.-Thurs. 11:30 a.m.-10:00 p.m.
Fri. & Sat. 11:30 a.m.-11:00 p.m.
10 Belchertown Rd., at Route 9, Amherst
256-0251 next to: Poor Richard's 256-0252

NORTHAMPTON BICYCLE
21 Pleasant St. 586-3810
FUJI - RALEIGH - KABUKI - TREK
Skilled Repairs-Bell Helmets-Touring Equipment

Magical Mystery Night with BEATLES music
Saturday March 29
Hatch 9 PM $1.50

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS / AMHERST
FINE ARTS CENTER CONCERT HALL and COLUMBIA ARTISTS FESTIVALS present

SATURDAY, MARCH 29 at 8 P.M.
General Public $7 6 5
Senior Citizens $5 4 3
Students & Child
Discount Tickets $3.50 3 2.50
TICKETS NOW ON SALE AT FAC BOX OFFICE AND TICKETRON OUTLETS. MAIL ORDERS AND DINNER-THEATER PACKAGES AVAILABLE
BRING THE FAMILY AND HELP JURY'S IRISH CABARET CELEBRATE UMASS INTERNATIONAL WEEK purchase prior to PIZZA and a BEVERAGE after the show
$1.50 per person
Reservations (413) 545-0180
COMPANY OF 30
SINGERS, DANCERS, HARPISTS, FIDDLERS & STORY TELLERS

20% OFF
EYEGLASSES
Bring in your student ID card
All other discounts do not apply
Offer expires April 15, 1980
PEARLE vision center TM
A SEARLE COMPANY
HADLEY
Rte. 9 at Russell Street
in front of Mountain Farm Mall
Tel. 584-7763
Open Tues. 10-6, Wed., Thurs., Fri. 10-9
Sat. 10-5, closed Mon.
For other locations call toll-free 800 331-1000

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST
FINE ARTS CENTER CONCERT HALL
presents
THE GUARNERI STRING QUARTET

FRIDAY, MARCH 28, 1980 AT 8 P.M.
Music of Haydn, Bartok and Schubert
General Public $7, $6, $5
Senior Citizens $6, $5, $4
UMass Student Discount Tickets $3.50, $3, $2.50
TICKETS NOW ON SALE AT FINE ARTS CENTER BOX OFFICE (M-F, NOON-5 P.M.; 545-2511) AND TICKETRON OUTLETS.
Phone Reservations • Mail Orders • Group Discounts • Group Dinner • Theater Packages Available.

SEMESTER AT SEA
Plan a college semester at sea aboard the SCHOONER HARVEY GAMAGE. The credits in arts and science earned from Southampton College, a Center of Long Island University, may be transferred. Curriculum includes visits to numerous educational and historical places from Maine to the Virgin Islands.
HARVEY GAMAGE is a 95-foot U.S. Coast Guard inspected auxiliary schooner. For curriculum, cost and schedule, write or phone:
DIRIGO CRUISES
39 Waterside Lane, Clinton, CT 06413
Telephone: (203) 669-7068

THE AMHERST DELICATESSEN
NEW EXTENDED HOURS
Opens daily at 9 a.m.
Starting April 4th
Open Fri. & Sat. till 2 a.m.
Serving Sandwiches, Bagels & Lox, Quality Cold Cuts & New York Cheesecake
The Carriage Shops, Amherst 549-6314

Tomorrow Night
NOT-JUST-A-DISCO DANCE
Reggae
New Wave
Disco
Funk
Rock
Musik by Mario
Light by B. D. Welley
CCA $1.50

UM spends $200,000 to maintain libraries

By ED ARTHUR
Special to the Collegian

Almost seven months have elapsed since UMass Chancellor Henry Koffler closed the University's 28-story library because of pieces of brick falling off the building's facade. During that time, the University has spent over $200,000 in maintaining the since-reopened tower and the renovated Goodell library, according to UMass Library Director Richard Talbot.

Talbot said earlier this week that most of the money has been spent on book transferal from the tower to Goodell and additional personnel cost. He added the book checking device recently installed in Goodell was originally meant to go in the tower. If the University can gather the necessary funds, another book checking device will be installed in the tower, Talbot said.

According to UMass News Director Art Clifford, the two-library system has been successful, but some students have been complaining about problems locating books. Although the card catalog for the two libraries is located in Goodell, many books are still held in the tower, requiring more time and effort locating books, Clifford said.

Koffler closed the library tower last August 31, just days before fall semester classes were scheduled to begin, after a report completed by the engineering firm of Loomis and Loomis, Inc. of Windsor, Connecticut, said there was a danger of bricks falling off of the building.

The library was completed in 1973 at a cost of $16.5 million by the Holyoke construction firm of Daniel O'Connell and Sons – the same firm that built the leaking Campus Center Garage.

Masts rise high over a Newburyport boatyard as warmer weather arrives and the sea once again beckons for the return of sailboats upon the water. (Staff photo by Paul Price)

Clerical workers go to polls

By SARAH HAMMANN
Collegian Staff

Official election specialists, attorneys and poll clerks manned long tables in Memorial Hall in the election to determine retention or decertification of the University Clerical Worker's Union.

In a brusque and businesslike manner, one attorney quickly asked a voter for her name and ID. Anxious voters entered and left the polls with concerned expressions. They hesitated to offer an opinion let alone discuss the possible Union decertification.

Election specialists and attorneys carefully monitored the election procedure to ensure that the voting followed the strict procedure of the State Labor Relations Commission.

The 1200 Union employees provided a steady frow of voters in the election.

One Textbook Annex employee ventured "to guess that the Union would be voted in." Another union member, who wishes to remain unidentified. expressed "dissatisfaction with the union for the amount of dues I am paying and I am anxious to see what happens."

Most voters, however, would give no indication of how they felt.

The union's decertification would have an immediate effect on the grievance procedure. At present, union members follow three steps to air a grievance. Arbitration, the final step, usually entails a direct confrontation between emplayee, employer, and the Union grievance committee.

With a locally impotent Union, an employee would have to appeal his grievance to the Boston Chapter of the Civil Service Commission.

"Many clerical workers have legitimate grievances, but the grievance procedure and direct confrontation is frightening," said Svetlana Speyer, Grievance Officer for the union.

"The vote today and tomorrow is a very serious threat to the union's existence. Employees don't see the immediate

TURN TO PAGE 7

AFSCME claims 2-1 victory

By VICKI NEWCOMBE
Special to the Collegian

The American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees won a strong, 2-1 victory over the National Association of Government Employees in the union elections held Wednesday.

The 85% voter turnout of 1,285 maintenance, food service, security and agricultural workers cast 632 votes for AFSCME and 375 for NAGE. "No union" was the designated preference for 38 persons.

The Amherst Morning Record quoted AFSCME spokesman Jim Bollen as calling the 2-1 vote a "vote of confidence" in the union which has represented UMass employees for 18 years.

"I think the people realize that they need a powerful union to deal with the (UMass) Board of Trustees," Bollen said. AFSCME's ability to represent the workers of the University was challenged in January by a decertification campaign brought before the state Labor Relations Commission. This election vote retains AFSCME as the bargaining agent for the UMass service employees.

Johnathan Tuttle, president of AFSCME Local 1776 has

TURN TO PAGE 7

Scott Kellogg of Classical High School in Springfield demonstrates his fiber optics exhibit at yesterday's Science Fair in the Student Union Ballroom. (Staff photo by Ben Marsden)

Women's group organizes battle on pornography

By JANE DEVIRGILIO
Collegian Staff

A new group – the UMass chapter of Women Against Violence Against Women is organizing to enlighten and educate the campus community against the billion-dollar industry of pornography.

"We are concerned with the way pornography affects the sexual attitudes of men and women. Most pornography is violent as opposed to erotic, and this promotes the idea of violence as "normal" in a sexual relationship," WAVAW member Donna Meeks, said in an organizational meeting last night.

"We are worried about this type of pornography inciting people to commit real acts of violence against women. It serves to promote the masochistic image that women want this type of treatment," said Meeks.

The Adult Business report, a pornographic industry publication, sees the adult bookstores as a fixture in American society, estimating upwards 20,000 existing in this country, almost twice the number of MacDonalds restaraunts.

Meeks said that a number of stores in the 5-College area sell pornographic material ranging form "soft core" to "hard core" material. It is not only its presence that is of concern, Meeks said, but that it is often displayed at the eye range level of young children where it is most affecting.

Pornography is becoming more widespread in the media we are exposed to outside of the pornographic industry, said Meeks. Violence against women and the promotion of the "sexual object" role is evident on record album covers, and in advertising and mass-marketed films. "The brutalizing of women seems to be becoming more chic because of this," Meeks said.

The group hopes to plan definite action in the community. Further action is pending upon continued planning and meetings.

Alliance will protest Vt. Yankee N-plant

The Vermont Yankee Decommissioning Alliance will stage a peaceful, non-violent act of civil disobedience at the Vermont Yankee Nuclear Power Plant in Vernon, VT. Sunday.

Between 75 and 100 UMass students were recruited within the last month to participate in the act, a Student Coalition Against Nukes Nationwide member said Wednesday. The Amgerst Alternative Energy Coalition estimated the number of western Massachusetts residents participating "could be between 300 and 500 people."

The act will begin at 1 p.m. Sunday with a walk and car pool from Brattleboro Vt., to the Yankee plant where a petition calling for the decommissioning of the plant will be presented.

Black Affairs

The Frank Hatchett Dance Company of Springfield Ma. will be performing a modern Jazz Dance at the University of Mass. on Wednesday April 2 at 8:00 pm in the Student Union Ballroom. Admission is free.

Food for thought

On Saturday, March 29th, there will be an Organizational Fair in Room 1009 from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. The importance of this meeting is threefold. First, to inform the community of the present condition of their organizations. Second, to inform people that support for organizations during the floor budget hearing at the Student Senate meetings will be needed. Third, the reason why the Affair exists at all.

The process of the Fair was a proposal by Brother Stan Kinard (former Office of Third World Affairs Organizer) and Van Jackson (present Director of the Cultural Center). The plan was also a continuation of the Steering Committee's committment to congregate all Black and Third World organizations. The basis for this communication was threefold. First, to gather a list of Black and Third World students on campus. This allowed the planners to identify where people were located on campus. The second was to present a standing report of the organizations to the community. This included organizations on campus, groups from the administrative levels (CCEBS, W.E.B. DuBois Afro-Am Dept. and the New Africa House Cultural Center), and representatives from the other four Colleges. Third, was the need to determine the direction of the organizations. Thus, the success of the first Organizational Fair in 1977 provided an understanding of each group, and the ultimate goals they promoted to the community.

But in 1980, the need for an Organizational Fair has changed from its original intent. First, the need to communicate with the community on the present standing of the organization is nearing an emergency status. There has been a continuous decline of enrollment of students into our groups. This has caused the effectiveness of our Third World Caucus in the Student Senate (representative from the Third World community) to lose some of their power. Another threat that prevails is the earlier threat of the administration to take over the Senate's budget.

Finally, with present members in Black Affairs, Nummo News, Drum and some of the other organizations leaving because of graduation, there is a strong concern over their replacement.

The combination of these problems has a strong impact on the budget of each organization and the continued existence of Black and Third World students on campus. Presently, each group in the Senate is facing a percentage cut. But these cuts have traditionally crippled and ended a number of our organizations. The need to unite under one stand should be our motto now. Because as history has told us, when one group surrenders, we-all are on the chopping block. The move to wipe out our organizations will also lead to our removal from campus.

Earl Brown

Letter-to-the-Editor

Dear Editor:

I am a member of the black community here at UMass and I would like to express my concern at the emergence of black fraternities and sororities on campus.

It seems that these "black greek" organizations are merely aping their white counterparts. I fail to see the benefits of brothers and sisters walking around wearing certain colors, carrying objects covered in greek writing and breathlessly waiting to "go over." The term "go over" is very interesting. Somehow it sounds to me these blacks are going to a different society, apart from the already minute black community here. I don't understand how the small black community can stand any more separation.

I understand that these organizations are suppose to benefit and be a service to the black community. So far I haven't heard of any public service activities originated by the "black greeks." In fact, the only "service" I have encountered was a party at the S.U.B. where some of the money was dedicated to another organization concerning children. And of course there's always a "smoker" to attend.

I feel as if these groups develop clicks and separate into elitist groups. They exclude themselves by only seeing others involved in their particular organizations, using greek terms that most of us don't understand. The people involved in this environment cannot possibly help the movement of the black masses. How can they when they are so out of touch with them?

Another development in the Valley is different fraternities and sororities at different campuses. (The Deltas at Smith for example). This provides an air of tension between campuses that already have conflicts because this is a large university and the others are small, elitist schools. It's a shame that instead of trying to find a common bond of unity that brothers and sisters opt for more distinction between them.

The saddest part of all is the numerous Third World organizations that are crying for membership on this campus. On Saturday there will be a Third World Organizational Fair and all of these organizations will be present. Instead of trying to form new organizations that merely ape the white community, I feel that as a people we should support those that already exist.

Concerned student

Organizational Fair

"Beyond the Classroom" a Third World Organization fair will be held at 10th floor Campus Center, on March 29th, Saturday, from 1 to 4 p.m. All Third World students are encouraged to attend this important informative event with speakers, music and food.

The fair will consist of all Third World groups in a combined effort to recruit young energetic new members. It's imperative to rebuild our strength in numbers, before going to the senate.

The affair will be all day, including: speakers, food, music, and most importantly it will provide an opportunity for each organization to express feelings about why people should get involved.

This will be one of the last chances for each Third World organization to demonstrate their strength and support for each other so that our efforts and the efforts of those who have gone before us will not be wasted and our groups will not become obsolete.

Announcements

Benefit Cabaret

Friday, April 11, Washington Tower's Blacks in Contact (B.I.C.) is sponsoring a Spring Cabaret. It will be held at the Top of the Campus Restaurant, there will be a small donation the proceeds of which will go to the Sickle Cell Anemia Foundation. For further information and tickets, contact Sonja 546-4504 or Barron 546-9161.

'East West in Review'

"East West in Review" by the East West Players of Los Angeles. Review of the work of the oldest Asian American theatre group in the United States Monday March 31 at Bowker Auditorium at 8:00 p.m.

Summer Employment

Summer Employment with Upward Bound. Application for summer Residential Counselors and Instructors are available at the Upward Bound office, 205 New Africa House, University of Mass.

Political analyst to lecture

On Monday, March 31 Dr. Ivanhoe Donalson, political analyst will lecture at the Campus Center Rm.,905-909. The lecture will begin at 7 p.m. Admission is free.

Tribute to King

On Tuesday April 1, Rev. Arthur Langford will present a theatrical performance about the late Dr. Martin Luther King. There will be musical selections by the Voices of New Africa House Choir.

Course proposals

The Malcolm X Center in Southwest is now accepting course proposals for the Fall and Spring of 1980-81. We encourage the submission of proposals concerning Third World issues and other topics of interest. Instructors are paid $900.00 per course. Resumes must be included. Course proposal forms can be picked up from the Southwest Office of Academic Affairs, John Adams, Rm. no. 2. All proposals must be submitted to the Malcolm X Center no later than April 7, 1980. For more information, call Derek Davis at 545-3600 or at the Malcolm X Center at 545-2819 between 1 p.m. and 11 p.m. on weekdays.

Jazz Dance

The Frank Hatchett Dance Company of Springfield Ma. will be performing a Modern Jazz Dance at the University of Massachusetts on Wednesday April 2 at 8:00 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom. Admission is Free.

Solo guitarist

Monette Sudler, solo guitarist will perform in concert at the Cape Cod Lounge, Student Union, on Friday March 28 at 8 p.m. The concert is a production of the Duke Ellington Music Memorial SOLO and DUO Series. Admission is free.

For students interested in taking pictures for Black Affairs and Nummo News, there are spaces open for Southwest Area students in a photo Colloquium taking place in MacKimmie Dorm. For further information contact Tony Parham, Head of Residence. The colloquium takes place Thursday evenings at 7:30 p.m.

LUTHER By Brumsic Brandon, Jr.

Editorial/Opinion

Climate control

Is spring in the air, around the corner or already feverishly here? This is the kind of question not worth bothering with, let alone answering, when the weather is really good. When the weather is nice we should sing in its midst as birds that are free to soar: We should not discuss it as our major topic of conversation. This is a college campus! The climate should be intellectual, not trite, the atmosphere fervent, not vapid.

Unfortunately, however, this is a difficult concept for most UMass students to grasp. The weather is the weather is the weather. When it is all well and good that is very fine and dandy. But there is no dire need to devote undue attention to it. One attends school in order to develop one's mind—not to shoot either the breeze or that more visceral substance of a less meteorological nature. In spite of this rather sore lack on the greater part of both the student and teaching bodies to abstract past the point of peer pressure, it is possible to go too far in the other direction: Witness the veritable aviary of meaningless abtruse (and yet, somehow, profound) ideas chattered back and forth by a pair of earnest Smithies en route back to Northampton after being deprived of any semblance of "stimulating conversation" while on the UMass campus. The problem here is surely one of inevitable overcompensation following the sudden release from an intense intellectual vacuum. The Northampton-bound bus provides a temporary sanctuary or at least a neutral territory where the forbidden "stimulating conversation" is not a rude, all-too-noticable deviation from the painfully boring norm. The Smithies are simply full to the brim, almost overflowing, with potential ideas that would find no understanding but plenty of sympathy on this, shall I say, crass campus. So they release them in a flurry and fluttering of intensity-charged ideas that is surprising only in its conspicuous lack of feathers.

Not that I have anything against Smithies. They can be very nice and, of course, they do do other things besides hang out in an overheated library and chase after (almost) Olympian Amherst guys. I have no real heartfelt malice. Its just that I'd rather not talk about the weather. Even if it is nice.

7922632 is a Collegian commentator.

7922632

Think about what could happen

Friday, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. in front of the Student Union Building, armbands will be distributed to mark the first anniversary of the Three Mile Island nuclear accident.

The UMass chapter of the Student Coalition Against Nukes Nationwide (SCANN) is organizing the event to remind the UMass community of the worst nuclear accident in history which occured at TMI on March 28, 1979.

We urge all persons to THINK about the issues at hand.

Let us be thankful we here do not have a "funny metallic taste" in our mouths—yet.

All unsigned editorials reflect the view of a majority of the Collegian Board of Editors.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian

STEPHEN B. KLEIN, Editor-in-Chief; JULIE EAGLE, Managing Editor; FREDERIC M. KEILLOR, Business Manager; KEN GRANDPRE, Advertising manager; JACK GALLAGHER, News Editor; ROB BURBANK, Executive Editor; LISA CAPONE, Women's Editor; RENEE MOBLEY, Black Affairs Editor; JIM MAHONEY, Photo Editor; SUZETTE COURTMANCHE, Graphics Manager; JIM DEGNIM, Sports Editor; JIM MORAN, Fine Arts Editor.

Associate Editors

Jeff Baker, Fran Basche, Ellen Davis, Carolyn Mooney, Rob Stein, Associate Managing Editors; Ed Levine, Brian O'Connell, Associate News Editors; Eric Janszen, Associate Executive Editor; Joan Daly, Katie Kress, Assistant advertising managers; Debbie Wallace, Associate Women's Editor; Marcia Hospedales, Associate Black Affairs Editor; Peter Berry, Associate Photo Editor; Abbe Bjorklund, Associate Fine Arts Editor; Jane Wolfson, Associate Sports Editor; Jeffrey Bianchi, Associate Graphics Manager

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian is a member of the Associated Press. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertisers lies with the individual advertisers.

USPS 333 220

Letters to the editor should be kept as short as possible, preferably no longer than two pages. They should be typed at 67 characters per line, triple-spaced.

All letters should contain the author's name, address, and telephone number for verification. Telephone numbers will not be printed.

Letters

Im-personal

To the Editor:

While thumbing through the Collegian today, I came across a paragraph in the Personals that went like this: "To mingle (mangle?) or to rape the R A, that is the question. For answer see Mark-KD C." My heart stopped, and then began to speed; a gut reaction that symbolizes for me the feeling that I am being threatened.

Rape is not fun, exciting, a joke, or a fantasy of being sexually "dominant" or "subordinate." In actuality, our sexuality has very little to do with rape. Rape is the horrible, degrading and humiliating experience of one person, historically and cross-culturally a man, violently seizing a woman's most valued and precious sense of Self without her permission. This horrifying experience leaves a woman psychologically and physically wounded, sometimes beyond repair. It is time to insist on our right to live free of the fear of violence against our persons, in any way; to demand NOT ANOTHER RAPE.

I believe the Collegian's contents displays a lack of responsibility to its readers.

Adena Gilbert '83
Brett House

LSO is needed!

To the Editor:

At present, there is an effort being made by the Student Government Association Budget Committee to eliminate the Legal Service Office (LSO) at the University. LSO is a student funded organization providing fee paying undergraduate and graduate students with free legal advice and counseling in various legal matters. In essence LSO protects your rights as a student.

Evidently a few members of this budget committee feel LSO is no longer needed and is a useless organization. However, I do not agree. I have had personal experience with LSO and I believe I was served in a professional manner and benefited from their aid. I was treated on a very personal basis unlike many of my other experiences with various organizations at this bureaucratic university. I also saved close to four hundred dollars in lawyer's fees and other costs. The people on this budget committee do not think LSO handles important legal matters, but I believe that my case, a criminal matter, which could have resulted in a criminal record for life, was in fact a very important matter. I am sure that if any of the individuals on that committee ever ran into a legal problem and sought LSO's help they might have second thoughts about eliminating LSO.

I sincerely believe LSO is a professional organization and a valuable asset to the students of UMass. If more organizations at this university operated in as proficient a manner as LSO does, the University of Massachusetts would benefit by it greatly. The elimination of LSO would be a devastating loss to the students at this university. I think every effort should be made by the students of UMass to fight for the survival of a very valuable and worthwhile organization. Those people on the budget committee who say LSO is not needed and does not do anything are just expressing their ignorance. LSO has proved to me that it is needed and does work to protect the students of UMass.

Paul J. Carney Brown

Get it right, Jim!

To the Editor:

Jim Moran should stick to being Fine Arts Editor. His portrayal of John Anderson was grossly inacurate.

On the issue of the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution, only two US senators voted against it with senator McGovern and other anti-war activists voting for it. I would like Jim Moran to name five congressman who voted against the resolution. When Republican candidates were asked in a recent debate about past regrets, Anderson who was the only who had any, said he deeply regreted his vote on the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution.

Mr. Moran conveniently avoided gun control. Although both are in favor of gun control, Anderson had the guts to appear before the NRA forum in New Hampshire and to say so. Kennedy, worried about the negative vote, did not attend the forum.

In addition, let me point out that John Anderson was on the Trilateral Commission. Being the idealist that he is, Anderson accepted an invitation to serve on the commission only to quit in disgust after a few months.

Anderson has been misinterpreted by Moran on his nuclear energy stand. Anderson supports the findings of the Kemmeny Commission. What he also supports is research in the nuclear energy field so that if nuclear power doesn't go away, at least we will know what to do with the waste.

Here are some other issues that Moran either ignored or did not report factually. Anderson has strong civil rights and environmental records. He is opposed to the MX missile and the B1 bomber. Anderson favors freedom of choice which goes along with his strong support of women's rights. He is for a windfall profits tax.

As I said at the start, Jim Moran should not venture out of the fine arts. At the end of his article he says, "Kennedy is the only progressive candidate that can be realistically elected." I suggest that Mr. Moran take some time off from his editing to follow the presidental primaries.

Frank Moore
Van Meter

Robert gets it right

To the Editor:

Regarding F. Noel Collins' letter alleging discrepancies in the Collegian's account of the votes cast in the 1980 SGA election, the Collegian's figures are accurate as reported.

The reason for the difference in votes cast and the total vote occurred in that a number of ballots cast (and thus counted by the voting machines) were unusuable, in most cases because there was no check mark made for any of the names listed.

Summarizing the final figures, in 1979, 4311 usuable ballots were cast (= 24% of those eligible to vote); in 1980, 3941 usuable ballots were cast (= 21% of those eligible to vote).

I hope this clarifies the issue. If others have concerns about this matter, or need to see the breakdown of votes by candidates and voting area, I would be pleased to share the data.

Robert N. Brooks
Asst. Director of Admissions

Students disrupt Raytheon lunch

A group of about 25 unidentified students disrupted a Raytheon Corporation luncheon yesterday in an attempt to voice opposition to the manufacture of military weaponry, according to witnesses.

The demonstrators entered Campus Center 1001 at about 12:30 p.m. and read a brief statement concerning the "evils of war," a witness said. Most of the people at the luncheon, which was part of a training conference, left quietly during the demonstration.

A Raytheon representative said his group was willing to talk, but that it resented the protestors' rudeness. The demonstration didn't make much of an impression on the Raytheon group, the source said.

A secretary in the marketing department of Raytheon estimated 15 percent of the company's products are military related.

One witness reported that a protestor said he felt they had the right to barge in. The demonstrators did not wish to reschedule a meeting with Raytheon and left the room when they were asked to.

ICELANDAIR TO EUROPE ON A BIG BIRD AND A LOW FARE

$499 Roundtrip from New York to Luxembourg

$533 Roundtrip from Chicago to Luxembourg

No restrictions

Confirmed reservations • free wine with dinner, cognac after • no restrictions on stays to 1 yr. or advance purchase. Prices valid from U.S. from March 10 thru May 14, 1980. All schedules and prices subject to change and government approval. Purchase tickets in the U.S.

See your travel agent or write Dept. #CN
Icelandair P.O. Box 105,
West Hempstead, NY 11552.
Call in NYC, 757-8585; elsewhere, call 800-555-1212 for the toll-free number in your area.
Please send me: ☐ An Icelandair flight timetable.
☐ Your European Vacations brochure.

Name _____
Address _____
City _____
State _____ Zip _____

ICELANDAIR
Still your best value to Europe

586-3880

CAMPUS PIZZA
in Hadley
Delicious Pizza-Grinders
Spaghetti-BQ Chicken
A1 Roast Beef-Lasagna
Come In - Try and Compare
Beer & Wine
Sun-Thur 11 am-1 am
Fri-Sat 11 am-2 am
Rt. 9 between Amherst & Northampton

COUPON
A pitcher of Beer for half-price with any large Pizza except Plain offer expires April 5, 1980

Burroughs Corporation

Announces a presentation in the Electrical and Computer Engineering Graduate Seminar by Dr. David B. Weisman, Project Engineer, Systems Software
Monday, March 31, 1980
4:00 PM
Engineering Auditorium
East Engineering Building
"The Burroughs Loop"
A Fail-Safe Distributed Processing System"

This presentation describes a distributed processing system referred to as the Exploratory System Control Model (ESM) Multiloop Network which consists of five interconnected microcomputer controlled loops, interfacing various equipment. In addition, a brief tutorial will be given on loop oriented distributed processing systems, including a comparison of loops with serial busses.

This presentaion will be of special interest to students majoring in Electrical Engineering, Mathematics and Computer Science.

THE WOK
Chinese Home Style Cooking
COMPLETE TAKE-OUT MENU
AMPLE PARKING
LUNCHEON & DINNER SPECIALS
COCKTAIL LOUNGE
MON - THURS 11:30 AM - 10 PM • FRI. & SAT 11:30 AM TO 12:00 PM
SUN & HOLIDAYS 1 PM TO 10 PM • LUNCHEONS 11:30 AM - 3 PM
EXCEPT HOLIDAYS
48 RUSSELL ST
HADLEY
Call 586-1202

DINNER SPECIALS

Available on Monday, Tuesday & Wednesday 3 pm-10 pm

$3.99

Beef with Mixed Veg. & (2) Fried Shrimps
Beef with Mixed Veg. & (3) Chicken Wings
Beef with Mixed Veg. & (3) Chicken Fingers

Chicken with Mixed Veg. & (2) Terriyaki Beef
Chicken with Mixed Veg. & (2) Fried Shrimp
Chicken with Mixed Veg. & (2) Spare Ribs

Shrimp with Mixed Veg. & (1) Egg Roll
Shrimp with Mixed Veg. & (3) Chicken Wings
Shrimp with Mixed Veg. & (3) Chicken Fingers

Scallop with Mixed Veg. & (3) Chicken Fingers
Scallop with Mixed Veg. & (2) Spare Ribs
Scallop with Mixed Veg. & (3) Chicken Wings

Mixed Veg. & (4) Fish Chunks
Mixed Veg. & (2) Fried Shrimp
Mixed Veg. & (4) Fried Scallop

All Dinner comes with a Miller, Miller Lite or Budweiser
All Dinners complete with Pork Fried Rice

SALE!
ONE DAY ONLY...
SATURDAY, MARCH 29

JERGAS
ORIGINALLY: ~~14.95~~
OUR SPECIAL PURCHASE PRICE: ~~9.95~~
SAT. ONLY...
6.95

FACES
A Store-full of Ideas
Downtown Amherst /Open 10-6, Mon.-Sat.

★ Elections

CONT. FROM PAGE 3

effect of the two dollar increase in the monthly dues; they claim the union has not heard the workers, and are dissatisfied with the union," Speyer added.

"Clerical workers are not at ease with their civil rights and should realize that this is their union, not a separate organization," she said.

William Marcoullier, initiator of the petition to oust the union, could not be reached for comment.

Employees will finish voting today at 12:30 p.m. State Labor Commission specialists will tally the vote this afternoon. If the vote favors decertification, the University Clerical Union will be defunct within seven days, and the workers will be left without a union for at one year.

★ AFSCME

CONT. FROM PAGE 3

explained that a primary objective of Federation is to bargain for a contract that will provide for pay increases to battle inflation.

NAGE supporter Stephen Kozloski, one of the decertification proponents, termed the AFSCME victory a defeat for the UMass employee and has criticized AFSCME as a "bureaucracy." Kozloski claims the pay increase that AFSCME is working towards will result in approximately a $1.50 raise in take home pay for the average employee.

CORRECTION

The open rush ad that appeared on page 9 of yesterday's Collegian should have read Sigma Alpha Epsilon. The open rush will take place tonight at 6:00 p.m.

the SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st., amherst

Attention

Women's Dept. Reporters!

There will be a meeting to discuss story ideas and department policies on Tuesday, April 1 at 7 p.m. in Campus Center 102. New reporters are welcome. Please plan to attend.

ORCHARD HILL/CENTRAL AREA WOMEN CENTERS PRESENT:

Six Week Self Defense Course for Women
Begins Wed., April 2
7:00 p.m.
Field Main Lounge
enrollment limited; priority to OH/Central area women
•to register call 665-2064, 586-5068• or 584-3394 before April 2

TONIGHT!
"APPLAUSE"
A Backstage Musical
mar. 27, 28, 29, 30 apr. 3, 4 8 p.m.
bowker auditorium, stockbridge hall
For Tickets Call 545-0783

TONIGHT!
Fantastic Voyage 8:00
The Andromeda Strain
6:00 & 10:00
CCA Both Shows for a dollar!

STADIUM
U. Mass. Amherst

KEGS—
BEER—
LIQUORS
WINE—

LIQUORS

Tuborg bottles		6.90 case	Seagram 7	11.99 1.75 L	5.69 750 ml
St. Pauli Girl	3.20 6 pack	12.60 case	Gordon Gin		10.75 1.75 L.
Miller		7.99 case	S.S. Pierce Vodka		7.99 1.5 L.
Budweiser		7.99 case	Gordon Vodka		8.99 1.75 L.
Carlo Rossi's 4 L.		4.95	Cuerro Golo Tequila		6.89 750 ml.
Molson	2.75 6 pack	10.49 case	Kamora Coffee Liquor		6.69 750 ml.
O'Keefe Ale		9.90 cs.	Seagram V.O.		6.89 750 ml.

Catch Our Weekly Specials

500—Parking places
Soda—Ice—Munchies

Save money—Save gas—Save time
10 a.m. — 253-5595 — til 11 p.m.

Collegian Classifieds

To place a Collegian Classified
- Come to Collegian Office CC 113
- 8:45 to 3:45 Mon-Fri
- Classified deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day

Collegian Classified Rates
- 15c per word
- Student rate 10c per word
- Cash in advance
- 5 consecutive days 5 % discount
- Phone number FREE

AUDIO

SONY one point stereo eletret condenser microphone excellent cond. $25 253-3225

AUTO FOR SALE

FIX YOUR OWN CAR. The Student Auto Workshop offers tools, space, and assistance. Tues, Wed, Thurs 3-9 pm, Fri 12-5, Sat 10-5. Level one CC garage. 545-0673

'73 Toyota Mark II Wagn 73000 mi excellent shape, yours for $1980 phone Kittye 549-5412

1970 Impala excellent condition, rebuilt small V8, new disc brakes, reupholstered, new radials, over 2,000 invested $800 or BO Jonathan 546-5576

1976 Chevy Nova 6 cyl., good MPG, power brakes/steering, air, radio, great condition call 323-4996

1964 Volvo P800S Sports Coupe 115 HP 5 spd Michelins Bilsteins AM-FM good for parts or restoration 34 mpg call 549-5359 eves asking 600

73 Nova SS 4-speed excellent condition 542-2942

Convertible 67 Buick Wildcat $300 Mark 586-1322/546-8908

1975 Toyota Corolla $1100 call after 6 PM 256-0258

Chevy V8 1970 Station Wagon 125,000 miles runs well burns no oil 4 good tires 4x8 plywood sheet in back $350 call Susan around 6 pm 256-8713

Volvo 1970 144, std, AM/FM, radials, one owner, exc running condition, good milegae 549-5140 after 5:30

71 Toyota Corolla goos condition $750 665-2893

ENTERTAINMENT

Soundsystem for Hire perfect for bands, doscos, coffeehouses Rick 584-4105

Curelope and Brava for Spring Concert

Pro Soundsystem perfect for coffeehouses, parties, formals, DJs MF Sound 6-8777 6-8853

"Dock-Risco" a diverse musical DJ who mixes rock and disco. If you want a tasteful mix of music for your next party or formal call 549-4199

1974 FORD

F-100 Standard P.S. 72,500 mi. no body rot $1785 549-2651 ask for John

FOR RENT

Cape Cod Summer Rental 5 bdrms E. Dennis after 5 253-5017

One bedroom Colonial Village $112/mo available immediately 256-6749 Andy or leave message Tobin 509

Cape Cod Summer Rental West Yarmouth 2 miles from Seagull Beach $450 to share room $800 for single 546-9569

Summer Sublet fully furnished 2 room 5 minutes from UMass 190 + utilities Call Dan or Bridge late eves 549-5798

Rooms on the Cape for summer Hyannis area 617-771-6768 weekends

FOR SALE

Tan Wallabees 8½ mens new $30 6-9991

Stereo-Turntable, Receiver, and Speakers working condition $75 OK BO 546-8988

Tennis new Snauwaert B. Gottfried 4½ L-M strung gut $40 546-5738

Spalding Lancer 190cm Skiis w/Salomon bindings size 8 Nordica boots, poles, all used only twice $130 253-3377

Jennings Adjustable Compound Bow 45-75 lbs. 29"-30" draw $85 or BO 253-3377

Teledyne Microphone with stand $60 Dearmand acoustic pickup $35 665-7992

Teac A103 mint 6 months old 170 new 125 now Honda moped brand new perfect extras 450 new 375 now call Dan late eves 549-5798

Designer Backgammon Board $60 or BO 6-5723

Tires - 4 Kleber steel radials. Brand new on Fiat rims. Cost $145 - $100 firm 665-7555

FOUND

Found-Brown plastic rimmed glasses in Northeast quad. Call Jeff 6-3210

Keys found near NOPE 3/26 call Mark 549-4196

HELP WANTED

Exp. Cocktail Waitress for late Spring and Summer. Apply Poor Richards 8-9 PM Daily

Western Mass Bus Lines is now accepting applications for bus driver training for part time work in Sept. 1980 Qualified applicants must be students of one of the 5 colleges, experienced with standard trans., and willing to commit themselves for 2 semesters. Apply in person at our garage/office behind the Phone Co. bldg. on Pleasant St. Northampton

Summer work, $1,210.00 monthly, travel Car owner preferred but not required. Send SASE Box 213, Amherst MA 01004

Counselors for Boys Camp in Maine. Openings in most specialties. Write: Camp Cedar, 1758 Beacon St. Brookline, MA 021466 or call 617-277-8080

Work study positions available at SCERA for recruitment coordinator, office assistant and women's issues team. Contact SCERA for application or call 545-0341

Rewarding summer at educational camp for special needs children. Lincoln Hill in Foxboro, MA seeks counselors, kitchen maintainance staff (live in). Office: 41 South Street, Foxboro, MA (617) 543-3746

Counselors: Camp Waziyatah for girls, Harrison, Maine. Openings: Tennis (varsity or skilled players); Swimming (WSI), Boating, Canoeing, Sailing; Waterskiing; Gymnastics; Srchery; Team Sports; Arts & Crafts; Theatre Director (Musicals), Pianist, Pioneering & Trips; Secretary. Season: June 21 to August 21. Write (enclose details as to your skills etc) Director, Box 153, Great Neck, N.Y. 10022 Telephone: 516-482-4323. Faculty inquiries invited re. Dept Head positions in above activities.

INSTRUCTION

Sentics Workshop—"The Miracle of the Possible" call Elizabeth Paton 413 549-3880

Jewish Community of Amherst needs both Hebrew and Jewish Studies teachers for September 1980 call 549-0223 for application. Experience preferred

LOST

Lost Black Lab named Astro Always seen around campus. If anyone has any info please call Scott at anytime 549-6219. Wears blue collar, keep your eyes open friends.

Roach Clip with fisherman's keychain, extreme sentimental value, please call Dave 6-9547

Change Purse in Earthfoods 6-6826

Lost Trumpet in leather bag Franklin DC Monday night call 6-6564

Reward for lost orange notebook in vicinity 251 Boyden 3/24 call anytime Jon 549-6493

MOTORCYCLES

1977 Honda CB125S Mint Condition 75-90 MPG $550 6-4554

PERSONALS

Pete Jacke call Macky 665-7923

Three females looking to take over a three bedroom apartment in Rolling Green for Fall Semester. Willing to take over lease for summer if necessary. Please call 546-9636 or 546-1867

Don't graduate without doing it! Get your yearbook portrait taken--call 545-2874 for your appointment. Don't be left out of the 1980 Index

"Balloons by Ken" Balloon animals at the CC Concourse, can make octopus, bumblebee, giraffe, monkey, elephants, swans, etc. One day only, Thursday Mar. 27th

All University Women invited to Rush Parties at SDT for more info call Robyn 545-0527

Young Life Leadership Christian outreach ministry March 31 7:30 more info Denise 538-3583

Richard—I'd like to have a real conversation—Christine

Happy Birthday Doctor from your wuv wuns

Paula we wuv woo roo Happy Birthday

Maaahk, I don't care WHAT they say. It's everyone ELSE that has the accent! Happy 19th! Love, Hulga

Markipoo—Happy 19th tomorrow! Let's celebrate tonight! I'm serious, technically.—Love Ziggy

Go in "SAYNE", April 10 Thursday

Party at Mt. Holyoke College with the Kidz Saturday March 29 9-1 Buckland Hall call 546-7760 for info (all ages with College ID!)

The Kidz live Rock Hampden Commons Friday March 28 9:00-1:00 .50 admission

NU? What should we do for Mark M's birthday? Mazel tov on your 22nd--The Federation

!ola Gonzallo! Claudia dice "vamos a eiercitar en el Y" y feliz cumpleano.

Richard, I forgot what I was going to say. . .oh yeah, Happy B'day — Love, the normal one to PSA's "friend"—you can talk to toes at 24 too--the Eternal Optimist!

Happy 20th G.B. drink a couple of six packs for us. Love, L.J. and K.F.

Hey Sue B. This year is going to be unforgetable Happy 21st! Donna

NEED CASH? I will buy your used record albums. 6-7937

Citizens Party Meeting tonight w/music, film CC 172 7 pm

Ferron you ruined a perfectly good name by adding that "n" name withheld

Happy Birthday Nifty (act surprised even if you do end up reading this) I love you Kiddo - Krissy

Choppers, Where did that banana really go? Congratulations anyway.

Carole—Have a great 19th B-day. 1-4-3-6 Gary

Bill D. 1102 JQA Judy confessed everything. This means war Kiddo

S.K. Have a bugga bugga B'day! Luv Neep Neep

REWARD

For return of Silver Bracelet lost near Iron Horse Coffee House Friday. Has great sentimental value. Generous reward offered. Call 253-5605

ROOMATE WANTED

Two bedrooms in a three bedroom Townehouse apt available June 1 549-1833

Mellow partying people seeking two of the same for roomates in Brittany Manor Apt. Call Michael 546-4175 Ellen 546-6629

Roomate wanted immediately condominium Echo Hill $100 plus call 253-3707

Female housemate for 3 bdr duplex. On bus route. $100 + utilities. Elise 545-0696, 253-7150

Male roomate wanted Brandywine $105 549-4671

ROOM WANTED

Need a summer roomate for your Vineyard home? Call Beth 549-6534

SERVICES

Attorney Jason R. Rosenthal Legal Representation. Income Tax Preparation. Days 584-4285 Evenings 253-7617

TYPING Experiencec typist, reasonable rates 256-6360

SLIM WHITMAN

The Union Program Council is proud to announce that due to popular demand they are in the process of booking the incomparable master of song--Slim Whitman--drop by UPC and say thanx

Slim Whitman--The Mass Fruit Growers Assoc. supports Slim for Spring Concert--dodge a tomato--Aieeeegh! Awaaaay!

TO SUBLET

4 bedroom apt. on bus route, for summer sub-let with fall option. Cheap! Call 256-8070.

2 bedroom apt Colonial Village on bus rte starting June 1 through August call Lisa or Robin 253-3740 evenings

1-4 Bdrms in 4 bdrm apt June-Aug w/option Lori 256-8233

1 bdrm in 4 bdrm apt w/kitch, livrm, bath Phillips St $80/mo Wendy 549-1005

Furnished 2 bedroom Brandywine for the summer A/C pool 2 buses rent negotiable call 549-2832

2 L6 bdrooms Brandywine Apts perfect location furnished balcony pool tennis reasonable price call 549-5959

2 bedroom furnished on bus route June-August $195-mo Fall option 665-4720

3 bedroom apt. summer sublet, Fall option ¼ mile from Campus 549-1462 evenings

2 bdrm Twnhs So Amh on bus rt avail My-Aug w fall opt rent neg 256-8650

Northwood 2 bedroom furnished AC DW pool garden plots bus-line June 1-August 31 $150 per month call 665-4850 after 4 pm

Squire Village Sunderland summer sublet 2 bdrm, 2 bathrooms, on bus route avail June 1-August 1, call 665-3660

4 bedroom apt Swiss Village for summer option of Fall bus route all utilities included 256-8616

Puffton 1 bedroom furnished June 1 -August 31 549-5941 evenings

1-4 bedrooms summer sublet in large house on bus route Can take over lease for next fall Call evenings 253-3915

Townehouse Apt two bdrms for the summer call 549-4734 anytime

2 bedroom apt Lantern Court Sunderland off bus route June 1 through August 665-7750

3 bdrm apt in Puffton Vill for the summer with option for Fall & Spring ask for Jim if busy keep trying 549-4012

Three bedroom apartment June first with option for fall close to campus on bus route air conditioned large living room 549-0699

Brittany Manor Jun-Aug 300.00/mos 253-5128 after 6

4 bedroom apartment $440 month inclusive on bus route don't get stuck without a place next Fall 256-8209

2 bedroom summer sublet on bus rte June 1 thru August w/ option. Pool, balcony overlooking pond. $350 mnth includes gas heat oven, stove, & A/C call Jay 549-1727

2 bedroom Southwood Apt bus route pool tennis June 1 256-0452

2 bedroom apt Presidential Apts summer sublet-option to renew in fall Call Robin or Jennifer 549-6382

Puffton Village 2 bedroom from end of April Fall option 549-4360

1 bdrm Puffton Village Jun-Aug pool air cond 549-6469

Summer sublet Townehouse Apts $200.00 549-6656 furnished

3 bedroom Townehouse open from June 1 - Aug 31 call 549-4049 for info

2 bdrm apt Southwood Jun-Aug w/option call 256-0316

WANTED

Fast immediate cash for gold-school rings-diamonds- silver Jeff anytime 527-7078 586-0180

DJ wanted for party and or formal call 6-9850 6-9851

Used Electric Typewriter call andy 546-6785 evenings

Joel Brave and Mark Curelop for Spring Concert

WANTED TO RENT

3 women looking for housing in Hyannia area for Jun-Aug call Lisa 546-8006 or Toby 546-7436

Great Prices
Spring Clothes
Jewelry & Gifts
THE MERCANTILE
AMHERST CARRIAGE SHOPS
Daily 10 am - 6 pm

CARLO OF NAPLES
"foods of Italy"
wine beer
45 State Street Northampton 584-9722

Nuke the Whale by Danny Guidera

4 by Frank Emery

Wimpman by Evan Carlson

Bean by Kevin X. McNamara

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

Crossword

ACROSS
1 Arrived
5 Violin maker
10 Detain
14 E. Ind. vine
15 Stone: Prefix
16 Great Lake
17 European
18 Vermont hero: 2 words
20 Build
22 Jump
23 Used up
24 Where Innsbruck is 26 Pastry
27 Streaked
30 Whips
34 Wants badly
35 Ripped
36 Cloth measure
37 Talk wildly
38 Fright
40 Festival
41 — hockey
42 Type
43 God's abode
45 Chandelier part
47 Zealous
48 Plus
49 Move obliquely
50 Cede
53 State: Abbr.
54 Softened
58 — - — -a-rosy
61 Shrewd
62 Bone: Prefix
63 Quart part
64 Before: Prefix
65 Abrade
66 Peeved
67 Leap —

DOWN
1 Garment
2 Roman god
3 Distance unit
4 Optional
5 Emulate
6 System
7 Massachusetts town
8 Catch
9 Electron
10 Lent a hand
11 Heraldic bearing
12 Mortgage
13 Hollow
19 Apart
21 Genre
25 Answer
26 Dried out
27 Paper money
28 Sketch
29 Poe subject
30 Luau food
31 Go
32 Girl's name
33 Lean
35 Explosive
39 Wile
40 Donated: 2 words
42 — Catalina
44 Man's name: Var.
46 Peril
47 Husband-to-be
49 Went furtively
50 Increase
51 Levitate
52 Pilaster
53 Number
55 Math function
56 This: Sp.
57 Doe or buck
59 King: Fr.
60 Teacher's deg.

UNITED Feature Syndicate
Thursday's Puzzle Solved

DC Menu

Lunch
Fishburger on Roll/
Tartar Sauce,
Cocktail Sauce
Pizza

Basics Lunch
Carrot Lentil Bake
Pizza

Dinner
Roast Beef/Onion Gravy
Italian Shrimp and Rice

Basics Dinner
Colache
Italian Shrimp and Rice

Happy Hour at
Barselotti's
Every Friday from 3-6
Draft Beer 50c
Most Bottled Beer 75c
Pitchers of
Old Milwaukee $2.00
Most Drinks 75c
25c Drafts with a Barse's Mug
Free Whole Wheat Pizza
Free Peanuts
2 T.V.'s
Barselotti's
Downtown Amherst

Pleasant St. Theater
FRANCIS FORD COPPOLA
HANS-JÜRGEN SYBERBERG'S
OUR HITLER
A FILM FROM GERMANY
April 26 and 27
at the Calvin
ADVANCE TICKET INFORMATION
Tickets are now available for the April 26 and 27 performances either through the mail (by stamped self-addressed envelopes only) or at the Pleasant St. Theater box office from 5:30 to 12 p.m. daily (excepting one half hour before showtimes). Starting on April 21 the PST box office will be open for advance tickets from noon on, in addition to the regular evening hours.
Ticket prices are $10 for rows E-N of the orchestra center and for the logo; $8.50 for rows A-D and O-X of Orchestra center for all seats on orchestra left and right and for second balcony. No student or senior citizen discounts are available. All mail requests should indicate a first, second, and third preference by area and approximate row location. Mail requests will be honored immediately. Mail requests received after April 21 cannot be answered. Tickets cannot be refunded.
27 Pleasant St./Northampton 586-0935

安城中國飯店
AMHERST CHINESE FOOD
62 Main St 253-7835
"Where you can get the best homestyle Chinese dishes at a very reasonable price."
Closed Wednesdays

Paid Intern Positions
The Housing Administration Intern Program is currently seeking interested freshmen and sophomores for paid positions in our management training program. All majors are encouraged to apply. Applications are currently available at Whitmore, CCEBS, The Woman Center, and BCP and at Berkshire House. For more info call 545-0890, 545-1960, or 546-5532.

Rundgren and Utopia coming to FAC

l. to rt.: Roger Powell, Todd Rundgren, Kasim Sulton, John Wilcox. (Phot. courtesy of Bearsville Records)

Todd Rundgren, one of the foremost producers and practitioners of pop music, will journey with his group Utopia to the Fine Arts Center April 29. Although probably best known for his solo work, Rundgren's albums with Utopia have also drawn much critical and popular acclaim. In addition to Rundgren on guitar, the group includes Roger Powell on keyboards, Kasim Sulton on bass and John Wilcox on drums.

Rundgren first began his recording career in 1968 with a group called the Nazz. Since that time, he has had several hit pop singles, including "Hello It's Me" in 1972. While his solo albums have been slick, well-crafted efforts, his Utopia material has encompassed aspects of more progressive and experimental music.

Tickets for the concert will be available on Monday, April 7 at the FAC Box Office, TIX and Union Records Unlimited on campus, and at Platterpus Records in Northampton. Prices are $8.00, $7.50 and $7.00 for UMass students and $9.00, $8.50 and $8.00 for the general public.

Meet the World International Fair '80
Saturday, March 29 CCA 11 am - 4:30 pm
Exhibits Food Music Entertainment
Raffle Free Admission
& The Not-Just-A-Disco Dance
CCA 9:00 pm - 1:00 am $1.50

If you haven't tried a chocolate chip cookie from Entenmann's
SINCE 1898
you haven't had the chocolate chip cookie
available at
in the campus center at umass
the UNIVERSITY STORE

Shrimp and Salad Bar

Enjoy a Platter of boiled shrimp Peel 'em and eat 'em With Steak Out's unlimited Salad bar.
$4.95
The Steak Out
Rt. 5 Brattleboro 257-1333
Rt. 9 Amherst 256-8557

The Red Hot Connection
The Great American Hot Dog Place
15 E. Pleasant
(next to Tech Hi-Fi)
Hours: Mon-Sat 11 am - 2 am Sunday 12 to 12
Nite Delivery & Carryout
call 549-5151
This weeks
NIGHT SPECIAL
8 pm till closing
with any $2.50 purchase get a large drink and box of popcorn
FREE
good through April 2, 1980

FOUR SEASONS

Molson Golden 12 oz. btl.----------case 10.49
Budweiser Beer 12 oz. btl.----------case 7.99
Falstaff Beer 12 oz. cans----------case 5.49
Mr. Boston English Mkt Gin -1.75 ltr. 9.49
Mr. Boston Vodka ----------1.75 ltr. 8.99
Folonari Soave----------1.75 ltr. 3.99

Open 9 am - 11 pm
Mon. - Sat.
Wines/Liquors
rte.9, hadley, ma./584-8174
in front of the malls

Collegian Classifieds SELL IT

FRISBEE
with electronic lights. Resembles a U.F.O.! Send $12 cash, M.O. only to: Jim Apple 74 Humphrey St. Swampscott, MA 01907

Jeans $1.00
GOODWILL
37 Main St. N'ton
(take PVTA to the Courthouse)

OMEGA BOOKS gallery
COMICS MOVIE POSTERS BUY AND SELL (SOME TRADE) QUALITY USED BOOKS
10-1230 2-500 MON-SAT
213 MAIN ST N'TON

Day Camp in Bedford seeks
GYMNASTIC COUNSELOR
& Regular Counselors
$good pay$
call 617-275-1392
or write: Bedford Rec. Dept.
16 South Rd.
Bedford, MA 01730

FLAT STREET
Brattleboro
802-254-8257
FRI. & SAT.
MAR. 28 & 29 $2
DARLING
TUES. APR. 1
$6.50
the Electrifying
THE PAT METHENY GROUP
Shows at7 & 10
Tickets @ Faces-Amherst Platterpus Records -N'ton
APRIL 4 & 5
WILLOW
TUES. APRIL8
The Rockin
STEVE MARDELLA
PHOTO I.D. REQUIRED

David Whitman
Hair Shack
is proud to announce that JACKIE ARMSTEAD

has joined our talented staff
Gail Joanne
Roger Linda
Richard Philip
DAVID WHITMAN HAIR SHACK
Amherst
124 Amity St.
549-5111
A TOTAL SERVICE SALON

ACADEMY OF MUSIC
Northampton, Mass.
Filmed on Location At Smith College Now, Ends Tues. At 7:00 and 9:15 (note: no Showing Sat. Mar. 29)

ELIZABETH TAYLOR RICHARD BURTON
ALBEE'S WHO'S AFRAID OF VIRGINIA WOOLF?
GEORGE SEGAL SANDY DENNIS
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

Bass SUPER SUNJUNS
SALE

2 STYLES
2 COLORS
medium & narrow widths
all sizes available
Reg. $38
SALE $26.95
Heartfelt Leather
103 N. Pleasant St., Amherst
Downtown Amherst
10 6-00 Mon. Sat. 253-5125

AMERICAN MULTI CINEMA
TIMES SHOWN FOR TODAY ONLY
ADULTS $2.75 STUDENTS & SR. CITIZENS WITH AMC CARD $2.25 TWI-LITE SHOW $1.50
SPECIAL ENGAGEMENTS EXCLUDED TWI-LITE SHOW – LIMITED TO SEATING

HAMPSHIRE 4 584-7550 HAMPSHIRE MALL ON CAFE SQ. RT. 9 – HADLEY, MASS
SISSY SPACEK TOMMY LEE JONES
Coal Miner's DAUGHTER
Fri-Sat (5:15 @ $1.50) 7:45-10:15
Sun-Thur (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
Matinee (Sat-Sun) 2:00
PG
AUDIENCES WILL SIMPLY CHERISH
5 Academy Nominations BREAKING AWAY
Fri-Sat (5:30 @ $1.50) 8:00-10:15
Sun-Thur (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
Matinee (Sat, Sun) 2:15
PG
Little Darlings
TATUM KRISTY O'NEAL McNICHOL
Fri-Sat (5:00 @ $1.50) and 7:00-9:15
Sun-Thur (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
Matinee (Sat, Sun) 2:15
R
THE ROCKY HORROR PICTURE SHOW
R X
also Emmanuelle
Midnight Showings on Fri and Sat
All Seats $2.50
SERIAL
with Martin Mull
Fri-Sat (5:00 @ $1.50) and 7:00-9:15
Sun-Thur (6:15@$1.50)8:45
Matinee (Sat, Sun) 2:00
R

MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9 – HADLEY, MASS
ROY SCHEIDER
ALL THAT JAZZ
9 Academy Award Nominations
Fri-Sat (4:45 @ $1.50) 7:30-10:15
Sun-Thur (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
R
PETER SELLERS SHIRLEY MacLAINE
BEING THERE
Best Actor Nomination
Fri-Sat (4:30 @ $1.50) 7:15-9:55
Sun-Thur (5:45 @ $1.50) 8:30
Matinee (Sat, Sun) 1:45
PG
Joseph Wambaugh's
THE BLACK MARBLE
with Paula Prentiss
Fri-Sat (5:00 @ $1.50) 7:45-10:15
Sun-Thur (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
Matinee (Sat, Sun) 2:15
PG
IRWIN ALLEN's production of
When Time Ran Out...
Fri-Sat (4:45 @ $1.50) 7:30-9:55
Sun-Thur (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
Matinee (Sat, Sun) 2:00
PG

Alvin Toffler
Author of Future Shock
THE THIRD WAVE
In the midst of paralyzing confusion—a startling vision of hope. The Third Wave, bursting with hard facts and fresh ideas, brings them together in stunning synthesis. Once you catch its excitement, you'll never see yourself, your world—or your future—in the same way again.
$14.95
at "the bookstore"
in the campus center at umass
the UNIVERSITY STORE

Sports

Red Sox captain Carl Yastrzemski heads for first base after hitting a single in his first exhibition appearance yesterday in Winter Haven. (AP Laserphoto)

Baseball at SMU tourney

By JANE WOLFSON
Collegian Staff

Coming off a 2-4 showing during spring break, the UMass baeball team will open the northern swing of their season Saturday at the Southeastern Mass University tournament in North Dartmouth.

The Minutemen will be one of four teams competing in the tourney, along with The University of Maine, Sienna College and SMU. Sienna is the defending champion, having won the tournament the past two years. UMass finished with a 1-3 record last year, defeating the University of Rhode Island Rams, then losing to them and to SMU twice.

"The competition will be tough," Coach Dick Berquist said. "Our expectation is to win the tourney. I know we have the ability."

Although the tournament is double elimination, UMass is guaranteed to play two games Saturday and at least one Sunday. The Minutemen's first game will be against SMU.

The starting line-up will include, in the infield, either Mark Litano or Mike McEvily at first base, Sophomore Kelly McDonald at second, Vin Bonanno at short and Barry Bennett at third.

In the outfield, either Litano or Tom Grimes in left, McEvily or Grimes in center, and Doug Aylward in right. Behind the plate will be Jim Aulenback or senior Dave Oleksak. And on the mound for the Minutemen will be righthander Mark Brown.

Jim Degnim

All aboard

I was sitting in the Iron Horse in Boston a couple of weeks ago watching an episode of Bilingual Basketball Coach, you know, that White Shadow spinoff starring Pedro de la Cruz. I had just finished nursing my third grapefruit juice (straight) of the night, when my buddy Bob yanked on my jacket sleeve and motioned to the guy in the corner of the bar, saying he had someone he wanted me to meet.

"Jim, this is Eddie Kilcoyne. We went to BC together," Bob offered. Eddie was about 35, which figured since that's how old Bob is. When I asked him how business was, I didn't know what I was getting into.

"Whaddya mean, 'How's business?'", Bob interjected, "Eddie's with Auerbach Transit company. You know, the firm that went from near bankruptcy last year to being the leading transportation business in the country."

Eddie then gave me the Auerbach Transit company comeback story, at Bob's insistence, of course.

"The last couple of years," he began, "we really struggled. Business was at rock bottom. People just weren't riding our most important route anymore, the Celtics' bandwagon. People just didn't want to go where it was going. I think it was a bad route. Wicks Ave. and Skid Rowe are pretty run down areas of the city. It got so that the only people we had riding were a couple of kids from Savin Hill, you know, the kids who just ride for something to do."

I asked why the sudden turnaround.

"Well, we changed our route and started going to new areas of the city and some old ones that had been refurbished with some HUD grants. Our management got together and decided to have the route cover Bird Street. People really want to go there. You'd think it was Quincy Market or something. We also started serving Archibald Plaza, which used to be a real eyesore, but is beautiful now. That's one of the places that was rejuvenated under urban renewal. Thank God for HUD. When we were successful with those two new routes, we expanded our route to cover Cedric Street, Cowens Hill and Carr Boulevard. Right now, we're even thinking of expanding more and adding Maravich Heights to our route."

"Gee, things must be really good," I said.

"You bet," Eddie said, "especially when you realize that there was talk of the bandwagon dying last year. The management discussed that but we decided to stick it out. Now we're the most successful bandwagon in town."

I asked how fuel costs had affected the company.

"We've managed to reduce our fuel consumption," Eddie said. "We hired a bus driver from Cleveland who was famous for getting the maximum mileage out of what he had. He's done that for us." Bob, who had been debating the merits of the infield-fly rule with some Little League coach across the room for about an hour, returned and suggested that we leave. I said goodbye to Eddie and told him that his story was very interesting. On the way out, Bob asked me what I thought of Eddie.

I said that he told me how his company had really hit the jackpot.

"Did he give you that crap about the new route and the redeveloped areas," Bob asked.

"Yeah, why?" I responded.

"Well, that's garbage," Bob said, "The real reason they are doing better business is because they stopped serving that awful Kentucky fried chicken they had last year. Kids from Savin Hill wouldn't even take the stuff when they were giving it away at the end of last year."

Player reps, owners meet

By CHUCK MELVIN
AP Sports Writer

SCOTTSDALE, ARIZ. — Major league baseball owners "have admitted to me that they don't see any way to control each other," so they are seeking the support of the players' union to help keep salaries and costs down, the director of the players association said Thursday.

Players union boss Marvin Miller and Ray Grebey, the chief negotiator for the owners, met for a few minutes Thursday before recessing the bargaining until Sunday, which meant cancellation of talks that were to have been conducted on Friday.

The Federal Mediation and Conciliatory Service, at the owners' request, agreed Thursday to mediate the Sunday session which will be held in Palm Springs, Calif., said Kennedy E. Moffett, deputy director of the service.

Miller said the talks so far have been stalled by owners' demands that should not even be on the table.

Campus sports roundup

Volleyball all-stars

Four members of the UMass men's volleyball teams have been selected to play in the New England Collegiate Volleyball League all-star game this Sunday at Boston University.

Varsity co-captains Pat Ryan and Ed Midura and JV's Steve Geryk and Andreas Dahita were chosen by the NECVL for their season-long performances. Ryan and Midura led UMass, now preparing for the second half of its season, to a 4-1 record in Division One play, while Geryk and Dahita has helped the JVs to a winning record in Division Two.

"I'm very happy with the selections," said UMass coach Al Morel.

The All-Star game will follow a match between UMass and BU. For the varsity, BU will be the first game in over three weeks.

"We've had a problem of getting people to practices over the past few weeks," said Morel, "a lot of people have been out. However, I feel that the team, especially the varsity, has enough depth to pull us through the rest of the season."

The JVs will likewise come out of a long dry spell, as they face several Boston-area teams at the Yankee Invitational in Worcester on Saturday. Last playing on March 8, the JVs will join fellow Division Two teams Bryant College, Worcester Polytech, and Providence College, at Worcester.

—MAUREEN SULLIVAN

Korfball at UM

And now for something completely different.

The Dutch Korfball tourney team, led by coach Adri Zwaanswijk, will bring its show to the UMass North Physical Education Building gymnasium Friday, for a clinic on that sport at 1:30 p.m. Another clinic is scheduled for 7:30 p.m., at the Smith Vocational High School gym in Northampton.

Korfball is the "Dutch national sport of basketball," uses a ball similar to a soccer ball, and introduces baskets over eleven feet high. The sport is played with teams of four men and four women per side.

But while the game is played like basketball, it does not emphasize the need for height. Instead, Korfball is based on quickness, speed, skill, and execution.

The initial afternoon clinic is being sponsored by the UMass School of Physical Education/Department of Professional Preparation, and is the last stop on the team's six month, world-wide tour.

The event is free, and open to the public.

—SCOTT SOLOMON

Marino chosen

UMass freshman gymnast Liz Marino has qualified for the nationals and will travel to Baton Rouge, Louisiana April 4 and 5. Coach Virginia Evans said that Marino scored an average of 34.83 in all-around action during the recently completed season, and thus passed the 34.27 cutoff which is used to select participants.

Lisa Martin of UMass just missed qualifying, as she averaged 34.03. "We anticipate that Liz will exceed her seasonal average in the nationals," Evans said. "She'll be going against some tough competitors."

The top ten finishers in all-around in the nationals are accorded All-America status, Evans said, while the top eight finishers in the individual events also recieve the distiction, she said.

Wrestlers finish

The UMass varsity wrestling season was wrapped up during spring break with the Nationals in Corvallis, Oregon but for most of the matmen, wrestling is year-round. According to Head Coach Dave Amato, most of the guys will be wrestling in freestyle tournaments throughout the year. "The more you wrestle, the better off you are," he said.

Three UMie wrestlers placed first in the New Englands held March 1 and 2 at Rhode Island thus winning the chance to compete at Oregon State University. Heavyweight John Allen made his third trip to the Nationals and made quite a showing. Allen pinned fifth seed Chris Gardner of Auburn in the preliminary round with 52 seconds left in the bout. He was taken down by Iowa's Dean Phinney in the second round. Phinney went on to place third in the meet.

"It hurt Mike being his first time out, but he is only a junior and it is good to get out there young," Amato said.

158 pound Mike Carroll a junior and 190 pound senior Bill McQuaide each made their first trip to the Nationals. Both were defeated in round one, Carroll by the sixth seed in his division and McQuaide by the seventh seed.

32 schools compete in the Nationals, 32 wrestlers in each weight class that are the best in the nation. It is more than safe to say that Allen, Carroll and McQuaide are among the best.

Looking ahead, the trio along with most of the varsity squad and assistant Coach Dave Foxen will be wrestling at Harvard Saturday in the first Olympic trials. The top three in each weight class will go on to more trials in quest of making the Olympic team.

According to Amato, Foxen and Amato himself who wrestled last year, placed first in the tourney last year.

DONNA SULLIVAN

Slim Whitman: sometimes a legend

By MARK L. CURELOP
Collegian Staff

Who changes octaves while singing like a "10 ton Mack truck shifting gears"?

The answer is country western singer Slim Whitman.

A Collegian personal prompted two Southwest Residential Area women to publicize the famed artist's name. In bold letters, "Slim Whitman is coming" was placed in the ninth floor lounge window of Southwest dormitory John Quincy Adams.

"We saw the 'We hate Slim Whitman' personal then saw the commercial when we were home one weekend. It was the funniest thing to see that guy dressed in white singing in front of a fake red barn," said JQA ninth floor residents, Kim Belenger, and Elissa Sable.

Collegian cartoonist Danny Guidera said he started drawing his Slim Whitman character after reading the personals and seeing the late night television advertisement.

"I've been a devotee of his song ever since," said Guidera. "Anyone that sings songs then switches octaves like a 10 ton Mack truck shifting gears is not just bad, but wonderfully bad."

Guidera's "Nuke the Whale" comic strip has poked fun at the country singer during recent weeks. Gudera also said he will soon be selling Slim Whitman teeshirts.

It has been assumed that Union Program Council placed the personal in the Collegian for the booking of Slim Whitman for Spring Concert.

"That was not placed by UPC," a UPC sppokesperson said. "But, we will have some sort of representation of his music or personality at Spring Concert '80," he said.

However, the Slim Whitman craze has not been limited to the Amherst area. Other colleges and universities have reportedly contacted Slim Whitman's agent for booking purposes and have received a negative answer.

"[illegible] show will try to put together a package," the UPC spokesperson said.

Boston's radio station WHDH gave Slim Whitman albums to various callers during the week of March 10, on Eddie Andleman's Sports Huddle program. Station representatives could not be reached for comment.

As well, when this reporter visited Brockton radio station WCAV one disc jockey was humming Slim Whitman tunes before going on the air.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY

Collegian

VOLUME CIX, ISSUE 110 Student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst Monday, March 31, 1980

In Vernon, N-protest

By MARC FAGELSON
Collegian Staff

VERNON, VT.—A crowd of more than 1,000 moved silently toward the gates of the Vermont Yankee nuclear power plant here yesterday in an effort to halt traffic and force the plant's closing.

The demonstrators, organized by the Vermont Yankee decomissioning alliance and other anti-nuclear groups, numbered close to 1,200 at the peak of the afternoon, police said. Police began arresting the protestors just before 7 p.m. after much of the crowd had left.

Demonstrators were informed the police were acting with authority granted by the State of Vermont and were then asked to move or be arrested for trespassing. No one moved. Several demonstrators refused to walk and had to be carried. Most protestors said they would not cooperate with the authorities by giving their correct names.

The police force, which during the day numbered 70 state policemen, 50 county sheriffs from 11 Vermont counties, and five Vernon town Policemen, removed demonstrators one at a time. The police split up the more than 40 "affinity groups" present by taking one member from each in their first round of arrrests.

The arrests began when employees of the plant tried to drive through the gates after their day's work. Leaders of the "affinity groups" held a quick meeting to decide whether the demonstrators should allow the worker's vehicles to pass.

The group seemed ready to allow the vehicles to pass when the police began arresting some protesters. Many of the first demonstrators arrested were leaders of the "affinity groups."

Three UMass "affinity groups" were present at the rally: The "Wizards," "El

TURN TO PAGE 10

Protestors practice civil disobedience and prepare to be arrested outside the main gate of the Vernon Nuclear Power Plant this past Sunday. (Staff photo by Peter Jepsen)

Concert plans slowed

By ED LEVINE
Collegian Staff

Final plans for this year's Spring Concert, scheduled for May 10 in Alumni Stadium, are in limbo due to a dispute over whether guests will be allowed into the dormitories that weekend.

Earlier this month Marjorie Lenn, director of the Office of Residential Life, which runs the dormitories, issued a memorandum in which she urged the dorms be closed to guests from Thursday, May 8, through Sunday, May 11. Lenn also asked for extra security in the dorms for the weekend.

"Undue negative press" of the residence hall system, the rise in violence and vandalism at previous Spring Concert and Halloween weekends, the lack of money and staff and difficulty in determining who is responsible for damage done to dorms were some of the reasons cited by Lenn for this policy request.

The final decision on the residence halls, and the concert itself, will be made sometime today by Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis L. Madson who will pass his recommendations on to Chancellor Henry Koffler.

The decision to ask for no guests for the weekend was made at the conclusion of last year's concert, Lenn said last week.

"The residence hall system was on its tip-toes for 72 hours straight. All staff was working on a 24 hour basis," Lenn said. "We went on record that we would rather not see a spring concert again, given what happened."

Lenn said adverse publicity about the residence halls and the University in Boston Magazine, The Boston Globe, Rolling Stone and other publications "exasperated" the situation.

"I think the residence halls are overreacting," Arthur Edelstein Union Program talent coordinator said last week. "We have been presented no facts supporting this decision," he said.

Edelstein said ORL has also asked for $50,000 from UPC to pay for dorm security, whether they are opened or closed. Last year UPC paid $2,500 for security and Edelstein said they had counted on paying $5,000 for security costs this year. "We can't comply with either the no guest policy or the extra cost," he said.

Edelstein said several bands are being considered for the concert, but 14,000 guest tickets would have to be sold at $15 a piece to afford a major act.

Only 10 percent of the cost of the concert is paid for from student fees and the guest tickets need to be sold to subsidize the show. If the dorms are closed to guests

TURN TO PAGE 10

40 slain in San Salvador

A man, armed with a pistol, runs from a burning car as another, left background, throws a Molotov cocktail, in violence that erupted during Archbishop Romero's funeral yesterday in San Salvador. At least four persons died, scores injured.

By GORDON MOTT
Associated Press

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — An explosion and gunfire touched off panic among an estimated 50,000 persons gathered yesterday for an outdoor funeral Mass for slain Archbishop Oscar Arnulfo Romero. At least 40 persons were known killed, most of them crushed in the fleeing crowd, but witnesses said at least seven suffered bullet wounds.

Medical sources said some 226 other persons were injured. They were in the huge throng that jammed the downtown Cathedral Square where the funeral Mass was to have been performed.

"There was total panic," said the Rev. Ricardo Uriste, acting archbishop of San Salvador.

Several cars in the downtown area were overturned and burned, and gunshots, bomb explosions and automatic weapons fire could be heard as a new wave of violence engulfed the capital city in the hours after the incident.

A military bulletin broadcast early yesterday evening over a national radio and television network said the army was being sent out to "restore order."

TURN TO PAGE 10

DIGEST

ABOVE MOUNT ST. HELENS—Mount St. Helens erupts yesterday morning. The mountain is located about 45 miles northeast of Portland. The 9,677-foot peak had been a dormant volcano for more than a century until several days ago. (AP Laserphoto)

New crater at volcano

COUGAR, Wash. (AP) — Geologists flying over erupting Mount St. Helens reported Sunday the appearance of a second crater on the cone of the volcano with eerie blue lightning arcing between it and the first.

The 9,677-foot snow-covered peak in southwestern Washington had been mostly shrouded in clouds since it began erupting Thursday, in the first such display in the contiguous United States since 1917.

New bill helps savers

WASHINGTON (AP) — With his signature today, President Carter sets in motion a slew of reforms that should help small savers battle inflation and change the way banks and thrift institutions do business.

The bill — called the most significant banking legislation since World War II — will phase out over six years all limits on the amount of interest banks and thrift institutions can pay savers.

This will be particularly helpful to small savers who rely on passbook accounts, which currently pay only 5.5 percent at thrift institutions and 5.25 percent at commercial banks.

The legislation encourages — but does not require — a special board of federal regulators to increase passbook interest rates by at least 2.25 percentage points during the next six years.

China, Mass. to trade

PEKING (AP) — China is eager to trade with Massachusetts companies, enter into joint ventures with them and sell Chinese products abroad, according to the head of China's Council for International Trade.

Wang Yaoting, chairman of the China Council for Promotion of International Trade, made the comments to Lt. Gov. Thomas P. O'Neill and a delegation of 20 businessmen and state officials.

David Colem, O'Neill's chief of staff, said Wang emphasized China is eager to sell as well as to buy from abroad. In a meeting Saturday, O'Neill said Massachusetts businesses think they can work with China in furthering its program of modernization.

Who are CIA covers?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A member of the House Intelligence Committee says he has asked CIA Director Stansfield Turner to say clearly whether the agency has used the religious or academic professions as "covers" for overseas spying.

Turner told the committee in a recent letter that the agency had waived its own rule against using employees of American news media three times during the Carter administration, Rep. Les Aspin said yesterday.

Deputy CIA Director Frank Carlucci earlier had told the Senate Intelligence Committee that those waivers did not lead to actual operations and that "there was no use of journalists."

"But Turner's letter was silent about any dealings with other groups such as clergymen and teachers," said Aspin, DWis.

In order to protect important institutions from possible compromise, Aspin said in a press release, CIA rules generally forbid masking of CIA agents as American journalists, clergy, educators or members of the Peace Corps or congressional staffs. But Turner can waive those regulations.

Two freed in Bogata

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Guerrillas holding hostages in the Dominican Republic Embassy yesterday released two of their 29 captives seized in the embassy takeover more than a month ago.

Among the 27 still held in the embassy is U.S. Ambassador Diego Asencio.

The two freed are not diplomats. A Foreign Ministry source identified them as Simon Rodriguez, a magistrate from the Cundinamarca region, and Jorge Valencia, publisher of the magazine Mundo Diplomatico (Diplomatic World).

They were taken by police to a military hospital to be examined.

The men came around the corner at the head of the deadend street leading to the embassy at about 5:30 p.m (6:30 p.m. EST). Reporters watching from a roped-off area about 100 yards away said the men were pushing a red Volkswagen that had been parked near the embassy.

The vehicle was pushed to one side of the military command post around the corner from the embassy and was thoroughly searched by military police, who declined to say why the Volkswagen had been used.

The two men went inside the command post and then entered another car parked outside and were driven away.

5,000 Afghans killed

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — More than 5,000 Afghans, many of them civilians, have been killed since mid-March in fierce fighting in Laghman Province in the eastern part of Afghanistan, according to a report received Sunday from the Afghan capital of Kabul.

The report, provided by a source who has proved reliable in the past, quoted residents of the province as saying Russian forces were pursuing rebels with MI-24 helicopter gunships, then bombing and napalming villages believed harboring anti-government guerrillas.

Residents reaching Kabul said most Laghman rebels have left towns and villages there for hastily constructed mountain hideouts, the source said.

Afghan President Babrak Karmal was quoted Sunday as denying reports that Soviet forces were using poison gas and other sophisticated weaponry against the Moslem Afghan guerrillas.

In an interview with the West German news magazine Der Spiegel, Karmal also claimed there were fewer than 15,000 Soviet troops in Afghanistan. Western sources have placed the figure around 80,000.

Privacy laws may be relaxed

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Administration officials are debating whether a law protecting the privacy of income tax records should be relaxed so that tax agents can get back into investigations of organized crime.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee, already has proposed four amendments to the 1976 Tax Reform Act, but White House, Justice Department and Treasury Department officials have not yet decided whether to endorse those bills or to draft their own.

Justice Department officials are particularly eager for a change because they believe the law has handicapped scores of investigations of organized crime, white collar crime, narcotics trafficking and public corruption.

Nunn's view is shared by the committee's ranking Republican, Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois.

Mobsters and smugglers have been "the main beneficiaries of the Tax Reform Act as applied and interpreted by the Internal Revenue Service," Nunn said. "Our bills would change that situation while at the same time keeping the most important safeguards of taxpayer privacy."

The act prohibits the IRS from offering tax returns, other taxpayer records, and information obtained in its own investigations to other government agencies, including the Justice Department, FBI and Drug Enforcement Administration.

Criminal investigators may obtain tax records from the IRS only after proving to a court that the information is vital to the case and cannot be obtained any other way.

Congress will tackle budget

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The thorny issue of the budget is comming up in congressional committees this week but it won't reach the floor of Congress until after a 10-day Easter recess.

The House Rules Committee will meet this afternoon to set procedures for floor consideration $611.8 billion 1981 budget calling for a $2 billion surplus.

The measure will not reach the floor until after the lawmakers return on April 14 from the recess scheduled to begin Thursday.

In the Senate Budget Committee, meanwhile, arguments over whether to increase permitted spending in the current fiscal year have delayed action on how to balance the buget for fiscal 1981, which begins Oct. 1.

Carter had called for cutting the 1981 budget that he had submitted in January as part of his plan to battle inflation. He presented a proposed list of budget cuts to key members of Congress on Thursday although they will not be formally submitted until Monday.

The list seeks $15 billion in cuts from the original budget of $616 billion, which had a $15.8 billion deficit.

Carter's draft registration program remained stalled in the House Appropriations Committee and also appeared likely to stay in committee at least until after the recess because of problems in coming up with the money for it.

Meanwhile, the House is scheduled to take up on Monday a bill providing a $75-million federal loan to compensate employes of the bankrupt Rock Island Railroad in the Midwest in order to ease the way for its sale.

Farmer asks for help

By MAUREEN DEA
Associated Press

MONTICELLO, Maine — Potato farmer Michael Brown dumped a load of potatoes at the U.S.-Canadian border crossing in Houlton during the recent farmers' blockade, but stayed behind to shovel them up "because I didn't want to leave a mess."

"We're not criminals," says the 48-year-old Brown, at his farm the day after promises of help from the Carter aitration ended the three-day protest. "We've just got our backs against the wall and we've got to get some help."

" No way do I want a handout," he said. It's just a fair shake, that's all we want."

Brown and his wife, Joyce, now plant about 60 acres of potatoes on the 160-acre farm where he grew up in the small northern Maine town of Monticello. An American flag hangs from the garage of their white ranch house, which the couple and their five children built in 1964.

A few years ago 15 potato farmers lived along their road.

Only four are left today.

Michael Brown, a tall man with piercing blue eyes and a face weathered by years in the sun, gazes out the kitchen picture window at his fields.

Maine potato farmers protested U.S. import of Canadian potatoes through the weekend by blocking border crossing gates with truckloads of potatoes in the vehicle passage ways. (AP Laserphoto)

"I'm happy here," says Brown, who likes to be called Farmer Brown. "I lose my identity when I leave the farm."

"There's no better occupation in the world, if we could just live with a little dignity," he says.

Brown, one of 19 elected members of the Maine Potato Council, says he and Joyce have always been active in community afairs "but poverty and financial problems have really distracted us."

One of their adult sons, David, would like to farm "but he can't afford it" and works on a road construction crew instead.

"Dave says in the spring of the year, when it's the time to plant, he goes crazy," Joyce says. "It's like a calling."

U.S. denies letter

By The Associated Press

Iranian officials insisted yesterday they had received a conciliatory message from President Carter and said the White House disclaimed it because of domestic political problems.

The message Carter allegedly sent revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini called for an international commission to resolve issues between the two countries, but said the panel should not meet before the release of 50 Americans who yesterday spent their 148th day as hostages inside the occupied U.S. Embassy.

Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said if Carter acknowledged the purported message, which cited mistakes in previous U.S. policy toward Iran, it would help in "reducing tension and resolving differences between Iran and the United States."

Ghotbzadeh told a Tehran news conference that Iranian President Abolhassan BaniSadr received a similar message from Carter yesterday, "which indicates the continuation of such a dialogue in messages."

A top U.S. official, who asked not to be identified, said the reported message "was a fabrication." He said he did not know where it originated and that it did not represent the views of President Carter or his administration.

On Saturday, White House spokesman Jody Powell told reporters: "The president sent no message to Khomeini," and denied that any U.S. government official had communicated with Iranian authorities.

However, Swiss Foreign Ministry spokesman Hansjoerg Renk said in a telephone interview from his house near Bern that a Swiss Embassy official in Tehran had "transmitted a message from President Carter to Bani-Sadr. This took place some five days ago."

He said the Swiss ambassador in Tehran, Erik Long, delivered a second letter to Bani-Sadr yesterday. Renk said the Swiss government did not know the content of the communication. "We acted merely as a go-between, as a postman," he said. "Postmen do not read the letters they deliver."

Ghotbzadeh, questioned on the ABC television program "Issues and Answers," said the alleged message "wasn't a written, signed letter." He said it had been "passed orally," and added: "I firmly believe that this message was that of President Carter."

Bani-Sadr, Ghotbzadeh and Khomeini's son Ahmad said the letters admitted alleged U.S. foreign policy mistakes, fulfilling one of three conditions set by Bani-Sadr for the release of the hostages.

Former Irish Foreign Minister Sean McBride, who unsuccessfully tried to mediate the crisis last December, said he met with Iranian officials in Tehran during the weekend.

Workers vote to retain union

By SARAH HAMMANN
Collegian Staff

Classified employees at the University retained the University Staff Association Union as its bargaining body by a vote of 497 to 372 in Thursday and Friday's election.

In two days of steady balloting at the Memorial Hall polls, some 1,200 clerical, technical, secretarial and related staff "delivered a resounding statement of 'no thanks' to paternalistic, arbitrary and discriminatory practices of University mangement," said Union President Carol Rhodes, in a press release.

"I am not really surprised. The Massachusetts Teacher Association had the machinery," commented William Marcoullier, head of the Union decertification drive.

The University Staff Association Union is a part of the Massachusetts Teachers Association and the National Education Association and will continue to represent University employees.

Marcoullier had circulated a petition to decertify the union in April 1979. He quickly collected the signatures required of 30 percent of the union members, and by the election, had collected another 20 percent.

Last week's election was the "result of a challenge mounted by some 'more favored' classified employees who urged a return to the good old days when the terms and conditions of our employment were determined totally at the whim and will of various supervisors," Rhodes said.

The extension of the University Clerical Union's contract marks the second union victory within three days. The University maintenance workers voted in the AFSCME Union last Wednesday.

"I am pleased to announce that the classified employees' solid vote to retain USA-MTA/NEA as their bargaining agent has dealt a third blow to the University's union-busting policies," said Union Membership Secretary Lynn Washburn in a press bulletin.

Marcoullier said he felt the vote was a moral victory, but declined to comment on the possibility of resurrecting the decertification movement.

Micha Archer welcomes a black lamb to the family at her brother's sheep farm in Leverett this past weekend. (Staff photo by Wayne Rosenberg)

Applause for 'Applause'

By DEBBIE WALLACE
Collegian Staff

Why do they dance their asses off and sing with the emotional intensity and spirit of Broadway actors? For our applause.

Applause was the only appropriate response to the UMass Music Theater Guild's energetic, gripping and uplifting production of the backstage musical "Applause".

This Broadway look-behind-the-footlights, written by the team of Betty Comden and Adolph Green, is the story of Margo Channing, an aging stage and screenstar with a thrashing tongue who is backstabbed by the sweet young woman who supposedly adores her. Eve Harrington, a scheming opportunist, connives her way into Margo's life in order to snag a leading role. She attempts to steal Margo's glory, fame, boyfriend, and playwright. She begins by first becoming a fastidious secretary caring for Margo's every whim.

"Applause" was an important notch for Lauren Bacall who won a Tony for Best Actress in 1970 for her portrayal of the bold and spirited Margo Channing. Denise M.E. Boutin achieved a height of acting excellence for her outstanding portrayal of Margo. She expertly displayed a wide range of cunning, sarcastic, tender and bittersweet emotions. Boutin's clear melodic voice and humorous but wry gestures acheived a quality that can only lead to further theatrical success. The few moments she failed to project her singing voice were easily overlooked because of her almost flawless performance.

The chorus of "Applause" portrayed Broadway Gypsies—dancers who float from show to show. Led by the talented Dorian Ferrarri Lerner, the dynamic chorus brought the imaginative choreography exuberantly alive. The mixture of the well-ensembled dancing, coupled with catchy music and lyrics, provide a "can't-miss" formula. The chemistry would have been as perfect as Boutin and Lerner if the orchestra had not been paingully off-key. The orchestra needed either ardent music drills or only a few instruments that were not flat. The powerful effect strived for by the orchestra failed miserably, yet the chorus and choice performers were able to overcome this handicap.

Margo Channing becomes afraid she will lose her producer-boyfriend Bill Sampson to a younger woman when he goes on location with his latest film. Her fears are almost realized when Eve enters the picture. Tony Magner as Bill Sampson, while not as consistently spirited as Boutin, provided a youthful counterpart for his feisty woman. Magner had frequent projection problems with singing, yet the combination of the dreamy lyrics and his beautiful voice made you want to strain your ear.

Johanna S. Brockelman as Eve Harrington was a bit too sweet to swallow. Eve playfully seduces her way to the top and manages to get a few of Margo's friends on her side. She attempts to lure Bill into her trap, unsuccessfully. Brockelman was cute enough, but her acting ability did not match that of Boutin. Her singing voice was good, but her gestures appeared to be much too fixed and her voice was often singsong.

Scott Cunningham as Margo's hairdresser and confidante provided an added comic element. Cunningham's gestures and facial expressions and all around stage presence were excellent.

The other disastrous elements in "Applause" were the many complicated set changes. The Broadway production was able to solve this problem with a highly mechanized set. In this production, jangling props and furniture became annoying, but the audience needed to be tolerant while periodically shuffling in their seats and attempt to ignore the interruptions in the flow. It is worth the tolerance.

Despite the flaws, the music and lyrics are extemely catchy, and the voices are so clear and harmonious that each song achieved a new level of humor or sentiment. "Applause" was an overall success. Come alive and experience "Applause".

"Applause" will continue at UMass Bowker Auditorium in Stockbridge Hall, Thurs. April 3 and Fri. April 4 at 8 p.m.

Margo Channing (Denise M.E. Boutin, right) and her producer-boyfriend Bill Sampson (Tony Magner, left), woo each other and the audience of the UMass Music Theater Guild's current production of "Applause". (Staff photo by Chris Grewe)

Census now being distributed

By LAURA OWENS
Collegian Staff

The twentieth Decennial Census of Population and Housing will officially begin tomorrow, April 1 1980, and is expected to count approximately 222 million people and 86 million housing units.

Every household will receive a questionnaire to fill out and return at the government's expense. Questionnaires will also be delivered to empty buildings, hotels, motels, bus stations, jail houses and even all-night movie theaters in an effort to reach everyone. Those who do not mail back the completed form by April 16 will be visited by an enumerator who will obtain the information at their door. A fine of $500 to $1000 may also be levied on anyone who refuses to comply.

According to Daniel McConnell, the district manger for the Federal Bureau of the Census located in Springfield, the procedure for distributing the forms will be through the postal service, with each household having the form delivered directly to their door on the postal route.

According to Jerry Grady, UMass Community Affairs Director, the policy for university areas is somewhat different. At UMass, student employees will be given the forms to distribute two in every mailbox in each of the 49 dormitories.

A national headcount has never been easy and the Constitutional purpose of the census has not changed since the very first enummeration in 1790: to provide the basis for fair apportionment of the states of seats in the House of Representatives.

In recent years the trend has been a shift in population from the Snowbelt to the Sunbelt consequently resulting in a shift in seats in the House. This year could see a total shift of 14 seats. If not done with full cooperation, the 1980 Census may mean Massachusetts cannot retain the current number of seats.

Presently, McConnell said, Massachusetts has enough people for 12 or 13 representatives; there are now 12. The 1980 Census will determine whether or not the state looses one.

Over $50 billion is dispensed through the nation in over 100 federal programs based on the census. Losing a seat in the House would not only mean a redistribution of votes in the electoral college but also a reallocation of funds for nationwide programs. Census data directly influences decisions on matters such as ecomonics, employment, the need for health services, energy and education.

On a local level, Amherst is classified as "Special Place," according to Grady, because the majority of residents are students. Students are not counted on their parents forms and therefore it is entirely up to them to complete and return the census.

"My concern has been in seeing that every student fills one out and turns it in," said Grady. "Count determines legal representation. No student will be counted at their permanent home address. It is the student's responsability and I can't stress that enough."

When 1 percent of the population fails to return their form on time and requires an enummerator's visit, it will cost the taxpayer $two million in follow-up measures.

By cooperating with the census and completing the questionier, Massachusetts can avoid a cutback in federal money and also the loss of a seat in the House and with it legal representation, McConnell said.

Happy Passover
Greetings to all our Jewish friends.

KITCHEN HELP FROM
EKCO ETERNA
This week's feature pieces:
Kitchen Tool Fork 2 for $1 — With each $3 food purchase
Flatware Soupspoon 3 for $1 — With each $3 food purchase

Kielbasa Sale!
Polish Style Sausage
Tobins Kielbasa $1.89 lb
Hillshire Kielbasa $1.89 lb
Colonial Kielbasa $1.79 lb
Thorn's Kielbasa $1.79 lb

self service deli save!
Available in stores featuring a service deli
1 lb. pkg. Stop & Shop Bacon Reg. $1.09
Maple or Thick Slice
Extra Mild Franks 1.19
Meat Bologna 1.19

corner deli Italian Specials!
Natural Casing $3.79 lb
Carando Brand Genoa Salami $2.99 lb
Artificial Casing
Danish Cookies $2.29
Carando Pepperoni 2.99
Mortadella 1.89
Provolone Cheese 2.29
Potato Salad .49
Corn Beef 3.99
Stop & Shop Tuna Salad 2.29
Jarlsberg Cheese 3.29
Aged Provolone 2.89

frozen meats Top brands!
Country fine Herbs n' Butter Cooked Chicken 99¢ lb or Homestyle
Macaroni Salad .59

our kitchen Quality foods
Steak-Umm Sandwich Steaks $2.29
14 Ounce pkg
Rath Sausage Meat .69
Maid Rite Veal Steak $1.49

seafood Quality comes first!
Fresh Haddock Fillets $2.79 lb
Everybody's favorite!
Fresh Rainbow Trout 2.39
Fresh Smelts 1.39
Fresh Oysters 1.79
Fresh Cod Fillets $1.99 lb
Fresh-caught flavor
Matlaw Clams 1.79
Mini Fish Cakes 1.29
Cooked Shrimp 3.99
Colossal Shrimp 9.59
Taste O' Sea 3 for $2.59

Stop & Shop Coupon
SAVE 25¢
STOP & SHOP MUENSTER CHEESE
Monterey Jack or Domestic Bars
Slices or Chunk, Random Weight .265
Good Mon. Mar. 31 Sat. April 5. Limit one per customer
Dairy
Prices effective Mon. March 31 Sat. April 5, 1980

4 - 6 Bud Easter Lilies 5½ inch pot pot Foil Wrapped 4.99 ea.
Orange Tiger Lilies 7 inch Pot Foil Wrapped $6.99
Bi - colored Tulip Plant 6 inch Foil Wrapped Pot 4.99 ea.
Mum Plant 5 inch pot Foil Wrapped $3.99
Flower Bouquet 2.49
Choice of colors Mum Plant 6 inch Foil Wrapped Pot 4.99 ea.
Double Cymbidium Orchid Corsage $3.99
Orchid Corsage Single 2.99
Pink or Red Azalea Plant 4½ inch Foil Wrapped Pot 2.99 ea.
HYDRANGEA PLANT 5 Foil Wrapped Pot 4.99
HYACINTHS 4.99
Begonias 2.49

Stop & Shop — Honest values are what we're all about

Festive Easter Foods
Everything for a memorable family feast!

U.S. Grade "A" Turkeys Fresh 10-13 lbs. 65¢ lb
Plump, tender birds in the most popular size. Get an extra one to enjoy later!
Butterball Turkeys Swift's Deep Basted 12-20lbs. Frozen 79¢ lb
U.S. Grade "A" Turkeys Frozen 10-20 lbs. 65¢ lb
Armour Gold Star Turkeys 12-14 lbs. Frozen 69¢ lb

USDA Choice Beef Rib Roast Large End 4th thru 7th Ribs $1.99 lb
Beef Rib Roast Small End 1st 3 Ribs $2.59 lb
Rump Roast Beef Round USDA Choice $2.29 lb
Beef Eye Round Roast Seamed USDA Choice $2.59 lb

Cooked Hams Shank Portion 69¢ lb — water added
Rump Portion 79¢ lb
Semi-Boneless Ham Colonial Cooked water added $1.59 lb
Hormel Cure #81 Boneless Ham $2.79 lb
Cooked Ham Stop & Shop Vacuum Packed Shank Portion Extra Trim, Water Added (Rump Portion $1.09 lb) 99¢ lb

3 lb Canned Ham Stop & Shop $4.99
Cudahy Bar S 5lb Canned Ham $7.59 ea
Krakus Polish Ham 3 Pound Can Imported $7.59 ea
Rath Smoked Ham Hickory 3lb Can $6.99 ea

plenty of values!
26% Ground Beef Apprx 3 lb Chub $1.59 lb
*Not more than 26% fat
USDA Choice Beef Rib Steak $2.49 lb
4th - 7th Rib, Large End
Beef Bottom Round Steak USDA Choice $2.19 lb
Beef Round Cube Steak USDA Choice $2.49 lb
White Gem Fresh Whole Chicken Breast With Rib $1.19 lb

Pick & Choose the Produce that's Perfect for You!
Fresh Florida Strawberries 69¢ pint
California Seedless Navel Oranges Mammoth size 48 6 for $1
"Jet Fresh" Hawaiian 6 size Dole Pineapples $1.49 ea
Fresh Crisp Celery Hearts 49¢
Fresh Large 48 size Artichokes 3 for $1
Fresh Large Fancy Mushrooms $1.69 lb
Fresh Yams or Sweet Potatoes 33¢ lb

Pillsbury Flour 5 Pound Bag All Purpose 69¢
Durkee Coconut 7 Ounce Package 79¢
Fruit Cocktail Stop & Shop 16 ounce can in syrup 2 for $1
Ocean Spray Cranberry Sauce 16 ounce can Jellied or Whole 3 for $1
Stop & Shop Small Peas Very small. Young 16 ounce can 3 for $1
Star-kist White Tuna Solid in Oil or Water. 7 ounce can 99¢
Penn Dutch Mushroom Pieces & Stems. 4 oz. can 2 for 89¢
Pepsi Cola Regular Diet or Light 64 ounce bottle plus deposit 99¢
Viva Napkins Package of 140 Assorted or Decoration 59¢
Hot Cross Buns Package of 10 15oz. pkg. 99¢
Aqua-fresh Toothpaste 6.4 ounce tube 99¢
Pillsbury Bread Mix 6½ oz pkg Date, Cranberry, Banana, Cherry Nut or Bl. Berry Nut 99¢
Royal Gelatin Assorted Flavors 6 Ounce Package 3 for $1
Stop & Shop Pineapple 20 ounce can Crushed Sliced or Crushed in Juice 59¢
Gloria Olives Green Thrown Stuffed 5 Ounce Jar 59¢
Stop & Shop Corn Cream Style or Whole Kernel 16oz can 4 for $1
Hunts Prima Salsa Spaghetti Sauce-Meat, Plain, or Mushroom. 32oz jar 99¢
Penn Dutch Noodles Fine, Medium or Broad 16 ounce package 69¢
Nabisco Fig Newtons 16 ounce package 99¢
Ronzoni Lasagna 16 ounce package 59¢
Variety Breads Stop & Shop Cracked Wheat, Italian or Plain Rye, 16oz Loaves 2 for $1
Flex Shampoo or Conditioner. 3 varieties. 16 ounce bottle 99¢

frozen foods Stock your freezer with famous brands!
Sun Glory Orange Juice Frozen. Fresh Concentrate 12 ounce can 69¢
Taste O'Sea Platter Seafood. 9 ounce package $1.29
Buitoni Ravioli Meat or Cheese 15 ounce package $1.09
Chock Full O'Nuts Pound Cake. Regular or Marble. 8 ounce package 79¢
Stop & Shop Vegetables Peas, Corn, Mixed Cut Green Beans or French Style. 10oz pkg 3 for $1
Celeste Cheese Pizza 19 ounce package $1.69
Newton Acres Strawberries 10 ounce package 99¢
All Natural Ice Cream Stop & Shop ½ Gallon Container $1.79 dairy Fresh foods for your feast

Hood Orange Juice or Stop & Shop half Gallon Container 99¢
Kraft Philadelphia Cream Cheese 8 ounce package 79¢
Stop & Shop Sour Cream 16 Ounce Cup 69¢
Calabro Ricotta Whole Milk or Part Skim 3 Pound Container $2.99
Cheese Food Slices Individually Wrapped. White or Yellow Stop & Shop 16oz pkg $1.29
Blue Bonnet Margarine 1 pound package quarters 2 for $1
Cottage Cheese Stop & Shop. Small, Large or Low fat, 1 lb container 79¢
Sweet N'Low Yogurt Lowfat 4 Flavors 8 ounce cup 3 for $1

HADLEY-AMHERST Route 9 at the Hadley-Amherst Line.
8a.m.-10p.m., Mon.-Sat. We redeem your Federal Food Stamps.

Editorial/Opinion

Of guns and butter

EVERETT HARMAN

I recently looked through an issue of Guns and Ammo magazine a friend had given me, and was repelled by photos of hunters triumphantly standing over the carcasses of what had shortly before been beautiful, bounding, graceful animals. I do not regard hunting as a sport. It is too one-sided. A hunter stalking an animal with a high-powered rifle and telescopic sights is about as sporting a contest as Mohammed Ali versus the cookie monster. If the hunter had only rocks and spears at least she would have to be in excellent physical condition in order to pursue her prey and would have to have highly developed skills in order to get close enough to launch a deadly missile. Due to modern technology the hunter is often a beer-bellied slob who stays just sober enough to lay a set of crosshairs on a creature far enough away not to smell the alcohol.

The magazine also contains photos of men dressed up like cowboys and outlaws sporting replicas of various shootin' irons of the old west. It's a nostaligia for the good old days when men were men and women were women, and the only law was the business end of a .45 Colt revolver.

Most of the publication's articles concern the testing of weapons and ammunition. The handgun evaluations particularly emphasize "defensive" qualities, which is to say the gun's effectiveness in killing people. Articles discuss things such as the spread characteristics of a bullet for maximum destructiveness to a living body, penetration and manstopping power. (I guess they could stop women also.) There is a regular column called "Survive" which predicts a period of crisis and total anarchy in our nation within the near future. Readers are couseled to set up a cabin deep in the wilderness which would serve as a survival center and miniortress for a small group of trusted friends who could, with the proper weaponry, fend off "mobs, semi-organized gangs of looters or even well organized paramilitary bands of outlaws." Shades of the O.K. Corral. Have we been watching too many cowboy and police movies and television programs? It seems as if there are many people in this country who fear an uprising of the urban masses, led by minority groups and welfare recipients, who would seek to rape, pillage, and plunder among those who have built America.

A monthly feature in the magazine is entitled "The Right to Keep and Bear Arms". This refers to the Second Amendment of the U.S. Constitution which states:

"A well regulated Militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bears Arms shall not be infringed."

The columnist supports free ownership of any kind of firearm including pistols, submachine guns and selective fire assault rifles. I can picture what the New York City subway system might look like...People getting on the train with .45's strapped to their legs and automatic rifles slung over their shoulders. The headlines might read—"Waitress Blows Away 5 Thugs in Transit Shootout."

Despite the obvious hazards of easy gun availability, I must strongly voice my opinion in favor of the right to keep and bear arms. It is a right which protects us from potential tyranny of government. While there may be rationale for restricting the use of handguns, I feel that an individual should be able to buy a rifle without any registration or licensing requirements, since a list of names and addresses of all those owning guns would enable a despotic government to take them away. While the ability of the people to take extra-governmental armed action may seem unnecessary now, it might not seem so in the future, as worldwide economic forces place great pressure on our democratic system. The ultimate check of a government gone awry is the ability of the people to defend their rights by physical force if need be.

Everett Harman is a Collegian columnist.

Building names bear built-in racism

In 1968 Professor Frank Houn sponsored a move to name the University Library after the Reverend Martin Luther King. The Faculty Senate approved and the measure died on the Chancellor's desk. Last year Mr. Stanley Kinard wrote to Mr. Joseph Healy, chairperson of the Board of Trustees, in regards to naming the Fine Arts Center after Duke Ellington and the University Library after W.E.B. DuBois. He received no reply.

And so it remains that there are no buildings on this campus named after people of colour.

What are the criteria for naming a building on campus? According to the policy written on February 6, 1974 by Franklin Patterson, former secretary to the Board of Trustees at UMass, (whose name is also ascribed to a building at Hampshire College) the criteria are as follows:

"1) that the present policy of naming buildings only for those individuals who are no longer living be continued,"

(Mr. Patterson did not seem to hold to fast to this rule in regards to the building named in his honour).

"2) that where the naming of a building for an individual might tend to confuse the public as to its purpose, the generic name could be used (examples—The Medical School, U/M Worcester, and the University Library, U/M Amherst), 3) that major halls and theaters in buildings be named as well as the buildings themselves, 4) that suggestions for naming buildings be accepted from individuals" (Principal Administrative Officers) "only and not from organizations" (students) "and 5) that the campuses be briefed on the proper procedure for submitting suggestions for the names to the Committee."

All the above criteria can be met. Both Duke Ellington and W.E.B. DuBois are dead. They are also both immortal. Both of them are associated with the function of the buildings that will assume the respective names. The fourth criteria is the simplest to meet. If a principle administrative officer, the Chancellor and the appropriate committee give their approval through initiation, recommendation and approval then the buildings will be so named.

So what can we do to help the administration make the right decision? Simply name the buildings ourselves. Since the power of oppression rests on ignorance, we can rename the buildings and start learning about W.E.B. DuBois and Duke Ellington. In learning about the racism that these people endured throughout their lives we can start to fathom some of the racism that we are inextricably linked to. And this is important.

How do we rename these buildings? Use your imagination. Refer to these buildings from now on as the Duke Ellington Fine Arts Center and the W.E.B. DuBois Library. Address mail and checks for tickets with the name Duke Ellington Fine Arts Center. Organizations which sponsor events at the Duke Ellington Fine Arts Center (such as the Fine Arts Center Concerts, UMass Arts Council, Union Program Council and the University Ensemble Theatre) should take the inaitive to use the new name in their programs. In the meantime we could hold our own dedication ceremonies. These ceremonies could include music and games that unite, workshops and even fastening appropriate bronze placques to the buildings. W.E.B. DuBois's papers, the largest collection of personal papers in the world, have been recently dedicated to the library. Why not dedicate the building to him?

If all of the above ideas and any others that people could think of were not to bring about desired results, then I think it a necessary expedient for the faculty and the students to close down the school. This is not simply in relation to the naming of two buildings, but relates to the larger issues of racism, sexism and the myriad of problems that the Chancellor's Committee on Civility and Human Relations has been given the task of overcoming. By closing down the school we could come together without the school's imposed boundaries hindering communication.

Any combination of the above strategies will help to bring us together on things that affect us deeper than we may be willing to admit.

G. Ara Jundanian
School of Education
University of Massachusetts

Letters

Cutting up the Shah

Dear Editor:

It should by now be apparent to the Iranian militants that they aren't going to get the Shah back in one piece. Perhaps a reasonable ratio of exchange could now be negotiated—Shah parts for hostages. One spleen for two hostages, three gallstones for two hostages, one pint of blood for one hostage, etc. If this approach had been taken initially, the crisis would be half resolved by now. However, it is never too late, especially when one considers the many possibilities for creative surgery. I wonder what his appendix is worth?

Cathy Hancock
Grayson

Aaa-iiiieeeee!!!

To the Editor:

Whenever a man as incredible as Slim Whitman arises in a conversation, we tend to forget that there is at least one other artist in this elite class. I'm talking, of course, about the internationally renowned Roger Whittaker.

Now here is a man who has to is credit such unforgettable titles as "Mammy Blue," "There's a Ship Out in the Harbour," "Old Durham Town," and "You are so Beautiful," just to name a few. This man, appearing in concert, has actually brought people to tears. His dramatic delivery and overwhelming skill make him one of the world's most popular acts, as indicated by his massive album sales.

Although Slim is truly one of the world's greatest legends, Roger Whittaker is also a force to be reckoned with. He is, without a doubt, a classic artist who will go down in history as a major asset to the world of entertainment.

John Intorcio
JQA

Research lacking

To the Editor:

Apparently, Robert Humphrey is not as dedicated a Kinks fan as he claims. The song he claims was not previously recorded by the Kinks, but was played at their concert is entitled "Prince of the Punks." This song can be found on the flipside of an obscure Kinks single called "Father Christmas" (Arista-AS0296), which was released in 1977.

Perhaps Mr. Humphrey should have done a better job of doing his homework. Long live the Kinks!

Paul Wykes
Field

Letters to the editor should be kept as short as possible, preferably no longer than two pages. They should be typed at 67 characters per line, triple-spaced.

All letters should contain the author's name, address, and telephone number for verification. Telephone numbers will not be printed.

Ireland at FAC

By VALERIE HAGFELDT
Special to the Collegian

Jury's Irish Cabaret of Dublin performed at UMass Fine Arts Center Saturday and was a great success. The group of 30 entertainers brought some of its Irish spirit to the town of Amherst.

They performed various numbers, which included singing, dancing, storytelling, and musical numbers. The audience was invited to sing along with the performers in the traditional Irish songs. The light-hearted music of harps and piccolos, as well as several other instruments, put the audience in a festive mood. So lively was the music that the pianist's fingers seemed to dance on the keys of the piano to tunes that the audience held close to its heart.

The Crowley Sisters, who were as young as 12, sang and demonstrated their ability to play several different instruments. Martin Dempsey, one of Ireland's most famous tenors, also sang some Irish songs.

Three dancers performed some traditional Irish numbers. Their arms were held tight to their sides, while their feet flew into sharp, quick steps.

Commentator Chris Curran told the audience, "the whole art of Irish dancing is done in the feet, that is why they must hold their arms so rigid." The dancers fascinated the audience with their quick precision-like movements.

Storytelling in Ireland is another of the many customs. Chris Curran told humorous

TURN TO PAGE 10

Kidz play SW party

By SCOTT SCHUSTER
Special to the Collegian

The Kidz dazzled a jam-packed crowd in the Hampden Student Center Friday night in a party sponsored by the Southwest Assembly and the Performing Arts Division.

Three sets of pure rock and roll consisting of Stones, Kinks, Beatles, Cars, Dead, Cream, Hendrix, Skynard, Bowie, Talking Heads, Santana, Neil Young and Van Halen, along with some originals.

A relatively new band, the Kidz are barely five months old. Though they have considerable competition on the local scene, the Kidz promise to be one of the top rock 'n roll bands coming out of UMass.

The group originated from the eleventh floor of JFK tower, practiced in Pi Lambda Phi fraternity house, played coffeehouses around the Southwest dormitories and have since performed at such places as the Hatch, and North Adams State College. They intend to play around Boston and the Cape this summer, developing original music, and to start recording.

The Kidz are: Bob Malone, bass; Elias Broufas, lead guitar; Mike Kraft, Drums; "Cool" Darren Oliver, guitar and vocals; and Jeff Turiel, lead vocals and electric and acoustic 12-string guitar.

The Rhode-Island-based new wave band, The Mundanes, at the Blue Wall Saturday night. (Photo by Peter Jepsen)

Rock 'n roll abounds at UM this weekend

By JIM MORAN
Collegian Staff

UMass was the center of a weekend of jam-packed rock and roll, with five bands performing on campus.

Thursday night, Van Duren performed to a capacity crowd at the Blue Wall, treating the audience to a full repetoire of well-done covers and originals from their two albums.

Starting off with a true-to-original version of David Bowie's "Young Americas," Duren's band played three sets, numbering about 20 songs in all and collecting three encores. Especially noteworthy was an original off their new album, (avialable on Polygram-d/Decca) called "Woman Needs Man Needs Woman," and an "Is it live or is it Memorex" cover of Elvis Costello's "Girls Talk," souding much like Dave Edmunds hit recording.

Other songs included the Police's "Roxanne," Paul McCartney's "Jet," the group's English hit single "Remind Me of Me," and the Vogues' "Victoria." Also, on prophetic note, the Duren band performed Todd Rundgren's "Nothing Left to Hide." Rundgren will be at UMass April 29 with this band Utopia.

In an interview after the show, Duren was asked why his outfit performs so many covers. "We have two albums worth of original material, but we do other artists' songs because whatever is commercial people are going to like, whatever is fun," Duren said. Duren said he likes to play in small clubs over large halls because, as he put it, "The larger places offer no intimacy with the audience." Members of the Van Duren band are: Mike Roth, lead guitar, Dennis O'Neil, bass, Dick Liso, drums and Duren on guitar and doing lead vocals.

Friday night, the rhythm and blues band Lazarus, formerly the Ellis Hall Group, played the Blue Wall.

Saturday, there were two concerts on campus. The Kidz, a UMass cover band, performed at the Hampden Student Center in Southwest (see story this page) and two new wave acts played at the Blue Wall.

A group calling themselves The Weekly Readers opened a two-band concert at the Wall, providing the audience with a hard-hitting set of fast-paced punk.

The main act, a Rhode Island-based band called The Mundanes, did two sets of 21 songs. The Mundanes have opened for such bands as the Ramones, the B 52's and David Johansen, and have played at such places as the Rusty Nail, Stage West, and Jonathan Swift's in Cambridge.

The group opened their first set with a cover of the Kinks' "Five O'Clock World," and performed several other tunes, including two neat originals, "All Expenses Paid," and "Friday Night I Want to Go to the Disco." They also performed their hit single, Billy Joe Royal's "Down in the Boondocks." Members of the Mundanes are: John Andrews, vocals and guitar, Dean Lozow, bass, Jonathan Gregg, lead guitar, Kevin Tooley, drums, and Marsha Amitage, lead vocals. Andrews, Lozow and Armitage were members of the now-defunct punk-swing group, Johnny and the Luncheonettes.

All in all, not a bad weekend for the many music fans at "Zoo Mass."

IT'S TERRIFIC!
"APPLAUSE"
A Backstage Musical
mar. 27, 28, 29, 30 apr. 3. 4 8 p.m.
bowker auditorium, stockbridge hall
For Tickets Call 545-0783

University & Office Supplies
Typing Paper & Ribbons
Thesis Paper & Binders
A.J. Hastings Inc.
newsdealer & stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

AMERICAN MULTI CINEMA
ADULTS $2.75 STUDENTS & SR. CITIZENS with AMC CARD $2.25 TWI-LITE SHOW $1.50 Special Engagements Excluded Twi-Lite Show - Limited to Seating
TIMES SHOWN FOR TODAY ONLY
HAMPSHIRE 4 — 584-7550 HAMP MALL ON CAFE SQ.—RT. 9, HADLEY, MASS.
Sissy Spacek, Tommy Lee Jones — Coal Miner's Daughter — PG (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
Audiences will simply cherish — Breaking Away — Best Picture Nomination — PG (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
Serial — with Martin Mull — R (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
Little Darlings — R (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 — 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9—HADLEY, MASS.
Peter Sellers, Shirley MacLaine — Being There — Best Actor Nomination — PG (5:45 @ $1.50) 8:30
Roy Scheider — All That Jazz — Best Picture Nomination — R (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
Joseph Wambaugh's The Black Marble with Paula Prentiss — PG (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
Irwin Allen's production of When Time Ran Out... — PG (6:00 @$1.50) 8:30

Attention
Women's Dept. Reporters!
There will be a meeting to discuss story ideas and department policies on Tuesday, April 1 at 7 p.m. in Campus Center 102. New reporters are welcome. Please plan to attend.

SPRING into the 5-college crowd at
Time Out
TWO TV's
(Left you I.D.? We have it!)
Friendly People!
Friendly Prices!
Free popcorn at Amherst's biggest little bar
37 N. Pleasant St.

THE AMHERST DELICATESSEN
Sandwiches · Cold Cuts · Bagels · Salads
OPEN AT 8 AM · 7 DAYS · 549-6314
Extended hours beginning Fri. April 4
Mon. - Thurs. 9 AM - 10 PM
Fri. & Sat. 9 AM - 2 AM

You can still get something for nothing
. . .at the Student Union Craft Shop. FREE instruction - beginning to advanced. FREE use of tools and facilities - you pay only for materials at wholesale prices. Learn pottery, silver jewelry, leather work, stained glass, silk screen printing, batik, photographic dark room techniques, wood working. The shop is on the lower level of the Student Union Bldg. across from the Hatch. Open Monday thru Friday 10 AM tp 6 PM and Saturday - noon to 4 PM. No sign-up, just walk in and make your wishs known - anytime!

Easter Favorites
SPECIALS EFFECTIVE: MARCH 31 THRU APRIL 5, 1980
Louis FINE FOODS
N. PLEASANT ST., AMHERST, MASS

Easter Sale
COLUMBIA GEM SKINLESS SHANKLESS Hams
WELL TRIMMED, NO SHANK BONE OR SKIN
12-20 LBS Whole Hams $1.49 LB
10-12 LBS Whole Hams $1.59 LB
5-10 LBS Butt Half $1.49 LB
5-10 LBS Shankless Half $1.79 LB
TENDER TASTY Center Slices $2.19 LB

GLEN SHAW FRESH-NEVER FROZEN
Native Turkeys ALL SIZES $1.09 LB
RAISED IN PELHAM

BLUE SEAL POLISH
Kielbasa $1.69 LB
SPECIAL EASTER RINGS MADE BY CHICOPEE PROVISION

FREDA BONELESS Hams $1.99 LB
JANIKS Easter Kielbasa $2.09 LB
ARMOUR BONELESS Hams $1.99 LB
TOBIN FIRST PRIZE Easter Kielbasa $1.89 LB
ESSEM Easter Kielbasa $1.89 LB

WITH COUPON PLUS $7.50 PURCHASE OR MORE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & TOBACCO LU90
SWEET LIFE English Muffins 9¢ 6 PACK
VALID MAR 31-APRIL 5 LIMIT ONE AT LOUIS FOODS

WITH COUPON PLUS $7.50 PURCHASE OR MORE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & TOBACCO LU91
NABISCO Fig Newtons 16 OZ PKG 89¢
FALID MAR 31-APRIL 5 LIMIT ONE AT LOUIS FOODS

WITH COUPON PLUS $7.50 PURCHASE OR MORE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & TOBACCO LU93
OCEAN SPRAY Grapefruit Juice 64 OZ BTL UNSWEETENED 99¢
VALID MAR 31-APRIL 5 LIMIT ONE AT LOUIS FOODS

WITH COUPON PLUS $7.50 PURCHASE OR MORE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & TOBACCO LU92
SCOTT Paper Towels JUMBO ROLL 49¢
VALID MAR 31-APRIL 5 LIMIT ONE AT LOUIS FOODS

WITH COUPON PLUS $7.50 PURCHASE OR MORE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & TOBACCO LU94
M&M PLAIN OR PEANUT Chocolate Candy 7 OZ PKG 79¢
VALID MAR 31-APRIL 5 LIMIT ONE AT LOUIS FOODS

We reserve the right to limit quantities. Not reseponsible for typographical errors.

CAINS REAL Mayonnaise 32 OZ JAR $1.29
SWEET LIFE TOMATO Catsup 3 14 OZ BTLS $1
FRISKIES BUFFET Cat Food ALL VAR 4 6½ OZ CANS $1
TETLEY Tea Bags 100 CT PKG $1.59

WE WILL HAVE A LARGE VARIETY OF FLOWERS FOR THE HOLIDAY
LILIES-MUMS-HYACINTH ETC
KRAFT Italian Dressing 16 OZ BTL 99¢
DERMASSAGE Dish Detergent 22 OZ BTL 89¢
UNDERWOOD Deviled Ham 4½ OZ CAN 69¢
HI-DRI Facial Tissue 2 200 CT PKGS 99¢

SEALTEST Ice Cream ½ GAL $1.59
LOUIS Cheese Ravioli 12 OZ PKG $1.29
LA PIZZERIA Combo Pizza 13½ OZ BOX $1.69

LOUIS FOODS HAS A LARGE VARIETY OF KOSHER PRODUCTS AND EASTER CANDY. SHOP AHEAD.
KEEBLER COOKIES Fudge Stripe 11½ OZ PKG 99¢
KEEBLER DELUXE Grahams 12½ OZ PKG 99¢
GENERAL MILLS Cheerio's 10 OZ PKG $1.09

Collegian Classifieds

To place a Collegian Classified
•Come to Collegian Office CC 113
•8:45 to 3:45 Mon-Fri
•Classified deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day

Collegian Classified Rates
•15c per word
•Student rate 10c per word
•Cash in advance
•5 consecutive days 5 % discount
•Phone number FREE

AUDIO

SONY one point stereo eletret condenser microphone excellent cond. $25 253-3225

Quanta 500 turntable belt drive strabe electronic pitch ADC Cart $85 546-9410

AUTO FOR SALE

FIX YOUR OWN CAR. The Student Auto Workshop offers tools, space, and assistance. Tues, Wed, Thurs 3-9 pm, Fri 12-5, Sat 10-5. Level one CC garage. 545-0673

'73 Toyota Mark II Wagn 73000 mi excellent shape, yours for $1980 phone Kittye 549-5412

1964 Volvo PI800S Sports Coupe 115 HP 5 spd Michelins Bilsteins AM-FM good for parts or restoration 34 mpg call 549-5359 eves asking 600

Convertible 67 Buick Wildcat $300 Mark 586-1322/546-8908

1970 Olds eng & trans excellent condition body good have to sell moving to city 400.00 or BO call 546-1441 Mon-Thur after 9:00 PM

1970 Chrysler T & C stawgn good cond call 665-3625 eves

1973 Fiat Stationwagon Runs. Steering unit needs to be replaced. Could be fixrd or used for parts. Brand new battery and muffler system. $300. or Best Offer Call: 665-2753

1972 Volkswagon Van excellent condition 549-2636

ENTERTAINMENT

Soundsystem for Hire perfect for bands, doscos, coffeehouses Rick 584-4105

Pro Soundsystem perfect for coffeehouses, parties, formals, DJs MF Sound 6-8777 6-8853

FOR RENT

Cape Cod Summer Rental 5 bdrms E. Dennis after 5 253-5017

One bedroom Colonial Village $112/mo available immediately 256-6749 Andy or leave message Tobin 509

Cape Cod Summer Rental West Yarmouth 2 miles from Seagull Beach $450 to share room $800 for single 546-9569

Summer Sublet fully furnished 2 room 5 minutes from UMass 190 + utilities Call Dan or Bridge late eves 549-5798

Rooms on the Cape for summer Hyannis area 617-771-6768 weekends

Room available Puffton sum/fall own bath 549-1347

FOR SALE

Tan Wallabees 8½ mens new $30 6-9991

Tennis new Snauwaert B. Gottfried 4½ L-M strung gut $40 546-5738

Spalding Lancer 190cm Skiis w/Salomon bindings size 8 Nordica boots, poles, all used only twice $130 253-3377

Jennings Adjustable Compound Bow 45-75 lbs. 29"-30" draw $85 or BO 253-3377

Teledyne Microphone with stand $60 Dearmand acoustic pickup $35 665-7992

Teac A103 mint 6 months old 170 new 125 now Honda moped brand new perfect extras 450 new 375 now call Dan late eves 549-5798

Designer Backgammon Board $60 or BO 6-5723

Tires - 4 Kleber steel radials. Brand new on Fiat rims. Cost $145 - $100 firm 665-7555

FOUND

Found-Brown plastic rimmed glasses in Northeast quad. Call Jeff 6-3210

Keys found near NOPE 3/26 call Mark 549-4196

HELP WANTED

Summer work, $1,210.00 monthly, travel Car owner preferred but not required. Send SASE Box 213, Amherst MA 01004

Counselors fcr Boys Camp in Maine. Openings in most specialties. Write: Camp Cedar, 1758 Beacon St. Brookline, MA 021466 or call 617-277-8080

Western Mass Bus Lines is now accepting applications for bus driver training for part time work in Sept. 1980 Qualified applicants must be students of one of the 5 colleges, experienced with standard trans., and willing to commit themselves for 2 semesters. Apply in person at our garage/office behind the Phone Co. bldg. on Pleasant St. Northampton

Work study positions available at SCERA for recruitment coordinator, office assistant and women's issues team. Contact SCERA for application or call 545-0341

One (1) Secretary/Receptionist position available at the UMass Legal Services Office. Duties include: Legal typing, photocopying, reception, filing, assisting client referrel. bookkeeping, ability to deal with people in a self-directed work environment. Sensitivity to the diverse student community is a must. Typing 60 w.p.m. Accurate, experience preferred. 30 hours a week, part-time. $4.25 per hour. Bring resume to Personnel Office, Room 167, Whitmore Building, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA Affirmative Action Employer

INSTRUCTION

Jewish Community of Amherst needs both Hebrew and Jewish Studies teachers for September 1980 call 549-0223 for application. Experience preferred

LOST

Lost Black Lab named Astro Always seen around campus. If anyone has any info please call Scott at anytime 549-6219. Wears blue collar, keep your eyes open friends.

Change Purse in Earthfoods 6-6826

Lost Trumpet in leather bag Franklin DC Monday night call 6-6564

Reward for lost orange notebook in vicinity 251 Boyden 3/24 call anytime Jon 549-6493

MOTORCYCLES

1977 Honda CB125S Mint Condition 75-90 MPG $550 6-4554

PERSONALS

Pete Jacke call Macky 665-7923

Don't graduate without doing it! Get your yearbook portrait taken--call 545-2874 for your appointment. Don't be left out of the 1980 Index

All University Women invited to Rush Parties at SDT for more info call Robyn 545-0527

Young Life Leadership Christian outreach ministry March 31 7:30 more info Denise 538-3583

Go in "SAYNE", April 10 Thursday

NU? What should we do for Mark M's birthday? Mazel tov on your 22nd--The Federation

NEED CASH? I will buy your used record albums. 6-7937

Charismatic Prayer and BS CC 903 Tuesday April 1 8-10 PM

Chucklet—Oh Beaux piddles! What memories—Thumpers carrots (and Mr. and Mrs.), Kermit's laugh, coloring Winnies, Ziggy hunt, lemon pie, king of the mudhill, and uh-HUH. I love it all. Love you, ROSKO

MEF: for all the good times, sad times, laugh times, silly sentimental times we've shared—I celebrate you my friend. Happy 20 love LAF

Deborah Hardy is not behind bars anymore. Available as escort for music banquets, etc. Phone 6-6823

Kathy N. I ask one of soutwood washing machine out, but it said "YEA-NO", HUGH?

Whoever took a leather purse from Southwest Munchies Thurs night please return personals to the Collegian Office. No questions asked. Much sentimental value!

Christinabella! Eat your tofu--it's getting cold. It will make you stronger—so I'm told--Esta the tenant molester

Happy Birthday Laurie B. You're a real sweetie! Love Doreen, Laura and Teri

Do it today! Join the UMass Travel Club today (3-31-80) at CC 911-915 4:30

Julie Ett Happy Birthday Love George

Hey River Otter—Come on cheer up. Only seven weeks to go. And just think—there's lots of cool mountain streams in the Wind Rivers to splash around in. Your Pal—a muskrat? never

WANTED: Drum set for prop in student movie Call 549-3926

Attilla of Moore friends like you don't need tact. Thanks for keeping me off the balcony! Love Mel

RIDE WANTED

Take me to NYC! Fri. April 4 Gerri 546-8589

ROOMATE WANTED

Two bedrooms in a three bedroom Townehouse apt available June 1 549-1833

Roomate wanted immediately condominium Echo Hill $100 plus call 253-3707

Female housemate for 3 bdr duplex. On bus route. $100 + utilities. Elise 545-0696, 253-7150

Male roomate wanted Brandywine $105 549-4671

One room in 3 bedroom Townhouse on 2 bus routes, quiet, Bay State phone, HBO, furnished--prefer non-smoker, serious student, very reasonable call 549-5192

1 bedroom in 2 bedroom Squire Village summer in scenic Sunderland bus rt call 665-4761

ROOM WANTED

Need a summer roomate for your Vineyard home? Call Beth 549-6534

Female looking for living space on Cape. Pat 665-4197

SERVICES

Attorney Jason R. Rosenthal Legal Representation. Income Tax Preparation. Days 584-4285 Evenings 253-7617

TYPING Experiencec typist, reasonable rates 256-6360

SLIM WHITMAN

The Union Program Council is proud to announce that due to popular demand they are in the process of booking the incomparable master of song--Slim Whitman--drop by UPC and say thanx

Slim Whitman--The Mass Fruit Growers Assoc. supports Slim for Spring Concert--dodge a tomato--Aieeeegh! Awaaaay!

TO SUBLET

2 bedroom apt Colonial Village on bus rte starting June 1 through August call Lisa or Robin 253-3740 evenings

1-4 Bdrms in 4 bdrm apt June-Aug w/option Lori 256-8233

1 bdrm in 4 bdrm apt w/kitch, lvrm, bath Phillips St $80/mo Wendy 549-1005

2 L6 bdrooms Brandywine Apts perfect location furnished balcony pool tennis reasonable price call 549-5959

2 bedroom furnished on bus route June-August $195-mo Fall option 665-4720

3 bedroom apt. summer sublet, Fall option ¼ mile from Campus 549-1462 evenings

2 bdrm Twnhs So Amh on bus rt avail My-Aug w fall opt rent neg 256-8650

Northwood 2 bedroom furnished AC DW pool garden plots bus-line June 1-August 31 $150 per month call 665-4850 after 4 pm

Squire Village Sunderland summer sublet 2 bdrm, 2 bathrooms, on bus route avail June 1-August 1, call 665-3660

4 bedroom apt Swiss Village for summer option of Fall bus route all utilities included 256-8616

Puffton 1 bedroom furnished June 1 -August 31 549-5941 evenings

Townehouse Apt two bdrms for the summer call 549-4734 anytime

2 bedroom apt Lantern Court Sunderland off bus route June 1 through August 665-7750

3 bdrm apt in Puffton Vill for the summer with option for Fall & Spring ask for Jim if busy keep trying 549-4012

4 bedroom apartment $440 month inclusive on bus route don't get stuck without a place next Fall 256-8209

2 bedroom summer sublet on bus rte June 1 thru August w/ option. Pool, balcony overlooking pond. $350 mnth includes gas heat oven, stove, & A/C call Jay 549-1727

2 bedroom Southwood Apt bus route pool tennis June 1 256-0452

2 bedroom apt Presidential Apts summer sublet-option to renew in fall Call Robin or Jennifer 549-6382

Puffton Village 2 bedroom from end of April Fall option 549-4360

1 bdrm Puffton Village Jun-Aug pool air cond 549-6469

Summer sublet Townehouse Apts $200.00 549-6656 furnished

3 bedroom Townehouse open from June 1 - Aug 31 call 549-4049 for info

2 bdrm apt Southwood Jun-Aug w/option call 256-0316

Two bedroom apartment on bus route pool and tennis courts airconditioning call 5-11 549-6068

For Summer Fall option own room 78.75 plus utilities call 253-5206

To sublet for summer w/option on Fall lease two bedroom Townehouse Apt 549-1056 anytime best after 11 pm

2 bedroom apt furnished on bus route swimming pool call 253-5714

3 bedroom apt Puffton Village 300/mo furnished near bus, pool, tennis courts call nights 549-3765 6/1-8/31

Beautiful three bedroom Rolling Green apt for the summer. Patio, A/C. pool, on bus route (May 1 optional) call anytime 546-9919 rent negotiable

North Pleasant St--2 bedrooms available June1-Sept 1 5 minuted from Campus and Town. Call eve 256-6150

2 bedroom on bus route COMPLETELY furnished utilities INCLUDED, pool, tennis, dishwasher ya can't go wrong for $200 month Storm or Paul 665-3024

1 bdrm in 2 bdrm Colonial Village Apt June-Aug w/option for Fall. Furnished w/kitch, lvrm, bath $112.50 per month plus utilities on bus route call 253-3695 weekday evenings

2 bedroom on bus route near Townehouse June 1-Aug balcony view call Gregg 549-4911

2 bedroom furnished apt Sunderland bus route Fall option 665-4315

3 bedroom apt in Puffton Village for summer with option Fall call 549-4044

Furnished 2 bedroom summer sublet Colonial Village on bus rote pool, $225/month but negotiable Dave 256-0503

WANTED

Fast immediate cash for gold-school rings-diamonds- silver Jeff anytime 527-7078 586-0180

Used Electric Typewriter call andy 546-6785 evenings

WANTED TO RENT

3 women looking for housing in Hyannia area for Jun-Aug call Lisa 546-8006 or Toby 546-7436

House wanted 4-6 bedrooms close to camous call 546-5081 or 546-5100

Great Prices
Spring Clothes
Jewelry & Gifts
THE MERCANTILE
AMHERST CARRIAGE SHOPS
Daily 10 am - 6 pm

TEE-shirts ARE COMING!

安城中國飯店
AMHERST CHINESE FOOD
62 Main St 253-7835
"Where you can get the best homestyle Chinese dishes at a very reasonable price."
Closed Wednesdays

Nuke the Whale by Danny Guidera

4 by Frank Emery

Wimpman by Evan Carlson

Bean by Kevin X. McNamara

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

Crossword

UNITED Feature Syndicate
Friday's Puzzle Solved

ACROSS
1 Speedy
6 Pronoun
10 Peruse
14 Castle or Dunne
15 Clean
16 Vagrant
17 Moved slowly
18 Norse god
19 God of love
20 Winter cap parts
22 Word game
24 Made public
26 Moseys
27 Garbled: 2 words
30 Expire
31 Tropical tree
32 Dating device: 2 words
37 Eternity
38 Singer Rise —
40 State: Abbr.
41 Mixed anew
43 Italian river
44 Follows noon
45 QB's target: 2 words
48 Coat fabric
51 Run away
52 Undergarments
54 "— Lee": Poe title
58 Third: Comb. form
59 First letter: Abbr.
61 School: Fr.
62 Quondam
63 Certain
64 Army hat
65 Straw
66 Exclamation
67 — Range, Wyo.

DOWN
1 Cereal
2 Irish exclamation
3 Noble
4 Positioned: 2 words
5 Particular
6 Small auto
7 Secreted
8 The Iliad, e.g.
9 Fish
10 Ice
11 Red shade
12 Home
13 Breathers' needs
21 Prior to: Prefix
23 Improper
25 Motorists
27 — -do-well
28 Instrument
29 Weight units
33 Dosed
34 Area unit
35 American educator
36 Trudge
38 Because
39 Discourse
42 Drank to 43 Diplomat
46 Angle: Comb. form
47 Up and up
48 Thespian
49 Actor — Greene
50 Charge
53 Cozy
55 Vessel
56 Nevada town
57 Spanish region
60 Man's name

DC Menu

Lunch
Chicken Shortcake/Biscuit
Sausage Links/Corn
Fritters, Syrup

Basics Lunch
Mexican Vegetable Bake
Chicken Shortcake/Biscuit

Dinner
Roast Pork/Gravy
Spaghetti/Tomato Meat Sauce, Grated Cheese

Basics Dinner
Baked Cod with Crumb Sauce
Hi-Protein Spaghetti/Italian Tofu Balls, Tomato Sauce

Earthfoods

Ratatouille
Vegetable Soup
Rice-Bulghar
Green Salad
Banana Bread

Jeans $1.00
GOODWILL
37 Main St. N'ton
(take PVTA to the Courthouse)

OMEGA BOOKS galore
COMICS
MOVIE POSTERS
BUY and SELL
(SOME TRADE)
QUALITY USED BOOKS
10-1230 2-500 MON-SAT
213 MAIN N'TON

On Sunday Feb. 24 Pat Metheny performed at the UMass Fine Arts Center and stunned the audience!
See the Electrifying Pat Metheny Group
Tues April 1-7 & 10
Tickets $6.50
Faces & Platterpus Records
FLAI STREET

CURRY-N-KABAB
"HOT" or "MILD"
Indian Curries & Kabobs
FREE DELIVERY
Take Out Service
Call 253-3481
Open noon til.
101 N. Pleasant St., Downtown Amherst (behind Louis Food)

Bass®
SALE $26.95 Regular $35.95
All sizes - Medium & Narrow
2 Styles - 2 colors

Heartfelt Leather
103 N. Pleasant St., Amherst
Downtown Amherst 10-6:00, Mon. Sat. 253-5505

Cameras OK in courts

BOSTON (AP) — Cameras and recording equipment will be allowed inside Massachusetts' courtrooms for the first time Tuesday, but it will be months before extensive courtroom broadcasting will be permitted.

Under a state Supreme Court order lifting a ban on the coverage, only supreme and appeals court sessions may be covered in April.

In other courts, cameras and recorders will be permitted at trials without a jury beginning May 1 and in jury trials beginning in June.

Some trial judges are considering whether the order may leave them open to permit the devices under special circumstances in trials after April 1.

The ruling came after a yearlong study by a committee of court and news representatives headed by Superior Court Judge Herbert Travers Jr.

Gas co found guilty

BOSTON AP — The Cape Cod Gas Co. has been ordered to pay more than $3.3 million in damages and $1.2 million in interest to a Waltham man severely burned in a gas explosion.

The award to James Jijarjian by a jury in Middlesex County is believed to be one of the largest personal injury judgements in Massachusetts. It will be reviewed Monday by Superior Court Judge Frank Good.

The jury deliberated six hours Friday before determining the utility was liable for injuries Jijarjian suffered six years ago from a gas explosion in Topper's Boutique on Main Street in Hyannis.

★ Concert

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

it would be difficult to sell enough tickets to pay the necessary costs, Edelstein said.

At a meeting on March 19 of a University-wide committee studying the feasability of Spring Concert, Amherst Town Manager A. Louis Haywood said the town would oppose the concert if the dorms are closed to visitors. Haywood said the town would not accept the added burden of people trying to find places to spend the weekend.

Amherst Police Chief Donald Maia concurred with Haywood, saying the closed dormitory policy would put a large number of intoxicated drivers on the roads and would create a serious hazard.

The committee voted to recommend to Madson that the concert be held and the dorms opened to visitors on a "limited" basis.

★ Salvador

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

Like other security forces, army troops had been on alert but confined to barracks yesterday by the ruling civilian-military junta.

The order came shortly after reporters and other witnesses saw small gangs of youths looting stores near the cathedral. Some of the shops were set afire.

Reporters said 20 bodies, including five with bullet wounds, were taken into the Metropolitan Cathedral that was packed with about 3,000 persons. An attendant at Hospital Rosales, about 15 blocks from the cathedral, said 11 bodies were received there — nine victims of asphyxiation and two who had been shot to death.

★ Vernon

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

Pueblo Unido" and the "Annie May Akwash Tribe." The groups sent a combined total of 50 to 60 people for both support and civil disobedience, according to a Student Coalition Against Nukes Nationwide member. More people from UMass came up on their own, she added.

The demonstrators arrested for civil disobedience were taken either to the Rockingham State Police Barracks, The Westminster Institute or the Dover Police Station, according to police. The support people were to follow and note the license plates of vehicles removing the demonstrators to establish a communication network between those arrested and their supporters, said the SCANN member.

The UMass students arrived in Vermont Saturday and canvassed the Turners Falls area, she added.

"I don't feel I should be arrested at all," said a UMass student. "I'm morally correct and if they're going to arrest me I'm not going to cooperate. I'll stay here as long as I can."

A petition, read at about 5:30 p.m., asked for "the immediate closing and safe decommissioning of Vermont Yankee" and for "the owners or Vermont Yankee to assume full responsibility for such decommissioning." The petition was signed by more than 7,000 residents of the tri-state area and the names were read by five demonstrators.

★ Cabaret

CONT. FROM PAGE 6

stories about his homeland that kept the audience in stitches throughout the night. "It could only 'appen in Ireland," he convinced the audience.

At the end of the program the audience was invited to a party at Memorial Hall to meet the cast and musicians. If one did not know it was UMass, he might suspect he were in Dublin, with all the gaiety and festivity of the Irish traditions.

Fooler or fooled: All Fools' Day tomorrow

By SARAH HAMMANN
Collegian Staff

Will you be a 'poisson d'Avril' or fall victim to a 'gowk-hunt' tomorrow afternoon? Pray be, what is that?

Ahhhhhh-the tradition of April Fools' Day. Yes, although it resembles the hilaria of Ancient Rome on March 25 and the Indian Festival of Huli ending on March 31, the American All Fools' Day is of independent origin.

Americans don't label the fooled a fish

Commentary

(France), nor do we pester our pals to go-a-gowk-hunting (Scotland). Instead we attempt anything as simple and trivial as chortling over untied shoelaces or a revealing-rip in the seat of the jeans. A complicated plot to snowball the vicious rumour that Carter has cancelled his call for draft registration or Chancellor Koffler is offering rebates on a UMass education—an enticing deal, to say the least.

But today we dismiss the harsh realities that the hostages are in their 148th day of captivity as inflation continues to spiral upward in double-digit figures. Seniors may comfort in thoughts of no longer signing that exponentially-increasing tuition check nor wrestling with pre-registration forms this spring. We all face realities that are fun to dispell on this day of fools.

Fools lack judgment and prudence; let us all be fools tomorrow for the next day we may...be serious. Should we push our limits and costume ourselves in outlandish garb, replete with motley cap and bells?

Simpletons one and all, be at the jest's beck and call.

Tomorrow is a day to enjoy, be frivolous, engage in riotous escapades. Spring is still nine days young, and our spirits rollercoaster with the changes from showers to sunshine.

Although hunting the gowk, like hunting for hen's teeth, or a square circle, is a fruitless errand, the tradition of All Fools' Day thrives. We don't seem to mind being made fools of, on such a designated day. But on any other day at any other time, we react with sentiments of personal victimisation. We are not infallible but we would sure like to think so.

So go ahead poisson, let me know how many gowks you catch tomorrow...and every other day.

GRADUATE STUDENT EMPLOYEES UNION general membership meeting

Tuesday April 1st

4 pm

CC 804

Burroughs Corporation

Announces a presentation in the Electrical and Computer Engineering Graduate Seminar by Dr. David B. Weisman, Project Engineer, Systems Software

Monday, March 31, 1980
4:00 PM
Engineering Auditorium
East Engineering Building
"The Burroughs Loop"
A Fail-Safe Distributed Processing System"

This presentation describes a distributed processing system referred to as the Exploratory System Control Model (ESM) Multiloop Network which consists of five interconnected microcomputer controlled loops, interfacing various equipment. In addition, a brief tutorial will be given on loop oriented distributed processing systems, including a comparison of loops with serial busses.

This presentaion will be of special interest to students majoring in Electrical Engineering, Mathematics and Computer Science.

BOSTON PUBLIC SCHOOLS
Tomorrow is in your hands...

The Boston Public School System, one of the oldest and largest public school systems in the country, has always prided itself on being both progressive and receptive to new ideas in education. We constantly strive to provide effective programs for all students. In response to these diverse needs, many programs have been initiated, such as Accelerated Academic Programs and Examination Schools; Cooperative Vocational-Occupational Programs; Bilingual/Bicultural Programs; pairing of community district schools with colleges, universities, business firms and cultural institutions; as well as special educational programs for exceptional children. We have also been fortunate to have input of Parent Groups which has been a valuable resource.

The Boston Public Schools with its 150 elementary, middle and high schools divided among 9 community districts, has an enrollment of 66,000 students. At present, there are approximately 5,100 teachers and the racial composition is 76½% white; 18% black and 5½% other minorities.

Applications are invited for teaching positions in the following areas:

* Math
* Industrial Arts
* Bilingual Education
* Special Education
* Science
* Home Economics
* Reading
* Adaptive Physical Education
* Vocational-occupational education

All applicants must complete requirements for a Bachelor's Degree by August, 1980, certification preferred. In addition, ADMINISTRATIVE POSITIONS are also available.

We offer a salary range from $11,751 to $23,430, depending on experience; in-service training; state retirement plan; sick and personal leaves; tax sheltered annuity; dental and vision health plans; group insurance and sabbatical leave.

WE WILL BE ON CAMPUS
April 3, 1980

Contact the College Placement Office to arrange for an interview.
Minorities, women and handicapped persons are encouraged to apply.

BPS Boston Public Schools
26 Court St., Boston, MA 02108
An Equal Opportunity Employer M/F

Notices

THE PEOPLE'S GAY ALLIANCE will hold its weekly meeting Thurs. in the Campus Center, check listing by elevators for room.

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS PROGRAM meeting Thursday, room 905 Campus Center at 7 p.m. All welcome.

A DRAFT INFORMATION SESSION, sponsored by Students Against the Draft, will be held Thursday at 5 p.m. in CC803. Topics will include draft resistance, Conscientious Objector status, deferments, and enlistment/induction.

THE WESTERN MASS LATIN AMERICA SOLIDARITY COMMITTEE will meet Wednesday at 5:30 p.m. in the Campus Center room 903.

"KEEPING AN OPEN MIND..OR MAYBE JUST AN EMPTY ONE?" A Christian challenge to the UMass tradition. Wednesday at 8 p:m. Mary Lyon Lounge (Northeast).

THE STUDENT HEALTH ADVISORY BOARD will meet Wednesday in the Employees Lounge of the University Health Services at 6 p.m. All are welcome.

SPECTRUM ART STAFF meeting will be held Wednesday in room 104 Campus Center at 6 p.m. There are openings for future staffers to work on this year's edition and future editions. If you can't make the meeting stop by room 104 CC in the afternoon. If you have art work you wish to submit bring it down or mail it to: RSO #102, Student Union Building, UMass, Amherst, Mass. 01003. For any information you can call 545-2240.

RALLY AT THE STATE HOUSE—Help plan the protest at the State House in Boston over cutting of the UMass budget. In late April Students United for Public Education is sponsoring a rally at the State House to stop the governor and the legislators from cutting the throat of the public higher education system. Come to an Organizing Committee meeting of SUPE at Wednesday in Machmer W-23 at 8 p.m.

APRIL 1, 7:30 p.m., Relaxation Seminar. Simple relaxation techniques will be taught that can be used to relieve stress and worry. Room 911 Campus Center. Sponsored by the T'ai Chi Club. For information call 549-6362. Admission $5.

APRIL 3, 7:30 p.m., A free showing of the film "What is the Structure of the Psyche?" will be held in room 911 of the Campus Center. This film goes beyond traditional psychological theories. For info call 549-6362.

PASSOVER SEDERS, Chabad House will have full traditional seders Mon. eve at 7:30 p.m. and Tues. eve at 8:30 p.m. Call 253-9040 for information.

GAY MEN'S COUNSELLING collective workshop—tonight at 8 p.m. in CC911-915 UMass. There will be a discussion on "Gay Fathers" and "Coming out to Parents." Everybody welcome. Childcare available.

HILLEL ACTIVITIES: today: Meeting of Jewish Liberation Task Force. 1 p.m., CC801.
tomorrow: Passover services. 10:30 a.m., Duke's Room, SU310.
Thurs.: Meeting of Jewish Liberation Task Force. 2 p.m., CC815.
Thurs.: Jewish Student Community Meeting. Open to all interested students. 7 p.m., Suffolk Room, SU301.
Fri.: Sabbath Services followed by guest speaker Prof. Ervin Staub of the UMass Psychology Dept.: "What Kind of Jew Am I?—Being Jewish and Being Human." 7 p.m., Duke's Room, SU310.

A SERIES OF SEMINARS offering Summer Service Opportunities will be conducted through Tuesday each evening at 7:30 in the Newman Center. Rev. Leo Brassard, an Assumptionist priest, and Sister Elaine Donovan, a Little Sister of the Assumption, will be presenting opportunities for students in Brookline Therapeutic School; Spanish Harlem, New York; Worcester Mass.—mission to the poor; and Wallins Creek, Kentucky.

TODAY: 2:30 p.m. ECUM (Ecumenical Council of UMass) meets in the Duke's room in the Student Union 2:30-4 p.m.

TODAY: 4:30 p.m. UMass Hunger Task Force regular meeting in the Commonwealth Room (Earthfoods). Beginning of the big push for spring world hunger fast day. All members of the Task Force, and anyone else concerned with world hunger, is invited to share in the work.

TODAY: New England Wide Student Conference on "Controlling Interest: Student Responsibility and U.S. Power in the World." Friday evening and all day Saturday, April 11 & 12. Sign up begins today at UCF, 428 SU. $6 for overnight and 3 meals on Saturday. Transportation provided by UCF. For more info contact UCF, 428 SU, 545-2661.

FRI.: AMHERST WIDE ECUMENICAL Good Friday Service, 12 noon-3 p.m. at Grace Episcopal Church on the town common. Speakers include Father Joe Marchese of the Newman Center, Janet Morgan, Deaconness at Grace Episcopal Church and Peter Schneider, Pastor of Wesley Methodist Church.

APRIL 6: EASTER SUNRISE SERVICE at the Campus Pond. 5:30 a.m. All are invited. Provided by the Ecumenical Council: Hillel, The Ark, The Newman Center, The United Christian Foundation, Immanuel Lutheran Church.

NATIONAL NUTRITION MONTH, free movie: "Eat, Drink and be Wary" today at 7 p.m. in Hampshire Dining Commons (down under room).

Softball season set

By MELISSA GALLAGHER
Collegian Staff

Seventeen women's softball team members received their spring break tans in South Carolina. The pre-season trip South brought 4-2 results, including a 7-1 win over Rutgers.

UMass lost to nationally ranked South Carolina, 1-0 in extra innings and to Ohio University, 6-5, after being down by six runs in the seventh frame. In the final scrimage before Tuesday's opener at the University of Lowell, the Minutewomen "basically dominated" American International College, coach Elaine Marasco said.

Marasco, who guided the UMass women's volleyball squad to an overall 22-7 record, inherits seven returnees from last year's 23-0-1 team. However, the lone loss against Glasboro State College dropped the UMies from the Regionals, where they were a heavy favorite.

This year's team shapes up this way: Infield: The Minutewomen have a surplus of infielders. "It's a nice problem to have," commented Marasco. Co-captians Fran Cornacchioli and Rhonda McManus return to form a solid double play conbination, but second baseman McManus injured her knee cap warming up for the A.I.C. contest. Karen LaVerdiere, who served as a utility infielder as a freshman, will perform as an infielder/outfielder. At first Jennifer Parker returns and Fran Troy is up from the junior varsity. Also promoted from the JV's was shortstop Ellen Korelitz. Transfer Debbie Stolecki and Jackie Gaw. Former JV battery mate M.J. Forbes is out with a sprained ankle.

Outfield: The team's "Achilles' heel," according to Marasco, is centerfield. The maroon and white's best outfielders are pitchers, Marasco said. Hurlers Susan Peters and Kathy 'OConnell will be platooned in left. Frosh Mary Ann Lombardi will play in center and see bullpen action as well. Other outfielders are freshmen Christina Coffin, Debbie Pickett and former JV Fern Lee.

Pitching: "Regionally, we should get by. Against teams like Rutgers, pitching will be crucial," Marasco said. O'Connell changed her style from figure eight to sling shot to gain speed. In her debut against Trenton State College she won, 10-0, but had control problems battling East Stroudburg State College. A windmill hurler, Lombardi joins Peters and O'Connell.

UMass's strength, Marasco said, has been its defense and hitting. Although the Minutewomen will take each game as it comes, the goal of the season is to make the Regional Tournament and finish first or second nationally, Marasco said. She added, "Shoot for the sky, and why not?"

★ Trackmen

CONT. FROM PAGE 11

carry. Anchorman Mickey Baugh insured the win with a 1:58.1 two-lap cruise.

Bill DeVarney ran a very quick time for so early in the season and despite the weather, placing second in the 200 meter at 22.4. Only 0.2 seconds behind the victor, DeVarney remarked, "I might have caught him, but it was cold and I didn't want to pull a muscle."

Had there been a team score, UMass would have easily won the meet, as it placed one or more runners in the top six of all the running events save for the two it didn't enter, the one and two mile relays. The other teams in the meet were however from smaller schools that don't usually compete with UMass. Rhode Island College, Westfield State College, University of Vermont, Brandeis, Southern Connecticut, and Fitchburg State College being only a few of the schools competing. This meet was not originally on the schedule, and replaced the Northeastern University/Boston University tri meet which was cancelled.

Other winners for UMass included: 1500 meter, Steve MacDougall, 3:59; 10,00 meter, Kevin Corcoran, 30:40; and Rick Doiron, last years Massachusetts State two mile champion, established a new freshman 1500 meter record, placing second to MacDougall with 3:59.8.

The Minutemen will host a dual meet with the Eagles of Boston College April 7 at 3:00 P.M..

If you haven't tried a chocolate chip cookie from

Entenmann's
SINCE 1898

you haven't had the chocolate chip cookie

available at

in the campus center at umass
the UNIVERSITY STORE

THE WOK
Chinese Home Style Cooking
COMPLETE TAKE-OUT MENU
AMPLE PARKING
LUNCHEON & DINNER SPECIALS
COCKTAIL LOUNGE
MON - THURS 11:30 AM - 10 PM • FRI. & SAT 11:30 AM TO 12:00 PM
SUN. & HOLIDAYS 1 PM TO 10 PM • LUNCHEONS 11:30 AM - 3 PM
EXCEPT HOLIDAYS
48 RUSSELL ST
HADLEY
Call 586-1202

DINNER SPECIALS

Available on Monday, Tuesday & Wednesday 3 pm-10 pm

$3.99

Beef with Mixed Veg. & (2) Fried Shrimps
Beef with Mixed Veg. & (3) Chicken Wings
Beef with Mixed Veg. & (3) Chicken Fingers

Chicken with Mixed Veg. & (2) Terriyaki Beef
Chicken with Mixed Veg. & (2) Fried Shrimp
Chicken with Mixed Veg. & (2) Spare Ribs

Shrimp with Mixed Veg. & (1) Egg Roll
Shrimp with Mixed Veg. & (3) Chicken Wings
Shrimp with Mixed Veg. & (3) Chicken Fingers

Scallop with Mixed Veg. & (3) Chicken Fingers
Scallop with Mixed Veg. & (2) Spare Ribs
Scallop with Mixed Veg. & (3) Chicken Wings

Mixed Veg. & (4) Fish Chunks
Mixed Veg. & (2) Fried Shrimp
Mixed Veg. & (4) Fried Scallop

All Dinner comes with a Miller, Miller Lite or Budweiser
All Dinners complete with Pork Fried Rice

Mittmen split two at SMU tourney

By JANE WOLFSON
Collegian Staff

In a rain-shortened Southeastern Massachusetts University tournament, the UMass baseball team was able to play two games, losing to host SMU 4-2 and then coming back strong dropping the University of Maine 6-1, on Chuck Thompson's two-hitter Saturday at North Darmouth. Also competing in the tournament was Siena College.

Minutemen losing pitcher Mark Brown (0-3) ran into trouble in the first inning against the Pirates. Brown walked the leadoff batter who advanced to third on an error by catcher Jim Aulenback, leaving men on first and third for SMU's Mark Chicione, who singled in the two runners.

Brown then held SMU scoreless through the fourth inning. The Pirates added runs in the fifth and sixth innings, the run in the sixth a result of a Chicione blast over the centerfield fence.

All of the Minutemen scoring was done in the sixth inning. Rightfielder Doug Aylward singled to left, one of three hits during the game, Mike McEvilly followed with another single sending Aylward to third. Pitcher Mark Brown aided his own cause knocking in both runners with a double. Aulenback walked as did first basemen Mark Litano to load the bases for shortstop Vin Bonanno who hit into a double play to end the threat.

"We failed to capitalize in the first game," UMass assistant coach Jim Bedard said. "We finally came back in the sixth inning but we didn't have enough."

Thompson's pitching and a surge of Minutemen offense was all that was needed as UMass handed Maine its second loss on the afternoon 6-1.

Leadoff batter leftfielder Litano reached base on an error in the first inning. Aylward walked, followed by McEvilly who struckout. First baseman Brown flew out to Maine third baseman Mike Coults. With a 2-2 count on the designated hitter Aulenback, UMass successfully completed the double steal with Litano scoring and Alyward advancing to second. Aulenback flied out to left field to end the inning.

Catcher Dave Oleksak led off the second inning with a long blast down the leftfield line for a triple and scored when shortstop Bonanno reached base on an error.

The Minutemen exploded for four runs in the bottom of sixth inning. A walk to Aylward led things off followed by a single by McEvilly. Brown struck out. Aylward scored on a single by Aulenback. Oleksak reached base on an error with McEvilly scoring from third, a Bonanno single accounted for the next two runs. Third baseman Barry Bennett struck out to end the inning.

Thompson had a no-hitter going into the sixth inning. Both hits of the game for Maine came in the sixth inning when the Bears scored their only run. Tom Mahan pitched for Maine. Thompson walked five and struckout three on the afternoon.

Siena won the tournament with a 2-0 record, defeating SMU and Maine. SMU finished second with a record of 1-1. UMass finished third with the same record. Placing last was Maine at 0-2.

Three members of the UMass team were named to the all-tournament team, Thompson, Aylward and Brown.

World Boxing Commission heavyweight champion Larry Holmes gives photographers a flex during yesterday's weigh-in ceremonies for his title fight tonight against LeRoy Jones. (AP Laserphoto)

Trackmen open season

By KENNETH K. ROTT
Special to the Collegian

WESTFIELD — Impressive jumping by double winner Mark Grasso and swift high hurdling by John Wright highlighted the Minutemen's outdoor track opener at the Westfield Relays, Saturday.

Neither the drizzle not the 50-degree temperatures beld back the 1980 Yankee Conference indoor triple jump champion as he opened with 20' 1/2" in the long jump. 21' 1/2" (6.47 m.) on his second leap was all he needed to sew up his first victory of the day. Moving to the triple jump, Grasso hopped, stepped, and jumped to a winning 46'2" (14.08 m.).

"I'm jumping off my weaker foot now, so I won't strain my back again," explained Grasso, taking only two of six jumps in each event, in an attempt to comeback slowly and not reproduce an injury which kept him out of all the indoor meets this year but one.

John Wright displayed five running in the 110 meter high hurdles. After hohumming 15.1 over the ten 42" sticks in his heat, Wright rocketed the final heat in 14.9 for first place.

Wright also led off a victorious 400 meter relay crew, followed by Bill DeVarney, Rick Cady, and Rick Trunfio. Trunfio anchored the last 100 meters and leaned to a 43.4 clocking, 0.1 seconds off the school record set in 1979 by Cady, Trunfio, DeVarney and Jery Herman, who was graduated last year.

Trunfio, Cady, Bob Pearson, and Mickey Baugh combined for another UMass first place, 3:34.7 in the sprint medley relay. Trunfio and Cady ran 220 yard legs in 23.4 and 22.7 respectively. Bob Pearson received from Cady and replied with 50.5 for his one lap

TURN TO PAGE 12

UMass physical education students play Korfball, a Dutch sport featured in a clinic Friday at the North Physical Education Builidng. Adrie Zwaanswijk, who coached the Dutch national team to 17 world championships in as many years as coach, demonstrated the fundamentals of the game and then officiated a game between UMass students. The clinic was sponsored by the UMass School of Physical Edcation's Department of Professional Preparation. (Staff photo by Ben Marsden)

Steve Cooperman

NBA Crown Affairs

The question on most New England basketball fans' minds is, Can the Celtics duplicate their performance as the NBA's best regular-season team in the playoffs? I think that they...well, before any prediction, let's look at the obstacles to a fourteenth world championship for the Boston franchise.

The four conference winners—Boston, Atlanta, Los Angeles, and Milwaukee—will watch as the mini-series (best of three games) take place. In the Eastern Conference matchups, Philadephia plays Washington, and Houston gets the home-court advantage against San Antonio. In the West, Seattle faces Portland and Phoenix takes on Kansas City.

Assuming the favorites advance, the next round would set CBS drooling: Boston-Houston, Atlanta-Philadelpia, L.A.-Phoenix, and Milwaukee-Seattle. Each conference champion hosts four of its best-of-seven-game series.

With the exception of Houston, any one of these teams has a legitimate shot at the title.

Of the seven teams with a shot, then, I see the Lakers as having the best chance of winning it all (I'll leave the odds setting to the bookies), and put Seattle, Phoenix, and Boston together behing L.A., followed by, in order, Atlanta, Philly, and Milwaukee.

The Lakers have an almost unbeatable starting five of Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Jamaal Wilkes, Magic Johnson, Jim Chones, and Norm Nixon. But the Lakers do not have an invincible bench, a weakness that is easily exploitable in the playoffs. Still, the Lakers, and Abdul-Jabbar in particular, are well-rested and healthy for the playoffs.

The SuperSonics have been playing in a semi trance the last few weeks, but the defending champs are still the second-best defensive team (to Atlanta) and have the most awesome guard tandem in the league with Gus Williams and Dennis Johnson.

Phoenix has Walter Davis, dropping from phenomenal to only semi-phenomenal this year, and Paul Westphal for scoring. Alvan Adams, Truck Robinson, and Don Buse finish off a very strong starting five.

Atlanta physically battered the Bullets in last year's playoffs and will try to do the same to its opponents this time around. The points come from forwards John Drew and Dan Roundfield and guard Eddie Johnson, and no one stands around on offense or defense for coach Rubie Brown's Hawks.

The key for the 76'ers is Darryl Dawkins. We all know what Julius Erving can (and will) do with the ball, but Dawkins, who can do more than just break backboards, is unpredictable and can make or break Philly's chances.

Milwaukee, meanwhile, has been beating everyone else including the Pacific Coast teams since its acquisition of Bob Lanier, a tribute to Lanier's ability to fit in even though he had never played with a "team" team in the NBA. This young team more than adequately supports Lanier with Quinn Buckner and Brian Winters at guard, Dave Meyers and Marques Johnson at forward, and Junior Bridgeman as first man off the bench.

That leaves the Celtics, for whom injuries will be decisive. Both Dave Cowens and Cedric Maxwell are hurting; Cowens is almost indispensable, in spite of Rick Robey and his performance, because of his defense. Boston just wouldn't have a chance against either Jabbar and the Lakers or the Sonics and their penetrating guards without Cowens.

With Cowens, they should reach the finals and lose in seven games to the Lakers. But if I were you, I would put my money elsewhere: I picked Robert Dole to win the Republican Presidential nomination.

NUMMO

volume 8 issue 19 31 march 1980

this is your world

Curtis Haynes Jr.

The article which is to follow is the first of a three part series which will give a brief summary of the history of the relations between Western and Third World countries as a result of the growth of imperialism in the 19th century. (the lack of space and time have prevented a thorough examination of these relations and a lack of voluminous evidence should be expected.)

Imperialism is an out growth of the early European idea of Mercantalism. This was the system of economics that came into being in the middle ages, in which the aristocratic society brough their countries under a centralized government in the formation of the nation state. The power of these new nations was measured by the accumulation of material wealth, and the greatness of their military and political might. This power was also measured by the size of a nations empire. For example, in the 19th century the British empire was so vast that the sun never set on the British flag. However, it was the 19th century that saw the beginning of the industrial revolution, and the growth of capitalism. As capitalism became more and more prominant in the European countries expansion into the Third World became more a reason of economics rather than that of nationalism. The idea of a nation's wealth was no longer one of hording wealth but rather using that wealth to be invested in making more.

Technology was leaping ahead and with this increase in production the capitalist nations had to have a larger market in which they could buy, sell, and produce their goods. Thus, imperialism no longer took on the form of just colonization but rather became a business venture. Each of a nations colonies now had to show substantial returns. Colonies were still being acquired for the old reasons and were often economically disappointing but this was a transitional period where capitalism was still in the growing stages. As capitalists gained more control in their government affairs the policies of the advanced nations became one of maintaining and increasing their empires with the intent that they would be able to control the raw materials and the world market. Western countries went out to conquer and control the less technically developed countries. This aggression was justified by the fact that these other people were of a different color, and culture, and were considered uncivilized and savage. It was because of the advanced technology in military weapons that the Western countries fighting and taking over lead to an almost certain genicide for the Third World countries. The way things were going this "inferior" race was destined to become the slaves of the "superior Europeans". However, this same technology and the misuse of that technology was to be the down fall of colonialism and imperialism in the form which it was seen up to that time. Because of the increase in flow of capital and technology into the underdeveloped nations the people of those countries began to acquire the knowledge of the "educated" white man. In 1882 anti-western movements were sparked off in Egypt with the rising of Arabi Pasha. In 1885 the Indian National Congress was formed. All of these movements looked to the future when they would be able to overthrow western domination. However, these small sparks would not be able to ignite unless something drastic was able to disrupt the hold the west had on the Third World countries.

This disruption came with World War I. The European nations had to curtail their expansion and to look again to their home front. Production had to turn away from producing consumer goods and had to be redirected towards weapons. Europe had to take a step back, and even those who were able to afford the luxuries of consumer goods had to do without. The war had caused a great economic change for all the capitalistic countries of the world. Chief countries which had been the chief source of foriegn investment could do so no longer. As a result of over expenditures and military spending and other problems of recovery, Europe decended into a severe depression which delayed restoration to full productive power.

The Third World nations seeing Europe struggling took advantage of the situation to try and throw of their chains. There was nothing that Europe could do except loosen their hold. The whole nature of imperialism had to change. The Third World nations were not going to allow the western nations to keep a standing army in their country nor could the imperialistic nations afford a standing army. However, the Western nations needed to keep their control so that they could rebuild to their old life style, and they were not about to give up control easily. They gave their colonies partial independence, but they made sure that the underdeveloped countries were subserviant to the mother country. The imperialist countries placed into these new governments people who were nothing more than figure heads and who actually did the biding of the parent state. This was able to only slow down the fall of colonial imperialism.

It was at this time that the USA became the major economic power in the capitalistic world. Europe was devasted and they had to look to the USA for the rebuilding of their countries. It was not until 1927 that a considerable degree of uniformity had returned with the revival of international trade and the restoration of financial stability. The USA played the dominate position as a creditor and investor and the world economy became influenced by American conditions. These conditions were marked by a considerable amount of production and profits. However, by 1928 U.S. production began to reach a saturation point. This lead to the depression in the USA for the next 10 years.

World War II then broke out. This was a major changing point for the Third World. Europeans were so involved in the war and trying to win the war they even encouraged nationalist movements in the colonial territories in order to embarrass their enemies. The war also helped to disseminate western ideas. Troops drafted to Europe from IndoChina by the French and India by the British returned home with new notions of democracy and self government, and a firm resolve to no longer accept the old status of inferiority. By the end of World War II the cry for independence reached a fever pitch and between 1945 and 1960 a quarter of the worlds inhabitants revolted againgst colonialism and won their independence. ●

Carlos Valdes

wfcr protest rally scheduled for today

The Coalition for Public Involvement in Public Radio is calling for a rally today to protest cutbacks in Hispanic programming on public station WFCR. The rally will be at noon at Hampshire House, which is on Massachusetts Avenue, next to Berkshire House and across the street from Prince House in Southwest.

The purpose of the rally is to gather support for efforts to defend the Hispanic program Que Tal Amigos ,which has been on the air for ten years and is presently under attack by the management of WFCR. On Tuesday April 1, WFCR's new programming schedule begins and the program's hours are to be reduced from six hours a week to two a week, and moved to a new time slot late in the evening. The new time slot will make the program inaccessible to many of the program's listeners, who are mainly Latino and are in western Massachusetts, the Hartford area, and parts of Rhode Island and New York State.

The coalition is made up of Hispanic and non-Hispanic individuals and organizations.

The forming of the coalition was initiated by members of the local Hispanic community which has been struggling since last December on behalf of the thousands of Hispanic people who listen to the program. At a public hearing on Que Tal Amigos , many non-Latino people expressed their support for the program, some of whom were students or teachers of Spanish.

The decision to make the program changes was made by station general manager Robert Goldfarb and it is approved of by the Western Massachusetts Broadcasting Council, which is WFCR's governing board. Goldfarb's decision on Que Tal Amigos also includes a plan to eliminate the paid positions staffing the program and raplace them with volunteer positions.

The coalition has made up a set of demands which have been presented to the Council. The demands include that Goldfarb be suspended, that the program's hours be increased, that the program stay on prime time, that the paid positions be kept, and that the Council include at least two Hispanics and two Blacks. The coalition called the Council's members to an emergency meeting last Friday in order to discuss the demands. At the meeting the Council members refused to meet the demands.

The supporters of Que Tal Amigos have tried many measures to defend the program. Letters have been written to the station from all over the area, petition signatures have been collected and sent in, demonstrations have been held, and people joined an advisory board formed by the Council.

At a public hearing on Que Tal Amigos on campus last February, the Council voted to have an advisory board formed which would make recommendations to Robert Goldfarb on Hispanic programming on WFCR. The advisory board was to report on May 10 and the program changes were to go into effect on April 1.

The coalition has said that the forming of the advisory board was intended by the Council to be a "buffer" which would serve to dampen the anger of the program's supporters at the cutbacks. The advisory board's first meeting was convened by Woody Wickham, a member of the Council. The meeting was attended by members of the Coalition.

The advisory board's members pointed outhow they were supposed to report on a date after the program changes were already to be in effect. They voted to dissolve the board, stating that they would not discuss Hispanic programming on WFCR as long as the program was already scheduled to be cut.

The coaltiion members said that they would seek a moratorium on the program changes at Friday's meeting with the Council two days later. At the meeting the Council members, as stated above, refused to have Goldfarb's decision revoked.

On Friday afternoon Sonia Vivas, the producer of Que Tal Amigos, had scheduled a live cultural event to be aired on the program. The invited performers, however, were refused entry to the station by security guards. Since 11:00 a.m. on Friday, according to Ms. Vivas, the entire building has been closed off by security guards who refuse entry to those not working in one of the offices inside. Julio Torres, her husband and former co-producer of the program, was not allowed to enter the building to see her. The organizers of today's rally have pointed out the importance of a large turnout especially now that talks have broken down between the supporters of Que Tal Amigos and the management ● staff

eugenia a. yuille editor in chief carl e. yates assistant editor graphics editor
carlos valdes assistant editor jose trejo editor eco latino jocelyn lee editor asian affairs edward cohen photographer

columnists tony p. crayton
robert f. teixera
curtis haynes jr.
michelle l. laney hotline to health lorraine cox healthreach robert e. davis jr. proofreader

editorial

In November 1979, WFCR radio (broadcasting from Hampshire House) received a new General Manager in the form of Robert Goldfarb. One of Goldfarb's first acts as General Manager was to send out memorandums calling for review of the stations Spanish Cultural show, Que Tel Amigoes.

Goldfarb claims Que Tel Amigos is using to many staff resources and should be removed from its' prime time slot (7'30 - 8:30 six days a week). Goldfarb claims the show has low ratings despite the fact that WFCR is a non-commercial station and therefore not subject to the whims of ratings, (as are commercial stations which must use ratings projections to sell advertising spots).

Que Tel Amigos features Latin music and cultural spots, and is the only regular Spanish program broadcast from the Pioneer Valley.

Goldfarb intends to cut Que Tel Amigos to two shows at 11pm. Opposition to this plan has been strong and swift, especially from the Hispanic community.

Last December two staff members, one a co-producer and one an announcer for Que Tel Amigos, quit in frustration uable to continue working with Goldfarb.

Letters from the community have been overwhelmingly in favor of keeping Que Tel Amigos on the air. Seventy people packed a public hearing Que Tel Amigos on the air. Seventy people packed a public hearing with WFCR's Board of Directors to demonstrate their support for the show.

The Board of Directors solution was to establish an advisory board of people from the Five College area to look into the dispute and report their finding by May 10. Goldfarb, however, plans to go ahead and cut Que Tel Amigos to two 11pm shows effective April 1. There is no guarantee the Board of Directors will restore Que Tel Amigos once it has been cut.

WFCR is a PUBLIC BROADCASTING STATION AND Goldfarb's plans to replace Que Tel Amigos with yet another classical program, despite the overwhelming and active protest, adds racist overtones to the cultural elitism that pervades public broadcasting.

In a country where commercial broadcasting is predominantly white, Anglo, and male oriented it is the responsibility of public broadcasting to provide minorities with a mass communication outlet which will insure them the means to maintain and promote their cultural identity.

We urge students and all WFCR listeners to consider the cutting of Que Tel Amigos in the context of the overall struggle between those who seek to bring cultural diversity to the Five College area, be it through G core or programs like Que Tel Amigos, and those who wish to maintain the cultural sterility that fosters our ignorance of and isolates us from the ways of the rest of the world.

Support the struggle to save Que Tel Amigos, it serves us all.

Radical Student Union

Note: For verification or clarification contact; Joe Gannon

RSU office 545-0677 or Brooke States 1010 Pleasant St Amherst ●

the third world organizational fair

Curtis Haynes Jr.

On Saturday I went to the tenth floor of the campus center in a very enthusiastic mood. I was thinking about how good the idea of having a third world organizational fair was. I was glad that I would be there to help recruit members of the Third World community into organizations that benefited the society. I wanted to tell people about Nummo news. Thus, I set up my table and waited. I noticed around the room, all the other organizations that were also there, waiting to serve their community. I again thought about what a good idea it was to have an organizational fair. We all waited. About an hour later I noticed the gloom settle in as the huge crowd which was anticipated did not show up. What had happened to the great idea of recruiting from the community? Where were the new faces? Where were the freshmen and the sophmores? I remember thinking "Why in the hell did I come here?". I know that all the other people in the room probabaly felt the same way I did.

But wait! Before I give you the impression that the Third World Organizational Fair was a flop, let me tell you, it was not. Yes, maybe you weren't there, but there were many concerned and serious people who were. They were not willing to give into despair. We rapped, and talked about the problems which face us all. We talked about you not being there. We talked about the critical problems that Third World students will face in the future years of higher education. We talked about the wide gulf between students and the faculty. We talked about where we have been and where we are going. No, the Third World Organizational Fair was not a flop, it was a huge success. For all you brothers and sisters who were not there all I can say is to bad, because you missed a beautiful experience. You see, we talked about reality, something you don't see at the discos, parties, nor on the basketball courts. ● the carter doctrine and the middle east

By Greg Tarpinian,

THE CARTER DOCTRINE AND THE MIDDLE EAST Part 1

The Middle East is in crisis. The crisis goes deeper than the Begin-Sadat conflict over Palestinian autonomy on the West Bank. The whole of the Middle East, the Persian Gulf area and parts of Central Asia are in turmoil.

Although it is not clear from the monopoly-dominated television and press, the major conflict is between the rising tide of national liberation and working class movements in this area and the profit-driven interests of the multi-national corporations.

The funneling of arms and the establishment of military bases throughout the area by the Carter Administration is part of the strategy of the multi-national corporations to preserve a flow of oil, cheap labor, and a market for their commodities. In order to do this the national liberations movements and the working class of the area must be stopped in their attempt to move society along its progressive side. This is in the objective interest of the continous drive by the monopolies to achieve super-profits. It is especially important in an era in which the world capitalist economy is entering a phase of contraction, one which could approach the severity of the Great Depression of the thirties.

THE CARTER DOCTRINE: HUMAN RIGHTS OR CORPORATE RIGHTS•

A major part of the Carter Doctrine in this area is the drumming up of anti-Soviet propaganda throughout the world. Indicative of this move by the Administration is the fact that we are never given information in the press about the role of the Soviet Union in, for example, the struggle of the Palestinian people for self-determination.

Speaking before 500 people at the annual dinner of the journal Jewish Affairs on January 27, Zahdi Terzi, the representative to the United Nations of the Palestinian Liberation Organization, remarked: "And who is our ally in this national liberation struggle• Believe me, we can tell the difference between a friend and a non-friend. Our allies, as our national council has said, are the socialist countries in the forefront of which stands the Soviet Union."

It is clear that the goal of the US government in the area is not "human rights," but rather, the defense of the "rights" of corporations to expropriate lands, exploit workers, and subjugate the masses of the people of the region in their never-ending quest for maximum profits.

The bottom line, as Terzi pointed out, "is oil." He went on to say that President Carter "is not, in any way, concerned with the people of this area. He is only concerned with war in this area, and this is what he hopes to achieve."

Anti-Sovietism is part of the strategy to moblize people in this country for war, both in terms of military spending and for the actual fighting. It is also a part of the ideology which is needed to moblize the people of this country and the whole capitalist world against the gains of the national liberation struggles and the international working class movement, because the success of these trends spells the further demise of the "rights" of corporations to exploit, plunder and subjugate the mass of the world.

In order to accomplish the tasks which the multi-nationals have placed before the Carter Administration an all-out effort to militarize the Persian Gulf)Middle East area has begun. This military might, like that of the Shah's is directed at the national liberation and working class movements which are growing in opposition to the corrupt and brutal regimes that Washington has been supporting throughout the area: in Israel, Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Oman, Jordan, Sudan, Kuwait, Bahrein, Lebanon and North Yemen.

With the overthrow of the Shah's regime US policy has had to adjust quickly. Egypt was brought into a military alliance with the US through the Israeli-Egyptian treaty, a massive effort to build up the Egyptian military forces has begun. A problem has emerged for imperialism, however. Ever since the signing of the Egyptian-Israeli treaty last March popular opposition to Washington's regimes has intensified. It is not clear to the Pentagon whether it can contain the mass movement by relying on Sadat, Israel and Saudi Arabia. This is why the Carter Administration has moved rapidly toward the direct use of miiitary force by the US in the region. The massive anti-Soviet campaign around Afghanistan is an attempt to prepare the American people psychologically for this step.

NEXT WEEK: A closer look at the people's struggles in the region. ●

black history: what it is

Inventors

By Debra Williams

Did you know that whenever you stop at an automatic traffic signal, put on a pair of machine-made shoes, or sweeten your food with refined white sugar, you are acknowledging the work of a few great Black inventors, such as Garrett Morgan, Jan Matzeliger, and Norbert Rillieux. Many textbooks limit their discussions of Black inventors or scientists to a description of George Washington Carver's work, therefore, most people are unaware of the debt which the United States and other nations owe to Black inventors.

Before 1863, patents were not issued to Black slaves, who therefore received no credit for their inventions. Racial discrimination made it difficult for Black inventors to receive acknowledgement of their achievements and therefore many of the inventions were credited to white inventors. But despite discrimination, Black continued to make contributions to the economic growth of their country, and this article will name just a few of those great Black men.

Garrett Morgan

Garrett Morgan contributed a smoke inhalator and an automatic stoplight to American life. He won the First Grand Prize gold medal in 1914 at the Second International Exposition of Sanitation and Safety. His smoking device was used by fire departments all over the nation. But once his racial identity became known, people stopped buying his smoke inhalator. This did not stop him, and he continued his work. In 1923, he developed an automatic stoplight to aid rapid, orderly movement of traffic in cities. He sold his rights to the stop signal to General Electric for $40,000.

Jan Matzeliger

Jan Matzeliger was born in Dutch Guiana in 1852, he came to the United States in 1876. Jan settle in Lynn Massachusetts and got a job as a shoe cobbler's apprentice. One day while working he overheard a workman say that "no man can ever build a machine that will last shoes unless the machine had fingers like a laster, which is impossible." This made young Matzeliger think about how to build such a machine.

Jan Matzeliger decided to invest a lasting machine. He perfected a machine which would adjust the shoe, arrange the leather over the sole, and drive nails into the shoe. In 1883, the United States granted him a patent number (274,207) for his invention. He then sold his patent to Sydney Winston of the United Shoe Machinery Company, and his invention transformed the entire shoe industry.

Norbert Rillieux

Norbert Rillieux was born in New Orleans in 1806. He was educated in Paris and while there he showed an extra ordinary aptitude for engineering. He published a series of papers on steam engine work and steam economy. But his real interest were in making the sugar refining process easier.

Rillieux's dream was to one day perfect a modern way of refining sugar. All he could think of was those poor black slaves pouring and ladling boiling sugar cane juice from one steaming, open kettle to another. So, he set out to develop a triple-effect evaporator, a machine which would make the labor of sugar refining easier on his fellow brothers.

Not only did he develop a machine which revolutionized the sugar refining industry but he also patented a system of heating jucies with vapors in multiple effect which is still used in beet-sugar factories. Rillieux also worked out a complete sewerage system for the city of New Orleans, but because of his color, he could not practice in the United States, Rillieux decided to return to France. He died at the age of 89, and is buried in the Pere-LaChaise cemetery in Paris, France.

Granvill T. Woods

Granville T Woods was born in Columbus, Ohio in 1856. Like many other inventors of his time he had very little formal education. But this did not prevent him from developing devices which had a tremendous impact on the industrialization of the United States.

Around 1884, he informed the Woods Railway Telegraph Company in Cincinnati and began his career as an inventor. In 1902, he invented the air brake which was one of his famous inventions. This patent was bought by the Westinghouse Air brake Company. Another invention was the "induction telegraph." This device enabled people on moving trains to both send and receive communications. It proved to be of great importance to the railroads in preventing collisions. ● hine's verdict overturned

Guardian Bureau

The Alabam Court of Criminal Appeals overturned the 1978 rape conviction of Tommie Lee Hines March 18. The court ruled that Hines was convicted in an unfair trial.

The 27-year-old retarded Black man is serving a 30-year prisone sentence. His conviction by an all-white jury was based on an alleged confession read to the jury over defense objections. Hines' lawyers emphasized that Hines is so retarded he could not have understood the implications of his "confession," did not understand his legal rights and could never have planned and carried out the rape.

Hines is accused of raping a white woman in early 1978 after driving her to the Decatur, Ala., railroad station late at night. He also "confessed" to raping two other white women.

The five appeals court judges agreed with the defense, ruling that Hines was "incompetent to voluntarily give a confession because of his mental age." After his conviction, health care specialists put Hines' mental age at between three and four years old.

Defense attorneys said they would immediately seek Hines' release from the Bryce Mental Hospital in Tuscaloosa, Ala. He faces trial on two more rape charges, to which he will plead not guilty. ● indian activist sentenced

Roque Duenas was sentenced to eight months in jail March 10 for aiding and abetting American Indian Movement (AIM) activist Leonard Peltier's escape from Lompoc federal prison last July. Credited with time served while awaiting trial, Duenas was freed the same afternoon.

Accused of supplying maps and weapons for the escape, Duenas pleaded guilty when the case was transferred from U.S. District Court Judge Lawrence Lydick after a mistrial to Judge Robert M. Takasugi. Lydick is considered one of the most reactionary judges on the federal bench here, while Takasugi is considered one of the most progressive.

Guardian Bureau ●

sihanouk's lonely mission

By Elizabeth Becker
Washington Post

In his 58th year Cambodian Prince Norodom Sihanouk has one mightmare. He is on the Cote d'Azur, his head bowed, strolling up and down the boulevards, going nowhere. One face is recognizable. He meets up with Bao Dai, Vietnam's exiled emperor.

"No, it could never happen, never," exclaims the prince, descendant of the great Angkor emperor Jayavarman VII, head of one of the world's oldest royal houses. For all of his life, and especially today, Sihanouk has married his destiny to his country's. If he were to disappear into the slow death of retirement, so would Cambodia. It would become an Asian Lithuania, a colony of Vietnam, and all would be lost.

Such a fate is unacceptable to the prince "Madame, Cambodia a Lithuania• No. I have more confidence in the future of my country," Sihanouk proclaims. He says this as he tours the world searching for international support that is not coming. He says this as an army of 200,000 Vietnamese soldiers controls Cambodia - where the Vietnamese dong is the chief currency, Vietnameses the second language and Hanoi's ambassador in Phnom Penh the consul-general in all but title. The Vietnamese leadership does not want Sihanouk to return.

And no one can remember whether Bao Dai is dead or alive in exile.

The male and female figures carved on the bas reliefs at Angor are full-bodied, generous in limb, with large sultry mouths. Even in his conservative suit - tailored in China with little respect for his round form - Sihanouk retains the air of that Angor race. He is mobile; jumping from his small feet to address an audience, waving his dainty hands to erase a thought. His eyebrows dance like a swarm of bumble bees.

Sihanouk is more than another exotic ruler in exile roaming the world's capitals, never finding a home. For 29 years the erratic but brilliant prince kept his country at peace, holding back the Vietnamese war from engulfing Cambodia.

At the same time, he kept the world entertained. He composed and recorded songs often played at state occasions. It is said he was a womanizer - even he does not know how many children he has sired. And he confounded the superpowers by saying the only chance for Cambodia's survival was for the great nations to find an entente cordiale...a rapprochement."

Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger later would call such a concept detente, but it would exclude the survival of Sihanouk's Cambodia. Instead, the United States, with its war planes and military aid, would help dray Cambodia into its Indochina War plans. Kent State, Jackson State explored in protest. Cambodia has never recovered.

Sihanouk is here on a mission. Since 1970, when he lost power, his country has been visited by every suffering imagined. The six-year civil war ended in 1975, only to be replaced by the brutal regime of Pol Pot, and then the country was invaded by the Vietnamese last year. Famine, the deaths of countless Cambodians under Pol Pot - all these have led many to consider Cambodia a modern-day holocaust.

Sihanouk has not walked away from his country. He is here to ask for more humanitarisn aid, to keep alive the idea of an international conference where Cambodia could be declared a neutral nation, protected like Austria from the throes of the new cold war. If this does not work, he is threatening to lead an army into Cambodia to force the Vietnamese to the conference table.

At the moment all seems hopless. "I have no solution, there is not solution," the prince admits. "But there may be one soon, and I am willing to wait."

His audience is waiting. Presidents of Cambodian communities up and down the Eastern seaboard have traveled to Washington to confer with Sihanouk. The prince needs these Cambodians, some the men who plotted his overthrow in 1970; others the military officers who fought against Sihanouk in the six-year civil war. Then the prince was the titular head of the Khmer Rouge, comrades-on-arms with the North Vietnamese, the NLF and the Pathet Lao fighting these "puppets of American imperialism," some of whom are now standing before him.

"They have been waiting to see me all day and they can not leave me. I am like their father," the prince says as an introduction. "Please, I am at your disposal, but you wouldn't mind if they stayed and listened to me. They are not journalists. They just want to learn from me."

Some fifteen men and one woman are ushered back to Sihanouk's parlor. At one end the prince motions the reporter to sit down next to him. Opposite, on three rows of chairs, the Cambodians take their places. They turn on tape recorders and pull out notebooks. The conversation with the American journalist will be written up in community newsletters here, in Canada and in France.

For the next hour, Sihanouk orchestrates journalist and Cambodians. A questions is raised about Sihanouk's cooperation with the Khmer Rouge, with Pol Pot, who, after winning the war in 1975, put the prince under house arrest and masterminded a brutal revolution, evacuating all the cities and ordering everyone onto agricultural cooperatives that in fact were labor campus. In four years of Pol Pot's rule, as many as one million Cambodians died from starvation and disease or execution by the black pajamaed Kher Rouge soldiers who terrorized the country.

"We, the Cambodian refugees around the world, will not join the Khmer Rouge," the prince shouts, rising to his feet.

The audience applauds.

"I cannot reject the Lon Nolians (those who supported Lon Nol - almost everyone in the room) because they are my children. The Khmer Rouge, they are the killers of my children."

The prince sits down, again to applause.

This was the Sihanouk of old, the king clever enough to abdicate his throne in 1955 so he could be elected chief of state (retaining his title of prince), a master of the public - and the press.

In the '60s, when he was especially upset with American war policies in neighboring Vietnam, Sihanouk called in an American reporter - Malcolm W. Browne-to share in another audience to present his credentials to the prince. "Shihanouk used the occasion to berate the US...for using spies in the country," Browne recalled. "He positioned me in the throne room so I could be there and hear it all...Obviously I reported it."

Other reports saw their interviews reprinted in the government's Agence Khmer Press or heard them repeated over national radio.

Diplomats and journalists were spared the even more sophisticated manipulation Sihanouk employed against his rivals in the country. The prince was a dabbler in art and sport. He composed and recorded his own music (mainly jazz); he played basketball and he directed , produced and starred in at least a dozen films. Should a military figure, like Gen. Lon Nol, anger the prince, he would find himself cast as a villian in Sihanouk's latest melodrama as Lon Nol did. A disagreement with the prince could lead to a bit part as the court dunce in a royal production.

Small wonder that the educated middleclass and the leftist grew tired of their flamboyant prince. The royal comedy soured. After 29 years of peaceful rule, with the prince brokering independence for his country and making deals to dam the Vietnam war from flooding Cambodia, he was overthrown in the 1970 coup. He was welcome in Peking only.

The day of the coup, a white crocodile - Cambodia's most powerful portent of change - was sighted on the banks of the Mekong River. The country that before was synonymous with paradise has since become a symbol of tragedy.

Rep. Millicent Fenwick (R.N.J.) is one of the members of Congress invited to meet Sihanouk at the home of Rep. Stephen Solarz, a Democrat from New York who has spoken out on Cambodia since he came to Congress in 1974. He sees the parallels with the Holocaust.

"What should we do•" she asks.

The prince smiles with appreciation. "If I am supported by the international community and the United Nations, then we could emerge as the people to fight the resistance against Vietnam. Now, the United States, China, Japan, Thailand support the Khmer Rouge," says.

Sihanouk relays a conversation he had earlier in the day with Richard Holbrooke, the assistant secretary of state for East Asian Affairs. "He told me to go to Singapore," the prince says, his eyes glowing. "I said I wanted permission from Thailand to visit the Cambodian refugees there and to enter Cambodia...His Excellency Holbrooke told me to go to Singapore and talk to my friend Lee Kuan Yew (the premier of that island state)."

The next day Holbrooke's office received phone calls from three of the congressmen and three of the journalists at the Solarz dinner asking why the prince was told to go Singapore when he asked for American help.

That night Sihanouk sketched out the complicated and dismal state of diplomatic confusion over Cambodia. The Vietnamese army controls Cambodia while the Khmer Rouge and at least two fractions of Cambodian nationalists are mounting resistance wars against them. The people of Cambodia are beginning to recover from the famine of last year, but they face the threat of another famine in late spring if they don't receive more international aid. Refugees on the Thai border say that the Vietnamese and their hand-picked Cambodian officials are stockpiling food and the peasant have little to eat.

International diplomats have no idea how to persuade the Vietnamese to withdraw and let the Cambodians decide for themselves how to rebuild their country. Refugees on the Thai border say that the Vietnamese and their handpicked Cambodian officials are stockpiling food and the peasants have little to eat. And the Khmer Rouge could return again.

"Of course your country does not want to give arms to fight another war in Indochina," he said. "The Chinese want the Khmer Rouge to fight their proxy war against Vietnam...The Vietnamese, they are like a man who has a very delicious piece of cake in his mouth - Cambodia - and all that man can do is swallow the cake."

The politicians were impressed. One Administration official who met the prince confessed that he was surprised at the compassion Sihanouk arouses, at Sihanouk's gentle brilliance.

But American officials seem to want to find hope in Sihanouk. The US government paid for all of the prince's expenses in Washington - his hotel room, cars, meals, etc. It was the idea of Secretary fo State Cyrus R. Vance, a man who openly admires Sihanouk.

The prince has another patron. "My good friend (North Korean Premier) Kim Il-Sung," Sihanouk says, "paid for my airplane ticket," The price's mission is a joint venture, the first perhaps, of the United States and North Korea, as one American pointed out.

"Sihanouk operates on a number of levels," a State Department official said. "What we hope is that Sihanouk retains his position...It is absolutely essential that he be treated with respect. Not as a US candidate to return to Cambodia, but as the important historical figure he is." ● china opposes u.s. peace movement

As China prepared to join the Carter administration in high-level talks on Afghanista, its official organ Beijing Review criticized the growing U.S. movement in opposition to Washington's renewal of cold war policies.

Deputy Foreign Minister Zhang Wenjin met State Department officials in Washington this week to discuss common strategy and tactics against the Soviet Union. Since the U.S. and China are not formally allied, the meeting was described as dealing with actions in response to Moscow's invasion which the two countries are taking separately, but which are based on shared interests. The security of Pakistan was expected to be a key topic. (Pakistan recently rejected a direct U.S. military aid offer and is evidently seeking support instead from Beijing, Saudi Arabia and Western Europe, while it maintains a nonaligned posture.)

China's leaders have recently identified "opposition to hegemonism" (meaning the USSR) as the country's main task in foreign affairs, formalizing the shift from a policy of nominally opposing both superpowers while viewing the Soviet Union as more dangerous. In a major policy speech delivered last January and now being studied throughout the country, Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping listed this task as one of China's three top priorities, along with modernization of the economy and reunification with Taiwan.

In line with this perspective, the Chinese press has taken favorable note of the recent steps taken by President Jimmy Carter to scuttle detente which China regards as "appeasement" and up the stakes of military contention with the USSR. It has now begun to criticize Americans who oppose Carter's militarist drive.

"Some U.S. congressmen and political figures are underestimating the Soviet designs for aggression and expansion," notes the March 10 Beijing Review. "They warn against overreaction to the Afghan invasion and a 'return to the cold war.'" In a clear reference to the revived anti-draft and anti imperialist movements, the article says, "Naturally, this view is approved by students who are reluctant to join the armed forces. Apparently the 'no return to cold war' argument still finds support among some people."

SUPPORTS PENTAGON CLAIMS

The report by Xinhua news agency's Washington correspondent says that while the view that detente should be amintained "reflects the desire of many people opposing tension in international relations," it is naive and actually benefits Soviet expansionism. In contrast, the author approvingly reports the success that has been achieved by the public opinion offensive by U.S. politicians and the media to promote fear of the USSR.

The article also repeats the Pentagon's argument that Moscow has achieved a military advantage over the U.S. and plans to drive to southward and gain control of strategic territory adjoining Afghanistan. Washington's recent moves to bolster its armed forces and gain a stronger position in the Mideast are referred to as legitimate "resistance to aggression."

The same issue of Beijing Review denounces President Leonid Brezhnev's February statement linking a Soviet troop withdrawal with a guarantee by the U.S. and Afghanistan's neighbors that all outside interference has been terminated. It states, "If states, "If other countries accept the unjustified demand to make such a 'guarantee,' they will fall into the Soviet trap of taking the blame, for they will fall into the Soviet trap of taking the blame, for they will be admitting that they are interfering in Afghanistan and that they are interfering in Afghanistan and that there is reason for the Soviet aggression. No self-respecting country would be willing to do such a stupid thing." This is also Washington's view.

The magazine also sides with the U.S. in the dispute with some of its allies over response to the Afghan invasion, calling for "rigorous sanctions" against the USSR and warning against a Soviet "detente offensive" intended to "sow discord among the Western countries."

(For its part, Moscow last week continued to criticize the West European proposal for an internationally guaranteed "neutral" Afghanistan, saying its real aim is to remove the government of President Babrak Karmal. Foreign Minister Andre Gromyko said that any settlement must respect the sovereignty of Afghanistan's "lawful government."

British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington nevertheless continued to campaign for the neutrality plan. He spent three days in Bucharest last week in a largely unsuccessful effort to obtain Romania's support. The joint communique issued after the meetings, while not directly mentioning Afghanistan of "neutrality," repeated Romania's implicit criticism of the invasion by emphasizing that "international disputes should be resolved exclusively be peaceful means, by negotiations, based firmly on respect for independence and national sovereignty, nonintervention in internal affairs and nonrecourse to force or threat of force." ●

William Ryan

nummo

In solidarity with the liberation struggle of the people of El Salvador, Eco Latino reprints this important message from the ERP.

nummo

THE PEOPLE'S REVOLUTIONARY ARMY (ERP) OF EL SALVADOR TO ALL NATIONS OF THE WORLD

EL SALVADOR IN STRUGGLE

The Salvadorian people are at present confronting a crucial moment in history, in search of their final liberation. The struggle that is now taking place in our country, expresses a people's right to be the author of its own destiny. For this reason, in order to exercise this right, we must not be deterred by the manipulation, the traps and even the direct intervention of American Imperialism, declared enemy of a country's right to self-determination and a firm ally of the oppressors of the world.

It is in this general context that our country, El Salvador, has suffered almost half a century of criminal and pitiless repression at the hands of murderous military dictatorships, which have protected the interests of American Imperialism and of the Salvadorian Oligarch, while keeping our people submerged in a terrible drama of poverty which ranks us among the countries with the highest indices of illiteracy, malnutrition, lack of housing, infant mortality, etc., in the world.

The existence of this situation of permanent oppression has made the Salvadorian people become unyielding in its effort to achieve an alternative which offers real liberty, democracy and self-determination, and to this end has developed its own means, evolving its popular organizations and strengthening its armed revolutionary movement.

The struggle, rapidly accelerating in this most recent stage, has provoked set-backs and superficial changes in government policy, in which American Imperialism has been the principal promoter.

It was in this situation that our convulsed nation heard all the fascist talk about "Dialogue and Free Elections" during the Romero era. The failure of this formula gave way to a "coup d'etat" in order to avoid the almost certain international isolation of the dictatorship of General Romero.

This coup, promoted by the Americans, did not signify, nor could it signify the solution to the problems of our people, since the intent was to impede construction by the people of a true democratic and popular alternative.

The perseverance and combativity of the Salvadorian people in its struggle, and the honesty of the democratic sectors who had naively believed in the viability of structural reforms in our society, made it impossible to consolidate the initial attempt at forming a governing junta, bringing to a noisy conclusion the first American maneuvre to this end.

There was no lack of opportunities, fence-sitters and reactionaries to offer themselves for a second imperialist manoeuvre, and a second pact, this time between the Christian Democrats and the most reactionary sectors of the military, was achieved.

The basis of this new pact was total acceptance of a demagogic plan of pseudo-reforms combined with cruel repression against the people. But some oligarchic groups and the army, in their voracity and tremendous criminal deformations have not even accepted this scheme, and are looking for one that doesn't speak at all of reforms, and that uses repression as the only solution to the problems of the country.

Therefore, it is clear, that the more reactionary sector of the Christian Democratic Party, the Oligarchy, Imperialism and the majority of the army are in agreement over one thing: to subjugate our people and destroy its organizations, since this is the fundamental prerequisite for any solution in their terms.

American Imperialism is directing the destiny of our country through the enormous control that it exercises over an army which is essentially murderous; which has in its ranks officials and troops who are blood-thirsty psychopaths, enemies of any form of popular organization; accustomed to making an entertainment out of the butchering of our people.

While this army exists in our country, a faithful servant of imperialism, and while the Oligarchy holds the economic power, there will be neither peace nor justice for our nation, and any government that does not have the popular sectors as the fundamental base for military, economic and political change, is a government condemned sooner or later to defeat.

REPRESSION AT PRESENT: 500 DEATHS IN FIVE MONTHS

The space we have here would not be adequate to write about the bloody repression which the Salvadorian people are suffering at this moment. Not one of the campaigns of repression carried out by the governments of General Romero or General Molina, before the coup of the 15th. of October 1979, can compare with the scope of the one being waged at the present time.

The number of deaths since the 15th. of October has surpassed 500 in less than five months. The persecution and assassination of leaders and militants of popular organizations is a daily occurrence.

—October 16th. 1979, repression in Mejicanos and Cuscatancingo ... more than 35 dead.

—October 17th. 1979, San Marcos and Boeques del Matazano ... more than 40 dead. These two incidents were repressions against uprisings led by the People's Revolutionary Army (ERP), and the Popular Leagues of the 28th. of February (LP-28).

—October 29th. 1979, repression of a demonstration of the Popular Leagues of the 28th. of February (LP-28) ... 75 dead, 21 of which had to be buried inside the El Rosario Church in San Salvador because the army surrounding the church constituted a threat of a further massacre to the burial procession.

—October 31st. 1979, massacre of a demonstration of the Popular Revolutionary Bloc (BPR) ... 20 dead.

—December 12th. 1979, in Berlin, department of Usulután, the evacuation of a hacienda occupied by the Popular Leagues of the 28th. of February (LP-28) ... 5 dead.

—December 15th. 1979, disoccupation of the hacienda "El Porvenir", occupied by the Popular Leagues of the 28th. of February (LP-28) ... 100 dead. In this incident eyewitnesses saw American soldiers taking part in the operation.

—January 22nd. 1980, a demonstration of unity (BPR, LP-28, UDN, MLP and FAPU) is repressed ... more than 40 dead.

—February 12th. 1980, the locale of the Christian Democratic Party, occupied by the Popular Leagues of the 28th. of February (LP-28) is disoccupied, and a demonstration of the Popular Revolutionary Bloc (BPR) is repressed. ... These two incidents result in more than 25 dead.

It is not always known exactly how many deaths are produced by this repression in rural areas, because military cordons impede access to these zones.

The cruelty with which the forces of repression act is terrifying, and as a small example we refer to the evacuation of the locale of the Christian Democratic Party, occupied peacefully by the Popular Leagues of the 28th. of February (LP-28). The repressive forces of the National Police, the National Guard and the Police of the Treasury Department took the occupants by surprise, entering from the roofs of neighboring houses, and shooting and killing the first group of occupants they found. Then they cut down remaining occupants, beating them savagely, along with the hostages. A member of the National Police forced a militant of the LP-28 to take off her underclothes and then inserted the muzzle of his G-3 rifle into her genitals while beating her and insulting her.

After forcing them to lie down on the floor they proceeded to ask who was responsible for the occupation. The leaders of the militants of the LP-28, Victor Orlando Quintanilla and Jaime Edgardo López, bravely answered, raising their heads and saying that it was they. An agent of the National Police then inserted the muzzle of his rifle in the mouth of comrade Victor and shot and killed him. Before they killed him, however, and when he realized he was about to be killed, comrade Victor Quintanilla said, "Comrades, be strong! keep your morale high!." Jaime suffered the same fate and was also assassinated, as was comrade Maristela Serrano, another leader of the LP-28, who received all the shots in her genitals.

In all of these incidents hundreds of people have disappeared, captured by the security forces. Later, their bodies have appeared cruelly and psychopathically dismembered.

This is only a small account of the degree of cruelty and savagery of the Salvadorian Military Forces, and these repressive incidents, just as the heroism of confronting them, occur daily in El Salvador. This is the peace, the reforms, the democracy, and the liberty that the Americans, the oligarchy and the army want to impose upon us. This is the peace of death which, confused or malintentioned, the governments of Venezuela, Costa Rica, West Germany, England, Spain and the countries of the "Pacto Andino" are voluntarily supporting.

On behalf of all our nation we call on Amnesty International, the Commission on Human Rights of the United Nations and of the Organization of American States, to visit our country and prove what we are saying. Many foreign reporters have been witnesses and, at times, almost victims of incidents such as those we have mentioned.

We also call on the International Press to visit the rural areas of our country in order to witness the cruel repression that thousands of the peasant families must suffer and who in the next months will suffer as well from a terrible famine, because this repression has impeded the establishment and cultivation of their tiny parcels of land, from which they are to survive the rest of the year.

IS CIVIL WAR A DANGER FOR OUR PEOPLE?

The argument about violence and the evils of war which for the poor and exploited have always existed, is now being used to condemn the just and heroic struggle with which the Salvadorian people have begun to defend themselves against so many years of oppression.

The war which is in fact taking place was not started by the people. However, the people are acting in their legitimate defense against the imposition, the permanent repression and the tremendous poverty with which they have finally lost patience, and which has obliged them to prepare themselves and devise new tactics, in an accelerated and creative way, including the organization of their own military forces.

There are those who argue that it is the strikes and the organised activities that are responsible for the fact that there is no work and that the economic crisis is growing worse. What has in fact happened is that this organised action on the part of the people has destabilized the economic situation to such a degree that the oligarchy is destroying everything by withdrawing all the money from the country, closing down factories, selling property and creating economic bankruptcy.

But it should be asked whether the solution is to accept the peace of exploitation and death that they wish to impose by eliminating the popular organizations.

There is only one solution: that the people take in their hands what legitimately belong to them, the huge plantations of coffee, sugar, cotton; the huge factories, the banks and all the properties of the oligarchy; this is the definitive solution and no other that would keep us subjected to poverty and permanent repression is acceptable.

Now, the sectors of the murderous and reactionary right wing, attribute all the problems to communist subversion. They say that everything that is happening is part of a plan carefully prepared by International Communism. But we who they call subversives have not invented 50 years of military dictatorship, nor have we invented the tortures nor the electoral fraud, nor the massacres, nor the exiles. Nor have we cheated the poor by making them believe that they are poor, and that they are hungry and needy.

If we have made careful plans, they haven't been made in order to cheat anybody. They have been made so that the truth be known and so that the people prepare themselves for the conquest of their legitimate rights.

The assassins of the Right raise the banners of Fatherland, Liberty, God and Work, talking about the Democratic and Representative Republic. But the Fatherland they defend belongs to fourteen families; their Liberty, the exploitation and humiliation of the workers; their God, the god of money, to buy consciences and corrupt the work of slavery and misery. These are not the values of our people. They are the values of a handful of oppressors and reactionaries.

The Reactionary Right has the effrontery to refer to the lazy female trash of the Feminine Fronts as "The People", when in fact they are nothing more than the wives of ambitious, opportunistic bourgeois and petty bourgeois. It is clear that the only thing this group of social parasites knows about is how to spend the money that their husbands rob from the Salvadorian workers. This social scum, that used to entertain itself with teas, canasta parties, traveling and displaying extravagance and jewelry, has had to come out on the streets to ask for the peace of cemeteries and the work of slavery for the poor, because they no longer can enjoy themselves the way they once did, due to the struggle which is unfolding within our country.

And this sector constitutes a part of what is known as "The Productive Element" of our society, or the business sector, as are the children of the bourgeois families; who are now joining the rank and file of the armed rightist groups: OLC, UGB, FALCA and others, trained by Major Roberto D'Aubuisson and the security corps.

AMERICAN IMPERIALISM'S PLANS FOR INTERVENTION

American Imperialism's big worry — that a government with dissimilar interests could gain power in our country — is forcing it to put into action a plan escalating intervention, which even includes direct military intervention in Salvadorian territory.

The American Government — State Department, C.I.A., and Pentagon — is convinced that in order to exercise control over the region, it is necessary to repress and subjugate the forces which in our country are struggling for revolutionary transformation supported by direct participation of the people in political, military and economical affairs.

The American Government knows that its principal weapon is the reactionary army, and for this reason keeps it in power and is opposed to any plan which would exchange this disgraceful and corrupt army for a popular and revolutionary one.

American military intervention has already begun in El Salvador. Uniformed Americans, in the capacity of chiefs of operations, participated in the December 15th. massacre of more than 100 peasants in El Congo. On January 23rd. marines in custody of the American Embassy captured two students, members of the Popular Revolutionary Bloc (BPR), in the vicinity of the Embassy, and later turned them over to the National Guard — a fact acknowledged by the person with power of attorney for the embassy. These two students are now listed as "Disappeared."

During the past few days an enormous American military mission has arrived in our country: advisors and military technicians in counter-insurrection, veterans of Viet Nam, are here giving courses to officials and classes in the General Headquarters of the armed forces. Technicians in explosives in other branches of the repressive forces such as the National Police, the National Guard, and the Police of the Treasury Department, are of American nationality.

Heavy artillery, helicopters, small and large tanks with a heavy supply of munitions have arrived in the country from the United States and Israel.

The American plan to subjugate our country consists of the establishment of a military cordon around our country, using the armies of Honduras and Guatemala. At the same time, with the support of the Christian Democrats, who are in power, they hope that the government of Venezuela will back them and participate in the intervention with economic, political, and military aid, counting on the added support of the countries of the "Pacto Andino."

In recent days a military mission from Venezuela, headed by General Dario Murillo Andrade visited our country and met with the Minister of Defense, who is considered by all popular forces to be responsible for the majority of massacres in the country since the 15th. of October 1979.

The American Government is also using the Costa Rica Government to help look for political support for the Salvadorian Government.

This whole plan is fundamental in terms of American foreign policy, since American Imperialism seeks to avoid international disapproval over its direct intervention, in a vast repressive plan for our country in which the intention is to systematically annihilate more than 30,000 people.

We call upon all conscientious Americans who want an end to war, and we call upon their organizations that are in favor of peace and self-determination, to support the struggle against the imposition of these criminal interventionist plans in our country.

We call upon all conscientious Americans who want an end to war, and we call upon their organizations that are in favor of peace and self-determination, to support the struggle against the imposition of these criminal interventionist plans in our country.

We call upon the people and democratic forces of Venezuela to keep from compromising the democratic ideals of their government, and not allow the government of COPEI to lend support to a government which is repressive and anti-popular, such as exists in our country.

The Christian Democratic Party in our country is a group of corrupt petty politicians that does not have the least amount of popular support, the proof of which is demonstrated by a recent meeting that they announced, which was supposedly attended by more than 100,000 persons. Even with all the official guarantees and an immense propaganda campaign only 1,000 people showed up, of whom 90% were peasants who belonged to another organization (UCS), and whose leaders later made it clear that they did not support the Christian Democrats, and that they had been used and coerced into participating in the meeting. Mr. Duarte, leader of the Christian Democratic Party, said that the failure was due to public fear of the ultra left and the ultra right.

On the other hand, there was a demonstration on January 22nd. of the Union of Popular Organizations: BPR, LP-28, UDN, MLP and FAPU. Some 300,000 people participated in this demonstration, and the procession covered approximately 4½ to 5 km. in length.

This is an incident without precedent in the history of our country. Never before has there been a concentration of people of this magnitude. Even so, thousands of demonstrators were not able to attend because they had been detained or captured by military patrols in the outskirts of their villages. Airplanes belonging to the oligarchy flew over the demonstration, spraying people with insecticide, later the National Guard and National Police attacked the crowd, leaving more than 40 dead.

In spite of all this the people were not afraid that day, and the following day, January 23rd., another demonstration filled the streets. More than 50,000 people members of the BPR, the LP-28 and the MLP, gathered to bury some of the casualties of the previous day's massacre.

It is clear, then, that political and military support given to a government which denies the participation of the people and popular organizations will not be support for a process of war against a tiny insurrectional group which can be subjugated by special forces.

Any intervention in our country will only serve to bring about a cruel and merciless war against a whole nation, causing thousands of deaths, useless deaths as well, because it is no longer possible to deter the will of the Salvadorian people to become the author of its own historical destiny.

INSURRECTIONAL MILITARY ACTIVITY OF THE PEOPLE'S REVOLUTIONARY ARMY (ERP)

The People's Revolutionary Army (ERP) constitutes part of the most advanced sectors of the population that are struggling for liberation of our country, and that have resolutely taken up army in this war of legitimate defense against the oppressors of our people.

In recent months our military forces have intensified their actions, taking towns, villages, cantons, suburbs and sections of cities, preparing the people for the tasks of insurrection.

More than 75 military operations have been carried out in recent days, and dozens of persons responsible for repression in different parts of the country have been executed; patrols of the National Guard, the National Police and the Treasury Department Police have been attacked, resulting in casualties which are later hidden from official bulletins of the Press of the Permanent Advisory Council of the Armed Forces (COPEFA), in order to avoid demoralization of the troops and to keep from raising the morale of the people with the news of the increased effectiveness of their military forces.

As part of our military activity we have captured elements of the oligarchy in order to oblige them to pay War-Tax in exchange for their freedom. Regarding this, the reactionary right has tried to discredit the revolutionary organization by constantly asking, "What do the subversives do with the money from the kidnappings?", and they make accounts over what they have paid to the organizations, trying in this way to say that it has been squandered. The answer to this question is simple: the people also need money in order to wage war, and what we have done is to recuperate part of the money that belongs to our people — which for the moment is in the hands of the oligarchy — in order to convert it into better organization, more arms, more propaganda, and in this way cover all the costs implied in the process of the People's Revolutionary War. The money that we recuperate is not used for luxury, nor is it wasted, nor is it spent for mercenary assassins. It is used for the people's conquest of justice and peace.

As part of our military activity, on the 3rd. of March, military forces of the Central Front of our Army, "COMANDANTE RAFAEL ANTONIO ARCE ZABLAH", under the direct command of members of our General Headquarters carried out an artillery attack against the Central barracks of the National Guard in San Salvador. In order to carry out this operation our military forces took the town of Ciudad Delgado situated on the East side of the National Guard, and with barricades and mines closed all the access routes to the town. At the same time squadrons of artillery, using arms of 100 mm calibre, opened fire against the barracks of troops and officials. This assault continued for 15 minutes, causing innumerable casualties. Later, agents of the National Police who tried to deactivate the mines were killed when the mechanisms of these devices activated.

And along with this contribution of ours to the struggle is added the growing limited activity of the combatants of the Popular Forces of Liberation — Farabundo Marti — (FPL), which, like our own military forces, is preparing the people for the Insurrection, through constant activities in different parts of the country. Also forming a part of the forces of the people are the combatants of the Revolutionary Party of Central American Workers (PRTC); the armed forces of the National Resistance (FARN); and the Communist Party of El Salvador (PCS). All of these forces are advancing the cause of the People's Revolutionary War, and are preparing the people for the insurrectional struggle which is close at hand.

THE GOVERNMENT PROPOSED BY THE PEOPLE'S REVOLUTIONARY ARMY (ERP)

We propose a Popular Democratic Government in which the different popular sectors will participate: revolutionaries and democrats, in a wide alliance unified around a basic program. All popular and revolutionary organizations should participate in such a government, as well as the democratic parties, the associations of small -and middle-business men from the various economic sectors; those technicians and professionals who are honest; those patriotic and honest officials of the Army, who are fully disposed to participate; and also the progressive elements of the clergy, all social and political sectors and others who identify with the basic program. The fundamental element in this alliance is full respect for the different ideologies or tendencies, and common accord concerning the definition of a wide popular democratic front based on the common objective at a revolution which is anti-oligarchic and anti-imperialist.

THE GOVERNMENTAL PROGRAM PROPOSED BY THE PEOPLE'S REVOLUTIONARY ARMY (ERP)

The changes implemented by the Popular Democratic Government will embrace every aspect of the social, political and economic structure.

Economic Considerations:

—Expropriation without right to indemnization of all properties in the hands of the oligarchy in the different economic levels, and their subsequent re-distribution as collective, communal, or state properties. This measure infers the realization of Agrarian, Industrial and Urban Reforms, without affecting the small -and middle-businessman to whom incentives and support are offered.
—Expropriation of all Imperialism enterprises, and the abandonment of all treaties which subject our country to economic dependence.
—Management of the national economy on the basis of a system of national planning which embraces all branches, sectors and regions.
—Organization of an economic system based on collective property, communal property, state property, and private holdings of small and medium size.
—Nationalization of the export of coffee, cotton, sugar and other products.
—Nationalization of the financial and banking system.
—Nationalization of the production of electrical energy and the refinement of petroleum.
—Creation of a national transit system, based on cooperatives, small businessmen, and a state transit corporation. Nationalization of the import of transit vehicles and their repair parts.

Social Considerations:

—Socialization of medicine, including free medical attention and free medicine for all Salvadorians, and the implementation of an intensive program of preventive medicine.
—Socialization of education, making it free for all people at all levels.
—Development of massive programs for the construction of rural and urban housing, and the establishment of plans to contain immigration.
—Development of a massive literacy program.

Political Considerations:

—Creation of a new army with popular orientation and profound revolutionary conviction, composed of:
a) The popular insurrectional forces.
b) The patriotic military sectors of the National Army disposed to defend revolutionary conquests with a new mentality based on patriotic and social interest.
—The dissolution of the security forces and the creation of popular defense committees to safeguard the immediate interests of the people.
—Establishment of new local power structures, based on direct and permanent popular participation.
—Abolition of the Political Constitution, and the dissolution of the existing judicial system, in order to establish a new legal order based on popular interests.
—Withdrawal from all military treaties of a pro-imperialist nature, such as CONDECA, TIAR and others considered to be instruments of intervention.
—The integration of our country into the Non-Aligned Movement, and the establishment of relations with all countries in agreement with revolutionary principals and national interests, regardless of ideology or social system.
—The firm defense of an independent international policy, which is in favor of the self-determination of all countries, and showing solidarity to those countries that are struggling for the exercise of this right.

Other Considerations:

—Guarantee the people's right to practice the religious faith of their choice.
—Guarantee the freedom of expression.

TO ALL NATIONS OF THE WORLD.

We call on all nations of the world to offer material, political and militant solidarity to the people of El Salvador, who in this moment are living through a period of heroic and decisive struggle.

We would also like to send fraternal revolutionary greetings from the trenches of combat of our homeland to all the nations of Asia, Africa and Latin America, who are fighting against Imperialism, each in its own ways.

UNITY OF THE REVOLUTIONARY FORCES, KEY TO POPULAR VICTORY

Any effort in this struggle would be in vain if it were not directed towards a real, legitimate process of revolutionary unity. This necessitates the full and total concurrence of all forces which in these past few years have consolidated the organic, political and military structures of the Salvadorian revolutionary struggle. In this regard we welcome the process of unity which has begun to take place among the popular and revolutionary organization.

We firmly believe in the necessity for unity as a historical requisite in this moment, and for this reason we are opposed to any proposal which excludes unity. We are also opposed to expressions of immaturity and subjectivity that could obstruct a real process of unification.

In the struggle for unity our organization has, in these past few years, known how to maintain a clear position in respect to the organizations, and in this regard we have made an effort to explain to them the essence of our position, without underrating or discrediting these other forces. We believe that it is the duty of the organized sectors of the population to demand of their revolutionary forces a level of conduct which is increasingly mature; that they inspire confidence in the Salvadorian people, and in those nations which offer us their solidarity; so that in our country there exists a revolutionary movement that is ready to assume the enormous historical responsibility of guiding our people to victory. This is the task that the most thoroughly prepared elements amongst the organized Salvadorians must perform at this moment, so that together they will compose the future vanguard of the Salvadorian Revolution.

We greet the heroic comrades of the Popular Forces of Liberation (FPL) Farabundo Marti, and we applaud the maturity and profound conviction they are showing in this moment; likewise we greet the comrades of the Salvadorian Communist Party, PCS, who for a long time have tried to promote a unified process.

We salute the growing force of the comrades of the Revolutionary Party of Central American Workers (PRTC), and we also greet the comrades of the National Resistance (RN).

Finally, to the Salvadorian people and to all nations of the world, we reaffirm OUR UNALTERABLE DECISION TO FIGHT FOR THE REVOLUTION IN OUR COUNTRY UNTIL:

CONQUEST OR DEATH

LONG LIVE THE UNITY OF ALL THE POPULAR FORCES!!
LONG LIVE THE PEOPLE'S REVOLUTIONARY ARMY — ERP!!
LONG LIVE THE CENTRAL FRONT "COMMANDER RAFAEL ANTONIO ARCE ZABLAH"!!
LONG LIVE THE EASTERN FRONT "COMMANDER MIGUEL ANGEL GAMEZ"!!
LONG LIVE THE WESTERN FRONT "COMMANDER EDGAR ANTONIO SALMERON"!!
LONG LIVE THE EAST-CENTRAL FRONT "COMMANDER LEONEL AREVALO MARTINEZ"!!
GLORY TO THE HEROES OF THE NATION FALLEN IN THE STRUGGLE TO WIN OUR FREEDOM!!

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS OF THE PEOPLE'S REVOLUTIONARY ARMY (ERP)

Commander JOAQUIN VILLALOBOS
HUEZO COMMANDER IN CHIEF
Commander JORGE ANTONIO MELENDEZ 2nd. IN-COMMANDER
Commander ANA SONIA MEDINA
Commander JUAN RAMON MEDRANO
Commander OCTAVIO PONCE

FRIDAY LATIN-AMERICAN WOMEN'S WEEKEND SATURDAY
7 PM DEDICATION CEREMONY MARY WILDER HALL (BASEMENT FLOOR)
9 PM FILM THE LIFE AND WORKS OF FREDA KAHLO HOOKER AUDITORIUM
10AM TO 12 NOON WORSHOP: OPTIONS AFTER A LIBERAL ART COLLEGE
1:30 PM TO 4 PM WOMEN'S WORKSHOP MARY WOOLLEY HALL NEW YORK ROOM
8 PM CONCERT: JOSY LATORRE CHAPIN AUDITORIUM

JOSY LATORRE
y La Nueva Cancion Latinoamericana

SATURDAY
APRIL 5,
1980 8:00 PM
CHAPIN HALL
MT. HOLYOKE COLLEGE
ON ROUTE 116
TAKE THE 5 COLLEGE BUS
FROM SMITH COLLEGE-NORTHAMPTON
UMASS AND AMHERST COLLEGE-AMHERST
TICKETS $2 CHILDREN $3 SUDENTS $4 GENERAL PUBLIC
TICKETS AND RESERVATIONS (413) 538-2078 WHEELCHAIR ACCESSIBLE

LA UNIDAD
AT MOUNT HOLYOKE COLLEGE
SOUTH HADLEY MASS
PRESENTS
JOSY LATORRE
PUERTO RICAN FOLKLORIC SINGER

PRODUCTION: LA UNIDAD • TALLER AUSUBO

Entrevista con Josy Latorre

Por: Jose "Chiqui" Garcia

Que es la Nueva Concion Folklorica•

Es una tendencia musical que combina los ritmos tradicionales del folklore en America Latina con mensajes de concientizacion•

A Que te refieres cuando hablas de trabajos de concientizacion•"

Mensajes a traves de la lirica de poetas nacionales comprometidos con el rescate cultural y la liberacion de America Latina, El interprete puede adoptar esa lirica o componer trabajos originales orientados hacia el cambio social.

Se puede decir que la Nueva Cancion Folklorica es Cancion Protesta•

La cancion Protesta se origino para finales de la decada del '60. La Nueva Cancion Folklorica sin dejar de ser radical o vertical en su intencion, presenta un enfoque distinto a traves de la cultura. Al ofrecerle a la gente una reafirmacion de su identidad cultural y nacional a traves de nuestros trabajos despertamos en ellos una preocupacion por la necesidad y urgencia de preservarla de elementos externos. Eso a su vez constituye un paso mas en el proceso de liberacion de los pueblos.

Existen otros movimientos como el de la Nueva Cancion Folklorica en otros paises de Latino America•

El Movimiento de Nueva Cancion Folklorica de Puerto Rico esta intimamente vinculade con movimientos similares en el resto de America Latina. Los trabajos de interpretes de Nueva Cancion en Chile, Cuba, Uruguay, Argentina y las Republica Dominicana llegan a Puerto Rico. Su compromiso con el rescate y liberacion de America Latina ha sido un valisos punto de referencia parar el Movimiento de Nueva Cancion Folklorica de Puerto Rico El Primer Encuentro de La Nueva Cancion Puertorriquena y Dominicana celebrade en las Republica Dominicana en 1978 fue el resultado de un esfuerzo conjunto de los movimientos de Nueva Cancion en dos paise hermanos de America Latina. Fue una experiencia muy valiosa para todos los que participamos.

Cuanto tiempo llevas realizando este tipo de trabajo musical•

He sido cantante durante los ultimos nueve anos. Con la Nueva Cancion Folklorica llevo trabajando cinco anos.

Tu escribes las canciones que interpretas•

Yo escribo poesia y especificamente una modalidad conocida como "decima." 'Decima" se refiere a una composicion de diez versos octosilabicos que el jibaro puertorriqueno canta utilizando diferentes modalidades de una musica muy arraigada tambien en el folklore.

La gente en Puerto Rico respalda la Nueva Cancion Folklorica•

Desde 1975 el Movimiento de Nueva Cancion Puertorriquena ha crecido mucho. Los grupos y solistas han logrado entrar a los medios de communicacion con sus trabajos sin la necesidad de comercializarlo. Grupos tales como Moliendo Vidrio reorganizado 1975 en Amherst por un grupo de estudiantes de UMass y Haciendo Punto En Otro Son (del cual fui miembro fundador y vocalista) han podido realizar y llevar a la gente un trabajo responsable con la musica de Puerto Rico y Latinoamerica.

Has grabado algun disco•

Si participe en la grabacion de un trabajo colectivo titulado "Memorias." Tambien como parte de Haciendo Punto En Otro Son grabe tres discos de larga duracion.

Te has presentado en concierto alguna vez en esta area•

En 1978 participe con Haciendo Punto En Otro Son en una gira por la costa este de Estados Unidos. Como parte de la Semana Latinoamericana en UMass nos presentamos en el Student Union. En noviembre de 1978 presente mi concierto "De Lejos Vengo Cantando" en Bowker Auditorium.

Quienes son los musicos que te acompanan•

Uno grupo de musicos radicados en Boston bajo la direccion de Eduardo Marin. Algunos son puertorriquenos, uno argentino y dos norteamericanos. A traves de un trabajo colectivo y mucho interes y esfuerscante, serio, y responsable con la cultura de Puerto Rico y America Latina.

Cuales son tus planes inmediatos•

Mi proxima presentacion sera el dia 5 de abril a las 8:00 P.M. en Mt. Holyoke College como parte del Fin De Semana de La Mujer Latinoamericana. Estas presentaciones son posibles gracias al esfuerzo de Taller Ausubo.

Que es Taller Ausubo•

"Ausubo" es el nombre de uno de los arboles mas fuertes de P.R.. Es un colectivo de trabajadores del arte comprometido con la difusion de los valores culturales y la interaccion entre latinoamericanos y otros miembros del Tercer Mundo. Entre sus miembros se encuentran Julia Santiago - Coordinadora Bob Korb - Director Escenico, David Lemaire - Relaciones Publicas al iguel que el resto de los musicos y yo.

Quisieras anadir algo mas•

Quisiera expresar mi agradecimiento a nombre de Taller Ausubo a algunas personas que han respaldado nuestro trabajo y nos han brindado su ayuda para lograr llevarlo al publico.

Cuando y donde sera tu proximo concierto•

Mi proxima presentacion sera el 5 de abril de 1980 a las 8:00 P.M. en Chapin Aucitorium, Mary Wooley Hall, Mt. Holyoke College

Josy Latorre, interprete de la Nueva Cancion Folklorica Puertorriquena se presenta en concierto el 5 de abril de 1980 a las 8:00pm en Mount Holyoke College. El concierto, como parte de la Semama Latinoamericana, se llevara a cabo en Chapin Auditorium, Mary Wooley Hall, Mt. Holyoke College. Auspicia La Unidad.

A different way to celebrate Mother's Day

In recent months we have witnessed attempts by the media to underplay, or even cover up, the violent acts of repression in Latin America. The much heralded report by the State Department on violations of human rights throughout the world conveniently found Vietnam and Cambodia as the worst perpetrators and presented a rosy picture of all the recent "improvements" in Latin America.

Of course, this report did not even mention the continous massacres of peasants and indigenous people with total impunity-these two sectors have yet to attain full human status to qualify for mention in the documentation of human right violations.

Today, something is happening in Latin America. Those with the least power, women, peasants and indigenous people are rising up. What despots do not understand is that one day people have no fear left, one day they stand up knowing that the only alternative left is to stand up, speak up, and fight for their freedom.

Yes, women in Latin America are standing up to the military regimes. They know they (and the clergy) are the only ones left who can make a public statement of opposition. Yes, they are taking a chance, they have a 50-50 chance of "disappeared. They know that the odds against young males and females, the labor, peasant and intellectual leaders are far worse.

Back in April 1976, one Thursday morning a group of mothers held a silent vigil in Plaza de Mayo in Buenos Aires, Argentina. They were there to protest the disappearance of their loved ones. A week later they were there again, only this time there were a few more. Today they continue to be there and similar acts have spread throughout Latin America. The response of the military in Argentina was to brand these women "Las locas de Plaza de Mayo" (crazed women of Plaza de Mayo) and to charge that some of these women were not "legitimate" mothers. Needless to say, some of these women joined the ranks of the "disappeared."

On May 10th of this year a demonstration will be held to celebrate Mother's Day appropriately. Let us commemorate the strenght and courage of women in Latin America. Let us demonstrate against the media whitewash of oppression. Let us show our solidarity with the people of Latin America.

To organize this action a meeting will be held on Monday, April 7, at 7pm in the Campus Center. The room will be posted by the escalator.

archie shepp

in concert

The Vocal Jazz and Afro-American Music Ensemble of UMass will present the world-reowned jazz saxophonist, Archie Shepp and his Ensemble in a benefit concert on Thursday, April 3, 1980, at 8pm in the Campus Center Auditorium on the campus of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

Tickets many be secured from FROM THE RECORD in Amherst and TIX in the Student Center on the campus.

Horace C. Boyer
Department of Music and Dance
University of Massachusetts
Amherst, Massachusetts 01003
(413) 545-2279

L. Van Jackson
Black Cultural Center
Univeristy of Massachusetts
Amherst, Massachusetts 01003
(413) 545-2498

"i was born in Fort Lauderdale in 1937...we lived there about seven years, then moved to Philly, where I lived most of my life. I started playing when I was about 15 years old. My aunt got me a saxophone...she had had no children of her own. I had had a clarinet a few years before, an old silver horn. We also had an old, old upright for as long as I was home. My father was a banjo player from the old days. He used to play in Florida with a few groups.

"We lived in the Germantown area of Philly, which was mostly white bourgeois area, but there were these pocket ghettoes like the one we used to live in, right there among the whites. They called the ghetto I lived in "The Brickyard." So I got a chance to go to Germantown High, which was a pretty good school. They usually tried to funnel the Negro students out of there into Gratz and Gillespie in the larger Negro areas. But there were some guys playing at the high school I went to.

"Mastbaum was the school -- though...that's where there were a whole lot of cats playing...that's north Philly. Most of the cats lived further south in north Philly. Everybody was trying to get that early Jazz Messenger sound them. Lee Morgan and an alto player named Kenny Rogers really got me started playing jazz. Kenny first recorded with Lee...He used to sound like early Lou Donalidson...you know, that great big alto sound.

"There was a place called the Jazz Workshop, run by a disco jockey, I used to go there after school. I guess that was the place where I really began to hear it. Before that I just heard my father, mostly Dixieland and r&b.

"Lee frequented the place all the time...He and Kenny were like local heroes, and this was about the time that Lee was 14. He was a very young cat, but he was playing.

At the Workshop, Shepp recalled, they'd have people like Chet Baker and Russ Freeman as the main group, but after they had finish, "They let the young cats come on and play. I started talking to Lee at this place one time and went home with him and Kenny.

"They asked me who I liked. I said Brubeck and Getz. And they really wigged out...but they were being very, very hip. I was square as a mother. You can imagine the reaction. They said, 'Oh yeah?' So then these cats asked me to take out my horn and play something. I had a C-melody sax about that time, and I guess I had a sort of Stan Getz sound. Print that laugh!

"Lee was doing everything he could to keep from laughing in my face. But then he pulled out his horn and played the blues with me. The blues was something I'd been playing for a long time, because of my old man. I heard a lot of blues then...I had to forget all about my Stan Getz stuff. They I just played like I play. I didn't know any chord changes at all, but I could hear the blues. So then these cats stopped playing and said yeah, that was right. Then after that they sort of took an interest in me. It was my introduction to real jazz music."

For Shepp another important to jazz was hearing Charlies-Parker at a concert one night, opposite a 39-piece band led by arranger Herb Gordy (Oscar Pettiford, Red Rodney, Don Elliot, and Terry Gibbs were in the band).

During high school there were the inevitable rhythm-and-blues- gigs that have served to keep so many jazz players alive -- and also have given them a strong blues foundation. Shepp played around Phiadelphia in an r&b group with Lee Morgan and Kenny Rogers called Carl Rogers and His Jolly Stompers.

"Lee turned me on to changes," Shepp recalled. "Ihad learned them, but I didn't know how to use them. Lee and Kenny helped me find out how to use changes rhythnically."

After high school, the hand of liberal America took hold of Shepp as "the Negro" they wanted to see go to a "progressive" college.

"I wanted to go to college," he said, "but my parents sure couldn't send me. I applied to Lincoln University and could have gotten partial scholarship. But then this college in Vermont, Goddard, put out the word that they were looking for a Negro student to

TURN TO PAGE 8

t.v. news: action, drama and bias

By Kevin J. Kelley

No wonder the opinion polls show most Americans favoring draft registration, bigger Pentagon budgets and cutbacks in social spending.

Some 53 million of them watch the television network news every evening, with a large proportion of these viewers relying on TV news as their primary or sole source of information about current events.

In a variety of subtle ways and through a sophisticated technology, television journalism conveys an extremely biased and simplistic interpretation of reality in the guise of objectivity and hard fact. The three major networks-CBS; ABC and NBC-have a profound impact on the national consciousness as they shape perception and opinion into contours that conform with the status quo subscribed to by the big corporations who pay for the news advertising and reflect the worldview of the U.S. ruling class. TV news presents tidy fragments of information in a carefully designed format, while the selection of stories and their manner of coverage is determined by corporate premises and by the shadowy hand of government regulation.

Some of the limitations, distortions and omissions apparent in the nightly presentations are endemic to the medium as it has been developed in the U.S. over the past 35 years. Other slantings and misrepresentations are peculiar to TV news-the result of a deliverate attempt to package contemporary happenings in a way that supposedly respects "objectivity" while meeting the demands of the programs' economic underpinnings. The combined effect is a slick half-hour show that reinforces class-based assumptions and helps to preserve the legitimacy of the capitalist system.

Take, for example, two randomly selected broadcast-the CBS Evening NEWS OF March 5 and 13. Analyzing the style and content of this network's news progam is particularsuhisvyfjudience and has a larger news budget than either NBC or ABC. The show also features Walter Cronkite, an "anchor man" whose impending retirement has occasioned long, laudatory eulogies to "the quintessential television journalist."

Just prior to the start of both programs, a fluttering American flay appeared on the screen for about two seconds. The stage was thus subliminally set for Cronkite to tell 20 million people about the day's events in his uniquely paternal, reassuring and superficial manner.

Within the 22 minutes set aside for news during the show -the other eight minutes are reserved for commercials 20 stories were covered on both evenings. Their average length is slightly more than one minute, although this mean figure is somewhat misleading since several items occupied less than 30 seconds while a few ran on for as long as four minutes. But whatever their duration or subject matter, all 40 stories were presented in a standard format.

continued to page 8

is anderson an independent?

By Robert Teixeira

There's has been alot of speculation that Representative John Anderson of Illinois, may run as an independent candidate, and this candidacy has drawn support from many who are dissatisfied with the Democratic and Republican corporate parties.

What is Anderson's record? Is he really an independent, offering a new point of view?

Actually not.

On the most fundamental issues of Nuclear power, labor rights, military spending, and consumer protection, John Anderson repeatedly voted against public interests.

Anderson has been one of the Nuclear industry's most vocal champions in Congress; he voted in favor of the nuetron bomb and B-1 bomber; he voted to exclude migrant farm workers from unemployment benefits, voted against the creation of the consumer Protection Agency, voted to deny food stamps to strikers, and tried to block extension of the minimum wage of 950,000 retail and service workers.

It is niether inconceivable nor paranoid to speculate that Anderson is in fact being used to split liberal Republican votes and insure Ronald Reagon's candidacy - or to run as "independent" to capture enough disaffected Democratic and independent voters to ensure a Republican victory in November.

Michelle L. Laney
HOTLINE TO HEALTH

The Ozone Layer and how That Plane Flight Could Be Killing

Ozone can be described as a faintly blue, gaseous, allotropic form of oxygen present in minute amounts in the atmosphere, especially, in the upper regions of the ozonosphere. The ozonosphere layer is reached at altitudes of approximately 20 to 30 miles. Ozone is created by the silent discharge of electricity in air or oxygen. It can be recognized by its' faint chlorinelike odor. Ozone has the molecular formula O-3 which makes it one and one half times as dense as ordinary oxygen gas and comparatively unstable. Ozone is currently being used commercially for bleaching sterilizing water, and air purification. When used properly the chemical properties can offer many benefits.

Three years ago the ozone issue was capturing front page news. Manufactures were warned that continued use of arosal spray cans would eventually destroy the ozonosphere layer. Since the ozonosphere layer acts as a filtering device, once the layer is destroyed radiation would enter our atmosphere unchecked, causing severe radiation poisoning to all inhabitants.

What many people are not aware of, is that a simple air flight from New York to San Francisco could be harming them physically.

Although technology has managed to put a plane in the air they have yet to develope an effective method of filtering the air that enters the cabinet, so, in essence the oxygen level on the outside is the same as the inside. The danger comes at 30,000 feet when the plane enters the ozone layer from that moment on passengers, stewardess and pilots begin to inhaling dangerous levels of chlorinelike oxgen.

As a result of, ozone poisoning many stewardess who fly regularly suffer from black lung, severe headaches, intense pain while breathing, depression, nausea, and leg pain. For years many of these symtoms have be passed off as jetlag.

In an interview conducted by Roger Grimsly of Channel 7 News in New York, one stewardess confessed that once the aircraft reaches the ozone layer a great deal of coughing can be heard throughout the aircraft. She herself had passed out twice due to what she believed to be ozone posining. For fear of losing her job the stewardess would only be interviewed if her name were withheld and her face hidden from the camera.

Anthony Broderick a FAA worker stated that 15 years ago the FAA pasted regulations regarding ozone levels but since their isn't a form of, monitoring the rule and making sure devices are being used the rule has become meaningless.

What is most disturbing about ozone posining is the simple fact that airlines although very capable refuse to fly at lower altitudes, their reason for this is fuel. It takes less fuel to fly at higher altitudes then lower ones. So again the dollar supersedes public health and safety.

Until the problem is corrected Don Koorse Director of the FAA recommends that persons who suffer from asma, backcolds, infections and lung conditions should not fly

Research by Roger Grimsly
Edited and revised by Michelle Laney

This article is part one of a two part series concerning the dangers of flying.

Next Week
Cosmic Radiation: and why stewardess are prone to unusually high levels of, miscarriages, and fertility problems.

ACTION, FREEZE: Theo Moore recieves the high light this week; Theo is a member of GROOVELINE. (photo by Barron Roland) give a full scholarship to. Goddard's a preogrssive school, on the order of Bard or one of those. So I went up there and majored in dramatic literature.

CONT FROM PAGE 7

"And it was at Goddard that I first got interested in socio-political activity."

And Shepp is one of the ;most committed of jazz musicians, old or young, critically aware of the social responsiblity of the black artist, which as quiet as it's kept, helps set one's esthetic stance as well. In this sense, ethics and esthetics are one.

Upon graduation from Goddard in 1959, he returned straight to the city, moved to the lower east side, and married a girl he had met in school in 1958.

in New York, he would go to the Five Spoty to hear John Coltrane, whom Shepp calls "the first real influence on my playing." Shepp had known of Coltrane in Phildaelphia but never had heard him in person until he was in college. He had known a tenor player in Philadelphia named Lee Grimes, and Grimes, an extraordinary tenorist, according to Shepp, "was influenced by Trane when it wasn't fashionable. Lee was the first person Iheard playing harmonics. Because I was raving about Lee, someone said I ought to hear Coltrane." It wasn't until he was in Goddard the Shepp had the opportunity, but "dug him immediately."

"I went to Florida in 1960 and played a lot of rock-and-roll gigs down there. When I got back to New York, I started going down to the Cafe Wha? in the Village. Don Ellis and Dave Pike were playing there. I met Buell Neidlinger and Billy Osborn down there too. Buell had already been playing with Cecil Taylor, and Buell and Billy used to persuade Dave Pike to let me sit in. I'd bring my horn, and wait for those cats to come in.

"Buell had told Cecil about me, I guess, and one day he came in, and thetwo of them played. After a few weeks I met Cecil, and he said he was looking for me. He was doing a record for Candid, and he wanted me on it. I started going down to Cecil's pad. I didn't know what the cat was doing...Even when we did the record, I was going down to his pad, and we used to play, just me and him.

"Sonny Murray was living in the next apartment, and he used to come in and play. It took me from then...about 1961 through 1962...to begin to get an idea of what was going on...so that I really knew. I got to a point where I thought I did know...but I couldn't say what was happening, but I felt the music. It was one of the most valuable musical experiences I've had. The things that Trane told me sufficed up until the time I met Taylor, and that's what projected me into what I'm doing now."

And Shepp has come a way since his first days with Taylor. Now the sound is larger, even more overpowering, the ideas fluid, and the energy stirs up spirits everywhere. Shepp has moved into the front line of tenor saxophonist of any persuasion.

But the influence of Taylor's ideas on Shepp's playing is still evident, in that Shepp insists that melody must be natural, i.e., projected out of the rhythmcore of the music. And Shepp has one of the most melodic of horn lines.

"It's ironic that Cecil's a pianist and the piano is a harmonic instrument. You think of a piano playing harmony, chords, and Cecil plays some, but he plays rhythm in an almost basic, primitive concept of piano...striking it like a drum. Working with him, I became aware of the function of rhythm and melody. And when I left, I had a fairly clear idea who I was on my instrument. There wasn't anybody around at the time to imitate on a saxophone playing this kind of music, except Ornette. It was like a poineer field.

"The reason Ornette wasn't such a big influence on me was because when I first heard him, I wasn't prepared to listen. There was nothing wrong with his music; there was something wrong with my listening. After Cecil, I dug Ornette because I'd grown musically. People say Ornette sounds like Bird, but I don't think so...and even if there is something of Bird in his playing, he's gotten way past it. He has a highly individual sound.

"Cecil freed me from the doldrums. I thought I'd heard all that jazz could do. It was like a door being opened to go into something else."

Shepp expressed the weight of the black in his thinking, which is also of course, in his playing.

"The Negro musician is a reflection of the Negro people as a social and cultural phenomenon," he said. "His purpose ought to be to liberate America esthetically and socially from its inhumanity of the white American to the black American as well as the inhumanity of the white American to the white American is not basic to America and can be exorcised. I think the Negro people through the force of their struggles are the only hope of saving America, the political or the cultural America." ●

CONT. FROM PAGE 7

Each involved an element of drama or conflict. Some visual effect-whether an on-the-scene tape or a background graph or a projected photograph-was employed in every sequence. The reporter's commentary was uniformly concise and plain, providing a verbal counterbalance to a fast-paced picture story.

Easily identifiable protagonists appeared in almost all the items. A problem was presented, individual characters proceeded to interact and a clear resolution usually occurred. Ambiguity and complexity are as foreign to TV news as are elaboration, historical context and serious analysis.

PRE-FAB MELODRAMA

Like the prime-time entertainment programs from which TV news takes its basic structure, the emphasis in this brand of journalism is on action, poignancy and pre-fab melodrama. TV news differs from print media in many important ways, perhaps the most crucial being its preoccupation with simple vignettes that will appeal to mass audiences and prevent them from changing the station.

The March 13 story on the Ford Pinto trial illustrates these fundamental precepts of electronic journalism as practiced by the network corporations.

Cronkite introduces the item by giving the key facts in a 10-second summary: a jury in a small Indiana town found Ford not guilty of murder in the deaths of three young women whose Pinto exploded after being rammed from behind. The scene then shifts instantaneously to the town where a CBS correspondent is interviewing the chief Ford attorney. He expresses satisfaction with the verdict, noting "a jury of 12 people has vindicated Ford's position."

Next comes a 15-second takeout of the state prosecutor who looks tired and rumpled and says he doubts that corporations are as socially responsible as the jury believes Ford to have been. A Ford executive in Dearborn, Mich., then appears. "A company that believes its products are right can stand for principle and have its principles exonerated by a jury of its peers," the executive explains. A short interview with the jury foreman rounds out the Indiana sequence.

Back in New York, Cronkite recapitulates the information just transmitted and observes that had Ford been found guilty, the fine would not have been very sizable. A short interview with the jury foreman rounds out the Indiana sequence.

cointelpro

The Campus Coalition for Political Prisoners was organized with the purpose of educating, informing, and mobilizing people in the Pioneer Valley around the function of the Prison-Judicial system and of the conditions of political prisoners and prisoners of war in the U.S.A.

On April 11, 1980, the C.C.P.P. will sponsor a lecture)discussion led by Sister Afeni Shakur. Afeni Shakur has been active in the Black prisoner movement for quite some time. She has been unjustly incarcerated several times herself due to her commitment to the freedom struggles of Black people in the U.S. Afeni Shakur is presently involved in several organized efforts by Afrikan American people to defend and support political prisoners and prisoners of war. Among these, she has served as a national advisor to the National Task Force for COINTELPRO Litigation and Research.

We feel that information on the use of COINTELPRO tastics implemented against the Black colony in the U.S. is important at a time when the U.S. government is further mobilizing its intelligence and military network to repress anti-imperialist freedom struggles.

We have enclosed a copy of a press release for the April 11th event. It would help us to inform and involve more people if you would read this announcement at meetings, in newsletters, over the air and other available means. We urge you to attend this event and offer our thanks in advance.

In the early 1960's, the F.B.I.'s special counterinsurgency network, Cointelpro began to focus on the Black freedom movement in the U.S.A. The F.B.I.'s major targets were the potential leaders of a successful Black Liberation Movement such as: Malcolm X, Fred Hampton, The Black Panther Party For Self Defense, The Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party, Martin Luther King, and many other Afrikan-American groups and individuals.

Currently, work is being done to expose the Heinious tactics implemented by Cointelpro to intimdate, investigate, incarcerate, and assassinate Black people.

On April 11th, 1980, Activist Afeni Shakur, national advisor for the NATIONAL TASK FORCE FOR COINTELPRO LITIGATION AND RESEARCH will be speaking on: "THE USE OF COINTELPRO TACTICS AGAINST THE BLACK LIBERATION MOVEMENT IN THE U.S.A." Her talk will be held in the West lecture hall, Franklin Patterson, Hampshire College at 7:30pm, April, 1980.

COME AND BE INFORMED ●

smith college news

Northampton, MA - "I don't think of myself as 'killing myself.' I feel no desire to kill, or injure, or maim. To me, that's the difference between rational and irrational suicide: irrational is neurotically involved with killing..."

Those words were spoken by New York artist and psychotherapist Jo Roman 32 days before she carried out her carefully planned suicide on Sunday, June 10, 1979. They are the opening lines of "Choosing Suicide," a one-hour documentary chronicling Jo Roman's determination to end her life with dignity and on her own terms, which will be presented Thursday, March 27, at 8pm in the Smith College Museum of Arts as part of a two-day Smith program on the arts as a vocation.

Believing that society should neither take anyone's life nor force the prolongation of life upon anyone wishing to end it, Jo Roman was engaged in writing a book advocating rational suicide as a basic human right when she discovered that she had breast cancer, and was told that her chances of recovery were slight. She had long intended to end her life sometime in her 70's; now, at 61, she started organizing her imminent departure.

When the advance of the disease seemed to threaten her ability to finish her book, Jo Roman asked a friend, documentary producer Richard Ellison, to record her ideas and plans. Ellison in turn recruited videomakers Leah Siegel, a Smith alumna, and Don Blauvelt.

Together they taped a series of intimate conversations and confrontations with close friends and relatives, some of whom strongly opposed Jo Roman's intentions.

Ultimately, Jo Roman ended her life exactly as planned, after a week of saying good-byes to loved ones, and a final weekend of intense work on her last creation, a coffin-shaped "life sculpture."

"Choosing Suicide," an LRE)Video Team production, will be aired June 16 on Public Television. Ms. Siegel, who will be present at the Smith showing, is one of a number of Smith alumna who are returning to the college for the "Conversations in Art Vocation" program to talk with Smith students and others who are interested about the training and experience that have led them to their present careers.

Program events, all of which are open to the public, will include a bookbinding demonstration and informal discussions of careers in bookbinding, book design, and advertising by Barbara Blumenthal, bookbinder, Catawba Press, Northampton, Thursday at 1:10pm in Hillyer Hall 18; and by Barbara Chen, Dutton Publishing, and L. Ellice Chase, advertising photographer Thursday, at 3:10pm, also in Hillyer Hall 18.

The program will continue Friday with discussions of careers in museum work, preservation, and architecture at 10:10am in Hillyer Hall 117; discussions of careers in painting, printmaking, photography, and video at 11:10am in the Hillyer corridor gallery; a video presentation featuring a discussion of divergent video techniques and options with Ms Seigel and Kit Fitzgerald, another video artist, at 2pm in Hillyer Hall 117; and a discussion of how to prepare a portfolio at 3pm in Hillyer 117.

In conjunction with the program, the work of the various participants including Delia Hatch Baroni, Amherst College photographer, and Monica Vachula, former Hatfield resident, is on display in the Hillyer Hall gallery.

The program has been arranged by the Smith art department and career development office.

"I hope it will help Smith students who are interested in careers in the arts gather determination about their own careers and see how wide the options are," says Gary Niswonger, of the Smith art faculty ●

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY

Collegian

VOLUME CIX, ISSUE 111 | Student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst | Tuesday, April 1, 1980

Accidents will happen

Koffler may be deported

By RON T. RHINE
Collegian Staff

Chancellor Henry Koffler yesterday received notice that he is "being deported," according to State Department officials in Washington.

UMass News Bureau spokesmen said the deportment proceedings were "a technicality" but that Koffler "still may have to return to Vienna.

"Love Cheeks, as the chancellor now likes to be called..."
(see story page 6)

Citing Koffler's doctoral work at the Oakridge Institute for Nuclear Studies, a State Department official, who wished to remain anonymous, told the Collegian Koffler's visa, which apparently had been permanent, had "expired" and that the process by which Koffler would be deprted is "irreversable."

Koffler, a native of Vienna, Austria, who has been Chancellor of the UMass/Amherst campus since August 1979, was not available for comment.

The Collegian learned of Koffler's apparent

TURN TO PAGE 8

Montague's nuclear power plant complex lies fallow after a "partial meltdown" put reactor Number Two out of commission. The problem was reportedly caused by maintenance workers checking valves with a cigarette lighter. Plant spokesman Wes T. Bechtel said: "This accident doesn't hold a candle to Three Mile Island. The amount of radiation released is equivalent to having a chest X-ray every five minutes of the rest of your life." NRC sources said that profits "were going up in a cloud of steam, we can't see the light at the top of the cooling tower."

Meltdown is possible

by RICK SAMPSON
Associated Press

MONTAGUE—Terming yesterday's partial meltdown in The Plains' Twin Plant's second reactor as "minor," Plant Manager Samuel J. Love joy said: "We do not have a Three Mile Island here. Things are under control."

Residents, however, have been evacuated within a 12-mile radius of the plant, according to Civil Defense officials. (Meanwhile, according to the UMass News Bureau, residents from Turners Falls and the Lake Pleasant section of Montague have been evacuated to the basement of Herter Hall at UMass, the largest underground facility in the area.)

The partial meltdown occurred at 10:30 last night, according to Nuclear Regulatory Spokeswoman Anna Gorky, because of "human error." Gorky said the core reactor had not been damaged and that radiation leaking into the atmosphere was "minimal."

Montague Selectman Walter Garbiel called the accident "horrendous," however, and fears "that the well-being of Montague residents is in jeopardy." In 1975, Garbiel succeeded in getting the town to vote on the plant through a referendum on the town ballot. The plant was approved by a two-to-one

TURN TO PAGE 11

NRC official hostage

MONTAGUE (AP)—Organizing as quickly as the second reactor of The Plain's Twin Plant here partially melted down, a group calling itself the Anti-nuclear Mobilization Unit, took nuclear Regulatory Commission Official Anna Gorky hostage at 2:30 a.m.

An AMU spokesman said Gorky would he held at an unspecified Northampton site "until the NRC tells us the truth, and gets rid of the radiation." Police said "about a dozen" AMU members are armed and that

TURN TO PAGE 11

Carter names LaVoice Sec't.

WASHINGTON—UMass Student Government Association co-President Richard LaVoice was yesterday appointed to the position of Undersecretary of Education for Northeast public universities by President Jimmy Carter.

LaVoice, a 20-year old junior from West Springfield, was elated by the appointment. "Its great," he said, "It will look super on my resume."

Currently serving his second term as SGA co-President, LaVoice has also served as president of the Massachusetts State Student Association, on the board of directors of the United States Student Association, co-President of

LaVoice, a 20-year-old junior from West Springfield, was elated by the appointment. "It's great," he said, "it will look super on my resume."

Southwest Assembly, Residential Assistant, the UMass Board of Trustees and many other positions.

"This pushes my resume over three pages," LaVoice said.

In his announcement Carter called LaVoice "a great student leader who will probably grow up to take over my job."

Carter also said he appointed LaVoice in attempt to gain student support in the current presidential election.

LaVoice's co-President, Richard Moran, was also pleased with the appointment.

"I'm glad for him," Moran said. "He will be able to do a lot of good for the school in that capacity. I'm going to try to help too. I'm negotiating with Kurt Waldheim of the United Nations to see if I can get some kind of high-level appointment in that organization."

LaVoice said he would work hard to insure the position will benefit UMass.

"I'll have direct access to the Secretary of Education and to Carter," LaVoice said. "UMass has nothing to worry about in the future, as long as I'm around."

When asked if his new job would conflict with his current positions on the Trustees and as co-President, LaVoice said: "No, not at all. I'm perfectly capable of working 24 hours a day. I'll just have to ask the (Undergraduate Student) Senate for money so I can get a private jet.

SGA co-President Richard LaVoice shakes hands with President Jimmy Carter after being appointed to Carter's faltering administration as undersecretary of Education. After the ceremony, LaVoice said of the cabinet appointment, "Gee. Wait till my mom sees me now! This makes missing three hundred and forty seven classes in the last two years worth it."

President Carter's daughter Amy kisses Dago the chimpanzee after Reverend Silo Bomblast proudly pronounces the homely couple "chimp and wife" in a small wedding ceremony at the Barnum & Baily Ringling Bros. Circus in Washington. (AP Faser Photon)

Women see light

By THOMASENA EDIDAUGHTER
Collegian Staff

Alleged allegations from confidential sources that eight members of the Woman's Issues team of the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy walked across the UMass campus last Wednesday and had no complaints about the lighting, cannot be confirmed at this time.

Witnesses say that the women were seen from their starting point at the Five Arts Center and traveled through every parking lot on campus without the aid of candles, flashlights, Bics, or jarred fireflies.

It is also rumored that the women walked to Chancellor Henry Koffler's house and sang "You Won't Light Up My Life," "I Can't See Clearly At All," "Walk Another Way," "Musta Got Lost," "It's a Marvelous Night For a Mugger," and "We Don't Need No Aggravation." They also sang hits from their soon-to-be-released album "Darkness at the Edge of Amherst."

"I will say that this is the first time we've walked across campus and been even semi-happy with what we've seen in regards to the lighting situation here. I cannot say we have no complaints whatsoever, though," said one SCERA member.

"We feel we are making progress," said the SCERA member." Last week a lightbulb was replaced in the streetlight next to the police station and the week before that flood lights were installed in the infirmary parking lot. We expect bulbs (the flood lights) by 1983."

UMass News Bureau Director Arthur Clifford said, "These rumors are new to me but I have heard about the women's walk across campus. I personally think that the fact that this walk took place in the early afternoon should be taken into serious consideration."

Bank renamed Bank

The Department of Redundancy Department, (DRD), a special tasks department of the UMass administration, has been asked by the Student Affairs department to "Reconsider the title 'Information Data Bank.'"

The request came after Peon Marvey, a Student Affairs employee, stumbled on to the ludicrous nomenclature when he passed through Whitmore's front doors on his way back from lunch at 3:00 last Tuesday.

"It's really a very stupid name, totally pointless," Peon quipped, "I don't see why they couldn't have just called it the Information Bank or the Data Bank, but only an idiot would say Information Data Bank."

Defending the name of the academic programs information resource as a "crowning achievement in pleonasticity," David Babblebaum of the DRD commented, "The untennable request made by the Student Affairs people is untennable. We chose not to use the lengthy Information Informations Bank because it was too long, and deferred on Data Data Bank because its obtuseness was far too obscure."

- A resolution to the dispute is expected to take several years. "Considering that it took Student Affairs nine months to notice what we had named the resource bank," David added, "it is conceivable that nothing will come of this for several years."

Pips Mumsqeeze

UM hires 'horrors'

D. PRESSED
Collegian Staff

Megan Marshall, writer of the infamous "UMass Horrors" article in Boston Magazine, has been appointed to replace UMass News Bureau Director Arthur Clifford, it was announced yesterday.

"With the publicity we've been getting, we figured we needed a change in leadership," said Director of Public Affairs Daniel Melly at a news conference.

"What better way to get rid of reporters who give us bad publicity than to hire them?" he said.

When asked if Marshall was going to be paid excessive amounts of money to keep her hands off her free lancer's typewriter, Melly said "No comment."

Clifford, still acting as news director said "Miss Marshall will be getting upwards of $80,000, about six times what I'm making now."

Recently unemployed Art Clifford

When asked how he planned to support himself, Clifford only smiled. "I know an awful lot of secrets," he said as he fidgeted with the piece of brick from the library he uses as a paperweight.

Melly said his department also plans to recruit Buffy Spencer, who covers Amherst for the Springfield Daily News and Edward Shanahan, editor of the Daily Hampshire Gazette.

Commission to intern the nasty, rude students

By DON GIVISHIT
Collegian Staff

A progress report, issued by the Office of the Chancellor, describes the programs designed by the Chancellor's Commission on Well-Manneredness to "encourage decency, politeness, and pleasantness of demeanor among members of the University community.

The essential purpose of the Commission, the report states, is to change the "popular impression of students that they can express the arrogant prejudices learned during their adolescence from their middle-class friends, parents, and schools by insulting, harrassing, and assaulting their fellow students with impunity." In response to what the report describes as a "crisis of ill will," the Commission has embarked on a four part program, which is hoped will bring the problem under control.

The plan's four steps are summarized in the report as follows:

1) Issuance of the "Well-Manneredness Newsletter" to be distributed to every dormitory and academic and administrative department on campus each week. The newsletter is to inform the University community of the advantages of being nice to people you can't fucking stand.

2) Creation of a poster and button campaign with the slogan "It's nice to be nice. It's mean to be mean."

d) Formation of an ad hoc committee composed of administration and faculty members, and any students interested in leavening their resume with the experience of sitting around with a bunch of failed administrators and snoozy faculty, writing up impracticable proposals which everyone will forget about before the ink is dry.

4) Building of a "Courtesy Camp" for interning violators of "codes of courtesy" to be devised by the committee based on Amy Vanderbilt's world famous manual, "The Complete Book of Etiquette." Code transgressions will be tried in a University court and treated very seriously, with mandatory sentences for such offences as failing to say "thank you" when someone calls you a "cream-brained wop dirt bag" and for making disparging remarks about some people's excessive miserliness.

Asked when he expects to see results of the Commission's efforts, Chancellor Henry H. Koffler replied, "After a few hundred students have spent several weeks in the camp deprived of edible food and without sanitary waste facilities, students will see the benefit of civil behavior."

Student Senate spokesman, Don Givishit, an outspoken critic of the Commission, commented, "Bullshit. They've been living that way for years."

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday, excluding January, June, July, and August, for $15 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts at Amherst, MA 01003. Second class postage paid at Amherst, Mass. Postmaster: Send address changes to Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

4th annual
BEAUX ARTS BALL
Saturday April 5 1980
8 PM - 1 AM
Student Union Ballroom
cash bar - munchies
dancing
music by Tom Abdou & PARADISE RHYTHM SHOES
Faculty/students $3/non-students
Sponsored by the University of Massachusetts Art Club

UNE
Noreste, Admissions
August 80 applicants: 4 year, fully recognized and established Mexican Medical School with several hundred American students enrolled. Use English language textbooks and exams in English. School combines quality education, small classes, experienced teachers, modern facilities.
Universidad Del Noreste
120 East 41 St., NY, NY 10017
(212) 594-6589
or 232-3784

SHOES BOOTS
Hampshire Mall Holyoke Mall
584-9676 532-8176

CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
Your Local
AMTRACK
&
EURAILPASS
Agents
CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
CENTER UNIV OF MASS
AMHERST, MASS 01003 413-545-0500

Mike's Westview Cafe No. Amherst
ERLANGER NITE
FREE ☆☆☆☆☆ PRIZES
including
LINDA RONSADT
CONCERT TICKETS
T-SHIRTS
See Tomorrows Ad for Details
ERLANGER

Vision Showcase
"For people who value their vision" your locally owned vision center
CONTACT LENSES ★ GLASSES
★ SUNGLASSES ★
"Members of the UMass Eyeglass Program"
Hampshire Mall ★ Hadley ★ 584-8324
(Directly across from K-Mart)

New social disease found

Grad Towers epidemic

By JOHN S. CONTAGIOUS
Collegain Stud

A new strain of social disease has spread through UMass and threatens epidemic proportions if abstinent measures are not hastily met. The cause has been attributed to the asbestos in the Graduate Research Tower.

Within the past month, several hundred students have reported the distracting symptoms of the Venereal Disease to the infirmary. After examination and lab testing, each case was attributed to the same cause. Asbestos.

Doctors at first were stumped when molecule traces were found in the several hundred lab samplings. The mystery was soon unraveled, when it was noted by a desk assistant at the infirmary that all of those infected were graduate students, who all spend a great deal of time in the Graduate Research Towers, where there is large amount of asbestos. This also means that the amount of "social interaction" among graduate students is high.

How the asbestos acts as a catalyst and irritant to the social disease is unknown. However, the infirmary has made this an issue and action to discover a remedial drug has begun. Angry letters concerning the Graduate Tower have also been written directly to Governor King.

It is suggested that those with unusually discomforting symptoms, who have had some contact with the Graduate Towers or a graduate student, contact the infirmary.

A new study on Marijuana was released today regarding the affects of the drug on not only the brain but the body as a whole. Apparently the growth process stops, and in some cases, is reversed, along with a marked increase in hair growth. This Senior Animal Science major (who asked only to be identified as "Willard") says the new study is "bogus". (Staff photo by his roommate)

Dean of Students William Field responds to a student senate challenge to "bare the facts." Field told the senate they "should all be canned, unless you have the ability to get to the butt of the problem." SGA co-president Rich LaVoice responded by saying, "Field did say he thought I should be promoted to sainthood. I guess he meant to do it himself by making the moon rise."

Field shows 'better half'

By SUN MYUNG MOON
Collegian Staff

In an unprecedented display of emotion, Dean of Students William F. Field "mooned" the Undergraduate Student Senate at a special meeting last night.

Field's action came during a heated debate at the meeting, called in an attempt to settle differences between Field and the senate.

After a fiery speech in which Student Government Association co-President Rich LaVoice called Field "an ass," the dean turned his back to the audience and dropped his drawers, saying: "Here, see how big of an ass I am."

Several women members of the Senate screamed and fled the room following Field's action. Other members of the senate stood by and laughed or made comments.

"I don't think what I did was wrong," Field said. "I was simply showing off the best part of my anatomy."

A spokesperson for Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis L. Madson said disciplinary action might be taken against Field.

"Madson wants to study the pictures of Field's ass before making a decision," the spokesperson said.

Asexuals file suit; claim harassment at QR

By LEE V. MEALONE
Collegian Staff

The Collegian has learned that a suit will be filed today in Hampshire county district court against the management of the Quonset Restaurant and Discotheque for alleged harassment of two UMass students.

The students, Eunice Singular, 19, and Imma Solo, 20, say they were unduly ejected from the Disco Friday by the establishment bouncers because of their sexual preferences.

"I mean just because we're asexual doesn't mean we don't have rights, you know,;" Solo said.

The pair allege that harassment of asexuals for dancing by themselves is not unusual in this area.

"Wherever you go around here and you're asexual you're going to get shit on. That's just the way it is," Singular said.

Witnesses at the disco Friday told the Collegian the pair was "shaking and gyrating" in opposite ends of the dance floor when a gang of twenty homosexuals encircled them and began shouting and pushing.

"Hey you goddam A's, why don't you go dance where you're wanted. Someplace where you'll find you're own kind to keep you company," witnesses recounted.

Knuckles O'Reilly, Quonset employee said, "When the homos started pushing the The A's I decided they better leave. It was a choice between kicking out twenty fags or two A's ever since the last suit policy has been to leave the fags alone."

"I don't know what people have against us asexuals, anyway," Solo said, "I mean I guess it's just that they don't understand us. They should try it some time. Asexuality really can't be beat," he said.

"No one knows me better than myself. I know what makes me feel good. I'm always there when I need me and I'd never do anything to intentionally hurt myself. I get along better with myself than anyone I have ever met and if the day ever comes when I'd be happier without me I'd give myself my freedom," Singular said.

Owners of the disco said, "We don't like anybody and wish to hell we could get out of this nauseating town."

'Ludes' subbed for 'Pill'

MAY B. PREGNANT
Collegian Staff

The University Health Center today recalled all birth control pill prescriptions issued during the last nine months.

Health Center officials said the Center's pharmacy had inadvertently been distributing Rorer 714 tablets (Quaaludes) in place of the birth control prescriptions.

Health Center director Hugh Itch said, "Gee, we're really sorry about all this. I mean it could have happened to anyone, right? I mean we all make mistakes, right?"

Officials estimate between five and six hundred University women were issued the prescriptions and "should be realizing something isn't quite right just about now."

Itch said the situation is complicated by the aphrodisiac quality commonly experienced after ingesting the Rorer 714's.

"Actually the irony of the situation is kind of humorous, don't you think? I mean these

TURN TO PAGE 8

UMass Sophomore Misha Moscowitz refills her bogus birth control prescription which she said, "Makes me feel all warm and loving inside." (Staff photo by Sexual)

Mount Tom erupts suddenly in a spewing, black torrent of lava hunks, acrid smoke, noxious gas, and hundreds of Gardner Whimsy Nursery School children who were picnicking on the mountain's summit. The search for the bodies of the unfortunate children, which were strewn around the base of the mountain in a radius of approximately seven miles, is being hampered by an advancing lava flow which has already destroyed nearly half of Springfield taking an estimated 200,000 lives. (AP Faser Photon)

Around campus

GAY PARENTHOOD: IS IT POSSIBLE? The People's Parthenogenisis Alliance will hold an informal rap session in room 917 of the Campus Center. Elevator counseling will be available.

"NOW YOU'VE SEEN IT, HAVEN'T YOU SEEN ESSENTIALLY THE SAME SHOW AT LEAST TWICE BEFORE? A musical revue featuring rehash and at least two cutesy dance numbers, will play ths weekend in Bowker.

SMITH COLLEGE will present a seminar entitled "Wealth, Breeding, and a summer house on the Cape—one's woman's struggle for social justice." Keynote speaker will be Margaret Lowell Abbott, Smith '33, who will recount her experiences funding trendy liberal causes. Thursday, 7:30, John M. Green Auditorium. Admission is $15, with all proceeds going to the Comittee to combat "Kramer vs. Kramer."

Want to spend Passover in a traditional Jewish setting? Come to Newman Center's "Ghetto for Long Islanders" in the basement, now through 1985.

NATIONAL NUTRITION MONTH speech features Trico vending machine spokesman Peter Paul, who will lecture on the benefits of a nutrition-free diet. A reception will be held afterwards at the Trico "junk center" in the Campus Center Concourse. Oreos and Tab will be provided.

WOMEN AGAINST WOMEN AGAINST VIOLENCE (WAWAV) is beginning self-defense training sessions in Curry Hicks Cage. The women organized to "show those pansies that some women can take care of themselves," according to WAWAV spokesperson Lenore "Bulldog" Stompiski. Mick Jagger will address the group's girst session. group's first session.

DO YOU HAVE PRINCE ALBERT IN A CAN? Amherst College has published a brochure in response to that frequently-asked question. The pamphlet also contains information on why the Prince feels Amherst "reminds me of the servants quarters in. Monaco"

Valley Typing
is changing its name

wordpro
Text & information processing services

Word Processing · OCR Scanning
Phototypesetting
Typing · Copying

Monday—Friday 10-6, Sat. 10-2
29 So. Pleasant St. · Amherst · 256—6736
same great service
with a brand new name

THE AMHERST DELICATESSEN
Sandwiches · Cold Cuts
Bagels · Salads
OPEN AT 9 AM · 7 DAYS · 549-6314
Extended hours beginning Fri. April 4
Mon. - Thurs. 9 AM - 10 PM
Fri. & Sat. 9 AM - 2 AM

Actuarial Career Opportunities

Sun Life of Canada's United States Headquarters, located in Wellesley Hills, Mass., is seeking candidates for its actuarial career development program.

Representatives from Sun Life of Canada will be conducting on-campus interviews on Friday, April 11.

To set up an interview, contact the career placement office.

SunLife OF CANADA
U.S. Headquarters
Wellesley Hills, MA.

An equal opportunity employer M/F.

IT'S TERRIFIC!
"APPLAUSE"
A Backstage Musical
mar. 27, 28, 29, 30 apr. 3. 4 8 p.m.
bowker auditorium, stockbridge hall
For Tickets Call 545-0783

The American Right to Choose:

Choose glasses: Choose designer frames . . . From Cardin to Von Furstenberg, you'll find them all.

If you're looking for budget frames . . . value starts as low as $5.00

Choose contacts: Bausch & Lomb or American Optical soft contact lenses are yours for only

$79

Regularly $89

One hour service for most soft contacts and glasses only at American Vision Center.

The largest inventory of soft contact lenses of all types are in American Vision Center all the time.

American Vision Center
Illinois, Maryland, Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, Texas

HAMPSHIRE MALL
HADLEY
584-7958

American Express and all major credit cards accepted.

PRESIDENT'S SALE

American Vision Center
Illinois, Maryland, Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, Texas
SAVE $10.
with this ad
$10. off any frame over $25.
Offer expires April 14th.
HAMPSHIRE MALL
HADLEY
584-7958

STADIUM
KEGS— WINE—
U. Mass. Amherst
BEER— LIQUORS
LIQUORS

Tuborg	6.90	case
Miller	7.99	case
Budweiser	7.99	case
Molson	2.75 6 pack	10.49 case
O'Keefe Ale	9.90	cs.
Gordon Gin	10.75	1.75 L.
Gordon Vodka	8.99	1.75 L.

University Drive, Amherst, Mass.
Just past UMass Stadium, from SW dorms

Save money—Save gas—Save time
10 a.m. — 253-5595 — til 11 p.m.

Egotism/Opportunity

Dismembering eternal truths

However, some people may wonder how all this ties together, especially in the context of Marxist thought and the New Morality, a concept with died out for all intents and purposes about the time of the Watergate invasion.

Well, first of all it is important to note the immense public sentiment regarding whether or not to sleep with J.P. Stevens. Most people are against this. Those who are for it either don't know what is going on or else they live in New Jersey. Like my roommate who went to a high school named after the old bastard. And he sleeps with just about anyone, anyway.

ANGLO REVOLVER

Let me reinforce this assumption by stating that only bass-ackwards socialist cry babies capitalize on the mass slaughter of defenseless baby seals by printing bumper stickers and selling them for a buck a pop when they only cost twelve cents to make. Meanwhile, the petty bourgeois running dog lackey capitalist sleaze bags continue to frequent their exclusive yacht clubs, drink Drambuie and ignore the bumper stickers anyway.

So, what happens to all those seals? Corporate controlled monopolistic idealists like Nestle and the phone company move in and give those seal killers a few extra cans of spam to continue their labors so they can keep their fat, ungrateful wives covered up in furs so they won't make them look like spineless wimps by criticizing them in front of their yacht club cronies.

So, that brings us to Tom Wolfe's celebrated concept of Radical Chic, which isn't chic anymore because we have regressed to a more socially aware form of Marxist Chic, which is kind of radical, even if its tenets are a bit milk soppish. All you have to do is wear olive drab fatigues and dirty white sneakers from K-Mart. It doesn't matter that all the material items necessary for your survival were purchased from capitalist goods outlets. You can always live in a tent.

Our founding fathers didn't have these problems back in our nation's infancy. They were too busy trying to figure out how they were going to invent fluorescent lights and how they were goning to adequately ventilate buildings without windows. They were excited about the industrial revolution. They didn't have time to frig around with the ethics of the whole thing.

And besides the fact that the U.S. Government uses more than a thousand acres of woodland yearly in making the perforations for postage stamps, what gives the University the right to move the swans from the Campus Pond to Tillson Farm and back again twice a year. What about the squirrels? And what about the rats in the student union? Nobody bothers to move them when the weather gets a little chilly.

The trouble is that things are just too bad. I don't know. It's just too bad. It really is.

Darwin had the right idea with social anarchy and all. Maybe a little anarchy will bring some order to this confused country. The CIA has been operating under this philosophy for years, and it's doing OK.

In other words, apathy may not be a healthy attitude, but who cares, anyway?

Perhaps we can all benefit from the words of Chancellor Koffler who, when reached for comment, said, "I had no idea this was going on."

Anglo Revolver is a touched individual

Editorial policy

The Collegian is controlled by a clique of narrow-minded, egotistical junior journalists who realize that life is just an immense cesspool and most of the shit you submit isn't worth the processed cellulose it's printed on, anyway.

All copy submitted should be extremely long so we can indiscriminately cut out key passages to suit our whims and make you look foolish.

The editors reserve the right to print anything they damn well please.

Basically, we'd rather you didn't bother us with your useless opinions.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian

Board of Editors

SLIM WHITMAN, Editor-in-Chief; SLIM WHITMAN, Managing Editor; SLIM WHITMAN, Business Manager; SLIM WHITMAN, News Editor; SLIM WHITMAN, Executive Editor; SLIM WHITMAN, Women's Editor; SLIM WHITMAN, Black Affairs Editor; SLIM WHITMAN, Photo Editor; SLIM WHITMAN, Graphics Manager; SLIM WHITMAN, Sports Editor; SLIM WHITMAN, Fine Arts Editor.

The Collegian is the monopoly student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff claims no responsibility for its unconscionably unreliable content and no faculty member or administrator with the self-respect of a child pornographer reads it.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of six or seven people who haven't done an honest day's work in years. They do not necessarily represent the views of anybody. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons and letters represent the worthles, ill-informed, insipient opinions of anyone willing to prostitute themselves inscriptively to thousands of people who neither know nor care about what they have to say.

The Collegian has somehow maintained its membership with the Associated Press. Publication of their material constitutes unabashed laziness.

The Collegian strives to print advertising which makes money, but final responsibility for advertising remains undeclared, unless someone complains or files suit, in which case it's Fred's fault.

"I think I get it. John, do you get it?"

Letters

Meaningless headline

To the Editor:

In regard to the dick-brain gibberish daily fouling an otherwise decent piece of sheet cellulose pulp placed between the mindless comic strips, innane news stories, and wasted pages of cheap Associated Press wire copy in the Collegian:

I'll vomit if I see one more asshole's raving brain-waste about nuke kooks, religious geeks, bozo student organizations, the draft, Iran, fighting, libraries, or elections. I mean, really, who gives a shit? Why can't these turds write something interesting like about getting totally fuck-faced and ripping the tables out of the floor in Burger King or about how there's no one around anymore with the chutzpah to tell those guys in front of the post office with the plastic folder filled with pictures of starving babies to fuck off when they hassle you about how many Cambodian villages can be fed for a month off what you spent on pinball this afternoon.

Stu Dent
Some dorm

Irresponsible, inaccurate

To the Editor:

About the article by Ted Latrine about the elections on campus for president: was irresponsible about the numbers of votes twice. The irresponsibility in lacking accuracy of the reporting is no excuse for a daily paper. Clean your journalism, act up guys!

Peter Pulitzer
Off campus someplace

STUPE defeats capitalism

To the Editor:

We did it. Socialist Types for Ultimate Public Education came up against the whole sleazy, greedy, vicious corporate-public education conspiracy to mold the deprived minds of America's proletarian youth into the future working parts of the immense, ruthless, rumbling machine of corporate capitalism which exists to serve the fatuous, ultra-bourgeois interests of the Power Elite, and we won!

Didn't think we could do it, did you? Thought we were just another bunch of impotent, self-assuming egotists wasting our time combating inexorable social and economic forces with tedious political zealotry while ignoring small, resolvable, glamourless local issues, didn't you? Well, you were wrong. You missed your chance to help, you never showed up for our informative weekly meetings, you laughed at our riling megaphone rallies. So don't try to grub any of the credit now, you pathetic, visionless tools of the capitalist system!

A bunch of STUPE people

Editor's note: We would like to congratulate STUPE on their success in purging our public university's curriculum of business directives which, of course, was made possible largely through the Collegian's support in printing all those STUPE letters and editorials all these years.

Incredible irresponsibility

To the Editor:

The photo appearing in today's Collegian showing Professor Fun engaging in questionable acts with one of his students is incorrect. This event did not take place yesterday, as stated under the photo, but in fact will not occur until sometime next week. This reflects clearly an incredible irresponsibility and lack of integrity in the way the Collegian conducts news coverage. I am appalled!

Patty Putzler
Icon Apartments

Social science, Northankyou

To the Editor:

Here's some good news for all you persons wanting to know how it all fits together. You know, people and society and feelings and economics and everything. I've discovered an equation that can be used to calculate where you fit personally into the whole system. It works like this.

First list how you feel about some things that are affecting your life or that you think are important, listing the thing and after it whether you think it's good or bad. For instance: Abortion good, nukes bad, men bad, women good, solar good, L.L. Bean mountain climbing boots good, seven inch blue vinyl cha-cha pumps bad, twinkies bad, bonzo nuts good, coops good, businesses bad, equality good, racism bad, sexism bad, etc.

After you have listed about a hundred things, assign each word a number by counting the number of letters in the word and then giving it a plus sign if it's good or a minus sign if it's bad, then add them all together. The example above comes out like this.

8 – 5 – 3 + 5 + 5 + 27 – 28 – 8 + 7 + 5 – 10 + 8 – 6 – 6 = + 1

The number should come out to either + 1, 0, or – 1. If it doesn't then you're definitely out of phase, really out. A + 1 means you're all right because all the inputs are coming out good outputs. A – 1 means the opposite. And a 0 means you aren't taking in any flow so you'll have to work for a different self by improving your diet, running five miles a day and getting a wood stove.

Dr. Paul Pleasantstreet
School of Education

Irresponsible irresponsibility

To the Editor:

The Collegian totally ignores its responsibility to inform readers to help make them responsible and informed individuals capable of carrying out the responsibility of individuals to uphold a responsible community where responsible decisions affecting the local community and their own academic community must be made.

For instance, there have been rumors that six pounds of pharmaceutical cocaine rolled into Amherst three days ago. Three days ago! Well, where is it? Come on you guys, we need to know right away.

The Five College Community

Today is tuesday

To the Editor:

I think the Collegian is a goddamn good newspaper!

Ex-Secretary of Agriculture
Earl Butz

Ward indicted for bribery

John William Ward denies bribery charges by stating his Amherst College job taught him more about graft than ever he dreamed of.

John William Ward, former Boston Latin High School star and Amherst College President, now chairman of a special commission investigating state corruption, was indicted yesterday on bribery charges.

The charges stem from the construction of a $12 million addition to his Amherst winter estate last fall.

Ward alledgedly paid state officials to insure they did not investigate the cost of the addition, which he took as a tax write-off.

The sprawling addition was designed and built by Babcock and Wilcox of Three Mile Island fame.

In response to the charges Ward said, "Bribery, Shmibery, I never did that. Besides," he added, "they'd never catch me."

Ward justified the hiring of Babcock and Wilcox by saying, "Maybe they can't build reactors but they build a damn good sauna."

Library not a problem

By ANITA PHYSIC
Collegian Staff

University officials announced yesterday that the University Library tower will no longer be a problem.

After attending a seminar sponsored by the philosophy department, UMass Chancellor Henry Koffler announced, "It's not a problem because it doesn't exist."

He explained, "If you don't acknowledge its existence it ceases to be a problem. We've ignored problems in the past, but now we're even better at it. We came to realize that it didn't bother me, and it didn't bother Dean Field, and it didn't bother Provost Allen. Since we run things around here it couldn't possibly bother anyone else."

Love Cheeks, as the chancellor now likes to be called, said, "Life is beautiful now. Even my old lady's cellulite patches on her bum don't get to me anymore."

"Ever since Time magazine announced that God was dead I had a really bad outlook on life. I mean, man, everything was, like, a downer, man. But now it's cool. Me and my old lady moved into this really far-out farmhouse in Pelham and we're finally at peace," Koffler said.

Brick-catchers hired

By NIMBLE-ON-THE-FEET
Collegian Staff

University officials announced a plan today to hire 200 work-study students as brick catchers.

The students, preferably thick-skulled, will be required to work at least ten hours a week or "until the little bastards are crushed by a panel," officials said.

Equipped with large catcher's mitts and pitch helmets, the students will work in tag teams of two.

"A similar program was considered at Three Mile Island in which students would have been hired as radioactive steam inhalers," Physical Plant director George Norton said.

Students will go through a two-week intensive training program at the Hartford Collesium during which they will be required to work up to catching at least five hardballs per minute travelling at an average speed of sixty miles per hour.

"Just think, these kids, the ones that survive that is, will be all set to get great jobs with the army dodging MX misiles and stuff, Norton said.

The recent decision to build a new riding stable at Tillson Farm was found to be a cover up for the construction of a nuclear power plant at the site. The effects of the waste products have already been seen as the picture shows. This stricken beast has already lost his ass, ears and legs. (Staff photon by Secretariat)

UMass offers program of 'rebates for education'

I.M. BROKE
Collegian Staff

Chancellor Koffler announced a "Rebate for Your Education" program Friday to be effective for this fall's entering freshmen.

As part of a drive to attract students from diverse economic backgrounds, the program will offer an initial $250 rebate and an additional $50 rebate for each additional semester successfully completed.

Koffler has secured the additional funds from a 'surplus' fund collected for building improvements. He told the Massachusetts State Building Commission, "with no obvious kinks in the University building system, it is now time to funnel funds to worthy recipients."

"I think its a great idea, and to think that UMass started it all. That will certainly put our name on the collegiate map!" remarked Stephen Doyld in a telephone survey.

Conversations in the Campus Center buzzed with the news, and Channel 40 in Springfield visited the campus to elicit the initial response.

"Admisions office telephones have not stopped ringing since the weekend announcement. Parents and anxious students are flooding the admission's office with applications.

Whitmore is now accepting applications from work-study students to help collate University applications.

Short-term projections indicate that the University will winess a 347 percent increase in freshman applications for the fall of 1981.

Bo Derek rates 10 at graduation

By JED SMOCK
Special to the Collegian

Motion picture star, Playboy magazine model and Hollywood sex-symbol Bo Derek will be the featured speaker at this year's UMass graduation, University Chancellor Henry Koffler announced last week.

Koffler, speaking before an enthusiastic group of more than 75 Southwest Residential Area freshmen at a John Quincy Adams ninth floor Happy Hour, expressed disappointment over the University's inability to lure first choice Kristy McNichol to speak at the commencement, but added he was "psyched" over the Derek selection.

"We wanted to get someone the students could relate to," Koffler said, "and even though Kristy wasn't available, we're ecstatic over grabbing someone as intellectually stimulating and nationally prominent as Miss Derek."

"And what the hell," added Koffler with a self-assured chuckle, "I wouldn't throw her out of bed for eatin' crackers."

UMass News Director Art Clifford, also present at Happy Hour, told the denim-clad group Miss Derek will speak on a variety of acadmically relevant issues, her already completed speech entitled "The Long Range Effect of Co-ed Bathrooms at Public Universities."

Other prominent figures receiving degrees include radio personality Paul Harvey (Speech Therapy,), John Wayne Gacy (Child psychology), and Slim Whitman's dog, Phil (Hotel and Restaurant Administration).

Graduating Senior Nick Nostril, a Leisure Studies Major and former co-captain of the UMass Rugby team, expressed "deep satisfaction" over the Derek selection, adding he "wouldn't be wearing anything under my graduation gown, if you know what I mean."

AMERICAN MULTI CINEMA
ADULTS $2.75 STUDENTS & SR. CITIZENS with AMC CARD $2.25 TWI-LITE SHOW $1.50 - Special Engagements Excluded Twi-Lite Show - Limited to Seating
TIMES SHOWN FOR TODAY ONLY

HAMPSHIRE 4 — 584-7550 HAMP. MALL ON CAFE SQ. - RT. 9, HADLEY, MASS.
SISSY SPACEK TOMMY LEE JONES Coal Miner's DAUGHTER PG (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
AUDIENCES WILL SIMPLY CHERISH BREAKING AWAY Best Picture Nomination PG (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
SERIAL with Martin Mull R (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
Little Darlings R (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45

MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 — 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9-HADLEY MASS
PETER SELLERS SHIRLEY MacLAINE BEING THERE Best Actor Nomination PG (5:45 @ $1.50) 8:30
ROY SCHEIDER ALL THAT JAZZ Best Picture Nomination R (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
Joseph Wambaugh's THE BLACK MARBLE with Paula Prentiss PG (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
IRWIN ALLEN's production of When Time Ran Out... PG (6:00 @$1.50) 8:30

July 11 to 20, 1980
A ten day performance seminar for strings and piano
Reduced rates for Amherst residents and members of the five college community
For further information (please, collect) contact:
Hampshire College
Amherst, Massachusetts 01002
413-549-4600
extension 324
THE HAMPSHIRE COLLEGE CHAMBER FESTIVAL WITH THE OLEWSKY TRIO

Hey you!
Want to become a tool of the capitalist system?
Want to become hopelessly materialitic?
Then come to the symposium:
"How money can buy anything you'd ever want"
Wed., April 5 SBA 666
sponsored by the Designer Jean Club

ESKIL'S TAKES MALE ORDERS, TOO
Not every man wears Eskil's Clogs. Just the smart ones. Because Eskil's Clogs with the anatomically-designed sole give your feet the kind of comfort and support they deserve. And with over 30 styles and colors to choose from, there's an Eskil's Clog perfect for everything from blue jeans to gray flannel suits. Gift certificates available.
$5.00 off any style with UMass ID WITH THIS AD
7 Pleasant St., Northampton
Take 5-College bus to Northampton
ESKIL'S CLOG SHOPS

BLUE WALL
Campus Center
UMass
Presents—Tuesday
2 For 1
with Rock n' Reggae
Happy Hour everyday 3-6 p.m.
TOC sticker & valid ID required
to purchase alcohol

No-nukers harassed

BLACK FLAG
Collegian Staff

Students Opposed to Anti-nuclear People gained Recognised Student Organization status yesterday as part of a plan to expel all anti-nuclear activists from University campuses throughout the nation.

SOAP President Herb Mayr, known for his speeches from atop a chair in the Campus Center concourse on behalf of the CARP group, said, "It's not that we're in favor of nuclear power. We really just can't stand the people who are actively against it," he said.

The group was formed with the explicit purpose of harassing and eventually forcing anti-nuclear activists off college campuses, in hopes they would realize the mistakes they have made in expressing and representing themselves as a unit.

"We feel most anti-nuclear activists know less about the issue of nuclear power than any given Presidential candidate," Mayr said. "That's pretty sad, when you think about it," he added.

A Student Coalition Against Nukes Nationwide member, who wished not to give his name fearing SOAP's harrassment, said he thought SOAP was immoral and unhealthy. "What they're saying," he said, "goes against all of us because of what we are; not because of what we think. That's not too nice, Is it? I'm not sure," he added.

SOAP is having no trouble recruiting new members, Mayr said. When the organization was announced, a line formed outside the office for people wishing to be involved in the group.

"I don't know what it is," said Mayr," but everybody seems to hate these people as much as we do. We're busy so far and all I can say is that its great to see those anti-nuclear assholes have their whole day upset by someone substituting Frosted Flakes for the Granola at a basic's lunch," he said.

"It's not fair, it's just not fair," a SCANN member said. "Last night, they kidnapped me out of my room, took me to Burger King, and forced me to down two Whoppers. And my biorhythm is at an all-time low. It's just not fair," he said.

UMass librarians announced the installation of a sophisticated new book scanner that could check all students leaving the Tower and Goodell simultaneously. Librarian Dirk Catalog believes that "1984 has arrived with this new system. Look on page 11 for what we do to people who are caught trying to steal a book."

'Prep look' attacked

Congatulations UMies, now you too can be a prepped out snob, at our favorite polyestor mall. Even if you didn't attend Choate, Phillips, Miss Porter's, Avon Old Farms, or Loomis-Chafee, grab a pair of Chino's a LaCoste shirt, and you're on your way.

For the nouveau prepe, this spring is offering a variety of styles to imitate the privileged. Just think, if it catches on, you won't be able to tell the UMass students from the Amherst College attendees, as they walk through Amherst Center.

For the casual look, don a button down shirt with a monogramed sweater for the ladies, and a corduroy jacket for the guys.

Of course, you'll be missing a few pieces of gold heirloom jewelery, a $25,000 high school education, manners and connections.

Make sure you wear in you preppie clothes before you put them on, or you will be amrked instantly a garrish nouveau prepe.

The real test, of course, is going to an Amherst fraternity party or a Smith mixer and see if someone remembers you from a school trip to Southern France or an interscholastic snob championship.

If you're not careful you might end up looking like an American Princess or Prince, so avoid wearing lots of makeup or blow drying your hair. That "I'm naturally wonderful" look is essential.

NEBITH VAN VANDERVAN III

Greeks go to Romans

CINNA
Collegian Staff

"The Greek area will change to a Roman system," announced Mork Lion, Interfraternity Council Vice President at last night's emergency meeting.

The last Roman fraternity to be on campus was QTV, which closed during the early 1960's due to lack of enrollment.

"We though we'd bring the Roman lifestyle back to UMass," Lion said. "The Executive Council is setting up a board to review the new rules, which I think will pass very easily."

The implementation of new by-laws will take approximately two weeks, according to Roman Affairs Director Helen Troy. "I'm leaving at the end of the semester so I won't be here for the mayhem," she said.

The new Roman lifestyle will require each fraternity to install reclining couches in foyers, social, and ceremonial rooms. Afternoon naps will be required for all leaders of the house, who are to be waited on by pledges.

Fruit will be imported from California and Florida, for such occassions "especially concord grapes," said Lion.

"Part of our little sister program will be the feeding of grapes to house members. you know like, like in the Hercules movies. as well as stomping them for wine," he said.

On the social level, toga parties will be held weekly depending upon exchange nights of the fraternities and sororities. "It's easier to leave it to the discretion of the house," one IFC spokesperson said, identi-

TURN TO PAGE 8

Arts in Review

Dylan at CARP table; says 'born again' again

By JOHN WESLEY HARDING
Collegian Stiff

Bob Dylan, renowned singer-songwriter, known for his stirring protest songs of the 1960's and, most recently, for his controversial conversion to "born-again" Christianity, was seen yesterday recruiting students at the Collegiate Association for the Research of Principles, CARP, table in the University's Campus Center concourse.

Dylan, who has been under scrutiny of late, due to the religious overtones of songs on his last released album, Slow Train Coming, has decided to reallign his theological philosophy once again—this time with the Reverend Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church. CARP is the campus representative of the Unification creed.

In an interview with the popular singer, held over cocktails at the University's Blue Wall, Dylan was asked about his most recent conversion. Said Dylan, "It was the most logical choice for me, having grown up in the Midwest, to find Christianity appealing. But since I've always been a protest singer at heart, yuh know, kinda 'unconventional,' I figured that choice was a mistake. The teachings of Rev. Moon, it's like the real thing man, if yuh can re-late."

Dylan became frustrated when a Blue Wall waitress refused to serve him a "Moonasoda," offering him a bottle of Listerine instead. The waitress claimed Dylan had a sore throat, pointing to his hoarse-sounding voice as evidence. Dylan persisted that this drink was very popular in his hometown of Hibbing, Moonesota. "Sun and I used to ride motorcycles on Highway 61, yuh know," Dylan added.

When asked if, perchance, the "Moonies" might have brainwashed him into joining their cause, Dylan responded; "Poppycock. I know when I wrote 'I Dreamed I Saw St. Augustine' that I was having a vision from God." He continued, "St. Augustine is in Florida, and when I heard the Rev. Moon was offering free trips there, I just knew it was the truth for sure."

Of plans for a new album, Dylan, who has changed his name to Robert Zimmermoon (a variation on his original Jewish surname), said he plans a world tour and a new recording of songs about his newfound faith. Some of the titles, it has been learned, are: "Lunar or Later (One of Us Must Go), a reworking of a tune from his Blonde on Blonde album; "Gotta Serve Some Money," a song about the "Moonies" favorite hobby; and 'A Hard Pain's A-Gonna Fall," a song about the fate of those souls who do not join up with the Unification Church. The title of the new album will be Crud on the Slacks, a theme derived from Dylan's experience from a hard day of work on a "Moonie' commune.

Jack Kluggerman and new dance partner "Good Head" compare dental carries at yesterday's opening of their new Broadway musical hit "Dog Sperm's Good By Me."

'Swimming' evokes wave of housewife protests

ELTONA Q. DALLY
Collegian Critic

If you're looking for an eveing of quality entertainment, then DON'T go see "Swimming," starring Barbra Streisand, now at the Hampster Maul.

The film's premise is ludicrous. A series of bizarre murders have occurred at a suburban YWCA, and Babs, as Sgt. Phillout DeCensus, goes undercover to investigate. Soon she finds herself trapped in the mundane world of housewives and diapers, and begins to question her own independence.

The film has been picketed by housewives across the country, who carry placards claiming "Swimmingis a threat to split level housing and the PTA," and "Swimming condones violence against shopping centers."

There is every reason to protest this piece of trash, it is nothing but one stereotype after another. Surely not all subruban housewives spend their days under hair-dryers or in the Jacuzzi. And the way in which they are murdered, throats slit with credit cards, is ridiculous beyond belief.

Streisand really does a nose dive in this film, her worst to date. Robert DeNiro is wasted as her lover, who turns out to be the murderer and tries to kill her in the sauna with hair straightener.

Slim Whitman plays Bartholomew Mustang, the desk clerk, and he really earns his Academy Award nomination for this role. If the film is to be seen—just watch him as he not only has the guts to play opposite Babs, but steal the show from under her nose.

Streisand and Slim teamed up for the title song "Swimming in the Valleeeee" which is also nominated for an award. When Slim hit those high notes not a pair of eyeglasses were left in the theatre.

Swimming" is definitely a must-no-see, and certainly not for young children. Rated FMO (For Morons Only).

TUESDAYS
2 for 1 Night
(All Mixed Drinks)
9-11
Disco/Oldies
No Cover
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

★ Pill

CONT. FROM PAGE 3

women have been faithfully taking these pills day in and day out to prevent pregnancies and have probably been a lot hornier than usual because of it," Itch chortled.

Officials say the center will be expanding its family planning program to help cope with the onslaught of new pregnancies expected.

"The way I look at it these women have been getting a bargain. I mean Quaaludes usually run about five or six bucks a shot, and that's if they're real. Most of the time they're just cheap imitations," Itch said.

★ Greeks

CONT. FROM PAGE 7

fying himself only as Bruno.

The Roman gladiators will compete at the UMass Alumni Stadium on Friday nights, instead of Saturday afternoons. The innocent slaughtering of animals will take place before hoards of drunken people.

IFC members rationalized the new firm of entertainment "We feel it's better to keep the drunken dolts in one place and beat the hell out of each other, instead of maiming Pikkeys. That fraternity is just too good for the area."

★ Koffler

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

deportment from an anonymous telephone caller. Operators who traced the call determined it had come from a telephone booth in Amherst.

Art Clifford, news bureau director, said the Chancellor was "as much an American as anyone else," and that the campus "would suffer if Koffler were deported."

The State Department official would disclose neither when nor exactly why Koffler was being deported, but said "these things do happen."

A spokeswoman for UMass President David C. Knapp said: "At this time, there is no search for Henry's replacement. We have never questioned the man's integrity."

Clifford D. Simak, head of research at Oakridge Institute, said in a telephone interview; "I can't understand how you got wind of this. But I guess that's the kind of business this is. As far as I'm concerned, he deserves a medal, not deportment." Simak is one of the original developers of the neutron bomb.

Richard Moran, Student Government Association co-president, said of Koffler's deportation: "It's too bad he's leaving so soon. I thought I'd get a chance to meet him one of these days."

FRESHMEN
SOPHOMORES
JUNIORS
Get the Most out of your College Years

We're looking for a few good college men and women to join the 'new' Marines. People with enough backbone to grab responsibility, enough pride to be Marine officers. Sign up for the Platoon Leaders Class program, the primary college officer commissioning program of the Marine Corps. There are no grooming standards in the 'new' Marines, we offer co-ed barracks, and most importantly—job security.

Please Return form to:
United States Marine Corps
Officer Selection Office
135 High Street
Hartford, CT 06103

_____I would like to arrange a personal interview with a Marine Representative.
_____I would like additional information about Marine Corps Officer Programs.
Call me at (Area Code)_____
Name_____
Last First Middle
Address_____
City State Zip
Date of:_____
Birth College Graduation
University _____ GPA _____

The Few, The Proud, The Marines

AFSCME
the union that cares
UMASS EMPLOYEE'S LOCAL 1776
COUNCIL 93 / AFSCME, AFL-CIO
417 GRADUATE RESEARCH TOWER B
545-2831
SPIRIT OF 1776

Jose Felice Sheppard,
Groundskeeper
Wants A Pay Hike "Now"
He's voting for AFCME.

Spectra Star Kites
Formerly Llumar Star Kites
from $1.95 to $14.95 including 20' kites
we have kites, string, rollers and even books on kites
Go fly a kite this weekend
Open Sat. 11 a.m.-4 p.m.
The University Store
campus center univ. of mass. amherst

Nuke the Whale by Danny Guidera

4 by Frank Emery

Wimpman by Evan Carlson

Bean by Kevin X. McNamara

Best of Norma B. by M.J. Galper

Crossword

UNITED Feature Syndicate
Monday's Puzzle Solved

ACROSS
1 Scorch
5 Dramatis personae
9 Burn
14 Burden
15 Where Banff is: Abbr.
16 More aged
17 Aspirations
18 Endure
19 Climbing vine
20 Openings
22 Jackstraw
24 Sea bird
26 Rap
27 Dillseed
29 Tit for —
30 Hens' disease
33 Conceived
37 Be bold
38 Girl's name
39 Chem. unit
40 Criminal
41 Insects
42 Canada's legislature
44 Some grads
45 Acquired
46 Anent: 2 words
47 Sing
49 Wyo. range
53 Practiced
57 Girl in a song
58 Nymph
59 Mine contents
61 Amerind
62 Analyze
63 Eye part
64 Alaska city
65 Letters
66 Lively
67 Whirl

DOWN
1 Fastener
2 — Selassie
3 Confess
4 Holds back
5 Truck part
6 Beverages
7 Pile
8 Lively dance
9 Pick out
10 Succeed: Slang
11 Jewish month
12 Cotton fabric
13 Pull
21 Meaning
23 Highway
25 Wreath
28 Meal item: 2 words
30 Wan
31 Press
32 Confined
33 Cheese
34 1492 ship
35 Containers
36 Negative word
37 Lowerings
40 Destined
42 Needy
43 Noun suffix
45 Inclines
47 End
48 Courage
50 Come out —
51 Ruth's mother-in-law
52 Luster
53 Hawser
54 Periods
55 Pronoun
56 Fawn
60 Reposed

DC Menu

SLIM WHITMAN TEE-SHIRTS ARE COMING!

Earthfoods

Out of gas,
Eat at Earthfoods

ATTENTION

The Graduate Student Senate is accepting applications for Revenue Sharing Funds for the Spring Semester from Departments which have elected their Senators.
Deadline April 25
For more information and to pick up your application forms please contact GSS Treasurer, Tiziana Rota. Graduate Student Senate, 919 Campus Center, 545-0970/545-2896.

On Sunday Feb. 24 Pat Metheny performed at the UMass Fine Arts Center and stunned the audience!
See the Electrifying Pat Metheny Group
Thurs April 1-7 & 10
Tickets $6.50
Faces & Platterpus Records
FLAT STREET
BRATTLEBORO, VT. 802-254-8257

The rusty nail
WELCOMES
18 & 19 year olds
Every Sunday thru Thursday
Positive I.D. Required
"Live Music Information" call 665-4937

To place a Collegian Classified
Come to Collegian Office CC 113
8:45 to 3:45 Mon-Fri
Classified deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day

Collegian Classifieds

Collegian Classified Rates
•15c per word
•Student rate 10c per word
•Cash in advance
•5 consecutive days 5 % discount
•Phone number FREE

A STEAL

50.00 a month util included bus route, May 24 Aug 30 546-6350

AUDIO

SONY one point stereo eletret condenser microphone excellent cond. $25 253-3225

Quanta 500 turntable belt drive strabe electronic pitch ADC Cart $85 546-9410

AUTO FOR SALE

FIX YOUR OWN CAR. The Student Auto Workshop offers tools, space, and assistance. Tues, Wed, Thurs 3-9 pm, Fri 12-5, Sat 10-5. Level one CC garage. 545-0673

'73 Toyota Mark II Wagn 73000 mi excellent shape, yours for $1980 phone Kittye 549-5412

1964 Volvo PI800S Sports Coupe 115 HP 5 spd Michelins Bilsteins AM-FM good for parts or restoration 34 mpg call 549-5359 eves asking 600

Convertible 67 Buick Wildcat $300 Mark 586-1322/546-8908

1970 Olds eng & trans excellent condition body good have to sell moving to city 400.00 or BO call 546-1441 Mon-Thur after 9:00 PM

1970 Chrysler T & C stawgn good cond call 665-3625 eves

1973 Fiat Stationwagon Runs. Steering unit needs to be replaced. Could be fixrd or used for parts. Brand new battery and muffler system. $300. or Best Offer Call: 665-2753

1972 Volkswagon Van excellent condition 549-2636

ENTERTAINMENT

Soundsystem for Hire perfect for bands, discos, coffeehouses Rick 584-4105

Fullhouse rock and roll for bookings call Zeta Psi — Tom 256-6845 or 549-6913

Debbie Roden likes Banana Contests!

FOR RENT

Cape Cod Summer Rental 5 bdrms E. Dennis after 5 253-5017

One bedroom Colonial Village $112/mo available immediately 256-6749 Andy or leave message Tobin 509

Cape Cod Summer Rental West Yarmouth 2 miles from Seagull Beach $450 to share room $800 for single 546-9569

Summer Sublet fully furnished 2 room 5 minutes from UMass 190 + utilities Call Dan or Bridge late eves 549-5798

Rooms on the Cape for summer Hyannis area 617-771-6768 weekends

Room available Puffton sum/fall own bath 549-1347

FOR SALE

Teac A103 mint 6 months old 170 new 125 now Honda moped brand new perfect extras 450 new 375 now call Dan late eves 549-5798

Fisher Integrated Component System MC3020 cassette/turntable excellent condition call Seth at 546-6849

Guild Guitar with Amp asking $200 Rick 546-7027

FOUND

Found-Brown plastic rimmed glasses in Northeast quad. Call Jeff 6-3210

Silver Frame Glasses brown case found by Knowlton Dorm before vacation. Call Collegian 545-3500 or come by.

Found 1 keu for a Ford car or truck found near Lot 32 dial 6-7585

HELP WANTED

Summer work, $1,210.00 monthly, travel Car owner preferred but not required. Send SASE Box 213, Amherst MA 01004

Counselors for Boys Camp in Maine. Openings in most specialties. Write: Camp Cedar, 1758 Beacon St. Brookline, MA 021466 or call 617-277-8080

Work study positions available at SCERA for recruitment coordinator, office assistant and women's issues team. Contact SCERA for application or call 545-0341

INSTRUCTION

Jewish Community of Amherst needs both Hebrew and Jewish Studies teachers for September 1980 call 549-0223 for application. Experience preferred

LOST

Lost Black Lab named Astro Always seen around campus. If anyone has any info please call Scott at anytime 549-6219. Wears blue collar, keep your eyes open friends.

MOTORCYCLES

1977 Honda CB125S Mint Condition 75-90 MPG $550 6-4554

1975 Kawasaki KE175 on/off road recent total rebuild $635 or BO 546-5977

450 Honda 1970 11K miles new sprockets, chain, tires etc. 323-7178

PERSONALS

Pete Jacke call Macky 665-7923

Don't graduate without doing it! Get your yearbook portrait taken--call 545-2874 for your appointment. Don't be left out of the 1980 Index

All University Women invited to Rush Parties at SDT for more info call Robyn 545-0527

Go in "SAYNE", April 10 Thursday

NEED CASH? I will buy your used record albums. 6-7937

Charismatic Prayer and BS CC 903 Tuesday April 1 8-10 PM

Whoever took a leather purse from Southwest Munchies Thurs night please return personals to the Collegian Office. No questions asked. Much sentimental value!

WANTED: Drum set for prop in student movie Call 549-3926

Wanted Craftspeople for on campus show during Central Orchard Hill Concert for info call 546-9898 after 11 also for Lower Central Spring Day Festival

A friendly Here Comes Peter Cottontail to good friends, Love, Sheila

M. Maughan Where are you & my camera? Have you ever had 2 broken legs? Please call me—Cheryl

Attn: Male on 3rd floor Cashin, we luv the view, keep that shade up & shirt off!!! Love MSS

To the POLISH WONDER alias DAISY JANE Love's a Bitch Always and forever 99

Happy Birthday Karis! Finally eighteen, just two to go. love us

Have you been hassled at the Iron Horse Coffee House or been forced to pay a donation? If so, call and leave a message at 545-0199 or 545-0781 before 5. Or at 546-4275 between 5-6:30 & 9-11

Happy Birthday Cindy!!! Only one year to go! Have a good one. Love your roomie.

Elliot F. Met you at Northampton party on 3/4/80 Please call me Karen

To my secret admirer thank-YOU! Your thoughfulness made my day. Sugar Pie and Twiggy

David—"You know who I am. You know I can't let you slide through my hands." But you've been dragged away.

Sandy—Have a Happy 20th—even if you are a hurtin buck—Dan

Flynn—Did you know that excessive beer drinking causes drunkeness. Being 20 isn't everything—It's the only thing! No more dives. Next turn's yours for packyrun PS—Happy 20 RMM

Juice Man—A Belated Happy Birthday Don't let the number get you down, King Arthur and his Puffton Court

Savida, STAY OUT OF TROUBLE—N.Y.P.D.

Deborah Lynn Matteodos for a Belated Happy B-day we would've said something dirty, but we decided to be nice instead. Hope you had a good one and many more. Your pals M.B. & L.B.

Happy B-day Sandy: Hope you have a real good one. Looking forward to seeing y'all down Cape. Take care. The Southwest drunks

B—Do you understand at least? —A Ship

ROOMATE WANTED

Two bedrooms in a three bedroom Townehouse apt available June 1 549-1833

Female housemate for 3 bdr duplex. On bus route. $100 + utilities. Elise 545-0696, 253-7150

Male roomate wanted Brandywine $105 549-4671

One room in 3 bedroom Townhouse on 2 bus routes, quiet, Bay State phone, HBO, furnished--prefer non-smoker, serious student, very reasonable call 549-5192

1 bedroom in 2 bedroom Squire Village summer in scenic Sunderland bus rt call 665-4761

Available immediately. Female wanted for own room in Belchertown house on bus route. $84 plus. Option to renew June 1. 256-0158

ROOM WANTED

Need a summer roomate for your Vineyard home? Call Beth 549-6534

Female looking for living space on Cape. Pat 665-4197

Female student and well mannered dogs need a room or an apartment on UMass bus rte for the Fall Call Rhonda 546-6956

SERVICES

Attorney Jason R. Rosenthal Legal Representation. Income Tax Preparation. Days 584-4285 Evenings 253-7617

SLIM WHITMAN

The Union Program Council is proud to announce that due to popular demand they are in the process of booking the incomparable master of song--Slim Whitman--drop by UPC and say thanx

Slim Whitman--The Mass Fruit Growers Assoc. supports Slim for Spring Concert--dodge a tomato--Aieeeegh! Awaaaay!

TO SUBLET

2 bedroom apt Colonial Village on bus rte starting June 1 through August call Lisa or Robin 253-3740 evenings

2 L6 bdrooms Brandywine Apts perfect location furnished balcony pool tennis reasonable price call 549-5959

2 bedroom furnished on bus route June-August $195-mo Fall option 665-4720

3 bedroom apt. summer sublet, Fall option ¼ mile from Campus 549-1462 evenings

Northwood 2 bedroom furnished AC DW pool garden plots bus-line June 1-August 31 $150 per month call 665-4850 after 4 pm

Squire Village Sunderland summer sublet 2 bdrm, 2 bathrooms, on bus route avail June 1-August 1, call 665-3660

4 bedroom apt Swiss Village for summer option of Fall bus route all utilities included 256-8616

Puffton 1 bedroom furnished June 1 -August 31 549-5941 evenings

2 bedroom apt Lantern Court Sunderland off bus route June 1 through August 665-7750

3 bdrm apt in Puffton Vill for the summer with option for Fall & Spring ask for Jim if busy keep trying 549-4012

4 bedroom apartment $440 month inclusive on bus route don't get stuck without a place next Fall 256-8209

2 bedroom summer sublet on bus rte June 1 thru August w/ option. Pool, balcony overlooking pond. $350 mnth includes gas heat oven, stove, & A/C call Jay 549-1727

2 bedroom Southwood Apt bus route pool tennis June 1 256-0452

2 bedroom apt Presidential Apts summer sublet-option to renew in fall Call Robin or Jennifer 549-6382

Puffton Village 2 bedroom from end of April Fall option 549-4360

1 bdrm Puffton Village Jun-Aug pool air cond 549-6469

Summer sublet Townehouse Apts $200.00 549-6656 furnished

3 bedroom Townehouse open from June 1 - Aug 31 call 549-4049 for info

Two bedroom apartment on bus route pool and tennis courts airconditioning call 5-11 549-6068

For Summer Fall option own room 78.75 plus utilities call 253-5206

2 bedroom apt furnished on bus route swimming pool call 253-5714

3 bedroom apt Puffton Village 300/mo furnished near bus, pool, tennis courts call nights 549-3765 6/1-8/31

Beautiful three bedroom Rolling Green apt for the summer. Patio, A/C. pool, on bus route (May 1 optional) call anytime 546-9919 rent negotiable

2 bedroom on bus route COMPLETELY furnished utilities INCLUDED, pool, tennis, dishwasher ya can't go wrong for $200 month Storm or Paul 665-3024

1 bdrm in 2 bdrm Colonial Village Apt June-Aug w/option for Fall. Furnished w/kitch, lvrm, bath $112.50 per month plus utilities on bus route call 253-3695 weekday evenings

2 bedroom on bus route near Townehouse June 1-Aug balcony view call Gregg 549-4911

2 bedroom furnished apt Sunderland bus route Fall option 665-4315

3 bedroom apt in Puffton Village for summer with option Fall call 549-4044

Furnished 2 bedroom summer sublet Colonial Village on bus rote pool $225/month but negotiable Dave 256-0503

Townhouse Apt #44 for summer 549-6039

1 bdrm apt—nice location near Puffer's Fall option furnished 549-6899

1 bedroom in 3 bedroom Puffton apart June-Aug part. furnished 2 baths air cond tennis pool bus route Rent negotiable

2 bdrm Apt avail Predidential Area June-Aug on bus route 549-6340

2 bedrrom Brandywine for Summer w/Fall option, 2 bus routes, A/C, pool, balcony 549-3856

Cliffside Apartments Sunderland summer sublet 2 bedroom on bus route avail June 1-Aug 31 call 665-7977

3 bdrm Townehouse summer sublet, Fall opt. call Karen 549-6755

2 bedroom Puffton Apt June-August w/option $340/mo call 549-6487

Share 1 bdrm in Puffton, Smr & Fall with oot for Spr 549-5903 John

WANTED

Fast immediate cash for gold-school rings-diamonds- silver Jeff anytime 527-7078 586-0180

Used Electric Typewriter call andy 546-6785 evenings

WANTED TO RENT

3 women looking for housing in Hyannia area for Jun-Aug call Lisa 546-8006 or Toby 546-7436

House wanted 4-6 bedrooms close to camous call 546-5081 or 546-5100

We are now forming the 1980 Senior Day Committee and are looking for people interested in working in the following areas; publicity, entertainment, food & beverage, and site set-up. There will be an organizational meeting on Wednesday, April 2 at 7:00 p.m. in Campus Center room 165. Questions call Tina 549-0026, 545-2152

COUPON
FREE Spring Inspection
with new tire purchase and this coupon

Plaza Shell
RTE. 9 WEST
AMHERST/HADLEY TOWN LINE
253-9000 Expires 6-20-79

Notices

ALL THOSE INTERESTED IN reviviing the UMASS HOCKEY PROGRAM—there will be an important meeting tonight in Bowden room 103.

THE GAY BULGARIAN LEAGUE will meet tonight in Campus Center room 904-908.

DISCO ON DOWN TO...
Rt. 9 Amherst
Poor Richard's DISCOTHEQUE
CELEBRATION
Thursday April 3rd
5 year
ANNIVERSARY PARTY
50c drinks & beers
all night
in appreciation
of your business
Fri. & Sat.
HAPPY HOUR 8-10 p.m.

SAVE-ON-TIRES
ROUTE 9 HADLEY, MA.
2 MILES FROM NORTHAMPTON OR AMHERST
MICHELIN - CONTINENTAL - ZENITH - B.F. GOODRICH
ARMSTRONG - GOODYEAR - PLUS OTHER MAJOR BRANDS.
SUPERSEDES ALL OTHER ADS
Cash & Carry
TIRE SALE
All our tires are new and first line. No Blems or Seconds.
Cash & Carry
Wholesale to the Public.
We can arrange to have your tires mounted.

CONSUMER NOTE
WHEN COMPARING PRICES, MAKE SURE YOU ALSO COMPARE QUALITY GRADES, EFFECTIVE APRIL 1979 THE N.H.T.S.A. GRADED REGULAR BIAS-PLY TIRES (STANDARD =100) AS FOLLOWS:

NAME	QUALITY GRADE*
FIRESTONE (DLC)	80
ZENITH (PE)	80
GOODYEAR (POWERSTREAK)	70
WOOLCO (ALL AMERICAN)	70
SEARS (GUARDSMAN)	60
K-MART (KM-50)	50

*The higher the No.: the longer the tire will last.
DON'T FORGET IT'S YOUR MONEY

BIAS PLY POLYESTER

SIZE	TYPE	PRICE
A78x13	Fire. Dlc. Bk.	20.95
B78x13	Zenith Bk.	24.95
C78x13	Fire. Dlc. Bk.	24.95
C78x14	Zenith Bk.	25.95
D78x14	Zenith Bk.	26.95
E78x14	Zenith Bk.	27.95
F78x14	Zenith Bk.	29.95
G78x14	Zenith Bk.	31.95
H78x14	Zenith Bk.	32.95
560x15	Goodyear Wt.	24.95
G78x15	Zenith Bk.	32.95
H78x15	Zenith Bk.	33.95
L78x15	Zenith Wt.	38.95

RADIAL PLY

SIZE	TYPE	PRICE
P155/80x13	WT. GLASS Goodyr. Viva	37.95
B78x13	Fire. 721 WT. STEEL	49.95
P185/80x13	BFG Steel Wt.	49.00
CR78x14	BFG Steel Wt.	52.00
DR78x14	Fire. Glass Wt.	43.95
P195/75x14	BFG Steel Wt.	54.00
P205/75x14	BFG Steel Wt.	56.00
GR78x14	Zen. Glass Wt.	48.95
FR78x15	Fire. Glass Bk.	44.00
P205/75x15	BFG Steel Wt.	57.00
P215/75x15	BFG Steel Wt.	61.00
P225/75x15	BFG Steel Wt.	64.00
P235/75x15	BFG Steel Wt.	69.00

METRIC RADIALS

SIZE	TYPE	PRICE
155x12	Kleber Steel	35.00
155x12	Conti. Steel	40.00
145x13	Michelin Steel	38.00
155x13	Kleber Steel	36.00
155x13	Conti. Steel	42.00
165x13	Kleber Fab.	35.00
165x13	Riken Steel	37.00
165x13	Conti. Steel	45.00
175/70x13	Conti. Steel	50.00

SIZE	TYPE	PRICE
185/70x13	Riken Steel	49.00
185/70x13	Conti. Steel	56.00
165x14	Conti. Steel	49.00
175x14	Riken Steel	43.00
175x14	Conti. Steel	52.00
185/70x14	Conti. Steel	60.00
185x14	Michelin Steel	57.00
155x15	Michelin Steel	48.00
165x15	Conti. Steel	51.00

ALL PRICE PLUS F.E.TAX & SALES TAX
CASH AND CARRY VISA OR MASTER CHARGE
OPEN Mon.-Fri. 9:30-5:30 Sat., 9:30-3 p.m.
586-2544

Administration officials also announced the purchase of a combination trash-compactor-lie detector. Nicknamed "The Inquisition," the system "will clear up a lot of the excess paper and red tape we have around Whitmore as well as disciplining students who are caught stealing books or speaking Spanish." according to Provost Jeremiah Allen. (Staff Photos by Michael Cohen)

PRECISION HAIRCUTS

Includes:
FIRST—a professional consultation
SECOND—a precision style cut selected individually just for you
THIRD—our stylists will show you how to take care of your hair
All for $5.50
with this coupon only
With personal style cut, shampoo and blow dry $8.00, long hair slightly more.
With this coupon only,
limited to new customers only
Styles by Deborah I & II
65 University Dr. Amherst, MA 549-5610
Mimack
62 Main St Easthampton, Ma 527-2411

Carter declares war on Gabon

BAD NEWS JUDGEMENT
Collegian Screw-up

WASHINGTON—Congress today approved President Jimmy Carter's declaration of war against Gabon.

Carter called the tiny African nation, "One of the world's most blatantly anti-human rights, pro-Soviet, imperialistic nations on the globe."

Citing the near twenty percent inflation in the United States as a primary catalyst to his decision to propagate a war fever, Carter said, "I had to do something or I'd be back snapping the whip on the backs of my migrant child laborers in Georgia."

Presidential Hopeful Ronald Reagan reacted to the news by saying, "Well of course, didn't I suggest that last week? I mean I think I said it last week, or was it the last time I ran for president. Or maybe it was a line in one of my movies. Anyway I hate the fucking Ruskies. We should have bombed the intestines out of them years ago. Where do they get off condemning Mao Tse Tung anyway?"

Teddy Kennedy said, "Ah, the people cannot, Ah, withstand more pain. Ah, I understand pain, my brother understood pain, he got shot in the head to prove it too. I had suggested a federal health plan for the Gabon people and here we have bimbo Carter deciding to bomb the hell out of these poor bastards..."

Republican presidential Candidate John Anderson told an enthusiastic crowd of born-again Christians that he "regrets the Gulf of Tonkin Vote and I honestly believe that my psuedo-candor and flip-flopping stands on the issues are great for conniving ignorant students who don't vote to annoy the rest of the electorate."

★ Meltdown

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

margin.

Asked whether radiation has been released into the Millers River, which flows by the plant, Gorky replied: "no." Reisdents who live on the river, however, say hundreds of fish have washed up on the shore since the accident was reported. The Millers River is a tributary of the Connecticut River.

A spokesman for the Connecticut River Basin Conservation Commission said he is "concerned about aquatic life in the area."

Radiation levels in the Millers River, tested this morning, are inconclusive, said an NRC worker. Anti-nuclear activists in the area suspect contaminated water vapor from the reactor seeped or was released into the river, however.

Western Massachusett Electric Co., which operated the plant, had "no comment."

No further details were available at press time.

However, there is not even a nuclear power plant here; UMass students just think there is.

★ Hostage

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

"the demands are unreasonable."

Gorky last night had been answering reporters queries when 10 to 12 AMU members stormed the press briefing and absconded with Gorky. A Greenfield Recorder reporter, Thomas Meyers, attempted to stop one AMU member from grabbing Gorky. Meyers suffered a gunshot wound in the left leg, however, and the AMU members departed with Gorky, who was bound and gagged.

NRC officials on-site said they "had no plans at this time" to retrieve Gorky.

National Guardsmen from the Natick barracks were arriving on the scene at about 3 a.m. but no further details were avaible at press time.

IT'S A BAD TRIP
(with the nightmare OF Drugs)
That Just-for-Kicks "High" Goes Just One Way... Down!

Play Louisville for title

Hoopmen 26-0 after scoring error

By JAMAAL WILKES BOOTH
Collegian Stiff

The University of Massachusetts men's basketball team's 1979-80 2-24 record was discovered to be incorrect due to an official scorer's error, according to UMass coach Raymond J. "Ye doesn't have to call me Wilson" Wilson.

Wilson, currently vacationing on the island of Elba, explained, "Yes, we reviewed the scorebooks yesterday and noticed that only one point was recorded for each of our baskets while our opponents received three points for each of theirs."

When asked who was responsible for this error, Wilson responded, "Well, I don't want to point any fingers, because all of us are getting along so well, but our official scorer this year was a student."

The student was more than willing to talk, taking a break from shoveling manure in the Stockbridge barns. "At the beginning of the season, I could see we were going to be a contender for the national championship and I didn't want the guys to lose any games that they should have won so I thought it was only fair that they get 3 points instead of two and that the other team get one. But I guess I must have made a mistake and got the points backwards. Some day when I'm working for Sports Illustrated I'll look back at this incident and just laugh and..." he stated until this reporter pulled himself away.

As a result of this error, UMass athletic director Mack Frankinerney announced that the NCAA has acknowledged the mistake and will credit the Minutemen with a 26-0 record. Louisville head coach Denny Crum, speaking for the NCAA, agreed to face Wilson's squad tonight to determine the true national champion.

NBC subsequently made a statement that it would be carrying the game coast-to-coast on prime time television; UMass stands to gain not only for the publicity but also from the gate and TV revenues:

"In recent years, most of the money funding athletics has come from women's archery and domino revenues. But this development has put us in a financially solvent position for the first time since Julius Erving donated one year of his NBA salary," Frankinerney stated.

The game will be played at the Curry Hicks Cage on the UMass campus so "students probably should get there a little early," according to Frankinerney.

UMass players looked forward to the encounter with the Louisville team.

"Now I have a chance to show the scouts why I'm going hardship after the game. I will put one right in Darrell Griffith's face," proclaimed UMass' leading snorer Curtis Phauls.

Ty Nedd, purported to have transfer plans, confided, "Well, I was seriously considering it (transfering), but this certainly puts a different light on things, doesn't it?"

Manager Matt Capeless was pleased, too. "When we lost (Alex) Eldridge, (Mike) Pyatt, and (Derick) Claiborne, I figured I'd never get a chance to be on national TV. Hi, Mom!"

The announcement also helped an almost desperate recruiting situation. Wilson, who was using some of the time on Elba to search for a big man, announced upon his return to the States that Washington, D.C. schoolboy star 6'11 Earl Jones had signed a conference letter of intent.

Other than at Boyden Gymnasium, nowhere on the UMass campus is anyone taking any notice of the situation.

Coach Ray Wilson
"I knew we weren't that bad."

Mittmen strike

REVEREND RHOLPH MOORE
St. Dominick's Church

UMass baseball captain Mike McEvilly announced to a group of churchgoers at St. Dominick's Sunday that Minutemen players will go on strike, effective immediately, until the athletic department reinstitutes its scholarship program for baseball players.

McEvilly, standing on a pew in the middle of church waving a UMass pennant, said players felt it was their obligation to strike to show support for their major league counterparts, expected to strike later this summer.

"We know there's no money in the budget for this type of thing," McEvilly said after the service, "but who cares? We've already won more games than the basketball team, and our season isn't even half over yet. All those basketball freaks get big bucks, why shouldn't we?"

The captain, dressed in full baseball garb minus his socks, chanted, "Strike with me. Strike with me," to the tune of Michael Jackson's hit song as those attending mass filed past to the alter.

"He had good rhythm," Father Dick said. "But he couldn't get good footing with his spikes, and he didn't follow through with the pennant the way he should have.

"I'm glad he was here," the Father added, "I overslept and forgot to bring my sermon with me. You might even say the lad was a Godsend."

Several baseball players contacted later that day said they hadn't seen McEvilly for eight or nine days.

"The last time I saw him," said pitcher Mark Brown," he said he was going to Lake Erie to help save the whale. I didn't know he was back yet. I hoped he saved some whales for me."

Coach Dick Bergquist and his assistant Jim Bedard were watching Lawrence Welk when they heard the news.

"Mike's a good boy and we're happy to have him on our squad," the pair said in unison. "Oh look, Jimmy, Barbara and Betty are going to sing!"

Sven Leifson, Leif Svenson and Yuri Johannson of the Swedish Olympic luge team were found frozen in Lake Placid yesterday by an Olympic shuttle driver. It is believed that the trio was waiting for a ride to the closing ceremonies which took place February 24. (AP Laserphoto)

University of Alabama football coach Paul "Bear" Bryant is led to a Tuscaloosa jail after he was arrested for "shitting in the woods," according to authorities. When asked to comment on the charge, Bryant asked rhetorically, "Is the Pope Catholic?" (AP Laserphoto)

Pickett demands play in Fine Arts Center

By CHICO ESTRELLA
Male Prostitute

UMass football coach Bob Pickett said yesterday that he will demand that Athletic Department officials schedule half of the team's 1980 home schedule in the Fine Arts Center.

In a private news conference last night in an Amherst Center alley, Pickett said his fury over the stadium situation comes from an intestinal disgust for alumni franks and the lack of easy access to bathroom facilities.

Pickett said that after he made his way to the facilities near the end of last fall's game with Holy Cross, the line for the third stall was so long as to delay his return to the sideline. Under the temporary direction of the guy who throws the towel in the air, the Minutemen lost in the final four seconds to the Crusaders.

"Damn it, if the Grateful Dead can play in our stadium, we should be able to play in the Fine Arts Center," Pickett said. "It's just that after a few dogs I've gotta trot like a racehorse. You know, the kind that can't wait. Playing in the Fine Arts Center would make things a lot more convenient."

UMass Athletic Director Mack Frankinerny expressed deep concern over the team's move including the UMass student as fan. Frankinerny said that he has grave doubts the Fine Arts Center would be filled for games.

"Lets be honest with each other. You know how joyous it is to sit in the stadium and watch a game on a nice, windy, November afternoon. And those dogs, who's going to eat those dogs'0

"What we could do is build a dome over the Fine Arts Center. That way we could leave the stadium the way it is while at the same time make people think we're really doing something down here besides thinking of ways we can schedule basketball games with Cape Cod Community College to give our guys a chance."

If Pickett's demands are met, the first contest to be played in the Fine Arts Center would be a September game against the University of Maine. While the idiosyncrasies of seating are still being discussed, Fine Arts Center director Gary Cokenose sees no major problems.

Cokenose suggests that fans just "drift in" and "let their kharmas fall where they may.

"I mean wow man, it could be really cosmic," Cokenose said. "We could let people just kinda mellow out in the lobby while they got their space together before the game. And, oh what a rush, we could pass out purple dragon at halftime. It could be like, you know, heightening."

Cokenose, incidentally, was found at last spring's concert with his head fully inside a dumpster under Alumni Stadium. "That place has bad memories for me, man," he said.

Pickett said he will boycott the 1980 season until his request is met. Sources said yesterday that the two-year coach has already placed a shipment from Fenway Franks Corporation for two gross of hotdogs. Pickett, the source said is more than happy to sit out the season at home.

"He's got everything there he needs," the source said. "And the best part is that the john is right down the hall."

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY

Collegian

VOLUME CIX, ISSUE 112 Student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst Wednesday, April 2 1980

WFCR protest hits Whitmore

By SEAN HARVEY
and ED LEVINE
Collegian Staff

About 40 people, protesting changes of Spanish language programming on WFCR radio, said last night they will continue to occupy the offices of UMass chancellor Henry Koffler until their demands are met.

The group, members of the Coalition for Public Improvement in Public Radio, occupied the office Monday while Koffler was meeting with four representatives of the organization. The group had been staging a protest outside the Whitmore Administration Building when the occupation occurred.

UMass police have made no attempt to remove the protestors from the office, but closed the building to the public yesterday.

The Coalition is demanding the return of "Que Tal Amigos?"—a Spanish radio program on WFCR, the Five College Radio station, to its original time slot. The program was recently moved from 7:30 p.m. six days a week to 11:00 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday. Yesterday was to be the first day of the new schedule, but the program was not aired.

Julio Torres, founder and producer of the 10-year old program, resigned following the time changes.

The group is demanding the eviction of WFCR from their studios in Hampshire House; the suspension of UMass Public Affairs Director Daniel Melley; the suspension of station manager Robert Goldfarb; and a moratorium on the time changes for "Que Tal Amigos?" In addition, the group is seeking minority and student representation on the Western Massachusetts Broadcasting Council, which runs WFCR; assurance that the show will continue to be paid for

TURN TO PAGE 4

Maurico Hernadez reads a chant for part of the 60 people who marched outside Whitmore yesterday. The group was marching to show support for the coalition which was inside Chancellor Henry Kofflers' office at that time. The occupation was staged to protest the programming change of "Que Tal Amigos" on WFCR. (Staff photo by Jim Mahoney)

Sophomore Dan Hitchcock shows that milk's a natural when buying records at the University Store. (Staff photo by Chris Grewe)

Concert bands chosen

By ED LEVINE
Collegian Staff

This year's Spring Concert will feature the Allman Brothers, Bonnie Raitt, Third World and NRBQ, the Union Program Council announced yesterday.

The concert is scheduled to be held May 10 in Alumni Stadium, but if it rains, the show will be cancelled, said UPC Talent Coordinator Art Edelstein.

A plan to allow a "limited number" of guests into the dormitories during the concert weekend was also approved by administration officials yesterday, Edelstein said. The policy would most likely limit the number of guests each student may have, he said.

Neither Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs Dennis L. Madson or Director of Student Activities Dr. O. C. Bobby Daniels could be reached for confirmation.

Edelsteing said all undergraduate students who have paid their Student Activities Tax Fee will be entitled to one free student concert ticket. Students, faculty, staff and Continuing Education students will also be allowed to purchase two guest tickets for the show at a cost of $15 apiece, he said.

UPC Promotion Director Darlene Lorkiewicz said guest tickets will go on sale April 14 at the Fine Arts Center Box Office. Student tickets can be picked up beginning April 21 at a location to be announced, she said.

Lorkiewicz said students must have a current University I.D. TO PICK UP THE TICKETS. "If students have any questions as to their status, they better clear it up," she said.

Fourteen thousand guest tickets will be available for the concert, Edelstein said. He added the cost of the guest tickets will subsidize the free student tickets. Since only 10 percent of the show's $250,000 cost is paid from student fees, the extra money covers production costs, he said.

Lorkiewicz said she urges students to encourage their guests to leave the area after the show. "We'd like to make this a one-day event," she said.

Edelstein said planning for the event is already underway. "Everyone has been cooperative and helpful. This is a major event and we need the cooperation of the entire University community," he said.

Art stolen from FAC

By BRIAN O'CONNELL
Collegian Staff

Campus police are investigating the theft of a UMass Art student's painting from the Fine Arts Center last weekend.

According to an Arts Department spokesperson, the theft is only one of several which have occurred in the FAC in the past year.

28-year-old graduate student Barbara Shamgocian, a Worcester, Mass. native currently enrolled in the department's Masters Art Teaching Program, told police she went to the FAC to work on her painting Sunday, only to find it missing from the painting area racks where she had left it Friday.

"The painting was a semester-long project to be graded," said Shamgocian, adding she had intended to include the painting in the Five College's New England Artist's Festival and Showcase in May. "It's very depressing, but I'm trying to look on the brighter side. I guess I can only say that at least someone liked my painting enough to take it."

UMass Art Professor John Grillo said yesterday the thefts have been going on since as early as last year. "One of my own students had one (painting) stolen before," he said, adding "I don't think any security measures have been taken" by UMass administrators to combat the thefts.

"We (the Art Department and the administration) haven't had time to discuss the problems, which are important ones," he said. Art Department Chairman George Wardlaw could not be reached for comment yesterday.

A campus police spokesman said although he had no comment to make at this time, police may know more about the thefts by today.

Shamgocian said, I've done everything I can I could do and right now I'm holding out vague, vague hopes that the painting will be recovered."

83 protestors arrested at Vernon n-plant

By MARC FAGELSON
Collegian Staff

Eighty-three anti-nuclear demonstrators were arrested between Sunday night and yesterday morning at the gates of the Vermont Yankee Nuclear Power Plant in Vernon, Vt., a support worker for the demonstrators said yesterday.

Some of the demonstrators gave their names when arrested but most did not, the worker said. "Maybe three, or a few more," returned after being arrested once to be arrested again, she added.

Approximately 150 demonstrators are still at the plant's gates but are not blocking the gates, said the worker, who wished to remain anonymous. The demonstrators have established "Safe Energy City," and are distributing anti-nuclear information, holding workshops and giving non-violence training to potential activists.

Protestors are allowing traffic to pass through the plant gates. "They don't expect to be arrested anymore," the support worker said.

Few of the estimated 60 UMass students who travelled to Vernon are still at the plant. The three "affinity groups" from UMass have banded together into one group, Kittye Rossmore, a UMass member of the Student Coalition Against Nukes Nationwide said. Rossmore returned from the Yankee plant yesterday morning.

"Everybody felt very positive and the mood was good for

The plant closed Monday night because of pinhole leaks which threatened workers but not the environment, and will reopen today, Steve Stoll, Vermont Yankee public realtions officer announced. The demonstrators could be moved by police when the plant reopens, but "we don't know what will happen," the support worker said.

ΩMEGA BOOKS
COMICS
MOVIE POSTERS
BUY and SELL (SOME TRADE)
QUALITY USED BOOKS
10-1230 2-500 MON-SAT
213 N. PLEASANT

50c Off
Vegetarian & Non Vegetarian
FREE DELIVERY
Take Out Service
Call 253-3481
Open ... 7 days
96 N. Pleasant St. Downtown Amherst
(behind Lou's Food)

University & Office Supplies
Easter Cards & Candy
A.J. Hastings Inc.
newsdealer & stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

the rusty nail
WELCOMES
18 & 19 year olds
Every Sunday thru Thursday
Positive I.D. Required
"Live Music Information" call 665-4937

Students!
A good homework machine doesn't have to be homely.

Smith-Corona® Coronamatic 2500
our discount price $315.50
☐ Executive styling
☐ Rugged chassis
☐ Cartridge-ribbon system
☐ Office-size keyboard
☐ Quick and easy corrections
☐ Businesslike features
• Carbon film • Nylon fabric • Correction tape • Red, Blue, Green, Brown
Come in and put it to the test.

other SCM Typewriter models available starting at $89.95
the UNIVERSITY STORE

BLUE WALL campus center at u.mass
Wed. April 2
HOOLIGAN
Free Admission
Thurs. April 3
THE CHANCE
formerly 'Fat Chance'
$1 cover charge
Fri. April 4 & Sat. April 5

MARTIAN HIGHWAY
$1 cover charge
ALL AGES WELCOME
TOC sticker and valid ID required to purchase alcohol
in association with UPC
Productions info: call 545-2892

WAX n WANE
Spring Jean SALE!!
All Fashion Jeans
Landlubber
A. Smile
Faded Glory
H.I.S.
$5.00 OFF
"Chic" Jeans
Reg. 27.95
Now. . . $20.95
Chic Leisure Pants
Reg. 28.95
Now. . . $21.95
WAX n WANE
Fairfield Mall Chicopee
63 N. Pleasant Amherst

THE ARK
(Episcopal Church at UMass)
Sundays at The Ark 6:00 PM supper (potluck)
7:00 PM Bible Study, Prayer, Eucharist
Wednesdays 1:15 PM At Newman
Rev. Ian Montgomery 758 N. Pleasant 549-5929

NORTHAMPTON BICYCLE
21 Pleasant St. 586-3810
FUJI - RALEIGH - KABUKI - TREK
Skilled Repairs-Bell Helmets-Touring Equipment

University of Massachusetts / Amherst
FINE ARTS CENTER PRESENTS

Itzhak Perlman, Violin
and the Springfield Symphony, conducted by Robert Gutter
Wednesday, April 16, 1980 at 8 P.M.
Music of Mozart, Siebelius and Hindemith
General Public $8, 7, 6
Senior Citizens $7, 6, 5
UMas Student Discount $6, 5, 4
Tickets now on sale at FAC Box Office (M-F, Noon - 5 PM) and Ticketron Outlets. Mail orders, phone reservations, group discounts, group dinner-theater packages available.

Get in the picture...

with the free CIEE student
TRAVEL CATALOG
Int'l Student I.D. Cards, low-cost student flights, summer jobs, railpasses, car deals—a world of information about travel abroad!
For your Student Travel Catalog send 50¢ for postage and handling to CIEE, STS, Dept. 205 E. 42 St. New York, NY 10017
UMA
NAME
ADDRESS
Transamerica Airlines
Council on International Educational Exchange

Communists reach for ballot

By CAROLE SAKOWSKI
Collegian Staff

Brandishing the slogan "People Before Profits," two student members of the Communist Party have been soliciting signatures from registered Massachusetts voters in front of the Student Union, in an attempt to gather enough signatures to gain the Communist Party a place on the election ballot in November.

In order to meet the 39,500 signature requirement in Massachusetts, the Communists are seeking 70,000; apparently, a large number of signatures will probably be disqualified due to illegibility, and other technical restrictions.

Admitting the Party is not optimistic about the chances of its candidates being elected, one campus organizer stated that the importance of their work lies in making voters aware of the issues. "Right now, the presidential campaigns represent a popularity contest. The voters should have an alternative to this," he stated.

Massachusetts is one of thirty states in which the Communist Party, USA hopes to be on the ballot in NOVEMBER. It has never been on the ballot in Massachusetts, but is presently represented in nineteen states.

"Despite the fact that signing the petitions does not mean an endorsement of the candidates, it is difficult to get signatures because people are afraid of surveillance. There is a great deal of paranoia," stated one of the students.

The views of students who passed by the organizers were mixed.

"I agree that the Communist Party should be on the ballot," said senior Laura Blinderman, "because Communism is growing in this country."

Senior Mike Winn stated, "I don't want any Communist influence in this country; so my not signing it will mean one less person."

A junior economics major said she signed the petition because she believes everyone should have the right to be on the ballot if they want to run for office. "The public needs alternatives," she said.

While there were a few students who felt they needed to study the matter further, the majority believed the Party has a right to be on the ballot. Nonetheless, they were wary about signing the petition, as they didn't want their signatures to be used as endorsements.

A member of the Communist Party USA hands out pamphlets on the UMass campus. (Staff photo by Paul Price)

Bogie - Bergman in
CASABLANCA
Thurs. April 3
Mahar Aud. $1.00
6:00, 7:45, 9:30, 11:15

Front runners take Kansas

MILWAUKEE (AP) — President Carter and Republican frontrunner Ronald Reagan took runaway victories in Kansas last night, and led in the Wisconsin presidential primary election as well.

Reagan headed for a 3-to-1 GOP landslide in Kansas, while Carter fashioned a hefty margin of his own over Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Wisconsin's was the more hotly contested primary, with Carter's forces pressing there to end a Kennedy comeback forged a week ago in New York and Connecticut.

The early returns put Carter ahead in a state where Kennedy mounted a late campaign push, and an Associated Press-NBC News poll of voters said Carter was heading for a substantial victory.

SUMMER JOBS

The Summer Conference Housing Office is now hiring students for temporary summer positions as desk clerks, housekeepers, and student supervisors.

There are limited full and part-time openings, all shifts plus weekends.

Applications may be picked up in the University Conference Services Office, Room 918 of the Campus Center.

Deadline for return of applications is 5:00 p.m., Friday, April 18, 1980.

Work study students will be given priority. We are an equal opportunity employer. Women and minorities are encouraged to apply.

Subscription rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday, excluding January, June, July, and August, for $15 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts at Amherst, MA 01003. Second class postage paid at Amherst, Mass. Postmaster: Send address changes to Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

Senior Day 1980
Organizational Meeting tonight
Campus Center
room 165 7:00 pm

ESKIL'S TAKES MALE ORDERS, TOO
Not every man wears Eskil's Clogs. Just the smart ones. Because Eskil's Clogs with the anatomically-designed sole give your feet the kind of comfort and support they deserve. And with over 30 styles and colors to choose from, there's an Eskil's Clog perfect for everything from blue jeans to gray flannel suits. Gift certificates available.
$5.00 off any style with UMass ID WITH THIS AD
7 Pleasant St., Northampton
Take 5-College bus to Northampton
ESKIL'S CLOG SHOPS

THE AMHERST DELICATESSEN
Sandwiches · Cold Cuts
Bagels · Salads
OPEN AT 9AM · 7 DAYS · 549-6314
Extended hours beginning Fri. April 4
Mon. - Thurs. 9 AM - 10 PM
Fri. & Sat. 9 AM - 2 AM

SUMMER EMPLOYMENT with UPWARD BOUND
APPLICATIONS FOR TEACHERS AND COUNSELORS AVAILABLE UNTIL APRIL 7 AT THE UPWARD BOUND PROGRAM, 205 NEW AFRICA HOUSE UMASS
BA OR BS DEGREE REQUIRED FOR TEACHING POSITIONS
APPLICATIONS AND RESUMES NOT ACCEPTED AFTER APRIL 7, 1980. UPWARD BOUND IS AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER.

You should'a called CIEE

for low-cost flights from NY to Europe & Israel.
Guaranteed Fares
to Paris and Amsterdam
BOOK NOW!
Don't risk higher prices later!
Call CIEE (212) 661-1414
Send for FREE Student Travel Catalog—the guide to work, study and travel abroad (enclose 50¢ for postage and handling) to CIEE, STS, Dept. 205E. 42St., New York, NY 10017
UMA
NAME
ADDRESS
Transamerica Airlines
Council on International Educational Exchange

HALLOWEEN coming soon

FRANKLY SPEAKING!
Our dogs are no joke.
The Red Hot Connection
The Great American Hot Dog Place
15 E. Pleasant St. (next to Tech HiFi) Amherst 549-5151
21 Center St. Northampton 586-3306
DELIVERY

SHOES & BOOTS
Hampshire Mall Holyoke Mall
584-9676 532-5776

A Benefit Concert
for the
Vocal Jazz and Afro-American Music Ensemble
featuring
ARCHIE SHEPP
And His Ensemble
Campus Center Auditorium, UMass-Amherst
Thursday, April 3, 1980 — 8:00 P.M.
Doantion $3.00
Tickets Available at TIX

Black Affairs

The Traveler In Transition

By BOBBY DEE
Black Affairs Staff

Solo guitarist, Monette Sudler, appeared in concert at the Cape Cod Lounge last Friday as the third of a seven part Duke Ellington Solo and Duo Series.

Monette, a musician with piercing precision on guitar, held a casually seated, full-house audience spell bound for three hours. Opening with a piece entitled "Transitions", she proceeded to describe with brilliantly silent screams, the black experience in transition. Monette's pertormance as a reflection of her musical and life experience, permeated the room with shades of the blues to a distinctly defiant syncopated funk.

To describe her music one might attempt comparing it to Wes Montgomery because of her ovious mastery of his octave musical technique. Other techniques employed by Miss Sudler showed hints of influence from other guitarists such as George Benson and Jose Feliciano. However as Max Roach stated during a concert last year "we're all standing on the shoulders of giants."

In complete command, she lulled and lullabied like a caring mother vigilantly putting her new born to rest. She transcednded all forms of modern transportation via distinctly European classical technique helping to expose the audience to the multi-cultural experiences of Spain, France, Italy Rome, Greece and on and on.... Then in a chromatic flash we were in glissfull bliss far beyond our wildest imaginations to some remote corner of a galaxy; being once more made aware of the fact that "music is a universal language."

All aboard the "Monette Express", our conductor cries: "a short stop to the West Indies, the Virgin Islands and then a rhythmic tour to the Motherland—Africa....where it all began." She took a short rest stop to allow our energies the chance to compose themselves, only to re-group in preparation for our second half of the soul-stimulating journey.

The fusion of her multicultural sounds which were found in one piece of music, touched upon many in the group and was felt by all, allowing just the right amount of each to permeate throughout the evening.

The subtle reality of our jouney was made evident with the consistantly sporadic "funk-time rhythms," indigenous to the melting pot (U.S.) and the African-american musician. Our first stop was Augusta, Ga. to pick up some more "funk fuel". Then, to the hills to Tennesee, where we met Monette's first teacher, "Banjo pickin' Pete."

She strummed along to Chicago and leaped to New Orleans where we caught a "Ragtime" flight non-stop to New York City. There we met a couple of musician friends with whom Monette once performed. First, bassist Dave Holland and shortly there after, saxophonist, San Rivers. The last stop in New York was a club on 96th Street to meet one of the groups Monette is presently performing with. Trumpeter, Hugh Maskela asked her to conclude our journey by taking us home on the "Queen Vocalliner". "With a voice like silk, she wove her spell (The Whispers)". Thank you Monette Sudler (the Traveler).

"With a voice like silk, she wove her spell (the Whispers). Monnette Sudler (the Traveler) in transition. (Photo by Bobby Davis)

The Pioneer Valley community was treated to a performance in celebration of cultural diversity when the East West Players performed at UMass at Bowker Auditorium on Monday March 31. Players included Clyde Kusatsu, Momoki Iko, Don Magwili and Shizuko Hoshi. (Photo by Bobby Davis)

'East West Revue'

By MARLENE DUNCAN
Black Affairs Staff

On Monday evening, March 31st, at Bowker Auditorium on the UMass campus, the Third World Theater series presented the "East West Revue."

The theater troupe, The East West Players, founded in 1965, was established in the Los Angeles area. The troupe's fifteen years of existence has served as a platform on which Asian-American actors have assumed and projected positive roles reflecting the Asian-American experience.

Clyde Kusatsu, the director, spoke of the incentive of many actors to correct the misconceived roles and racist stereotypes projected by some American playwrights. Kusatsu articulated the importance of versatility in style. He emphasized the necessity of remaining within the cultural realm of the various Asian sectors.

"We are tired of being cute, butlers, kitchen hands, and washermen."

There is a wealth of information, culture and vivacity unrecognized by society. Artists have devoted their lives to expose these realities.

The works, predominantly written by Asian-American playwrights, reflect many of the heart felt and spirit evoking emotions of life in America. The selected pieces showed a variety of economic, social, and cultural differences amongst Asians. The songs ranged from work chants of pineapple and cane pickers, who had settled in Hawaii to pieces on the history of Asian cowboys who had spoken the "pigeon english" dialect.

They performed excerpts from "And the Soul Shall Dance" projecting a slum setting in Hawaii and the problems associated with its condition. Selections from "The Gold Watch," written by Momoki Iko, was performed by Kusatsu, which portrayed an aspect of the complex concept of self-hatred. It ultimately showed that ones differences can be a means of resistence—survival.

A satirical and embodied piece, "The Commander's Speech," written and performed by Don Magwili, was about a son who asked his father "What have Phillipinos done for America?" The father, unable to directly reply to the question, read a statement later written by his son; "What have we given to America? We have given our children, the future, our greatness."

The intonation of cultural pride was extended to their final piece in which Marcus Mukai and the ensemble (Shizuko Hoshi, Clyde Kusatsu, Don Magwili), spoke of the heroism of their parents who had survived through the teams and laughter of their lives.

"We are from the bloodline of heroes." The prevailing message is that realizing the progressive nature of ones heritage and culture produces a self identity—a wholeness. "I'm going home, back to where I started from."

The context of the espose's revealed to me that self gratification is received by those who extend themselves to understanding and acknowledging the many qualities and wonders of Asian-American life.

Support 'Que Tal Amigos'

In writing this letter to you, we hope to convey the feelings of frustration and desperation which led us to our decision to occupy Chancellor Koffler's Office.

In November of 1979, Robert Goldfarb was hired as General Manager of WFCR radio (broadcasting from Hampshire House). One of Goldfarb's first actions as General Manager was to announce his plans to cut the staiton's program "Que Tal Amigos". Que Tal Amigos is a Spanish cultural show which has been on the air for ten years.

Reaction to Goldfarb's plan was quick and overwhelmingly in favor of keeping Que Tal Amigos on the air. In response to this pressure, Goldfarb decided to leave Que Tal Amigos on the air twice a week at eleven pm. (It formally had been on six times a week from 7:30 pm to 8:30 pm!).

In February, 70 people packed a public meeting with WFCR's governing board - the Western Mass. Broadcasting Council. The Council appointed an advisory board to study the dispute between Goldfarb and the supporters of Que Tal Amigos. The advisory board has since voted unanimously in favor of a moratorium, restoring Que Tal Amigos to its original six prime time slots until a long-term solution can be found. But Goldfarb has chosen to ignore the advice of the Council's advisory board.

Our action, in occupying the Chancellor's Office, was the last resort and seen as the only way to focus attention on our struggle and force the University to take action and support of Que Tal Amigos. (UMass supplies the vast majority of WFCR's funds -- $95,000 compared to $5000 given by each of the other four colleges).

The Coalition for Public Involvement in Public Radio has concluded as a result of its meeting with the Western Massachusetts Broadcasting Council, that the insensitivity, unconcern and racism exhibited by the council members and the University of Massachusetts has prevented any progress in solving this controversy and therefore the negotiations have temporarily broken down.

We are very disturbed, disappointed and upset at the lack of any positive results to come from this meeting and therefore announce our determination to carry this struggle on into the indefinite future. We are prepared to stay and occupy the chancellor and provost's offices of Whitmore Administration Building at UMass until our demands are met. We ask for your support at a rally to be held at Whitmore today at 12:00 noon.

The Coalition for Public Involvement in Public Radio

Archie Shepp to perform

Internationally known jazz saxophonist, Archie Shepp, will present a benefit concert on Thursday, April 3, 1980 at 8:00 p.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium. The concert will benefit the travel fund of the UMass Vocal Jazz and Afro-American Music Ensemble in their efforts to attend the Music Educators National Conference in Miami, Florida, during the week of April 8-11.

The Vocal Jazz Ensemble is one of eighty-one groups throughout the United States to be invited to appear at this conferdence, the largest one to be held by educators in the United States. The Vocal Jazz Ensemble is dedicated to the performance of native American music, such as jazz, blues, soul and gospel. The ensemble is under the direction of Horace Clarence Boyer, at the University's Music Department.

Archie Shepp, one of the nation's leading interpreters of contemporary jazz has come a long way since his first days with Cecil Taylor. Now his sound is larger, even more overpowering, the ideas fluid, and the energy stirs up spirits everywhere. Shepp has moved into the front line of tenor saxophonists of any persuasion.

The twenty-five members of the Vocal Jazz Ensemble are attempting to raise $3000 to match donations given to them for the trip, and hope to decrease that balance with the Shepp Concert. Tickets may be purchased at Faces of Earth in Amherst and Tix on the University Campus.

★ WFCR

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

their services, and the publication of station budgets and rules.

"We are accusing Mr. Goldfarb of being racist, arrogant and insensitive to Spanish-Americans," spokesman Philippe Scott said. The group also criticized Melley, Chairman of the Western Massachusetts Broadcasting Council, for "not providing leadership or a forum necessary to resolve this controversy."

Scott said Goldfarb proposed the changes in December, less than a month after he was hired as station manager. "First he said the show was in 'slang' Spanish, but we convinced him it wasn't slang, it was a high quality of Spanish," Scott said.

"We tried to talk with him, but he always showed his racism, arrogance and insensitiveness," Scott said. "We tried nine times to talk with him. We were trying to establish a dialogue with him."

Scott said the Western Mass. Broadcasting Council formed an advisory board which recommended to Goldfarb that he put off his decision pending more investigation.

"He refused to listen to them," Scott said.

"I would really like to reach a satisfactory solution," Goldfarb said Monday. "I do think eventually we have to sit down and talk this over."

Goldfarb defended the program change saying, "prime time should be used for general interest programming."

Koffler said Monday night that the Western Mass. Broadcasting Council would settle the dispute. "It's that group that must set policy and it's absolute arrogance for me to set policy. Influence must be used with discretion," he said.

Neither Koffler, Melley or any member of the commission could be reached for comment last night.

Negotiations between representatives from the coalition and the council failed to end the dispute late yesterday and coalition spokesperson Marcel Ringawa said the occupation would continue until the demands are met.

"It looks like a long struggle," Ringawa said. "We must picket and continue to protest. We're in for a long stay."

Announcements

Martin Luther King Week

Tonight at the Student Union Ballroom, UMass, there will be a concert by the Third Baptist Church Sanctuary Choir of Springfield, Mass. The concert will begin at 7:00 pm. Admission is free.

The Frank Hatchett Dance Company of Springfield, Mass. will perform modern jazz dance at the Student Union Ballroom, UMass. Admission is free.

There will be a lecture by Carolyn Reed, Executive Director of The National Committee on Household Employment in room 101 of the Campus Center this afternoon at 3:30 pm.

Editorial/Opinion

Last train to peace

Slightly hunched over in a window seat, a whitehaired man patiently waited for his journey home to begin. Seconds before the train left the station a young man sat down beside him. "Almost didn't make it, boy!" the old man remarked. Not more than 30 seconds later the train took off en route from Washington, D.C. to Boston. "We ran all the way," the young man said still catching his breath. He piled his belongings on the baggage rack above the seat, gathered notes for a paper which was due on the Marshall Plan, and then took his seat.

NANCY MAFFUCCI

Fifty years separated the two. Gordan Brookes was 73 and his new friend Neil was 20; yet these two men had more in common than a father and son. Neil wore blue jeans and a green sweatshirt jacket. Mr. Brookes wore brown pants and a tweed overcoat. Fastened to his right lapel was a button. STOP THE DRAFT it said in white letters on a black background.

"Did you go to the rally today?" Neil asked. Not really expecting an answer, he started writing his paper, but Mr. Brookes proudly responded, "Sure did, I've been to almost every anti-draft rally since 1963."

They talked about the rally for a while. Mr. Brookes explained that it began at 11:00 a.m. at the Ellipse behind the White House. He arrived the night before and stayed just long enough to reach the capitol building and hear a few speakers. He walked about 20 blocks with some 30,000 others who were mostly college students, and he came down from New Jersey just to participate. But this wasn't new to him; as a pacifist he has been protesting draft registration and war since the 60s and was a concientious objector during the second World War. Registration was a prelude to war according to him, and he opposed both.

They spoke off and on about politics, baseball, and college and listened to one another carefully. When they talked about baseball, the elderly man was nostalgic and remembered his favorite highlights of the game. He recreated the action for the boy with every last detail. When they talked politics, Neil, a government major at Boston College, listened carefully. It was as if he wanted to learn and Gordon Brookes wanted to teach.

They didn't always agree. The election campaign was a sore subject. Neil supported John Anderson, a republican from Illinois. Mr. Brookes supported no one and even though Anderson seemed interesting to him, he refused to support the Republican party. When they talked about college, the old man supported the liberal arts. He received his English degree from the University of Minnisota. Slightly disappointed with the young man's aspirations for a master's in business administration, the old man urged him to reconsider. "What good is money if you haven't learned? Improve the mind," he said. His philosophy was to read all you can to understand the world which surrounds you.

Though Mr. Brookes has aged, his 73 years have not kept him from fighting for that in which he believes. Until his dying day, Gordan Brookes, an elderly gentleman who lives alone in Newark, New Jersey, will support human rights and the movements for peace. He is a senior citizen by mere statistics.

When the train stopped at Newark, he gathered his bags from above and said farewell to his friend. "I'm an old man, you see. And when I find someone who will listen, I will talk." Wishing Neil success, he once again urged him to stay away from business. "Peace," he said walking down the isle. Neil just sat in his seat quietly until the train stopped in New York City, his destination.

Letters

Faculty fears growth of anti-Semitism

To the Editor:

In the course of the Fall semester, a new topic became the subject of heated discussion among students, the faculty, and in the pages of the Collegian: the surfacing of anti-Semitism on this campus. There were columns, editorials, and letters. In the meantime, international events and the election campaign have moved to center stage. Nonetheless, concerns about anti-Semitism should not be pushed aside. It is an important, as well as an emotionally charged subject, and some further clarification of the way we think about it is in order.

There is no doubt that both racism and anti-Semitism exist in our society, as they do nearly everywhere. The battle against them is unfortunately never won once and for all, and in times of social stress both are bound to reassert themselves, if only to find a "them" that can be blamed. When racism or anti-Semitism appears at a university, it is doubly troubling: we all assume that education will cure people of what is euphemistically called "prejudice." It often does, but it is a notoriously slow process.

Now, the instances of anti-Semitism that caused the pained reaction last term were of a particular kind. They were neither nasty talk nor acts of violence, but were expressed in the printed word, and what made them frightening was their quasi-official nature. It was the student newspaper, supported by the fees paid by all students, which opened its pages to anti-Semitic statements; the Campus Center, similarly supported, was used for the distribution of anti-Semitic propaganda. The reason that the use of institutional means for the spreading of anti-Semitism is particularly disturbing is that in this way anti-Semitism gains respectability. It becomes, once again, an opinion that can be held, a proposition that can be debated, One may be for it or against it, as one may be for or against higher interest rates, or boycotting the Olympics. The equivalent with respect to racism would be columns and editorials in the Collegian that brought up the vicious old myths about Blacks as subject to discussion, and a table in the Campus Center that distributed Klan propaganda.

To sum up, then. We who are non-Jewish white faculty members believe that racism and anti-Semitism, both the verbal and the violent kind, should be fought vigorously by students and other members of the university community who are not themselves direct targets. Institutions that represent the student body and the university community as a whole should have no truck with either racist or anti-Semitic propaganda. The events of this century have taught us that words of a certain kind, namely stereotypes and myths, can hurt an entire society. Given respectability by a few, then acceptance by many, they prepare the way for actions of a kind that none of us want to see.

Robert Ackermann, Philosophy
Robert L. Bancroft, Hispanic Languages and Literatures
Nancy Lee Beaty, English
David A. Booth, Political Science
Miriam U. Chrisman, History
Mario S. DePillis, History
Steve W. Fletcher III, Hotel, Restaurant and Travel Admin.
Robert Griffith, History
Joseph M. Hernon, History
Vaclav Holesovsky, Economics
Ruth F. Hooke, University without Walls
A. R. Lewis, History
Gareth B. Matthews, History
Gilbert E. Mottla, Center for International Agricultural Studies
Robert H. Plattner, School of Business Administration
Peter H. Rossi, Sociology
Neal R. Shipley, History
Priscilla R. Ulin, School of Nursing
David S. Wyman, History

If there are other members of the university community who would like to express agreement with this statement, they may so inform Professors Nancy Lee Beaty, English, or Vaclav Holesovsky, Economics, or David S. Wyman, History.

Collegian offends

To the Collegian Board of Editors,

Well, you did it again. You devoted an entire issue of the Collegian to printing what must be one of the most racist, sexist, disgustingly inhumane, insensitive and infantile collections of trash ever to be assembled under the guise of a "newspaper."

While you succeeded in making quite clear the abundance of FOOLS you failed to mention the fact that April 1 happens to be the first day of Martin Luther King week on this campus, and there are a variety of activities planned to commemorate the life of this man. You COULD AND YOU SHOULD have devoted some space to that important fact.

Not only did Martin Luther King week begin April 1, Monday, a takeover of the Chancellor's office took place because people on this campus are still struggling for the things Martin Luther King Jr. lived and died for—among them, some human dignity.

The Hispanic community and it supporters rallied at Whitmore yesterday, began a sit-in at about one which is, as of the writing of this letter, still going on. They are protesting the racist policies and practices of WRCR general manager Robert Goldfarb.

It is most pathetic that you chose not to cover what is a very important struggle going on right now on this campus, and printed what amounts to a stomping on the grave of Martin Luther King Jr.

Consider this letter a request for AN APOLOGY TO THE ENTIRE CAMPUS COMMUNITY, FULL COVERAGE OF THE ACTIVITIES PLANNED FOR MARTIN LUTHER KING WEEK, RESPONSIBLE REPORTING ON WHAT IS HAPPENING WITH THE HISPANIC COMMUNITY'S STRUGGLE, on the one hand, and a promise on the other that this kind of horrendous garbage, barbaric racism, and SICKNESS will not be tolerated much longer. Your total lack of judgement (do you even know what that is?) and your abundant insensitivity qualifies you all for one thing—resignation at least. It is unthinkable that you should be allowed to continue to even claim that you are capable of participating in providing this campus with news. Consider this an additional promise—we will do what we can to prevent that as a possibility. ENOUGH IS ENOUGH.

Marea J. Wexler
Maureen Geraghty
Segem C. Eubanks
S.C.E.R.A. Anti-Racism Team

Occupiers supported

To the Editor:

As we occupy here in front of the gates of Vermont Yankee, we wish to express our solidarity with our fellow students who are occupying the Chancellor's office in Whitmore in their struggle to keep QUE TAL AMIGOS accessible to the Hispanic community.

Although at first the issues of increasing the use of nucear power and that of reducing the amount of minority programming seem unrelated, we feel that it is important to point out that they are related in a very basic way. In the same way that the nuclear power plants are forced upon the people to serve the interests of an elite minority—the public utilities and power corporations—so also we feel that QUE TAL AMIGOS is being cut to serve the interests of an equally elite minority: the racist WFCR administration as represented by Robert Goldfarb.

We realize that as long as the system continues to put the desire for profits before the needs of the people, legal means may very well fail and when they do direct actions such as our occupations must ensue. For this reason we support and encourage the occupation at Whitmore.

In solidarity,
Venceremos
Wizards affinity group/UMassSCANN

Letters to the editor should be kept as short as possible, preferably no longer than two pages. They should be typed at 67 characters per line, triple-spaced.

All letters should contain the author's name, address, and telephone number for verification. Telephone numbers will not be printed.

Pittsfield tackles utility hike

By MICHAEL SILVA
Collegian Staff

Pittsfield area residents will meet tonight to discuss the proposed utility rate increase by Western Massachusetts Electric Company (WMECO), Steve Johnson of the Hampshire County Planning Department said yesterday.

The public meeting, to be held in the Pittsfield High School auditorium, is in answer to the proposed WMECO rate hike, which would mean at least a $5 monthly increase for the average Western Mass residential electric consumer. The increase also would affect residential users more than industrial users, and translates into a $27.88 million revenue increase for WMECO.

Johnson said yesterday that Pittsfield was chosen for the meeting place "because there has been no action to opposition in Berkshire County." He said A. Lewis Hayward, Amherst Town Manager, and Attorney David Silverstone will represent the Hampshire County Planning Department at the meeting.

Johnson hopes to gain strong public support in the Pittsfield area in opposition to the proposed increase. "We need people to support us, but we also need people who are familiar with the company," said Johnson. "They've (WMECO) paid one expert witness $75,000 to testify for the company, and we're hardly able to raise $20,000."

In a prepared statement, Robert J. Garvey, chairman of the Hampshire County Commission, said that "significant strides" have been made to stop the proposed rate hike. Garvey said a representative of the commission will attend the hearing to oppose the "excessive" rate increase.

4th annual
BEAUX ARTS BALL
Saturday April 5 1980
9 P.M. - 1 A.M.
Student Union Ballroom
Cash bar - munchies
dancing
music by Tom Abdou &
PARADISE RHYTHM SHOES
3.00 students 5.00 non-students
Sponsored by the University of Massachusetts Art Club

Collegian Classifieds
SELL IT

silverscape café
"The Yellow House" 264 N. Pleasant St., Amherst 253-3447
Natural Vegetarian Food • Full Liquor •
Coffee Beans, Valley's Lowest Prices
8-mid Mon.-Sat. 12-mid Sun.

TONIGHT
PUB MUG NIGHT
with
JIM PLUNKETT
25c BEERS in PUB MUGS
9 til 1
"An Amherst tradition and now with a great new look"
Serving Food
11:30 AM-9:30 PM
7 Days a Week
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

ACADEMY of MUSIC
Northampton, Mass.
Only Area Showing
Now, Ends Tues.
at 7:00 and 9:00
Academy Award Nominee
BEST FOREIGN FILM
Franco Brusati's
To Forget Venice
(ITALIAN ACADEMY AWARD WINNER BEST FILM)
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

AMC AMERICAN MULTI CINEMA
ADULTS $2.75 STUDENTS & SR. CITIZENS with AMC CARD $2.25 TWI-LITE SHOW $1.50 - Special Engagements Excluded
Twi-Lite Show - Limited to Seating
TIMES SHOWN FOR TODAY ONLY
HAMPSHIRE 4 — 584-7550 HAMP. MALL ON CAFE SQ.—RT. 9, HADLEY, MASS.
SISSY SPACEK TOMMY LEE JONES Coal Miner's DAUGHTER PG (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
AUDIENCES WILL SIMPLY CHERISH BREAKING AWAY Best Picture Nomination PG (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
SERIAL with Martin Mull R (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
Little Darlings R (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 — 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9-HADLEY, MASS.
PETER SELLERS SHIRLEY MacLAINE BEING THERE Best Actor Nomination PG (5:45 @ $1.50) 8:30
ROY SCHEIDER ALL THAT JAZZ Best Picture Nomination R (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
Joseph Wambaugh's THE BLACK MARBLE with Paula Prentiss PG (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
IRWIN ALLEN's production of When Time Ran Out... PG (6:00 @$1.50) 8:30

Information Data Bank — IDB
Taped Information Phone Service — TIPS

TIPS is the UMass Taped Information Phone Service.
Here's how it works:
- Select the tape you wish to hear.
- Dial 545-1540.
- Request tape by number. Mon-Fri 8:30am-9pm Sat & Sun 10am-3pm

For info not on tape yet, call IDB at 545-1555.

Academic Alternatives

1029 Five College Courses
1030 Office of Internships

Academic Procedures and Regulations

1005 Who is Your Academic Dean
1006 Adding or Dropping Courses
1020 Changing Your Major
1026 The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (Access to, and privacy of, educational records)
1031 Graduation Requirements
1027 Incompletes

1032 The Pass/Fail Option
1033 The Repeat Option

Special Academic Programs

1010 The Bilingual Collegiate Program (BCP)
1024 The Committee for the Collegiate Education of Black Students (CCEBS)
1025 The Departmental Honors Program
1028 The Minority Engineering Program
1310 The National Student Exchange Program
1315 The New Englanmd Regional Students Program
1035 The University Honors Program
1036 The Stockbridge School of Agriculture
1040 University Without Walls
1045 The Women's Studies Program

Admissions and Registration

1302 Applying to the University
1304 If You Pay Your Bill Late
1305 Obtaining an ID Card
1307 Changing Your Permanent and Local Mailing Addresses

#1308

1308 If You Haven't been Placed in Courses for which You Pre-Registered
1316 Pre-Registering for Courses
1700 Public Information and Privacy Requests
1317 State Residency and the Appeals Process
1320 Transferring to the University
1325 Withdrawal from, and Readmision to, the University

Counseling

1409 Finding or Changing Your Academic Advisor
1410 The Everywomen's Center
1430 The Student Development and Counseling Center (Personal and Career Counseling)

Current Events

1506 Do you want to be a Commencement Speaker?
1509 Concert Information
1515 Daily Events
1532 The Weather Report

Fees and Expenses

1303 Graduate Fees
1318 Stockbridge Fees
1321 Undergraduate Fees

#1532

Parking and Transportation

2205 Long-Term Parking at the University
2208 Short-Term and Temporary Parking
2215 If Your Vehicle has been Towed

Student Organizations

2350 How to become a Registered Student Organization (RSO)
2355 The Student Activities Office
2362 The Union Program Council (UPC)

Student Services

2405 Check Cashing at the University
2420 How to Obtain a Grade Transcript
2421 Handicapped Student Affairs
2422 The Legal Services Office (LSO)
2423 On-Campus Job Interviews
1034 Professional and Graduate School Exams
2468 The UMass Student Federal Credit Union
2425 The University Ombudsman (Grievances)
2427 The University Placement Service

University Facilities

2452 Dilaing from University Phones
2454 Serving Hours at the Dining Commons

#2215

2458 Meal Plan Exemptions and Refunds
2460 University Food Services (Meal Plan Options)
2461 Replacing Lost Meal Tickets
2462 Snack Bars, Munchy Stores and Baleries on Campus
2465 The Textbook Annex

Athletic Facilities

2453 Gym Schedules
2459 Pool Schedules
2471 Racquetball and Squash Court Schedules
2464 Tennis Court Schedules
2476 Weight Room Schedules

Financial Aid

2404 The Basic Educational Opportunity Granmt
2410 Emergency Short-Term Loans
2412 Financial Aid at the University
2415 HELP Loans and the National Direct Student Loan (NDSL)
2440 The Work/Study Program

General Community Information

1555 Child Care for the University
2000 Registering to Vote in Amherst

Housing

2155 Family Housing
1558 The Greek System (Fraternities and Sororities)
2158 Off-Campus Housing
2160 Prince House (Graduate student Housing)
2170 If Your Dorm is Scheduled for Renovations
2171 Repair Work in Dorm Rooms
2172 Room Choosing

#2471

There's one moment for every man when he's reaching inside himself for the best he's got. The best there is.
He sees the gusto and he goes for it.
At Schlitz we brew a beer for that man. Because the moment he tastes the gusto he knows there'll never be a better beer than Schlitz. Never.

Go for it!

©1980 Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

Collegian Classifieds

A STEAL

50.00 a month util included bus route, May 24 Aug 30 546-6350

AUDIO

SONY one point stereo eletret condenser microphone excellent cond. $25 253-3225

Quanta 500 turntable belt drive strabe electronic pitch ADC Cart $85 546-9410

All Offers Considered! Harmon Kardon 330C 20 watt Receiver $130 large ADVENT Speakers $240 Tony 323-7365

AUTO FOR SALE

FIX YOUR OWN CAR. The Student Auto Workshop offers tools, space, and assistance. Tues, Wed, Thurs 3-9 pm, Fri 12-5, Sat 10-5. Level one CC garage. 545-0673

'73 Toyota Mark II Wagn 73000 mi excellent shape, yours for $1980 phone Kittye 549-5412

Convertible 67 Buick Wildcat $300 Mark 586-1322/546-8908

1970 Olds eng & trans excellent condition body good have to sell moving to city 400.00 or BO call 546-1441 Mon-Thur after 9:00 PM

1970 Chrysler T & C stawgn good cond call 665-3625 eves

1972 Volkswagon Van excellent condition 549-2636

1971 Dodge Polara $300 549-0915

ENTERTAINMENT

Soundsystem for Hire perfect for bands, discos, coffeehouses Rick 584-4105

Fullhouse rock and roll for bookings call Zeta Psi — Tom 256-6845 or 549-6913

Icarus - April 18 Hamden Southwest

Benb & Gerald Book now on sale at For the Record, Faces and Mainstreet Record Thornes Supermarket

FOR RENT

Cape Cod Summer Rental 5 bdrms E. Dennis after 5 253-5017

Summer Sublet fully furnished 2 room 5 minutes from UMass 190 + utilities Call Dan or Bridge late eves 549-5798

Rooms on the Cape for summer Hyannis area 617-771-6768 weekends

Room available Puffton sum/fall own bath 549-1347

Rooms in So. Deerfield 665-7093

Attractive, reasonable summer rental for 4 people. One minute to SBA 549-1254

4 bdrm summer ranch house available May 21st $400/month, 10 min from campus call 549-5682

FOR SALE

Fisher Integrated Component System MC3020 cassette/turntable excellent condition call Seth at 546-6849

Guild Guitar with Amp asking $200 Rick 546-7027

Acoustic Guitar Yamaha FG 170 $111.23 Tony 323-7365

76 Dodge Charger SE, small V8 automatic, air, power windows, excellent condition $1900 546-1029

1969 Volvo engine $150 four speed transmission $50 549-0915

Indash or underdash AM-FM 8 track $40 G.E. 40 ch. C.B. with P.A. $40 Installation available Steve 6-1403

24" A-D Superlight blue, ½ campy $350 24" rould track bike, all campy $200 Paul 549-6028

FOUND

Found-Brown plastic rimmed glasses in Northeast quad. Call Jeff 6-3210

Silver Frame Glasses brown case found by Knowlton Dorm before vacation. Call Collegian 545-3500 or come by.

Found 1 keu for a Ford car or truck found near Lot 32 dial 6-7585

HELP WANTED

Summer work, $1,210.00 monthly, travel Car owner preferred but not required. Send SASE Box 213, Amherst MA 01004

Counselors for Boys Camp in Maine. Openings in most specialties. Write: Camp Cedar, 1758 Beacon St. Brookline, MA 021466 or call 617-277-8080

Work study positions available at SCERA for recruitment coordinator, office assistant and women's issues team. Contact SCERA for application or call 545-0341

Rewarding summer at educational camp for special needs children. Lincoln Hill in Foxboro, MA seeks counselors, kitchen, maintainance staff (live in) Office: 41 South Street, Foxboro, MA (617) 543-3746

Extra Cash $80-250/week with free gas program. Will train. Full or part time. Interviews held Thursday April 3rd w/Polaris Donlin at 25 Main Street 3rd floor suite 27 Northampton, MA 10 am, 1 pm, 4 pm, 7 pm (next to Fitzwillys)

Wanted: Rock Band or DJ for April 25 contact Saul 546-7611 or Mark 546-7684

$$$$$$$ SUMMER JOBS: OGUNQUIT, MAINE. Thousands of positions must be filled NOW in Banks, Restaurants, Motels, and more. ENJOY MAINE SEACOAST FOR SUMMER. For job/living information send $1.00 to regional representatives at: Ogunquit Job Placement/PO Box 107/ Amherst, MA 01002

INSTRUCTION

Jewish Community of Amherst needs both Hebrew and Jewish Studies teachers for September 1980 call 549-0223 for application. Experience preferred

Math Tutor all levels 253-7830

LOST

Lost Black Lab named Astro Always seen around campus. If anyone has any info please call Scott at anytime 549-6219. Wears blue collar, keep your eyes open friends.

Sat 3/28/80 two keys on plastic key chain engraved: Janet if found call 6-4883

King Phillip jacket at BKO Thurs night please call 546-8191 reward!

If you picked up the wrong coat at Phi Sig Sat night I have yours 6-7958

Lost gold star in area between Grist Mill and Jeffery Manor If found please call Gary 256-6659

Blue backpack Sat 3/29 at Farleigh Lodge If found call 546-7986

Lost a gold opal bracelet very sentimental rewaard call 546-4816

MOTORCYCLES

1975 Kawasaki KE175 on/off road recent total rebuild $635 or BO 546-5977

450 Honda 1970 11K miles new sprockets, chain, tires etc. 323-7178

PERSONALS

Pete Jacke call Macky 665-7923

Don't graduate without doing it! Get your yearbook portrait taken--call 545-2874 for your appointment. Don't be left out of the 1980 Index

All University Women invited to Rush Parties at SDT for more info call Robyn 545-0527

Go in "SAYNE", April 10 Thursday

NEED CASH? I will buy your used record albums. 6-7937

Wanted Craftspeople for un campus show during Central Orchard Hill Concert for info call 546-9898 after 11 also for Lower Central Spring Day Festival

M. Maughan Where are you & my camera? Have you ever had 2 broken legs? Please call me—Chery!

Have you been hassled at the Iron Horse Coffee House or been forced to pay a donation? If so, call and leave a message at 545-0199 or 545-0781 before 5. Or at 546-4275 between 5-6:30 & 9-11

Yo Hump! Take any showers lately? Boogie 'till you puke!

To the men in 311 Dwight: Tall Paul, Don, Wadoo, and Dickie Doo-Loo, we hope yopu had a nice April Fool's Day! Love always, The Ladies

Cindy L. 1610 Wash. I have got to get you into my life. How about dinner sometime? An Admirer

Happy Birthday Jennifer Ervin! We love you Shakespeare, Suey & Felix

Dorothy Whalen I think you're wonderful too. Be my valentine. Love Paul 587-9610

I am just a cowboy Still lonesome on the trail. The Lonesome Cowboys - Fred and B

Marty Please get in touch. I want another shot. This time I won't miss. D.M.

To the Jewish Women Calling Committee—Thanks for the call Sunday. I'm still available but may not be for long so call back soon—The First on the List

To the guy in the baseball hat and the red jacket at the Hamlin Party Sat night. . .Why did yopu leave so early (1:30)??? We hope to see you again!

Tired of Anti-Nuke demonstrations? Go Nuclear! If interested call Ty 546-8924

Zook and Scan—it's good to know there are those who care. Thanks

Elizabeth is the mintest! Get well! P.G.

23 days to Chuck Kozlowski Day!

Tired of DC Food? meals-in-exchange-for-light-kitchen-work-call-Jenny-or-Carol-at-545-0082-or-256-6844

Hey Gazelles! Fire up for BU. Knock em dead on Thursday!

Me & my arrow! The Point shown at Hampden Dining Commons Thur 4/3 7, 8:30, 10, 11:30 Get The Point!

Juloid: Talent, beauty, wit. . .now that's a good combination Chew Hong

Archie Shepp Tickets for April 3rd Concert in CCA—call Mike 549-3550

Slim Whitman and Irving Blutz do ALL their twirling on the 22nd floor JQA

A big hug, kiss, and a pat pat for Scott, my favorite frog on his 20th birthday Love Michelle

Jennifer To green beer & green hats & falling in snow we weren't too sure that was the way to go — so two weeks later we tried in once more but shots of J.D. made it hard to find the door — we will keep on trying until we get it right 'cos for every week there's a Thurs night — but the good times to share have just begun so here's to love, laughter, friendship & fun! Happy Birthday! Love Helen and Liz

Jeff Shaffer plays with the D.C. cherry tomatoes

Tim--Let's discuss St. Pete & TA over a drink sometime soon—Sally

RIDE WANTED

Ride needed to Boston Thurs April 3 or Fri April 4 will share expenses call Diane at 546-5417 thanks

ROOMATE WANTED

Female housemate for 3 bdr duplex. On bus route. $100 + utilities. Elise 545-0696, 253-7150

Male roomate wanted Brandywine $105 549-4671

One room in 3 bedroom Townhouse on 2 bus routes, quiet, Bay State phone, HBO, furnished--prefer non-smoker, serious student, very reasonable call 549-5192

Available immediately. Female wanted for own room in Belchertown house on bus route. $84 plus. Option to renew June 1. 256-0158

ROOM WANTED

Female looking for living space on Cape. Pat 665-4197

Female student and well mannered dogs need a room or an apartment on UMass bus rte for the Fall Call Rhonda 546-6956

SERVICES

Attorney Jason R. Rosenthal Legal Representation. Income Tax Preparation. Days 584-4285 Evenings 253-7617

UMass Legal Services Office offers free legal services to fee paying graduate and undergraduate students in the areas of University administrative problems; landlord/tenant disputes; and uncontested divorces and guardianships. LSO also gives advice on Small Claims Court, and limited counselling in criminal matters. Call 545-1995; Room 922 Campus Center, UMass

TO SUBLET

2 bedroom apt Colonial Village on bus rte starting June 1 through August call Lisa or Robin 253-3740 evenings

2 Lg bdrooms Brandywine Apts perfect location furnished balcony pool tennis reasonable price call 549-5959

Northwood 2 bedroom furnished AC DW pool garden plots bus-line June 1-August 31 $150 per month call 665-4850 after 4 pm

Squire Village Sunderland summer sublet 2 bdrm, 2 bathrooms, on bus route avail June 1-August 1, call 665-3660

4 bedroom apt Swiss Village for summer option of Fall bus route all utilities included 256-8616

Puffton 1 bedroom furnished June 1 -August 31 549-5941 evenings

2 bedroom apt Lantern Court Sunderland off bus route June 1 through August 665-7750

3 bdrm apt in Puffton Vill for the summer with option for Fall & Spring ask for Jim if busy keep trying 549-4012

4 bedroom apartment $440 month inclusive on bus route don't get stuck without a place next Fall 256-8209

2 bedroom summer sublet on bus rte June 1 thru August w/ option. Pool, balcony overlooking pond. $350 mnth includes gas heat oven, stove, & A/C call Jay 549-1727

2 bedroom Southwood Apt bus route pool tennis June 1 256-0452

2 bedroom apt Presidential Apts summer sublet-option to renew in fall Call Robin or Jennifer 549-6382

Puffton Village 2 bedroom from end of April Fall option 549-4360

1 bdrm Puffton Village Jun-Aug pool air cond 549-6469

Summer sublet Townehouse Apts $200.00 549-6656 furnished

3 bedroom Townehouse open from June 1 - Aug 31 call 549-4049 for info

Two bedroom apartment on bus route pool and tennis courts airconditioning call 5-11 549-6068

For Summer Fall option own room 78.75 plus utilities call 253-5206

2 bedroom apt furnished on bus route swimming pool call 253-5714

3 bedroom apt Puffton Village 300/mo furnished near bus, pool, tennis courts call nights 549-3765 6/1-8/31

Beautiful three bedroom Rolling Green apt for the summer. Patio, A/C. pool, on bus route (May 1 optional) call anytime 546-9919 rent negotiable

2 bedroom on bus route COMPLETELY furnished utilities INCLUDED, pool, tennis, dishwasher ya can't go wrong for $200 month Storm or Paul 665-3024

2 bedroom furnished apt Sunderland bus route Fall option 665-4315

3 bedroom apt in Puffton Village for summer with option Fall call 549-4044

Townhouse Apt #44 for summer 549-6039

1 bdrm apt—nice location near Puffer's Fall option furnished 549-6899

1 bedroom in 3 bedroom Puffton apart June-Aug part. furnished 2 baths air cond tennis pool bus route Rent negotiable 549-5184

2 bdrm Apt avail Predidential Area June-Aug on bus route 549-6340

2 bedrrom Brandywine for Summer w/Fall option, 2 bus routes, A/C, pool, balcony 549-3856

Cliffside Apartments Sunderland summer sublet 2 bedroom on bus route avail June 1-Aug 31 call 665-7977

3 bdrm Townehouse summer sublet, Fall opt. call Karen 549-6755

3 bedroom Puffton Apt June-August w/option $340/mo call 549-6487

Share 1 bdrm in Puffton, Smr & Fall with opt for Spr 549-5903 John

1 bedroom in 2 bedroom Squire Village summer in scenic Sunderland bus rte call 665-4761

2 bdrm avail June-Aug bus rte, pool, tennis, $240.oo util incl Fall option 665-7775

To subet for summer w/option for Fall 4 bdrm Swiss Village on bus route 440/mo all util rent negotiable call 253-4975

Puffers Pond 2 bedroom apt June 1-August 1 call 549-4055

Rolling Green 1 bdrm furn AC pool all util inc June-Aug $250 mo 253-5090

zown room in 2 bedroom townehouse in Southwood Apts in South Amherst. Furnished, on bus toute, dishwasher, only $90 per month for summer Call 256-8947 any time

2 bdrm luxury furn apt Cliffside Sunderland rent negotiable 665-4004

One bedroom Colonial Village option to renew Fall furnished or unfurnished available May 21 253-7713

2 bedroom Puffton Village June 1 to August 31 evenings 549-6420

Summer sublet option for Fall 4 bedroom Swiss Village $440 includes utilities nice place to live 253-5755

3 bdrm Brandywine Apt $330 & gas util avail June 1 w/Fall option 549-0569

4 bedroom all utilities included with option for Fall lease call 253-7571

2 bedroom Puffton Apt, 2 bath, air conditioned, tennis courts, pool, fully furnished June-Aug $230 549-4130

2 bdrm apt to sublet June 1 - Sept 1 Riverglade rent neg call 253-7115 pool avail

2 bedroom Brandywine apts fully furnished great deal! call 549-0128

Sublet 3 bedroom Puffton call 253-2647

1 bedroom apartment furnished, cable TV, on bus route, June-Aug $200/mon call 665-4891 after 5 pm

To sublet—June 1-August 31 2 bedroom Puffton Village 549-0455

3 bedroom apt furnished bus route in Sunderland 665-3976

Summer sublet: Large 2 bedroom Presidential apt closest to campus A/C Heat/Hot water included option to renew 549-4059

3 bedroom apt for June to Aug rent negotiable on bus route phone 253-5214

Summer sublet Fall option One bedroom on bus route $180/mo inclusive partly furnished 665-3518

WANTED

Fast immediate cash for gold-school rings-diamonds- silver Jeff anytime 527-7078 586-0180

Used Electric Typewriter call andy 546-6785 evenings

Rock band looking for diverse singer call Tom 256-6845 549-6913

WANTED TO RENT

3 women looking for housing in Hyannia area for Jun-Aug call Lisa 546-8006 or Toby 546-7436

House wanted 4-6 bedrooms close to campus call 546-5081 or 546-5100

3-5 bedroom house wanted for June 1st and next year. Amherst or Northampton must be on bus line. Call Nina 549-0611 or Karen-584-9096

WORLD WAR II HOTEL NEWS

I love you, lets go to bed! Fraulien Esta and fighting 4th Division

Nuke the Whale by Danny Guidera

4 by Frank Emery

Wimpman by Evan Carlson

Bean by Kevin X. McNamara

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

Crossword

ACROSS
1 Dismounted
5 Blanch
9 Meat cut
14 Andes plateau
15 Mercury antiseptic
16 Angry
17 Bows
18 Taos native: 2 words
20 Old cars
21 Comp. pt.
22 Snuggle
23 Fortified
25 Horse's gait: Pl.
27 Supplication
29 Signal
30 Irishman, e.g.
34 Cohort
36 Batten
38 Dog
39 Summer quencher: 3 words
42 Rose oil
43 Deadlier
44 Small isle
45 Iambs, e.g.
46 UK armed force
47 Ripped
49 Stonecutter
51 Girl's name: Var.
54 Complains
58 Rodent
60 Quaified
61 Reward
63 Evils: Latin
64 Texas shrine
65 Position
66 State: Fr.
67 CGS units
68 Remarks
69 Scout groups

DOWN
1 Armadillo
2 Temptress
3 Unfinished
4 Cornsilk
5 Famed Quaker
6 Salesman
7 Where La Paz is: 2 words
8 Tree
9 Predicaments
10 Eye part
11 Milk: Comb. form
12 And others: 2 words
13 Filament: Comb. form
19 Grafted: Heraldry
24 Room furnishing
26 External
28 Everyone
30 Not pro
31 Make worse
32 Swan's mate: Myth.
33 Gard
34 Edith —: Fr. singer
35 Play part: Fr.
37 Iceland works
38 Element
40 Tabby
41 Assembled
46 Grate
48 Rambled
49 Notes
50 Unpleasant
52 Man's name: Var.
53 Inflames
54 B.A., e.g.
55 Depend
56 " — — not tell a lie"
57 Fruit
59 Golf mounds
62 Curve

UNITED Feature Syndicate
Tuesday's Puzzle Solved

C	H	A	R		C	A	S	T		S	C	A	L	D
L	A	D	E		A	L	T	A		S	L	O	E	R
A	I	M	S		B	E	A	R		I	L	I	A	N
S	L	E	T	S		S	C	A	R	E	C	R	O	W
P	E	T	R	E	L		K	N	O	C	K
			A	N	E	T		T	A	T		P	I	P
C	O	N	S	T	I	T	U	E	N	T		D	I	A	R	E
D	I	A	N	E		M	O	L		F	E	L	O	N
A	N	T	S		P	A	R	L	I	A	M	E	N	T
M	A	S		G	O	T		A	S	T	O
			C	A	D	O	N		E	T	O	N	E
B	E	N	E	A	S	E	D		O	I	N	A	M
O	R	E	A	D		O	R	E	S		O	T	O	E
P	A	R	S	E		U	V	E	A		N	O	M	E
E	S	S	E	S		P	E	R	T		S	P	I	N

DC Menu

Lunch
Cold Cut Grinder
Macaroni and Cheese

Basics Lunch
Falafel Pocket Sandwich
Macaroni and Cheese

Dinner
Roast Beef/Mushroom Sauce, Worcestershire Sauce
Boiled Franks with Rolls

Basics Dinner
Eggplant Cutlet
Zucchini Carrot Curry

Earthfoods

Potato Pancakes
Borscht
Rice-Bulghar
Fruit Salad
Sour Creme Coffee Cake

IT'S TERRIFIC!
"APPLAUSE"
A Backstage Musical
mar. 27, 28, 29, 30 apr. 3, 4 8 p.m.
bowker auditorium, stockbridge hall
For Tickets Call 545-0783

David Whitman

Hair Shack

is proud to announce that

TERRY GILL

has joined our talented staff

Gail
Roger Richard
Joanne
Linda
Philip Jackie

DAVID WHITMAN HAIR SHACK
Amherst
124 Amity St.
549-5111

A TOTAL SERVICE SALON
Open Tuesday thru Friday Evenings

Great Prices
Spring Clothes
Jewelry & Gifts

THE MERCANTILE
AMHERST CARRIAGE SHOPS

Daily 10 am - 6 pm

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS / AMHERST
FINE ARTS CENTER CONCERT HALL
presents a
Theater Weekend

SIMONSBROOD PRODUCTIONS presents
FOREST TUCKER
in
Jerome Kern
& Oscar Hammerstein II's
SHOW BOAT
FEATURING RICHARD MCQUEEN
SATURDAY, APRIL 12, 3 p.m. & 8 p.m.
General Admissio $9, $8, $7
UMass Students $7.50, $6.50,

LIVE ON STAGE! Make it a Concert and a Theatre Party!
"ABSOLUTELY SPELLBINDING!"
"THE FUNNIEST THRILLER IN AGES!"
TOM MALLOW
in association with JAMES JANEK
presents
IRA LEVIN'S
DEATHTRAP
SUNDAY, APRIL 13, 8 p.m.
General Admission $8, $7, $6
Senior Citizens $7, $6, $5
UMass Students Half Price
$3.50, $3, $2.50
WILLIAM ROTAN RUTH MORLEY MARC B. WEISS
ROBERT MOORE
Designed by PHILIP CUSACK

TICKETS NOW ON SALE AT FAC BOX OFFICE (M.-F., Noon-5 P.M. Call 545-2511 to Reserve Seats) AND TICKETRON OUTLETS. MAIL ORDERS GROUP DINNER-THEATER PACKAGES AVAILABLE.

do it with a smile
do it with a friend
do it with your neighbor
but Do It before it's too late senior portraits, last chance 545-2874

or stop by 8th floor lobby of Campus Center

Human services program

Applications for the Human Services Program are available at the Human Services and Applied Beavioral Sciences Office, located at 354 Hills South. Application deadline is April 11th.

There will also be an Open House for all interested students on Tues. April 8th, from 7 to 9:30 p.m., at 105 Hills Central.

If you haven't tried a chocolate chip cookie from

Entenmann's
SINCE 1898

you haven't had the
chocolate chip cookie

available at

in the campus center at umass
the UNIVERSITY STORE

COUPON

FREE Spring Inspection
with new tire purchase and this coupon

Plaza Shell
RTE. 9 WEST
AMHERST/HADLEY TOWN LINE
253-9000 Expires 6-20-79

Shrimp and Salad Bar

Enjoy a
Platter of boiled shrimp
Peel 'em and eat 'em
With Steak Out's unlimited
Salad bar.

$4.95

The Steak Out
Rt. 5 Brattleboro 257-1333
Rt. 9 Amherst 256-8557

Straight Talk — Second in a Series

By Hasan Elkhatib

What You Should Know
About Henna
. . . and Your Hair.

What's so special about henna?
People today are looking for natural ingredients in products for their hair. They've read and heard about the problems with ammonia and peroxide. So, they're turning to things like henna—Cleopatra's ancient beauty secret—which actually is a bush, like our honeysuckle.

Why did Cleopatra use henna?
I believe it was probably because henna gave hair a very fashionable (for the times) reddish glow. Cleo's courtesans would grind up the leaves, mix with water, then "plaster" her hair with the paste. After 30 minutes, she must have had flaming red hair. But—and this is very important—the way Cleopatra used henna was a hit-or-miss situation. Even when henna was the rage during the 1920's, no one really knew how to control henna in order to obtain predictable results. Today scientific advances make it possible to control henna—even totally remove the color.

Then all henna products today are not the same?
That is correct! You can still buy henna powder and use it just like Cleo did. However, our Meta Henna Creme is uniquely different. We grow three varieties of henna—black, red and a neutral. From selected leaves, we make a fine powder and then extract the color. The result is a family of 100% organic, natural base, pure leaf henna products in creme form. And I discovered how to produce six different colors, as well as a "neutral." To my knowledge, no one else has achieved this.

What does Meta Henna Creme do to the hair?
Meta Henna Creme seals the hair's cuticle, makes it smooth and lustrous. It does not penetrate the hair shaft. Because it coats the hair, Meta Henna Creme thickens it, greatly increases body. Importantly, it adds highlights and depth to the hair's natural color—gently, more safely than any other hair color

I have formulated a complete System of henna products: A Shampoo, the Hair Color, and an Intensified Conditioner. If you would like 2 oz. samples of the Shampoo and Conditioner, and a detailed color chart, send me your name and address, along with $1.00 for postage and handling, to the address below, attention Dept. CM-2.

Of course, the Shampoo and Conditioner may be used separately, and neither will change hair color. But for optimum results, it's best to use the 3 in sequence: Shampoo, Hair Color, and finally the Conditioner to lock-in the color.

I know Cleopatra would have loved what I have done with her henna "beauty secret."

About Mr. Elkhatib
Mr. Elkhatib has devoted his life to the creation of 100% organic hair care products. He has authored countless articles, lectures world-wide and serves as a consultant for several companies both here and abroad.

Meta Henna International, Inc.
850 Nicholas Blvd. • Elk Grove Village, Illinois 60007 U.S.A.

...Nature's way to youthful hair

These fine Meta Henna Hair Care Products are now available in food and drugs stores everywhere.

Mike's Westview Cafe No. Amherst

TONITE
9 pm - Close

ERLANGER NITE

PREMIUM BOTTLE
BEER $.80/12 oz

FREE* * * * * *PRIZES

No Cover

Raffle Includes

2 sets of 2
LINDA RONSTADT
Concert Tix

* *

T-Shirts

Sports

Trackwomen run over a sparse UNH squad

By JIM GRAHAM
Collegian Staff

The UMass women's track team blew by the University of New Hampshire yesterday in its opening meet of the season with a score of 103 to 24 at the Derby track at UMass. With just 13 women competing for its team, UNH could only manage to take two first places in the entire meet.

The Minutewomen dominated the meet from the start when UMass won three of the five field events. Freshman Diane Boczanowski won the shot put with a personal best toss of 32 feet in her first outdoor college meet. Sue Fallon and Karen McNamara of UMass placed second and fourth with Fallon throwing a personal best of 31'6" and McNamara throwing 28'9".

UMass swept both the javelin and the long jump. In the javelin Karen Snow won with a throw of 123'5" followed by teammates Sue Fallon, Sandy Fletcher and Eileen Everett. The long jump was won by Micki Callahan with a leap of 16'8" which coach Arnie Morse termed as, "an excellent jump for so early in the season." Finishing in order behind Callahan were UMass's Jackie Budrow, Angie Caouette and Julie Horgan.

UNH picked up its only firsts of the meet in the discus and in the high jump. UMass's Diane Boczanowski and Ilene Prochazka placed second and third respectively in the discus with minutewoman Julie Horgan placing second in the high jump.

UMass's domination of the running events began in the dashes when Micki Callahan, followed by Donna Quinn, took first in the 100-yard high hurdles. The 100-yard dash was won by Angie Caouette in 12 seconds and Jackie Budrow finished second in 12.1 seconds. The top two spots were again picked up by UMass in the 200-meter dash with Diana Sealy placing first and Angie Caouette taking second.

Sealy also won the 440 yard run in 60.9, a full 11 seconds ahead of UNH's closest runner. An exciting half-mile was won by Minutewoman Karolyn Shea with a personal best of 2:22. Robyn Dally took third in 2:26.4. "Karolyn really ran a gutsy race. I wasn't expecting these kinds of performances this early in the season," coach Arnie Morse said. Sweeping the 400 meter low hurdles were UMass's Donna Beaudreau, first with a personal best of 70.1, Donna Quinn, second with another personal best of 73.2 and Liza Gonzalez, third in 75.7 seconds.

Sophmore Judy McCrone, UMass's top female distance runner, won both the mile and the two-mile. McCrone's time in the mile was 5:06, with Robyn Dally second in 5:21 and Tricia Moores third in 5:23. McCrone's time for the two-mile was 11:15 which was nearly 30 seconds ahead of the second place UNH runner with Patty Lavin of UMass taking third.

UMass won both the 4 x 110-yard relay and the 4 x 440 yard relay. In the 4 x 110, the team of Jackie Budrow, Angie Caouette, Micki Callahan and Diana Sealy combined for a time of 51.3. UMass won the mile relay with a time of 4:19.5. The Minutewomen's next meet will be this Saturday at Harvard University.

UMass outfielder Brenda Simmons hauls in a fly ball in action last season. The mittwomen opened the season yesterday with a 8-0 win over Lowell. (Staff photo by Melissa Gallagher)

Peters' one-hitter aids in UMass win

By RANDI MARCUS
Special to the Collegian

LOWELL—The sun was shining brightly and so was the UMass softball team as it opened its season with an 8-0 victory on the strength of Sue Peters' one-hitter, yesterday at the University of Lowell.

UMass took early control of the game in the first inning with a triple by freshman catcher Jackie Gaw, who scored on sacrifice by Peters, who had an outstanding game on the mound as well as contributing two runs batted in.

The Minutewomen picked up their second in the third inning on the strength of a sacrifice by Kathy O'Connell.

The fifth inning was the highlight of the game for UMass. Gaw reached base on a bunt, followed by a Brenda Simmons' single, and Peters walked to load the bases. O'Connell came up next and took advantage of the situation by blasting a three-run triple. Captain Fran Cornacchioli then hit a sacrifice fly to make it 6-0.

In the sixth inning Peters hit a sacrifice fly with two women on base to end the scoring at 8-0.

Coach Elaine Marasco and assistant Jean Giarusso were very pleased with the performance of the team.

"At first they seemed pretty tenative out there and not as loose as they should have been," Marasco said after her first game as the UMass coach. "But overall the fielding was strong and Sue (Peters) pitched a good game. Also Jackie Gaw really intimidated the other team behind the plate. I felt really good about the way things looked out there, and I liked what happened."

Peters had a no-hitter going into the fourth inning and struck out four batters on the afternoon.

The Minutewomen's next game will be Thursday afternoon at Central Connecticut State College in New Britain.

Sports roundup

Laxmen at UConn

Pitting Gorillas against Huskies is usually not a fair match-up, especially when the Gorillas are from UMass, a nationally ranked lacrosse team under the leadership of head coach Dick Garber. So the laxmen will get a brief break in their schedule battling two of the lesser powers, the University of Connecticut and the University of Vermont in succession, before getting into the bigger teams. Today they travel to UConn to face the Huskies at 3:00.

Garber cannot remeber losing to UConn in the past few years, "They are not one of the stronger teams," he said, "but every game starts at 0-0. Players can become complacent about a lesser team," Garber says laughingly recalling one time when UMass slipped by UConn 11-10 in the last few minutes of a game.

According to the 25-year veteran, UMass has been "riding along fat and happy for a few years." More teams are rising to a higher level this year though, he said.

UMass is looking for its first win of the regular season, coming off a March 26 13-9 loss to Cornell. According to yesterday's national lacrosse poll, UMass dropped two places to thirteenth. In New England the Gorillas are ranked third, while UConn is ranked eleventh.

The Huskies are coming off two successive wins over Lafayette College and Amherst College. UConn took the Lord Jeffs of Amherst 7-3 Monday at Connecticut. The Huskies are coached by Nate Osur, a team mate of Garber's at Springfield college.

Despite rankings a UMass-UConn battle is always a good rivalry game. "We are always a big game for them" Garber said, "a UMass-UConn rivalry always gives them a little shot in the arm."

—DONNA SULLIVAN

Ruggers lose

Excellent scrum control aided in a 29-6 rugby victory for the University College of London at Boyden field yesterday. The London ruggers gained control of the ball after most of the scrummages and a number of the line-outs setting up tries. (A try is placing the ball down in the end zone and is good for four points). Their 3:30 game aginst the UMass rugby club was part of an American tour.

Sean Kinneen scored the only UMass points, two penalty kicks worth three points each. "The injuries (four men were injured lask week-end at West Point) really did a job on the scrum," captain Paul Bourdon said, "and we had a makeshift back line." Only one of the injured starters came back to play yesterday.

London took an early 6-0 lead on a Paul Cookson try and Ian Overton two-point conversion kick. Midway through the first period Lawrence Williams made it 10-0 London running from mid-field and placing the ball in the end zone for four points.

The UMass ruggers controlled the line-outs throughout the first half and capitalized late in the period with a three-point penalty kick. Joe Lambert was a driving force playing hard and running hard with possession of the ball.

UMass stunted the London scoring drive until midway through the second period. Steve Cake increased the score to 14-3 and the two point conversion kick made it 16.

A super UMass passing effort brought the ball deep into London territory but a penalty brought it back. The ruggers managed another penalty kick to make it six on the afternoon. London capped off its performance with a penalty kick and two more tries.

-DONNA SULLIVAN

Season opens for veteran Gazelle team

By MAUREEN SULLIVAN
Collegian Staff

Last year, three goals separated the women's lacrosse team from the national title; the Gazelles fell to defending champion Penn. State 8-6, during that humid, wet weekend of the spring concert last May. UMass had earned the right to travel to Penn State by winning every regular season game, some easily, some with difficulty, but all with at least a part of the speed, skill, and team play that has characterized the Gazelles for the past four years.

This year, the team will play with much the same schedule, much the same personnel, and even much the same weather as last year. The only difference facing the Gazelles as they prepare for Thursday's opener against Boston University (game time 3:00 pm at the NOPE upper field) is that the team is a year older in experience.

"Basically, there won't be many changes," second-year coach Pam Hixon said. "I plan to move people around a little bit, so that we'll be more flexible. The style of play will be about the same."

Hixon heads a senior-laden squad, among them All-Americans Cari Nickerson and Laura O'Neil, Captain Jean Hackett and goalie Robin Jennings. Returnees include Margie Anderson, who nearly made All-American honors a year ago along with Nickerson and O'Neil, Julie Hall, who spent last season on an exchange program in Cuba, and Maria Minnicucci.

"The experience, especially from the seniors, will help a lot," Hixon said. "The team concept and depth is far ahead of last year. For example, in goal, we not only have Robin Jennings, but two freshmen backups, Robin Kenney and Rita Hubner."

The Gazelles will play teams situated anywhere from just up the road (Smith College, Springfield College) to the outreaches of New England, such as Yale University and New Hampshire. Playing a "half-and-half" schedule, UMass will host in the coming season Smith, Bridgewater State College, and regional power the University of New Hampshire. Away games include Springfield, Williams College, Harvard University, and Yale University.

UMass has already played scrimmages against Holy Cross College and other teams in a tournament on Cape Cod recently and won every game.

Despite all the apparent evidence for optimism, Hixon remains cautious for the coming season.

"We'll play the season one game at a time," she said.

While the varsity will begin the season on Thursday, the junior varsity will start against Springfield College at Springfield April 10. Like their varsity counterparts, the JVs finished last season with a perfect record of 7-0. This year's squad is being coached by Tammy Gannon, and its schedule features a four-game road schedule. The JVs will not play at home until April 22, when they face Rhode Island.

Concert guests unwelcome?

By STEPHEN KLEIN
Collegian Staff

Office of Residential Life employees are doing their best to hinder this year's Spring concert and limit, if not eliminate, students having guests in dormitories.

Commentary

They are erroneously using last year's concert as an example to foster support for a restrictive guest policy.

This time last year, the Union Program Council, who organized the concert, brought the Grateful Dead to UMass and the result was a "superb" show.

"Considering the numbers of people and the complexity of it, it was superb," Dean of Students William F. Field said following the concert last year.

The fact is, last year's Spring Concert was not the horror the Office of Residential Life is using as argument to augment their "no guest policy."

Police reported last year over $1,000 in vandalism and about $1,800 in larceny during the concert weekend. Police also arrested 11 men and took nine others into protective custody.

In light of the 40,000 concert attendees, these statistics are miraculously low.

Former Acting Director of Student Activities Paul Hamil said before last year's show, "This concert (Grateful Dead) will be the thing of the future or a one-shot deal."

The students proved last year they could provide the University with a peaceful, organized show, and more importantly, a sense of pride.

Field concluded, "On the whole, I was just really pleased."

So what's the problem?

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY

Collegian

VOLUME CIX, ISSUE 113 Student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst Thursday, April 3, 1980

Revamp in works at GRC

By MICHAEL FOLEY
Collegian Staff

Long-term policies to combat health problems in the Graduate Research Tower are currently in developmental stages, according to University Health Services Director Barry Averill.

Policies proposed by University administrators include filing employees' health histories, monitoring work practices and the tower environment and developing an emergency response team to investigate such accidents as chemical spills, Averill said.

Last week, Associate Chancellor Terrence Burke announced a consulting engineering firm would be hired within one month to study and correct the tower's faulty ventilation system.

UMass English Prof. Arlyn Diamond, who has overseen a grievance for the Massachusetts Society of Professors concerning the potential health hazards in the GRC, said the grievance committee is not "completely satisfied" with the measures proposed by the administration so far. "Although we are a lot closer than we were," she said.

"We are concerned," she said, "that the people in the tower whose health is affected by that work, are taken care of. We want to make sure that no one is penalized for becoming sick."

Burke said the grievances raised by the MSP and the appointment of a firm to scrutinize the tower ventilation system are not directly connected. Those negotiations are going on "in parallell," he said.

Averill said the first step taken by adminstrators will be to gather health histories of people working in the building. Each employee will have a confidential file. This initial "base-line data" will then be compared against new information. Any changes in health patterns will be further examined by UHS.

The university will also "continue to monitor high risk areas," sampling the atmosphere and closely watching work practices where dangerous chemicals are in use, according to Averill.

Averill said a third part of the program will include a "fail-safe" plan. In case of a chemical spill, an emergency response team will go out and do an immediate "on the spot investigation" to determine if there is a level of contaminate in the air above "acceptable" standards. If a high level is found, those employees exposed will be brought in "for a battery of lab tests," Averill said.

In May, 1978, women working in the building first reported menstrual problems, including unusually heavy bleeding, irregular periods and serious cramps.

A Health Services study later confirmed there was a higher incidence of these health problems in the building.

"To date we have not really found any airborne contaminants in the air above acceptable levels," said Dan Robinson, Director of Health and Safety.

The occupation ends

Protestor marches outside of Whitmore yesterday to voice opposition to the cutting back of "Que Tal Amigos?" by WFCR.

'Que Tal' back on prime time

By SEAN HARVEY
Collegian Staff

Members of the Coalition for Pulbic Improvement in Public Radio ended their 56-hour occupation of Chancellor Koffler's office last night after the majority of their grievances were resolved, but said their fight "is not yet over."

"We will leave Whitmore now because we feel a dialogue can now take place," said spokesperson Jamila Gaston.

The Coalition won reinstatement of the WFCR's Spanish language program "Que Tal Amigos?" back to prime time four hours a week.

"One of our fights will be for more hours for Que Tal Amigos?" Gaston said.

Koffler said last night that "no punitive measures will be taken against those who peacefully sat in my office during the last two days."

After nearly six hours of negotiations between five members of the Coalition and the Western Massachusetts Broadcasting Council yesterday afternoon, it was agreed to evaluate thoroughly the performance of general manager Robert Goldfarb, to include minority representation, and to ensure adequate funding for high quality Hispanic programming in addition to restoring "Que Tal Amigos?" to prime tir. TURN TO PAGE 4

Three wild Scottish highland bulls practice running from the starting gate at Gulfstream Park in Hallandale, Fla. (AP Laserphoto)

Five College Arts

Thursday, April 3
University Jazz Ensemble—Dr. Horace Boyer, presented by Drum, 8 p.m., $3.00 adm., CC Aud.
"Applause," presented by Music Theatre Guild, $2.50 student adm., 8 p.m., Bowker Aud.

Film: "Casablanca," presented by Bullpen Club, $1.00 adm., 6, 7:45, 9:30, 11:15 p.m., Mahar Aud.
Film: "The Point," "The Dot and The Line," sponsored by Delta Chi, $1 adm., 6, 7:30, 9, 10:30, 12 p.m., Hampden, SW.

Exhibits: all at DepARTment, 150 Main St., Northampton, now through April 18; David Torcoletti and Carol Walton, "Distinct in Kind," photographs; Jerry Kearns, "shut them Down," a photo essay from five Anti-Nuclear demonstrations in 1979; "Crafts for Dining."

Lecture: "Politics and the Arts, Theater and Music in Contemporary Brazil," by Peter F. Schoenbach, Associate Dean of the New England Conservatory of Music, 8 p.m., Sage Hall 32, Smith College.
Senior recital by pianist Nancy Morgan, Smith College, Sage Hall, 8 p.m., classical.

DIGEST

Carter approves oil tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter signed a proclamation yesterday imposing an import fee of $4.62 per barrel on imported crude oil. The fee will raise the price of gasoline by 10 cents per gallon and will show up at the pumps around May 15. Carter termed the levy a "gasoline conservation fee." He said although the actual tax is on imported crude oil, a series of government regulations will impose the entire burden on gasoline users.

Carter has the authority to impose the import fee without congressional approval and is expected to veto legislation aimed at blocking his power to impose the tax.

L.I. strikers ordered back

NEW YORK (AP) — Long Island Rail Road strikers were ordered back to work in a surprise move by their union yesterday, easing the pain of a citywide bus and subway shutdown that has swelled Manhattan population by at least 500,000 people.

There was no settlement in the railroad strike. The union ordered picket lines pulled down at the request of a federal mediator, who said he would resume negotiations. Commuter train service between New York and Long Island suburbs was due to return at midnight.

Meanwhile, the bus and subway strike by 35,000 members of the Transport Workers Union continued, with no chance of a settlement seen before Friday at the very earliest. No peace talks have been scheduled as of yet.

Elections affect hostages

(AP) — A clergy-dominated party that takes a hard line toward release of the 50 American hostages captured nearly three times as many seats as supporters of Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr in the first round of Iranian parliamentary elections, it was announced yesterday in Tehran.

The Islamic Republican Party won 49 of 101 seats, the president's supporters 18, independents 21 and several minor parties a total of 13. The other 169 seats will be filled in a second round of voting expected in about a month.

Pay-off probe continues

BOSTON (AP) — Ex-Sen. James A. Kelly Jr., a corruption commission payola target, absconded with his old accounting firm's records involving a politically-connected architect, an ex-partner said yesterday.

Kelly's firm in Leicester, the commission headed by former Amherst College President William Ward has been told, got $9,500 plus heavy expenses, from Masiello & Associates under the guise of an accounting retainer. Experts hinted that Kelly's outfit did little or nothing for the money.

Subscription rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333-220) is published daily Monday through Friday, excluding January, June, July, and August, for $15 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts at Amherst, MA 01003. Second class postage paid at Amherst, Mass. Postmaster: Send address changes to Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

SALE!
ONE DAY ONLY...
SATURDAY, APRIL 5

100% COTTON
SHIRTS
If Perfect... $12-$18
Almost Perfect...
$2.50 each 3 for $6.50
FACES
A Store-full of Ideas
Downtown Amherst /Open 10-6, Mon.-Sat.

ΑΔΦ
Open Rush Tonight 9-?
Be There!
on the OH Bus Line located in Frat/Sor Park

the SHOE BIN 187 n. pleasant st., amherst

BLUE WALL
Campus Center
UMass
Presents—Thursday
Beat the Clock
Featuring: The Chance
Happy Hour everyday 3-6 p.m.
TOC sticker & valid ID required
to purchase alcohol

HALLOWEEN
coming soon

Bogie - Bergman in
CASABLANCA
Thurs. April 3
Mahar Aud. $1.00
6:00, 7:45, 9:30, 11:15

Man Cannot Live On Books Alone

* Greek Salads
* Tossed Salads
* Pizzza
* Grinders
* Spaghetti

Bells Pizza House
Sun.-Thurs. 11-1 am
Fri. & Sat. 11-2 am
65 University Drive
549-1311 253-9051

Actuarial Career Opportunities
Sun Life of Canada's United States Headquarters, located in Wellesley Hills, Mass., is seeking candidates for its actuarial career development program.
Representatives from Sun Life of Canada will be conducting on-campus interviews on Friday, April 11.
To set up an interview, contact the career placement office.
SunLife OF CANADA
U.S. Headquarters
Wellesley Hills, MA
An equal opportunity employer M/F

CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
Good
Reliable
Organization with
Up-to-date
Professional
Services
CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
CENTER UNIV OF MASS
AMHERST, MASS 01003 413-545-0500

SGA elects speaker, treasurer

Al Wallace, new SGA treasurer...

By STEPHEN SEMPLE
Collegian Staff

The Undergraduate Student Senate last night approved the appointments of speaker and treasurer and voted unanimously to support the hispanic community in its effort to reinstate "Que Tal Amigos?" to a prime time spot on WFCR radio.

Linda Geary, 25, and Al Wallace, 21, both juniors, were uncontested in their bids for senate speaker and treasurer, respectively.

Geary was unanimously elected speaker and will replace David Routhier next week. She has been a senator since September and worked last summer as an assistant to then-speaker David Barenberg. She also serves on the Legal Services Office board of directors and is co-director of the senate communication committee.

"UMass is definitely a special place," Geary said after being appointed. "We have many services that other colleges don't have." She called for the senate to "look at what we have, what we are and what we want to be."

Wallace, who was also elected without dissent, said his main objective as treasurer will be to "put the financial books together" so that students will be able to do "everything that we want to do."

Wallace has been working on reconstructing the Recognized Student Organization's accounting system for the past several months.

The rational for the motion to support the hispanic community, according to Senator Nelson Acosta, was to keep public service programs at "reasonable" time slots on the public station, which receives funding from the UMass Board of Trustees.

Supporters of the radio program had been occupying UMass Chancellor Henry Koffler's office since Monday night, that occupation ended last night when the show's supporters and the station manager reached a compromise. (See related story, page 1)

"The reason they closed Whitmore was to pit student against student," Student Government Association co-President Richard LaVoice said. The administration, by inconveniencing students who have business in the building, is trying to create a negative attitude toward hispanics, he said.

In other business, LaVoice urged senators to publicize the April town meeting election. LaVoice said that in precinct three, eight student supporters are vying for the 10 available positions.

"The time is right," LaVoice said. "We can't afford to pass this opportunity up."

...Linda Geary, the speaker

Davey knows where to go for a great hair cut and shave: the campus barbershop of course. He only trusts Ernest Paulin to do the honors with his hair. (Staff photo by Cheryl Senter)

Search continues for provost

By TOM McHUGH
Special to the Collegian

UMass Botany Professor Oswald Tippo, who is heading up the University's search for a permanent provost, says the committee choosing the next provost may have further information on the search by tomorrow.

Six candidates are being considered.

The last provost, Paul Puryear, now with the Department of Afro-American Studies, stepped down from the office in Januery 1978. Jeremiah Allen, faculty director of the Humanities and Fine Arts Department, was appointed as a temporary replacement for Puryear.

The six candidates are Everly Fleischen from the University of California at Urvine; Wallace Russel from Iowa St. University; Loren Baritz, director of the New York Institute of Humanities; Collin Bull, a dean from the Geology Department of Ohio St.; Robert Newburg, dean of graduate students at the University of Oregon; and Bob Sleigh of the UMass Philosophy Department, currently associate provost.

The search committee, chaired by Tippo, a former UMass chancellor, consists of representatives from all sectors of the University. The original search was interrupted last spring due to problems with the University's affirmative action policies. The committee has recently completed interviews with the six candidates under consideration and is expected to reach a final decision soon.

In addition to its own evaluations, the search committee is looking at evaluations filled out by various members of the University community such as undergraduates and special interest groups who were given an opportunity to question the applicants as they came to UMass. The new provost must also be accepted into the department of his particular field before he can be appointed.

The provost serves as Vice-Chancellor of Academic Affairs, and administers 10 colleges and 17 special programs within the University, including the library, the Department of Labor Relations and Research, and the Department of Continuing Education.

DVP to sponsor speaker on rape

The Distinguished Visitor's Program will sponsor Freada Klein, a leading authority on rape, speaking on Rape Culture on Monday, April 7, at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium.

Klein has done extensive work with women's centers, rape counseling, prisoners, and criminal legal investigation. She is co-founder of the Boston-based Alliance Against Sexual Coercion, and she has worked with employees at the General Electric Company plant in Lynn where a woman worker was recently raped.

Klein is a graduate of the University of California, School of Criminology, and she was awarded a Master's degree from George Washington University with a thesis on "The Etiology of Rape." She currently teaches women's studies courses at Tufts University and at Goddard-Cambridge.

Klein will present a workshop on rape, during which she will discuss the lighting problem on campus, on Monday from 2 to 4 p.m. in Campus Center 176. This workshop is co-sponsored by the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy's Women's Issues Team, and both men and women are encouraged to attend.

Klein's program will be free to the public.

Budget director named

A New Orleans native has been named director of budgeting and institutional studies at UMass, according to the UMass News Bureau.

Marie McDemmond, formerly of the state regional community college system, will assume her new position April 21. In her most recent post, McDemmond served as director of finance for the 15 state community colleges.

McDemmond worked in New York state government before coming to Massachusetts, in the Department of Mental Health and in the Education Department. She also worked for several colleges in the Empire State.

DES daughters learn of rights

By DEBBIE ROBERTI
Collegian Staff

Federal District Judge Walter J. Skinner launched a statewide campaign on January 30, 1980 to identify Massachusetts women born of pregnancies treated with the drug diethylstilbestrol, commonly known as DES. In an effort to aid DES daughters, the National Women's Health Network in Boston, directed by Judith Sutphen, has sponsored the Massachusetts DES Daughter Identification Project. DES has been linked to cancer in women whose mothers were given the drug to prevent miscarriages in the 1950's and early 1960's.

"So far the Project has been extremely effective," Sutphen said, "and the publicity we received six weeks ago was a major contribution to its success." Sutphen plans to air a commercial on Massachusetts television networks to inform DES daughters of their rights in an upcoming class action lawsuit, and tell them where to find the necessary health care.

The deadline for DES daughter identification is June 30. At that time, plaintiffs in the case will go to court in the nation's first class action lawsuit against DES.

The rusty nail Inn
Friday, April 4

presents
Rick Derringer
Rt. 47
Sunderland

Saturday, April 5
LAZARUS
formerly the Ellis Hall Group
Thursday, April 10
Loose Caboose (25c Draft)
Friday, April 11
James Cotton
Saturday, April 12
Tom Rush
Saturday, April 19
NRBQ
Tickets available at all Ticketron Outlets
Open till 2 665-4937
24 hour taped message

ESKIL'S TAKES MALE ORDERS, TOO
Not every man wears Eskil's Clogs. Just the smart ones. Because Eskil's Clogs with the anatomically-designed sole give your feet the kind of comfort and support they deserve. And with over 30 styles and colors to choose from, there's an Eskil's Clog perfect for everything from blue jeans to gray flannel suits. Gift certificates available.
$5.00 off on style 4540 Natural
WITH THIS AD
7 Pleasant St., Northampton
Take 5-College bus to Northampton
Eskil's CLOG SHOPS

$1 off on any name Pitcher of beer with this coupon only valid on Thursdays
Barselotti's
Downtown Amherst
Don't forget our special Happy Hour on Fridays!

★ WFCR

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

The council also agreed to create a personnel committee before April 10. The committee will consider employee grievances, recognize the right of public access to policies, budgets and procedures of WFCR, and reaffirm its long-standing commitment to Hispanic programming, which so far has not been met, the council said.

"The demonstration of good faith shown by both sides in this difficult moment leads me to believe that a fair and lasting agreement can be achieved," Koffler said.

Members of the coalition stressed the fact that the struggle is not yet over.

"We hope people won't let these issues lie," Gaston said. "There will be regular meetings between the Coalition and the broadcasting council."

Members of the coalition emptied the garbage and vacuumed the carpet before leaving the office.

GAY DISCO
9 pm - 1 am
Friday, 4 April 1980
CC 10th Floor
2 Admission
People's Gay Alliance

Mike's Westview Cafe No. Amherst
Thurs. Nite Penny Nite
Every Third Drink 1c
Pinball Machine
Bowling Machine
Attitude Readjustment Period
Mon.-Fri. 4 pm - 6 pm
Giant Sandwiches-Turkey, Roast Beef and Ham with chips and pickle $1.95
New Drink - Sourballs
Old Milwaukee $1.95 a pitcher
Domestic Bottled Beer 75c
Spearmint & Cinnamon Schnapps 80c
Friday Afternoon Free Smorgy During Happy Hour 4p to 6p

20% OFF EYEGLASSES
Bring in your student ID card
All other discounts do not apply.
Offer expires April 15, 1980.
PEARLE vision center
A SEARLE COMPANY
HADLEY
Rte. 9 at Russell Street
in front of Mountain Farm Mall
Tel. 584-7763
Open Tues. 10-6, Wed., Thurs., Fri. 10-9
Sat. 10-5, closed Mon.
For other locations call toll-free 800 331-1000.
© 1980 Searle Optical Inc., Dallas, Texas USA

the rusty nail
WELCOMES
18 & 19 year olds
Every Sunday thru Thursday
Positive I.D. Required
"Live Music Information" call 665-4937

AMERICAN MULTI CINEMA
ADULTS $2.75 STUDENTS & SR. CITIZENS with AMC CARD $2.25 TWI-LITE SHOW $1.50 - Special Engagements Excluded
Twi-Lite Show - Limited to Seating
TIMES SHOWN FOR TODAY ONLY
HAMPSHIRE 4 — 584-7550 HAMP. MALL ON CAFE SQ.—RT. 9, HADLEY, MASS.
SISSY SPACEK TOMMY LEE JONES Coal Miner's DAUGHTER PG (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
AUDIENCES WILL SIMPLY CHERISH BREAKING AWAY PG Best Picture Nomination (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
SERIAL with Martin Mull R (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
Little Darlings R (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 — 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9—HADLEY, MASS.
PETER SELLERS SHIRLEY MacLAINE BEING THERE PG Best Actor Nomination (5:45 @ $1.50) 8:30
ROY SCHEIDER ALL THAT JAZZ R Best Picture Nomination (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
Joseph Wambaugh's THE BLACK MARBLE with Paula Prentiss PG (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
ERWIN ALLEN's production of When Time Ran Out... PG (6:00 @$1.50) 8:30

Milton H. Askinoss A.A.E.H.
announces the opening of
Hampshire Ethical Hypnosis Center
For the Practice of Perscription and Personal Habit Control Hypnosis
• Weight control • Stop smoking
• Nail biting • Self confidence
• Improve concentration • Sexual problems
• Memory improvement • Relaxation
• Improve study habits • Insomnia
• Sports Improvement • Fear of heights & flying
Now forming special classes for self hypnosis
Available for lecture demonstrations
Special fees for college students & senior citizens
The Farrick Building Rte. 9 Hadley, Ma.
3/10 mile Hampshire Mall (Next to Rocky's Hardware)
584-1919 By appointment only

Pleasant St. Theater
HANS-JURGEN SYBERBERG'S OUR HITLER A FILM FROM GERMANY
April 26 and 27 at the Calvin
ADVANCE TICKET INFORMATION
Tickets are now available for the April 26 and 27 performances either through the mail (by stamped self-addressed envelopes only) or at the Pleasant St. Theater box office from 5:30 to 12 p.m. daily (excepting one half hour before showtimes). Starting on April 21 the PST box office will be open for advance tickets from noon on, in addition to the regular evening hours.
Ticket prices are $10 for rows E-N of the orchestra center and for the logo; $8.50 for rows A-D and O-X of Orchestra center for all seats on orchestra left and right and for second balcony. No student or senior citizen discounts are available. All mail requests should indicate a first, second, and third preference by area and approximate row location. Mail requests will be honored immediately. Mail requests received after April 21 cannot be answered. Tickets cannot be refunded.
27 Pleasant St./Northampton 586-0935

silverscope
Natural Vegetarian Cuisine
Cafe Specials
• Quiche & Salad $2.50
• Salvalai Soave
$1 per glass
Cappuccino Expresso
Fine Wines Import Bar Liquors
Full Take Out Service
8 am - Midnight Mon-Sat
Noon - midnight Sun
silverscope
Coffee Beans
BRAZILIAN BOURBON SANTOS
CAFE BLEND
COLUMBIAN MEDELLIN EXCELISO
FRENCH ROAST
GUATEMALAN
ITALIAN ROAST
HIGH MTN. JAMAICAN STYLE
VENEZUELAN TACHIRA
$3.99
KENYA AA
NEW ORLEANS CHICORY
MOCHA 100%
MOCHA JAVA
$4.49
FRENCH ROAST DECAF
VIENNESE CINNAMON
$4.89
CHOCOLATE ALMOND
$4.29

UPC & UMass Arts Productions Council present UTOPIA
with
Tony Kinsey, Roger Powell
Kenny Sutton, Alan Wilcox

Editorial/Opinion

Is there no justice?

Some kid called me an "un-American swine" when I was putting up a poster for a Students against the Draft meeting a few weeks ago, and I still can't stop thinking about it. Every time I wear my STOP THE DRAFT button I get dirty looks.

JACKSON KATZ

And people still refer to anti-draft, anti-nuclear, and various other political activists as "radicals," "commies," or other such negative types.

The sixties are over, people say. Those people out protesting now don't realize that this is 1980, that the world is different than when everyone was out protesting everything.

What's so different?

There's so much shit going down all around us, right here in 1980, that it's literally mind-boggling. Money for social services, welfare, education and medical care is being continually cut, while our president calls for an increase in defense spending. Nuclear power plants continue to be built and to operate, against the wishes of the majority of people. And the nuclear arms race, in addition to wasting billions of potentially constructive dollars, threatens to wipe out all life on this planet.

Well, there are people out there fighting all this injustice, this increasingly dehumanized world, this collision course with castastrophe that the leaders of this country and others have set us on. There are people out there fighting social injustice, for the rights of people before profits, fighting for a good, safe life for themselves, for all people, for the generations to come.

And people shun them and call them un-American.

What the hell does it mean to be American, anyway?

We all say we want to change the world, make it a better place for our children and all that. We talk about the "American" ideals of freedom, of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, and yet most of us just go about our own individual lives, proud to be Americans as crisis after crisis, injustice after injustice, continue to go down.

The people who are so disdainfully called "radicals" are the people who aren't just sitting around and talking about these cherished ideals, but who are out fighting for them.

Do you think these people enjoy being harassed, ostracized, or disowned by their families? Do you think they enjoy sacrificing their valuable time spending long, tedious hours in meetings, organizing, planning, and protesting? Do you think they like being beaten by cops, or risking future employment opportunities for political activity now?

Think about it.

If you think the world as it is now is screwed up, ask yourself why you're not out there fighting for a better world and protesting injustice.

And if you ever do decide to go out and get involved in some progressive political struggle, just think of how ironic it will be when people harass you and call you un-American.

Jackson Katz is a Collegian columnist.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian

STEPHEN B. KLEIN, Editor-in-Chief; JULIE EAGLE, Managing Editor; FREDERIC M. KEILLOR, Business Manager; KEN GRANDPRE, Advertising manager; JACK GALLAGHER, News Editor; ROB BURBANK, Executive Editor; LISA CAPONE, Women's Editor; RENEE MOBLEY, Black Affairs Editor; JIM MAHONEY, Photo Editor; SUZETTE COURTMANCHE, Graphics Manager; JIM DEGNIM, Sports Editor; JIM MORAN, Fine Arts Editor.

Associate Editors

Jeff Baker, Fran Basche, Ellen Davis, Carolyn Mooney, Rob Stein, Associate Managing Editors; Ed Levine, Brian O'Connell, Associate News Editors; Eric Janszen, Associate Executive Editor; Joan Daly, Katie Kress, Assistant advertising managers; Debbie Wallace, Associate Women's Editor; Marcia Hospedales, Associate Black Affairs Editor; Peter Berry, Associate Photo Editor; Abbe Bjorklund, Associate Fine Arts Editor; Jane Wolfson, Associate Sports Editor; Jeffrey Bianchi, Associate Graphics Manager.

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian is a member of the Associated Press. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertisers lies with the individual advertisers.

USPS 333-220

Letters

Column oppressive

To the Editor:

We are writing in response to Deborah Wayne's editorial of March 26th, "Long Island Dreaming." Though we appreciate her attempts to dispel certain myths about Long Islanders, we feel she unconsciously perpetuates other myths; namely about the stereotyped "Jewish American Princess." Stereotypes allow us to make generalized assumptions about people from particular groups.

The term "jap," as she states, refers to a Jewish woman who is supposedly rich and spoiled. It is a stereotype which is sexist, as well as anti-semitic, and has now become a code word to describe certain characteristics and behaviors in women. Miss Wayne is correct in saying that you don't have to be Jewish to be an American princess, but it might be construed that all Jewish women are American princesses. We, as Jewish women, find this attitude offensive.

Miss Wayne also fails to mention the American Jews who are not rich. There are many working-class Jews in the U.S., as well as Jews in the middle and upper-middle class. Contrary to popular belief, there are very few Jews in the ruling class. Historically, Jewish immigrants strove to succeed in the dominant Christian society, and those who succeeded were then blamed for this. Jewish women were criticized for visibly displaying their new status through their appearance, and seeming ostentatious and gaudy. When these qualities are attributed to Jews they are considered particularly offensive, whereas in non-Jews they are considered acceptable. An example of this attitude is that non-Jews who save money are considered "thrifty," and Jews who save money are considered "cheap."

Many Jews, as well as non-Jews, have bought into these stereotypes and use them constantly. We feel that this needs to be looked at carefully. Anti-semitism is a form of oppression which divides people, as does sexism, racism, and heterosexism. It provides Jews as a scapegoat for anger, instead of channeling this anger into a critique of the capitalist economic system. Stereotypes perpetuate oppression, and we hope to clarify this point as members of another minority.

Myra Hindus
Judy Kaplan

Concert security

To the Editor:

The reason for this letter is to bring to the student body's attention an issue which we feel violates the rights of the students who live on campus. This is the right of having overnight guests whenever the student desires.

The Office of Residential Life has taken a firm stand on a "no guest policy" for the weekend of Spring Concert. In addition, they are requesting $50,000 for security for four days (Thursday-Sunday). Last year, the Union Program Council conducted the largest, most well-organized Spring Concert—one which attracted fans from all over the country. There were minimum incidents reported in the residence halls. The budget for student security in the dorms from UPC was $2,500.

This year, UPC is working on a spring concert that will be more diverse, as opposed to the big-name concert of last year which featured the Grateful Dead.

Security problems in the dorms were not as big a problem as the Office of Residential Life is trying to make them out to be. In a memo from the Southwest Residential College Administration to the Director of Student Activities and staff members, it was stated that they "were able to verify that a tight security system was maintained throughout Southwest for the entire weekend of last year's spring concert." With the probability that students will have their friends attend the concert whether or not there is a "no guest policy," we feel that such a policy will enhance violence in dormitories rather than prevent it. We feel that the Office of Residential Life is forgetting the students' rights and that the steps they are taking to form an effective security system will only enhance violence and hostility.

UPC and the rest of the Student Government Association are willing to work with the residential life staff in order to organize an effective security system.

We want to be able to have a quality spring concert that both we and our friends can enjoy. We are sure that the rest of the student body feels the same way. Talk to your H.R., C.R.A., and R.A. and let them know how you feel about the issue. A "no guest policy" could jeopardize the concert from being put on, but more importantly, our very safety could be jeopardized as well.

Brian Burke, Richard LaVoice
Co-Presidents, Student Government Association

A short history of "Que Tal Amigos"

To the Editor:

In Nov. 1979, WFCR Radio (broadcasting from Hampshire House) received a new General Manager, Robert Goldfarb. One of Goldfarb's first acts as General Manager was to send out memoranda calling for review of the station's Spanish cultural show, "Que Tal Amigos."

Goldfarb claims "Que Tal Amigos" is using too many staff resources and should be removed from its prime time slot (7:30-8:30 six days a week). Goldfarb claims the show has low ratings despite the fact that WFCR is a non-commercial station and therefore not subject to the whims of ratings (as are commercial stations which must use ratings projections to sell advertising spots).

"Que Tal Amigos" features Latin music and cultural spots, and is the only regular Spanish program broadcast in the Pioneer Valley.

Goldfarb intends to cut "Que Tal Amigos" to two shows at 11 p.m. Opposition to this plan has been strong and swift, especially from the Hispanic community.

Last December two staff members, one a co-producer and one an announcer for "Que Tal Amigos," quit in frustration, unable to continue working with Goldfarb.

Letters from the community have been overwhelmingly in favor of keeping "Que Tal Amigos" on the air. Seventy people packed a public hearing with WFCR's Board of Directors to demonstrate their support for the show.

The Board of Directors' solution was to establish an advisory board of people from the Five College area to look into the dispute and report their findings by May 10. Goldfarb, however, plans to go ahead and cut "Que Tal Amigos" to two 11 p.m. shows, effective April 1. There is no guarantee the Board of Directors will restore "Que Tal Amigos" once it has been cut.

WFCR is a PUBLIC broadcasting station, and Goldfarb's plans to replace "Que Tal Amigos" with yet another classical program, despite the overwhelming and active protest, adds racist overtones to the cultural elitism that pervades public broadcasting.

In a country where commercial broadcasting is predominantly white, Anglo, and male oriented, it is the responsibility of public broadcasting to provide minorities with a mass communication outlet which will insure them the means to maintain and promote their cultural identity.

We urge students and all WFCR listeners to consider the cutting of "Que Tal Amigos" in the context of the overall struggle between those who seek to bring cultural diversity to the Five College area, be it through the proposed University G core, or programs like "Que Tal Amigos," and those who wish to maintain the cultural sterility that fosters our ignorance of—and isolates us from—the ways of the rest of the world.

Support the struggle to save "Que Tal Amigos," it serves us all.

Radical Student Union

No fools

Dear Sirs:

Why do you print trash like the letter from Marea J. Wexler & company? Your April fool's issue was a work of art. More power to you!

Howard W. Campbell, Jr.
Sunderland

COUPON
FREE Spring Inspection
with new tire purchase and this coupon
Plaza Shell
RTE. 9 WEST
AMHERST/HADLEY TOWN LINE
253-9000 Expires 6-20-79

The Red Hot Connection
THE GREAT AMERICAN HOT DOG PLACE
15 E. Pleasant (next to Tech HiFi) 549-5151
21 Center St. Northampton 586-3306
Nite Delivery & Carryout
This Weeks NITE SPECIAL
8 pm till closing
with any $5.00 purchase get
2 large 16-oz. soft drinks
FREE
good through April 9. 1980

THE AMHERST DELICATESSEN
Sandwiches
Cold Cuts
Bagels • Salads
OPEN AT 9 AM 7 DAYS 549-6314
NOW OPEN
TIL 2 AM
Fri. & Sat. Nites
Mon.-Thur. 'til 10 PM
IN THE CARRIAGE SHOPS

SELL IT
in the
Collegian
Classifieds

SPORTS NOTICE

ICE HOCKEY—Any women interested in playing intercollegiate ice hockey next semester should attend a mandatory meeting Thursday night at 7:30 p.m. in Campus Center 902. If you can't make it, please contact Alan at 6-5834 or Robin at 6-4063.

Are you afraid to walk alone at night on campus?
dvp
FREADA KLEIN
consultant for Our Bodies Our Selves
will speak on
RAPE CULTURE
April 7 CCA 8 PM
Sponsored by SCERA Women's Issues & SASH
Sign language interpretation provided

BUST OUT FOR THE WEEKEND

TRAILWAYS and PETER PAN offer frequent service to Boston, New York and many other great Get-A-Way places.
TRAILWAYS & PETER PAN BUS LINES

MAKE LIFE SIMPLER FOR YOU.

For Information, Schedules and Prices, Contact:
Campus Center Bus Office - 545-2006, or 549-6000

Future Flight
FANTASTIC FRISBEE OF THE 80's
It blazes across the sky
With solid state electronic lights
Visibility over 300 feet
Your Personal UFO
for over 100,000 hours

Diameter approx. 10 in.
Weight 7½ oz.
$9.95 plus $1.75 handling
(9 volt battery not included)
Mass. Residents add 5% tax.
Send check or money order to:
Oxbow Industries
Box 105
Stockbridge, Mass. 01262

FRIDAY
Happy Hour
3 - 6
25¢ Pub Mugs
• 75¢ Drinks •
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

SHOES & BOOTS
Hampshire Mall Holyoke Mall
584-9676 532-3176

A Benefit Concert
for the
Vocal Jazz and Afro-American Music Ensemble
featuring
ARCHIE SHEPP
And His Ensemble
Campus Center Auditorium, UMass-Amherst
Thursday, April 3, 1980 — 8:00 P.M.
Doantion $3.00
Tickets Available at TIX

Weekend Spring Fling
Friday and Saturday
2 for 1
Happy Hour
9:30-11:00
— All Mixed Drinks —
— Disco —
9 til 1
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

RUSSELL'S
LIQUORS
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441
Almaden California Burgundy 750 ml. $2.49
Giumara California Wine 1.5 L Mt. Vin Rose, Mt. Chablis, Mt. Burgundy $3.99
Vodka 80° special.... $4.95 qt.
Harvey's Bristol Cream 750 ml..... $7.49
1976 Cote's Du Rhone ..... $2.49 fifth
Liebfraumilch 23 oz.. 1.99 fifth & up
Check our other in-store specials
CHECK THESE PRICES!
Growers Wines
Red, White, Rose
.39 750 ml.
2.99 ½ gal.
4.99 gal.
Schlitz 12 oz. NR's. . 6.99 cs 1.99/6
Tuborg 12 oz. NR's. 6.99 cs 1.99/6
Schmidt's 12 oz. NR's. . . 6.59 case

Thursday
Two Way Street
This week's special
75c Vodka Drinks
"an Amherst tradition & now with a great new look"
Serving food
11:30 am-9:30 pm
Seven Days
a Week
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

Valley Typing
is changing its name
wordpro
Text & information processing services
Word Processing · OCR Scanning
Phototypesetting
Typing · Copying
Monday—Friday 10-6, Sat. 10-2
29 So. Pleasant St. · Amherst · 256—6736
same great service
with a brand new name

CHICK COREA
CHICK COREA & FRIENDS
JOE FARRELL, Reeds GAYLE MORAN, Vocals
AL VIZZUTTI, Trumpet BUNNY BRUNEL, Bass
TOM BRECHTLEIN, Drums
a concert to benefit Peace Train
Bushnell Memorial Hall, Hartford, CT
Tuesday, April 15, 1980 at 8:30 p.m.
Tickets available at Bushnell Memorial Hall
(203) 246-6807 and all Ticketron outlets.

Collegian Classifieds

To place a Collegian Classified
•Come to Collegian Office CC 113
•8:45 to 3:45 Mon-Fri
•Classified deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day

Collegian Classified Rates
•15c per word
•Student rate 10c per word
•Cash in advance
•5 consecutive days 5 % discount
•Phone number FREE

AUDIO

SONY one point stereo eletret condenser microphone excellent cond. $25 253-3225

Quanta 500 turntable belt drive strabe electronic pitch ADC Cart $85 546-9410

All Offers Considered! Harmon Kardon 330C 20 watt Receiver $130 large ADVENT Speakers $240 Tony 323-7365

AUTO FOR SALE

'73 Toyota Mark II Wagn 73000 mi excellent shape, yours for $1980 phone Kittye 549-5412

1970 Olds eng & trans excellent condition body good have to sell moving to city 400.00 or BO call 546-1441 Mon-Thur after 9:00 PM

1970 Chrysler T & C stawgn good cond call 665-3625 eves

1972 Volkswagon Van excellent condition 549-2636

1971 Dodge Polara $300 549-0915

1969 Chrysler Newport with 1973 Duster engine, excellent condition $600 Kevin 549-5969

74 Camero $1200 or BO 546-5382

ENTERTAINMENT

Soundsystem for Hire perfect for bands, discos, coffeehouses Rick 584-4105

Icarus - April 18 Hamden Southwest

Benb & Gerald Book now on sale at For the Record, Faces and Mainstreet Record Thornes Supermarket

"Dock-Risco" a diverse musical DJ who mixes Rock and Disco. For an evening od diverse music call 549-4199

MF Sound Pro soundsystem from $40 6-8777 6-8853

FOR RENT

Cape Cod Summer Rental 5 bdrms E Dennis after 5 253-5017

Rooms in So. Deerfield 665-7093

Attractive, reasonable summer rental for 4 people. One minute to SBA 549-1254

4 bdrm summer ranch house available May 21st $400/month, 10 min from campus call 549-5682

Profs London Home good area close center sleeps 9 July/Aug $200 P.W. 253-5421/50420

FOR SALE

Fisher Integrated Component System MC3020 cassette/turntable excellent condition call Seth at 546-6849

Guild Guitar with Amp asking $200 Rick 546-7027

Acoustic Guitar Yamaha FG 170 $111.23 Tony 323-7365

76 Dodge Charger SE, small V8 automatic, air, power windows, excellent condition $1900 546-1029

1969 Volvo engine $150 four speed transmission $50 549-0915

Indash or underdash AM-FM 8 track $40 G.E. 40 ch. C.B. with P.A. $40 Installation available Steve 6-1403

10-speed bike Harris 253-3877

Flute—Gemeihardt open hole, M3, excel cond $300 6-5723

Designer Backgammon Board $40 or BO 6-5723

Two Tires B78-14 Goodyear 4600 miles $45.00 call 256-8435

Quality Concert Photos Kinks, Phyllis Hyman, Judy Collins, Buddy Rich, Garcia, Patti Smith, Lene, Hall & Oates, Bonnie, Fonda, Derringer, Taj, Metheny MW 4:00-4:45 TuTh 12:30-1:30 Index Office Rm 103 CC $4.00 per 8x10 B & W

Girls Rollerskates 6½ or 7 worn once, white leather with blue stripes $35 546-5382

FOUND

Found-Brown plastic rimmed glasses in Northeast quad. Call Jeff 6-3210

Silver Frame Glasses brown case found by Knowlton Dorm before vacation. Call Collegian 545-3500 or come by.

HELP WANTED

Summer work, $1,210.00 monthly, travel Car owner preferred but not required. Send SASE Box 213, Amherst MA 01004

Extra Cash $80-250/week with free gas program. Will train. Full or part time. Interviews held Thursday April 3rd w/Polaris Donlin at 25 Main Street 3rd floor suite 27 Northampton, MA 10 am, 1 pm, 4 pm, 7 pm (next to Fitzwillys).

Wanted: Rock Band or DJ for April 25 contact Saul 546-7611 or Mark 546-7684

$$$$$$$ SUMMER JOBS: OGUNQUIT, MAINE. Thousands of positions must be filled NOW in Banks, Restaurants, Motels, and more. ENJOY MAINE SEACOAST FOR SUMMER. For job/living information send $1.00 to regional representatives at: Ogunquit Job Placement/PO Box 107/ Amherst, MA 01002

INSTRUCTION

Jewish Community of Amherst needs both Hebrew and Jewish Studies teachers for September 1980 call 549-0223 for application. Experience preferred

Math Tutor all levels 253-7830

LOST

Lost Black Lab named Astro Always seen around campus. If anyone has any info please call Scott at anytime 549-6219. Wears blue collar, keep your eyes open friends.

Sat 3/28/80 two keys on plastic key chain engraved: Janet if found call 6-4883

If you picked up the wrong coat at Phi Sig Sat night I have yours 6-7958

Lost gold star in area between Grist Mill and Jeffery Manor If found please call Gary 256-6659

Lost a gold opal bracelet very sentimental rewaard call 546-4816

MOTORCYCLES

1975 Kawasaki KE175 on/off road recent total rebuild $635 or BO 546-5977

450 Honda 1970 11K miles new sprockets, chain, tires etc. 323-7178

PERSONALS

Pete Jacke call Macky 665-7923

Don't graduate without doing it! Get your yearbook portrait taken--call 545-2874 for your appointment. Don't be left out of the 1980 Index

All University Women invited to Rush Parties at SDT for more info call Robyn 545-0527

Go in "SAYNE", April 10 Thursday

NEED CASH? I will buy your used record albums. 6-7937

Cindy L. 1610 Wash. I have got to get you into my life. How about dinner sometime? An Admirer

To the Jewish Women Calling Committee—Thanks for the call Sunday. I'm still available but may not be for long so call back soon—The First on the List

Tired of Anti-Nuke demonstrations? Go Nuclear! If interested call Ty 546-8924

Tired of DC Food? meals-in-exchange-for-light-kitchen-work-call-Jenny-or-Carol-at-545-0082-or-256-6844

Me & my arrow! The Point shown at Hampden Dining Commons Thur 4/3 7, 8:30, 10, 11:30 Get The Point!

Whoever took my King Phillip jacket Thurs Nite at BKQ please return call 546-8141 Reward!

Hey McQuillan Have a great 20th b-day! Don't do anything I wouldn't do! Lots of love, your favorite roomie L.C.

Evan Carlson: If 800 people show up for the First Round of the April 12th Wimpout Tournament, there will be 600 Limp Wimps at the end of the first round. Could you ever imagine such a disgusting sight? Don't miss it! Come early as usual

Any interested television meteorologists call Doctor Video 6-5706

Hewo Beff, wishing you a mega far-freakin' out incredibly wicked romantic HAPPY BIRTHDAY. Have a whale of a collegiate time, you suggestible tucket (14 mile isle) preppy, but watch those Cape Codders! We love you with all our hearts, greens and ribbons—no shit Sherlock! 2 long

Semp your place Wed 4/9 for dinner be prepared Chenz, Bethballs

Lois Happy 19th! Enjoy it. Is it really true what they say? love your roomie

Atü—COINS 122 is easier to do, because MONDAYS and FRIDAYS are fun with YOU!—Joanne

Yo! Russ, Benny, Joel, Bob & Steve's house on Aubinwood has 3 bdrms up for summer, check it out

Susan B. Happy 21st Birthday and Vaya Con Dios. Love, Slim Whitman

Wish me luck—D. Cassidy Minuteman Q.B. Fall 1980 546-6572 keep trying

Tim—Here's a personal for you too! I know you read these and now you've got one. Have a WELSH soda to celebrate. I'll sign this love, Rosko

Guida—Thanks for saving me from "Banana-legs" and giving me a ride in Tag. Hi to Helen and Joanne! P.S. Your neck is nicer! Love, Rosko

Michelle—Congratulations on Idaho. I know you'll decide what's best. Happy Easter PS—I love you

Spiritual, mystical support group forming nondenominational call Bill 253-5978

BAM—Have a Happy Birthday and best wishes to you from all of us. Dave, John, Jim, Steve

Happy Birthday Barbi! Montana bound or what? your old roomate Death to the Louds

To the Blob (J.J.S.S.I.G.B.) It was fun tripping with you. We will have to do it again during the day. Steve

Tim--Thanks for returning my wallet intact!! Emberley

Gain Business Exper. in Acctg, Mkt, credit and mgt. Apply for a volunteer position at the Student Credit Union

M.O. You're the reason that I smile! The Backscratcher

Whoa! Alright Already! Mark Thomas invites Dot/Jane up for W.W. Pizza and cafe Michelle in the Backroom. If your name's Dot or Jane call 6-6888 Bring a tape

Ruth, Congratulations on your position. Here's the personal you deserve. - KS

For all to read: "Rosko" is a SWEETHEART! She's downright beautiful. Love Mickey, sunglasses & jeanjacket

RIDE WANTED

Ride needed to Boston Thurs April 3 or Fri April 4 will share expenses call Diane at 546-5417 thanks

Ride wanted to NYC Friday or Saturday call Alison 549-1046

ROOMATE WANTED

Female housemate for 3 bdr duplex, On bus route. $100 + utilities. Elise 545-0696, 253-7150

Male roomate wanted Brandywine $105 549-4671

One room in 3 bedroom Townhouse on 2 bus routes, quiet, Bay State phone, HBO, furnished--prefer non-smoker, serious student, very reasonable call 549-5192

Available immediately. Female wanted for own room in Belchertown house on bus route. $84 plus. Option to renew June 1. 256-0158

ROOM WANTED

Female student and well mannered dogs need a room or an apartment on UMass bus rte for the Fall Call Rhonda 546-6956

SERVICES

Attorney Jason R. Rosenthal Legal Representation. Income Tax Preparation. Days 584-4285 Evenings 253-7617

SLIM WHITMAN

Feel all the energy, aura and excitement of a real Slim Whitman Concert. T-shirts at Collegian office 113 Campus Center--for that real preppie look--Amherst College EAT YOUR UNA PALOMA BLANCA'S OUT

TO SUBLET

2 Lg bdrooms Brandywine Apts perfect location furnished balcony pool tennis reasonable price call 549-5959

Northwood 2 bedroom furnished AC DW pool garden plots bus-line June 1-August 31 $150 per month call 665-4850 after 4 pm

Squire Village Sunderland summer sublet 2 bdrm, 2 bathrooms, on bus route avail June 1-August 1, call 665-3660

2 bedroom apt Lantern Court Sunderland off bus route June 1 through August 665-7750

4 bedroom apartment $440 month inclusive on bus route don't get stuck without a place next Fall 256-8209

2 bedroom Southwood Apt bus route pool tennis June 1 256-0452

2 bedroom apt Presidential Apts summer sublet-option to renew in fall Call Robin or Jennifer 549-6382

Puffton Village 2 bedroom from end of April Fall option 549-4360

1 bdrm Puffton Village Jun-Aug pool air cond 549-6469

Summer sublet Townehouse Apts $200.00 549-6656 furnished

3 bedroom Townehouse open from June 1 - Aug 31 call 549-4049 for info

For Summer Fall option own room 78.75 plus utilities call 253-5206

2 bedroom apt furnished on bus route swimming pool call 253-5714

3 bedroom apt Puffton Village 300/mo furnished near bus, pool, tennis courts call nights 549-3765 6/1-8/31

Beautiful three bedroom Rolling Green apt for the summer. Patio, A/C. pool, on bus route (May 1 optional) call anytime 546-9919 rent negotiable

2 bedroom furnished apt Sunderland bus route Fall option 665-4315

Townhouse Apt #44 for summer 549-6039

1 bdrm apt—nice location near Puffer's Fall option furnished 549-6899

1 bedroom in 3 bedroom Puffton apart June-Aug part. furnished 2 baths air cond tennis pool bus route Rent negotiable 549-5184

2 bdrm Apt avail Predidential Area June-Aug on bus route 549-6340

2 bedrrom Brandywine for Summer w/Fall option, 2 bus routes, A/C, pool, balcony 549-3856

Cliffside Apartments Sunderland summer sublet 2 bedroom on bus route avail June 1-Aug 31 call 665-7977

3 bdrm Townehouse summer sublet, Fall opt. call Karen 549-6755

3 bedroom Puffton Apt June-August w/option $340/mo call 549-6487

Share 1 bdrm in Puffton, Smr & Fall with opt for Spr 549-5903 John

1 bedroom in 2 bedroom Squire Village summer in scenic Sunderland bus rte call 665-4761

To subet for summer w/option for Fall 4 bdrm Swiss Village on bus route 440/mo all util rent negotiable call 253-7975

Puffers Pond 2 bedroom apt June 1-August 1 call 549-4055

Rolling Green 1 bdrm furn AC pool all util inc June-Aug $250 mo 253-5090

Own room in 2 bedroom townehouse in Southwood Apts in South Amherst. Furnished, on bus toute, dishwasher, only $90 per month for summer Call 256-8947 any time

2 bdrm luxury furn apt Cliffside Sunderland rent negotiable 665-4004

$90.00/ &elec, N. Amh bus rt., 1 rm in apt for summer, non-smoker, 549-1540 (late)

To sublet 2 bedroom Townehouse Fall option 549-1056 anytime

4-bdrm Sum &/or Fall 440 w/every 256-6447

Soutwood Apt 1 bedroom avail 111.65 available 6/1 253-5201

4 Bedroom/2 bath apt $350/month 1½ miles from camp. on bus route May 25-Sept 1 253-5570 after 5

Summer sublease 1 bdrm in 2 bdrm Sunderland Apt $100/mo 665-4373

Southwood Townehouse with option for Fall tennis swimming call early AM late PM 253-7015 best offer

One bedroom Colonial Village option to renew Fall furnished or unfurnished available May 21 253-7713

2 bedroom Puffton Village June 1 to August 31 evenings 549-6420

Summer sublet option for Fall 4 bedroom Swiss Village $440 or BOincludes utilities nice place to live 253-5755

3 bdrm Brandywine Apt $330 & gas util avail June 1 w/Fall option 549-0569

4 bedroom all utilities included with option for Fall lease call 253-7571

2 bedroom Puffton Apt. 2 bath, air conditioned, tennis courts, pool, fully furnished June-Aug $230 549-4130

2 bdrm apt to sublet June 1 - Sept 1 Riverglade rent neg call 253-7115 pool avail

2 bedroom Brandywine apts fully furnished great deal! call 549-0128

Sublet 3 bedroom Puffton call 253-2647

1 bedroom apartment furnished, cable TV, on bus route, June-Aug $200/mon call 665-4891 after 5 pm

To sublet—June 1-August 31 2 bedroom Puffton Village 549-0456

3 bedroom apt furnished bus route in Sunderland 665-3976

Summer sublet: Large 2 bedroom Presidential apt closest to campus A/C Heat/Hot water included option to renew 549-4059

3 bedroom apt for June to Aug rent negotiable on bus route phone 253-5214

Summer sublet Fall option One bedroom on bus route $180/mo inclusive partly furnished 665-3518

WANTED

Fast immediate cash for gold-school rings-diamonds- silver Jeff anytime 527-7078 586-0180

Rock band looking for diverse singer call Tom 256-6845 549-6913

Used full Motorcycle Helmet 549-6583

Paying cash for gold school rings Bill 549-4166

WANTED TO RENT

3 women looking for housing in Hyannia area for Jun-Aug call Lisa 546-8006 or Toby 546-7436

House wanted 4-6 bedrooms close to campus call 546-5081 or 546-5100

3-5 bedroom house wanted for June 1st and next year. Amherst or Northampton must be on bus line. Call Nina 549-0611 or Karen 584-9096

House for 1980-1981 Academic Year will summer sublet from you call early AM late PM 253-7015

Nuke the Whale by Danny Guidera

4 by Frank Emery

Wimpman by Evan Carlson

Bean by Kevin X. McNamara

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

Crossword

UNITED Feature Syndicate
Wednesday's Puzzle Solved

A	L	I	T	■	P	A	L	E	■	F	I	L	E	T
P	U	N	A	■	E	G	O	L	■	I	R	A	T	E
A	R	C	S	■	N	E	W	M	E	X	I	C	A	N
R	E	D	■	N	H	R	■	H	E	S	I	L	E	■
A	R	M	E	D	■	T	R	O	T	S	■	■	■	■
■	■	F	L	E	A	■	C	U	E	■	C	E	L	T
P	A	L	E	■	C	L	E	A	T	■	D	O	E	R
I	C	E	C	O	L	D	E	N	O	M	A	D	E	S
A	T	T	A	R	■	D	I	N	E	R	■	C	A	Y
F	E	E	T	■	R	A	P	■	T	O	R	E	■	■
■	■	■	■	M	A	S	O	N	■	N	O	R	A	M
G	R	I	P	E	S	■	R	A	T	■	A	B	L	E
R	E	C	O	M	P	E	N	S	E	■	M	A	L	A
A	L	A	M	O	■	S	I	T	E	■	E	T	A	T
D	Y	N	E	S	■	S	A	Y	S	■	D	E	N	S

ACROSS
1 Mix
5 Outstrip
9 Boom
14 Glass piece
15 Access
16 Hibernian
17 Complicated
19 French-Canadian girl
20 Asian kingdom
21 Defense gp.
23 Appear
24 Stalest
27 Theater area
29 Prepare: 2 words
31 Robber
35 Goddess of plenty
37 Proper nouns
39 Man's nickname
40 Cry
42 Fish detector
44 Peruse
45 — — hands: Consecrate
47 Proportion
49 Can. prov.
50 Office workers
52 Man's name
54 Dull
56 Disparage
59 Blemish
62 Odin, e.g.
64 Diner
65 Separated
67 California city
70 Ranter
71 Bad
72 Twilights
73 Unethical
74 Adorn
75 Rose and ruby, e.g.

DOWN
1 Wasted
2 German coin
3 "The heck you say!": 4 words
4 Discount
5 Equality
6 Oklahoma city
7 Poses
8 Rob
9 Akin: Arch.
10 Gifts
11 Anger
12 Capri or Man
13 Those ones
18 N.Y. city
22 Corn holder
25 Mex. ladies
26 Swelling
28 Fuel
30 Punitive
32 Ornamental
33 Russian tsar
34 Pavilion
35 Birds
36 Kind of moss
38 Full
41 Meditated
43 Hill
46 Conjunction
48 Fur
51 Droop
53 Expunger
55 Uninterested
57 Granted
58 Curl
59 Planet
60 Ocean fish
61 Vesuvius product
63 Submerge
66 Attempt
68 London's Old —
69 Deer's cousin

DC Menu

Lunch
Hamburg on roll
Cheese Ravioli

Basics Lunch
Oatburgers
Cheese Ravioli

Dinner
Fried Chicken/
Cranberry Sauce
Reuben Sandwich

Basics Dinner
Fiesta Rice and Cheese
Fried Chicken
Cranberry Sauce

Earthfoods

Soybean Stroganoff
Borscht
Rice-Bulghar
Green Salad
Banana Spice Bars

"Beat the Mud"

the SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant

UNA PALOMA BLANCA!
JUST WHAT YOU'VE BEEN WAITING FOR!

TONIGHT!
"APPLAUSE"
A Backstage Musical
mar. 27, 28, 29, 30 apr. 3, 4 8
bowker auditorium, stockbri
For Tickets Call 7-5076

HOWARD JOHNSON'S
The Flavor of America
Special: $1.59
2 eggs, toast & hash browns
Coffee 35c
OPEN till 3 AM Fri & Sat Rt. 9 Hadley

SUMMER JOBS

The Summer Conference Housing Office is now hiring students for temporary summer positions as desk clerks, housekeepers, and student supervisors.

There are limited full and part-time openings, all shifts plus weekends.

Applications may be picked up in the University Conference Services Office, Room 918 of the Campus Center.

Deadline for return of applications is 5:00 p.m., Friday, April 18, 1980.

Work study students will be given priority. We are an equal opportunity employer. Women and minorities and encouraged to apply.

Human Services applications

APPLICATIONS ARE AVAILABLE for students interested in enrolling in the undergraduate Human Services Program. Applications and information available in the Human Services Division offices on the third floor of Hills South. An open house for interested students will be held April 8 from 7-9:30 p.m. in 105 Hills South.

EUROPE BY CAR
RENT or BUY
LOWEST PRICES
FOR STUDENTS, TEACHERS
EUROPE BY CAR
45 Rockefeller Plaza
New York, N.Y. 10020
Phone (212) 581-3040
Mail this ad for Special Student/Teacher Tariff.
☐ RENTAL ☐ LEASE ☐ PURCHASE
☐ EURAIL PASS & YOUTH PASS

OMEGA BOOKS galore!
COMICS
MOVIE POSTERS
BUY and SELL
(COME TRADE)
QUALITY USED BOOKS
10-1230 2-500 MON-SAT
213 MAIN ST

Tonight at the Rusty Scupper

Your Own:
Bob &
Dave Walsh
Right on the Belchertown Bus Route
529 Belchertown Road
256-8551
Sandwiches at the Bar — $2.50

The Hungry-U
Thursday Night Pizza & Beer Special
Buy any large pizza get a pitcher of beer for Half-Price!
5-closing
549-5713
55 University Dr.

Academy of Music
Northampton, Mass.
Only Area Showing Now, Ends Tues. at 7:00 and 9:00
Academy Award Nominee
BEST FOREIGN FILM
Franco Brusati's
To Forget Venice
ITALIAN ACADEMY AWARD WINNER BEST FILM
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

DON MULLER
16 MAIN STREET - NORTHAMPTON - MASS. 01060
2nd ANNIVERSARY
SALE
20% OFF
14K GOLD
30% OFF
STERLING SILVER JEWELRY
20-50% OFF
selected
blown glass and ceramics.

NORTHAMPTON BICYCLE
21 Pleasant St. 586-3810
FUJI - RALEIGH - KABUKI - TREK
Skilled Repairs-Bell Helmets-Touring Equipment

Join the 1980 Summer Staff
CAMP RAMAH in New England outstanding camping in a Jewish Environment
Positions available: counselors, jr. counselors, waterfront specialists, kitchen & dining room, laundry, maintainance staff, office aides
For further information and applications contact
Debra Hirshman Green, director,
Camp Ramah in New England, 1330 Beacon Street, Brookline, MA 02141 (617) 232-7400

Martin Luther King Jr.
MEMORIAL LECTURE SERIES

Thursday, April 3, 1980

EVENT:
Bringing It All Back, "Reflections on the Black Community in Britain"
by Dr. Colin Prescod
TIME: 7:30 p.m. PLACE: UMass Campus Center, Rm. 917
ALL EVENTS OF THE WEEK ARE FREE!

FROM: Martin Luther King Week Planning Committee and the Distinguished Visitors Program

TO: Interested Students, Staff and Faculty

From March 31, 1980 to April 4, 1980, the University of Massachusetts will be celebrating Martin Luther King Week. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., one of the most respected and well known Civil Rights Leaders of this century, was assassinated on April 4, 1968. To commemorate the many contributions Dr. King has made to our society, the Distinguished Visitors Program will be sponsoring several free events. The scheduled events include lectures, gospel concert and a dance performance.

We hope you will join us in this week long celebration. We are confident you and your guests will find these events intellectually stimulating, informative as well as entertaining.

DISCO ON DOWN TO...
Rt. 9 Amherst
Poor Richard's DISCOTHEQUE
CELEBRATION
Thursday April 3rd
5 year
ANNIVERSARY PARTY
50c drinks & beers
all night
in appreciation
of your business
Fri. & Sat.
HAPPY HOUR 8-10 p.m.

BLUE WALL
campus center at u mass
Thurs. April 3
THE CHANCE
formerly 'Fat Chance'
$1 cover charge
Fri. April 4 & Sat. April 5

$1 cover charge
COMING SOON
The New Allen Estes Band April 11
Robin Lane & the Chartbusters April 12
ALL AGES WELCOME
TOC sticker and valid ID required to purchase alcohol
in association with UPC Productions info: call 545-2892

APPROPRIATE TECHNOLOGY
This efficient system generates lots of positive musical energy without straining your precious resources.

harman/kardon Hk-450 Receiver
JVC La-11 Turntable
Clarke Systems Prelude Speakers
ADC XLM MK II Improved Cartridge
$538.00
Appropriate Tape Deck
Teac CX-211 ..... $159

SOUND & MUSIC
90-92 King Street (Rte. 5) Northampton
"Good Advice — Honest Price"
Thursday & Friday 'til 9
Mon.-Sat. 10-5
584-9547

Mike Estrada

For some spring rains eternal

Spring has come upon us in a sense of melancholy. The first week of intramural softball games were cancelled except Tuesday's. Particularly our game in a quagmire called Field Number Six. And now, because of the Intramural Office folly, those same fields lie, earth upturned, awaiting a dryout. Signs post the restriction of play. Well, that's one way to construct a dirt infield.

And alas, the Red Sox move north next week with no particular promises. The organization lies low without eliciting fan expectations. And for those athletes not moving north the beginning of April could mark the beginning of the end of a career.

To be rejected by a professional team is the ultimate rejection. The athlete at that stage can always fall back on his/her talent and always find ways to try again. But the "professional" rejection is just that. Thank you for applying but your services are not required at this time. So much for making it on effort alone.

I like to think that if my baseball career had gone the way it was supposed to I would now be mulling over 16 different professional contracts to take effect immediately after graduation.

But my era ended when my high school coach refused to put me in the game when we were being shelled 22-3 in the fifth inning.

I keeep trying to recall when I started getting more satisfaction out of slicing line-drive singles in intramural softball than feasting on the memory of my lone grand-slam home run at the age of 12 on the Chatham Little League Field. You know, the one with the 150 foot centerfield fence. The towering blooper that should have been caught except the chubby kid from Chatham tripped doing his Reggie Smith imitation.

I guess I was lucky I got out early.

But for a lot of other athletes the dream never died. How many members of the UMass football team want to become professionals? How many have a chance after seeing Dennis Dent and Joe McLaughlin, two of the top players in recent years, rejected by the Giants and Patriots after that near championship season; 1978.

And then there was Mike Pyatt. If you remember nothing else about Pyatt, you remember that he could shoot the lights out at the Cage on occasion. Hey, it only took the man four years to score more points than Julius Erving did in two.

And yet, Pyatt never made it past the Celtics training camp. You can talk about the success of UMass' Mike Flannagan or Milt Morin or Greg Landry or Judy Strong. The point is that for every success story there are dozens mor failures.

As for myself, I was spared the ultimate rejection by being disappointed early, before sports had become a major part of my life.

But the contacts I had or friends I made through high school sports will never be forgotten. Road trips to away games, afternoon practices and weekend parties came to form a very comfortable lifestyle. Being in sports gave me a sense of belonging and self-assurance.

And I've been rejected enough to know something about what is like not to make the team. It's too bad the dream couldn't have continued. For some it does.

Previews

Men's tennis faces Tufts

The men's tennis team open its spring season today with an away match at 3 p.m. at Tufts University.

The Minutemen are expected to start senior captain Dave Nowak at first singles, junior Sergio Strepman at second singles, junior Mark Huetteman at third singles, junior Matthew Modlish at fourth singles, senior Dan Gallagher at fifth singles and freshman Neil MacKertish at sixth singles.

The Minutemen have been playing challenge matches this past week among themselves. "I expect this to be the lineup," said coach Steve Williams. "There might be a shift."

At first doubles will be Nowak and Strepman, Huetteman and Modlish at second singles and Gallagher and MacKertish at third singles.

An interesting matchup should be the first doubles team of Nowak and Strepman against the Tufts first doubles who are returning New England champions at that positon.

"Sergio and I are playing pretty good doubles," Nowak said. "We are looking forward to doing pretty well."

The Minutemen boast three defending Yankee Conference champions from last fall. They are Strepman at number one singles, Huetteman at number three and MacKertish at number six. Nowak was a semi-finalist at number one singles.

— SEAN HARVEY

Crew team opens season

The UMass men's crew teams opened its 1980 season Saturday with a scrimmage against a strong Division I school, Northeastern University on the Charles River in Boston. The varsity four pulled off an upset over the Huskies' fourth varsity while the varsity, JV, and freshman eights lost by narrow margins.

The varsity four was the first race. The four was down by a length after the first twenty strokes of the race but gradually gained on the NU boat until they moved ahead at the 1000 meters halfway point. They moved out to a better than one boat-length lead before Northeastern moved on them towards the end. UMass finished with a 3/4 length victory. The varsity and JV eights also fell down by a length to Northeastern after the first twenty stokes. The varsity boat stayed a length down until about 700 meters into the race when the Huskies moved on them and went on to record a 1 1/2 length victory.

The JV eight, after falling behind by a length on the start finished by the same margin behind the NU crew. Both boats lost their contests on the start. Their had been a lack of emphasis on practicing starts until a few days before the race. The first freshman eight lost by 1/2 length to their UN counterparts.

This year's group of UMass upperclassmen shows a lot of promise. It is a fairly young group. There are ten sophomores, five juniors, and only four seniors. At an average of about 6'1" and 185 pounds, they are also smaller than last year's team.

— ANDY BLUME

UMass attackman Skip Vosburgh had a goal and four assists yesterday as the Gorillas downed Connecticut, 26-1. (Staff photo by Rich Newman)

No sweat as Gorillas win, 26-1

By DONNA SULLIVAN
Collegian Staff

Garber's Gorillas trounced UConn yesterday by a higher margin than UConn had over UMass in football last fall. Attackmen Chris Corin and Jim Weller had four goals and two assists each in the 26-1 Huskie slaughter.

"We use a fast breaking type of offense," head coach Dick Garber said. "Our style of play, fastbreaks, hustle, and aggressiveness, sometimes demoralizes teams. When we score four of five quick goals, it takes the spirit right out of them," he said.

UMass scored its first five goals in seven minutes. After taking control of the opening face-off, UMass took the first of 61 shots on goal just seconds in the first quarter. At 2:53 Skip Vosburgh intercepted a UConn pass deep in the Huskies' own territory and started off a barrage of Gorrilla goals. Paul Weller scooped up a ground ball and brought it in for UMass goal number two seven minutes later.

The Huskies only goal came at 9:66 as Steve Puleston put UConn on the boards. Puleston was the leading scorer in UConn's recent victory over Amherst College with three goals. From then on the Gorilla defense shut down any Huskie scoring threat. They allowed 34 shots on goal and cleared 20 balls out of 26. The UMass attack hindered any UConn clearing attempt and the Huskies cleared nine out of 21 balls. (Clearing the ball is getting it out of your defensive end and into your offensive end.)

"Mass. is just too fast," UConn head coach Nate Osur said. "They can all shoot and run and they all have great sticks. Our guys are a step or two behind on defense. Our playing UMass in lacrosse is like UConn playing Notre Dame in football," he said.

First half goalie Chris Benedetto allowed just one goal and had seven saves. He was aided in the defensive end by co-captain Paul Kinnane, Mark Fierro and Ray Cozzi among others.

Throughout the afternoon the Gorillas gained control of a record high 90 ground balls to UConn's 58.

By the end of the first quarter, UMass was up 6-1 and the lead would only increase with each minute of play. The second quarter belonged to Corin who scored three of his goals and both assists in the period. With less than three minutes left in the first half, Corin set up Dave Martin and Martin capitalized scoring one of his three goals. Freshman Tim Cutler scored two of his three goals in the second quarter, both off passes from Vosburgh.

Freshman Dave McEntee saw action in the second half, chalking up two goals and two assists. Pat Downes contributed two goals and an assist and Paul Weller aided with two goals. McEntee brought the Gorillas into the twenties early in the fourth quarter off a pass from co-captain Peter Schmitz. Schmitz chalked up his own score assisted by Kinnane with 9:11 to play.

Spikers resume season vs. Yale

Still tops in NECVL

By MAUREEN SULLIVAN
Collegian Staff

The men's volleyball varsity squad will face Yale University tonight at NOPE gym, beginning at 8:00 p.m.

Coming off a three-week layoff, UMass finds itself on top of the New England Collegiate Volleyball League Division One standings with a 4-1 record. However, its league rivals have played far more often, with some playing twice as many games.

"The layoff is sort of a disadvantage to us because we haven't played for so long," team co-captain Ed Midura said. "But our practices have been going well; and we'll have some surprises for the other teams."

"A lot of us are coming back from injuries and stuff, and the other (NECVL) teams, looking at our overall record (which is 5-4), don't think we're legitimate. But we have played teams that are ranked nationally, like West Point, and Penn State, and they haven't," he said.

Against Yale, UMass overpowered its Eastern Collegiate Volleyball League rival in four games, at Yale last February.

Before the varsity match, the junior varsity will play Worcester PolyTechnical Institute at 7:00 p.m. The JVs finished second in the Yankee Tournament at Worcester last Saturday.

The varsity will travel to the Boston area for four matches this weekend. Saturday, it will face Northeastern and the University of New Hampshire, and finish the weekend with matches against Boston University and MIT on Sunday.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY

Collegian

VOLUME CIX, ISSUE 114 Student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst Friday, April 4, 1980

Somerville mishap hospitalizes 120

Rail crash releases acid gas

SOMERVILLE, Mass. (AP) — An estimated 10,000 suburban residents fled their homes yesterday after a locomotive sideswiped a tank car in a rail yard three miles from downtown Boston, releasing clouds of airborne acid and sending at least 120 persons to the hospital.

The clouds of hydrochloric and phosphoric acid closed a section of Interstate 93, shutdown businesses and schools and even prompted Boston skyscrapers to shut off air circulation systems.

About 3,000 persons were evacuated from their homes in Somerville and adjacent Cambridge early in the evening before officials decided to cancel a plan to douse the affected area with 60,000 gallons of water.

"Rather than flood it and run the risk of another gas cloud," said Paul Cahill, state deputy Civil Defense director, "it was decided after consultation with the state Department of Health and the environmental people to cover the spilled chemical with dirt."

Cahill said the evacuation was halted, but those already in three reception centers in Somerville and the neighboring town of Medford probably would remain where they were.

"I would say the danger is minimal now," said Cahill. "But I can't give you an accurate assessment."

He said dirt and sand was being mixed in a pit with the chemical until it was piled about a foot over the brim of the large hole.

The chemical was pumped from the damaged tanker to tanker trucks, according to Peter Miller, a spokesman for Somerville, who estimated 10,000 had fled their homes.

Some 4,000 to 5,000 people in the densely residential Cross Street and East Somerville sections were cleared in an earlier evacuation yesterday afternoon when the wind shifted to the northwest, carrying the gas over their homes.

Cahill said some of those persons were included in the estimate of 3,000 asked to leave the area in the evening. He said no specific estimate could be made of the total number fleeing since the accident.

Southerly winds confined the gas to a largely industrial section through the morning.

The incident began shortly after 9 a.m. when a Boston & Maine locomotive clipped a tank car containing 13,300 gallons of phosphorus trichloride, a chemical used in water treatment. The car was bound for a Monsanto Chemical plant in Everett.

Edward Margeson, master of the Mystic Junction railroad yard, said the tank was sitting on a siding when it was struck.

The liquid vaporized into acid clouds when it came in contact with moisture in the air.

Toxic fumes from a chemical tank railroad car wich overturned in the Boston and Maine railroad yard in Somerville drift toward Boston. At least 74 persons were injured and thousands had to be evacuated. At right, Karen Botelmo and her son, Richard, flee their Somerville home. (AP Laserphoto)

UMass students enjoy the returned warmth of the sun yesterday as temperatures reached into the 60's. (Staff photo by Paul Price)

Senate tackles RSO budget

By STEVEN SEMPLE
Collegian Staff

The budgets committee of the Undergraduate Student Senate is in the process of trying to satisfy nearly 500 Recognized Student Organizations in their attempts to receive funding from the senate.

Committee Chairman Bari Njiiri said yesterday the biggest problem in the budgeting process is that there is less money to go around this year.

"We're not guaranteed any certain amount," Njiiri said. The committee is forced to estimate the amount of money they will have next year based on the projected number of students who will be attending the university and paying the $84 per year Student Activities Tax Fee.

Njiiri said he expects an overall budget of about $1.2 million for fiscal year 1981 (July, 1980 through June 30, 1981). Of that, funds are taken off the top for transit services, Union Program Council and the Distinguished Visitors Program. Another $100,000 is earmarked for deficit liquidation, Njiiri said.

The budgeting process begins when the committee reviews each proposal submitted by a group to see if it conforms to senate guidelines. If it does, the committee next considers if the rationale for funding is appropriate. Once the rationale is approved, the committee begins debate on the exact amounts allotted to specific expense catagories. The committee's recommendation finally goes before the senate for ratification, which is usually a lively process, according to senators.

Steve Baumohl, managing attorney for the Legal Services Office, said in an interview Wednesday that he saw "real problems in the budgeting process."

"Students in general don't understand how costly running a law office is," he said. Baumohl said committee members offered opinions "that didn't have much factual basis" in considering LSO's funding during a meeting Tuesday.

"They (LSO) had to admit things that were definitely wrong with their budget," Njiiri said. "We have the overall picture whereas individual groups have only their own interests in mind," he said.

The budget recommendation will come before the Senate at their April 30 meeting, Njiiri said.

Administration slow to act on Women's Studies

by JANE DEVIRGILIO
Collegian Staff

The status of the nationally recognized UMass Women Studies Program is currently awaiting administrative action by Chancellor Henry Koffler, and the wait has been a long one. Since its conception as a pilot program in 1975, the program has led a struggling existence of funding and the authority to grant a bachelor's degree separate from an affiliation with the Bahelor's Degree in Individual Concentration (BDIC).

"I can't imagine that any other program on this campus would be treated as we have been in the past," said Arlene Avakian, Women Studies staff assistant. "I think they feel if they ignore us, maybe we'll go away," she said. "But with approximately 1000 students a semester taking program courses we are a force to contend with a constituency that is involved. They (the administration) cannot ignore us any longer."

The current Women Studies program was first proposed to the Faculty Senate in 1973 by the Committee on the Status of Women. In 1974, the Faculty Senate issued a two-year mandate for a pilot program and the authority to issue a certificate in Women Studies. They were due for evaluation in two years, requested and were granted an extension, a nd on March 9, 1978 the program was reviewed by the Academic Matters Council of the Faculty Senate.

At that time, the Council recommended that the program be continued for five years, that it be made independent of BDIC, and that the appropriate resources be made avialable.

These recommendations passed the Faculty Senate in 1978, and then were passed by Provost Jerry Allen, and Chancellor Randolph Bromery. When it reached the desk of then University President Robert Wood, the question of the $10,000 additional program funding arose.

For two years the funding problem continued, even when the Women Studies program proposed that, if necessary, they could do without any additional funding provided they could grant a separate bachelor's degree. At last months' Faculty Senate meeting, Provost Allen admitted he was at fault.

"He stood up at that meeting," Avakian said, "and attributed the delayed review of the program solely to his 'mere indolence and cowardice' and he took full responsibility for the delay. He looked like a fool," she said. "There was shock on our part but a lot of laughter from other people. But isn't that always the way...people are afraid of blacks, and they laugh at women."

Allen stood up at the meeting and attributed the delayed program review solely to his "mere indolence and cowardice."

At last Thursday's Faculty Senate meeting, he had made a decision, but could not reveal what it was at the time since the Chancellor was currently making his decision. Meanwhile, approximately 100 faculty members addressed a letter to the Chancellor stating "because of the impressive record of the program, of the affirmative aciton implications, and because faculty are all too infrequently commended for work well done, we urge your immediate approval of the Women Studies Program."

The program has now been under Koffler's consideration for one week, during which his office was occupied by "Que Tal Amigos?" protestors. How he will decide remains to be seen, but there exists the techinicality that two years ago the Faculty Senate recomendations allowing the program to grant degrees were initially passed by the Provost and Chancellor's offices. This technicality is one which the Women's Studies Program is ready to discuss if approval is denied.

Avakian stressed that the program "does not want to become a department. A department has to enter a school and we feel it is then harder to reach out to the rest of the University community. Out program is interdisciplinary by nature, with courses in many University departments, and we want to stay that way," she said.

DIGEST

First Lady Rosalynn Carter, bearing a striking resemblance to tennis star Billie Jean King, waves to well wishers during a campaign tour of a glass plant in Jeanette, Pennsylvania. (AP Laserphoto)

Iran demands clarification of U.S. restraint pledges

Iran's Revolutionary Council yesterday demanded clarification of U.S. pledges before asking militants to hand over the American hostages in Tehran. President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr was quoted as saying Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini would have the final decision on transfering the captives to government control.

Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh told reporters after a council meeting last night that Iran wanted President Carter to clarify commitments of restraint made in response to conditions set by Bani-Sadr.

White House spokesman Jody Powell said in Washington that the U.S. position was clear.

"Let me say that the American position has been clearly stated. We hope the authorities in Iran will carefully consider that position and the full implications of the situation before making a final decision," Powell told reporters.

Israeli rightists prod Begin to hold firm in summit talks

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel detained a leading Palestinian activist for questioning yesterday and Israeli rightists mounted pressure on Prime Minister Menachem Begin to refuse to make concessions in summit talks with President Carter this month.

Work began on the site of a new Jewish village near Jericho in the Jordan River valley. Military authorities said it was to be called Mitzpe Jericho "B" and that the government had authorized a settlement at the site in Israeli-occupied territory more than a year ago.

In continuing efforts to quell the wave of unrest in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River, Israeli authorities called Dr. Ahmed Hamzi Natshe to the military police headquarters in Bethlehem after he allegedly made an anti-Israeli speech at a Palestinian rally in the West Bank town of Hebron on Wednesday.

Senate cuts bureaucracy 5 %, eliminates revenue sharing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Budget Committee voted yesterday to eliminate federal revenue sharing for states and cut the federal bureaucracy by 5 percent across the board as it neared completion of a balanced 1981 budget.

The votes continued the committee's pattern of making deep cuts in domestic programs to cover defense spending increases that exceed President Carter's $150.5 billion request by more than $5 billion.

Despite the higher defense outlays, the panel was almost certain to join Carter and the House Budget Committee in proposing a balanced budget for fiscal 1981, which starts Oct. 1.

If approved by the full House and Senate, it would be the first balanced federal budget in 12 years.

Federal judge orders acquital of Bert Lance

ATLANTA (AP) —A federal judge said yesterday he would order former federal director Bert Lance acquitted on charges of bank fraud conspiracy. That will leave intact 32 specific allegations of fraud against Lance and three associates.

U.S. District Judge Charles A. Moye Jr. said evidence presented by the government during the 12-week trial could not be considered proof of a conspiracy.

Lance and three fellow north Georgia businessmen were accused of engaging in a scheme over 10 years that resulted in $20 million in loans to the defendants, their families and friends.

Lance jubilantly shook hands with his attorneys and said the judge's ruling was a vindication.

"I think it's in keeping with what we said all the time," Lance told reporters. "The government had no conspiracy to prove because there wasn't one"

The government plans to wrap up its case with evidence from five FBI agents who analyzed bank records that are evidence in the case. But their testimony will be confined to the specific transactions involved in the remaining counts of the indictment.

Lance is charged with 15 counts of misapplying bank funds, five counts of making false statements to banks and one count of making a false entry in bank records.

The conspiracy count was the only charge in which all four defendants were named. The 32 substantive counts are now all that is left of the case.

This aerial view shows toxic fumes billowing from the chemical tank car, lower left, with train against it, that struck the car yesterday in the Somerville railroad yard. PHOTO BY BOB DEAN. PHOTO COPYRIGHT THE BOSTON GLOBE.

Photo contest winners listed

WINNERS IN FIRST ANNUAL CC/SU PHOTOGRAPHY AWARD EXHIBITION

1st prize ($100) - Cheryl Senter, "Inner City Magic"
2nd prize ($50) - Brian Marks, untitled portrait
3rd prize ($25) - Murray Quin, view of Campus Center terrace first honorable mention - Jan Stapel, "Breakfast" second honorable mention - Ian Lane, "Parade" photo essay third honorable mention - Doug Paulding, study of a girl on a swing

'Hunger Banquet' benefits OXFAM

By TERRY HOFFMAN
Special to the Collegian

"Do something to help us, to save our lives," begged Cambodian Kim An to about 50 people at a Hunger Banquet in the Hatch last week.

The dinner, sponsored by the Hunger Task Force, was held to inform people about the hungry in Cambodia and to raise money for OXFAM-America, a non-profit organization against hunger. Participants were randomly given meals ranging from a full course dinner to one of rice and water only, to dramatize the differences between First, Second, and Third World nation eating habits.

After the meal, Cambodian native An talked about his country's starving people. He said Cambodia is "just like a baby fed by American milk." An said he once believed in Communism but now he believes the political form of organization is not important because human rights is the main issue for his country. He urged all people to preserve human rights.

The food at the banquet was donated by Earth Foods. The Hunger Task Force is also planning a day of fasting on Thursday, April 17 to raise more money for OXFAM.

Subscription rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333 220) is published daily Monday through Friday, excluding January, June, July, and August, fall #15 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts at Amherst, MA 01003. Second class postage paid at Amherst, Mass. Postmaster: Send address changes to Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

4 women recently sub-let their Swiss Village Apartment just 2 days after placing a classified Further proof that Collegian classifieds SELL

OMEGA BOOKS
COMICS
MOVIE POSTERS
BUY-SELL-TRADE
BOOKS
10-6:30 2-5:00 MON-SAT

Great Prices
Spring Clothes
Jewelry & Gifts
THE MERCANTILE
AMHERST CARRIAGE SHOPS
Daily 10 am - 6 pm

GAY DISCO
9 pm - 1 am
Friday, 4 April 1980
CC 10th Floor
2 Admission
People's Gay Alliance

the rusty nail
WELCOMES
18 & 19 year olds
Every Sunday thru Thursday
Positive I.D. Required
"Live Music Information" call 665-4937

BLUE WALL
Campus Center
UMass
Presents—Friday
Happy Hour
with Steve Spellman
Happy Hour everyday 3-6 p.m.
TOC sticker & valid ID required to purchase alcohol

家酒園南湖
Hunan Garden Restaurant
MANDARIN SZECHUEN CUISINE
"The Best Chinese Food"
Luncheon Specials Dinner Specials
Take-Out Service Full Cocktail Menu
Sun.-Thurs. 11:30 a.m.-10:00 p.m.
Fri. & Sat. 11:30 a.m.-11:00 p.m.
10 Belchertown Rd., at Route 9, Amherst
256-0251 next to: Poor Richard's 256-0252

Student aid cuts may fail in Congress

By PATTI GALVIN
Special to the Collegian

Massachusetts legislative officials are uncertain whether President Jimmy Carter's proposed budget for 1981, which includes a $213 million cut in student higher education assistance, will be passed by Congress.

Carter announced the new budget Monday. It proposes $17.2 billion in program cuts and savings which Carter hopes will hold federal spending to $611.5 billion next year, or 7.5 percent more than the current level.

"A lot of Carter's proposals will not get through the committees," a spokesperson for Sen. Paul E. Tsongas said.

A spokesperson for Gov. Edward J. King voiced a similar opinion, adding that most legislators are waiting to see what is going to happen. If the budget is approved as is, she is not sure how it would affect Massachusetts directly because there are a lot of "variables" to be considered.

U.S. Rep. James Collins called the new budget "a negative approach to straightening out inflation difficulties."

U.S. Rep. James Collins (D-Amherst) called the new budget "a negative approach to straightening out inflation difficulties."

He said Carter should concetrate on straightening out the federal bureacracy rather than cutting back needed services. Collins believes this budget will cause an increase in property taxes in cities and towns as well as "punishing people who should not be hurt."

The proposed budget has a "pretty good chance" of passing through Congress, Collins said. He recommended that every student, faculty member and administrative official write his or her congressperson and ask for a "no" vote.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy will make a formal statement on the subject in a few days, a spokesperson for the Senator said.

TOC renovation set

Board names Boston firm as architects

By MICHAEL FOLEY
Collegian Staff

Byron Ruth of Ruth, Shrives, and Williams, an architectural firm which designed 30 percent of the Quincy Market Area in Boston, will announce today the details of the $107,000 plan to renovate the Top of the Campus lounge, it was announced last night at the Board of Governors.

New tables, new chairs, refinished walls, refurbished floors, wood-trellised ceilings, and improved lighting will make the lounge area "more intimate," according to Chairman Dave O'Malley.

William Harris, Campus Center Director, said the money for the renovations will come from a holding account, where surplus revenues from conference services are collected.

O'Malley said if RSW does a good job designing renovations for the TOC, "we will have them go right ahead and start working on designs for the Blue Wall."

"The actual construction will be done over the summer, O'Malley said. The project is expected to be completed by September 1.

Board member John Furbish said Ruth wanted to extend renovations in the restaurant, improvng the Salad Bar which Furbish described as having a "Hawaiian grass shack look" not in keeping with the new motif in the lounge side of the TOC, but this is yet to be approved.

Board member Marshall Weinberg expressed concern that the Blue Wall plans may become a combination pub and "ultimate cafeteria" design without enough consideration for the entertainment programming. Planning for the Blue Wall is still in very rudimentary stages, noted O'Malley.

Board of Governors member Thomas Oliver, Vice Chairman Curtiss Wohlers and Chairman Dave O'Malley listen as plans to refurbish the Campus Center are discussed. (Staff phot by Steve Semple)

GSS plans officer elections

By SUZY CHAN
Special to the Collegian

The Graduate Student Senate decided Tuesday night to hold a campus-wide election for new GSS officers in early May.

Monte Pearson, president of the GSS, said the election will be held May 5 and 6. A GSS President and vice-president for next year will be elected as well as Secretary and Treasurer.

Pearson said every fee-paying graduate student will receive a newsletter with further information on the election.

On April 29, a week before the election, an open meeting for all graduate students and candidates will be held. Nominations for officers will be open until this meeting, Pearson said.

The GSS also approved a new Arts Council Constitution which, GSS members said, will enable students to have more say in the arts being performed on campus.

Jasmine Dali, GSS administrative assistant, told the senators the major alterations in the constitution include the new Performing Arts Fee, and student membership in the Arts Council.

The Performing Arts Fee will be collected starting next semester and will be used in three areas: student ticket subsidies, production charges to student groups and other students who present programs in the Fine Arts Center and related facilities; and the development of cultural and educational programs.

Programs for women offered

By MARCIA MURPHY
Collegian Staff

Educational lunch hour presentations for employed women will be held Tuesdays and Thursdays through April 17 at the Bangs Community Center in Amherst.

The free presentations are open to women of all ages and occupations and are held from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m.

The series, which began March 25, covers "current issues in working conditions for women such as sexual harassment; racial, ethnic, sexual or age education; equal pay for equal work; and developing employee strength in small non-unionized workplaces," according to a brochure on the series.

The series of mini-educationals was organized by a group of eight women who had been meeting during their Wednesday lunch hours for six weeks.

"Women are facing common problems in many different kinds of jobs," said Susanae Hoch, a typesetter in Amherst and one of the organizers of the series. "Too often we are isolated in our jobs without the support of an organization and without information about our rights under labor law. There are many ways we can find to begin supporting each other and dealing with these issues.'

"We hope that women will come, bring a lunch, and expect to meet other women who face similar problems, as well as enjoy the brief presentations and films we have planned," said Nancy Rawlings, a secretary at UMass and

TURN TO PAGE 10

Black Affairs

Letters to The Editor

Combatting Pessimism

There appears to be an emerging trend among the Black Student leadership on UMass' Campus, at Amherst. This trend is Pessimism, particularly centered around the low level of unity apparent within the ranks of the Black Student population.

It has now become popular for certain persons to drift around campus engaging people in useless conversations about the problems and state of the African-American people. Often heard are statements like "the folks will never get their program together", "there are no solutions to the problems of the African Americans", or about the "messed up" relationship between Brothers and Sisters, especially about how Third World people show little support for their organizations.

The sad thing about all this is that these backwards statements emerge not from the lips of the inactive or unpolitical Sisters and Brothers, but from Black student leadership, supposedly the most articulate, enlightened and intelligent of the group.

If this is the attitude of the leadership than no wonder problems exist and the level of unity is so low.

Worse is when asked what is their answer to this situation they can only shamefully hang their heads and shrug their shoulders. Thus these "problems" are compounded and in effect the dominance of the negative attitude becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy.

These "problems" exist because none of our Black student leadership has seen fit to include, in their programs and plans, an analyses and strategies for actively combatting and resolving these problems, they so consistently speak of!

The only way to resolve a problem is to confront it face-to-face, using the resources at our disposal for the resolution of the contradiction. So far there has been no genuine efforts on the part of campus' Black leadership and organizations to confront these problems. Instead enormous amounts of time, energy and money are wasted on excessive amounts of social and cultural programs.

What these leaders must begin to understand is that it is not concerts, speakers, movies, etc...that will heighten the level of unity, but conscious, active and consistent (daily if need be) politcal work, i.e. agitation guided by a well thought out program or plan designed to stimulate and raise the political consciousness of the Black student population, urging them to unite and take the lead in struggling for the resolution of the problems we face, internal and external problems.

It is well within the capacity of the Black student population and our leadership to develop and implement such a program, overcoming any obstacles, just as it is within their capacity to organize and implement Black Homecoming, Black History Month and Publish news papers.

This will only take place if our Black student leadership stop hamstringing themselves by hanging around S.G.A. and R.S.O. and depending entirely on their money. The nature of this relationship alone reinforces the dependent mentality that "free" people should strive to get away from!

(Harsh words? Indeed. The condition of our people is harsh!) But our leaders are content to babble about the effects that the nature of our oppression create, instead of digging in and preparing to stratagize and organize the people (no matter how few or far apart we are or how unpolitical some of our ideas are) to solve our own problems, to take the responsibility for our safety and the confrontation of our collective problems into our own hands.!

One way this politicizing process can begin is for the black student leadership to come out of "ancient Egypt and Africa" into the science of todays methods for organizing, and to stop creating backwards slogans like "I can't comprehend" and "party over here" or "party over there." Instead they should Educate, Agitate and Organize!

African American History Group

Congratulations

To the Editor

As the coach of Grooveline's basketball team, I would like to take this time to congratulate GQ (IM 1980 basketball champs), and the players from Sugar & Spice, Grooveline, Maxwell's, the Bad News Bears, and Los Conquistador. You all put forth a tremendous effort and all of you can be commended for your achievements.

I would also like to thank Wanda, Beth, Maxine, Felicia, Nuwanda, Segun, the "Hill Gang", the people from "the WEST", and all the folks who took the time to support the intramural teams. Your presence provided encouragement and motivation for the team and we really appreciated it.

Around campus, students aren't always given credit for the positive things that they do but there are a couple of little vignettes which I would like to share. Grooveline lost a very close and well played game to Beta Kappa Psi in the quarterfinal round of the IM basketball playoffs. After the game, many of the people who had screamed and yelled for us all year, came over to my players and I. The said things such as, "Don't worry guys, you played well," and "you didn't let us down, in fact, we're proud of the way you played for US all year." That support helped me accept our loss and I'm sure it helped my players accept the loss as well.

In the semi-final round, the same Beta Kappa Psi team played and defeated Los Conquistadors. After the game, a fight broke out between a player and an official. At that moment....I had a flashback to my own days as an undergraduate here. I remembered the fight that started between an all Black team and an all white team. I remembered walking into the men's lockerroom and seeing the bruised bodies of some of the brothers who had been playing in the game that night.....As I ran to grab one of the players from Los Conquistadors, I noticed that most of the Third World brothers and sisters were moving in to break up the fight. During the scuffle, I didn't see any one get "suckered" by a punch. All of the "folks" exhibited exemplary behavior and the disturbance was quelled.

Finally, GQ brought home the bacon. Many of you know how hard it is to win the Intramural Basketball Championship. Teams always have to play against the opposing team and the two referees; Teams have to worry about player's elegibility and rules which are vaguely worded but which always seems to work against "US"; and teams have always had to beat a "good" frat team. Well GQ put it all together. They played well as a team and they won in spite of all the elements. From the Third World community, "Congratulations" to all of you. We'll see in the Southwest outdoor basketball tournament.

The Coach

Gospel and Dance Honors King

By MARLENE DUNCAN
and GREGORY "SLIM" BAXTER
Black Affairs Staff

As part of Martin Luther King Week a special event was presented at the Student Union Ballroom by the Third Baptist Church Sanctuary Choir, under directress Mrs. Josephine Fuller, and The Frank Hatchet Dance Company, both of Springfield Massachusetts. The first part of the April 2 performance consisted of nine selections by the choir. The most touching of these were "Amazing Grace," "Hush," "Somebody's Calling My Name," "Soon I Will Be Done With The Troubles Of This World," and "Jesus Is The Best Thing That Ever Happened To Me." The soloists convinced me that they were not singing from their lips but from their hearts, I felt the presence of God as they moaned the second verse of "Hush." After spending 12 hours on Electrical and Computer Engineering 411 I can truly say that this was just what I needed for it left my soul comforted and my mind at peace.

The Frank Hatchett Dance Company delighted the audience with a very lucid and creative performance. The youths exemplified the natural rhythmic movements which are inherit of our people. The smooth, coordinated and expressive motions produced a very enjoyable evening. The Company consisting of the Junior Pro's ages 11 to 14 and the larger ensemble ages 15 to 19 had incorporated the choreography of contemporary black music. The performance of "The Motherland" consisted of some of the accents of traditional African heritage. Steven Boyd, a most promising and inspiring performer led the dance as the noted witch doctor with straw hair and on stilts! The ensemble congregated at his feet and gave to him their praises. This composition is known as the Dunham technique, named after its choreographer who had composed it after her travels throughout Africa and the Carribean. It was an extraordinary performance followed by exhibitions of floor exercises, balance and coordination.

A section to the show was dedicated to Martin Luther King Jr. "The drum major for justice," cause everyone knows that it is Martin Luther King Jr. Week at UMass, placing the section into a biblical context, then portrayed King as Moses and danced to "Roll me through the rushes just like Moses."

Another dedication was made to three great black musicians, Minnie Riperton, Donny Hathaway and Van Mccoy, here the dancers dressed in very serene light blue costumes. The grace and charm of the dancers to "De JaVu," "Never Going To Stop Loving You," and "Is It Still Good To Ya," is beyond definition the warmth love and talent which was displayed was an inspiration as to what the future of our youth holds. We sincerely hope that they will return to our campus in the near future.

New Visions, Voices, Spirits

Editors Note -: This is the first of a two part series on the birth of the DRUM magazine. The second part will appear in Black Affairs next Wednesday.

Editors of Drum magazine: Carl E. Yates (left) and Marlene Duncan (right)

Genesis

we have become a billion-billion things
we have become heartbeats...
whose rhythm runs to the right hand of God...

revelation...

Happening right now within us a billion-billion life processes are going on—cells are living and dying and living and dying and dying and living. A billion-billion heartbeats are taking place moving us from birth to death to re-birth. While a billion-billion thoughts, images and ideas about the cultures and civilizations we've built and are building race through our minds. We are the billion-billion things of our African experiences that have happened in the lifetime of the Earth. We are also about the billion-billion realities that we've experienced since being brought (kidnapped) here to america's shores. It is nameless, countless and endless all the things we are. And let us not forget the billion-billion things that we are and of God's creating, making us inseparable from the natural order of the galaxy—like the earth and the billion-billion things she provides to sustain us.

In my heart and mind, Drum, too, is a billion-billion things. It is much more than ink and paper, art and photographs, stories and articles. Drum is an extension of ourselves, who we are/were/will be. Drum is a reflection of our billion-billioness.

rebirth...

...blood and mind are one
with the billion-billion things of earth and heaven
we have become...forever

Carl E. Yates Editor, Drum

Ebony Dream

When I was a child we had to go to church. The parochial school system of education makes it clear that "churchin' " and "learnin' " are, to their way of thinking, inextricably bound together. To cut down on the sheer boredom of experience, my schoolmate and I used to spell out, letter by letter, secret code messages on each other's hand - usually outrageous or forbidden mind messages guaranteed to bring on uncontrollable and side splitting laughter. Since I was less restrained and more giggle-proned than my friend, she frequently had the pleasure of withnessing the demise of my behind as punishment for my "coarse and vulgar outburst in the house of the Lord." I could never quite manage to feel guilty because I always suspected that God loved laughter more than He loved tears.

Our fledging attempt at conceiveing and developing an imaginative and suitable method of communicating with a restrained and prison-like context was likely the most creative thing I'd ever done.

A decade ago, in 1969, was for me like going back to church. The university as the new context was different, yet the culturally alien and overwhelming environment was, it seemed, following me around. Communication was still the greatest need among people of color and out of this experience DRUM magazine was born. It was imaginative. It was suitable.

Like the instrument from which it derives it's name DRUM was, and is, a silent, pulsating, and rhytmic beating of the hearts—a call between people. Ideally it should be a real drum, since this is how our Nubian ancestors exchanged ideas and spread the news of the day. No need to write it down. It was too important to commit to paper. Its vitality remains alive, both in the griot and our DRUM. They are two of the most formidable weapons we have against the anonymity and alienation of Western Society.

[To be continued next week]

Robin C. Smith

Announcements

Afrik-Am

There will be an Afrik-Am meeting on Tuesday April 8, 5:30 p.m. at the New Africa House - Rm. 304. It is crucial for members of the black community to attend. It is a meeting to discuss events such as concerts, picnics and community award ceremonies that we have planned for the semester. Please come on down so that we can find out what acivities you are interested in. for more information, call Segun at 546-7690.

Course proposals

The Malcolm X Center in Southwest is now accepting course proposals for the fall and spring of 1980-81. We encourage the submission of proposals concerning third world issues an.l other topics of interest. Instructors are paid $900.00 per course. Resumes must be included.

Course proposal forms can be picked up from the Southwest office of Academic Affairs John Adams RM. NO. 2. All proposals must be submitted to the Malcolm X Cneter no later than April 7, 1980.

For more information call Derek Davis at 545-3600 or at the Malcolm X Center at 545-2819 between 1 pm and 11 pm on weekdays.

Financial aid

All Students should send their 1980-81 Financial Aid Forms immediately to the College Scholarship sevice for priority consideration. There is no guarantee of available funds for late applicants.

SUMMER JOBS

The Summer Conference Housing Office is now hiring students for temporary summer positions as desk clerks, housekeepers, and student supervisors.

There are limited full and part-time openings, all shifts plus weekends.

Applications may be picked up in the University Conference Services Office, Room 918 of the Campus Center.

Deadline for return of applications is 5:00 p.m., Friday, April 18, 1980.

Work study students will be given priority. We are an equal opportunity employer. Women and minorities and encouraged to apply.

Top of the Campus presents
ED VADAS
Fri., April 4th

TOC sticker and valid ID required to purchase alcohol

Editorial/Opinion

I hear you knocking...

Let us pray:

Jimmy Carter, who art incumbent, hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom's done-for if it should come that Ron Reagan ever takes office. Give us this day our daily press release and forgive us our fickleness as we forgive you for ficklesness against us. Lead us not into more trouble and deliver us from Reagan, through Christ our Lord. Amen.

BILL HALLISEY

The day Ronald Reagan wins the Republican nomination will be a cold day in hell—so I always thought. Underworld sources are reporting unseasonably cold weather and it looks like the River Styx may soon be safe for ice skating.

Reagan was, and still is, a second rate actor. After campaigning as long as he had he couldn't help but master the lines. The problem is, the script has changed, but Ronny doesn't know this and neither do the people who vote for him.

Running out of oil? "Drill more wells," says Reagan. Trouble overseas? "Send the Marines," says Reagan, "Build more tanks." Got a problem with nukes? "Ya," says Reagan, "not enough of 'em." Trouble with the economy? "Balance the budget," says Reagan, "Take the economy away from Big Business and give it back to the people!" Yaaaaa! Clap, clap, clap, etc.

It's just what all those middle-aged diehard Republicans want to hear. Reagan represents a return to the good old days, the days when men were men and cars were over-sized; when thermostats were high and prices were low. "Sacrifice?" they cry, "Lower the standard of living? My God, what did we do to deserve this? That Carter fellow has some nerve!"

Jimmy Carter is acceptable. After four years in the White House, he has painfully shed the naivete which Reagan so profusely exudes. We learn by our mistakes, right? Jimmy has made about all there are to make. He must have a relatively clear picture of reality by now. At least he knows we can't solve today's problems with yesterday's solutions.

Ronald, remember, is an actor, not a statesman. He campaigns well because he's well rehearsed. But he's never played a president before and if he's ever elected you can bet he'll bungle his lines just like he did when he first tried to play the role of a candidate many, many years ago.

Face it all you Kennedy fans, your man hasn't got a chance. I'm not saying that he doesn't deserve one, but we've got to be realistic. Same goes for you Anderson people. Forget about trying to get your man in. It's time to switch our prerogatives. Defense! Defense! The problem is not how to get Jimmy out, it's how to keep Ronald from getting in.

Bill Hallisey is a Collegian columnist.

Letters

The joke's on who?

to the Collegian Board of Editors:

I am writing in response to the letter printed recently which criticized the Collegian's April Fool's Day issue. The letter, written by the SCERA Anti-Racism Team, denounced the issue as being "racist, sexist, disgustingly inhumane, insensitive and infantile"; deserving your resignations.

Is this their own Aprils Fool's Day joke? If it is, then the joke is on them because they missed it by one day. On April 2, their letter can only make one sad; sad that some people can be so absolutely humorless.

The April Fool's Day issue is a tradition at UMass. It's a fun issue. It's the one issue each year that one can read with a smile. It is not written seriously and therefore is not intended to be taken seriously. Serious subjects, such as the start of Martin Luther King Week, would only suffer by their inclusion in the April Fool's Day issue.

That the SCERA Anti-Racism Team, headed by Ms. Wexler with her two-hundred dollar a week student position, would spend twice as much space condemning you than the Black Affairs staff devoted to announcing the start of Martin Luther King Week is no joke.

Timothy G. Condon
Amherst

Enough is enough

To the Editor:

To the people from SCERA who protested the April Fool's issue of the Collegian*—you're right. Enough is enough. I've had enough of those members of SCERA who seem to think they own the campus. I've had enough of people who try to monopolized every issue. The members of the anti-racism team have a lot of gall to be making demands of the* Collegian. The Collegian is every student's newspaper and, so far, the general reaction to the April Fool's issue is favorable. In my opinion your letter was infantile and offensive. The world will not crumble if the Collegian takes a day off to make bad jokes. Reporting continued as usual on Tuesday and most of Martin Luther King week was yet to come. In your concluding paragraph you implied that you would try your damnedest to discredit the current editors so that they would be forced to resign. Now there's a brilliant idea. Let's bring on censorship and oppression of the media now! Ya!

Ken Marquis
John Adams

Christian offended

Dear Collegian:

I am a member of a minority on this campus. This minority is that of Christians who believe in the Bible and in Jesus Christ as the Son of God, and we try to live our lives in accordance with His teachings. The Collegian, as the official newspaper of the University of Massachusetts, has a duty to report the news of the campus impartially and without offending any member of a minority. I am offended by the language and immoral attitude of many of the articles that appear in the Collegian. I find it hard to believe, that in a school this large, there is so little journalistic talent. Are all the journalism majors too ashamed to write for the Collegian, or is this the best we have got?

Monday's edition, even granting that it was the April Fool's edition, was in such poor taste that I was totally disgusted. has our mentality reached the point, that the only things we find humorous, are those that are gross and perverse? It does take much more imagination and intelligence to be funny without resorting to shock value, but I feel the effort is worth it. At the very least, you don't risk offending the several hundred members of the Christian minority.

Monday's article associating Bob Dylan with the CARP people, made my heart stop. Bob Dylan's new album does not just have religious overtones, it is a straightforward testimony to his faith in Jesus Christ. It took a lot of guts for Dylan to produce this album, and it is obvious from the album that his faith is real and not a cop-out. What is particularly ironic about the article, is that one of the songs on Dylan's new album, Slow Train Coming, tells all of us that "you've got to serve somebody. It may be the devil, or it may be the Lord, but you've got to serve somebody." All of us, whether we are members of CARP, or members of the Christian church, or just members of the student body, are serving either the devil or God, there is no in-between. We shouldn't think that because we are not participants in the CARP movement, we stand in a better position before God. As Romans 3:23 says: "Yes, all have sinned; all fall short of God's glorious ideal." God does not judge us on the degree of our sin, the fact that we have ever sinned is enough to condemn us. Thank God that Romans 3:24 says: "Yet now God declares us 'not guilty' of offending him if we trust in Jesus Christ, who in his kindness freely takes away our sins."

I appeal to the staff of the Collegian to consider the rights of the Christian minority on this campus and clean up their act. The Collegian must serve the student body, but beyond that, who will you serve?

Lee Ann Avery
Northampton

Caps and gowns

Dear Editor:

Thursday, March 3, 1980, the Collegian ran a column by Ms. Tracey Ann Eastman entitled "Before you don your caps and gowns..." which included some inaccuracies regarding the University's ordering of caps and gowns for Commencement.

For the record, the University has not in the past (class of '79 included), nor will be this year ordering senior caps and gowns to be used for the Commencement ceremony from the firm in question, Cotrell and Leonard.

The University, through the Massachusetts Higher Education Consortium Contract (MHEC) is presently doing business with a Massachusetts company. All senior and Stockbridge caps and gowns, all Ph.D., Ed.D., and Honorary hoods have been ordered through the MHEC contracts. These contracts are available to all public institutions across the state. The MHEC represents the combined buying power of all public institutions and results in substantial savings for individual member institutions.

The University Store will rent caps and gowns to faculty members from two companies, the Massachusetts concern and Cotrell and Leonard, were made well in advance of any mangement/union conflicts. It will be up to individual faculty members to decide from which company to rent. Because of the pre-arrangement, the Cotrell and Leonard rental prices will be lower than the present rate for the Massachusetts concern.

Thank you for your cooperation in printing the above corrected information concerning the University's purchase of caps and gowns for Commencement '80.

Cheryl Walsh, Assistant Director
Public Affairs Chairperson
Commencement Planning Committee
Bill Simpson
University Store
Commencement Planning Committee

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian

STEPHEN B. KLEIN, Editor-in-Chief; JULIE EAGLE, Managing Editor; FREDERIC M. KEILLOR, Business Manager; KEN GRANDPRE, Advertising manager; JACK GALLAGHER, News Editor; ROB BURBANK, Executive Editor; LISA CAPONE, Women's Editor; RENEE MOBLEY, Black Affairs Editor; JIM MAHONEY, Photo Editor; SUZETTE COURTMANCHE, Graphics Manager; JIM DEGNIM, Sports Editor; JIM MORAN, Fine Arts Editor.

Associate Editors

Jeff Baker, Fran Basche, Ellen Davis, Carolyn Mooney, Rob Stein, Associate Managing Editors; Ed Levine, Brian O'Connell, Associate News Editors; Eric Janszen, Associate Executive Editor; Joan Daly, Katie Kress, Assistant advertising managers, Debbie Wallace, Associate Women's Editor; Marcia Hospedales, Associate Black Affairs Editor; Peter Berry, Associate Photo Editor; Abbe Bjorklund, Associate Fine Arts Editor; Jane Wolfson, Associate Sports Editor; Jeffrey Bianchi, Associate Graphics Manager.

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administrators read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the view of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, cartoons and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian is a member of the Associated Press. Publication of their material does not constitute endorsement.

The Collegian strives to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for all advertisers lies with the individual advertisers.

USPS 333 220

Arts & Club Calendar

Five College Arts

Friday, April 4
"Applause", see April 3.
Michael Gregory-Jackson, solo guitar recital, presented by duke Ellington Music Series, 8 p.m., Cape Cod Longe, SU.
Film: "I Will Fight No More Forever", sponsored by Commuter Collective Classic Film Series, 8 p.m., Thompson 102.
Film: "Cool Hand Luke", starring Paul Newman, Amherst College, Merrill 1, 99c adm.
Play: "The Cradle Will Rock", Fayerweather Theatre, 8 p.m., Amherst College.
"The Small Woodcut Passion", Albrecht Durer print exhibition at Smith College Museum of Art, through May 4.
Play: "Vinegar Tom", Smith College Theatre Department, Hallie Flanagan Studio Theatre, Smith College, 8 p.m.

Saturday, April 5
"The Cradle Will Rock", see April 4.
"Cool Hand Luke", see April 4.
"Vinegar Tom", see April 4.

Sunday, April 6
"The Cradle Will Rock", see April 4.
"Cool Hand Luke", see April 4.
"Back for an Easter Sunday Afternoon", 3 p.m., Smith College Art Museum.

Monday, April 7
Exhibits opening, SU Gallery: Group show of bronze sculpture and welded metal pieces by students for UMass; J. Zulle and M. Holmes, B.F.A. exhibit of 2-D freeforms derived from nature; now through April 11.

Exhibit: photography by Alan Liles, Hampden Gallery, through April 11. Open reception from 4-8 p.m.
Concert of music and dance from the Renaissance court of Mantua at Buckley Recital Hall, Amherst College, 8:15 p.m. Free.

Tuesday, April 8
Lecture: Professor Oleg Grabar of Harvard University, "The Demotte Shah-nama; Visual Thinking in the 14th Century", 8 p.m., Gamble Auditorium, Mt. Holyoke College. Coincides with exhibition "The Garden in the Arts of Islam", Mount Holyoke College Art Museum, now through April 27.

Wednesday, April 9
Lecture: "Daughter of Revolution or, The Lady with the Squint: Iconography of a Revolutionary Symbol", George B. Clarke, 8 p.m., Graham Hall, Smith College.

Five College Baroque Orchestra, Bach and Handel, Sage Hall, Smith College, 8 p.m., free.

Film: "Three Faces of Eve", Forbes Library, Northampton, 7 p.m., free.

"Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme", presented by French Department of Mt. Holyoke, 8 p.m., $1, Chapin Auditorium, Harry E. Woolley Hall, Mt. Holyoke.

Club Listings

Blue Wall, Campus Center—"Allan Estes Band", April 11; Happy Hour Mon-Fri. 3-6 p.m. "Pego a Go-Go" every Tues. night, new wave and reggae music with Pete.

Carbur's, Elmwood Shops, Rte. 9, Hadley—Happy Hour Mon-Fri. 4-6 p.m., 9-11. Double drinks and cheese and crackers during all happy hours and chicken and wings daily 4-6.

Creedo's Coffeehouse, 111 Pleasant St., Northampton. Tonight—Harry Bosco.

Flat St. Club, Flat St., Brattleboro, Vt.—Aprl 4-5, "Willow".

Hot-L Warren, South Deerfield—Drinks served daily.

Hungry-U, 55 University Dr., Amherst—Thurs. nights 5-midnight—pitchers of beer half price with purchase of large pizza.

Mike's Westview, Old Sunderland Rd., No. Amherst—Fri. night Happy Hour, free buffet.

Plumbley's, 30 Boltwood Walk, Amherst—Happy Hour Mon-Sat. 2-7 p.m. Live entertainment by Katie Jay Sat. night.

Poor Richard's, 10 Belchertown Rd., Amherst—Disco and drinks.

The Pub, 15 East Pleasant St., Amherst—Wed. is "Pub Mug Night" and Thurs. is "Two for One Night" with live entertainment by Two Way Street on Fri. and Sat. Disco with Casey Sun. and Jim Plunkett Wed. $1 cover.

Quonset Disco, 239 Russell St., Hadley—Wed. free dance lessons. Thurs-Sat. disco. $1 cover.

Rahar's, 70 Old South St., Northampton—open at 6 p.m. April 14, Loose Caboose; April 5-6, Hooligan; Happy Hours Mon.-Fri., 4-8 p.m.; Sat.-Mon. free pool and 35 cent Miller draft, half-price drinks.

Rusty Scupper, 539 Belchertown Rd.

Rusty Nail, Hadley Rd., Sunderland—Friday, Rick Derringer and Robin Lane and the Chartbuster; Saturday, "Lazarus"; Sunday, "Paradise Rhythm Shoes".

Second Fret Coffeehouse, 21 Pleasant St., Northampton—Friday, Eric Shoenberg, guitar.

THE PAGE ONE photo of protestors at Whitmore yesterday opposing cutting back of 'Que Tal Amigos' on WFCR was taken by Bobby Davis.

SALE!
ONE DAY ONLY...
SATURDAY, APRIL 5

100% COTTON
SHIRTS
If Perfect... $12-$18
Almost Perfect...
$2.50 each 3 for $6.50
FACES
A Store-full of Ideas
Downtown Amherst /Open 10-6, Mon.-Sat.

4th annual
BEALIX ARTS BALL
Saturday April 5 1980
9 P.M. - 1 A.M.
Student Union Ballroom
cash bar · munchies
dancing
music by Tom Aldrow &
PARADISE RHYTHM SHOES
3.00 students 5.00 non-students
Sponsored by the University of Massachusetts Art Club

BLUE WALL
campus center at umass
Fri. April 4 & Sat. April 5

MARTIAN HIGHWAY
$1 cover charge
Fri. April 11
The New
ALLEN ESTES BAND
Sat. April 12

ROBIN LANE &
THE CHARTBUSTERS
ALL AGES WELCOME
TOC sticker and valid ID required to purchase alcohol
in association with UPC
Productions info: call 545-2892

20% OFF
EYEGLASSES
Bring in your student ID card
All other discounts do not apply.
Offer expires April 15, 1980.
PEARLE vision center
A SEARLE COMPANY
HADLEY
Rte. 9 at Russell Street
in front of Mountain Farm Mall
Tel. 584-7763
Open Tues. 10-6, Wed., Thurs., Fri. 10-9
Sat. 10-5, closed Mon.
For other locations call toll-free 800 331-1000.
© 1980 Searle Optical Inc., Dallas, Texas USA

If you haven't tried a chocolate chip cookie from Entenmann's
SINCE 1898
you haven't had the
chocolate chip cookie
don't get caught short this weekend, stock up today. Available at
in the campus center at umass

'Little Darlings' — a farce

By ROBERT B. CARGILL
Collegian Staff

Little Darlings is a cutesy bit of celluloid starring Kristy McNichol and Tatum O'Neal as two young virgin campgoers in a contest to see who can lose her virginity first.

Repeatedly trite in nature, Little Darlings and its director, Ron Maxwell, present us with two darling young actesses in an utterly ridiculous film. Little Darlings is a farce, an outright insult to the movie-going public. It is mass media manipulation to the fullest extent.

Hollywood is merely capitalizing on an alluring theme, a bland plot, and the casting of two presumably innocent actresses engrossed in flourishing acting careers at such a tender age.

On top of all that, shrewd calculating Paramount put out a suggestive ad campaign declaring, "Whoever loses her virginity first — wins."

But basically, Little Darlings' inanity lies in its shallow handling of an otherwise fairly significant subject. Sexual initiation is a difficult stage for all teenagers and often proves catalytic for a myriad of emotions. Yet "Little Darlings" exudes no substantial emotional agitation, only an unaffecting, tearful, "I'm a loser," from Angel (Kristy McNichol) after she's "become a woman."

The story is simple. Angel, a tough street kid and Ferris, (Tatum O'Neal) a wealthy sophisticate, go off to summer camp and are easily persuaded to seek out "womanhood" by one of the more mature campers. Angel chooses an aggressive boy, Randy (Matt Dillon) from the boys' camp across the pond for her partner and Ferris goes after an older camp counselor, played by Armand Assante. In order to save face, Ferris says she did when she actually didn't, and Angle, due to humility, says she didn't when she really did. Thus, Ferris wins the bet.

Eventually though, the truth comes out in the film's sole scene of redemption, when Angel and Ferris admit to each other what they honestly did and didn't do. The point is simple; both were rather embarrassed in their first sexual adventures, as no one, besides they and their partners, finds out the facts.

Personally, I might question the film's "R" rating as there are no sex scenes nor rude vulgarity, only a handful of profanities which certainly aren't offensive. Again, perhaps its "R" rating was yet another contrived tactic in luring a susceptible, movie-going public, into the theaters. Congruent with the rest of its promotion, I certainly wouldn't doubt that.

In all due practicality, Little Darlings and its juvenescence might work better on television, where the "lowest common denominator" approach (ie. mass appeal at all costs) is utilized in full.

Sure, Kristy McNichol and Tatum O'Neal are "darlings" on the screen, but are their talents as "little" as this picture suggests?

Little Darlings is now playing at the Hampshire Mall cinemas.

Notices

You can learn to breath with more depth and awareness at a special seminar on breathing being sponsored by the T'ai Chi Club on April 8 at 7:30 p.m. It will be held in room 905 of the Campus Center. There is a $5. fee. For information call 549-6362.

There will be a free showing of the film "Consciousness and Society," April 10 at 7:30 p.m. It will be shown in room 803 of the Campus Center.

1 Free KODAK Color Print.
4 for the price of 3.
Share the good times in pictures with your friends and family. Just bring in this coupon with your favorite Kodacolor film negatives, and we'll have Kodak make four same size color prints for the price of three. You'll get one FREE! Stop in today for complete details. Offer ends May 14, 1980.
in the campus center at umass
the UNIVERSITY STORE
VALUABLE COUPON

COLOR PROCESSING by Kodak

PIZZARAMA
355 College St.
PIZZAS GRINDERS SPAGHETTI
NEW GREEK SALAD $2.00

M-Th 11-1:30 AM
F-Sun 11-2:30 AM
FREE DELIVERY
Phone 253-3808 256-0115

UPC & UMass Arts Council
presents
UTOPIA
with todd rundgren roger powell
kasim sulton john wilcox
Tuesday, April 29, 8 pm - Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
Tickets 8.00, 7.50, 7.00 - UMass 9.00, 8.50, 8.00 - Gen. Public
At: TIX, Union Records (UMass) Platterpus (Northampton)
FAC Box Office for info call 545-2892
No Bottles, Cans or Alcohol Please

STADIUM
U. Mass. Amherst
KEGS—
BEER—
LIQUORS
WINE—
LIQUORS

Tuborg	6.90 case	Wiedbemann Beer	1.40 6 pk 4.99 case
Miller	7.99 case	Carlo Rossi's 4 L.	4.95
Budweiser	7.99 case	Seagram 7	11.99 1.75 L 5.69 750 ml
Molson	2.75 6 pack 10.49 case	S.S. Pierce Vodka	7.99 1.5 L.
O'Keefe Ale	9.90 cs.	Gordon Vodka	8.99 1.75 L.
Gordon Gin	10.75 1.75 L.	Cuerro Golo Tequila	6.89 750 ml.
Dragone Lambrusco	1.5 L 2.99	Kamora Coffee Liquor	6.69 750 ml ½

Catch Our Weekly Specials
500—Parking places
Soda—Ice—Munchies
Save money—Save gas—Save time
10 a.m. — 253-5595 — til 11 p.m.

Collegian Classifieds

To place a Collegian Classified
•Come to Collegian Office CC 113
•8:45 to 3:45 Mon-Fri
•Classified deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day

Collegian Classified Rates
•15c per word
•Student rate 10c per word
•Cash in advance
•5 consecutive days 5 % discount
•Phone number FREE

AUDIO

SONY one point stereo eletret condenser microphone excellent cond. $25 253-3225

Quanta 500 turntable belt drive strabe electronic pitch ADC Cart $85 546-9410

AUTO FOR SALE

'73 Toyota Mark II Wagn 73000 mi excellent shape, yours for $1980 phone Kittye 549-5412

1970 Olds eng & trans excellent condition body good have to sell moving to city 400.00 or BO call 546-1441 Mon-Thur after 9:00 PM

1970 Chrysler T & C stawgn good cond call 665-3625 eves

1972 Volkswagon Van excellent condition 549-2636

1971 Dodge Polara $300 549-0915

1969 Chrysler Newport with 1973 Duster engine, excellent condition $600 Kevin 549-5969

74 Camero $1200 or BO 546-5382

1970 Chevy Station Wagon runs well burns no oil takes 4x8 plywood sheet $350 call Susan 256-8713

ENTERTAINMENT

Soundsystem for Hire perfect for bands, discos, coffeehouses Rick 584-4105

Benb & Gerald Book now on sale at For the Record, Faces and Mainstreet Record Thornes Supermarket

MF Sound Pro soundsystem from $40 6-8777 6-8853

Dock-Risco The rock and disco DJ. If you are looking for diverse, musical entertainment for your next party or formal , call the Doc at 549-4199

FOR RENT

Rooms in So. Deerfield 665-7093

Attractive, reasonable summer rental for 4 people. One minute to SBA 549-1254

4 bdrm summer ranch house available May 21st $400/month, 10 min from campus call 549-5682

Profs London Home good area close center sleeps 9 July/Aug $200 P.W. 253-5421/50420

2 bedroom Colonial Village Apt. Available June 1. Call 253-2750

FOR SALE

Fisher Integrated Component System MC3020 cassette/turntable excellent condition call Seth at 546-6849

Guild Guitar with Amp asking $200 Rick 546-7027

76 Dodge Charger SE, small V8 automatic, air, power windows, excellent condition $1900 546-1029

1969 Volvo engine $150 four speed transmission $50 549-0915

Indash or underdash AM-FM 8 track $40 G.E. 40 ch. C.B. with P.A. $40 Installation available Steve 6-1403

10-speed bike Harris 253-3877

Flute—Gemeihardt open hole, M3, excel cond $300 6-5723

Designer Backgammon Board $40 or BO 6-5723

Two Tires B78-14 Goodyear 4600 miles $45.00 call 256-8435

Quality Concert Photos Kinks, Phyllis Hyman, Judy Collins, Buddy Rich, Garcia, Patti Smith, Lene, Hall & Oates, Bonnie, Fonda, Derringer, Taj, Metheny MW 4:00-4:45 TuTh 12:30-1:30 Index Office Rm 103 CC $4.00 per 8x10 B & W

Girls Rollerskates 6½ or 7 worn once, white leather with blue stripes $35 546-5382

Twin Reverb with Altecs must sell $450 or BO 6-8777 6-8853

FOUND

Found-Brown plastic rimmed glasses in Northeast quad. Call Jeff 6-3210

Silver Frame Glasses brown case found by Knowlton Dorm before vacation. Call Collegian 545-3500 or come by.

HELP WANTED

Summer work, $1,210.00 monthly, travel Car owner preferred but not required. Send SASE Box 213, Amherst MA 01004

Beat the Squeeze! Get your summer work now. If you'll work hard to make $249 per week, call 253-2587

One (1) Secretary/Receptionist position available at the UMass Legal Services Office. Duties include: Legal typing, photocopying, reception, filing, assisting client referral, bookkeeping, ability to deal with people in a self-directed work environment. Sensitivity to the diverse student community is a must. Typing 60 wpm Accurate, experience preferred. 30 hours per week, part-time, $4.25 per hour. Bring resume to Personnel Office, Room 167, Whitmore Building, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA Affirmative Action Employer

Houseparents needed to manage American Youth Hostel Hampshire College June 1-August 25 free apartment plus small earnings send resume to Summer Programs, Hampshire College

INSTRUCTION

Jewish Community of Amherst needs both Hebrew and Jewish Studies teachers for September 1980 call 549-0223 for application. Experience preferred

Math Tutor all levels 253-7830

LOST

Lost Black Lab named Astro Always seen around campus. If anyone has any info please call Scott at anytime 549-6219. Wears blue collar, keep your eyes open friends.

If you picked up the wrong coat at Phi Sig Sat night I have yours 6-7958

Lost a gold opal bracelet very sentimental rewaard call 546-4816

MOTORCYCLES

450 Honda 1970 11K miles new sprockets, chain, tires etc. 323-7178

PERSONALS

Pete Jacke call Macky 665-7923

Don't graduate without doing it! Get your yearbook portrait taken--call 545-2874 for your appointment. Don't be left out of the 1980 Index

Go in "SAYNE", April 10 Thursday

NEED CASH? I will buy your used record albums. 6-7937

Tired of Anti-Nuke demonstrations? Go Nuclear! If interested call Ty 546-8924

Any interested television meteorologists call Doctor Video 6-5706

Stu—COINS 122 is easier to do, because MONDAYS and FRIDAYS are fun with YOU!—Joanne

Wish me luck—D. Cassidy Minuteman Q.B. Fall 1980 546-6572 keep trying

Gain Business Exper. in Acctg, Mkt, credit and mgt. Apply for a volunteer position at the Student Credit Union

Patty Stirling Happy Good Friday, Happy Easter, Happy Spring, Happy Life! You're special to me! Love you, Amira (Charlotte, too!)

To Felix & Sue I give thanks to you: chewed ic-n-cakes & burned-out steaks our tongue depressants & whoop in redidence! Presters Incorporated Shakespeares been sedated

Steve T. Have a Happy 20th. Go Wild—The BLOB Parties

Dee have a wonderful birthday we love ya love 348

DEE—Have a Fantabulous Birthday! You're finally legal so live it up! Just don't forget to retard! Love ya—Sue P.S. We'll find us some yet!

To the ladies of the 3rd floor Dwight Happy Belated April Fools Day—about the latest development—the last joke is on you

Grudge: Be sure to keep your back to the wall, D.M.

Congratulations ICARUS, you were great Sat night at Pierpont! You should open for Pousette-Dart! Love, your fans from the 18th

Tickle in Cashin Quit watching our windows, The Males on the 3rd

Robin—Have a great Birthday! Love, Donna

Jeffery B. Id like to announce to the world that I'm falling in love with you Estie

Scott Cunningham—You were great in Applause! I'd love to meet ya. AST

Clare vous la vous couchez avec moi ce soir?? Mickeys friend

Happy Birthday Becky B. from your sister, Libby

Dearest Rosko, Happy, Happy Egg Day. Watch out for the location of those "BIG" eggs. Love Chucklet

Cashin Dorm we love your form!!! Love McNamara Steed Seekers

Markus Spagettiheadus Makeus meus yourus birthdayus cakesandus eatús meus tonightus - Loveus Beavus

Michael Happy Birthday! You aren't going out with an older woman anymore at least this wasn't early love Cindy

Happy Birthday Sharon (queer girl) To the most wonderful, beautiful, sexiest woman in the world. Hope you get plucked! PTK

Gay Disco—Friday, 4 April 9-1, sponsored by People's Gay Alliance. Everyone Welcome. $2 admission

Deb R—Happy Birthday! Love, Cindy

Susan B. Happy 21st Birthday! Love Nancy May and Edee Rock

Henry Muddywaters Duke of Dak—you are definitely one pip in a million! Next time I hope you remember the Irish Spring. . .be really good and i'll let you clone stroke my cicatrix. Lustfully (as ever) your temptress P.S. Happy day #8036!

Slim Whitman move over! Captain K. is on his way!

ROOMATE WANTED

One room in 3 bedroom Townhouse on 2 bus routes, quiet, Bay State phone, HBO, furnished--prefer non-smoker, serious student, very reasonable call 549-5192

ROOM WANTED

Female student and well mannered dogs need a room or an apartment on UMass bus rte for the Fall Call Rhonda 546-6956

Students are looking for a 2 bedroom apartment for the next Fall and/or Spring Paul 546-4609

SERVICES

Attorney Jason R. Rosenthal Legal Representation. Income Tax Preparation. Days 584-4285 Evenings 253-7617

TYping experienced typist, reasonable rates 256-6360/586-1464

Lafler T-shirts great silkscreening at great prices slick graphics provided 549-1018

SLIM WHITMAN

Feel all the energy, aura and excitement of a real Slim Whitman Concert. T-shirts at Collegian office 113 Campus Center—for that real preppie look--Amherst College EAT YOUR UNA PALOMA BLANCA'S OUT

TO SUBLET

Northwood 2 bedroom furnished AC DW pool garden plots bus-line June 1-August 31 $150 per month call 665-4850 after 4 pm

2 bedroom apt Presidential Apts summer sublet-option to renew-in fall Call Robin or Jennifer 549-6382

Summer sublet Townehouse Apts $200.00 549-6656 furnished

For Summer Fall option own room 78.75 plus utilities call 253-5206

2 bedroom apt furnished on bus route swimming pool call 253-5714

3 bedroom apt Puffton Village 300/mo furnished near bus, pool, tennis courts call nights 549-3765 6/1-8/31

Beautiful three bedroom Rolling Green apt for the summer. Patio, A/C. pool, on bus route (May 1 optional) call anytime 546-9919 rent negotiable

2 bedroom furnished apt Sunderland bus route Fall option 665-4315

Townhouse Apt #44 for summer 549-6039

1 bdrm apt—nice location near Puffer's Fall option furnished 549-6899

1 bedroom in 3 bedroom Puffton apart June-Aug part. furnished 2 baths air cond tennis pool bus route Rent negotiable 549-5184

2 bdrm Apt avail Predidential Area June-Aug on bus route 549-6340

2 bedrrom Brandywine for Summer w/Fall option, 2 bus routes, A/C, pool, balcony 549-3856

Cliffside Apartments Sunderland summer sublet 2 bedroom on bus route avail June 1-Aug 31 call 665-7977

3 bdrm Townehouse summer sublet, Fall opt. call Karen 549-6755

3 bedroom Puffton Apt June-August w/option $340/mo call 549-6487

To sublet for summer w/option for Fall 4 bdrm Swiss Village on bus route 440/mo all util rent negotiable call 253-7975

Puffers Pond 2 bedroom apt June 1-August 1 call 549-4055

Own room in 2 bedroom townehouse in Southwood Apts in South Amherst. Furnished, on bus toute, dishwasher, only $90 per month for summer Call 256-8947 any time

2 bdrm luxury furn apt Cliffside Sunderland rent negotiable 665-4004

$90.00/ &elec. N. Amh bus rt., 1 rm in apt for summer, non-smoker, 549-1540 (late)

4-bdrm Sum &/or Fall 440 w/every 256-6447

Soutwood Apt 1 bedroom avail 111.65 available 6/1 253-5201

4 Bedroom/2 bath apt $320/month 1½ miles from camp. on bus route May 25-Sept 1 253-5570 after 5

Summer sublease 1 bdrm in 2 bdrm Sunderland Apt $100/mo 665-4373

Southwood Townehouse with option for Fall tennis swimming call early AM late PM 253-7015 best offer

2 bedroom Brittany Manor 300.00/mo Jun-Aug call 253-5128 after 6

Townehouse Apt. 2 bdrm rent negotiable 549-1325

2 bedroom on bus route completely furnished, all utilities included, pool, tennis, dishwasher $195 call 665-2131

2 bedrm Townehouse Apt in S. Amherst to sublet for Summer Fall option rent neg call 256-8650

4 bdr on bus route summer sublet w/Fall option clean quiet negotiable terms 256-0778

One bedroom Colonial Village option to renew Fall furnished or unfurnished available May 21 253-7713

2 bedroom Puffton Village June 1 to August 31 evenings 549-6420

4 bedroom all utilities included with option for Fall lease call 253-7571

2 bedroom Puffton Apt, 2 bath, air conditioned, tennis courts, pool, fully furnished June-Aug $230 549-4130

2 bdrm apt to sublet June 1 - Sept 1 Riverglade rent neg call 253-7115 pool avail

2 bedroom Brandywine apts fully furnished great deal! call 549-0128

Sublet 3 bedroom Puffton call 253-2647

1 bedroom apartment furnished, cable TV, on bus route, June-Aug $200/mon call 665-4891 after 5 pm

To sublet—June 1-August 31 2 bedroom Puffton Village 549-0455

3 bedroom apt furnished bus route in Sunderland 665-3976

Summer sublet: Large 2 bedroom Presidential apt closest to campus A/C Heat/Hot water included option to renew 549-4059

3 bedroom apt for June to Aug rent negotiable on bus route phone 253-5214

Summer sublet Fall option One bedroom on bus route $180/mo inclusive partly furnished 665-3518

WANTED

Fast immediate cash for gold-school rings-diamonds- silver Jeff anytime 527-7078 586-0180

Rock band looking for diverse singer call Tom 256-6845 549-6913

Used full Motorcycle Helmet 549-6583 Beverly

Paying cash for gold school rings Bill 549-4166

Who are Mark Curelop and Joel Brava anyway, and why are they saying those things about them?

Wheat Back Pennys 65c per 50 original Beatle Albums 584-7961 after 5

WANTED TO RENT

House wanted 4-6 bedrooms close to campus call 546-5081 or 546-5100

3-5 bedroom house wanted for June 1st and next year. Amherst or Northampton must be on bus line. Call Nina 549-0611 or Karen 584-9036

House for 1980-1981 Academic Year will summer sublet from you call early AM late PM 253-7015

Two women interested in sharing a house/apt in the Fall call Mon-Fri after 5 PM Jane/Abby 546-5677

Nuke the Whale by Danny Guidera

4 by Frank Emery

Wimpman by Evan Carlson

Bean by Kevin X. McNamara

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

Crossword

UNITED Feature Syndicate
Thursday's Puzzle Solved

ACROSS
1 Swiftness
6 Legend
10 Criticize: Slang
14 Available: 2 words
15 Macaws
16 Totem —
17 "Think pieces"
19 Sale condition: 2 words
20 Unruffled
21 Volume
23 Burial place
25 Prior to: Prefix
26 Postule
27 Mutt
29 Brunch
31 Consume
33 Ms. Merkel
34 Sword
36 Mature
40 Bulk
42 Now
44 Wan
45 Elegance
47 Decrees
49 Spanish stream
50 At a distance
52 Nuisance
53 Color
54 Ship area
57 Asian coin
59 Shatter
61 Lamb's "Dissertation on — —"
64 Most adept
67 Roster
68 Cruise ship: 2 words
70 This: Sp.
71 Water bodies
72 French school
73 British gun
74 Bungles
75 Awareness

DOWN
1 Farm tools
2 So. Amer. Indian: Var.
3 Jail-maddened
4 Spud: Slang
5 Namesakes
6 Capuchin
7 USSR sea
8 Lively dance
9 Make safe
10 Breadth
11 Fails to keep
12 Leaning
13 Untidy
18 Say again
22 Cherished
24 Drum
27 Swear: Slang
28 One
30 — — to: Preceded
32 Apex
35 Death rattles
37 Athens sight
38 Lamb's pen name
39 Gas
41 Sprite
43 Sycophant
46 Direction
48 Barns
51 Tranquillity
54 City on the Rhone
55 Palm off
56 Palate
58 Daintier
60 Rasher
62 Man's name
63 Cogwheel
65 French salts
66 Fir or pine
69 Dolt

DC Menu

Lunch
Tuna Salad on Water Roll
Turkey Divan

Basics Lunch
Tofu Salad Plate
Turkey Divan

Dinner
Barbecued Beef Cubes
Fried Cod/Tartar Sauce

Basics Dinner
Herbed Soybean Casserole
Fried Cod/Tartar Sauce

Earthfoods

Spaghetti and Sauce
with Tofu
Three Bean Soup
Rice-Bulghar
Green Salad
Carrot Cake

the SHOE BIN
capezio
187 n. pleasant st., amherst

Over 100 sold!
Una Paloma Blanca! Just what you've been waiting for!

Pierre—
here's looking at you
Kid on April 25th and 26th.
Love,
JB

Got a complaint? Don't hold it in— write a letter to the editor today!

silverscape café
"The Yellow House" 264 N. Pleasant St., Amherst 253-3447
Natural Vegetarian Food • Full Liquor •
Coffee Beans, Valley's Lowest Prices
8 mid Mon.-Sat. 12 mid Sun.

★ Women's programs

CONT. FROM PAGE 3

former organizer of 12 to 1, a working women's organization.

The turnout so far has been about ten women per session, according to Hoch. The speakers are all volunteers.

Upcoming presentations include: today, a film, "Killing Us Softly," will be shown at the Jones Library's Burnett Gallery about the use of female images to sell products and how this affects violence and negative attitudes toward women; Tuesday, April 8, Penny Schwartz, University Staff Association steward, will speak on gaining equal pay for equal work, and current issues for clericals and staff at UMass; Thursday, April 10, "Union Maids," a film about three women who help organize industrial unions in Chicago.

On Tuesday, April 15, Doris Cruz, a senior bookkeeper at UMass, will speak on issues affecting Hispanic women workers; Thursday, April 17, Leslie Sullivan, organizer for District 65—UAW, will speak on the clause against harassment recently included in a contract for 900 clericals at Boston University, and other issues of working conditions for women.

The final presentation will be in mid-April, with an evening talk and literature display by the Alliance Against Sexual Coersion from Boston outlining their work against sexual harassment on the job.

Registration is not necessary, but interested women with questions may call the Everywomen's Center at 545-0883.

Notices

'WOMEN, RACISM AND JOBS will be discussed at the Andriola room in Wiliets-Hallowell Center at Mount Holyoke College Friday at 2 p.m.

THE EVERYWOMEN'S CENTER invites interested people to a program of films on women's issues to be held in 227 Herter Hall at 7:30 on the following days: Thursday April 17; and Monday May 5. Films will deal with such subjects as women garment workers, and Black women in America. For more information and to arrangs childcare, call 5-0883.

SCHOLARSHIP AWARDS NOW AVAILABLE: The Board of Higher Education Honor scholarships have now been received from BHE and aree available to the receipients at the Bursar's Office in Whitmore.

There will be a new beginning T'HA CHI CLASS starting April 8, at 6:00 p.m. in room 202 Bartlett Hall. Come and try the first class free.

FINAL PERFORMANCE!
"APPLAUSE"
A Backstage Musical
mar. 27, 28, 29, 30 apr. 3. 4 8 p.m.
bowker auditorium, stockbridge hall
For Tickets Call 545-0783

Are you afraid to walk alone at night on campus?
FREADA KLEIN
consultant for Our Bodies Our Selves
will speak on
RAPE CULTURE
April 7 CCA 8 PM
Sponsored by SCERA Women's Issues & SASH
Sign language interpretation provided

Weekend Spring Fling
Friday and Saturday
2 for 1
Happy Hour
9:30-11:00
— All Mixed Drinks —
— Disco —
9 til 1
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

THE AMHERST DELICATESSEN

IN THE CARRIAGE SHOPS
Sandwiches · Cold Cuts
Bagels · Salads
OPEN AT 9 AM · 7 DAYS · 549-6314
NOW OPEN 'TIL
2 AM FRI & SAT
10 PM Mon-Thurs

Shrimp and Salad Bar

Enjoy a
Platter of boiled shrimp
Peel 'em and eat 'em
With Steak Out's unlimited
Salad bar.
$4.95
The Steak Out
Rt. 5 Brattleboro 257-1333
Rt. 9 Amherst 256-8557

FOUR SEASONS
Molson Golden 12 oz. btl.----------case 10.49
Miller Beer 12 oz. btl.----------case 7.99
Budweiser Beer 12 oz. cans----------case 7.99
Lucky Lager 12 oz. btl----------case 4.99
Old Crow Bourbon----------1.75 ltr. 11.99
Cossack Vodka 80 proof----------1.75 ltr. 8.99
Lancers Rose ----------750 ml 3.69
Paul Masson Rose ----------1.5 ltr. 3.99
Come visit the Valley Wine Experts for your Special Holiday Wine
Open 9 am - 11 pm
Mon. - Sat.
Wines/Liquors
rte.9, hadley, ma./584-8174
in front of the malls

HALLOWEEN
coming soon

the SHOE BIN
187 n. pleasant st., amherst

安城中國飯店
AMHERST CHINESE FOOD
62 Main St 253-7835
"Where you can get the best homestyle Chinese dishes at a very reasonable price."
Closed Wednesdays

HOWARD JOHNSONS
The Flavor of America
Special: $1.59
2 eggs, toast & hash browns
Coffee 35c
OPEN till 3 AM Fri & Sat Rt. 9 Hadley

Happy Hour at
Barselotti's
Every Friday from 3-6
Draft Beer 50c
Most Bottled Beer 75c
Pitchers of
Old Milwaukee $2.00
Most Drinks 75c
25c Drafts with a Barse's Mug
Free Whole Wheat Pizza
Free Peanuts
2 T.V.'s
Barselotti's
Downtown Amherst

GOODWILL
Neat Stuff
Low Prices
37 Main St.
Northampton

Actuarial Career Opportunities
Sun Life of Canada's United States Headquarters, located in Wellesley Hills, Mass., is seeking candidates for its actuarial career development program.
Representatives from Sun Life of Canada will be conducting on-campus interviews on Friday, April 11.
To set up an interview, contact the career placement office.
SunLife OF CANADA
U.S. Headquarters
Wellesley Hills, MA
An equal opportunity employer M/F

ACADEMY of MUSIC
Northampton, Mass.
Only Area Showing
Now, Ends Tues.
at 7:00 and 9:00
Academy Award Nominee
BEST FOREIGN FILM
Franco Brusati's
To Forget Venice
ITALIAN ACADEMY AWARD WINNER BEST FILM
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

Brandeis University
AMERICAN SCHOOLS OF ORIENTAL RESEARCH
ARCHAEOLOGICAL SEMESTER IN ISRAEL
What does it offer you?
- a semester of study in Israel in the spring term
- course work in English in archaeology, both history and methodology, and in related fields
- several weeks of active participation in an on-going dig
- study tours to important archaeological sites
- optional language study in Hebrew or Arabic

Application deadline: November 1
For further information, see your study abroad advisor or write:
Office of International Programs
Brandeis University
Waltham, MA 02254
617-647-2422
Brandeis University admits students of any race, color, national or ethnic origin, sex, age or handicap to all its programs and activities.

University of Massachusetts / Amherst
FINE ARTS CENTER PRESENTS
AN EVENING WITH CHUCK MANGIONE
AND
THE CHUCK MANGIONE QUARTET

Tuesday, April 22, 1980 8 P.M.
Tickets on sale April 8 at the FAC Box Office (M-F, noon-5 P.M., 545-2511) and Ticketron Outlets. Phone Reservations, Mail Orders available.
General Public $8, 7, 6
Senior Citizens $7, 6, 5
UMass Students $6.50, 5.50, 4.50

Easter Cards
American Greetings
Creative Excellence is an American Tradition . . .

Campus Center
Open Mon-Fri
9 am-5 pm
Sat 11 am-4 pm
your card store
the UNIVERSITY STORE

AMERICAN MULTI CINEMA
TIMES SHOW'N FOR TODAY ONLY
ADULTS $2.75 STUDENTS & SR. CITIZENS WITH AMC CARD $2.25 TWI-LITE SHOW $1.50
SPECIAL ENGAGEMENTS EXCLUDED TWI-LITE SHOW – LIMITED TO SEATING

HAMPSHIRE 4 584-7550 HAMPSHIRE MALL, ON CAFE SQ. RT 9 – HADLEY, MASS.
SISSY SPACEK
TOMMY LEE JONES
Coal Miner's DAUGHTER
Fri-Sat (5:15 @ $1.50) 7:45-10:15
Sun-Thur (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
Matinee (Sat, Sun) 2:00
PG
AUDIENCES WILL SIMPLY CHERISH
5 Academy Nominations BREAKING AWAY
Fri-Sat (5:30 @ $1.50) 8:00-10:15
Sun-Thur (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
Matinee (Sat,Sun) 2:15
PG
Little Darlings
TATUM O'NEAL KRISTY McNICHOL
Fri-Sat (5:00 @ $1.50) and 7:00-9:15
Sun-Thur (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
Matinee (Sat,Sun) 2:15
R
THE ROCKY HORROR PICTURE SHOW
Midnight Shows
Friday and Saturday
all seats $2.50
R
Honor thy wife, and everyone else's.
MARTIN MULL TUESDAY WELD
SERIAL
Fri-Sat (5:00 @ $1.50) and 7:00-9:15
Sun-Thur (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
Matinee (Sat, Sun) 2:00
R

MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9—HADLEY, MASS.
ROY SCHEIDER
ALL THAT JAZZ
9 Academy Award Nominations
Fri-Sat (5:00 @ $1.50) 7:30-10:00
Sun-Thur (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30
Matinee (Sat,Sun) 2:00
R
PETER SELLERS
SHIRLEY MacLAINE
BEING THERE
Nominated for Best Actor
Fri-Sat (4:45 @ $1.50) 7:30-10:00
Sun-Thur (5:45 @ $1.50) 8:30
Matinee (Sat, Sun) 2:00
PG
JAMES CAAN
HIDE IN PLAIN SIGHT
Fri-Sat (5:15 @ $1.50) 7:45-10:15
Sun-Thur (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45
Matinee (Sat, Sun) 2:15
PG
PAUL NEWMAN
JACQUELINE BISSET
When Time Ran Out
Fri-Sat (5:00 @ $1.50) 7:45-10:15
Sun-Thur (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:45
Matinee (Sat, Sun) 2:15
PG

Gazelles stomp Terriers, 16-2

By MAUREEN SULLIVAN
Collegian Staff

Senior Jean Hackett scored five goals and Julie McHugh added four more as the UMass women's lacrosse team began its season with a 16-2 thumping of Boston University at the upper NOPE fields yesterday.

The contest began slowly, but picked up steam as UMass began attacking the BU goal. After some good shots were blocked away, attack wing Julie Hall broke the ice with a goal at 4:15 of the first half. The score remained 1-0 until 12:25 of the half, when Cari Nickerson struck through the center for her first of two goals for the day. After that, the floodgates opened with a resounding crack, as Hackett shoveled for the Gazelles' third score a minute later. McHugh found daylight in the right side for her first, then rifled in the Gazelles' fifth a minute later, at 18:40. Hackett finished the first half scoring at 20:05 with a stuff that rolled by the BU goalie.

While the Gazelles opened up the offensive machines, its defense stifled whatever legitimate chances BU could muster. As a result of poor Terrier passing and timely interceptions by Patti Bossio and Laura O'Neil, UMass goalie Robin Jennings was challenged only twice in the entire half.

Hackett continued the Gazelle onslaught in the second half, shoveling in two goals at 1:12 and 2:45. Cari Nickerson made it 9-0 at 4:01 with a crease-line stuff to the left. First-year student Whitney Thayer scored her first of three at 4:23. The Terriers finally manged to penetrate the UMass defense, scoring up the middle at 5:00 of the half. Two minutes later, Thayer rifled a shot from the right side of the shell-shocked BU goal for the Gazelles' eleventh. McHugh made it 12-1 at 8:41 with an overhead lob that just went over the goalie's head. The score became 13-1 when Hackett went to the left side for her final goal of the day.

From that goal at 10:58 to the next goal, the game saw a barrage of passing and running for both teams. Penalty calls and sloppy passing kept the offenses to little more than a wild scramble for the ball.

UMass finally broke the impasses with a McHugh score at 14:05. The Terriers found daylight in the UMass defense again and scored their final goal a minute later. Second home Thayer stretched the already insurmountable lead even further with a bouncer at 15:14. After another running and passing impasses of scoring, junior Laurie Vincello popped in the final UMass goal at 24:30 of the second half.

"It was a fairly one-sided game," UMass coach Pam Hixon said, "it took a few minutes for us to find the goal, but after that, we played very well. I was very pleased with our play, there was a lot of movement, and we got the chance to work out a few mistakes, and to change around some players into different positions. I like what I saw out there, but there's going to be more pressure than we had today at future games, and we still have to work things out. But it's a good beginning."

UMass does not see action until next week, when the Gazelles travel to Springfield College for a game against the lady Chiefs Thursday afternoon.

Carrie Nickerson of UMass moves around a Boston University player in yesterday's 16-2 Gazelle win. (Staff photo by Ben Marsden)

Mittwomen sweep Devils; Gaw blasts four hits

NEW BRITAIN, Conn. - The UMass softball team took the fire out of the Blue Devils by defeating them in both games of a double header here yesterday afternoon. Pitcher Sue Peters had four strike outs in game one, a 7-1 Devil scorcher, and Kathy O'Connell struck out three in the second, a 5-2 win.

UMass chalked up four double-plays and third baseman Karen Laverdiere was instrumental in all of them. In the first game Laverdiere fielded a ground ball with women on first and second, fired it to second baseman Chris Coughlin who tagged the bag and tossed the ball to Jennifer Parker at first base.

"They played good heads updefense" first year head coach Elaine Marasco said. "You have to be doing something well to get four double plays in two games. Jackie Gaw did a good job batting again going two for three in the first game and two for four in the second," she said.

The Minutewomen were down 1-0 in the sixth inning when Gaw, a freshman, tripled and was knocked home by Peters. The score remained 1-1 until the eighth inning when UMass erupted for six runs.

Gaw started the inning off with a walk then stole second base. Peters followed with a successful bunt and Brenda Simmons scored Gaw with a single. O'Connell hit into a fielder's choice and Sue Peters went home on a passed ball. Debbie Stolecki sacrificed Laverdiere home and Fran Cornachioli scored on a Central Connecticut error.

The second game was scoreless until the fourth inning. Lead-off batter Laverdiere flew out and was followed by Gaw whose bat could not be stopped. She singled and went to third on a Peters single. Simmons singled to knock in Gaw, the first of five for UMass.

Central Connecticut scored its only two runs in the fifth inning. With the bases loaded after two singled and an error, UMass pitcher O'Connell walked in one run. Donna Fiedorwicz sacrificed for the Blue Devils' second and final run in the game.

The Minutewomen regained the lead in the seventh inning when Fran Troy, Laverdiere, Gaw and Peters all scored to give UMass the 5-2 win.

UMass is now 3-0 and will travel to Keene State College Tuesday for a 3:00 game.

"Everyone hit well and Gaw got the hits when we needed them," said Marasco. "Laverdiere really played a great defensive game," she said. "We are really looking forward to the game at Keene State."

UMass will be looking to bring its record to 4-0 when they face Keene State College in Keene, New Hampshire Tuesday at 3:00.

Red Sox manager Don Zimmer talks with recently acquired catcher Dave Rader yesterday as most of the team continued to work out despite the players' strike. (AP Laserphoto)

Sports roundup

Batmen host URI

The UMass baseball team will open it's home season a little sooner than expected when it faces the University of Rhode Island on the Earl Lorden Field on Saturday at 1:00. The game, originally scheduled to be played in Rhode Island, had to be switched to UMass due to the prolonged wet weather.

The Rams are currently on a nine game southern trip, and the Minutemen have posted a 3-5 record going into the contest. Right-handers Mark Brown (0-3) and Chuck Thompson (2-0) are the expected starters for UMass. Lorden Field is located across Commonwealth Ave. behind Stockbridge barns.

Netmen lose

The UMass men's tennis team was trounced 7-2 yesterday in its season opener by the Jumbos of Tufts University in Medford.

"Tufts is a pretty good team," captain Dave Nowak said. "They're strong at both singles and doubles."

Nowak, playing at number five singles instead of his customary number one, won his match 6-1, 2-6, 7-6.

The Minutemen's other winner was Neil MacKertish 6-1, 6-3 at number six singles. Mark Huetteman at number two singles lost 2-6, 2-6 and Dan Gallagher at number three lost 1-6, 1-3. Rich Sontag at number four lost 3-6, 6-4, 5-7 while Sergio Strepman at number one lost 4-6, 4-6.

Nowak and Strepman at number one doubles lost 2-6, 3-6 while Matt Modlish and Huetteman lost at second doubles 4-6, 4-3 and MacKertish and Gallagher at number three doubles lost 3-6, 3-6.

The Minutemen scrimmage Clark University Saturday at one o'clock at the Boyden courts.

SEAN HARVEY

Spikers win

In its first match in more than three weeks, the UMass men's volleyball team swept Yale University 15-10, 16-14, 15-5 at NOPE gym last night.

Blocking and passing dominated game one, as UMass used its outside attack to plug up the Elis. Co-captain Pat Ryan led the defensive effort, especially at the net, where UMass blocked potential Yale points.

Confusion over its lineup on the court caused UMass to lose some momentum and lengthened the game to about 45 minutes. However, UMass overcame several deficits with the help of Neil Gluck and Ed Midura, as they helped the team with good service and defensive reception.

The final game saw UMass roar to a 9-2 lead on several Yale mistakes, including net penalties and lack of communication. Spiking and passing keyed the UMass victory.

—MAUREEN SULLIVAN

Baseball mediator says 'Progress was made'

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK — Negotiators in the baseball strike met for two hours with a federal mediator Thursday and set up a schedule of meetings in an attempt to settle the labor dispute which has caused cancellation of exhibition games.

Kenneth Moffett, the federal mediator who was called into the dispute on Sunday, called Thursday's session "fruitful," and reported progress between the two sides.

"The mere fact that the parties have agreed to schedule meetings is a good sign," Moffett said. "I'd call it a fruitful meeting and I feel progress was made."

Moffett said the two sides had meet with him separately and had gathered together several times during the two hours.

"We discussed the calendar for meeting and other things like logistics," Moffett said.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the players association, said the first of seven meetings would be April 8, the day before the opening of the 1980 season. Striking players have agreed to return to their teams and open the season on time, but they have threatened a strike for May 22 if a new collective bargaining is not reached.

Other meeting are scheduled for April 10 and 15-16, all of them in New York.

"We reviewed where we are and we gave them formal notification of the action that our board took," Miller said. "The action of the players has set the stage for this, and we'll do our best."

Miller and attorney Don Fehr represented the players association while management's team included Ray Grebey, chief negotiator for the owners, Lee MacPhail, President of the American League, Chub Feeney, president of the National League, and Barry Rona, attorney for the Major League Players Committee.

Grebey said, "We felt baseball could be played and negotiations take place in parallel, and that's coming to be a fact. We're going ahead from there."

Moffett was called to the talks by the owners Sunday in Palm Springs, Calif., and met with both sides for the first time that day.

"We talked for nine or 10 hours and spent all our time on the compensation issue," Moffett said.

The owners are insisting on compensation for free agent players signed by other teams. The players, however, resisted that proposal, fearing it would place restrictions on the marketplace.

Paul Price

Spring fashion '80

See inside for the latest in Five College, punk, jewelry, footware and hair fashions

Paul Price

TENNIS SALE

20% off Rackets In Stock

Free Tournament Nylon Stringing With Racket Purchase

FENTON'S

ATHLETIC SUPPLIES

377 MAIN ST., AMHERST

Chris Grove

Megan Adams shows off the short permed cut she got from Aristocrat Stylists in North Amherst.

Chris Grove

Jenny Sprague and Carole Weglowski hang around a friend at Sienna's Fine Clothing in Northampton. Jenny wears a striped dress and wide belt. Carole is clad in checked baggy pants and a sleeveless tee shirt.

SHAPE UP

for Spring

BEAUTY IS AN INDIVIDUAL ATTITUDE

At The Aristocrat we undersand this, so you'll never have to sacrifice good taste and adaptability for the sake of something novel or unique. We'd rather bring out your own natural beauty with a hairstyle that suits you. Our statement for Spring.

29 Southwick Street
Feeding Hills, Mass.
413·786·6676

aristocrat
A FASHIONABLE APPROACH TO HAIR

17 Montague Road
North Amherst, Mass.
413·549·6255

GENESIS II
recycled and new

CLOTHING you can AFFORD
50% Off All Winter Clothes

— we also have —

40's Style Jackets
Army Draw String Pants
Cutoffs
Hawaiian Shirts
Jeans
Chinos
Olive Drab Pants
etc, etc, etc

9 E. Pleasant St., Amherst 549-2747

April 11

Spring fashion at QR

If you're planning on attending the valley's third annual Spring fashion show on April 11 at the quonset Restaurant from 8 p.m. to 2 a.m., you'll probably see skirts, tops and pants in disco light colors, fashioned out of summery cotton and guaze.

The key work in spring fashions is "dressy," even if it's casual. Sloppy jeans are out, straight skirts and dressy slacks are in. And legs, emerging from under the past decade's mid–calf hemlines, are most definitely in.

The bright colors pervade everything from business suits, to "preppy" chinos, to casual blouses, and they're nicer than the flashy shiny materials of the seasons past.

The "Preppy Look" is in, complete with an array of alligator shirts and Chino's.

There are even comfortable Chino type skirts in most stores in the area.

If you're not into being preppy, you can be romantically old fashioned, with lace–trimmed collars and plaid skirts. The plaids are either in the traditional muted tones, or the bright new colors. Tiered skirts, in old fashioned prints or again in bright colored cottons, are a good choice for an evening out or office.

There are a variety of choices to complete a profesional look including shirt dresses, sleeveless dressed with jackets and light-weight suits. Light colored suits with rounded lapels with either matching blouses or bright bold prints provide an 1980 version of the dress for success.

"Shirt dresses" are also modified to be casual, solids or striped jersey material.

Knits are also popular, in either skirt sets or in colored tops with jeans or dress pants.

And jeans, thank goodness, are still in style, even if they are making them for people with skinny thighs and no hips. Designer clothes, especially jeans are outragiously priced, watch for sales before you buy.

Don't buy designer signature clothes if you're planning job interviews. it tells your prespective employer you are a follower, not the leader they are searching for.

A good fashion investment this spring would be one of the light textured suits if you're entering the real world, as it will take you through the summer and fall.

As far as shoes go, they're still high impractical: high stiletto heels, ankle straps, open–toed in leathers of cloth. Drop the heel for a more casual and practical look also.

If you want a real diet incentive, try on the skin tight bathing suits in the same bright colors. They're either striped or have designs on them resembling an Alexander Calder sculpture.

Paul Price

Richard Damico attends a customer of David Whitman Hair Shack, Amherst.

Base '10' institution

By LISA CAPONE
Collegian Staff

Quick everybody! Run out to the nearest coiffure and pay $300 to have your head braided and beaded. Cut out a few buckskin triangles and attach a couple strings. Now suck that tummy in, jump in the shower—for that "wet look"—and you're ready to go!

Yes, it's true. You too can be a "10" like Bo. Since the release of the movie "10", women everywhere have been frantically braiding. Men have been overheard rating their girlfriends on a scale of one to ten.

The Bo Derek craze is in full swing. It is no different, I suppose, from the Farrah Fawcett movement or even the Twiggy madness of the 1960's. Everyone, it seems, wants to look like number one, even if it means bottles of peroxide or a raw vegetable diet for life.

This obsession does not by any means stop with hairstyles and diets. Clothes are equally important in attaining that winning look. Remember those skin tight jeans of a year ago? Well, you can let out your breath now—"Baggies" are in. but, of course, they'll only be "in" for six more months or so. Just long enough for the fashion industry to squeeze the bucks out of women trying to be "10's."

That's what it's all about when you come right down to it. Being the best—a "10." The irony is that no one, not even Bo, can be numero uno for long. Alas that bikini clad walking bead factory will go the way of all sex symbols. Down the tubes. Someone else will take her place, just as she stole the throne out from under Farrah's perfect behind. And meanwhile, we, the public, go on spending hard earned money to look like these fly-by-night beauties.

Who is at fault, one may ask? Who is in charge of conning women into thinking they can ever attain the status of a "10?" It isn't Bo's fault—or Farrah's. They are merely the puppets of the film industry. It isn't the fault of the film industry or the fashion industry. They are just using the free enterprise system to their best advantage.

No, I'm afraid there is no one really to blame but the public itself. If consumers didn't buy "Baggies" or pay for millions of braids, then the businesses behind "the look" would have nothing to sell.

In short, the selling of the perfect American woman will remain an institution only as long as imperfect American women continue to play along with the game.

413-256-6217
fine instruments bought and sold repaired and restored
Fretted Instrument Workshop
49 So. Pleasant St., Amherst, Mass. 01002

LOOKING FOR HOMESTYLE CHINESE FOOD?
WE'RE RECOMMENDED BY THE N.Y. TIMES
安城中國飯店
AMHERST CHINESE FOOD
62 Main St. 253-7835
CLOSED WEDNESDAYS

STUDENT
University of Massachusetts
Amherst, Massachusetts 01003
STUDENTS SPECIALS WITH ID

Choose from our handsome variety of men's formal wear. . .for sale or rent. The latest styles in tuxes and accessories.

CARLSON's CLOTHING
68 Main St. Phone 413-584-3175
Northampton, Mass 01060

FREE CCA PAPPILLON FREE CCA
ELECTRONIC CONCERT & LIGHT SHOW APRIL 13

Tan Your Hide

Authorized Dealer
Cannondale Bike Bag Sale

now thru Saturday April 19th, 1980

JOHN HENRY

Woman-tailored shirts by John Henry.

CHONA
CONTEMPORARY FASHION
THORNES MARKET NORTHAMPTON

The precision haircut styled for you alone!

Shampoo, precision haircut, and blow-dry styling. . . . . complete for $12.00
(Children, secondary students, & college students with I.D.. special $10.00)

There's only one you . . . that's why your next haircut should be just as different and special as you are. The cutters at Great Expectations Precision Haircutters make it happen. They put the accent on your special personality with a precision haircut shaped with you in mind. That's the Great "X" promise—and you get our written guarantee.

Our cutters give intelligent, creative advice and help you express your own special style—that's what the free haircut consultation is all about. So if you want to learn how great your hair . . . and you can look, step into Great Expectations at any one of our hundreds of locations from coast to coast. You'll fall in love with our style.

NO APPOINTMENT NECESSARY
GREAT EXPECTATIONS®
PRECISION HAIRCUTTERS

Chris Grosse

Stereo equipment at Sound and Music in Northampton

DANSKIN®
TERRY LEOTARDS AND SHORTS
FACES
A Store-full of Ideas
Downtown Amherst /Open 10-6, Mon.-Sat.

Hair Shack
David Whitman
Your Salon for the 80's
DAVID WHITMAN HAIR SHACK

staffed by some of the areas top hair designers

Amherst
124 Amity St.
549-5111

A TOTAL SERVICE SALON

Punk fashion: Gabba, gabba

Mary Masse of Great Expectations Hair Stylists in the Hampshire Mall is shown styling Nancy Arzbergers hair. The finished product is shown on page one section 3.

Doug Paulding

By NORMA J. COATES
Collegian Staff

Three years ago, when the sounds of the Sex Pistols first crashed on unsuspecting music fans, "punk fashion" appeared to be a contradiction of terms. Much was made of the sudden manifestation of town tee-shirts, multi-colored hair, and safety pins in the cheeks of those soon dubbed "punks" by the media. Outlandish dress was favored for its shock value, as well as for the expression of anarchism and alienated political beliefs.

Suddenly, "punk fashion" is the latest rage. Gone are the town tee-shirts. They've been replaced by campy pre-Beatles invasion dress, inspired, in part, by the cover of the B-52's album. Outlandishness still rules the day, but in a much more high-class, fun way.

Second-hand clothing stores are gold mines for afficianadoes of "punk fashion." Clothes from the 40's, 50's and 60's are especially in demand, the tackier the better. Jumpers, skirts, sweaters, and tops in odd pastel colors and strange artificial materials are sought after, then mixed and matched. Black mesh stockings or nylons with dark seams down the back of the leg lend an air of decadence to the overall effect. Shoes are flashy, some with long stiletto heels like those in the very back of your mother's closet. Not very functional for everyday wear, but they look sharp on the dance floor or in the concert hall.

Accessories are very important to this new wave of "punk fashion." A piece of flashy, vintage costume jewelry gives the proper amount of class and sex appeal to a forties cut jacket. Pins, brooches, strings of pearls, and art-deco-inspired geometric bracelets are very popular. Elegant gloves straight out of films such as "High Society" work well in punk society. Make-up hearkens back to the sultry look of 50's movies heroines—dark red lipstick, copious amounts of blush, and eye colors designed to lend an air of mystery to the woman wearing them. Of course, early 60's sunglasses from the set of old beach-party movies are as popular as ever.

Hairstyles have been important in achieving the punk look since the movement's inception. For both men and women, the look is short, scraggly but not messy, sometimes bleached white, sometimes colored in any number of outrageous shades.

Men are not neglected in "punk fashion." Popular among men is the "Mod" look, repopularized by the movie Quadrophenia. Short hair, white shirts, ties, tweed jackets, cuffed slacks, and other period pieces of the early and mid-60's are integral to this look. Then there's the "Rude Boy" look, popularized by the revival of Ska and Bluebeat music in Britain and groups such as the Specials. Followers of this trend can be seen in ill-fitting jackets, short cuffed trousers, white or argyle socks, Oxford styles shoes, and fifties-style sweater vests, topped off with a clumsy fedora perched on their heads.

Of course, not all fans of punk music go to such extremes. Some opt for just a well-worn black leather jacket. A white shirt of tee shirt (preferably with the name of a popular band emblazoned on the front of it), a skinny tie, a vest with some popular punk badges, torn jeans and sneakers, serve just as well to transmit one's involvement in the music. After all, its just for fun!

Join the Collegian and help us to keep our community informed!

brights of Spring
SIENNA
FINE CLOTHING
243 Main Street, Northampton 586-6457

NEFERTITI'S
POTIONS FOR FACE AND BODY
FUSCHIA IS HERE!
How will the Spring Pastels look on you?
THORNES MARKET / 150 MAIN ST. / NORTHAMPTON / 584-0906

SHOES TO BOOTS
Spring Spectacular

Classy Selection of Spring Shoes & Handbags
9 West Baretraps Mia. Scandel Bass Naturalizer & Frye Clogs
Holyoke Mall 532-3176
Hampshire Mall 584-9676

Rich Newman

Customer inspects roller skates at JC Penny's in Hadley

Paul Price

Cyndi Jensen's corn rows were done by Joanne Arseneault of David Whitman Hair Shack.

$36.99

* Nash Cruiser Unisex running shoe roller skate.
— replaceable toe stop
— 2¼" diameter wheels
— for indoor and outdoor use
— sizes 3/5 — 10/12

This is JCPenney
Hampshire Mall
Rte. 9, South Maple St.
Hadley, Mass.
Phone: 586-5505

The American Right to Choose:

Choose glasses: Choose designer frames . . . From Cardin to Von Furstenberg, you'll find them all.

If you're looking for budget frames . . . value starts as low as $5.00

Choose contacts: Bausch & Lomb or American Optical soft contact lenses are yours for only

$79

Regularly $89

One hour service for most soft contacts and glasses only at American Vision Center.

The largest inventory of soft contact lenses of all types are in American Vision Center all the time.

American Vision Center
Illinois, Maryland, Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, Texas

HAMPSHIRE MALL
HADLEY
584-7958

American Express and all major credit cards accepted.

PRESIDENT'S SALE

American Vision Center
Illinois, Maryland, Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, Texas

SAVE $10. with this ad

$10. off any frame over $25.

Offer expires April 14th.
HAMPSHIRE MALL
HADLEY
584-7958

Rich Newman

Customer inspects finest fragrancess

fragrances in the area at College Drug Store

Chris Grewe

Carole and Scott model fashions from Steigers Department store at the Hampshire Mall. Carole is wearing a denim skirt and print to by Levi's. Scott looks casual in hospital greens.

Talented Musicians
and
Special Dinners
featured at Steeplejack's
Sunday Café
every sunday 5:30 - 9:00

Praktikly Worne
FINE USED CLOTHING

Functional & Fashionable clothing at affordable prices

CLASSIC CLOTHING
from the '30s to the '80s

Velvet dresses.....$10 & up
Gaberdine shirts.....$5-$10
Women's '40s style jackets.....$10-$15
Corduroy jackets.....$5-$10
Oriental robes.....$5 & up
Vests.....$5
Plus a selection of lace, silk scarves, jeans, bowling shirts.
Much more.

Green St. Northampton
Mon-Sat 10-5:30

OPIUM Parfum

pour celles qui s'adonnet a

YVES SAINT LAURENT

COLLEGE DRUG
4 MAIN ST. AMHERST

NORTHAMPTON BICYCLE
21 Pleasant St. 586-3810
FUJI - RALEIGH - KABUKI - TREK
Skilled Repairs-Bell Helmets-Touring Equipment

The IRON HORSE
20 Center St. Northampton
Coffeehouse
DOING IT
ALL DAY
EVERY DAY
Live music every night
Full menu plus
BEER and WINE
Open 7 days a week
8 am - Midnight

AMERICAN MULTI CINEMA
ADULTS $2.75 STUDENTS & SR. CITIZENS with AMC CARD $2.25 TWI-LITE SHOW $1.50 Special Engagements Excluded Twi-Lite Show – Limited to Seating
TIMES SHOWN FOR TODAY ONLY
HAMPSHIRE 4 — 584-7550 HAMP. MALL ON CAFE SQ.—RT. 9, HADLEY, MASS.
SISSY SPACEK TOMMY LEE JONES Coal Miner's DAUGHTER (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30 PG
AUDIENCES WILL SIMPLY CHERISH BREAKING AWAY (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30 PG
Honor thy wife, and everyone else's MARTIN MULL TUESDAY WELD SERIAL (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45 R
Little Darlings (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45 R
MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 — 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9—HADLEY, MASS.
PETER SELLERS SHIRLEY MacLAINE BEING THERE (5:45 @ $1.50) 8:30 PG
ROY SCHEIDER ALL THAT JAZZ (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30 R
JAMES CAAN HIDE IN PLAIN SIGHT (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45 PG
PAUL NEWMAN JACQUELINE BISSET When Time Ran Out (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:45 PG

John & Rudy's
AG Store
Rte. 116, Sunderland
665-2010
"at the center of town"
Full line of Fresh Fish
Lobsters,
Steaming Clams,
Oysters &
Custom Cut Meats
We accept food stamps!
All types of Beers, Wines,
& Champagnes
Open 8 a.m.-6 p.m. daily
'til 8 p.m. Fri. 8 a.m.-11 a.m. Sun.

TDK
BLANK CASSETTES
SA-C90
Special Low Price
$3.99
each

* 90-minutes
* super avilyn
* super precision mechanism record village

Hampshire Mall
Hadley
Store Hours:
10-9:30 Mon-Sat

FIVE STAR MUSICAL ★★★★★
This system features an all-star cast, superbly produced and directed, based on an original musical idea.

$1,027
harman/kardon HK-670 Twin-Powered AM-FM Stereo Receiver
ONKYO CP-1020F Fully Automatic Direct-Drive Turntable
Bozak LS-250A Impedance-Corrected Three-Way Speakers
SHURE 8815 Cartridge
You'll applaud when you hear this "five-star" system!
SOUND & MUSIC
90-92 King Street
(Rte. 5)
Northampton
"Good Advice—Honest Price"
VISA
Thursday & Friday 'til 9
Mon.-Sat. 10-5
584-9547

Clothing, colleges vary

Different strokes for different folks in Five College Area

By DEBBIE ROBERTI
Collegian Staff

Clothing has always been an important factor in the way we view other people. What an individual wears says a lot about his or her personality. Students in the Five College Area have rapidly adopted the different trends and styles concerning apparel, and each college has acquired a clothing personality of its own.

Amherst College follows the tradition of "preppie." This dress style originated in the various prep schools across the country. Mainly, it consists of chinos, alligator shirts, tween blazers and Topsiders, mixed and matched according to the taste and desire of the individual.

Because "preppie" connotes such words as "privileged" and "wealthy," the quality and abundance of clothing is important. "Preppie" is as much an attitude as it is a dress style. It follows the saying that "clothes make the person.

"Preppie" is a unisex clothing style, and at Smith College the female "prep" wears Fair Isle sweaters, plaid wood skirts and button down Oxford shirts. Yet, now, now that spring is here, most "preps" will put away their monogrammed sweaters, and adorn themselves in the latest of "preppie" fashion. Colors such as hot pink, purple, kelly green and fire engine red have replaced navy blue and brown.

However, at Smith College, "preppie" is second to another rage—designer jeans. Companies such as Calvin Klein and Vanderbuilt are making millions on jeans that cost anywhere from $35 to $60 a pair. The more expensive the jeans, the better status they receive.

Mount Holyoke College, although it has a fair share of "preps" and designer jeans, leans toward a different style of dress. Old denim skirts and jeans, topped with embroidered Indian shirts shows that students are turning toward a more comfortable clothing apparel. Leotards and tights worn with virtually anything have also become commonplace, and serve as a reminder of the 60's.

More and more, women are returning to dresses rather than pants and jeans. This spring, clothing such as sun dresses and skirts have been found to a comfortable, cool alternative to the heat, especially in Smith and Mount Holyoke.

In Hampshire College, students will wear just about anything out of the necessity for originality. Sneakers and t-shirts are the favorites, but Hampshire students also have a fetish for incredably worn out jeans.

UMass appears to be a combination of the four colleges previously mentioned. In any class, one could find an array of intersting outfits from sweatpants to suits.

Students also favor UMass t-shirts and sweatshirts, perhaps more out of comfort than school spirit. Sneakers are worn constantly, but every so often a student will attempt to hobble from Southwest to Grad towers on four inch spiked heels.

See Our Spring & Summer Selection
Tuesday thru Saturday 9:30 to 5,
Thursday nights 'til 9 Closed Mondays
57 King St., Northampton
(next to Friendly's)
Excellent Parking Facilities

WAX n WANE
Spring Jean SALE!!
All Fashion Jeans
Landlubber
A. Smile
Faded Glory
H.I.S.
$5.00 OFF
"Chic" Jeans -
Reg. 27.95
Now. . . $20.95
Chic Leisure Pants
Reg. 28.95
Now. . . $21.95
WAX n WANE
Fairfield Mall Chicopee
63 N. Pleasant Amherst

Begin Your Graduation Shopping Now

33%OFF
14K GOLD
ALL
14K Chains, Bracelets, Pendants, Charms, & Earrings
Marcou's
Keepsake
Registered Diamond Rings
Diamond Center
Weekend only April 10th-12th
Mall 586-5880
No layaways on Specials
VISA

Nationally Advertised Swimsuits
by
Catalina
& Sirena
in
High Fashioned Colors

THOMPSONS
Main St. Amherst Center
The Store the cares how you look

Salespersons Gretchen Crowley and Neal Carey prpare the showcase for this week's sale at Fred Houck Jeweler in Amherst Center. The sale features a wide selection of Pulsar watches.

Doug Paulding

Nancy Arzberger models one of several outfits available at the Mercantile. For gift purchasing one can find just about anything from posters to parasols.

HEY YOU

acme
WESTERN BOOT SALE

$34.95
2 STYLES

Heartfelt Leather
103 N. Pleasant St., Amherst
10-6:00 Mon. Sat. 253-5135

Great Prices!!!
Great Spring Clothing
Gift Items
Jewelry and Cards

clearance sale of the remaining winter clothing

Open Daily 10 am - 5:30 pm
THE MERCANTILE
AMHERST CARRIAGE SHOPS

Jenny Sprague looking good in Baggy pants by Prime Cut, blouse by San Francisco Shirt Works, haircombs by Riviera, belt by Beautiful Jools, umbrella by Shaw, and Stagelight Bunny Hop Pink lipstick, all from Faces.

Bill's SHOE REPAIR

LOCATED IN THE CENTER OF AMHERST

We repair Clogs, Earth Shoes, Birkenstocks, Frye Boots, Hiking Boots, Leather Jackets, Purses, Dr. Scholl's and Carry alls.

DOWNTOWN SOUNDS

Sheet music
Repairs
Lessons
New and used instruments

21 Pleasant St., Northampton
586-0998

Spring is here

A feature supplement of the* Collegian

Dining, entertainment in this section

Subway becomes Sub, adds items

Chili, other foods added to menu

By JIM MORAN
Collegian Staff

The Subway is closed. But you won't have to take a bus to enjoy some reasonably-priced meals at one of the best fast-food outlets in the area.

The restaurant, which has been operating for three years at its 33 North Pleasant St. location, has re-opened under a new name – The Sub.

Andy Nichols, owner of the Sub, explained the reason for the change: "We wanted to expand our services beyond what our franchise would allow. Customers were interested in seeing our menu include things beside the submarine sandwich." NIchols said offering like Syrian bread sandwiches, salads and soup were among the requests. "The Subway company took a percentage of our gross for letting us use their name and license, but we were not allowed to cook on the premises, or any variation in the menu," Nichols said.

Under the new operation (still in jeopardy by a lawsuit from Subway), the restaurant will become independent after paying off its loans. The Sub will offer chili, salads, soups and juice, in addition to its previous menu items. The owner decided to drop the sausage because, as he put it, "Frankly, it wasn't very good." Nichols will put chicken and egg salad on the menu instead.

The Sub, according to Nichols, will be better for the consumer. No allegiance to a franchise will mean "less frequent price increases, more openess to suggestions for changes on the menu, and a continuity of on-the-premises, fresh food preparation," Nichols said.

Doug Paulding

Dan Morse and Bruce Bliven heap on the fixin's at the Sub as Sergio Stepman and David Nowak eagerly await dinner.

To Forget Venice - Another Brusati gem

By CAROLYN MOONEY
Collegian Staff

To Forget Venice – A film directed by Franco Brusanti. Starring Erland Josephson, Mariangella Melato, Eleonora Giorgi, and David Pontremoli. At the Academy of Music, Northampton. "Bread and Chocolate," also by Franco Brusati, begins Wednesday.

It's almost impossible not to compare Franco Brusati's Italian Academy Award Winner To Forget Venice with Bread and Chocolate, his earlier gem. Both films (in Italian with English subtitles) are about universal struggles: In To Forget Venice the struggle is whether to choose old age or perpetual youth, and the theme, which is overused, grows tired toward the end. In Bread and Chocolate the struggle is one of social class, ironically and beautifully shown by a poor Italian laborer who can never quite cross social barriers when he goes to wealthy Switzerland to find work.

What both films share is outstanding photography and screenplay, rich imagery, and a wonderful, warm pertrayal of Italian life. But while the emotionally overpowering Bread and Chocolate seizes the audience immediately, To Forget Venice is abstract, though beautiful, film which does so only occasionally.

In To Forget Venice, Anna and Claudia are two young Italian women who have lived together for years in an isolated country home with Claudia's Aunt Martha, a retired but ageless opera singer. Though Brusati's fascinating flashbacks which incorporate the character who is reminiscing, we learn of the dark spots in both women's childhoods and are prepared for their homosexuality later. The portrayal of Anna – she is the older, stronger, more emotionally scarred of the two women – is especially convincing.

Aunt Martha's younger, bachelor brother Nicky and his business partner Sandro, come to the house to bring them all to Venice, where Aunt Martha and Nicky grew up. At first Nicky and Sandro seem to parallel the characters of Anna and Claudia. But their flashbacks, which depict a sexual initiation scene from Nicky's childhood and his deep love for his older sister, though beautifully done, seem disjointed from the theme. The reference later to Nicky's homosexuality is unexpected, and the sensitive, virile Sandro's is out of character. But both characters are well played, with Sandro adding far more than his role originally called for.

The senile housekeeper Caterina plays a minor role but she, too, makes a major contribution to the film, causing us to smile at death and regard old age and senility with sadness.

The characters' inablitity to accept the passing of time is visible throughout the film: Claudia still has trouble accpeting mestruation; Nicky is proud to look so much younger than his childhood friend; Aunt Martha doesn't wnat anyone to know she takes medication. But perhaps we would get more out of the film if we weren't told so often of this fear, with such quotes as "We are suspended in time" (Anna) and "I'm a little tired of being young" (Nicky).

Aunt Martha's stroke just before they all leave for Venice magnifies the fear associated with aging at first; but helps them all to accept it and face reality.

Whatever the differences may be between To Forget Venice and Bread and Chocolate, both are excellent films worthy of the many awards they have received (To Forget Venice has been nominated for an Academy Award for best foreign film), and both should be seen.

NOW INDEPENDENT!

SALADS SUBMARINES SYRIANS

the sub

11 A.M. TO 2 A.M. / 7 DAYS

33 E. PLEASANT ST., AMHERST / 549-5160

SAVE 70¢

The All Week Special

at the sub

$1.89

includes our newest:

The Egg Salad Sub

16oz. soda of your choice soup or chips!

plus Mass. meal tax Expires April 11, 1980

July 11 to 20, 1980
A ten day performance seminar for strings and piano

Reduced rates for Amherst residents and members of the five-college community
For further information please contact:
John Cook,
EH, Hampshire College
Amherst, Massachusetts 01002
413 549-4600
extension 524

THE HAMPSHIRE COLLEGE
CHAMBER FESTIVAL
WITH THE OLEWSKY TRIO

Varied drinkin' in town

By JACK GALLAGHER
Collegian Staff

Judging from the number of bars on Main Street alone, Amherst is a place where a lot of people drink alcohol. But not as many people drink here as they used to because of the relatively newly-imposed 20-year-old drinking age.

So, coupled with the certain recession, bar owners have been hit very hard. Bars are generally quieter than they used to be around here.

Many area bars now feature "special" nights, such as "penny night" on Thursdays at Mike's Westview Cafe on Sunderland Road in North Amherst at which every third drink costs one cent. The Pub in the center of Amherst still has mug night on Wednesdays, too. And the Blue Wall in the Campus Center has expanded its happy hours.

As for entertainment, there's the Rusty Nail in Sunderland on River Road, which features live bands; the QR Disco on Route 9 in Hadley, which recently began booking local bands on weekends; Rahar's in Northampton center, which also books local bands; and the Blue Wall.

Most bars, though are just bars...places to go and drink and socialize. Crowds differ from bar to bar, though, and prices do too. Here is a partial list and comments on each:

•The Time Out, on North Pleasant Street in Amherst center, offers a nice, "townie" atmosphere, a pinball machine, jukebox and relatively inexpensive prices. It is orientated toward the world of sports, but that orientation is not exclusive.

•Barsellotti's, also on North Pleasant Street, is more of a "bar," in the literal sense of the word, than any other place in the area. It is brightly lit, has good prices, a pool table and a pinball machine. Though it will never be confused with Studio 54 (which, by the way, lost its liquor license), Barsy's is a good place to have a beer in the afternoon, or anytime – provided that that's what you want to do.

•Dastardly Dan's on East Pleasant Street, is a bar whose time may be coming. It is relatively new, so a lot people don't know it is there. But its prices are reasonable, and it has a good jukebox.

•The Village Inn, commonly known as the Drake, used to be the "in" dive in Amherst. It's still a dive, but it's not so "in" anymore because its prices have risen considerably. For atmosphere, comparable to one of the bar scenes in Dostoyevski's Crime and Punishment, though, there is no place comparable to "The Rat," the downstairs portion of the Drake.

•The Lord Jeffrey Inn, also in Amherst center, is out of the question unless: you attend Amherst College or your father is an IBM executive.

•The Seven O's in Sunderland is a good place but is far away if you don't live in Sunderland. It has the best jukebox in the area, but don't play Dylan's "Subterranian Homesick Blues" when the bar is predominantly inhabited by farmers. Play "Take This Job and Shove It" in that case.

Chris Green

Couple prepares to dine at the Rusty Scupper in Amherst

Prep-man Peter Hill prepares a salad at the salad bar at the Steak Out on Route 9 in Amherst. The salad bar features 15 vegetables and four dressings, as well as bread and butter.

visit the jewelry department at

FACES

A Store-full of Ideas

Downtown Amherst Open 10-6, Mon.-Sat.

The FLOWER CART

fragrances in soaps, creams, oils and shampoos

FACES

A Store-full of Ideas

Shrimp and Salad Bar

Enjoy a
Platter of boiled shrimp
Peel 'em and eat 'em
With Steak Out's unlimited
Salad bar.

$4.95

The Steak Out

Rt. 5 Brattleboro 257-1333
Rt. 9 Amherst 256-8557

Popularity of '79 books hard to beat

By BETH SEGERS
Books Editor

It will be hard to surpass the popularity of the fall and winter 1979 publishing season—featuring new books for Updike, Mailer, Tom Wolfe, Bob Woodward, David Halberstam, and the Kissinger memoirs—but the spring and summer 1980 season offers some interesting new titles and at least one blockbuster.

The book that should develop into the blockbuster of the season is long-awaited Thy Neighbors' Wife: Sex In America, by Gay Talese.

Talese is a former New York Times reporter and the author of two previous bestsellers: The Kingdom and The Power, a history of the Times, and Honor Thy Father, a novel.

Thy Neighbors' Wife promises to be a monster of a book. Talese, a very good reporter, has been researching this work for more than eight years, and his research carried him into every facet of American sexual life. The book will be of epic proportions—very long and (what isn't?) very expensive.

It should be the first book that examines in detail the subject of sex that is written at a level that everyone can understand and enjoy.

Two chapters of the book, titled "The Erotic History of Hugh Hefner," recently appeared in Esquire magazine. They were not sordid or dull, but instead related the sexual politics of the 1950's to the sexual development and moral beliefs of Alfred A. Knopf, one of the classier and popular publishing houses, offers some good reading this season.

A local attorney, novelist, and newspaper columnist, George V. Higgins of Boston and the Boston Globe, is publishing a new novel, titled Kennedy For The Defense. Despite what you may be thinking, the book has nothing whatsoever to do with the real Massachusetts Kennedys, but instead is the fictional story of a man described as "the classiest sleazy criminal lawyer in Boston."

Like Higgins' other novels, it is expected to be fast-paced, funny, plotty, and dramatic. His most famous work in this genre is The Friends of Eddie Coyle.

Turning to the opposite end of the spectrum, Knopf is offering a large book that will undoubtedly end up in backpacks on campuses all over America.

John Canady, the erudite and pithy art critic for the New York Times, has written a massive tome called: What Is Art? An Introduction to Painting, Sculpture and Architecture.

The book's intention is to be "a complete, richly illustrated one-volume course for the layman in how to appreciate art in all its major forms, from the ancient past to the present."

It will run to 400 pages, and contain more than 400 illustrations, in color and black and white. The price will be $30.00, fairly reasonable for an art book.

Also from Knopf: Freddy's Book, a new John Gardner novel set in 16th century Scandinavia; Anne Tyler's Morgan Pasing, V.S. Naipul's The Return of Eva Peron (she's a popular subject these days); a new Judity green novel; The Moon Is Always Female, a collection of poems by Marge Piercy; Sidney Poiter's autobiography; and new works by Len Deighton, Mordecai Richler, and Maxine Hong Kingston, author of The Woman Warrior.

From Random House, a new novel of a young and up-and-coming but not yet popular author deserves attention. Ann Beattie will be publishing her new Falling In Place. She is a sort of a John Cheever for the younger set, for the post 1960s set. her short stories and her first novel, Chilly Scenes of Winter (made into the movie "Head Over Heels") were funny and poignant. Her writing style is a thing of beauty. the Random House catalog, with typical publishers' gushing hyperbole, describes it as "above all, a book about the way we live now."

Also from Random: in the Cashing-In-On-Big-Names Department, Random will re-release the first three novels of John Irving (of Garp fame); yet another book by the Pope; Jim Fixx's Second Book of Running; and a new E.L. (Ragtime) Doctorow novel.

From Delta, a trade paperback house, comes a paperback edition of Jonathan Kozol's Children of the Revolution, a study of Kozol's time spent teaching in Cuba and the Cuban educational system.

Kozol, who is now a visiting instructor here, is the author of the famous and brilliant Death At An Early Age, written while he was teaching in the Boston Public Schools, and a winner of the National Book Award.

From Delacorte, a new book from one of the most reasonable men in America: The First Freedom: The Tumultuous History of Free Speech in America, by Nat Hentoff. Simply put, anything by Hentoff is worth reading.

For playgoers, Atheneum will be publishing the script of Edward Albee's new play, "The Lady From Dubuque."

Pantheon books will be publishing several books of interest to people with different political ideas, including: Social Causes of Illness; a life of D.H. Lawrence; Economic Democracy, by Martin Carnoy and Derek Shearer; Mao For Beginners and Trotsky For Beginners, to follow last season's witty cartoon books on Freud and Marx; a book on the poisoning of Love Canal, N.Y.; Prince Norodom Sihanouk's book on his Cambodia, called War and Hope; and Thunder on the Right, a study of the much ballyhooed "new right," written by a young William Buckley clone.

AMERICAN MULTI CINEMA
TIMES SHOWN FOR TODAY ONLY
ADULTS $2.75 STUDENTS & SR. CITIZENS WITH AMC CARD $2.25 TWI-LITE SHOW $1.50
SPECIAL ENGAGEMENTS EXCLUDED TWI-LITE SHOW—LIMITED TO SEATING
HAMPSHIRE 4 584-7550 HAMPSHIRE MALL ON CAFE SQ. RT. 9—HADLEY, MASS
THE ROCKY HORROR PICTURE SHOW
Showing Every Friday & Saturday at Midnight All Seats $2.50
R
MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9—HADLEY, MASS
COMING SOON
He knew it would either destroy him, or carry him where no one had ever been before...
FRANCIS FORD COPPOLA'S
the Black Stallion
Starring Mickey Rooney
G Best Supporting Actor Nomination
NOW SHOWING
THE CRITICS AND PUBLIC AGREE...
There's nothing funnier than Peter Sellers in "Being There."
BEING THERE
PETER SELLERS SHIRLEY MacLAINE
Academy Award Nomination for Best Actor - Peter Sellers
Best Supporting Actor - Melvyn Douglas
PG

Hair Fashion Accessories

Functional, of course—but more important, our combs, barrettes, headbands, and bobbles are beautiful fashion accents. Classic tortoise-shell designs, luminous enamels, rich and subtle solids. A fine gift idea.
A Storefull of Ideas!
FACES
Downtown Amherst

UPC & UMass Arts Council presents
UTOPIA
with todd rundgren roger powell
kasim sulton john wilcox
Tuesday, April 29, 8 pm - Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
Tickets 8.00, 7.50, 7.00 - UMass 9.00, 8.50, 8.00 - Gen. Public
At: TIX, Union Records (UMass) Platterpus (Northampton)
FAC Box Office for info call 545-2892
No Bottles, Cans or Alcohol Please

University of Massachusetts / Amherst
FINE ARTS CENTER PRESENTS

Itzhak Perlman, Violin
and the Springfield Symphony, conducted by Robert Gutter
Wednesday, April 16, 1980 at 8 P.M.
Music of Mozart, Siebelius and Hindemith
General Public $8, 7, 6
Senior Citizens $7, 6, 5
UMas Student Discount $6, 5, 4
Tickets now on sale at FAC Box Office (M-F, Noon - 5 PM) and Ticketron Outlets. Mail orders, phone reservations, group discounts, group dinner-theater packages available.

Q: What makes Iggy Pop?

By STEVE WINNIMAN
Collegian Staff

Iggy Pop
Soldier* (Arista)

At 32, Iggy Pop deserves a citation for service above and beyond the call of duty. He has starved, bled, nearly died, recovered, and ultimately truimphed, all for the love of rock and roll. And, as evidenced by his latest album and concert tour, Iggy is not only a veteran, but a three-star general.

The Ig's career began with a series of rock and blues bands in the mid-sixties, which led to his first major band, The Stooges, in 1969. At a time when most rock bands were becoming slick and streamlined (not to mention boring), the Stooges were raw and raucous. While the band blasted out a few riffs behind him, Iggy screamed, croaked, cried, and occasionally sang his way into the audience's hears. Well, almost. Although such stunts as smearing himself with peanut butter and shredding his chest with broken glass earned Iggy an infamous reputation, the Stooges remained too raw for mass acceptance, and after two albums they flamed out in a welter of drugs and debts, in 1972. Revived the following year by David Bowie, they released their magnificent final album, Raw Power before splitting up for good.

After a few years spent in sanitariums, living with his parents, mowing lawns, etc. Iggy made a solo comeback in 1977. Punk was in full bloom and although Iggy's three solo albums on RCA were rather forgettable, concert audiences welcomed him with open arms. But Iggy seemed to have lost his special edge, and even with Bowie accompanying him, his albums and concerts seemed fairly ordinary.

Then in 1978 Iggy switched record labels and put out New Values on Arista. He was reborn. All the old Iggy mannerisms-the repeating, catch riffs, the strong vocals, the angry bite-were there, but New Values also revealed a more mature artist. Iggy's songwriting had become quite special, and the addition of horns, strings, and synthesizers fleshed out the guitar-bass-drums combo but did not diminish its energy.

This brings us to Soldier, Iggy's latest album on Arista.

Soldier is a very good album. Recorded with the New Values touring band which includes ex-Sex Pistols bassist Glen Matlock, Soldier contains some of Iggy's finest material to date. The album contains one song co-written with Bowie and four with Matlock, as well as four from Iggy alone, one from Glen, and one other. Songs like "Dog Food," "Knockin' 'Em Down in the City," and "I Snub You" show Iggy at his rocking, snotty, sarcastic best. The Pop/Bowie tune, "Play it Safe" is a portrait of a rebellious personality trying to survive in a conformist world. "I'm a Conservative" would be a perfect theme song for Ronald Reagan's presidential campaign (providing Ronnie can't figure out the irony). "Get Up and Get Out" is a haunting, jazzy tune featuring a smooth saxaphone and Iggy's voice. Soldier looks like it will be Iggy's most commercially successful album yet, and deservedly so.

I only wish I had liked Iggy live as much as I do on record. At his March 8th concert at Hartford's Stage West, I just couldn't overcome Iggy's extreme hostility toward the audience long enough to really enjoy the music. Pressed up against the stage, I could see people on all sides being punched and Michael Roif chooses a blank tape from the wide selection available at Record Village in the Hampshire Mall in Hadley. The store also carries a wide selection of records and tapes to satisfy everybody's musical tastes.

Rich Newman

Something Different
Good Thyme Deli & Food Shoppe
Carrying a wide variety of bulk spices and herbs—dry beans and rice—dried fruits—tea from Twinings, Jackson, Celestial Seasonings, McGrath, and Wagner—Coffee beans in bulk—Chinese, German, Italian, Mexican and Middle Eastern specialty foods—fine quality cheeses—delicious homemade cookies, baklava, and cheesecake, homemade soups, salads, and baked beans, quality cold meats, including Italian and German specialties—Great sandwiches to go—catering—and so much more. . . . . .
At the Old Armory on King St.
Northampton, Mass
584-6195

the soup kitchen scrumptious homemade soups, chili, salads, quiche, desserts. . .
Open Daily
159 Main St.
Northampton
584-4458

PIZZARAMA
355 College St.
PIZZAS GRINDERS SPAGHETTI
NEW GREEK SALAD $2.00

M-Th 11-1:30 AM
F-Sun 11-2:30 AM
FREE DELIVERY
Phone 253-3808 256-0115

Valley Typing
is changing its name
wordpro
Text & information processing services
Word Processing · OCR Scanning
Phototypesetting
Typing · Copying
Monday—Friday 10-6, Sat. 10-2
29 So. Pleasant St. • Amherst • 256—6736
same great service
with a brand new name

Doug Paulding

John Bell prepares some pizzas for his regular deliveries to UMass dormitories.

Book on Beatles out

By ROB HUFFMAN
Collegian Staff

A Twist Of Lennon, by Cynthia Lennon (Avon Books)

When the Beatles hit America in August 1964, John Lennon was already married, with a young son to boot. Being shy in nature, his wife Cynthia stayed out of the public eye as much as possible - often remaining at home during Beatles tours, or vacationing in Europe with their son Julian.

After one such vacation on the coast of Italy, she found a strange pair of Japanese slippers in the bedroom of their mansion south of London; this tell-tale footwear spelled the end of John Lennon's first marriage.

Cynthia Powell was not a jet setter or a groupie. She first came into contact with John at Liverpool Art College because both had similar vision problems. On their early dates, George Harrison would tag along, unaware that he was being a nuisance. In A Twist Of Lennon, Cynthia telis about the "Fab Four's fall from innocence, their unprecedented successes, and the very real people who got left behind: Pete Best, Stu Sutcliffe, Brian Epstein, the Maharashi, and herself.

Of the many books which have been published about Mr. Lennon and Co., this is one of the few to be written in the first person. But A Twist Of Lennon covers a wider range of years than, say, Brian Epstein's Cellarfull of Noise, following the group from Art School to the Magical Mystery Tour daze, as well as offering a unique view of a fascinating and influential man.

Ms. Lennon (this seems to be her chosen surname) illustrates her book with drawings and poems which, like herself, are sensitive and naive. She uses a great deal of quaint British slang in talking of her former husband, a man who wasn't always easy to live with. She relates, for instance, that one to express displeasure with her new haircut, John refused to talk to her for two days. He was, however, willing to pay for Cynthia to have a nose job performed by a prominent plastic surgeon. She unblushingly talks about experiences such as these, as well as their hurried marriage when she became pregnant, and the Beatles use of drugs (which, by the way, she says she never condoned).

call:
586-5158
You too can have
GIANT PASTRAMI SANDWICHES
(as well as chopped liver, hummus, brie, cannoli, baklava or Chinese almond cookies!) At...
THE GROCERY
235 Main St., Northampton

Bring this ad in for a 10% discount on any sandwich café silverscape café silverscape café

Natural Vegetarian Cuisine

Cafe Specials
- Quiche & Salad $2.50
- Salvalai Soave $1 per glass

Cappuccino Expresso
Fine Wines Import Bar
Liquors

Full Take Out Service
8 am - Midnight Mon-Sat
noon - midnight Sun.

Coffee Beans

BRAZILIAN BOURBON SANTOS CAFE BLEND COLUMBIAN MEDELLIN EXCELISO FRENCH ROAST GUATEMALAN ITALIAN ROAST HIGH MTN JAMAICAN STYLE VENEZUELAN TACHIRA	$3.99
KENYA AA NEW ORLEANS CHICORY MOCHA 100% MOCHA JAVA	$4.49
FRENCH ROAST DECAF VIENNESE CINNAMON	$4.89

CHOCOLATE ALMOND $4.79

THE YELLOW HOUSE. 264 n. pleasant, amherst ma. 253-3447

Take a course in Good Eating from Bells

* Greek Salads
* Tossed Salads
* Pizzza
* Grinders
* Spaghetti

Bells Pizza House

Sun.-Thurs. 11-1 am
Fri. & Sat. 11-2 am
65 University Drive
549-1311 253-9051

SPRING is Just Around OUR Corner

BART'S

Hrs. 7:30-11:30 Daily
249 Main St., Northampton

Paul Price

Bruno Matarazzo, owner of Pinocchio Pizza in North Amherst, puts some finishing touches on a delicious pizza before baking.

Sylvain - backgroundman; Can he handle it solo?

By STEVE WINNIMAN
Collegian Staff

As guitarist and keyboardist for the New York Dolls, Syl Sylvain stayed in the background mostly, occasionally adding vocal harmonies but mainly staying out of Johnny Thunders' and David Johansen's way.

His first solo band, the Criminals, released only one 45 and remain virtually unknown. And Syl's most recent outing with the David Johansen Group only seemed to confirm Syl's place as a sideman. So when this perennial second fiddle starts his own band and releases a solo album, the big question is, "Can he handle it - alone?"

The answer is a gratifying, if somewhat surprising, "yes." From the first strums of an acoustic guitar at the beginning of "Teenage News" to the last sax notes of the instrumental "Tonight," Sylvain Sylvain cooks. As co-writer of many of the Dolls' and Johansen's best songs, Syl's songwriting abilities have never been in doubt, and he shows them off here to their best capacity. The album contains hard rockers such as "Teenage News," as well as funk ("14th Street Beat") ballads ("Without You"), and earnest love songs ("Deeper and Deeper"), displaying a wider range than ever before. Syl also has the class to list C. Willis, from whom he copped a few licks, as co-author of "What's That Got to Do With Rock and Roll?" The variety of songs is a refreshing change form so many they all sound alike albums today.

Syl's singing is surprisingly strong for a guy who's rarely sung solo before. The band, comprised of members of the Criminals and the first David Johansen Group,is also quite tight and together, although it remains to be seen what they can do live. The production on this album is clear and to the point, neither adding to nor detracting from the arrangements themselves.

Even though there's no real reason why it shouldn't, it would surprise me if this record became a commercial success. Sylvain Sylvain is just too nice a guy to be playing civic centers and acting like Peter Frampton. Commercial success has eluded Syl for so long now that I can't see it ever happening. But Sylvain Sylvain is a great record, perfect for when the radio starts to sound like an elevator. This is a very good was for Syl to start a decade.

La Cucina di
PINOCCHIO
1177 N. Pleasant St., Amherst, Mass.
Tel. 549-3669

"The only Italian Pizza Shop in Amherst"

Free Delivery from5 p.m. - 3 a.m.
Sunday 4 p.m. - 2 a.m.

The Rusty Scupper
Rte. 9, 529 Belchertown Rd.
East of Amherst Center

A NICE PLACE TO GATHER WITH FRIENDS

* Private Parties up to 40 in our Woodshed Room
* Sandwiches in our Lounge
* Live Entertainment on Weekends

Reservations recommended
256-8351

SPRING FASHION SHOW 1980
LATEST IN MENS - WOMENS FASHION

QUONSET REST.

April 11 8-2 A.M.
FEATURING THE AREAS TOP FASHION SHOW

WEATHERVANE - CASUAL CORNER - CHESS KING
JONATHAN REID LTD. - ANGOTTI
HAIR by DAVID WHITMAN

TICKETS: 2.50 IN ADVANCE
3.00 AT DOOR

Available:

HAMPSHIRE MALL STORES
INGLESIDE MALL STORES
FACES OF EARTH
DAVID WHITMAN, AMHERST
ANGOTTI, NORTHAMPTON
QR DISCO, HADLEY

QUONSET RT. 9 HADLEY CALL 253-9214
PARTY April 9 MARTIAN HIGHWAY 8-1 AM
April 12 Rock Band New Wave Music

Doug Pasching

A DJ performs at the QR in Hadley casual wear for women & men • unique accessories • gifts

FACES
A Store-full of Ideas

Gift Certificates Available

Downtown Amherst /Open 10-6, Mon.-Sat.

PULSAR®
QUARTZ

JP008
Gold-tone
$140

UY006
Gold-tone, black dial
$125

Quartz accuracy
with a lean and elegant look.
(At a lean and modest price.)

High fashion in dress watches calls for a slim look. And that's just what Pulsar Quartz is giving you. And we kept the near-perfect quartz timekeeping ability and history-making low prices. But even though the watches are slim, they still have features like a sweep second hand, instant setting calendar and stainless steel or gold tone case with matching strap or bracelet. Plus approximately two-year battery life so you never have to wind a watch again.
Pulsar® Quartz.
Always a beat beyond. In technology. In value.

Fred J Houck Jeweler

MEMBER AGS AMERICAN GEM SOCIETY

The Ramones new sonic rush unequaled

By PERRY ADLER
Special to the Collegian

The Ramones
End of the Century (Sire)

End of the Century? How about Album of the Century? This may be the greatest rock'n'roll LP ever made.

That's a pretty strong statement, but forget all those noun groups, THIS is what power pop should be. Never before have such great tunes been driven home with so much force. The Clash may be more versatile, Talking Heads more innovative, but no one can equal the new Ramones for pure sonic rush. And that's the bottom line.

End of the Century was produced by Phil Spector, creator of the Crystals' "Da Doo Ron Ron," the Ronettes' "Be My Baby," the Righteous Brothers' "You've Lost That Lovin' Feelin'," and Ike and Tina Turner's "River Deep Mountain High," all from the early-to-mid-60's, and each one many people's choice for the best record of all time. he also produced several John Lennon records, which weren't in his usual style, and George Harrison's All Things Must Pass, which was more typical and can serve as an example of his "wall of sound" technique for you youngsters: it's a massive, overpowering sound achieved through echo and lots of overdubbing.

Spector's reputation has sagged of late due to a number of string-laden dirges, and so his collaboration with the Ramones was anticipated with both hope and fear—what would rock'n'roll's leading minimalists sound like when its leading maximalist got a hold of them? The answer is the end of the world, not just the century (a feeling reinforced by the timely military or apocalyptic lyrics of many of the songs). This is Spector's finest long-playing work ever; it re-establishes him as the premier record producer of the ages.

Listen to the incredible drum sound and gorgeous Harrison-esque guitar break on "I'm Affected"; the chimes and Duane Eddy-twangy guitar on "I Can't Make It On Time"; the improvement of the remake of "Rock'n'Roll High School" upon the original soundtrack version; ditto "The Return of Jackie and Judy" upon its forebear, "Judy Is a Punk"; the dramatic build-up that makes "Danny Says" the best slow song the Ramones have done; and the way the backup harmonies all over the record are finally as audible as they should always have been. The dreaded strings appear only on the cover version of the Spector/Ronettes classic, "Baby I Love You"; if one accepts that the original could not be surpassed, that duplication would have been pointless and that this campy arrangement is not to be taken seriously, then the strings pass by providing one of the album's few belly laughs (more on that later).

Not all the credit for this masterpiece is due Spector. The progression the catalysts of modern punk have been making continues. Joey sings better than ever, Johnny adds more acoustic strumming and lead guitar to his usual sledgehammer rhythm, and Marky plays more complex drum patterns than he or his predecessor Tommy ever did before. More importantly, the material is the most consistent batch they've come up with yet; for the first time, there are very few echoes in the songs of other Ramones songs (excepting, of course, the intended sequel mentioned above).

All of these changes have made each successive Ramones LP palatable to more and more people who found their previous work (or their live shows) too simple. But until the latest one, each record was also a bit toned-

Unfortunately, you probably don't remember, but it's that feeling that has driven people like the Ramones to form bands and play music that attempts to recapture that magic, even when all the commercial odds were stacked against them. It's that feeling that has caused others to spend countless hours proselytizing for these artists in the media, even when other activities would be more immediately beneficial to themselves (like homework, for example).

End of the Century fulfils our greatest desire: by combining the raw energy technology made possible this decade with the melodic virtues of the pre-"progressive" era, it not only equals the best of the past (from the Beatles on down) but surpasses it.

This is the last time this person's gonna proselytize in these pages. If enough of you support this record, the end of the century could be filled with memories of "Rock'n'Roll Radio." But the Ramones, without whom you would never have had all your precious Cars and Knack albums, by the way (or James White and the Blacks, not to mention the Clash), are probably going to throw in the towel if this one doesn't make it. And Spector has been relatively underproductive (you should pardon the expression) ever since "River Deep Mountain High" bombed; whether or not he gets back in full swing, as he so eminently should, may depend on the fate of this record, too. As may the entire future of rock'n'roll: End of the Century is the ultimate solution to the noise/wimp dichotomy that has plagued music since the late 60's, and that even New Wave otherwise seems to be re-creating. Why don't you buy copies for all your friends?

Popping champagne at Four Seasons in Hadley

Wayne Rosenberg

FOUR SEASONS

Come in and talk to us. We will be happy to describe the wines you're interested in and to suggest that perfect wine for a special dinner or occasion.
CHECK OUR PRICES!
CHECK OUR SELECTION!
Come see the wines from those small California "Boutique" Vineyards. The ones you have read about but cannot find anywhere.

Wines/Liquors
rte.9, hadley, ma./584-8174
in front of the malls

Carlo of Naples
foods of Italy

Now serving wine and beer.

45 State Street, Northampton, Mass. 01060, 584-9722

Plentiful pizza places please area palates

by DEBBIE WALLACE
Collegian Staff

A popular pastime for college students is devouring a piping hot, delicacy, sloshed with tomato sauce, sizzling with cheese, and complimented by choice extras such as sausage, peppers, mushrooms and the like.

There are many area pizza places, with a variety of prices, delivery times, charges for extras, and service.

Pinnocchio's, 1177 North Pleasant Street in Amherst, has the most consistantly hot, tasty, delicious pizza. The spices are blended to perfection, cheese is not scrimped on and delivery is usually on schedule.

Whole Wheat Pizza, 363 Main in Amherst, offers unusually good pizza made with whole wheat dough and all natural ingredients. The good blend includes fresh vegetables, and a good spicy tomato sauce. They deliver to UMass, Amherst College and various places throughout the Amherst area. Open daily from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. they give an added freebe; two cokes with a small pizza and four with a large.

Spaghetti and Pizzahouse, 33 Market Street, Northampton, offers consistently delicious pizza. They offer good prices, but have no delivery. Joe's is also a restaurant. An excellent place to enjoy a Saturday night with friends. Joe's hours; Mon.-Fri 3 p.m. to 12 a.m. Sat. 12-12, and Sun. 1-12.

Bells pizza, 65 University Drive, Amherst delivers to UMass and Amherst and sometimes Hampshire College. Drinks are not always delivered. They deliver after 8 p.m. Bell's pizza ranges from good to mediocre. They also offer a wide selection of adequate grinders. Hours: 10 a.m. to 2 a.m. week-ends.

College Pizza, Fearing St. in Amherst also offers a good blend of ingredients.

Other area pizza places include: Campus Pizza, 206 Russell St. in Hadley. The Hungry-U, 55 University Drive in Amherst. Howard Pizza, 257 Main St. Northampton. Figuro's in the Hampshire Mall, Hadley. Papa Gino's on Russell St. Hadley. The UMass Campus Center Blue Wall also offers pizza and grinders 5-10:30 p.m. Mon.-Sat.

Happy pizza Eating!

Doug Pagitt photo

Preparing pizza at Campus Pizza in Hadley

An Invitation to Step Into the:

BATTER'S BOX INC.

NOW OPEN
M-Th 10:00 A.M.-10:00 P.M.
Fri. 10:00 A.M.-11:00 P.M.
Sat. & Sun. 9:00 A.M.-11 P.M.

New England's Newest and most attractive Batting Range
Rt. 9 Hadley
(just past the Malls)

Featuring the "Casey" Pitching Machine for baseball and softball

Slow-Medium-Fast Piches:
Great for Softball Players
Pros
Little Leaguers

Take Time Out
—Before/After the Game
—After a movie
—After work/study
—Lunch Break

Ask about our low Group rates:
Great for Team Practice, Fraternity and Sorority parties, Birthday parties and Dorms

Gift Certificates also Available

Call 584-7766
or Stop by for more Information

CAMPUS PIZZA
in Hadley
586-3880
Delicious Pizza - Grinders
Spaghetti - BQ Chicken
A 1 Roast Beef
Lasagna

Come In - Try and COMPARE
Beer and Wine
Most Brands of Beer 75c/bottle
Sun-Thur 11 AM - 1 AM
Fri-Sat 11 AM - 2 AM
Rt 9 between Amherst & Northampton

Main St. Records
150 Main St. Northampton
Massachusetts largest selection of imported & domestic New Wave
586-5726

Homemade Ice Cream
Soft Serve Ice Cream
Daisy's
"Our hearts go into our waffles"
Try Daisy's unique waffles
Open:
5 AM - 4 PM
549-6643
Across from Watroba's

Buzzcocks deliver energetic punk

By BRETT MILANO
Collegian Staff

The Buzzcocks
A Different Kind of Tension

The Buzzcocks are, arguably, the best singles band to come out of England in the past three years. So far they have released nine singles, and each one is a deft combination of punk energy with irresistable melodies.

Most of their songs are confined to the same subject (unrequited love), but it's pretty much a universal subject, and one which can be handled from any number of angles. A typical Buzzcocks single might give a poignant view of the subject on the A-side ("What Do I Get?") and a decidedly different view on the flip ("Oh Shit!")

The Buzzcocks' first American album, Singles Going Steady, was a US-only compilation of their first eight British singles. At least ten of its sixteen songs were potential classics, making it a far more consistent record than any of their "official" British albums.

A Different Kind of Tension is their newest official album, and the American release is identical to the British one. It does include both songs from their latest single, "You Say You Don't Love Me" and "Raison d'Etre." As usual, both songs are masterful—the first is 60's pop played with 70's energy; the second is even faster and louder. Both are written by vocalist Pete Shelley, who contributes most of the band's material.

The album's finale, "I believe", is something that few bands have been able to pull off: a seven minute punk song.

The non-singles material on the album also has its moments. Guitarist Steve Diggle contributes three songs, all of which are powerful rockers. Shelley's songs are up to standard: the beat never lets up, his vocals are heartfelt, and titles like "I Don't Know What To Do With My Life" speak for themselves. The album's finale, "I Believe," is something that few bands have been able to pull off: a seven-minute punk song. It builds surely and steadily, before fading out with Shelley's voice crying, "There is no love in this world any more!" Potent stuff, for sure.

The Buzzcocks have successfully made the transition from singles band to album band. There may not be an "Orgasm Addict" here, but there is adequate proof that tension can be fun.

Chris Grove

Popcorn is just one of the munchies available at the concessions stand of the Hampshire 4 Cinemas at the Hampshire Mall.

Would you let your roomate take out your tonsils?

Not unless your roomate was your family doctor. . .you wouldn't. Yet too many people trust the maintainance of their family auto to friends and neighbors.

AN AUTOMOBILE IS A HUGE INVESTMENT TODAY! And it's complex maintainance should be entrusted to people who are trained specialists in auto repair.

WE EMPLOY MECHANICS CERTIFIED BY National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence
Let us show you their credentials

Dick Yourga George Ryznic Joe Sacco Jim Barnes Mike Kolosewicz

VISA

master charge

PLAZA SHELL
Rte. 9 (West) 253-9000 Amherst
At Amherst/Hadley Town Line

FOR DAY OR NIGHT

...IT'S STAGELIGHT

STAGELIGHT Cosmetics
the new cosmetics
FACES
A Store-full of Ideas
Downtown Amherst /Open 10-6, Mon.-Sat.

C&C C&C C&C C&C

LIQUORS:
Canadian Mist.....qts. $6.95
Vodka Special.....qts. $4.99
WINES:
Cartier Blanc de Blanc.....750 ml $2.25 case $23.99
Cumbero White.....750 ml $2.60 case $28.00
Cler Blanc.....1 liter $3.99 case $42.99
BEERS:
Pearl Lite.....NR's $7.29 case
Rolling Rock.....12 oz. Ret $7.30 case & deposit Utica Club.....16 oz. Ret $6.25 case & deposit

C & C LIQUORS
Behind the Police Station
For Off Campus Delivery 253-3091

C&C C&C C&C C&C

Paul Price

Rick Derringer performs at the Rusty Nail Friday night to a packed crowd. he is among the big names that appear at the bar every week.

Paul Price

Patty Troped waits for another pitch at Ben Page's Batter's Box on Rt. 9 Hadley. Ben said he will soon be getting a softball machine to go along with the baseball ones.

Paul Price

Patrons enjoy the fine cooking of Dan Sobanski of Rooster's in North Amherst.

the rusty nail Inn

PRESENTS

Friday April 11

JAMES COTTON
Tickets $4

Saturday April 19

NRBQ
Tickets $5

Friday April 25

JAMES MONTGOMERY
Tickets $3

Saturday April 26

JONATHAN EDWARDS
Special Guest:
Kate Taylor
(sister of James Taylor)

Rte. 47
Sunderland

Open til 2

665-4937
24 hour taped message

The Incredible Edible Egg • The Incredible Edible Egg •

THE ONE & ONLY

ROOSTER'S
Restaurant

with the "Incredible Edible Egg!"

— April Special —
With any complete breakfast get 7 oz. juice
FREE
— Lunch Specials Every Day —
. . . made in our kitchen featuring special super-sized rolls.

open 7 days a week
Mon. - Fri. 5 a.m.-4 p.m.
Sat. - Sun. 5 a.m.-6 p.m.
breakfast and lunch

138 Old Sunderland Road
North Amherst
Easy Access for Handicapped

The Incredible Edible Egg • The Incredible Edible Egg •

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY

Collegian

VOLUME CIX, ISSUE 115 — Student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst — Monday, April 7, 1980

Survey cites faults in drinking age

By CHUCK KILFOYE
Special to the Collegian

The legal drinking age in Massachusetts may be 20, but if UMass is any indication of the law's effectiveness then it becomes obvious the law leaves much to be desired.

A telephone survey was recently conducted by the Student Affairs Research and Evaluation Office and Project Pulse of 190 UMass students on what they think about the new drinking age law. The survey also questioned the effectiveness of the law in curbing under-age drinking. It showed 64.7 percent of the students polled disagreed with the new law, while only 16.3 percent were in agreement.

Melton Miller, Southwest Area director, was asked to comment on the law's effectiveness in preventing 18 and 19-year-old students from drinking. "Obviously, it has not. It is not effective in that respect at all," he said. "There appears to be more students drinking in the dormitories now than before."

(Staff photo by Paul Price)

Amherst Police Chief Donald Maia said "it is still too early to tell how effective the law is because we're getting into the spring, and that's a busy time for us." But, he added, "Over the last seven months there has been an increase in the number of off campus disturbances and the arrests for possession of alcoholic beverages."

During the fiscal year 1979, Amherst police had only 17 arrests for under-age drinking. Since the new law took effect last April, there have a total of 65 arrests of under-age drinkers.

"The new law is putting 18 and 19-year-olds in the position of criminal prosecution and creating a greater workload upon my department," Maia said. "I was not in favor of the increase in the drinking age for those reasons. I have always felt the students in the Amherst area have been good citizens for the most part."

66.9 percent of the respondents said they think the law had little effect on drunk driving, vandalism and poor academic performance by students. However, 31 percent of the students questioned felt the law had a positive impact on student conduct and academic performance.

Only 15.4 percent of the under-age students claimed to have reduced their alcohol consumption as a result of the new law.

While the change in the drinking age apparently did not affect the frequency or the amount of alcohol use by under-20 students, it did influence where those students who now go to drink. When the 20-year-old drinking age was put into effect last April, the percentage of students drinking in dorms rose from 17.6 percent to 49.4 percent. The number of students who previously attended bars and restaurants dropped from 33 percent to a low of 11 percent.

80.2 percent of the unde age students polled claimed the new law has had no change in their alcohol consumption.

Action ends at Vernon; cops, protestors happy

By MARC FAGELSON
Collegian Staff

VERNON, VT. — The protestors arrived last Sunday at the Vermont Yankee Nuclear Power Plant in silence and left seven days later with a song and cheers for the cops who, on orders from Gov. Richard Snelling, did not arrest them during the occupation.

The week-long occupation of the plant by 50 to 150 demonstrators was a victory for the protestors themselves, as well as the anti-nuclear movement. Chris Wood, a Vermont Yankee Decommisioning Alliance member said that contacting the Governor and bringing him to Vernon, gave the demonstration "visibility and credibility."

The week featured surprise tactical victory for the police and the Vermont State legislature. Snelling devised a policy to contain the demonstrators without arresting them by moving the demonstrators away from the plant's gate. Access to the plant was blocked only during the early hours of the demonstration last Sunday. Because of cooperation on both sides, the week's developments were orderly and the courts were kept clear.

To Vernon residents, it was a week of "frustration, anger and concern" over what they saw as the state's condoning of the occupation.

Yankee officials reacted to the action of the police with "open-mouthed shock" and found it impossible to remove the deomonstrators from the plant's parking lot. Who would they have called, the police?

The drama began when more than 1,000 demonstrators blocked the gates of the plant last Sunday and presented a petition calling for the plant's immediate closing with more than 8,000 signatures. The police, acting on orders from Snelling, waited until the crowd dwindled to a more managable level before they began arresting the protestors. Snelling's strategy worked as those arrested were processed without the legal nightmare that confronted the courts last September when police arrested 200 out of 500 demonstrators at the plant.

By Monday, the remaining deonstrators, some of whom had been arrested and had returned, established a "Vital Village" in the plant's parking lot. They confirmed their plans to occupy the plant for one week.

The week featured a surprise tactical victory for the police and the Vermont state legislature. Snelling devised a plan to contain the demonstrators without arresting them.

Wednesday, however, the town residents were voicing their displeasure about the situation. They sent a petition to Snelling with 69 sigantures requesting the immediate arrest of the protestors. He readied the police at hand for a mass arrest but at a last minute meeting with Vernon's Board of Selectmen on Thursday, his policy was accepted by the town. Both inevitably benefitted from the choice.

Snelling spoke briefly with the demonstrators and said, "You've made your point. Please leave at your earliest possible moment."

The protestors left without the help of police on Saturday, seven days and one hour after they began the occupation. With the police, they proved a peaceful demonstration can occur, and receive the attention it merits, without turning into a morass of arrests and non-cooperation.

Although the realtionship with the town was tenuous — the demonstrators were accused of defecating on private property — they had help from a powerful governor.

Charlie Guerard performs acrobatics on his Suzuki 500 Saturday on Fearing St. (Staff photo by Paul Price)

Demonstrators march Wednesday in support of Spanish language programming at WFCR. (Staff photo by Chris Grewe)

Que tal, WFCR?

By JACK GALLAGHER
Collegian Staff

Change will come to WFCR.

"Obviously, one of the problems," Dan Melley, Western Massachusetts Broadcasting Council Chairman, said yesterday, "is it was operated under loose arrangements."

Ending a 56-hour occupation of Chancellor Henry Koffler's office Wednesday, the Coalition for Public Improvement in Public Radio, which occupied the office in protest of a cutback in air time for the spanish-language program "Que Tal Amigos?," will meet with council members as soon as possible. Melley, who also works for the University as director of community relations, said "trying to get hold of the 10 members of the council...has taken time."

During the occupation, a five-person negotiating team representing the coalition kept in touch with members of the council and Koffler in the hope of reaching an agreement.

Carlos Valdez, a coalition member, said he expects the council to meet with members of the coalition "sometime

TURN TO PAGE 3

Hostages wait, observe Easter

By The Associated Press

Easter services were held yesterday for the American hostages in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and the captives were reported to be in excellent condition by visiting clergymen.

Iran's ruling Revolutionary Council reached a decision, to be made public today, on a plan to transfer them from the custody of Islamic militants to government control, it was announced.

As he emerged from the 4¼- hour council meeting, Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said a decision had been reached on the hostage transfer but that it would not be announced until Monday. It was understood the council would seek approval from Iranian revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini before making a formal statement.

in Washington, U.S. officials said the Carter administration might decide on a new set of sanctions against Iran "within 24 hours" because of the failure of efforts to transfer the hostages.

There have been clear signs of a strong division of opinion in the Revolutionary Council on taking custody of the 50 Americans, who have already spent Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's in captivity. Easter Sunday was their 155th day in the occupied embassy.

One of the three American clerymen who visited the hostages, the Rev. Nelson Thompson of Kansas City, Mo., a Methodist, said militant representatives were always present when he spoke to the hostages. Another Methodist minister, the Rev. Jack Bremer of Lawrence, Kan., told a brief news conference there was a variety of views among the captives about the embassy seizure and hostage-taking.

The Rev. Darrell Rupiper, a Roman Catholic priest from Omaha, Neb., said the militants asked the clergymen not to tell the hostages anything about the political developments surrounding their future. He said he and the others agreed because the news would have placed the captives under additional mental stress.

Iran's official Pars news agency, meanwhile, quoting unidentified sources, said an international commission "has been formed and has taken steps in solving the issue of the American hostages."

Ghotbzadeh denied the report.

Carter adminstration officials said they had nothing to do with the reported new group and that the U.S. government was not willing to delay putting pressure on Iran. They said sanctions would include a U.S.-Iran trade embargo excluding food and medicine and reducing the number of Iranian diplomats allowed in the country. Other steps might be taken, said one official who asked for anonymity.

Earle Spring, 78, died early Sunday morning in the Holyoke Geriatric Center after a long illness. Spring, a Greenfield native, was involved in the right-to-die case which his family had brought to court saying that he should be allowed to die. (AP Laserphoto)

Talks resume

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Carter resorts again to summit diplomacy this week in an effort to preserve the outstanding foreign policy accomplishment of his administration, the Camp David peace process.

Carter will be host to President Anwar Sadat of Egypt for three days of discussions, starting with Sadat's arrival Monday afternoon. Next week, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin will meet with Carter for two days.

No three-way summit along the lines of the 1978 Camp David meeting is now scheduled. But American and Egyptian officials say that such a meeting could occur later.

Looming over the summit talks is the May 26 "target date" for completion of a plan to grant autonomy to the West Bank and Gaza Strip, the next phase envisioned by the Camp David peace terms. The three leaders set the May 26 goal for themselves when they signed the Egypt-Israel peace treaty last year.

Thus far, Egypt and Israel, with the help of American mediators, have not come close to resolving their difficult and bitter differences over how to deal with the two territories, which Israel has occupied since 1967 and which are home to hundreds of thousands of Palestinian Arabs.

If the three nations ultimately fail, the entire Camp David process could be jeopardized. Although the 1979 peace treaty is not legally dependent on the successful completion of an autonomy plan, there are links, both on paper and in the minds of the participants.

Failure to achieve an acceptable autonomy plan could stop the progress Egypt and Israel have made toward peace and start Egypt drifting back toward the Arab states which have never accepted the Camp David terms because they do not guarantee the right of selfdetermination for the Palestinian Arabs.

Cubans seek asylum in Peru

LIMA, Peru (AP) — An estimated 8,000-10,000 Cubans seeking asylum abroad jammed inside the Peruvian Embassy compound in Havana on Sunday, with some finding space by climbing trees and others perching on the embassy roof, the Foreign Ministry announced.

It said angry pro-government Cubans gathered outside the compound, throwing sticks and stones into the embassy grounds and injuring a number of persons.

"It is an unmanageable situation for our embassy personnel," the ministry said in a communique issued in Lima.

The rush to the Peruvian Embassy began Friday when Cuban authorities withdrew police from guard duty outside the compound. President Fidel Castro's communist government said the action was taken because a policeman was killed there Tuesday during a gunfight as six Cubans seeking asylum crashed a bus through the embassy gate. Three occupants of the bus reportedly were wounded.

Peru's Foreign Ministry said it was appealing to Havana's diplomatic community, the U.N. High Commission for Refugees and the International Red Cross "for humanitarian support to help the many people suffering the consequences of being deprived of food and necessary services."

Some of the Cubans packed inside the compound were suffering from dehydration, sunstroke, gastroenteritis and trauma, the Foreign Ministry communique said. It did not say how many persons had been injured by the objects thrown inside the compound by pro-Castro Cubans on the outside.

"The Peruvian Foreign Ministry hopes that the quick aid requested will permit the alleviation of the situation of these people," the communique said.

"There are people in the branches of the trees, on top of the destroyed iron grating and even on the roof of the embassy," Jorge Gordillo, public relations chief for the Foreign Ministry, said.

Syrian Catholic Archbishop Hilarion Capudji gestures during a news conference at the U.S. embassy in Tehran yesterday. Capudji and three American clergymen visited the hostages yesterday and said they found them in good shape.

GOODWILL
Neat Stuff
Low Prices
37 Main St.
Northampton

Actuarial Career Opportunities

Sun Life of Canada's United States Headquarters, located in Wellesley Hills, Mass. is seeking candidates for its actuarial career development program.

Representatives from Sun Life of Canada will be conducting on-campus interviews on Friday, April 11.

To set up an interview, contact the career placement office

SunLife OF CANADA
U.S. Headquarters
Wellesley Hills, MA

An equal opportunity employer M/F

OMEGA BOOKS galore
COMICS
MOVIE POSTERS
BUY AND SELL
(SOME TRADE)
QUALITY USED BOOKS
10-1230 2-500 MON-SAT
213 MAIN NORTHAMPTON

PRETERM
If you have an unwanted pregnancy...
talk with one of our counselors about your decision.
Abortion/Gynecological Care/Vasectomy/Tubal Ligation
A licensed non-profit Reproductive Health Center
1842 BEACON ST., BROOKLINE, MASS. 02146
(617) 738-6210
PRETERM

John Carpenter couldn't decide between Marine Biology and Law.

His counselor could have helped.

If he'd only asked. You see, that's what counselors are for. They can help you plan your career before you graduate. Which is precisely the topic of our next issue of "Insider"—the free supplement to your college newspaper from Ford.

We'll tell you how counselors can help take the mystery out of planning a successful career. By figuring out what you're best suited for . . . and then helping you go after it. Success doesn't have to be a big secret—if you plan it right.

And while you're checking out the next issue of "Insider," be sure to check out Ford's exciting lineup for 1980. They've got some great ideas for getting you wherever you're going, in style.

"Insider"—Ford's continuing series of college newspaper supplements is coming next week. Look for it.

FORD
FORD DIVISION

Around campus

Southwest elections coming

The Southwest Area Assembly will be holding elections on Thursday, April 17, from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the Southwest Dining Commons. Open positions are Presidents, Vice-Presidents, Treasurer and Communications Coordinator. Nomination papers are now available and are due back by Wednesday, April 9, at 5:30 p.m. There will be a mandatory meeting for all candidates on April 9 at 5:30 p.m.

Program taking applications

The Human Servicesram is now accepting applicaitons for undergraduate students interested in enrolling in the program for next fall. Applications are now available in the Human Services office on the third floor of Hills South and the deadline for returning the forms is April 11. An open house for students interested in the program will be held on Tuesday, April 8, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in 105 Hills Central.

Rally organizational meeting

An organizaitonal meeting for an ante-repression Mother's Day demonstration in solidarity with people of Latin America will be held Monday, April 7, at 7 p.m. in Campus Center rooms 171-173.

Building commission: who's talking, what they're saying

By DAVID HERN
Associated Press

BOSTON — The first challenge to the building corruption commission comes this week with the appearance of potentially hostile witnesses.

This is a second phase of what could be a significant expose involving public service.

The commission has provided a graphic picture of links between unbid professional contracts and political contributions. Before it completes its work in late June, it is expected to demonstrate how these ties led to weak administration and sloppy work that cost taxpayers tens of millions of dollars.

While there have been indications that many professional firms acted ethically in their public dealings during this period, it is an uneasy time for a few companies, locally and on the national scene — the willing, even if reluctant, partners in improper payoffs.

These are some of the characters identified during the hearings.

FRANK R. MASIELLO Jr. A former Worcester architect, now of West Palm Beach, Fla., Masiello spent five days on the stand as the commission's first witness. Masiello, 54, testifying under immunity from prosecution, told of making payoffs and political contributions, legal and illegal, to secure building design contracts at the state level, Worcester County and Boston.

ALBERT P. TOOTS MANZI — Manzi, now ailing with cancer, was Worcester County political coordinator and a principal fund raiser for both Sargent and Volpe. Manzi allegedly had the power to target design contracts, and Masiello said he paid Manzi thousands of dollars to win his share. Manzi, 68, was named a member of the Massachusetts Turnpike Authority by Vope in 1967 and was reappointed by Sargent. He has been on sick leave since undergoing surgery for cancer in December, and his term expires in June.

JAMES A. KELLY — As chairman of the Senate Ways and Means Committee, Kelly was perhaps the most powerful legislator on Beacon Hill during the 1970s. A prime target of early testimony claimed the senator demanded and received a monthly retainer for accounting services which may never have been performed. Kelly, 53, served in the House and Senate for 20 years before retiring in 1978, two years after being named in unindicted co-conspirator in the UMass-Boston bribery scandal which sent two of his Senate colleagues to jail.

SHERWOOD WOODY TARLOW — Tarlow, 55, Gov. Peabody's chief fund-raiser, was on the political scene less than two years. Tarlow was rewarded with a choice judgeship following Peabody's renomination defeat in 1964 — the parttime post at the probate court on Martha's Vineyard. He retired from the bench on a physical disability May 5, 1974, before the job was made fulltime, prohibiting other business interests. Tarlow is president of the Capitol Bank & Trust Co. and had been involved in radio stations.

Paul Price stands behind the two and-a-half-ton desk which was moved from around the corner as Doug Paulding looks on. (Staff photo by Suzanne Guttman)

Tons of stone moved in CC

By SUSAN COTTLE
Special to the Collegian

The Conference Registration Desk in the Campus Center has been moved, all two and one-half tons of it.

The granite desk was moved just around the corner from its original spot at the foot of the escalators in the lower level of the Campus Center by Southside contractors at a cost of $900.

"It was a managerial decision," said Buc Wilkes, assistant director of Campus Center. The relocation of the desk was included in the plans for the installation of the cashier's office. The desk blocked the long lines at the check cashing window, he said. Metal posts and ropes will be set up to divide people into lines, just like those in some banks, Wilkes added.

"Money" was the reason given by Dudley Bridges, director of Building Operations as to why it ook so long to get the work completed. The cashier's office opened last semester.

After funds were provided a contractor had to be hired because physical plant workers could not do the work. Bids of $4,000 and $2,100 were rejected and Southside Contractors were hired for their $900 low bid. In addition, Roger R. Sitterly and Sons moving firm, and a mason were hired.

If this sounds like a lot of money, remember that this is no ordinary furniture. The desk is made of three pieces of solid granite connected together. The top slab wieghs 1,800 pounds and the two sides 1,400 pounds each.

The mason was needed to separate each piece and then concrete them together after the move.

Honor group picks members

The University of Massachusetts Isogon chapter of Mortar Board has selected its members for the upcoming year. Mortar Board is a senior honor society which recognizes in its membership the qualities of superior scholastic ability, outstanding and continual leadership, and dedicated service to the community.

There are presently 175 chapters across the country which are dedicated to the goals of the organization as set forth in the preamble to its constitution: "to unite to form a national society whose purpose shall be to facilitate cooperation among these societies, to contribute to the self-awareness of its members, to promote equal opportunities among all peoples, to emphasize the advancement of the status of women, to support the ideals of the university, to advance a spirit of scholarship, to recognize and encourage leadership, to provide service, and to establish the opportunity for a meaningful exchange of ideas as individuals and as a group."

The individuals selected for the upcoming year are Suzanne Baker, Joel Brava, Sharon Bromberg, John R. Chandler, Arlene S. Davidson, Susan E. DeBerardinis, Robin Ewell, Mitchell J. Gitkind, Jonathan A. Goldberg, D. Alexandrui Hamilton, Linda A. Harvey, Margaret A. Jablonski, Robert P. Jacobs, Scott T. Jones, Mindy G. Kingston, Kim Kirschner, Diana L. Montella, Maureen A. Perry, Paula Rossow, Peter Schofield, Daniel J. Smith, David Sullivan, Elizabeth Teixeira, Domenic F. Trunfio and Rebecca M. Warnock.

★ Que tal

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

this week." Because of the occupation, the council has agreed to a host of coalition demands, among them: to keep "Que Tal" on prime time four hours per week; to include three minority members on the council; to implement a grievance procedure for past and present employees; to publish an annual report; and to insure some type of autonomy for producers of programs on the station.

Melley said changes at WFCR are imminent because "We can't let something like this happen again. What this really means is, we have to tear into the bylaws."

One of the original demands made by the coalition — that station Manager Robert Goldfarb be suspended — has been withdrawn, Valdez said.

Valdez said of the coalition: "We feel we won a battle" but that "we have to keep on our toes so the things we won won't be taken away." And while no particulars of the agreements between the coalition and the council have been ironed out, Valdez feels "a sense of unity among the community." Valdez said members of the coalition, as yet unspecified, would meet with the council "to work out specifics" of the agreement.

A number of producers at WFCR have resigned in light of problems, among them Julio Torres — who founded "Que Tal" 10 years ago.

Koffler, apparently acting as mediator between the coalitons negotiating team and the council, said at the occupation's end: "The demonstration of good faith shown by both sides in this difficult moment leads me to believe that a fair and lasting agreement can be achieved."

Peter Blair booms a serve at Mt. Holyoke yesterday. (Staff photo by Doug Paulding)

ivp
Are you afraid to walk alone at night on campus?
Are you concerned with the lack of lighting on campus?

FREADA KLEIN
consultant for Our Bodies Our Selves
will speak on
RAPE CULTURE
and its psychological & sociological effects
April 7 CCA 8 PM
Sponsored by SCERA Women's Issues & SASH
Sign language interpretation provided

Assorted Pork Chops 99¢ lb

⅓ Center ⅓ Blade ⅓ Sirloin Chops

26% Ground Beef $1.39 lb
Approx. 3lb chub
*Not more than 26% fat.

Countrystyle Pork Ribs $1.19 lb

Sun Glory Bacon Sliced 1 lb pkg. 89¢
Our lean, tasty bacon is a great value!

Fresh Hams Shank Portions 79¢ lb
(Rump Portion 89¢)

Fresh Fowl 39¢ lb
Excellent for Stewing or Soup
Not to be broiled or fried 3-4lbs. (whole)

USDA Choice
Boneless Beef Chuck Roast $1.79 lb

Countryfine Italian Hot or Sweet Sausage 2-2½lb. pkg. $1.19 lb
We make them with good, fresh pork.

Fresh Cod Fillets Delicious broiled or fried. $1.89 lb

White's Bologna
Sliced to Order
A full pound of your favorite sandwich meat!
99¢ lb
Available in stores with a service deli.

Stop & Shop
Honest Values are what we're all about.

2 for 1 Photo Sale!
Get an extra set of color prints, FREE of extra charge with every roll of 110, 126 or 35MM print film brought in for processing...now through May 31, 1980.

EKCO ETERNA Stainless Steel Flatware
THIS WEEK'S FEATURE
Dinner Fork 3 Pieces for $1
With each $3 food purchase

EKCO ETERNA Kitchen Tools
THIS WEEK'S FEATURE
Basting Spoon 2 for $1
With each $3 food purchase

1 lb bag Carrots Fresh Florida Free! With coupon

Campbells Soup Chicken Noodle 10¾ ounce can 10¢ With coupon

Dozen Large Eggs Stop & Shop Grade A 49¢ With coupon

Stop & Shop Orange Juice Half Gallon from concentrate 79¢ With coupon

Clorox Bleach One Gallon Container 59¢ With coupon

Stop & Shop Coupon — With this coupon and a $7.50 purchase
Free! 1 lb bag FRESH CARROTS
Good Mon., Apr. 7 - Sat., Apr. 12. Limit one per customer. Produce

Stop & Shop Coupon — With this coupon and a $7.50 purchase
10¢ Chicken Noodle 10¾ ounce can CAMPBELL SOUP
Good Mon., Apr. 7 - Sat., Apr. 12. Limit one per customer. Grocery

Stop & Shop Coupon — With this coupon and a $7.50 purchase
49¢ Grade A STOP & SHOP DOZEN LARGE EGGS
Good Mon., Apr. 7 - Sat., Apr. 12. Limit one per customer. Dairy

Stop & Shop Coupon — With this coupon and a $7.50 purchase
79¢ Half Gallon STOP & SHOP ORANGE JUICE from concentrate
Good Mon., Apr. 7 - Sat., Apr. 12. Limit one per customer. Dairy

Stop & Shop Coupon — With this coupon and a $7.50 purchase
59¢ One Gallon Container CLOROX BLEACH
Good Mon., Apr. 7 - Sat., Apr. 12. Limit one per customer. Grocery

Stop & Shop Coupon — With this coupon
99¢ CREST TOOTHPASTE 9 ounce tube
Good Mon., Apr. 7 - Sat., Apr. 12. Limit one per customer. Grocery

Stop & Shop Coupon — With this coupon
SAVE 75¢ 8 ounce bottle AGREE SHAMPOO Reg., Oily or Balsam Protein
Good Mon., Apr. 7 - Sat., Apr. 12. Limit one per customer. Grocery

Stop & Shop Coupon — With this coupon
SAVE 20¢ TASTE O'SEA CLAM PLATTER or FISH DINNER 9oz pkg.
Good Mon., Apr. 7 - Sat., Apr. 12. Limit one per customer. Frozen

Stop & Shop Coupon — With this coupon
SAVE 25¢ STOP & SHOP VARIETY CHEESE Vermont Cheddar or Finland Swiss Bars Random Weight
Good Mon., Apr. 7 - Sat., Apr. 12. Limit one per customer. Dairy

Stop & Shop Coupon — With this coupon
SAVE 50¢ STOP & SHOP DISPOSABLE DIAPERS Daytime 60 ct. pkg., Extra Absorbent or Overnight 48 ct.
Good Mon., Apr. 7 - Sat., Apr. 12. Limit one per customer. Grocery

Stop & Shop Coupon — With this coupon
SAVE 30¢ STOP & SHOP 48oz. jar SPAGHETTI SAUCE Meat Flavored Plain or Mushroom
Good Mon., Apr. 7 - Sat., Apr. 12. Limit one per customer. Grocery

Stop & Shop Coupon — With this coupon
SAVE 20¢ 16 ounce package TASTE O'SEA COD FILLETS
Good Mon., Apr. 7 - Sat., Apr. 12. Limit one per customer. Frozen

Stop & Shop Coupon — With this coupon
SAVE 20¢ 12oz. bag STOP & SHOP POTATO CHIPS
Good Mon., Apr. 7 - Sat., Apr. 12. Limit one per customer. Grocery

HADLEY-AMHERST Route 9 at the Hadley-Amherst Line. 8a.m.-10p.m., Mon.-Sat. We redeem your Federal Food Stamps.

Editorial/Opinion

Unrest if no guest

With the problems and controversy arising around the issue of having guests in the dormitories during the weekend of the Spring Concert, it is unfortunate that many students are not aware of the rights guaranteed to dormitory residents in the housing contract negotiated between students and administrators. This contract was designed to help define the previously ambiguous relationship between the University and the students living in the residence halls, and to assure students the services and treatment due to them as rent paying residents.

Although this contract is not perfect, it is a beginning of the chance for us to define our living conditions and to make sure that we secure these rights. For these reasons it is important to exercise ths contract, especially now when the right for us to have guests within our residence halls whenever we desire is being questioned. As far as the contract is concerned, although it contains no specific guest policy, there is also no instance when our right to have guests within our dorms is questioned.

HOWARD GOLDMAN

There are various statements within the contract which I feel specifies our right to have guests if we desire. Under Obligations of the Student, "the residence hall student assumes any and all liability for damage or other claims made as a result of the use by others of keys and premises assigned to him/her, in the event that such use is the result of the action or negligence of the residence hall student." Under Joint Obligations, "The University and the student share the responsibility for ensuring the quiet enjoyment of dormitory space, for the maintainence of the dormitory, its furnishings and facilities, and for a physical environment secure from fire and other hazards." And, finally, under Security, "The University will work with students to promote adequate security of person and property in the residence halls."

What these statements mean is that the University has either specifically granted us the responsibility to maintain and occupy the residence halls or has stated that it will work with the students to assure the safety and security of our dormitories. Has the University attempted to work with the students by declaring that we will not be allowed to have guests within our dormitories Spring concert weekend? No! Has the University respected our right to assume the responsibility and liability for the actions of our guests within the dorm? No! Finally, has the University attempted to devise a security plan with the students to assure a safe and successful weekend? No!

Obviously, the Administration is not only overlooking the housing contract that we worked so hard to secure, but they are also overlooking our rights as students to determine the environment within which we must live for our four years at the University. To counter this action, we must demand that our rights be respected and assured. As far as Spring concert is concerned, talk to your student senators and Head of Residence, and make calls to your are management, housing administration and the administrators in Whitmore.

As for the future of your experience at the University of Mass., become involved! Make sure we have a say in the regulations and policies that the Administration develops for our consumption. Let us not be treated as second class citizens at a University that is supposed to be designed around our needs!

Howard Goldman is a member of the SCERA Residential Team

Bureaucracy strikes again

The University Health Council, under guidelines drawn by its Subcommittee On Student-Run Counselling Services, is

COURT PRENTICE

dooming student peer-counselling to bureaucratic regulation and overview, and I believe, strangulation. If you thought that student peer-counselling meant what its name implies; student input rather than the administration's, read on, for that concept is about to die.

The new stipulations from the UHC subcommittee forbids student organized peer-counselling unless:

A. Student(s) register with the Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs.

These regulations fail to make any distinctions between crisis counselling (depression, suicide, rape, abortion, birth control, etc.), and the totally differing types of student counselling needs (Third World issues, draft registration, evasion, or service, whether to wed or cohabitate, "come-out" or stay in the closet, protest nuclear power, or join the monks, the Mets, or the Moonies.)

B. Student(s) obtain a University approved sponsor who is a member of the professional or academic staff of the University with counselling training.

C. Student(s) take at least one semester-long 3 credit course in counselling, or equivalent.

D. Sponsor approves training program and organization's goals.

E. The Vice-Chancellor deems such service "appropropriate," among other things.

Lacking in focus, these stipulations invade the privacy of individual students, and of all student organizations that advise and consult with their members. For now, instead of being truly student organizations, they must each "request" an administration member to direct them. Welcome to the Cub Scouts!

Peer counselling answers a need in our ever-diversifying society for advice which can be evaluated as coming from one who has dealt with, or is currently dealing with, a similar problem as the counselee. It is a fancy name for what everyone did before we had a "class" of professional counsellors, and what we all still seek when we want some advice of a personal nature. We simply try to seek out someone who has "been there."

While students are free to go to the UHC for its professional services, they must also be able to look to their peers as a ready resource for counsel and advice. Certainly they have been doing so here on this campus for over one hundred years without such stifling bureaucratic intrusion.

The effect of these ill-conceived regulations is likely to be that the new or smaller groups will find them absurd, and circumvent or ignore them, further reducing respect for the University's bureaucratic intentions. At the same time larger or more established PCSs will suffer as members who already give, often generously, of their time, will be called upon to make the further sacrifice of money and time to take the requried three credit course or its equivalent to volunteer for counselling.

Surely, the result of all this will be a pernicious drop in the number of students able to continue such a service committment, shrinking the availability of peer groups, and thus ultimately proving a serious disservice to the student community.

Getting what you pay for

In our highly specialized, business oriented society, it seems reasonable that the average consumer sometimes feel helpless in dealing with the complex machinations often employed by the private business community to realize profits which are not always justifiable and perhaps even illegal. When this feeling of helplessness develops into apathy, as is commonly the case, the consumer is either inherently prone to defeatism or he/she is simply not informed. Fortunately, the latter cause is the more prevalent. We say "fortunately" because an informational void is easier and less expensive to remedy than is a character overhaul.

MARK F. BERGER and JANE E. LERNER

In the short run it may be easier to pay a technician for shoddy work, not argue, pay him, pick up your possession, take it to some other technician, and pay some more. In the short term it may be less time consuming to disregard a faulty product and hope the next time you buy that item, it is free of unexpected quality deficiencies. But in the long term, this sort of approach may lead to a negative self-image and a belief that we, as individual consumers, should resign ourselves to the inevitable feeling of being exploited by the private market sector. Though the proportion of good products and business far exceed the number of disreputable ones, the point here is that we are at some time in our lives adversely affected by our dealings in the consumer market, and when this situation arises, we have the means and the help to fight back.

The assistance I refer to is MASSPIRG, a non-profit, student financed and directed organization devoted to various issues of public concern. The Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group has been successful in remedying certain complaints by recovering over $5,000 for aggrieved consumers through small claims court procedures. Small claims court is also known as "the people's court" and a lawyer's presence is not required. MASSPIRG has proven its effectiveness for many consumers who felt the only recourse to their grievances was to simply accept them. The Massachusetts Attorney General's office supports MASSPIRG and assists them in the investigative process which is sometimes required prior to legal action.

MASSPIRG's outreach Consumer Action Center is located in the Student Union, room 423 if you need help. You can get results!

Letters

Discretion in question

To Collegian Editor:

I would like to support the anti-racism team's criticisms of the April Fool's issue.

Putting out a single issue of the Collegian is an expensive proposition, I, for one, was not pleased to see my student monies used on a regular-sized issue of idiocy where a small group of individuals get to play out their private jokes and fears. The jokes were incredibly sexist, racist, and generally offensive to many people.

I would, however, like to compliment the Collegian on one thing—your consistency. This years "fun" edition rivaled with the bad taste of last year's "Nuclear explosion in Mideast" and the prior year's "Student Senate votes to Legalize Rape'. As to your lack of regular reporting, well that didn't surprise me in the least. In virtually every issue you fail to report of Third World, women's, progressive political events. The press releases I send you for the Third World Theatre Series, and the Duke Ellington Music Series somehow never can be squeezed in—but 8 or 10 pages of jokes are no problem.

In closing I would like to address the people who complained about the SCERA letter, with a question: Who is censoring, or ripping off the students more, political organizers and cultural workers who can't get the media coverage or a closed group of individuals who use their "discretion" in deciding what gets covered?

Sincerely,
Karen Lederer
Amherst

Notices

THE T'AI CHI CLUB is sponsoring a seminar on breathing on April 8, at 7:30 pm. You can learn how to breathe with more depth and awareness. It will be held in room 905 of the Campus Center. There is a $5 fee. For more information call 549-6362.

THERE WILL BE A NEW BEGINNING T'IA CHI CLASS starting tomorrow at 6:00 pm in room 202 Bartlett Hall. Come and try the first class free. For information call 549-6362. Sponsored by the T'ai Chi Club.

THE UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICES is presenting a (MASH) Men's Awareness of Sexual Health workshop tomorrow at 7 p.m. in room 304 of the Health Center (infirmary). No preregistration is necessary and all men are welcome. for more information contact the University Health Services, Division of Health Education at 549-2671.

NORTHEAST/SYLVAN RACIAL AWARENESS PROGRAM FILM offering, Tuesday, April 8, 7pm at Lewis House (basement) "Song of the Canary": a comprehensive documentary examining industrial disease in the United States. For more information contact RAP, 106 Johnson House, or call 545-0290.

NORTHEAST/SYLVAN RACIAL AWARENESS PROGRAM FILM offering- "Attica"- a powerfully dramatic film investigation of the Attica Prison rebellion of 1971 which presents events from both inside and outside the prison walls, and explores the conditions that led to the rebellion. Tuesday, April 8, at 3 pm. in the Dwight House lounge. For more information contact RAP, 106 Johnson House, or call 545-0290.

THE SPECTRUM SUBMISSIONS DEADLINE has been set for Friday. Spectrum, the UMass fine arts/literary magazine, accepts poetry, fiction, photography and art-work. All work should be mailed to: Spectrum, RSO 102, Student Union, UMass, 01003, or brought to Rm. 104 CC. Not late submissions accepted.

TOMORROW AT – P.M. IN THE CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM the Distinguished Visitors Program and the Woman's Issues Team will be presentiag Freada Klein. Klein will also do a workshop at 2 p.m. in room 176 of the Campus Center. The topic will deal with campus violence. Admission is free.

ALL SPACE REALLOCATION forms for groups located in the Campus Center-Student Union complex must be submitted to the Space Committee of the Board of Governors, CC 817, no later than Wednesday. Failure to do this will result in the loss of your priority for space.

THE PIONEER VALLEY CHAPTER of the L-15 Society will sponsor a seminar titled "The Humanization of Outer Space" on Sunday, April 13. This seminar will take place in room 101 of the Campus Center at the University of Massachusetts from 10 a.m. through 4 p.m. The event is free of charge and open to the public. For more information call 413-367-9522.

UNION VIDEO CENTER will be offering porta pak and editing workshops starting April 13th, all those interested please come down to the center and sign up, or call 545-1336.

BRASS RECITAL—Steve Fornari, trumpet, Gary Sienkiewicz, tuba, and Richard McRae, trombone, will present a concert in Bezanson Recital Hall, Fine Arts Center on Friday, April 11 at 8 p.m. Works by Haydn, Scheidt, Britten, Hindemith, and others. Free admission.

Student Phonothon Callers

With Student Phonthon '80 half over, here are the standings as of 3/28:

Top 9 Groups Band
Dance
3rd Sunset-Cance
Alpha Chi Omega
Phi Sigma Kappa
Handicapped Student Affairs
18th floor Coolidge
Pi Kappa Alpha
Collegian

Top 30 Callers
Nancy Wyllie
Danny Mallin
Illaina Meisler
Audrey Halper
Ann Hayes
Patrick Collins
Mary Ellen Bradford
Marc Doyle
Sue Hannen
Linda Friar
Carol Roche
Marcia Murphy
Craig Possee
Joe Loughnane
J. Laurita
John Breen
Helen Najarian
Steve Rosenberg
David Baker
Rachel Fischer
Irene Murray
Theresa Douydatis
Ken Fettig
Kevin Hallinan
Dave Archibald
Jean Johnson
Audrey Samara
Eric Maclean
Gary Barsonian
Ernie William Dowglass

At the end of Phonothon, prizes (dinners, alumni chairs) will be given to the highest callers, groups, and recruiters. There is still plenty of time to come and raise your total. Phonothon has been extended thru Wednesday, April 16th. For more information come by Room 8 Memorial Hall, or call 545-2317 and ask for Ed.

Free KODAK Color Print.

4 for the price of 3. WITH THIS COUPON

Share the good times in pictures with your friends and family. Just bring in this coupon with your favorite Kodacolor film negatives, and we'll have Kodak make four same size color prints for the price of three. You'll get one FREE! Stop in today for complete details. Offer ends May 14, 1980.

in the campus center at umass

the UNIVERSITY STORE

COLOR PROCESSING by Kodak

SELL IT
SELL IT

in the Collegian Classifieds

SELL IT

"COMPUTER AIDED DESIGN COFERENCE"

THE UMASS STUDENT CHAPTER OF THE INSTITUTE OF ELECTRICAL AND ELECTRONIC ENGINEERS WILL BE HOSTING THE 5th ANNUAL REGION 1 STUDENT CONFERENCE.

THEME:
COMPUTER AIDED DESIGN
DATE:
APRIL 18th & 19th
PLACE:
UMASS AMHERST CAMPUS
FEATURING:
LECTURE & DEMONSTRATIONS FROM BOTH THE ACADEMIC AND INDUSTRIAL WORLD
REGISTRATION:
FOR REGISTRATION AND FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT I.E.E.E. OFFICE ROOM 131 ENG BLG EAST AMHERST UMASS

What's forecast for your day? Dial New York direct!

Aries (March 22-April 20) 1-212-936-5050
Taurus (April 21-May 21) 1-212-936-5151
Gemini (May 22-June 21) 1-212-936-5252
Cancer (June 22-July 23) 1-212-936-5353
Leo (July 24-Aug. 23) 1-212-936-5454
Virgo (Aug. 24-Sept. 23) 1-212-936-5656
Libra (Sept. 24-Oct. 23) 1-212-936-5757
Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) 1-212-936-5858
Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) 1-212-936-5959
Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 20) 1-212-936-6060
Aquarius (Jan. 21-Feb. 19) 1-212-936-6161
Pisces (Feb. 20-March 21) 1-212-936-6262

Hear your horoscope in a minute.

Monday-Friday
8 a.m.-5 p.m. ... 43¢

Sunday-Friday
5 p.m.-11 p.m. ... 27¢

Sunday-Friday
11 p.m.-8 a.m. ... 17¢

Sunday
8 a.m.-5 p.m. ... 17¢

Saturday
All day ..... 17¢

Tax not included

*A service mark of Horoscopes-By-Phone, Inc.

New England Telephone

VOTE TOMMOROW
Help Elect
FRAN WALL
to the Amherst School Committee

Fran Wall Has worked for the Amherst Schools:
- [illegible] participated on parent-teacher councils
- Attended School Committee meetings for the past 10 years
- Has four children, all of whom have attended Amherst schools

Fran Wall has worked for the town & region:
- Member of Citizens Area Advisory Board, Mass. Dept. social Services
- Board of Directors for ABC (A Better Chance), 1973-75
- Co-founder & former Associate Director of SKILLS
- Student Employment Co-ordinator for Mt. Holyoke College

Polls open in all 8 Precincts from Noon until 8:00 p.m. for the Amherst Town Election on Tuesday, April 8

SHOP AND SAVE FOR SPRING

SPECIALS EFFECTIVE APRIL 7-12

Louis FINE FOODS
N. PLEASANT ST., AMHERST, MASS

The Price Freeze continues! Over 1,000 items including both national and Sweet Life brands- thru April 11, 1980 Look for the signs..

Bottom Round Roast
U.S.D.A. CHOICE $1.99 LB

Perdue Oven Stuffers
5-7 LBS AVG 77¢ LB

U.S.D.A. CHOICE Eye Round Roast $2.79 LB
SWIFT'S PREMIUM Sliced Bacon $1.19 1 LB PKG
ARMOUR VERI BEST Center Cut Pork Chops $1.69 LB
SWIFT'S PREMIUM Skinless Franks $1.19 1 LB PKG
SKINNED & DEVEINED Baby Beef Liver 99¢ LB

WE RESERVE THE RIGHT TO LIMIT QUANTITY — NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERROR

WITH COUPON PLUS $7.50 PURCHASE OR MORE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & TOBACCO LU95
HOOD Orange Juice ½ GAL 89¢
VALID APRIL 7-12 LIMIT ONE AT LOUIS FOODS

WITH COUPON PLUS $7.50 PURCHASE OR MORE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & TOBACCO LU96
PETER PAN Peanut Butter 18 OZ JAR 79¢
VALID APRIL 7-12 LIMIT ONE AT LOUIS FOODS

WITH COUPON PLUS $7.50 PURCHASE OR MORE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & TOBACCO LU97
REGULAR OR THIN Muellers Spaghetti 8 OZ PKG 9¢
VALID APRIL 7-12 LIMIT ONE AT LOUIS FOODS

WITH COUPON PLUS $7.50 PURCHASE OR MORE EXCLUDING COUPON ITEMS & TOBACCO LU98
JOY LIQUID Dish Detergent 25c off label 32 OZ BTL 99¢
VALID APRIL 7-12 LIMIT ONE AT LOUIS FOODS

OCEAN SPRAY Cranapple Drink 48 OZ BTL $1.09
GREEN GIANT Corn CREAM STYLE & WHOLE KERNEL 3 17 OZ CANS $1

HEFTY TALL Kitchen Bags 51 CT PKG $2.99
HUNT PEAR SHAPED Tomatoes 28 OZ CAN 59¢

PURINA SAVE $1.00 Dog Chow 25 LB BAG $6.49
MOTT'S NATURAL Apple Juice 64 OZ BTL $1.29

FRESH Green Beans 59¢ LB
SWEET LIFE STEMS & PIECES Mushrooms 2 4 OZ CANS 89¢
AUNT MILLIES PLAIN-MEAT Spaghetti Sauce 26 OZ JAR $1.29
MOTTS NATURAL Apple Sauce 25 OZ JAR 69¢

SEALTEST Frozen Yogurt QT CONT $1.09
HOWARD JOHNSON Mac. & Cheese 10 OZ PKG 59¢
ORE IDA Dinner Fries 24 OZ BAG 79¢
STOUFFER Lasagna 21 OZ PKG $1.99

QUARTERS Promise Margarine 1 LB PKG 79¢
HORMEL REG. OR HOT Chili W/BEANS 15 OZ CAN 69¢
SWEET LIFE DELUXE Cake Mixes 18½ OZ PKG 59¢
SWEET LIFE CREAMY Frosting Mix 13.2 OZ PKG 79¢

Collegian Classifieds

To place a Collegian Classified
•Come to Collegian Office CC 113
•8:45 to 3:45 Mon-Fri
•Classified deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day

Collegian Classified Rates
•15c per word
•Student rate 10c per word
•Cash in advance
•5 consecutive days 5 % discount
•Phone number FREE

AUDIO

SONY one point stereo eletret condenser microphone excellent cond. $25 253-3225

All Offers Considered! Harmon Kardon 330C 20 watt Receiver $130 large ADVENT Speakers $240 Tony 323-7365

Brand new 40 channel CB never used 665-4206 evenings

Nikko 3035 Receiver 15 watts w/circuit breakers good as new $80. or BO 6-4920

AUTO FOR SALE

'73 Toyota Mark II Wagn 73000 mi excellent shape, yours for $1980 phone Kittye 549-5412

1971 Dodge Polara $300 549-0915

74 Camero $1200 or BO 546-5382

MG Midget new top, clutch, Michelins $900 549-6146

ENTERTAINMENT

Soundsystem for Hire perfect for bands, discos, coffeehouses Rick 584-4105

Icarus - April 18 Hamden Southwest

Benb & Gerald Book now on sale at For the Record, Faces and Mainstreet Record Thornes Supermarket

MF Sound Pro soundsystem from $40 6-8777 6-8853

FOUND

Found-Brown plastic rimmed glasses in Northeast quad. Call Jeff 6-3210

Men's Glasses silver frame - brown case. Come in or call Collegian Office 545-3500

HELP WANTED

Beat the Squeeze! Get your summer work now. If you'll work hard to make $249 per week, call 253-2597

One (1) Secretary/Receptionist position available at the UMass Legal Services Office. Duties include: Legal typing, photocopying, reception, filing, assisting client referral, bookkeeping, ability to deal with people in a self-directed work environment. Sensitivity to the diverse student community is a must. Typing 60 wpm Accurate, experience preferred. 30 hours per week, part-time, $4.25 per hour. Bring resume to Personnel Office, Room 167, Whitmore Building, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA Affirmative Action Employer

Houseparents needed to manage American Youth Hostel Hampshire College June 1-August 25 free apartment plus small earnings send resume to Summer Programs, Hampshire College

Backpackers, Canoeists earn $1200 mth! Information $3 Wilderness Expeditions, 97 Spadina Road #302, Toronto, Canada M5R 2T1

Counselors wanted for small private camp on the Chesapeake. Serveral positions available. Call Bradley at 542-3138 or Patrick at 549-0448 for information/appt

Draftsperson needed to do graphs, line drawings and maps, if you can do any of these I can use you, call 545-0245 between 5:00-6:30 pm Kurt

Counselors Private coed camp in Berkshires has openings for head instructors in: archery, arts & crafts, gymnastics, dance/movement/show choreography, radio station (FM), dramatics, sailing, puppetry, tennis, head waterfront (pool), head lakefront (small crafts), waterskiing, tripping/backpacking, pianist/accompanist. Also needed: nurse (RN), general bunk counselors (males), and unit leaders. Good salaries, friendly atmosphere. Contact: Dr. Paul Krouner, Camp Schodack, 268 Mason Terrace, Brookline, Ma. 02146 277-7600, days 9-5

FOR RENT

Rooms in So. Deerfield 665-7093

Attractive, reasonable summer rental for 4 people. One minute to SBA 549-1254

Profs London Home good area close center sleeps 9 July/Aug $200 P.W. 253-5421/50420

2 bedroom Colonial Village Apt. Available June 1. Call 253-2750

Two rooms for rent—on bus route, avail immed $125 per month 253-3137

4 bdrm apt Swiss Vill summer sublet on bus rte $400/mo utilities inc 256-0408

FOR SALE

Guild Guitar with Amp asking $200 Rick 546-7027

76 Dodge Charger SE, small V8 automatic, air, power windows, excellent condition $1900 546-1029

1969 Volvo engine $150 four speed transmission $50 549-0915

Flute—Gemeihardt open hole, M3, excel cond $300 6-5723

Designer Backgammon Board $40 or BO 6-5723

Two Tires B78-14 Goodyear 4600 miles $45.00 call 256-8435

Quality Concert Photos Kinks, Phyllis Hyman, Judy Collins, Buddy Rich, Garcia, Patti Smith, Lene, Hall & Oates, Bonnie, Fonda, Derringer, Taj, Metheny MW 4:00-4:45 TuTh 12:30-1:30 Index Office Rm 103 CC $4.00 per 8x10 B & W

Girls Rollerskates 6½ or 7 worn once, white leather with blue stripes $35 546-5382

Twin Reverb with Altecs must sell $450 or BO 6-8777 6-8853

Why spend big money on costly tires for inspection? We have many used tires in all sizes & in excellent condtn for next to nothing. Call 665-4206 evenings

INSTRUCTION

Jewish Community of Amherst needs both Hebrew and Jewish Studies teachers for September 1980 call 549-0223 for application. Experience preferred

Math Tutor all levels 253-7830

LOST

Lost Black Lab named Astro Always seen around campus. If anyone has any info please call Scott at anytime 549-6219. Wears blue collar, keep your eyes open friends.

If you picked up the wrong coat at Phi Sig Sat night I have yours 6-7958

Lost a gold opal bracelet very sentimental reward call 546-4816

PERSONALS

Pete Jacke call Macky 665-7923

Don't graduate without doing it! Get your yearbook portrait taken--call 545-2874 for your appointment. Don't be left out of the 1980 Index

Go in "SAYNE", April 10 Thursday

NEED CASH? I will buy your used record albums. 6-7937

Stu—COINS 122 is easier to do, because MONDAYS and FRIDAYS are fun with YOU!—Joanne

Gain Business Exper. in Acctg, Mkt, credit and mgt. Apply for a volunteer position at the Student Credit Union

Susan B. Happy 21st Birthday! Love Nancy May and Edee Rock

Garbs, I hate you!

Jeff M—I wanna G.Y.H.-next time-sit on my face Guess Who

All are welcome to audition for the Fabulous Fifties Revue this Wed, 7:30 at the FAC music dept For more info call Laurie 546-7697

KS—Thanks for being a great roomate. Let's do it again. Hope you'll be in Thoreau RC

Wanted: Munchkins, witches & scarecrow for original production to be held in S.U.B. on April 17 for more info contact The Wizard at the Emerald City

Chew Hong: Thanks. . .?—Juloid

Michael D. I love you! Marcia B.

Happy 20t Barbara! Talk about pop music! Love, Mickey

E.C. hey honey-pie, hope y'all have a real nice time on yar bi'thday 'Lizabeth.It's jus a cryin' shame we can't throw ya a nice cotillion. The Pub will jus have ta do—Wednesday nite? Jus don't make a tearable fool of yarself and shame the family. Love ya muchly Kiddoo-The 6th

Charismatic Prayer and BS Tuesday April 8 CC 172-8-10 PM

Animal House is coming CCA April 11 at 5, 7, 9, 11

Hey Deb! Happy Birthday Kiddo—remember stolen firewood and pretzels. Love, Donna

ROOMATE WANTED

Puffton 3 bdrm summer $90/mo 549-6146

Brittany Manor Aug-May lease $115 month heat incl. Call Mark 253-9698

SERVICES

Attorney Jason R. Rosenthal Legal Representation. Income Tax Preparation. Days 584-4285 Evenings 253-7617

Lafler T-shirts great silkscreening at great prices slick graphics provided 549-1018

Professional Proofreader available to proof term papers, theses, dissertations. High quality service. Reasonable hourly rate. Call Yale at 584-8241

Lacross Heads sold & restrung cheap 6-4781

UMass Legal Services Office offers free legal services to fee-paying graduate and undergraduate students in the areas of University administrative problems; landlord/tenant disputes; and uncontested divorces and guardianships. LSO also gives advice on Small Claims Court, and limited counselling in criminal matters. Call 545-1995; Room 922 Campus Center, UMass

SLIM WHITMAN

Feel all the energy, aura and excitement of a real Slim Whitman Concert. T-shirts at Collegian office 113 Campus Center—for that real preppie look--Amherst College EAT YOUR UNA PALOMA BLANCA'S OUT

SPRING CONCERT

Any UMass student who is interested in running a concession at this year's Spring Concert must pickup an information packet and application at the UPC office or more info contact Jeff Kantor at 545-2892

TO SUBLET

2 Lg Bedrooms Brandywine Apt perfect location furnished balcony pool tennis reasonalbe price call 549-5959

Northwood 2 bedroom furnished AC DW pool garden plots bus-line June 1-August 31 $150 per month call 665-4850 after 4 pm

Townhouse Apt #44 for summer 549-6039

1 bdrm apt—nice location near Puffer's Fall option furnished 549-6899

1 bedroom in 3 bedroom Puffton apart June-Aug part. furnished 2 baths air cond tennis pool bus route Rent negotiable 549-5184

2 bedrrom Brandywine for Summer w/Fall option, 2 bus routes, A/C, pool, balcony 549-3856

Cliffside Apartments Sunderland summer sublet 2 bedroom on bus route avail June 1-Aug 31 call 665-7977

3 bdrm Townehouse summer sublet, Fall opt. call Karen 549-6755

3 bedroom Puffton Apt June-August w/option $340/mo call 549-6487

To subet for summer w/option for Fall 4 bdrm Swiss Village on bus route 440/mo all util rent negotiable call 253-7975

Puffers Pond 2 bedroom apt June 1-August 1 call 549-4055

2 bdrm luxury furn apt Cliffside Sunderland rent negotiable 665-4004

$90.00/ &elec, N. Amh bus rt., 1 rm in apt for summer, non-smoker, 549-1540 (late)

4-bdrm Sum &/or Fall 440 w/every 256-6447

Soutwood Apt 1 bedroom avail 111.65 available 6/1 253-5201

4 Bedroom/2 bath apt $320/month 1½ miles from camp. on bus route May 25-Sept 1 253-5570 after 5

Summer sublease 1 bdrm in 2 bdrm Sunderland Apt $100/mo 665-4373

Southwood Townehouse with option for Fall tennis swimming call early AM late PM 253-7015 best offer

2 bedroom Brittany Manor 300.00/mo Jun-Aug call 253-5128 after 6

Townehouse Apt. 2 bdrm rent negotiable 549-1325

2 bedroom on bus route completely furnished, all utilities included, pool, tennis, dishwasher $195 call 665-2131

2 bedrm Townehouse Apt in S. Amherst to sublet for Summer Fall option rent neg call 256-8650

4 bdr on bus route summer sublet w/Fall option clean quiet negotiable terms 256-0778

Colonial Village 2 bedroom, pool, bus sublet w/Fall option $225/mo call 253-7026

One room in a house close to campus available end of May call Jennie 253-3218 80 + util

2 bdrm on bus route Sunderland pets ok Summer w/Fall opt. call 665-3463

2 bedroom apt 1½ mi from Campus near Puffers Pond AC utilities included available June 1 with Fall option 549-0098

4 bedroom 440/mon, utilities incl, on bus rt for Summer with Fall option 256-8209

2 bedroom apt Lantern Court pool tennis freeAC bus rt 665-4724

Polling Green room to sublet for summer air cond pool utilities included on bus route call 253-9880

Furnished 2 bedroom apt pool, tennis, on bus route, utilities included 665-7769

Walk to UMass this summer one room Andrea 253-2901

Summer Sublet Furnished Presidential Apartments 10 min walk to Campus on bus route 549-1083

4 bedroom for Summer with Fall option rent negotiable bus rt 253-7855

2 bedroom Puffton Village June 1 to August 31 evenings 549-6420

2 bedroom Puffton Apt. 2 bath, air conditioned, tennis courts, pool, fully furnished June-Aug $230 549-4130

2 bdrm apt to sublet June 1 - Sept 1 Riverglade rent neg call 253-7115 pool avail

Sublet 3 bedroom Puffton call 253-2647

1 bedroom apartment furnished, cable TV, on bus route, June-Aug $200/mon call 665-4891 after 5 pm

To sublet—June 1-August 31 2 bedroom Puffton Village 549-0455

Summer sublet: Large 2 bedroom Presidential apt closest to campus A/C Heat/Hot water included option to renew 549-4059

3 bedroom apt for June to Aug rent negotiable on bus route phone 253-5214

Summer sublet Fall option One bedroom on bus route $180/mo inclusive partly furnished 665-3518

Inexpensive Summer sublet with Fall option, fully furnished if you want! Pool, right on bus line, A/C low $, call 665-7756 available May26

Puffton 1 bedroom Apartment furnished June through August 549-5941 evenings

2 bedroom Apt Cliffside swimming pool rent negotiable 665-4326

Townhouse at Cliffside pool. tennis, June-Aug 665-2077

Summer Sublet—3 bdrm, $362/month, includes utilities call 256-0644

Sublet June 1-Aug 24 beautiful three bedroom previously managers unique floor plan furnished rent neg. 549-5914

Sunny, spacious 2 bedr apt on bus rte available June-Aug w/Fall option carpeted, air-conditioned, fully-equiped kitchen, lanudry facilities 665-7795

2 bedroom Puffton Village June 1 to August 31 evenings 549-6420

2 bedroom Puffton Apt. 2 bath, air conditioned, tennis courts, pool, fully furnished June-Aug $230 549-4130

2 bdrm apt to sublet June 1 - Sept 1 Riverglade rent neg call 253-7115 pool avail

Sublet 3 bedroom Puffton call 253-2647

1 bedroom apartment furnished, cable TV, on bus route, June-Aug $200/mon call 665-4891 after 5 pm

To sublet—June 1-August 31 2 bedroom Puffton Village 549-0455

Summer sublet: Large 2 bedroom Presidential apt closest to campus A/C Heat/Hot water included option to renew 549-4059

3 bedroom apt for June to Aug rent negotiable on bus route phone 253-5214

Summer sublet Fall option One bedroom on bus route $180/mo inclusive partly furnished 665-3518

Inexpensive Summer sublet with Fall option, fully furnished if you want! Pool, right on bus line, A/C low $, call 665-7756 available May26

Puffton 1 bedroom Apartment furnished June through August 549-5941 evenings

2 bedroom Apt Cliffside swimming pool rent negotiable 665-4326

Townhouse at Cliffside pool. tennis, June-Aug 665-2077

Summer Sublet—3 bdrm, $362/month, includes utilities call 256-0644

Sublet June 1-Aug 24 beautiful three bedroom previously managers unique floor plan furnished rent neg. 549-5914

Sunny, spacious 2 bedr apt on bus rte available June-Aug w/Fall option carpeted, air-conditioned, fully-equiped kitchen, lanudry facilities 665-7795

Quiet 2 bedroom Presidentail Apts ½ mile from Campus June-Aug option to renew A/C $270.00 month call 549-5389

1 bdrm in 2 bdrm apt to rent for Summer/Fall option call 256-0353

1 bdrm SwissVillage June 1 to Aug 31 on bus route fem only call 256-6418

Southwood 2 bdrm TH 420/mo w/option to renew call 253-7892

WANTED

Rock band looking for diverse singer call Tom 256-6845 549-6913

Paying cash for gold school rings Bill 549-4166

Wheat Back Pennys 65c per 50 original Beatle Albums 584-7961 after 5

WANTED TO RENT

House for 1980-1981 Academic Year will summer sublet from you call early AM late PM 253-7015

Two women interested in sharing a house/apt in the Fall call Mon-Fri after 5 PM Jane/Abby 546-5577

Summer Sublet Wanted: Smith Social work students desire 3 or more bedrooms within a mile of Campus 1-617-757-8632 or 1-617-232-1847 evenings

Nuke the Whale by Danny Guidera

4 by Frank Emery

Wimpman by Evan Carlson

Bean by Kevin X. McNamara

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

Crossword

ACROSS
1 Beverages
6 French tale
11 Criticize: Slang
14 Kind of hat
15 Midwest city
16 Glace
17 Indian soldier
18 Lyricists
20 Second
22 Implied
23 Transport charge
25 Arrangement
28 Billets
29 Skill
30 Measured
32 Ungenteel
34 Expansion
39 Wierdest
42 Unusual
43 More stable
45 Designation
46 Salt ponds
49 Ultraradical
50 Rotter
54 Tin or lead
55 Inter
56 Deep pink
58 Dentures
60 Delicious
63 Ingenuous
66 Constellation
67 Move furtively
68 Bird
69 Timetable abbr.
70 Hair lock
71 Show contempt

DOWN
1 "Help!"
2 Unlock: Poet.
3 Take-off
4 Stood
5 Utters
6 Garment
7 Left out
8 Mfrs'. gp.
9 Article
10 Orient
11 Portion
12 Biting
13 Abodes
19 Aglet
21 Honshu bay
23 Opposes
24 King's order: Fr.
26 Author Leon —
27 Hide
30 Rewards: Arch.
31 Scoots
33 Through: Prefix
35 Asian language: Var.
36 Thrusting in
37 Leerer
38 Poor
40 China Sea gulf
41 End: Prefix
44 Ceremonies
47 Italian bay
48 Mont Blanc, e.g.
50 Milan's La —
51 Promising one
52 Pergola
53 Prohibit
55 Egg-head
57 Forfeited
59 Ceases
61 Title
62 Fish
64 Victory sign
65 Do wrong

UNITED Feature Syndicate Saturday's Puzzle Solved

DC Menu

Lunch
Sausage Grinder
Farmer's Omelet

Basics Lunch
Vegetable Grinder
Farmer's Omelet

Dinner
Veal Parmesan
Baked Cod with Crumb Sauce
Fruit Plate/Saltines

Basics Dinner
Eggplant Parmigiana
Baked Cod with Crumb Sauce
Fruit Plate/Saltines

Please Re-elect
CASEY CLARK
for
SCHOOL COMMITTEE
• experienced • reasonable
• conscientious • responsible
VOTE
Tuesday, April 8, 1980

HALLOWEEN
C.C.A.
TUESDAY
April 8
Showing: 7, 9 and 11
Admission: $1.25
Sponsored by:
Governors Program Council

CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER

Good
Reliable
Organization with
Up-to-date
Professional
Services

CAMPUS TRAVEL CENTER
CENTER UNIV OF MASS
AMHERST, MASS 01003 413-545-0500

Electrical Design Contest
Win $75 for First Place
in the
Great IEEE Tractor Pull Contest
see IEEE Office
for rules & registration
Rm 131 Eng Blg East UMass Campus

University &
Office Supplies
Softball Bats
& Gloves
A.J. Hastings Inc.
newsdealer & stationer
45 S. Pleasant St., Amherst

Milton H. Askinoss A.A.E.H.
announces the opening of Hampshire Ethical
Hypnosis Center
For the Practice of Perscription
and
Personal Habit Control Hypnosis

- Weight control
- Nail biting
- Improve concentration
- Memory improvement
- Improve study habits
- Sports Improvement
- Stop smoking
- Self confidence
- Sexual problems
- Relaxation
- Insomnia
- Fear of heights & flying

Special fees for college students & senior citizens
Now forming special classes for self hypnosis
Available for lecture demonstrations
Special fees for college students & senior citizens
The Farrick Building Rte. 9 Hadley, Ma.
3/10 mile Hampshire Mall (Next to Rocky's Hardware)
584-1919 By appointment only

SPRING into the 5-college crowd at
Time Out
TWO TV's
(Left you I.D.? We have it!)
Friendly People!
Friendly Prices!
Free popcorn
at Amherst's biggest little bar
37 N. Pleasant St.

AMERICAN MULTI CINEMA
ADULTS $2.75 STUDENTS & SR. CITIZENS with AMC CARD $2.25 TWI-LITE SHOW $1.50 - Special Engagements Excluded Twi-Lite Show - Limited to Seating
TIMES SHOWN FOR TODAY ONLY

HAMPSHIRE 4 — 584-7550 HAMP. MALL ON CAFE SQ.—RT. 9, HADLEY, MASS.
SISSY SPACEK TOMMY LEE JONES Coal Miner's DAUGHTER (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30 PG
AUDIENCES WILL SIMPLY CHERISH BREAKING AWAY (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30 PG
MARTIN MULL TUESDAY WELD Honor thy wife and everyone else's SERIAL (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45 R
Little Darlings (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45 R

MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 — 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9-HADLEY, MASS.
PETER SELLERS SHIRLEY MacLAINE BEING THERE (5:45 @ $1.50) 8:30 PG
ROY SCHEIDER ALL THAT JAZZ (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30 R
JAMES CAAN BOBBY DEERFIELD (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45 PG
PAUL NEWMAN JACQUELINE BISSET When Time Ran Out (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:45 PG

sound economy

All Major Artists on Major Labels

$4.49 Santana Welcome
$4.49 Robert Palmer Secrets
$3.99 Martin Mull Sex & Violins
$3.99 Derringer

$3.99 Al Stewart Past, Present & Future
$3.99 Byrds 20 Golden Hits
$3.99 James Taylor Mud Slide Slim
$3.99 Jimmy Buffet Before the Salt

$3.49 U.K. Squeeze
$2.99 Pablo Cruise Worlds Away
$2.99 Jethro Tull Heavey Horses
$2.99 Meatloaf

This sale also includes LP's by: Judy Collins, Yes, Emerson, Lake and Palmer, Kinks, NRBQ, J. Giels, Marshall Tucker Band, Carley Simon, Joan Baez, David Bromberg, Allman Bros. Band, Gil Scott-Heron, Rita Coolidge, Eric Clapton, Fogat, and many more great artists.

EXTRA SPECIAL!
$8.99
THE BAND
The Last Waltz
3 record set

This sale is Happening Now!

At your Record Store

in the campus center at umass
the UNIVERSITY STORE

Eastern Mountain Sports
SPRING SALE
Incredible Savings on our High Quality Equipment and Clothing.
SAVE UP TO 50%
APRIL 7-12

SHIRTS & SWEATERS

SPECIAL PURCHASE
SAVE 50%
MOUNTAIN PARAPHENALIA 100% WOOL SHIRTS W/ELBOW PATCHES
Reg. Price $40.00 SALE $20.00

EMS T-NECKS
Mens and Womens
Reg. Price $12.00 SALE $9.50

EMS CHAMOIS SHIRTS
Mens and Womens
Reg. Price $14.00 SALE $10.50

EMS DRESS WOOL SHIRT
Mens and Womens
Reg. Price $24.00 SALE $19.50

PENDLETON LIGHT WEIGHT WOOL SHIRTS
Reg. $36.00 SALE $29.50

WOOLRICH ALASKAN SHIRTS
Mens
Reg. Price $27.00 SALE $22.50

WOOLRICH CHAMOIS SHIRT
Mens and Womens
Reg. Price $21.00 SALE $16.50

BERGAN'S NORWEGIAN SWEATER
Reg. Price $29.00 SALE $22.50

PARKAS & VESTS

SPECIAL PURCHASE
SAVE 50%
Mens & Womens
SAGURO POLARGUARD PARKA
Reg. Price $70.00 SALE $35.00
NEVADA POLARGUARD PARKA
Reg. Price $80.00 SALE $44.00

EMS McKENZIE THINSULATE PARKA
Mens
Reg. Price $69.00 SALE $49.50

SIERRA DESIGNS 60/40 PANAMINT PARKA
Reg. Price $89.00 SALE $69.50

EMS CHEVRON DOWN VEST
Reg. Price $29.00 SALE $18.50

EMS POLARGUARD GREYLOCK VEST
Mens and Womens
Reg. Price $31.00 SALE $19.50

EMS REVERSIBLE DOWN VEST
Reg. Price $38.00 SALE $24.50

EMS HOLLOFILL II TETON VEST
Reg. Price $42.00 SALE $32.50

ALPINE DESIGNS CISCO JACKET
Reg. Price $38 SALE $25.00

OUTERWEAR

SPECIAL PURCHASE
SAVE 40%
CLASS 5 ¾ WOOL LINED MOUNTAIN PARKA
Reg. Price $85.00 SALE $49.50

EMS LONG TRAIL PARKA
Reg. Price $39.00 SALE $29.50

BACKPACKER'S FOOTWEAR

EMS KATAHDIN BOOT
Mens and Womens
Reg. Price $41.00 SALE $32.50

EMS ATHLETIC WOOL SOCK
Reg. Price $2 SALE $1.50

EMS RED TOP SOCK
Reg. Price $3 SALE $2.00

EMS STRETCH RAGG SOCK
Reg. Price $3 SALE $2.25

WIGWAM SILK LINER SOCK
Reg. Price $7 SALE $4.50

SLEEPING BAGS
Save 20% on all regular priced EMS sleeping bags

SPECIAL VALUE
SAVE 40%
EMS MINILITE 3 SEASON DOWN MUMMY BAG-REG.
Reg. Price $155.00 SALE $93.00
EMS MINILITE 3 SEASON DOWN MUMMY BAG-LONG
Reg. Price $165.00 SALE $99.00

NORTH FACE BIGFOOT
Regular
Reg. Price $105.00 SALE $85.00

NORTH FACE BIGFOOT
Long
Reg. Price $109.00 SALE $89.00

CLASS 5 EVENING CLOUD
Reg. Price $70.00 SALE $55.00

BLACK ICE Nth DEGREE
Regular
Reg. Price $115.00 SALE $99.00

BLACK ICE Nth DEGREE
Long
Reg. Price $119.00 SALE $99.00

BRISTLECONE #50
Reg. Price $55.00 SALE $45.00

LIGHTWEIGHT TENTS
Save 10% on all regular priced tents from Eureka, Jansport, Sierra Designs, North Face.

SPECIAL VALUES
SAVE 20% to 30%
EUREKA 2-MAN TIMBERLINE TENT
Reg. Price $115.00 SALE $92.00
EUREKA 4-MAN TIMBERLINE TENT
Reg. Price $160.00 SALE $128.00
SIERRA DESIGNS STARFLIGHT TENT
Reg. Price $155.00 SALE $124.00

SPECIALTY CLOTHING
Save to 30% or more on selected gloves and mittens from EMS, Aris Kombi, Promark.

SPECIAL VALUES
SAVE 40%
EMS SUPER DOWN GLOVE
Reg. $27.00 SALE $16.50
KOMBI DELUXE DOWN MITTEN
Reg. Price $25.00 SALE $15.00

Save 30% or more on selected underwear from EMS, DuoFold, Allen-A, Scandia

SPECIAL VALUE
SAVE 35%
DUOFOLD UNION SUIT
Reg. Price $25.00 SALE $16.50

CLIMBING HARDWARE
Save 30% on selected climbing gear by Chouinard – SMC

KNIVES & ACCESSORIES
Save 40% on all XC and Alpine ski guide books

BUCK-SKINNER
Reg. Price $25.00 SALE $20.00
BUCK CAPER
Reg. Price $21.00 SALE $16.50
GERBER-PK 2 PETE
Reg. Price $27.00 SALE $21.50
GERBER-PK 3 HANDYMAN
Reg. Price $42.00 SALE $32.75
GERBER-COHO
Reg. Price $22.00 SALE $17.35
GERBER-FOLDING HUNTER
Reg. Price $47.00 SALE $36.65
PRECISE-DIAL THERMOMETER
Reg. Price $5.00 SALE $3.00
PRECISE-RA69 DECLINATION COMPASS
Reg. Price $14.00 SALE $11.25
BAUSCH & LOMB -5x MAGNIFIER
Reg. Price $4.00 SALE $3.35

RUNNING SHOES
Save 20% on all regular priced athletic shoes – Choose from our entire selection.

SPECIAL VALUE
SAVE 40%
NEW BALANCE #320
For Men and Women
Reg. Price $34.00 SALE $20.00

PANTS & SHORTS

WOOLRICH CHINOS
Mens
Reg. Price $19.00 SALE $14.95
DELUXE STRETCH SHORTS
Mens and Womens
Reg. $34.00 SALE $20.00

FRAMEPACKS, RUCKSACKS, DAYPACKS
Save 15% on all EMS regular priced frame packs, rucksacks, daypacks. Save 10% on all regular priced packs from Kelty, Jansport, North Face, Chuch Roast.

SPECIAL VALUES
SAVE 40%
EMS DIVIDED PACKER
Reg. Price $72.00 SALE $43.00
EMS DAYTRIPPER
Reg. Price $16.00 SALE $9.00

SPORT GRAPHICS BOOK BAG
Reg. Price $14.00 SALE $10.95
WILDERNESS EXPERIENCE HIGH COUNTRY DAY PACK
Reg. Price $22.00 SALE $14.50
SPORT GRAPHICS FANNY PACK
Reg. Price $9.00 SALE $7.50
KELTY BASIC FRAME PACK
Reg. Price $49.00 SALE $39.00
KELTY D-4 FRAME PACK
Reg. Price $85.00 SALE $65.00
JAN SPORT APPALACHIAN I FRAME PACK
Reg. Price $98.00 SALE $78.00
JAN SPORT APPALACHIAN II FRAME PACK
Reg. Price $98.00 SALE $78.00
EMS SIERRA FRAMEPACK
Reg. Price $100.00 SALE $60.00

WEATHERALERT-STORM ALERT RADIO
Reg. Price $48.00 SALE $38.40
WEATHERALERT-WEATHER-ALERT RADIO
Reg. Price $54.00 SALE $43.20
WEATHERALERT-STORM RADIO
Reg. Price $72.00 SALE $57.60
WEATHERALERT-FORECASTER RADIO
Reg. Price $87.00 SALE $24.00

SAVE
30 to 70%
on Rental
Cross-Country Skis
and Snowshoes.
Some never used.

SAVE AN ADDITIONAL 10% off Sale Price on Clothing Items Sat., April 12

Eastern Mountain Sports, Inc.
Specialists in quality lightweight backpacking & mountaineering equipment.
Hours: Mon.-Fri., 9:30 a.m.-9 p.m. Sat., 9:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m.
(413) 253-9504 Route 9, Amherst-Hadley Line, Amherst, Massachusetts
ALL ITEMS SUBJECT TO PRIOR SALE
VISA

Erving gets 28;Sixers win, 107-104

PHILADELPHIA (AP) – Former UMass star Julius Erving and Steve Mix each scored five points as Philadelphia rallied for 12 straight points in the fourth period and the 76ers hung on to defeat the Atlanta Hawks 107-104 yesterday. The victory gave the 76ers a 1-0 lead in their National Basketball Association Eastern Conference semifinal.

The second of the best-of-seven-game series is scheduled for Philadelphia on Wednesday. The 76ers trailed Atlanta's league-leading defensive team 87-81 with nine minutes remaining in the final quarter.

Erving, who scored 28 points, started the 76ers' comeback with a field goal and then added a three-point play. Guard Maurice Cheeks scored on a pass from Erving that pulled the 76ers within a point at 87-86.

Erving then scored the go-ahead field goal, and Mix produced five consecutive points that increased Philadelphia's lead to 93-87.

The Hawks got within two on four occassions, the last at 100-98, but they never could catch up to the team they had beaten four times out of six during the regular season.

The 76ers, who got 21 points from Cheeks and 18 from Bobby Jones, advanced to the semifinal by wiping out the Washington Bullets in two games to sweep a preliminary mini-series.

The Hawks had a bye and had been resting, awaiting the winner of the 76ers-Bullets confrontation.

Eddie Johnson with 26 points, Armond Hill with 16 topped the Hawks Sunday.

Meanwhile in Phoenix, Walter Davis's 22 points paced six Suns players in double figures as they defeated the Kansas City Kings 114-99 Sunday to capture their National Basketball Association playoff mini-series two games to one.

The Suns now travel to Los Angeles to meet the Lakers Tuesday night to open a best-ofseven Western Conference quarter-final series.

Phoenix outscored the Kings 33-19 in the second period to take control. The Kings were able to penetrate almost at will during the opening period, but the Suns cut them off the rest of the way.

In that decisive second period, Kansas City shot only 39 percent from the field while the Suns sizzled at a 65 percent clip.

The Suns had trailed by as much as 11 points in the first period, though they cut the margin to five at the end of the quarter. Phoenix took a 66-57 halftime lead and parlayed that to a 15-point margin twice in the third period. Kansas City could get no closer than nine points the rest of the afternoon.

NBA Playoffs

Paul Westphal added 20 points for Phoenix while center Alvan Adams had 19 and a game-high 20 rebounds. The Suns also got 17 points from Jeff Cook, a reserve center-forward.

At Seattle, the Supersonics used a balanced scoring attack to defeat the Portland Trailblazers 103-86. The defending champion Sonics advance to the Western Conference semi-finals against the Milwaukee Bucks, who had a bye in the first round of the playoffs.

San Antonio and Houston played in a late game in Houston last night. The winner will meet the Boston Celtics in an Eastern Conference semi-final.

Dan Roundfield of Atlanta dunks the ball over Caldwell Jones of Philadelphia, wearing a mask for a broken nose, in yesterday's 107-104 76'er win. (AP Laserphoto)

Fear not, polo fans. Prince Charles of Great Britain has recovered from his bout with heat exhaustion Friday and was back on his pony yesterday in Palm Beach, Fla. (AP Laserphoto)

Trackmen host Eagles

By KENNETH D. ROLT
Special to the Collegian

Individual showdowns in the dashes, middle distance and distance events will play a key role in deciding the outcome of the UMass men's track team dual meet with Boston College today at 3 p.m.

Bill DeVarney will go head to head against B.C.'s ace dashman Mike Curry, in the 100 and 200 meter races.

The 800, 1500, 5000 and 3000 meter steeplechase events should see standout performances, pitting Mike Doiron, Paul Beaulieu, Steve MacDougall, Rick Walls, Kevin Corcoran, and Mickey Baugh against a core of Eagle runners that scored 26 points in the middle distance and distance events in the New England indoor championships this year.

"Boston College is a strong team," Walls said. "They finished second at the Indoor New Englands this year, but we looked strong at our first meet this season. We haven't run against them since last year, so we'll just have to wait and see," he said.

B.C.'s standout weightman Karl Swanke, the N.E. inddor shotputting champ will provide tough competition for Kirk Skinner and Stephen Hvder in the weights.

Both the Minutemen and the Eagles share similar strengths which should make for an exciting and very close meet. UMass looks to carry points in the sprints, hurdles and long and triple jumps. B.C. will rely on the weights, high jump, and strong performances by their distance men to beat Minutemen.

The Llewellyn Derby Memorial track, located beyond the Physical Plant, the stables and right next to Rte. 116, will be the site of the meet. The 16 lb. hammer throw will open the meet at 3:00, while the running events will start with the 400 meter relay at 4:00 P.M.

Cats out of EAA

Villanova University, citing television conflicts between the Eastern Eight and the ECAC (Eastern Collegiate Athletic Association), has withdrawn its membership from the Eastern Athletic Association.

At the same time Villanova is seeking acceptance in the Big East Conference, which includes member schools Boston College, Connecticut, Seton Hall, Syracuse, Georgetown, and Providence. It is rumored that the Big East Conference is looking to add an eighth member to its ranks.

The Wildcats, who like UMass, have been charter members in the Eastern Eight since 1976, have captured league championships in cross country (1979), and basketball, (1978 and 1980).

In their four years of membership, Villanova has represented the EAA in three post season basketball tournaments, including the 1977 National Invitation Tournament, and the 1978 and 1980 National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball championships.

"An evaluation is being made on our entire athletic program," said Villanova Athletic Director Dr. Ted Aceto. "We had experienced difficulties with regard to the television conflicts between the Eastern Eight and the ECAC (Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference) in basketball."

It was Dr. Aceto who proposed the immediate absolution of Villanova's membership to EAA officials.

– SCOTT SOLOMON

Cash softball tourney, bike race highlight upcoming activities

Several university organizations, including the intramural department, will be sponsoring numerous participatory events in the weeks ahead.

The intramural department's first annual softball tournament with cash prizes is slated for May 3 and 4. The winning team will receive $100 and the second and third place teams will get $50 and $25 respectively. The tourney is open to all women's and men's teams and any undergraduate, graduate student, continuning education student, as well as faculty and staff. A $10 entry fee is required. A mandatory mannager's meeting will be held May 1 at 4 p.m. in room 249 in Boyden Gymnasuim. Applications are available in the IM office in room 215 Boyden.

Saturday and Sunday, the IM dept. will be holding another first annual event, the intramural tennis tournament. The tourney is open to all UMass staff and students and no entry fee is required. The tournament is single elimination. Anyone interested in playing must attend a meeting Thursday at 4 p.m. in Boyden 249. There will be singles, doubles and mixed doubles play.

If you're interested in bicycle racing, Saturday's 20-mile race should interest you. The event, open to all Five College students, faculty and staff. At least six prizes will be awarded, three for the first three men and three for the first three women. Helmets must be worn and a $1.00 entry fee is required. There will be a novice race for newcomers to the sport. Interested persons may pre-register at the UMass bicycle cooperative, located across from the post office in the Student Union building. A course description will be available at pre-registration.

The UMass Newman Club is holding a "Fun Run for Ritter" April 26, beginning at 11 a.m. The 4.6 mile course begins and ends at Alumni Stadium and proceeds will benefit the Newman Club, the Catholic students' organization on campus, and Father Bruce Ritter, who operates a shelther for runaways in New York City. The $3.00 entry fee entitles runners to fee admission to the post-race party after the race in the Newman Center. Mail entries close April 21. For more information call 549-0300.

The UMass general physical education department is holding an defense demonstration by advanced karate students in the department Monday, April 14 at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom. According to GPE director Chet GLadchuk, "The evening will be filled with many aspects related to Martial Arts and will include exciting feats of strength and concentration."

All of these events promise to be fun and there will be other road races in the area during the next month. So, if you want to shake off your winter lethargy, this is your chance.

NUMMO

volume 8 issue 20 7 april 1980

Unity and strength shown in Que Tal Amigos struggle

The struggle which began last December in defense of Que Tal Amigos reached the boiling point last week in the occupation of the Chancellor's office. The office was taken over on Monday afternoon and held until Wednesday evening, when a settlement was reeached between the coalition which organized the militant action and the WFCR officials.

Last week the new WFCR programming schedule was to go into effect. Que Tal Amigos was scheduled to be moved from six hours a week to two and was to be moved to a time slot late in the evening. As a consequence of the occupation, the program is now on four times a week (Monday through Thursday), is still on prime time (7pm to 8pm), and structural changes in WFCR's operations which allow for greater community input in decision making.

The occupation was the culmination of a struggle which included several demonstrations, letters written to the station, petitions, newspaper articles, press conferences, and innumerable hours of discussion and planning. As time went on, the neccessity for taking more direct action became closer and closer in people's minds. Whitmore was the target of the action since WFCR is a station funded by the Five Colleges and UMass contributes the largest share. Moreover, Hampshire House, where the station is housed, is on the UMass campus.

The demonstration at Hampshire House last Monday became a march, first to the Campus Center and then to Whitmore, where a brief rally was held. The demonstrators were determined to get some immediate results and they went up to the Chancellor's office, which they found closed off by security guards. The group of about 50 people held a sit in outside the office in the hall.

The Chancellor called together some WFCR officials to negotiate with representatives of the group. Meanwhile the group had discussions in the hall on what to do if the negotiations would not have good results. When the most that could be obtained was two hours of prime time for Que Tal Amigos, the group agreed to enter the Chancellor's office and take it over.

Inside his office, when people confronted him to take a position on the conflict he said that he had no authority to intervene directly and that he wanted to help mediate a solution to the problem. When asked if he considered the attacks on Hispanic programming racist, he would not answer the question directly.

At 5 pm the offices in Whitmore were closing and the Chancellor's employees left. We decided to stay until our demands were met. At that point our demands included, among other things:

More hours of Hispanic programming.

That Que Tal Amigos remain on prime time

That the program continue to be staffed by paid positions

That the WFCR supervisory board include at least 2 Blacks and 2 Hispanics.

That WFCR's budget and policies be publicized

That Robert Goldfarbe be suspended as station manager.

That Daniel Melley be suspended as chairman of the board.

That the board take responsibility for Goldfarb's actions.

It was made clear to everyone in the group that those who were prepared to stay overnight ran the risk of being arrested, although we doubted that there would be arrests, at least not the first night of the occupation. It was also clear that those who would not stay had a big job to do on the outside mobilizing support in the commmunity for the occupation.

An agreement was made with the Chancellor that food would be allowed to be brought in to the occupiers.

The remaining police officers inside the Chancellor's office were asked to leave and they did. We agreed that both the Chancellor's office and the Provost's ofice would be held. We agreed on barricading certain doors and we organized a system of security. We agreed that no employees would be allowed to work in the offices when Whitmore opened up in the morning.

The occupying group was multi racial. It was primarily made up of Latinos, but there were also blacks, Asians and whites in the group. The people in the group were members of different organizations and this made possible the rallying together of constant active support for the occupation among third world and progressive organizations all over the Five College area.

A few hours after Whitmore opened in the morning, the picket line started. A constant concern expressed in the constant meetings in the occupied office was the necessity of gathering sufficient support in the outside to sustain the occupation and to carry the action to a higher level if later proved necessary.

The support became visible in the picket line and in the number of people who later joined the occupying group, adding to its numbers, but also relieving some of those who stayed overnight.

Members of the newspaper, radio and television press were present at most of the time of the occupation. A small group was chosen by the larger group to act as the sole spokespeople to the press. This was so that a consistent verbalization of the coalition's agreements could be made to the media. The group as a whole agreed that the issue of racism be stressed by the spokespeople, since racism is what best describes the causes and effects of the cutbacks at WFCR.

At one point in the meetings, women in the group pointed out how women were doing a disproportionate share of the cleaning up work. They succeeded, in this reporter's view, in making the work become more well-balanced in participation between men and women.

Talks between the coalition and the Western Mass. Broadcasting Council (the WFCR governing board) resumed the day after the Chancellor's and Provost's offices were taken. The coalition's negotiating team met with five members of teh Broadcasting Council at the Five College Inc. office. The coalition members pointed out the racism and injustice of Goldfarb's decisions, as well as the lack of counteracting action on the part of the Council.

One of the Council members mentioned that he, as well as some other members of the Council were NOT opposed to the cutbacks in Que Tal Amigos. He stated that he was not pleased, however, with Goldfarb's handling of the matter. At any rate, he did not see any racism in it.

On the second evening of the occupation, the coalition's negotiating team met late at night with representatives of the Council in a round of negotiations. The coalition lowered its demand concerning hours of radio time for Que Tal Amigos from six to five. The coalition ended up, after this negotiating angela davis to speak at student union

If there is a world-wide symbol of Afro-American resistance to repression, it is Angela Y. Davis.

Here and abroad, Ms. Davis represents all those who have stood up for their beliefs and ideals against pressure, intimidation and threats. When she was framed on a murder charge in 1970, millions of people in the United States and around the world rallied to her defense.

Angela Davis was born in 1944 in Birmingham, Alabama. She and her school-teacher parents lived on "Dynamite Hill", known for its many racist bombings against integration. She grew up only a few blocks away from the church where four Black children were killed in a 1963 bombing.

She attended Brandeis University and studied at the Sorbonne in Paris and Geoethe University in Frankfurt, Germany.

IN 1969 she joined the faculty of the Philosophy Department at the University of California in Los Angeles and announced her membership in the Communist Party, USA. Terrified by the presence in the educational system of a brilliant, Black, charismatic woman who was also a Communist, the right-wing vowed to ban her from her profession.

The successful struggle to reinstate Ms. Davis in her teaching position rallied broad support and made her a symbol of free speech and opposition to repression.

But the enemies of free speech and Black liberation did not stop there. Not only was Angela Davis a noted academician, but she was becoming an outspoken defender of political prisoners in California jails.

In 1970, an unsuccessful attempt to free several Black prisoners from the Marin County Courthouse ended in several deaths. The California authorities attempted to implicate her in the incident though she had no connection with it. She was arrested and framed on charges of murder, conspiracy and kidnapping.

After a worldwide campaign that made her a familiar name in every country on the globe, she was acquitted of all charges.

Convinced that other victims of repression should benefit fromthe support she had recieved, Angela Davis helped develope and found the National Alliance Against Racist and PoliticalRepression, a major human rights organization that has spearheaded the drive to free many who have suffered in U.S. courts and prisons, among them the Rev. Ben Chavis and the Wilmington 10. She and Rev. Chavis are the co-chairpersons of the National Alliance.

Angela Davis is a member of the Central Committee of the communist Party, USA. Of her membership in the Party, she said recently, "I am extremely proud...The Communist Party is a party of workers and those who are partisans of workers. IN fact, in my opinion and I believe this is the historic and world wide experience of workers the Communist Party is the highest form of working class organization. ●

We, the staff of Nummo News, encourages the Third World population of the five college area to hear: Sister Angela Davis Vice Presidential Candidate for the Communist Party, U.S.A. Saturday, April 12th at 3:00 p.m. Angela will be speaking in the Student Union Ballroom at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst.

Donation $2.00

editorial

Capitalism and Santa's Reindeers

Certainly Mr. Stephen J. Nojeim's so-called "Lesson in Capitalism" isn't even worth one minute of time for a comment.

However, the fact that Mr. Nojeim still believes in the "invisible hand" of Capitalism and how it "leads to the best quality of life for the greatest portion of the population", makes people wonder if he also believes in Santa Claus and the 7 reindeers. Steve's letter to the editor on March 24, only proves two things: One; he hasn't been out of his home town since the day he was born, and two; his only source of information about Capitalism, has been his Sammuelson's book from his Economics 100 course, in which very likely, he's got an incomplete.

Moreover, the reason for writing this commentary isn't to lecture back Mr. Nojeim on "American Capitalism" or Soviet Communism, but to suggest Steve to take his mind away from his TV set for a moment and read the March 31, issue of Nummo, in the Eco Latino section p. 4 and 5, "The People's Revolutionary Army (ERP) of EL Salvador to all Nations of the World". He can find out what the people from El Salvador had to say about his "American Capitalism". And perhaps he will learn that the only thing the ERP agrees with him is that "(They) will go to war to protect (their) freedom from (American Capitalism) who attempts to deprive (them) of it".

Therefore Steve, don't hold your breath any longer and better yet, finish your incomplete, so you can enlist yourself to "the few, the proud..." because the ERP is already at war and dying for what they said they believe in. ● on organizing, pessimism and practice

Tony Crayton.

On February 26, 1980 the Office of Third World Affairs held a meeting in New Africa House to reassess goals for this semester and organize for budget defense and building a functional steering committee. As a result of this meeting we decided to hold an organizational fair before the end of March. Through consistent work on the part of those attending, the fair was held on March 29th, 1980.

There was an extremely good turnout of organization's representatives but sadly not from the broader student community. Despite extensive advertizing most of the non-involved allowed the drizzle of rain to keep them home. However, the positive aspects of this fair were best articulated by Curtis Haynes' article in March 31 Nummo News.

There were many problem areas discussed and numerous solutions proposed on how to effectively deal with them. The solutions clearly pointed to rousing the interest of the uninvolved. We discussed developing strategies and programs for soliciting faculty involvement, upgrading the use formedia, systemitizing a mechanism for all organizations. Now, all of these things can come about if the broader community can take an interest in what is theirs and become involved with what is happening. This can't happen without the people.

On the matter of unity the fair, both in planning and practice, was a success. There is a meeting for Thursday April 10th in New Africa House again to organize people to clarify and implement the strategies outlined in the 3-29-80 fair. Unity comes out of hard persistent work on goals that are attainable and concrete. With this in mind therefore, I found it disgustingly non-productive that persons decided Friday to use our own publication to make vicious and uninformed slander against persons actively involved with struggling for the type of unity that the "Combatting Pessimism" article purports to be seeking. It was clear to many who are involved that the content of this article indicated that the author or authors were monitoring what we do but clearly are not involved sufficiently to know the facts. In the case of logic being used to disgrace the truth.

Logic is just that, Logic; it sounds like truth but it is never necessarily that.

Supposedly the Black Student leadership is overcome with pessimism and fail to include in their programs and plans an analysis and strategy for resolving the problems of Unity. They(the authors) claim that Black leadership makes no genuine effort to "confront these problems" and are wasting money on social and cultural programs. They say we should be agitating to face the internal and external problems. This unidentified African American History group even claims that the leadership is "hamstringing themselves by hanging around S.G.A. and R.S.O. and depending entirely on their money, thus reinforcing the"dependent mentality that free people should strive to get away from."

First the major "internal problem" is people who talk all this shit but are never around to help build anything constructive. The major internal problem is this backstabbing, public babbling abouthe lack of leadership, a syndrome long known to be detrimental to the black community.

What we need is for people to stop attacking people when they are working towards a unity that has not been here in any real sense since 1975,. If this History group is so enlightened on today's scientific methods for organizing why don't they use them on building up what we have instead of wasting time writing non-productive, misplaced criticism of people busting their ass, getting low grades and no thanks for keeping the few things we got afloat while you remain anonomous and aloft. And while we're on the subject of anonomous

turn to page 8

this is your world

By Curtis Haynes Jr.

The article which is to follow is the second of a three part series which will give a brief summary of the history of the relations between Western and Third World countries as a result of the growth of imperialism in the 19th century. (the lack of space and time have prevented a thorough examination of these relations and a lack of voluminous evidence should be expected.)

There were three consequences of World War II: 1) it acted as a solvent of the traditional social order. 2) it brought about substantial economic change. 3) it lead to the rise of a western educated elite in the Third World. Among the capitalistic nations, the U.S. had become the most powerful. U.S. firms became the investors of large sums of money in foreign expenditures, and the dollar became the dominant international currency. Also, New York was established as the main international banking center. Because the U.S. was now the major capitalistic power it was necessary for them to take over Britians position of being the major imperialistic nation. The U.S. saw how turbulent the Third World had become and they felt an urgent need to re-establish the stability of the imperialist system. Thus the US. with its newly found power became the main provider of military and economic aid and constructed a global network of strength that was designed to threaten the socialist countries and to prevent the breaking off of components of the remaining imperialist system, in the absence of colonies. The United States justified their control of these countries by explaining that it was their destiny and that they had to protect the world from the evils of Communism.

This was the period of the Cold War. The Americans saw the Soviet Union as a country that was bent on taking over the world. Stalins' empire was seen as a symbol of atheism, totalitarianism, and one of subversion. The Russians saw the U.S. as a country which was full of hate and racism and inequality, and they also felt that the U.S. was bent on taking over the world. Neither country could handle direct communication, and seemed to prefer a mutual isolation. The two major powers began to polarize, the U.S. going one way and the USSR going another. Both of these major powers felt that all the other nations of the world had to lean towards one sphere or the other. In their international affairs, these countries were driven by mutual fear and distrust. Thus, to compensate for their insecurities they built the two greatest and strongest military systems in the world. The Cold War continued into the 1960's.

It was also in the 1960's that the U.S. hegemony began to falter. The U.S. was beginning to lose its edge in world trade, as the once "mighty dollar" began to slip. There were three major forces pushing the dollar down: the expansion of imperialism, the rise of foreign competition, and shifting domestic conditions. After World War II the U.S. intervention in the Middle East was the first step in their containment policy. In 1953 the United States was behind the overthrow of the government in Iran and they put in its place a government led by a ruler who would lean toward U.S. policies. In 1958 the U.S.sent 15,000 troops into Lebanon to show the Arab Nations that they would not stand for any dissidence. This was a necessity for U.S. policy because the Arab Nations were leaning towards complete national autonomy which, according to U.S. fears, could eventually lean towards the U.S.S.R. sphere of influence. These were the first in a series of United States interventions which included Africa, Asia, and South America. The last of these interventions was in Vietnam. However the Vietnam war proved to be very unpopular and very costly. The U.S. was spending more dollars than it could afford, and this resulted in a period of inflation. Also, as Europe and Japan began reconstruction and recouperation from World War II, they began to cut into the U.S. role as the world supplier of manufactured goods. This pushed the U.S. trade surplus down from its peak in 1964 to a deficit for the first time in the 20th century in 1971. Domestic problems also contributed to the loss fo U.S. hegemony. In 1970 the U.S. was in a recession and

turn to page 8

statement of support from che-lumumba

Statement of Support

(The following statement of support was sent by the staff of the Che-Lumumba School to the Coalition for Public Involvement in Public Broadcasting and its supporters. It was sent on Wednesday, April 2, when the occupiers were still in the Chancellor's office.)

The staff of the Che-Lumumba School wants the Coalition for Public Involvement in Public Broadcasting to know that we totally support its takeover of the Chancellor's office. We consider the takeover to be a good example of the only historical tradition that has ever served the oppressed: collective activism. We feel the university community is fortunate to have people like those who are now occupying the Chancellor's office and those who are outside supporting them. Without such a show of joint strength, of unity, it would be impossible to challange WFCR'S racist programming policies, which are especially insulting to the Hispanic community.

We would also like to say that, like many of you, we don't see the struggle with WFCR as an isolated incident. The racially insensitive attitudes of the WFCR management are just one more symptom of a much larger problem. Whatever small gains have been made by Third World people and working class whites in the past are slowly being stolen from us inflation reduces the value of our wages affirmative action is under assault from all sides racial violence is once again on the increase across the nation.

We are surrounded by such problems and many more and we must learn to see the connections between them. Right here on this campus the struggle against racial oppression is going on, not just at this particular demonstration, but also on a number of other fronts. We must be familiar with these fronts. There is at this very moment a new move on to deal with police harrassment of women of color. Then there's the work that the Office of Third World Affairs has been trying to do, in its attempts to broaden local consciousness concerning the deep institutional nature of racism on campus. Also there are the women of the Third World Women's Task Force, some of whom are inside the Chancellor's office right now - these women are also presently involved in organizing against serious levels of racism at the Everywomen's Center. Other examples could also be given. But the point is that we must view all these fronts as ofiferent, but related, aspects of the same overall struggle.

It is in this sense that we give our complete support to those who have taken over the Chancellor's office. Their struggle is a major and principled part of a much larger quest for justice. We will therefore continue to support them until their demands for non-racist programming and community control at WFCR are met

El pueblo unido jamas sera vencido! ●

Justice through collective action!

the carter doctrine in the middle east

By Greg Tarpinian

Carter Doctrine a Response to the Decline of Corporate Power

The U.S. policy in regard to the Middle East over the past year has been developed in response to the growing strength of the mass movement in that region. It has come at a time when the anti-imperialist movement is on the ascendance throughout the so-called Third World countries. The Carter Doctrine's solution is to move rapidly in the direction of creating the conditions for the direct use of military force in the area.

This response is testimony to the increasing power of the people's movements throughout the world, and the crisis in the world capitalist system. The Carter Doctrine of military build-up represents a last-ditch attempt to ensure the success of the multi-national corporations in their drive for profit in a region where all the regimes the U.S. government supports are facing massive popular opposition.

Below is a brief look at the nations of the "allies" of the Carter Doctrine.

Israel:Given what we hear on the news one would think that the people of Israel are in favor of the expansionistic aims of the Begin government. But there is conflict in Israel over the blatantly imperialistic maneuverings of the Israeli government on the Arab occupied territories. Keeping in the tradition of the U.S. multi-national corporations and the U.S. government, the Begin regime is moving full-speed ahead in the expropriation of Arab lands, toward the establishment of new Israeli settlements.

The major Israeli newspaper Ha'aretz ("The Land") on March 25 published its latest opinion poll. Forty-eight percent of the Israeli population opposes these new settlements, while only 38 percent favor them. At the same time, there is a 150 percent inflation rate in Israel, and over 50,000 are unemployed today compared with 16,000 in November.

The Begin government's decision to expropriate Arab lands in occupied West Bank city of Hebron (al-Khalil) has provoked a continuing general strike in Hebron, the rest of the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

Simultaneously, world reaction to the Begin government has been unanimously negative, including some strong criticism from many US Jewish leaders and organizations.

Meanwhile, the PLO has been gaining more and more support with India, France and Austria just recently giving diplomatic recognition. Carter and Begin are worried, as the US-Egyptian-Israeli attempt to isolate the PLO has been a big failure. The tide of Palestinian liberation is on the rise.

Egypt: The other imperialist outpost in the Middle East along with Israel, Egypt, is in a state of turmoil. Sadat has had to step up oppression of the growing leftist and nationalist opposition around Christmas.

The recent coddling of the international fugitive Shah of Iran by Sadat has evoked a great upsurge of popular discontent within Egypt, within the last two weeks.

Sudan: Similarly, the Sudanese military regime has faced growing popular opposition over the past year. The opposition comes mainly from fundamentalist Islamic forces and from a militant and well-organized labor movement spearheaded by the Communist Party of Sudan. The military regime survives because it is propped up by 20,000 to 30,000 Egyptian troops. If Sadat is toppled in Egypt, and this is a possibility, it is very likely that the Sudanese regime would also collapse.

Oman: The regime of the Sultan of Oman has been met with armed resistance. Five years ago it was supressed by the armed forces of the Shah of Iran in conjunction with British officers. The Shah is no more however, and today Egyptian troops are guarding the Sultan. American military missions are also active in Oman where the emerging guerilla movement is a session, with still only two hours on prime time, but with some agreement with the Council on some structural changes in WFCR.

turn to page 6

Que Tal Amigos FROM PAGE 1

The Council would not fire Goldfarb. They insisted that he was a capable manager (and not racist). They, however, agreed to include minority people on their board. They also agreed to publish their budget size, budget allocations, policies, and decisions.

Later in the evening, members of Minority Faculty Organization, which had voted to support the coalition's demands, entered the occupied offices to discuss the state of negotiations with the group.

Different organizations from the Five College area had also met and discussed the occupation and sent letters of support to the group. At Hampshire College, students brought up the matter in a meeting with Woody Wickham, the Hampshire member of the Broadcasting Council.

The Undergraduate Student Senate at UMass overwhelmingly voted to support the coalition.

Supporters on the outside continued to join the picket line and to publicize the occupation with leafletting, on the radio, to their neighbors, to their coworkers, and to their classmates.

A man from a national organization for minority broadcasting on public radio joined the occupying group, informing us of other efforts similar to ours in other parts of the country.

On Wednesday about 50 supporters from the picket line joined the occupation and an assembly was held in the lobby of the Chancellor's office. The occupied area was declared Que Tal Amigos Territory. The occupiers expressed their determination to keep up the fight and they stressed the crucial role played by the organized support for the occupation.

Some of the people at the assembly spoke out on the larger social context of the occupation. One speaker identified the racist attack on Hispanic programming as part of a larger picture which is the exploitation and oppressionn of third world people and working-class people in the United States.

It was pointed out how the participation in the Que Tal Amigos struggle was multi-racial in composition, included people from different organizations all over the Five College area, included students and working people, and was strong and consistent. This fact was pointed out as an example of how people can unite and join in collective action.

Many of the people at the assembly in the lobby decided to stay that evening if their presence was needed. This swelled the number of the occupiers.

On Wednesday afternoon was when the final round of negotiations were held between the coalition and WFCR. Previous to this, the coalition had worked out, primarily among a subgroup, a plan of higher action to be taken if the negotiations were to prove unsatisfactory.

At this round of talks the Council representatives and the coalition's negotiating team worked out a set of agreements which were then taken to the occupying group for approval. The coalition accepted the set of agreements as grounds for ending teh occupation.

The agreements which had been worked out included:

Four hours of prime time for Que Tal Amigos.

Some measure of autonomy for WFCR program producers.

A committment by the Council to include three minority people in their membership.

Participation by the coalition in the choosing of the minority members of the Council.

tation employees.

An agreement to publish an annual report of WFCR affairs.

A greivance procedure for station employees.

A pledge by the Councilto "take their supervisory role seriously" in regards to the station manager.

At a general assembly the occupying group agreed to accept the set of agreements on the grounds that, although the hours of Que Tal Amigos were not fully restored, this was compensated for by the provisions for community input into WFCR's operations. The settlement was declared to be a victory for the coalition and its struggle.

It was, however, pointed out that people would have to continue to struggle to defend what had been won and push for further neccessary gains. The coalition, it was said, would have to continue to function and would have to work with the Broadcasting Council to make the structural changes agreed to in the settlement a concrete reality.

After discussion on the settlement was over, the people in the general assembly discussed the significance of the Que Tal Amigos struggle to to the overall struggle for change here in this community, in the U.S. and around the world.

Semana Latinoamericana

Jose Chiqui Garcia.

Senal de aviso para el 26 de Abril al 2 de Mayo:

Es de merecerse la comunidad hispana en estos lugares, el maximo respeto y apoyo por su esfuezo en sostener nuestros valores culturales y politicos como pueblos oprimidos; opresion racista intelectual, bloqueada por nuestra unidad y la de otros companeros de la lucha tercermundista. Quedo mas que demostrado nuestra responsable fuerza de apoyo y presencia, en las pasadas demostraciones de nuestros derechos de comunicacion y cultura...de nuestro programa radial historico; "Que Tal Amigos". Se merece el pueblo hispano su semana; la cual vamos a dedicar. Del 26 de abril al 2 de mayo correran las actividades de la Semana Latinoamericana en la universidad, como todos los anos suele hacerse. A pesar de limitaciones economicas existentes, tiempo, y alternativas reales; el Comite de la Semana Latinoamericana asignado para trabajarla, a hecho lo posible por mantener y representar, tanto una linea politica, como cultural. Esto ultimo, dentro de un marco de solidaridad, debe estar abierto a otros pueblos tercermundistas, que deben y nesecitan, como "americanos", saber de lo nuestro tambien. Hemos seleccionados (dentro de lo que esta a nuestro alcance) elementos basicos de identificacion y conocimiento dentro de estas actividades.

El 26 de abril tendran un concierto en el S.U.B., con el grupo Roy Brown y Aires Bucaneros". Este concierto folklorico-cultural estara compuesto de siete musicos, e incluye poemas y poesia musicalizada por una gran variedad de ritmos, melodias y material literario de primera. Este concierto trasmitira ampliamente el concepto musical de la Nueva Cancion Latinoamericana, La Nueva Trova Cubana y la Cancion Nueva Puertorriquena. Sera algo muy bien preparado en venir a participar en nuestra semana. La actividad sera gratis y comenzara a las 8:00 p.m..

El lunes 28 de abril habra una gran conferencia con el conocido escritor e historiador Juan Angel Silen. Silen es profesor en State University of New York (Albany). A ensenado en otras universidades como Livingstone College en New York, Brooklyn College, y a cultivado por mucho tiempo el cuento, el ensayo y la poesia. Esta conferencia promete ser un interesante evento que nos documentara y nos inspirara nuestras bases historicas y politicas. La actividad sera gratis y comenzara a la 8:00 p.m.

El martes 29 de abril habra una serie de pequenas conferencias por tres diferentes speakers , donde habra cafe, te y entremeses al publico. Los temas a tocarse seran sobre Nicaragua, El Salvador y Puerto Rico. Se dara conocer la semana proxima los integrantes que participaran aqui. Esto sera en el Commonwealth Room en el S.U. a paprir delas 6:00 p.m.

El viernes 2 de mayo sera el cierre de la semana con un baile concierto. En este evento sonara el conocido grupo musical, "Conjunto Libre". Este conjunto promete traernos tremenda musica y con buena calidad. Alternara con ellos otro grupo charanguero de la ciudad de Boston. Habra precios completamente rasonables en la entrada, que informaremos en la propaganda y en este util periodico. Tendra lugar en el Campus Center Auditorium a partir de las 8:00 p.m. y la actividad durara de cuatro a cinco horas.

La semana Latinoamericana debe tener gran respaldo nuestro ya que es nuestra mayor actividad del semestre. Se acercan nuevos tiempos y cambios. Nesecitamos estar unidos cada vez mas, ayudarnos y conocernos. El enemigo es listo y hay que estar preparado, culturalmente al dia .Nuestra presencia es esencial. Apartir, de las proximas semanas difundiremos informasion y propaganda a traves de vias publicas, correo y radio, referente a la Semana Latinoamericana. La proxima reunion del comite encargado sera el proximo jueves 10 de abril a las 6:30 p.m. en la oficina de Ahora (S.U. 308). Para mas informacion pueden llamar al 545-2479 (Ahora) o al 584-3328 (Chiqui Garcia), portavos del comite de la S. Latinoamericana.

SE DISCUTE EL PRESUPUESTO DE AHORA.

Hoy lunes 7 de Abril, a las 7.00 de la noche, se discutira en el Senado Estudiantil el presupuesto de AHORA. Es de suma importancia que aquellos estudiantes que estan envueltos en las actividades de esta organizacion, atiendan esta reunion para que defiendan sus derechos en el presupuesto en contra de los cortes propuestos para el siguiente ano fiscal 1981.

TRIUNFO ROTUNDO PARA QUE TAL AMIGOS

El famoso programa radial "¿Qué tal Amigos?" ha salido triunfante y victorioso, después de haber librado una larga, cruenta y desventajosa lucha contra el nuevo gerente general de la emisora de radio WFCR Roberto Goldfarb y el Consejo de Directores de la misma, quiénes tenían toda la intención de desaparecer el programa del aire después de mas de 10 años de existencia. El programa seguirá en el aire y a la hora de costumbre, como se tenía anteriormente, sólo que ahora será únicamente durante cuatro días a la semana en vez de de seis como antes. Pero dadas las circunstancias de la batalla, esto se ha considerado como un gran éxito para toda la comunidad.

La victoria fué lograda después que en defensa de los derechos de la comunidad de habla hispana, fué formada La Coalición para la Participación Popular en las Emisoras Públicas. La Coalición, al darse cuenta que ni Goldfarb ni el Consejo de Directores estaban dispuestos a respetar nuestros derechos, decidieron tomar acciones mas directas y efectivas que llevaran a una solución que realmente cumpliera y respetara tales derechos. Para ello, se formuló una lista de demandas y pacíficamente tomaron control de las oficinas del Canciller de la Universidad durante mas de 50 horas. Esta acción obligó al Consejo y al mismo Canciller a que negociaran las demandas hechas a nombre de nuestra comunidad. Durante la ocupación de las oficinas del Canciller, se invirtieron unas 12 horas de intensas negociaciones entre el Consejo y los representantes de La Coalición, quiénes fueron los que lograron el resultado final del conflicto.

Es justo señalar que esta victoria ha sido no solo para la comunidad de habla hispana, sino también para todos aquellos que de una u otra forma participaron en la batalla, mostrando su apoyo físico o moral para la causa y que además participaron indirectamente concientizando a otros sectores de la Universidad. Quedó demostrado que el apoyo recibido en el conflicto fué total e incondicional por parte del público en general, ya que no hubo quién desafiara la autenticidad de nuestras demandas o questionara la veracidad de los hechos.

Finalmente para concluir, podemos decir que Sonia Vivas y Julio Torres, productores del programa "Que tal Amigos", cuentan con muchísimos amigos en todo el valle que estan dispuestos a defender a cualquier precio los derechos inalienables de nuestra querida comunidad.

Esta experiencia nos ha enseñado que no estamos solos ni aislados del resto de la comunidad Universitaria, sino lo contrario, que siempre podemos contar con el apoyo de la comunidad negra, la comunidad asiática, los estudiantes internacionales, con miembros de la Facultades de los Cinco Colegios, con los líderes de distintas organizaciones estudiantiles, con nuestros compañeros de clases y muchos, muchos miembros del público en general quienes a final de cuentas son los reales dueños de la emisora de radio público WFCR.

your world

multinatioal corporations and other international speculators began to take their money out of the U.S. banks and put it into European banks, where interest rates were higher.

As the U.S. lost its edge in the world economy, it became apparent that the international order created after World War II was no longer adequate to cope with the new problems of world politics. These problems included the "shrinking" of the world, with a greater interdependence between the nations. This interdependence had grown psychologically, socially, economically, and politically. Communicationand the flow of ideas and the movement of persons as a result of modern transportatio;n and mass tourism had resulted in greater knowledge about other societies. Poor people were able to come in contact, or see the way of life of the other people for whom they were slaving, at low wages, to give them the raw materials so that they could maintain their standard of living. This was also matched by a growing feeling of compassion and guilt among a number of people in the rich countries. In the economic and political domains the growth of interdependence was unprecedented with the growth in international corporations and the dependence of the advanced countries on the raw materials of the poorer ones. The characteristics of interdependence also took on two sides because the internal affairs of countries also affected the external affairs of that said country.

Interdependence has varied considerably in kind and intensity in differnet regions, between particular states and across different issue areas. It is highest among the rich capitalist countries due to the intensive trade, investment.

monetary interactions, security ties and other links. As for the Third World the degree of interdependence is considerably different. They supply the raw materials for the industrialized states and receive a mixed dependence on the capital goods and foodstuff from industrialized countries. However, it is easy to see where the power is really held. Among the developing countries, interdependence is relatively low except for a general dependence on oil produced by some of them.

Interdependence has become a necessity in this growing world, but conflicting national priorities of modern welfare states inevitably complicate the problem of managing the system. For example there is the growing interdependence between the east and the west. This interdependence includes the Salt Talks that has the purpose of trying to limit the strategic weapons competition. However, the Salt Talks have done little to settle the ideological and political differences between the two countries. In fact, both countries are still increasing an arms arsenal which could destroy the world a hundred times over. On the other hand these countries have had better scientific and economic relations.

The interdependence of the Northern Hemisphere and Southern Hemisphere have posed another problem. To many of the developing nations the hierarchy of power, characteristic of the Post World War is no longer acceptable. Some intellectual groups and governments in the Third World increasingly advocate a strategy of disassociating from the North. The problem is serious for unless interdependence effectively serves the interests of the weaker states the trend toward extreme disassociation is likely to grow. This would create disturbances damaging for both the industrial and developing worlds. Currently, the world is developing into three encapsulated regions of advanced countries, developing countries, and communist countries. Continued development in these directions will eventually under mine the precarious prospects for global order.

The capitalist countries saw that the international system was no longer adequate for the situation of steady expansion and the tightening of the web of interdependence. A new system had to be devised. This new system, for the capitalist, was invisioned by the formation of the trilateral commission. ● chinese athletes

of 14 athletes is training at Mt. San Antonio College in Walnut and is headed by coach Qi Zutan, who spoke Monday to a lunch meeting of the Southern California Track Writers.

Zutan stressed that the International Olympic Committee recognizes only Beijing as Chinese entry, saying "Taiwan is only a region" of the mainland nation. But he added that, "We would be strong (in international competition) if we could form one Chinese team with Taiwan."

Zutan, who had asked to address the group, told the sportswriters that Beijing is serious about joining the proposed boycott of the Moscow Olympics.

"Unless the Soviet Union withdraws from Afghanistan, I don't think we would go to Moscow," he said through an interpreter.

Zutan was accompanied by three of mainland China's outstanding track and field athletes - Zhou Zhenxian, who holds the Asian triple jump record at 55-10; Liu Yohuang, who set a Chinese national record in the long jump by winning in the King Games at 26-1, and Dai Tianhua, who holds the Communist Chinese 100-meter women's hurdle record of 13.39. ●

carter doctrine

East region. The Shah's well-equipped army could not stave off the power of millions in the streets. And the US armed forces are not the fighting force they used to be. The rule of the multi-national corporations in the region is on the downturn and war will just spell disaster not rejuenation for its interests, because while the movement towards progress can be halted briefly it cannot be stopped forever.

One of the most constructive things which can be done in this country to ensure the success of the national liberation movements throughout the world is to begin to bring the issue of peace before the eyes of the nation before the Cartur Doctrine brings that of war. ●

china night

asian affairs

University of Massachusetts Chinese Students perform a native dance of the mountain people of Taiwan.

Charlotte Chen, graduate student in chemical enginerring plays two Chinese music pieces.

Cindy Chu in traditional Chinese outfit performs in a short play.

track and field detente for chinese athletes

Or,

Athletes from Communist China and rival Taiwan will compete against each other for the first time in a track and field meet at Mt. San Antonio College in a break through that may lead eventually to peace at the political level.

The Chinese athletes were at the site of the April 19 Mt San Antonio Relays yesterday and had already made friendly overtures on the person-to-person level, according to meet director Don Ruh.

The track and field detente of sorts was reminiscent of the Ping Pong rivalry that was an icebreaker in the diplomatic stalemate between Communist China and the United States years ago.

"We were able to do something that the International Olympic Committee and the United Nations were unable to do," said Ruh.

Ruh said that when he decided to invite both China teams to the relays, "We honestly didn't know that such a meeting of athletes had never taken place before."

It was only about a week ago, he said, that he learned that Taiwan and mainland China teams had refused to compete in the same events with each other for more than a generation.

It was agreed that the Chinese athletes would wear different colored track suits, "but without any insignia of any kind," and competition would be minus the flags and anthems of both nations.

"Both teams were as eager to make the event occur as anyone," said Ruh. "Both agreed to wear uniforms devoid of any national names, marking or emblems in an effort to comply with the Relays Committee 'no-politics' policy.

"It took quite a bit of give from both sides to make this happen. This is what's so great about athletics. It seems to bring out the best in people."

Although the Mt. San Antonio Relays will be the first competition by the Chinese on a team basis, the athletes met in individual competition Sunday at the same college's "Olympic Year Open," an informal, all-comers mid-season meet.

"At first, the two teams and the people with them sat apart," said a Taiwan journalist who accompanied his team.

"But it was easy to see we were curious about them and they were curious about us. We kept staring at them and they kept looking over at us. One of our people beat one of theirs. Then one of theirs beat one of ours.

"Finally one of them stood up and they all followed him over to where we were sitting and he began shaking hands with us. Then everybody began shaking hands and talking. "We did not expect that this would happen."

§The People's Republic of China mainland contingent

turn to page 8

carter doctrine

serious threat to the monarch. Although not reported in the U.S. media, American military bases for the support of U.S. ground forces are being built under the guise of textile factories. They are being built by members of the South Korean army, another U.S. "ally".

Kuwait: A very important oil-producing state, Kuwait has been the site of religious and labor unrest. Twice in November, mass demonstrations were reported against the U.S. government. One third of the population is "Shia" Moslem like the majority in Iran. The anti-imperialist feelings of the Shia masses has been arroused by the Khomeni revolution in Iran. Of great significance is the large population of Palestinian migrants working in the oil fields, constituting about 20 percent of the country's population. In total, about 40 percent of the country's population is comprised of immigrants. Non-kuwaiti's constitute even more that half of the labor force. This is significant because Kuwaiti's are devided both economically, where the former are given many more privelages in terms of wages, employment, housing, education, medical care etc., and politically, where non-Kuwaiti's have no political rights whatsoever. They cannot acquire the right of permanent residence no matter how long they stay in the country, and their residence permits must be renewed every year. Their sons and daughters have no right to education. Furthermore, non-Kuwaiti's cannot join Kuwaiti trade unions. Any sign of unrest on the parts of non-Kuwaiti's is met quickly by violent repression and deportation.

Sudi Arabia: Despite the billions of dollars that the U.S. government has spent in building the Saudi security forces, the Saudi ruling family and state apparatus are on the brink of falling. Evidence of this took place in November when the Grand Mosque in Mecca was siezed by 300 to 400 armed militants. It took two weeks to put down the uprising. It was not, however, Saudi forces which accomplished this, the Saudi army and National Guard were inadequate in supressing this rebellion.

The militants were supported by local tribes, dissident religious groups and by National Guard defectors. Jordanian army units were called in to help. Further evidence of the shaky foundations of the Saudi regime occurred two days after the Mosque was siezed when a violent mass demonstration took place in the Eastern oil fields of Saudi Arabia, the richest oil fields in the country, with a large Shia Moslem as well as Palestinian population. Together, these workers form about one third of the Aramco work force. The demonstration led to a one day strike in the oil fields and the use of Saudi Air Force units and 20,000 troops to supress it.

Itseems clear from the above, that U.S. corporate interests are not secure in the region. The fall of the Shah with his 20 billion dollar army has led US policy makers to the position that the well armed Egyptian, Israeli and Saudi Arabian regimes need support from the U.S. military machine.

Carter is bringing us closer to direct military intervention. But, at the same time it must be recognized that this plan will meet massive opposition in the Middle

turn to page 8

pessimism

shit why don't you all pull your sheets off your heads and find out what people are doing by talking direct, instead of hiding behind the first amendment privilge of your own enemy culture. Whether you call yourselves "concerned student" or "African American History group" it still mirrors the same devious nonproductive divisiveness that the forces we should be organized against love. Why didn't the "concerned student" come to the organizational fair first and ask the Sphinx men of Alpha Phi Alpha what they do and where they are comming from. I for one have a inbred distaste for frats and I know what those brothers are supporting and doing which most likely if compared to your parctice would close your chops for a long while.

What is this! Are you provocateurs trying to discredit what serious people are doing? It seems that everytime something is being organized some ill-conceived up right before we are to have an event. Should I file your letters in Community Issues or Covert Action? I don't know since it was anonomously done. Brother Art was victimized by the same vicious shit. He had to get a lawyer to stop them from harassing him, opening his mail and defaming his character and some anonomous pervert tries to make him out to be an agent.

Unity is happening whether the disident few wnat to be part of it or not. Faculty, students, staff and community people are comming together on numerous problems and their involvement is increasing rapidly. If you are really "concerned" and supposedly have a knowlege of history than cease the clandestine kiddie gave of covert character assasination and join in constructive building, we need all of us together not apart. Political work devoid of history, culture and a knowledge of the social dynamics of your community cannot produce the unity you speak of. Persistent work and dedicated practice will assist in bringing that about, not rehetoric, nor anonomous misplaced criticism. We need active concrete workers not leaders.

Concretely what are the strategies? One, come join on the Third World Caucus to defend Third World Organizations budgets. Contrary to public misconception the Black Leadership is not hamstringing themselves for the S.G.A. and R.S.O.'s money. Black students do pay student activities fees they also pay taxes and get exploited Therefore it is our job to secure what we can to make the internment in Amherst less culture shocking.

Show up to the meeting on April 10th at New Africa House at 7:00P.M. and use some of your "science of today's methods of organizing" to get a good turn out and turn all of this criticism into construction. Or just come by my office in the Student Union Building and make a clear case so we can produce the necessary unity and political conciousness. Communication is the fiber of a community and collective work is what produces collective unity not individual "leaders".

Next time show up to all of the events of Black History Month and you'll see it was replete with political analysis and strategies. Participate fully to the best of your ability and you can them criticize on the basis of what you know rather than what you percieve at an uninvolved distance. ●

Carter breaks Iran relations

By The Associated Press

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini scuttled the latest attempt at conciliation in the Tehran hostage crisis today, and President Carter retaliated by breaking diplomatic relations, ordering Iranian diplomats out of the United States and banning virtually all U.S. trade with Iran.

It was the toughest American action against the Iranians in more than four months, and Carter warned that continued refusal to free the 50 U.S. Embassy hostages "will involve increasingly heavy cost to the government of Iran."

Earlier yesterday, Khomeini's office announced that the 79 year-old revolutionary leader had rejected Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr's proposal to transfer custody of the Americans to the ruling Revolutionary Council.

The hostages will remain under the control of their militant captors until the new Iranian Parliament decides their fate, it said. Such a decision may be months away.

After lengthy meetings with his top foreign policy advisers, Carter went on national television and an-

TURN TO PAGE 6

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY

Collegian

VOLUME CIX, ISSUE 116 Student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst Tuesday, April 8, 1980

Deadline looms; SGA scrambles

By STEVEN SEMPLE
Collegian Staff

The Systems Review Task Force, in its effort to redesign the Recognized Student Organization's accounting system, has run into a major problem which threatens the very existence of student-controlled activity funds on this campus.

Student Government Association co-President Richard Moran said yesterday that Chancellor Henry Koffler's demand for a specific and detailed plan by May 7 will put the task force about seven working days behind schedule and will jeopardize the future of the entire RSO system.

"SGA will lose $30,000 if the Koffler memo is folowed," Moran said. That is the sum owed to Arthur Anderson and Co., the accounting firm that began a 40-day project yesterday to design a new accounting system.

The old system was rejected by the trustees after a report by auditors cited "a high rate of non-compliance" with standard accounting procedures.

A December 5 mandate set by the UMass Board of Trustees required the task force to "present a proposal for a revised accounting system no later than the April meeting of the Budgets and Finance Committee of the Board of Trustees."

According to Moran, a proposal has been submitted, but was deemed inadequate by Chancellor Koffler.

"What they received was just a bid by a company," Koffler said last night. "The proposal cannot be determined until the study is completed. The outcome of the study will yield a proposal," he said.

"Students were given an opportunity to submit a proposal and the meeting was even delayed to accomodate them," Koffler said. The meeting was changed from April 22 to May 7, according to Koffler, to allow the trustees additional time to study the different options, including those submitted by the administration.

If the May 7 deadline is not met, the trustees will have no alternative but to consider a switch to the university accounting system, a move advocated by the administration, Task Force members said.

"Obviously, in order for students, administration and trustees to accomplish the goals set forth by the trustees we will need a few weeks longer than given by the Koffler memo," Moran said.

Moran called the issue a problem of "miscommunication" between the administration and the trustees.

Moran said that the SGA will "try to set a date for a meeting with UMass President David Knapp, and Koffler and a trustee to settle the issue."

Koffler said that a "study of costs involved is also an important aspect." He said "several options are possible," referring to a proposal that would switch control of the accounting system and student activity money to the university system.

"The time has come to make a decision," Koffler said.

Freshman Will Antonoff smashes a forehand in an attempt to gain a position on the eighteenth floor team of John Adams Tower. (Staff Photo by J. Ferrarone)

Freada Klein spoke last night before a crowd in the Campus Center Auditorium. (Staff photos by J. Ferrarone)

Freada Klein assails rape misconceptions

By JANE DEVIRGILIO
Collegian Staff

"Rape is a logical outgrowth of a history where people rely on violence to solve problems, a crime committed most often not by a pervert striking from the bushes but as a premeditated violent act where the assailant usually knows his victim," Freada Klein said last night to a group of approximately 100 people in the Campus Center Auditorium.

Speaking on rape as part of the Distinguished Visitors Program, Klein said the FBI categorized rape as the fastest growing violent crime in the United States today and said that because only 10 to 20 percent of rapes are reported, one can estimate that approximately one out of three women will be raped in her lifetime.

Discussing recent trends in the crime of rape, Klein said the average rapist is getting younger and there has been a recent increase in the number of gang rapes, which account for 25 percent of all rapes. This figure is misleading, however, since a gang rape is often reported as one rape regardless of the number of assailants, she said.

Klein said 90 percent of rapes are intra-racial and of those that are inter-racial, twice as many white men have been responsible for raping black women. This contradicts the common misconception that it is more often black men that rape white women. The majority of rapes occur between persons of the same race and socio-economic background, she said.

She said that between 1930 and 1970, there were 455 executions for the crime of rape in the United States and 405 of those men executed were black.

Klein's presentation included a film she collaborated on entitled "Rape Culture" which dramatically points out attitudes about rape in popular film and the violent attitudes of rapists. Excerpts from such films as "Frenzy," "Straw Dogs," "Last Tango in Paris," and "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" show examples of how rape is popularized to cinema audiences.

Klein emphasized that women do not ask to be raped. She said men often equate women's clothing or mere actions as an invitation to rape. "We do not," she said, "believe that a man dressed in an expensive suit and carrying a wallet in his back pocket is asking to be mugged." She said it is for this reason that society cannot put the blame for rape on the woman who is the victim.

"If we believe only a certain type of woman is raped and that she can always fight back, this is not the truth," she said.

DIGEST

Cameras were permitted in Massachusetts courts for the first time yesterday. Here, Attorney Robert Quinn addresses a panel of judges in Boston's Supreme Judicial Court. Judges from right to left are, Benjamin Kaplan, Francis J. Quirico, Chief Justice Edward F. Hennessey, Robert Braucher, and Ruth I. Abrams. (AP Laserphoto)

Reps. urge Olympic boycott

WASHINGTON (AP) – In a bipartisan appeal, the leadership of the House of Representatives called on the U.S. Olympic Committee yesterday to support President Carter's proposed boycott of the Summer Olympic Games in Moscow.

"No American citizen, no citizen of a free nation, can afford to ignore this series of provocations," said a letter to the committee, referring to the Soviet Union's invasion of Afghanistan.

"We cannot permit the Soviet Union to think it will be business as usual with the rest of the world after the invasion. We must not let the Olympics be prostituted by the Soviets. ... We look to the U.S.O.C. and its constitutent bodies for leadership on this issue," it said.

Cuba calls emigres 'bums'

By The Associated Press

The Cuban government described as "vagrants and bums" the Cubans who crowded inside the Peruvian embassy in Havana seeking asylum but said it would permit them to leave if Peru is willing to accept them, Radio Havana said yesterday.

The broadcast, monitored in Miami, Fla., said most of the reported 10,000 persons who mobbed the embassy Sunday hoping to escape from the communist rule of President Fidel Castro were "common delinquents, anti-socials, vagrants and bums."

The Peruvian government, calling the massive plea for asylum "an unprecedented human tragedy," said it cannot take all of those wanting to leave Cuba. Many are expected to seek asylum in the United States.

In Washington, the State Department said it would be willing to consider applications for refugee admission to the United States from Cubans who could reach Peru.

Reagan wins, Bush in Pa.

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press

While Oklahoma Republicans were giving an expected boost to Ronald Reagan's high-flying presidential campaign, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy fought yesterday for voter support in the crucial Pennsylvania primary two weeks away. "I don't get into a battle to lose it," he declared.

Those were brave words for a candidate whose Pennsylvania campaign coordinator all but says the state's April 22 primary battle with President Carter could be Kennedy's last stand if the Massachusetts senator doesn't do well there.

"It's do or die in my book," said Mike Ford, the Kennedy strategist. "To me it's the most important thing in the world. To the campaign, it's close to that."

On the Republican side, a spokesman for George Bush expressed a similar view of the Pennsylvania contest.

Senator admits his extortion

By DAVID HERN
Associated Press

BOSTON – Ex-Sen. Joseph J. C. DiCarlo, who once vehemently proclaimed innocence in the extortion charge that sent him to prison, admitted for the first time yesterday that he took $11,500 from a New York construction management firm.

In a dramatic appearance before the corruption commission at the Statehouse, the former Democratic floor leader from Revere insisted he wasn't a crook. The money, he said, was used for his political obligations.

"When it (the money) came, I accepted it," DiCarlo testified. "It never went into my pocket...I didn't then, nor do I now, consider it dishonest."

The money was for "my political office and political organization," he said.

DiCarlo got the money, he admitted, after he agreed to alter a legislative committee study on the McKee-BergerMansueto (MBM) contract supervising the harbor campus of the state university.

DiCarlo and Sen. Ronald C. MacKenzie, R-Burlington, were convicted in federal court of extorting $40,000 from the firm, back in the 1970s.

"It is ironic how these aggressive pursuers become frightened victims, when pressed by law enforcement agencies," DiCarlo said, alluding to MBM.

He was followed by former Dukes Probate Judge Sherwood J. Tarlow, chief fund raiser for Gov. Endicott Peabody.

While denying that there was a direct link between contributions and state business, Tarlow supported earlier testimony of former Worcester architect Frank R. Masiello Jr. about the "boiler room" Tarlow supposedly operated to get contributions from architects and others.

Masiello has linked payola to construction and design contracts in the administrations of former Republican Govs. John A. Volpe and Francis W. Sargent, as well as Peabody who was a lawyer for MBM when DiCarlo was on trial.

DiCarlo, however, was the star of the day. He castigated the crime commission for its tactics that forced him to testify.

Kennedy attacks Carter on Iran

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA – Sen. Edward M. Kennedy suggested yesterday that the Carter administration may have lost opportunities for progress in resolving the Iranian crisis by spurning diplomatic initiatives several weeks ago.

Speaking on a radio program as he resumed campaigning for the April 22 Pennsylvania primary, Kennedy said that both Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr and U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim "made initiatives" early in the crisis which the administration "turned aside."

"There's a legitimate question whether, as we waited, we rejected initiatives from the Iranians and other diplomatic initiatives – whether we could have made other diplomatic progress before we found ourselves where we are at the present time," said President Carter's challenger for the Democratic presidential nomination.

An aide said later that Kennedy was referring to proposals for establishment of an international grievance commission, an idea that he set forth in a speech in January. The Carter administration initially rejected such a proposal, but later embraced it.

A U.N. commission later was established to investigate Iranian grievances against the deposed Shah of Iran in exchange for the release of the American hostages held in Tehran since Nov. 4. But any understanding that might have existed when the commission was appointed fell apart when the panel members went to Tehran.

Kennedy made his remarks in response to a question, and did not discuss recent developments in the crisis. He was interviewed before the president announced the United States was breaking diplomatic relations with Iran and expelling all remaining Iranian diplomats from the United States in retaliation for Iran's refusal to release the hostages.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance greets Egyptian President Anwar Sadat on his arrival in the U.S. yesterday. At Sadat's right is his wife, Jihad. (AP Laserphoto)

Sadat arrives ready to talk

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press

WASHINGTON – President Carter, beset by a new rebuff from Iran, will be striving for new success in the Middle East in his summit talks with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat over some form of self-rule for more than 1 million Palestinian Arabs.

Sadat's arrival late yesterday at Andrews Air Force Base in suburban Maryland touches off two busy weeks in which Carter will try to accommodate Israel's security concerns with Palestinian aspirations for a homeland.

The Egyptian leader will be followed to Washington next week by Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, with the May 26 target date for completing an autonomy plan only five weeks away.

Already, there is an air of crisis here and in other world capitals. Ten rounds of Egyptian-Israeli negotiations have left all major issues unresolved. There is political pressure on all three principals – Carter, Sadat and Begin – to produce.

With the stalemate at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran now in its fifth month, Carter's campaign for reelection could use a foreign policy lift. The Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty signed last year was a crowning achievement, and the president hopes to maintain the momentum by promoting an agreement on the Palestinians.

Sadat, who broke ranks with the anti-Israeli front in the Arab world when he signed the earlier pact, is eager to prove his fidelity by winning a foothold for the Palestinians.

And Begin, his fragile ruling majority buffeted by disputes between hard-liners and more moderate forces, is under growing pressure at home and abroad to resolve the issue. He needs the kind of breathing space another accord with Egypt could provide.

Carter scheduled two sessions with Sadat on Tuesday and a third on Wednesday. The Egyptian leader will meet also with congressional leaders and Pentagon officials, and make a number of public appearances.

Security was tight at the Egyptian and Iranian embassies yesterday. Anti-Sadat demonstrators marched on the White House to protest his invitation. "Death to Sadat," they shouted. "Death to Begin." Some of the demonstrators carried placards portraying Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the Iranian leader, who has taken a pronounced anti-Israeli stance.

Terrorists invade settlement, infant killed on peace talks eve

By DANIEL GREBLER
Associated Press

KIBBUTZ MISGAV AM, Israel – Palestinian terrorists invaded a nursery full of sleeping children at this kibbutz on the Israeli Lebanese frontier before dawn Monday and killed a baby, an adult and one of the Israeli soldiers who stormed the building and slew the five terrorists, the Israelis said.

The attack, just as Passover week ended, coincided with the Mideast summits President Carter has called with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin to revive the stalled Palestinian autonomy talks. Sadat left for Washington yesterday and Begin follows next week for separate talks.

The siege, nine hours of terror punctuated by gunshots and the frightened wailing of children, began as many of the 250 members of the hilltop community were going to bed – having just returned from a concert in a nearby border settlement.

When it was over, blood stained the children's dormitory, bullet holes ranged across the walls over playpens, tiny shoes and toys were scattered in disarray, and broken glass was everywhere. The kibbutz leader was dead, and so was 2¼-year-old Eyal Gluska and an unidentified soldier.

Subscription rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333 220) is published daily Monday through Friday, excluding January, June, July, and August. Tel. 915 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts at Amherst, MA 01003. Second class postage paid at Amherst, Mass. Postmaster: Send address changes to Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003

AMC AMERICAN MULTI CINEMA
ADULTS $2.75 STUDENTS & SR. CITIZENS with AMC CARD $2.25 TWI LITE SHOW $1.50 - Special Engagements Excluded Two-Lite Show - Limited to Seating
TIMES SHOWN FOR TODAY ONLY
HAMPSHIRE 4 — 584-7550 HAMP. MALL ON CAFE SQ.—RT. 9, HADLEY, MASS
SISSY SPACEK TIMMY LEE JONES Coal Miner's DAUGHTER (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30 PG
AUDIENCES WILL SIMPLY CHERISH BREAKING AWAY (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30 PG
Honor thy wife and everyone else's MARTIN MULL TUESDAY WELD SERIAL (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45 R
Little Darlings (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45 R
MOUNTAIN FARMS 4 — 584-9153 MOUNTAIN FARMS MALL ROUTE 9-HADLEY, MASS
PETER SELLERS SHIRLEY MacLAINE BEING THERE (5:45 @ $1.50) 8:30 PG
ROY SCHEIDER ALL THAT JAZZ (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:30 R
HAL HOLBROOK HIDE IN PLAIN SIGHT (6:15 @ $1.50) 8:45 PG
PAUL NEWMAN JACQUELINE BISSET When Time Ran Out (6:00 @ $1.50) 8:45 PG

Electrical Design Contest
Win $75 for First Place
in the
Great IEEE Tractor Pull Contest
see IEEE Office
for rules & registration
Rm 131 Eng Blg East UMass Campus

EUROPE by CAR
RENT or BUY
LOWEST PRICES
FOR STUDENTS, TEACHERS
EUROPE BY CAR
45 Rockefeller Plaza
New York, N.Y. 10020
Phone (212) 581-3040
Mail this ad for Special Student/Teacher Tariff.
☐ RENTAL ☐ LEASE ☐ PURCHASE
☐ EURAIL PASS & YOUTH PASS

OMEGA BOOKS galore!
COMICS
MOVIE POSTERS
BUY and SELL
(SOME TRADE)
QUALITY USED BOOKS
213 MAIN ST. AMHERST
10-1230 2-500 MON-SAT

Lenny Pagano can't quite believe how much fun it is to work on his car at the auto workshop in the CC garage. Actually, he works there and offers assistance to car owners. (Staff photo by Doug Paulding)

Proposals would end MassPIRG checkoff

By MARC FAGELSON
Collegian Staff

Two bills which would prevent Massachusett's universities, colleges and community colleges from including a fee for organizations such as MassPIRG in their student billing were considered by the State's Education Committee yesterday in Boston.

One of the bills, H-5322, was debated in the State House while the other, H-3748, was refiled because of time constraints, said Ken Moore, a Student Center for Education, Research, and Advocacy member.

H-5322, filed by Mark E. Lawton, D-Brockton, Royall H. Switzler, R-Wellesley and another representative would "prohibit the Board of Trustees of any state college or University from imposing any fee on any student to be applied to MassPIRG."

The bill would change the present billing system of the University from its negative check-off system Moore said. In the negative system, the MassPIRG cost is added to the student's bill unless the student clarifies he or she does not wish to pay the fee.

Doug Phelps, a former UMass student, speaking on behalf of MassPIRG, said the organization is valuable as an educational tool, not a lobbying power, according to Moore. MassPIRG offers experience to students and if they make the effort, students have impact in the organization, Phelps added.

H-3748 was filed by Andrew H. Card Jr., R-Holbrook; Leon J. Lombardi, D-Cambridge; and Andrew S. Natsios, R-Holliston. This is the forth year the bill has been refiled, Moore said.

It is "an act to prohibit the assessment of or expenditures of funds through the Massachusetts college system and universities for any legislative agent or organizations attempting to influence legislation."

Moore said the bill contains many specifics and details which could "severely cripple" student ability to deal with legislators.

Town elections today, 15 UMass students run for meeting seats

By BRIAN O'CONNOLL
Collegian Staff

About 25 percent of Amherst's 12,500 registered voters are expected to turn out in today's Amherst town elections, according to Town Clerk Estelle Matusco.

Voters can expect partly sunny skies tomorrow, with a chance of rain, according to the U.S. Weather Bureau forecast for the Amherst/Northampton area.

Candidates will be vying for dual positions on the Board of Selectmen and School Committee, as well as single positions as Library Trustee, Town Moderator and Amherst Housing Authority. Also, 80 Town Meeting seats are being contested, with 15 UMass students on the ballot.

In the Selectmen's race, four candidates, Francesca Maltese, 45 High St., incumbent Donald M. Routh, 41 Lincoln Ave, Chaucy T. Simmons, 810 Main St., and William a Ezbicki, 711 West St., emerged out of a field of seven candidates in a non-partisan caucus Feb. 26 and will compete for two seats on the Board in today's election.

School Committee Candidates include Casey Clark, 27 Birchcroff Lane; Roger D. Frant, 56 Hunters Hill Circle and Fran Wall, 34 Cherry Lane. Two positions are open on the School Committee. In the Library Trustee race, four candidates are vying for two available positions. They are: Thomas J. Lardner, 175 Amity St.; Herta Paulson, 49 Maplewood Dr. H. Hills Skillings, 16 Hills Rd.; and Patricia Sullivan, Village Park Apts.

Also, Nancy E. Gillis, 562 Pufton Village, and Rosemary Morgan, 141 Columbia Drive, are running for the one avialable position of the Housing Authority, and UMass Dean of Students William E. Field is running unopposed for the office of Town Moderator.

Town Meeting Candidates from UMass include former Student Senate Treasurer William A. Fitzgerald, 306 Pufton Village; Douglass M. Kirkpatrick, Apt. H-15, North Village Apts; and Joseph C. McDonald, 98 Sand Hill Rd. From Precinct 2, which includes Village Park Apts. and Butterfield Dormitory in Central Residential Area, one student Thomas L. Paige, 81 Cotton St., is running.

Form heavily student populated Precinct 3, which includes all of Central except Butterfield, Sylvan, Northeast and Orchard Hill Residential Areas, student candidates are: Mari Jon E. Adams, 718 Field Dormitory; David Carriero, 104E Cashin Dormitory; Mindy Gayle Kingston, 210 Mary Lyon Dormitory; Donald P. Morse, 705A2 Cashin; Arvud C. Miller, 617 Field; Gail M. Murphy, 624 Field; John C. Parker, 407 Dwight; Leverene J. Thelen, 298 Rolling Ridge Rd; and William T. Lyons, 325 Chadbourne Dormitory. All candidates except for Lyons are running for three year terms. Lyons is running for a one-year term.

According to Matusco, polls will be open from 12 to 8 p.m.

Holocaust remembered through week's events

By BARBARA EPSTEIN
Collegian Staff

UMass Hillel will sponsor a series of events Thursday, April 10 through Sunday, April 13, to commemorate Ha'shoh or Day of Remembrance.

The purpose of these events is to honor the memory of the millions of Holocaust victims, killed in German Concentration Camps during World War II, and to keep heir memory alive so the future will not be marred by any repeat of this catastrophe, said Judy Kopman, organizer of UMass Holocaust week.

The Holocaust Remembrance week will begin Thursday with a Holocaust display, located in front of the candy counter in the Student Union Lobby. The display will show various horrors the Jewish people encountered during World War II. The display will include an art exhibit, films, books,petitions and music.

Thursday evening the film "The Garden of the Finzi Contini's" will be shown free of charge at 8 p.m. in Thompson Rm. 104. This movie won the 1971 Academy Award for Best Foreign Film and is the story of a Jewish family living in Italy in the late 1930's.

A major series program will be an all night vigil biginning Saturday, April 12 at 8 p.m. with a commemoration service and continuing until 11 a.m. on Sunday.

Many events are planned for this 15-hour vigil. Three speakers will discuss how the Holocaust affected them; Heddy Rose, a faculty member at Hampshire College, will speak at 9 p.m. Saturday. Heddy, her mother and sister, lived for four years in the basement of Christian friends in Amsterdam during the war.

At 10:15 p.m., Professor Henry Lea of the UMass German department will speak on his experience as a translator at the Nuremberg trials from 1947-48. Then, at midnight, Professor Julius Lester of the UMass Afro-American department will speak on what the Holocaust means to him as a black person.

Other events include short films focusing on the effects of the Holocaust, past and present, recitation of names of Holocaust victims, a sunrise service, poetry reading, and song singing.

The final event will be a brunch Sunday morning at 11 a.m. in the Commonwealth Room of the Student Union. Guest speaker at the brunch will be Mrs. Helen Kopman, who was part of the Warsaw Ghetto Uprising and lived in the Maidenek and Auschwitz concentration camps. At 11:45 Mrs. Kopman will give her lecture on "What I Learned From My Experience in the Warsaw Ghetto and Auschwitz."

John Searle gets a little target practice at the local shooting range on route 116 in South Amherst.

Notices

THE AMORPHIC COSMIC WIMPOUT TRAVELING CIRCUS presents the Fifth Annual Global Tournament and Inverse Film Festival in the "Hatch", Saturday, April 12. $500 cash or $750 stereo system as first prize. Clowns, jugglers, magicians, and mimes! Prizes for all first round winners. Two dollar tickets available on the Campus Center Concourse are also good for admission to see Martian Highway, North, and Elixir that night. Buy in advance to be eligible for Blue Denim shopping spree raffle!

THERE WILL BE A FREE SHOWING of the film "Consciousness and Society", on April 10, at 7:30 p.m., in room 803 of the Campus Center. It is sponsored by the T'ai Chi Club. For more information call 549-6362.

ALBANY MEDICAL COLLEGE Dean of Admissions Richard Edmonds, Ph.D. will speak this Thursday, April 10 at 6:30 in campus center 168-170. Dr. Edmonds will discuss the medical school admissions process, and will be glad to answer any questions you might have. A brief meeting of the UMass Pre-Medical Society will follow.

ATTENTION ALPHA ZETA MEMBERS. Mandatory meeting Thursday, April 10, in Rm. 172 of the Campus Center, at 7 p.m. Important issues will be discussed. Call an officer if you can't attend.

Come one, come all to the Children's Pet Show to be held on Sunday, April 13. Starting time is 9:30 a.m. Children 13 yrs. and under are eligible to enter. For further information contact Betty Fritz at 498-2251. Refreshments will be sold. Sponsored by the Fraternity of Alpha Zeta. To be held in Grinnell Arena.

STUDENTS AGAINST THE DRAFT are having their weekly general meeting Wednesday, 4:30 803 CC. We are a growing organization that opposes registration, draft, war, and the military. This meeting is open to the entire UMass community.

THE MENTAL PATIENTS ADVOCACY PROJECT, a training program in mental health law, is recruiting prospective trainees to begin on July 1. The Project is a 13 month program associated with Western Massachusetts Legal Services. For those who are students during the training period, up to 30 credits are available. A training stipend of between $4-5,000 will be provided.

MPAP will hold an afternoon-long meeting on April 9 for prospective trainees. It will begin promptly at 12:30 and be held at the Project Office at Northampton State Hospital. For further information, call 584-1644 x2-65. Women and minorities are encouraged to apply.

MARKETING CLUB: Donald Goss, Exec. V.P. of McCafrey & McCall Advertising Agency, will be speaking tomorrow at 4 p.m. in the Campus Center, Rm. 1101-1102. Happy Hour at 3:30 p.m. $1 all you can drink!!! All are welcome.

HILLEL HAPPENINGS:
Tues. Passover Services, 10:30 a.m. Duke's Room, SU 310.
Thurs. Holocaust Remembrance Display, 9 a.m.-4 p.m. in front of the candy counter in the Student Union Lobby, main floor. Art exhibits, films, books, petitions, past graffiti, music.
Thurs. Film: "The Garden of the Finzi-Continis." About an aristocratic Jewish family in 1938 Italy under Mussolini's reign. 8 p.m., Thompson 104 free.
Fri. Shabbat Dinner, Kosher Dining Commons, Hampden. 5:30 p.m., sign up in advance at Franklin Dining Commons Meal Ticket Office.
Fri. Shabbat Services, 7 p.m., Duke's Room, SU 310.
Sat. Shabbat Services, 10:30 a.m., Duke's Room, SU 310.
Sat. All Night Holocaust Remembrance Vigil, 8 p.m.-Sat. through 11 a.m. Sun. 4-13, Cape Cod Lounge, SU. Films, speakers, recitations, etc.
Sun. Brunch and Discussion on "What I Learned From My Experience in the Warsaw Ghetto and Auschwitz," with guest speaker Mrs. Helen Kopman, the only member of her family to survive the concentration camps. Brunch, 11 a.m. (small fee for food); Program, 11:45 a.m. (free), Commonwealth Room, SU.

The Women's Studies Program will hold an emergency meeting aimed at developing a strategy to insure the continued survival of the program, on Thursday, April 10, at 7 p.m. in Campus Center 174-176. Faculty, staff and students will be present to speak on the current status of the Women's Studies major, and its outlook for the future.

A workshop on Abortion for UMass Women will be held tomorrow at 9 p.m. in Greenough Classroom 101 by Health Aide Amy Stein. The session is open to both men and women, and will include discussion of local abortion facilities, costs, health risks, and an overview of first and second trimester abortion procedures. Call 546-6000 for more information.

Firesides available for seekers of Bahai faith Friday and Monday nights. Friday nights from 8 to 10 p.m. Address: Mable Garis, 146 Shays St., Amherst, Tel. 256-6277. Monday nights from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Adress: Nat Rutstein, 34 High Point Dr., Amherst, Tel. 253-2021.

An orientational meeting for those interested in Fulbright, Marshall and Rhodes scholarships is tonight at 7:30 in CC 165-69.

There will be a meeting of all students who serve on Faculty Senate committees tonight at 6:30 p.m. in Campus Center 805-809.

The Advisory Committee on Honorary Degrees is receiving nominations for the 1981 Commencement and is seeking suggestions from the campus community. Candidates for honorary degrees must be men and women of great distinction. Among the factors which will be considered in the granting of honorary degrees are: (a) intellectual or other creative attainment of high order in a special field of endeavor, (b) extraordinary contribution to the University and the Commonwealth. Names of outstanding candidates should be sent to Eunice Barlow, Chancellor's Office, 301 Whitmore Building, by May 1.

It is anticipated that KNOWLTON, an all-women's dormitory in Northeast, will be re-opening in September, 1980. An R.A. selection will be conducted within the next two weeks. All interested women are invited to apply for the four R.A. positions which will be available. Knowlton will be a handi-cap accessible building. Application forms are available at the Northeast/Sylvan Area Office, Johnson 103. Deadline to file: April 11, 1980.

Natural Family Planning classes will be held at the Newman Center classroom on April 8, 1980, 7 p.m. Anyone interested in Natural Fertility is welcome to attend.

"Reaching our Potential" a women's conference and luncheon for UMass, UConn and Springfield College women dealing with a Christian perspective of womanhood. Saturday, April 26th at the Northampton Hotel, 9 a.m.-3:30 p.m. All registrations due by April 10th. For further information and brochure call 256-6967, weekday evenings.

Five College artists. 15,000 people could see your work in the Five College Gallery at the New England Artist Festival and Showcase, held at the Three County Fairgrounds in Northampton, May 9, 10 and 11. Each student may submit one work. Outstanding artists will have their work included in a special group exhibit to be held in Boston this fall. Registrations forms are available from five college art departments and Arts Extension Service, Hasbrouck Lab, UMass, Amherst, Ma. 01003. The deadline for registration has been extended to April 18. For more information, call 549-4970 x 155.

Dan Smith, former General Secretary for the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament in Britain will speak Thursday at the Center for Racial Studies at 8 p.m.

Would you like to Speak at Commencement?

This year's Commencement excercises will be held on Saturday, May 24 from 10 am -noon, at Alumni Stadium.

If you're interested:
submit a draft of your speech by Tuesday, April 18, 1980 to Ruth Green, 345 Whitmore.

—you must be graduating with the class of 1980, and have a topic of general interest
—maximum time limit of 5 minutes

For more information contact Ruth Green, 345 Whitmore, telephone 545-2334

CAMP TIMBER TRAILS
TOLLAND, MASS.
RESIDENT CAMP POSITIONS AVAILABLE IN RIDING, GYMNASTICS, WATERFRONT, SMALLCRAFT, UNIT LEADERS AND OTHER AREAS. SALARY FROM $400-$1000, PLUS ROOM AND BOARD FOR NINE WEEKS.
FOR APPLICATION, WRITE, CONNECTICUT VALLEY GIRL SCOUTS, TOLLAND, MA 01034 OR CALL 258-4592

Got a complaint? Don't hold it in— write a letter to the editor today!

NOW FEATURING

The newest designs in braiding

Our expert staff of creative stylists can design styles for women, men and children.

Braid designs starting as low as $15.00

Offer limited to New Customers only
Shampoo, Style Cut & Dry $8.50
Long Hair $9.50
The Best Perms & Body Waves only $25-$35
(Style cut included)
Treat Yourself to a Special Deluxe Facial Treatment. Only $12

Styles by Deborah

65 University Dr., Amherst • 549-5610
62 Main St., Easthampton • 527-2411

Both shops open evenings by appointment

HALLOWEEN

CAMPUS CENTER AUDITORIUM
TUESDAY
April 8
Showing: 7, 9 and 11
Admission: $1.25
Sponsored by:
Governors Program Council

Editorial/Opinion

Chemical catatonia

The concept is simple: Better Killing through Chemistry. And if you don't mind thinking of people as mere insects to be eliminated, then the idea of a nerve gas will have a certain appeal. After all, it sprays bugs, and war is hell, you know. Nothing's too bad for the enemy.

On a national news program last week, I saw a story on chem-warfare in which a defense analyst said she couldn't see why chemical weapons should be less acceptable than any other type. The sole objective of fighting a war, in her opinion, is to win it.

JOHN PARKER

I have swung between catatonia and apoplexy ever since; but I've come up with a short rebuttal to that ironically bug-like, chill logic of hers and of others.

Again, a simple idea: I am not an insect. I am neither bug nor beetle; not a bee, surely not a wasp or other hymenopteran. My personality, not my eyes, is multifaceted, and when I eat someone's crop, invariably I have paid for the privilege. Though some spring days I feel a kinship for the mayfly, I find myself, ineluctably, human.

I am a mammal, thank you, your defense analysis aside.

Once one assumes the essential humanity of all participants, the chem-warfare picture changes. Looking under the exoskeleton of tanks and half-tracks, under the gas masks, butyl rubber gloves and gas-adsorptive suits of the footsoldiers, you will find people. And, even in war, there are some things that ought not to be done to people. As a citizen of the country that invented, then improved upon napalm, and used plastic, X-ray transparent shrapnel in the last war, I advance a thought that used to be a conventional wisdom. There are some means that are unacceptable no matter what the end. One gains nothing toward the freedom and dignity of the people one is defending if the conflict involves the use of agents, whether chemical, mechanical, biological or nuclear, which have inhumane or indiscriminate effects.

Denying the humanity of civilian populations, and ignoring the extremities of suffering inflicted on the innocent or unwilling is no way of taking a stand for liberty. This has been recognized for centuries: The ban on crossbows in the Europe of the Middle Ages is memorable. The prohibition of hollow-point bullets in international war still holds, even though police forces all over the country still use them. Poison gases haven't been used, with very recent exception, since the First World War, and biological agents have remained unthinkable to all but the military planners. It is more than possible to fight without such brutal toys, as many wars have shown us. International disputes and dramatic social unrests in individual countries can also be settled by peaceful, non-violent means, a suggestion some may find outlandish.

Our stockpiles of nerve gases, dwindling for years, should be destroyed. The research into nerve gases should be of a purely defensive nature, to protect any troops exposed by an enemy's attack.

These weapons, for so long merely curiosities, are not vital to anyone's defense. Their use would kill possibly thousands of civilians and permanently injure many others, so they could not be used without consequent atrocity. Finally, they are sure, like their chemical cousins the organophosphorous pesticides, to persist and to enter the food chain.

The time for complete chemical and biological disarmament is now. The bankrupt argument of deterrence by threat of retaliation in kind is a game for children and psychotics. There is no need for these weapons now, and before defense analysts and defense contractors create one, we should choose, as members of humanity, never to make them, never to keep them, and never to use them.

John C. Parker is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the editor should be kept as short as possible, preferably no longer than two pages. They should be typed at 67 characters per line, triple-spaced.

All letters should contain the author's name, address, and telephone number for verification. Telephone numbers will not be printed.

Standing firm on Women's Studies

The Women's Studies Program was approved by the Faculty Senate in March 1978, and since then it had been virtually tossed back and forth by the central administration. Result—the major, still granted through BDIC (Bachelor's Degree with Individual Concentration), is not officially recognized by the university. It is also under hiring and budget constraints due to its tenuous position.

TINKER READY

The administration's reluctance to deal with the Women's Studies program may be an indication of their refusal to take it seriously. Two years is a long extension on a ninety day waiting period.

Some faculty members got frustrated with the administration's bureaucratic foot-dragging, and over one hundred of them signed a letter to Chancellor Koffler last week. The letter recommended that the chancellor give his "vigorous support" to the program in order to get it approved as soon as possible by the Trustees.

The letter cited the number of students who have transfered to UMass specifically for this program, the low attrition rate for Women's Studies majors, and reminded Chancellor Koffler that his "recently established Commission on Civility knows or should know that the WSP is one place on campus where tensions created by racial, class, and sex differences are confronted and discussed in the context of serious intellectual investigation."

I'm one of those students who transferred to UMass for Women's Studies and I was also one of the Women's Studies students who attended an organizing meeting on Tuesday night to discuss strategies to convince the administration to take some positive action. I'm angry because I left Boston University when I got tired of constantly fighting for my rights within the university, leaving me with no time to go to classes.

I came to UMass with a desire to spend my time on papers and projects instead of pickets and petitions. (Not to say that I don't like picketing, I just don't like having to pay tuition to do it.)

So there I was at another organizing meeting, and I started thinking back on BU and I started to get more frustrated. I don't want or need another meeting to go to. But I'm back to where I started from at BU—fighting for the very existence of my major.

I try not to get cynical, but I really should have known better. I was a fool to take a Women's Studies major for granted in a system where women earn 59 cents for every dollar men earn, and where the ERA won't pass.

But be it BU, UMass, or wherever, it's a sexist and patriarchial society however you look at it, and there's no getting away from it. The treatment the Women's Studies Program has received for the last two years at UMass is just another justification for its existence.

So I guess I'll have to chalk up another incomplete or two for this semester because I won't let them destroy what I think is one of the finest and most progressive programs at this school. You see, it's just as dark in the library tower as it is on Commonwealth Avenue.

Tinker Ready is a Collegian commentator.

Letters

Personal explanation

To the Editor:

In the March 12 issue of the Collegian's "Black Affairs" section, Earl Brown wrote a commentary regarding a personal which had appeared in the paper earlier that week, reading: "Who is that guy with the hat in the wheelchair, anyway?" Viewing the statement as one with severe racial undertones, Mr. Brown paralleled its "intent" with the tragic attacks on members of the black community that have occurred in recent years. As the writers of this personal, we feel that we must confront Mr. Brown on his interpretation of the statement.

To be sure, the personal was written with no malice, cynicism, or racism in mind. Rather, it was posed as an open question addresed to UMass community—a question that has been floating among students for years (you did know who we were talking about, didn't you?). We feel that, along with the legend of Metawampe, the saga of the world renowned library, and days with coffee in the Hatch, this gentleman has become an integral part of the UMass tradition.

The question we posed made no reference to the ethnicity of the individual involved. The identical personal could have and would have appeared if the gentleman had been purple, orange, green or blue! We, therefore, fail to see the need to introduce the racial issue at all, and we see Mr. Brown's commentary as highly irrelevant to the matter at hand.

In expressing his views as such, Mr. Brown exemplifies a type of racial paranoia that is understandably elicited from years of prejudice and discrimination. We express our apologies to Mr. Brown for any unnecessary unrest we may have caused him. However, at the same time we must also assert that with the amount of discrimination that does exist in this world, it seems unfortunate that he sees fit to seek it out in places where it does not exist.

Names withheld by request

Du Pont explains

To the Editor:

The Du Pont Company does not use genetic tests to discriminate against job applicants or as a substitute for a safe workplace, as implied in Mark Wagner's February 14 column in the Massachusetts Daily Collegian.

Further, Du Pont is not violating the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as claimed in the article. Nor has the Company cited any Occupational Safety and Health Administration ruling as a justification for providing sickle-cell tests, as Mr. Wagner implied.

Since 1972, the Company has been testing black employees and black job applicants for the sickle-cell trait at the request of black employees who wanted the information for their own personal benefit. When results have been positive, individuals have been told, so they could seek medical counseling if they wish. The results have not been used to make job decisions.

The blood hemoglobin test referred to as influencing job placement is a standard medical test which is administered to all employees regardless of race. When the blood count is less than 14 grams per milliliter of blood, as noted in the article, any employee—white or black—is restricted from work involving nitro or amino compounds as a health safeguard. The presence or absence of the sickle-cell trait is of no relevance to this decision.

These tests are part of a medical program provided as an employment benefit and as part of a comprehensive occupational health program that also includes toxicological testing, workplace controls, epidemiological (work history) studies, and industrial hygiene monitoring. In Du Pont's view, it is this combination of measure that best ensures a safe workplace.

Bruce W. Karrh, M.D.
Corporate Medical Director

Spring seems to have reached the UMass area by the way these people are acting. Frisbees, softballs and sunbathers are slowly replacing wool hats, scarves and ski parkas. (Staff photos by J. Ferrarone and Paul Price)

Actuarial Career Opportunities

Sun Life of Canada's United States Headquarters, located in Wellesley Hills, Mass., is seeking candidates for its actuarial career development program.

Representatives from Sun Life of Canada will be conducting on-campus interviews on Friday, April 11.

To set up an interview, contact the career placement office.

SunLife of CANADA
U.S. Headquarters
Wellesley Hills, MA

An equal opportunity employer M/F

Noreste, Admissions

August 80 applicants. 4 year, fully recognized and established Mexican Medical School with several hundred American students enrolled. Use English language textbooks and exams in English School combines quality education, small classes, experienced teachers, modern facilities.

Universidad Del Noreste
120 East 41 St. NY, NY 10017
(212) 594-6589
or 232-3784

WINDSHIELDS
Auto Glass Parts

Spring Auto Inspection
Faulty Glass Repaired
VALLEY Auto Trim and Glass
798 N. King Northampton 584-4837
Insurance Approved

SHOES & BOOTS
Hampshire Mall 584-9676
Holyoke Mall 532-3176

★ Iran

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

nounced the new retaliatory steps:

– A break in diplomatic relations.

– Expulsion of all Iranian diplomats and officials remaining in the United States by midnight tonight.

A prohibition of almost all further exports to Iran. He said he expected even exports of food and drugs would be minimal.

An inventory of frozen Iranian assets in the United States with a view toward establishing a program of financial assistance to the hostages and their families, and to prepare for claims by U.S. corporations and others against Iran. An estimated $8 billion in Iranian government assets was frozen last fall in one of Carter's initial retaliatory steps.

Invalidation of visas issued to Iranians for future arrival in the United States. He said new visas or renewals will not be issued except in unusual circumstances.

"Other actions may become necessary if these steps do not produce the prompt release of the hostages," Carter said.

ARTS

Hampshire's 'The Pragmatists' — the pits

By JOHN PARENTE
Special to the Collegian

With the recent Hampshire College Theatre production of The Pragmatists, new standards have been set in Five College theater - all of them lower. Written by Polish avant gardist Stanislaw Ignacy Witkiewicz in 1919, the rarely-produced play was subjected to a production in which technical competence was not merely in question, it was certifiably absent.

Director Bennett Fischer, it would seem, could not make heads nor tails of the play, but realized that it was avant-garde, and consequently directed it with a self-serving, contemptuous artiness. In keeping with the overall concept of the production, Thomas D. Warren's two-toned, red-and-yellow set and matching lighting were arty and pointless, while Leslie Joyce's were merely pointless.

Fischer's lack of a dynamic sese is alarming. Every sound in the production was projected far too aggressively, from the shrieking and screaming excesses of the actors to the forcedly jagged and ultimately intrusive muisc by Roy Finch. Staging consisted primarily of the actors writhing and twitching about the performance space to no apparent purpose. Virtually every bit of information, aural and visual, was hurled from the stage and at the audience with an unrelenting fervor that was assaultive instead of communicative.

The performances by the seven-member cast were uniformly horrid, with the exception of Seth Krasowitz as the protagonist, Plasfodor Mimecker, who sporadically revealed some compelling honesty and a flair, albeit a nascent one, for subtle shading of character.

The Pragmatists, which was presented on the evenings of March 27-30 and April 2-5, may well be one of the most pretentious, strident, and utterly worthless Five College theater productions in recent memory. In its own way, however, this was a brave and daring piece of work; to present The Pragmatists to the public in this manner, Fischer and Company would seem to have nothing if not nerve. Or is it gall?

Fine Arts exhibits on campus

By ABBE BJORKLUND
Collegian Staff

Many UMass students are unaware of the four campus art galleries. Each gallery has a very exciting exhibition schedule for the coming spring.

The three major galleries on campus – University Gallery, Student Union Gallery, and Herter Gallery, are all located around the campus pond and are easily accessible between classes. The fourth gallery is located in the Hampden Commons in Southwest. If you'd like a break from academics to enjoy some of the "Finer Arts" in life, a trip to one of our on-campus galleries will prove rewarding and enjoyable.

Two exhibitions of photography and a relief sculpture exhibit are at the University Gallery, located in the Fine Arts Center, below the Concert Hall. Frank Gohlke, a Minneapolis-based artist, presents a selection of thirty photographs until April 27. Recent work by a New England photographer, Chester Michalik, will be on view until May 4. "Sculpture on the Wall: Relief Sculpture of the Seventies" centers around nine large relief sculptures by nine artists, and will be on view until May 4.

Frank Gohlke photographs the flat, vast, seemingly vacant, landscapes of the Mid- and Southwest. The majority of the currently exhibited photographs are urban and landscape images of Minnesota and Texas.

Chester Michalik's urban scenes of this country and abroad are straight, unmanipulated images which are sharply focused, richly textured, and often very structured in composition. They are a busy contrast to Gohlke's open space.

The intention of the sculpture exhibition is to link the sculptors to a tradition of relief sculpture, and to explore the blurred area in which contemporary painting and sculpture overlap. To me the illusionistic aspects of Morris' untitled mirrored piece, and the delicate grace of Hunt's "Mie" were very exciting. All of the pieces deserve your attention.

The University Gallery is free of charge during it's open hours: Tuesday 11:30-8:00; Wednesday - Friday 11:30-4:30; and Saturday and Sunday 2-5.

The Student Union Gallery, located in the Student Union Building Rm. 115 near Earthfoods, is beginning two new exhibits April 7-11. The first is a group show of a wide variety of sculpture by UMass students. The exhibit includes bronze and welded pieces ranging from pop art to abstract. The sculpture exhibit is sharing the gallery with two Bachelor of Fine Arts exhibits by J. Zulle and M. Holmes. Their separate works are not typical paintings, but are large, abstract pieces with 2-Demensional form derived from nature.

The SUG just ended their exhibition last week of the semi-finalists in an award-contest of the Photographers Guild. If you didn't catch the exhibit, the winners will be displayed in the store-front of Tripod Camera Shop in Amherst April 7-10. Also the 50 Black and white photographs from the CE credit-free workshop "Darkroom Photography" that were at the SUG until Friday will move to Forbes Library in Northampton from May 5-31. Both photography exhibits are very impressive.

Student Union gallery hours are Monday - Friday 10-5.

"Marsh Fire #2" by Frank Gohlke, now exhibiting at University Gallery through April 27.

The Herter Gallery is located in the first floor of Herter Hall, near the Fine Arts Center. A varied body of works by Master of Fine Arts students will be exhibited there through the end of the semester. The pieces, by about 12 graduate students, include painting, sculpture, printmaking and assemblages. There is a new exhibit weekly, and openings are every Sunday from 2-5.

This coming week Herter will be exhibiting prints and assemblages by Sarah Dutton and Mike Rhodes. Herter Gallery hours are Monday-Friday 12:30-4, Sunday 2-5.

Hampden Gallery will exhibit photography by Alan Liles through April 11. There is an open reception from 4-8 today. The Hampden Gallery's hours are Monday - Friday 4-8.

The Fine Arts pieces that I've seen on campus are varied and creative in their scope and composition. I encourage you to check them out.

The Jam ascends with new album and tour

By MARC FAGELSON
Collegian Staff

The ascension of the Jam in America is inevitable.

As they've proven over the course of three years and four albums, the Jam have both power and finesse. They are smart and have more energy and two Bostons and a Kansas. In terms of trios, the Jam are today's finest.

Their newest album, Setting Sons, confirmed the band's overwhelming fame in England, their home. In the New Musical Express's readers poll, the Jam were awarded best guitarist (Paul Weller), best bassist (Bruce Foxton), and best drummer (Mike Buckler). They also won best band, best songwriter (Weller), and best album. Weller was the poll's number three singer and the band placed three singles in the top ten.

Setting Sons is their best album to date. It is mature and well produced, yet retains much of the group's early punk explosion intensity. Weller's writing and singing have improved as he moves closer and closer to a Ray Davies style of writing. The album's anti-war song, "Little Boy Soldiers" is the strongest I've heard since Davies's "Some Mother's Son."

"They'll send you home in a pine overcoat/with a letter to your mum/ saying find enclosed one son, one medal,/and a note to say he won," Weller sings with alarming grace.

The album is ambitious – many songs have intricate changes and deal with topics many rockers tend to ignore: paying the rent, losing a job, and the isolation of a "Private Hell."

More impressive than its contents, however, is the way the album translates live. They concentrated on material from the new album as well as last year's "All Mod Cons" at their Stage West and Palladium shows earlier this year. Hearing the Jam live, one is struck by the number of great singles they have and perform. Peter Townshend once said, "It's hard not to think of the Who as a singles band," and were it not for the strong material from Setting Sons, the same could be said of the Jam.

The Jam were more at home on the Palladium stage than at the Stage West Club, where the crowd seemed stiff. They played virtually the same show both places, but got more from the crowd, and gave more back, at the Palladium.

Weller looks like an English school boy snatched from Tom Brown's School Days. He spits out the lyrics, even the nice ones, and, particularly at Hartford, plays at ear-crushing levels. Foxton was disappointing at Hartford when one considers his leaps over the monitors and onto the drum stand in New York. Buckler was practically invisible.

The band was uniformly strong – nobody overpowered anyone else. They managed Setting Sons's trickier material; "Smithers-Jones" and "Little Boy Soldiers," with ease. Foxton was responsible for much of the sound with driving bass playing and throaty singing. Weller, who feverishly slapped his guitar and flung himself backwards, rarely missed a vocal.

In Hartford, they returned for a three-song encore including the Kinks' "David Watts." In NY they returned again after the three songs leaving the crowd and themselves spent.

The Jam may prove they belong on the list of immortal bands, but it's still too early to say for sure. With four albums under their collective belts, though, it could be only a matter of time.

Jazz Music: Ron Carter, Tony Rice, Joe Venuti

By ROB HUFFMAN
Collegian Staff

Critically and popularly, Ron Carter maintains a firm position at the top of today's acoustic jazz bass players. He's played with trumpeters Dizzy Gillespie and Miles Davis, and just about every great musician in between.

Growing tired of the rhythm section, however, Ron Carter has stepped out front. The band featured on his latest album Pick 'em (Milestone M-9092), in fact, features two bass players. Ron plays the melodies and most of the solos on a smaller picolo bass. Unfortunately, despite more than competent playing by Carter and his band, the limited dynamic range and tonal qualities of the bass don't emotionally grab listeners as would a horn. The featured cello quintet is certainly a unique touch, but contributes to the heavy tone of the album.

All in all, Pick 'em contains virtuoso string playing, but is unlikely to appeal to many outside of true believers of the picolo bass.

On the sleeve of his new record Acoustic (Kaleidoscope F-10), Tony Rice is described as an acoustic jazz guitarist. Like his mentor (and participant on this album) David Grisman, Rice plays a lively style of music influenced by jazz, bluegrass, and a host of ethnic melodic and harmonic ideas. Also featuring Richard Greene (formerly of Seatrain and Bill Monroe's Bluegrass Boys), Acoustics employs the fine-up of guitar, violin, mandolin and upright bass on every track. The result is an uplifting combination of exciting compositions and masterful picking.

Joe Venuti was a leading jazz violin player for over fifty years. Joe in Chicago, 1978 (Flying Fish 077), contains some of the last recordings made by this great innovator before his death later in the same year. His playing is rapid, skillful and clean. Assisted by friends like Steve Goodman, guitar, Jethro Burns, mandolin, and Curly Chalker on the pedal steel, Joe runs through nine standards including two songs from "My Fair Lady." This record is a fitting tribute to a man who could still swing with the best of them at the age of eighty.

Iggy gets rowdy

Ed. Note – This is a continuation of a story that originally appeared in yesterday's Collegian.

By STEVE WINNIMAN
Collegian Staff

Pressed up against the stage, I could see people on all sides being punched and kicked by Iggy, while he threatened the rest of us over and over. The set included much of Soldier as well as a smattering of his other songs and a brief rendition of the Doors' "The End." The band, which included Ivan Kral of the Patti Smith Group on guitar, was good, and overall, the music itself was enjoyable. But Iggy's onstage antics left me unable to appreciate his artistic musings.

After the show, Iggy told me that he was not angry at the audience. Rather, he said, he was unused to playing small clubs, having been doing places like the Orpheum and Palladium lately, and, being so short (5'6" or so) became frustrated when he could not see over the heads of the people crowded in front on the stage. But despite his inferences that it was all an act and he was only going after the assholes who wouldn't let people in back see, I remained unmoved. It was a good show, but when it comes down to the hostility of Iggy versus the camaraderie of David Johansen or Ray Davies, I'll take the latter anytime.

So what makes Iggy Pop? I doubt we'll ever find out. But it's fun to try.

Collegian Classifieds

To place a Collegian Classified
•Come to Collegian Office CC 113
•8:45 to 3:45 Mon-Fri
•Classified deadline is 3:45 two days prior to publication day

Collegian Classified Rates
•15c per word
•Student rate 10c per word
•Cash in advance
•5 consecutive days 5 % discount
•Phone number FREE

ALTERNATIVE HOUSING

Coed Christain House looking for males Fall Semester close to Campus, inexpensive; Wesley Co-op 549-6563

AUDIO

Brand new 40 channel CB never used 665-4206 evenings

Nikko 3035 Receiver 15 watts w/circuit breakers good as new $80. or BO 6-4920

AUTO FOR SALE

1971 Dodge Polara $300 549-0915

MG Midget new top, clutch, Michelins $900 549-6146

74 Fiat 124 Sedan runs fine 527-4963

71 Toyota Corolla in good condition. $750 665-2893

ENTERTAINMENT

Soundsystem for Hire perfect for bands, discos, coffeehouses Rick 584-4105

Benb & Gerald Book now on sale at For the Record, Faces and Mainstreet Record Thornes Supermarket

FOR RENT

Rooms in So. Deerfield 665-7093

Attractive, reasonable summer rental for 4 people. One minute to SBA 549-1254

Profs London Home good area close center sleeps 9 July/Aug $200 P.W. 253-5421/50420

2 bedroom Colonial Village Apt. Available June 1. Call 253-2750

Two rooms for rent—on bus route, avail immed $125 per month 253-3137

4 bdrm apt Swiss Vill summer sublet on bus rte $400/mo utilities inc 256-0408

FOR SALE

76 Dodge Charger SE, small V8 automatic, air, power windows, excellent condition $1900 546-1029

1969 Volvo engine $150 four speed transmission $50 549-0915

Flute—Gemeihardt open hole, M3, excel cond $300 6-5723

Designer Backgammon Board $40 or BO 6-5723

Two Tires B78-14 Goodyear 4600 miles $45.00 call 256-8435

Quality Concert Photos Kinks, Phyllis Hyman, Judy Collins, Buddy Rich, Garcia, Patti Smith, Lene, Hall & Oates, Bonnie, Fonda, Derringer, Taj, Metheny MW 4:00-4:45 TuTh 12:30-1:30 Index Office Rm 103 CC $4.00 per 8x10 B & W

Twin Reverb with Altecs must sell $450 or BO 6-8777 6-8853

Why spend big money on costly tires for inspection? We have many used tires in all sizes & in excellent condtn for next to nothing. Call 665-4206 evenings

10-speed Bike Harris 253-3877

Technics amp Toshiba turntable Altec speakers $125 each Mens 10 speed Motobecane $125 665-4263

FOUND

Men's Glasses silver frame - brown case. Come in or call Collegian Office 545-3500

Found: Keys by reflecting pool at Fine Arts Center call 549-6226

HELP WANTED

Beat the Squeeze! Get your summer work now. If you'll work hard to make $249 per week, call 253-2597

Backpackers, Canoeists earn $1200 mth! Information $3 Wilderness Expeditions, 97 Spadina Road #302, Toronto, Canada M5R 2T1

Draftsperson needed to do graphs, line drawings and maps, if you can do any of these I can use you, call 545-0245 between 5:00-6:30 pm Kurt

Counselors Private coed camp in Berkshires has openings for head instructors in: archery, arts & crafts, gymnastics, dance/movement/show choreography, radio station (FM), dramatics, sailing, puppetry, tennis, head waterfront (pool), head lakefront (small crafts), waterskiing, tripping/backpacking, pianist/accompanist. Also needed: nurse (RN), general bunk counselors (males), and unit leaders. Good salaries, friendly atmosphere. Contact: Dr. Paul Krouner, Camp Schodack, 268 Mason Terrace, Brookline, Ma. 02146 277-7600, days 9-5

Part-time Bus Survey Persons to help Regional Planning Commission and PVTA distribute and collect onboard bus surveys in Amherst/Northampton area. Oneday only, Wednesday, April 30. Shift lengths vary. Pay $3.75/hr. Apply by April 18th to LPVRPC, 26 Central St., W. Springfield, MA. 01089 Tel. 781-6045

INSTRUCTION

Math Tutor all levels 253-7830

LOST

Lost a gold opal bracelet very sentimental reward call 546-4816

Lost one brown 3-fold wallet at Boyden. If found please call Bill at 546-6824

Lost: A small 14K gold cross of great sentimental value. Reward (more than face value) call 6-6871 or 6-7036 anytime

PERSONALS

NEED CASH? I will buy your used record albums. 6-7937

Stu—COINS 122 is easier to do, because MONDAYS and FRIDAYS are fun with YOU!—Joanne

Gain Business Exper. in Acctg, Mkt, credit and mgt. Apply for a volunteer position at the Student Credit Union

Garbs, I hate you!

Jeff M—I wanna G.Y.H.-next time-sit on my face Guess Who

All are welcome to audition for the Fabulous Fifties Revue this Wed, 7:30 at the FAC music dept For more info call Laurie 546-7697

Wanted: Munchkins, witches & scarecrow for original production to be held in S.U.B. on April 17 for more info contact The Wizard at the Emerald City

Charismatic Prayer and BS Tuesday April 8 CC 172-8-10 PM

Animal House is coming CCA April 11 at 5, 7, 9, 11

Karen Doktor—This is your first personal

Speaking of Hulks, how many days to Captain K. Day

Karen K. had drink at David's Thurs 4/3 enjoyed your company but missed you in the Hatch. Please reply or call 256-0195 if you'd like to get together. Peter

To males 3rd floor Cashin: Who said I was looking at your window! Tickle

Senior 4th florr Dwighties no one else can fill your shoes. Whist, chops, drugs and booze. Your caring and sharing has made it so, I'll be sad when you go. Time goes on and tradition reighns, yet things will never be the same. . .with out you. Good luck, love always, carrie

Monty: you can nibble my stomach anytime!

To Felix and Sue I give this to you: Chewed ice-n-cakes & burned-out steaks our tongue depressants and whoop in residence! Prepsters Incorporated Shakespeares been sedated Cosmic Wimpout Tournament Prize List: All 1st round winners get blue denim boards. $500 1st prize. Many other prizes.

Felix Zeiger Do you want to have sex? Three's company love SMA & SMH

Mr Cohen 213 Wheeler I didn't forget. Happy Birthday Crazy-Lady

Hey Sport Happy Birthday Love Bill

Photo Coop Meeting for officers and managers—Wednesday April 9 Room 174 Campus Center at 7 pm

You're not alone if you favor the use of nuclear energy. Get together! Call Ty 546-8924

Steve—you'd better see this cuz it's finally in here for YOU. Happy Birthday - a friend

Slim Whitman & Ronald Reagan belong in the upper room. Both are equally competent to run the country. Please, Jim Morrison save us all!

Happy Birthday Dianna from good friends!!

ROOMATE WANTED

Puffton 3 bdrm summer $90/mo 549-6146

Brittany Manor Aug-May lease $115 month heat incl. Call Mark 253-9698

Falmouth Center 2 bedroom cottage, need 2 roomates call Jim or TJ 5-0244

Female wanted for own bedroom in Brandywine. Quiet, non-smoker preferred. 549-5106

SAYNE IS TRUE ROCK

Sayne is true rock "No Disco Nite" at QR, Thursday, April 10

SERVICES

Attorney Jason R. Rosenthal Legal Representation. Income Tax Preparation. Days 584-4285 Evenings 253-7617

Lafler T-shirts great silkscreening at great prices slick graphics provided 549-1018

Professional Proofreader available to proof term papers, theses, dissertations. High quality service. Reasonable hourly rate. Call Yale at 584-8241

Lacross Heads sold & restrung cheap 6-4781

Typing experienced typist, reasonable rates 256-6360/586-1464

TO SUBLET

Northwood 2 bedroom furnished AC DW pool garden plots bus-line June 1-August 31 $150 per month call 665-4850 after 4 pm

Cliffside Apartments Sunderland summer sublet 2 bedroom on bus route avail June 1-Aug 31 call 665-7977

3 bdrm Townehouse summer sublet, Fall opt. call Karen 549-6755

To subet for summer w/option for Fall 4 bdrm Swiss Village on bus route 440/mo all util rent negotiable call 253-7975

Puffers Pond 2 bedroom apt June 1-August 1 call 549-4055

2 bdrm luxury furn apt Cliffside Sunderland rent negotiable 665-4004

4-bdrm Sum &/or Fall 440 w/every 256-6447

Soutwood Apt 1 bedroom avail 111.65 available 6/1 253-5201

4 Bedroom/2 bath apt $320/month 1½ miles from camp. on bus route May 25-Sept 1 253-5570 after 5

Summer sublease 1 bdrm in 2 bdrm Sunderland Apt $100/mo 665-4373

Southwood Townehouse with option for Fall tennis swimming call early AM late PM 253-7015 best offer

2 bedroom Brittany Manor 300.00/mo Jun-Aug call 253-5128 after 6

Townehouse Apt. 2 bdrm rent negotiable 549-1325

2 bedroom on bus route completely furnished, all utilities included, pool, tennis, dishwasher $195 call 665-2131

4 bdr on bus route summer sublet w/Fall option clean quiet negotiable terms 256-0778

Colonial Village 2 bedroom, pool, bus sublet w/Fall option $225/mo call 253-7026

One room in a house close to campus available end of May call Jennie 253-3218 80+ util

2 bdrm on bus route Sunderland pets ok Summer w/Fall opt. call 665-3463

2 bedroom apt 1½ mi from Campus near Puffers Pond AC utilities included available June 1 with Fall option 549-0098

4 bedroom 440/mon, utilities incl, on bus rt for Summer with Fall option 256-8209

2 bedroom apt Lantern Court pool tennis freeAC bus rt 665-4724

Rolling Green room to sublet for summer air cond pool utilities included on bus route call 253-9880

Furnished 2 bedroom apt pool, tennis, on bus route, utilities included 665-7769

Walk to UMass this summer one room Andrea 253-2901

Summer Sublet Furnished Presidential Apartments 10 min walk to Campus on bus route 549-1083

4 bedroom for Summer with Fall option rent negotiable bus rt 253-7855

2 bedroom Brandywine Apt. $330 & gas util. avail. June 1 w/Fall option 549-0569

One bedroom in Townehouse in Southwood Apts. On bus route, furnished, only $90 per month. Pool, dishwasher included. Available June-August call 256-8947 anytime

To sublet one bedroom in beautiful large renovated Belchertown House Friendly responsible students seek male or female housemate for summer (mid-May) on bus route rent $112 or best offer. Please call Debbie or Chris 323-6843

One bdrm in Riverglade Apts. Fully furnished, on bus rte., pool—82.50 + call nights 256-6052

Northampton, 1 bedroom apt furnished, on bus route, May 23 to Aug 15 584-8818 evenings

2 bedroom Puffton Apt. 2 bath, air conditioned, tennis courts, pool, fully furnished June-Aug $230 549-4130

2 bdrm apt to sublet June 1 - Sept 1 Riverglade rent neg call 253-7115 pool avail

Sublet 3 bedroom Puffton call 253-2647

To sublet—June 1-August 31 2 bedroom Puffton Village 549-0455

Summer sublet: Large 2 bedroom Presidential apt closest to campus A/C Heat/Hot water included option to renew 549-4059

3 bedroom apt for June to Aug rent negotiable on bus route phone 253-5214

Summer sublet Fall option One bedroom on bus route $180/mo inclusive partly furnished 665-3518

Inexpensive Summer sublet with Fall option, fully furnished if you want! Pool, right on bus line, A/C low $, call 665-7756 available May26

Puffton 1 bedroom Apartment furnished June through August 549-5941 evenings

2 bedroom Apt Cliffside swimming pool rent negotiable 665-4326

Summer Sublet—3 bdrm, $362/month, includes utilities call 256-0644

Quiet 2 bedroom Presidentail Apts ½ mile from Campus June-Aug option to renew A/C $270.00 month call 549-5389

1 bdrm in 2 bdrm apt to rent for Summer/Fall option call 256-0353

1 bdrm SwissVillage June 1 to Aug 31 on bus route fem only call 256-6418

Southwood 2 bdrm TH 250/mo with option to renew call 253-7832

Summer sublet 4 bedroom apt Swiss Village on bus rte 440/mo all util rent neg call 256-6344

2 bdrm Townehouse apts part furnished A/C on bus route call 549-6039

Rooms House summer sublet half mile from Campus 549-1867

From Apr 21 2 bedroom in Puffton Village nearby UMass 549-4360

3 bedroom Rolling Green Apt for summer A/C, pool, on bus route call anytime 546-9919

2 bedrooms apts in Townhouse for June 1 to August 31 furnished rent negotiable call 549-4063

WANTED

Paying cash for gold school rings Bill 549-4166

Wheat Back Pennys 65c per 50 original Beatle Albums 584-7961 after 5

WANTED TO RENT

House for 1980-1981 Academic Year will summer sublet from you call early AM l'nte PM 253-7015

Two women interested in sharing a house/apt in the Fall call Mon-Fri after 5 PM Jane/Abby 546-5577

Summer Sublet Wanted: Smith Social work students desire 3 or more bedrooms within a mile of Campus 1-617-757-8632 or 1-617-232-1847 evenings

Nuke the Whale by Danny Guidera

4 by Frank Emery

Wimpman by Evan Carlson

Bean by Kevin X. McNamara

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

Crossword

ACROSS
1 Tools
5 Lay away
10 Steel girder
14 Medley
15 Like seaweed
16 Constellation
17 Wrote wrongly
19 Debacle
20 Bare
21 Like: Suffix
22 Astonishes
23 Signed
25 Acknowledge
26 Stanch
30 Conjunction 31 Makes over
34 Lunacy
36 Boadicea's people
38 Exclamation
39 Oversight: 3 words
42 — — rule: Usually
43 French dairy product
44 On edge
45 Torn
47 My: Fr.
49 Agent: Suffix
50 Youngster
51 Bounce
53 Stallion
55 Prohibit
56 Bird
61 Title
62 Foolish
64 USSR city
65 Shade-givers
66 Celebration
67 Stance
68 Afghanistan city
69 Hit hard

DOWN
1 Several
2 Giri's name
3 Shred
4 Fair
5 British Columbia river
6 Distant: Prefix
7 Ike, in 1945: 2 words
8 Disburse
9 — — Park
10 S. Pac. island
11 Burnt umber: 2 words
12 Malaria
13 Spoils
18 Press. unit
24 Cutter
25 Rhymer
26 Daub
27 Foot bones
28 Delights
29 "O Sole —"
31 Black bird
32 Them there
33 Sounder
35 Curved
37 Asian ruler: Var.
40 Army dept.
41 His: Fr.
46 Oar
48 Most painful
51 Framework
52 Chart
53 Mud
54 Bull: Sp.
55 Tub
57 Labels
58 Eur. language
59 Tissue: Anat.
60 Cheese
63 Meadow

UNITED Feature Syndicate
Monday's Puzzle Solved

DC Menu

Lunch
Hamburg on Roll
Cheese Strata

Basics Lunch
Golden Burgers
Cheese Strata

Dinner
Roast Turkey/Dressing,
Gravy, Cranberry Sauce
Sweet and Sour Tofu
Seafood Salad Plate/
Chips

Basics Dinner
Roast Turkey/Dressing
Gravy, Cranberry Sauce
Sweet and Sour Tofu
Seafood Salad Plate
Chips

TUESDAYS
2 for 1 Night
(All Mixed Drinks)
9-11
Disco/Oldies
No Cover
THE PUB
15 East Pleasant St.
AMHERST

WMUA & UMass Arts Council
presents
UTOPIA
with todd rundgren roger powell
kasim sulton john wilcox
Tuesday, April 29, 8 pm Fine Arts Center Concert Hall
Tickets 8.00, 7.50, 7.00 UMass 9.00, 8.50, 8.00 Gen. Public
At: TIX, Union Records (UMass) Platterpus (Northampton)
FAC Box Office for info call 545 2892
No Bottles, Cans or Alcohol Please

Fencers visit Holy Cross

The revitalized UMass fencing team recently engaged in serious competition with the Holy Cross Crusaders at the HC Field House. The UM team gave a strong performance, the strongest thus far. A close match, with HC taking the win by one bout.

The bus ride to Worcester was worth it for Women's Foil Captain Ann McDonough. The women were in top form and enjoyed a hard fought win against some of the state's finest fencers.

In eppe competition, the men had a tougher time against the more experienced HC team. Wade Tarzia was instrumental in keeping the HC epees under pressure. Both epee and sabre went to the Crusaders.

Some of the fiercest competition took place in Men's Foil bouts. The acomplished HC men were one beat ahead, and emerged victorious by one bout. Team captain and acting coach Sean Conley did what he could to juggle the lineup of talented newcomers, with Johnson Chen besting two of his three combatants. The men lost foil by one bout. ut.

Directors Darrel Gray, and Carolyn Mularky were equal to the task.

Men's volleyball tallies three wins this weekend

By MAUREEN SULLIVAN
Collegian Staff

The UMass men's volleyball turned its weekend trip to Bostson into a worthwhile venture, picking up three wins from Division One rivals Northeastern University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the University of New Hampshire.

First playing at MIT, UMass overwhelmed its hosts 15-6, 17-15. According to coach Al Morel, the undermanned (only seven players made the trip) UMass squad never had trouble with MIT, despite being behind 6-14 in the second game. UMass next played UNH for the first time since the controversy over an ineligible UHN player erupted soon after the Wildcats had beaten UMass at the invitational at the University of Rhode Island last month. Superior setting by Pat Ryand and Ed Midura, passing and effective blocking keyed UMass to a 15-7, 15-6 sweep.

On Sunday, UMass played Northeastern at NU. Mark Ferrante's setting and better overall conditioning helped UMass win 15-6, 15-10, 13-15, 13-15, 15-6.

"We were fairly fresh in the fifth game while NU was dragging," said Morel, "that's how we won the match. Our depth really helped us out. Scott Houle and Pete Nickerson played well, and Jim Grosslein and Pat had a field day on defense and the way they were crushing spikes."

While the varsity improved its record, the JVs were doing the same at Amherst College last Saturday. UMass downed Amherst 6-15, 15-9, 15-12 and took advantage of a slew of Dartmouth College errors in passing and penalties to sweep 15-5, 15-13.

The two squads will face New England power Springfield College at NOPE gym beginning at 7:00 p.m.

JV mittmen open season

By SCOTT SOLOMON
Collegian Staff

The UMass junior varsity baseball team will break open its 21-game season package Wednesday afternoon at 3 p.m. when it plays host to Quinsigamond Community College.

The Minutemen will be led by first year coach Paul White, a senior at UMass. White played baseball in both his freshman and sophomore years at UMass, and was an assistant football coach for Ware High School, runner-up in the 1978 Western Mass. Super Bowl.

"My objective is to begin a working relationship with these people," said White. "It was very difficult at first, mainly because of the 70-man evaluation which began in mid-March."

UMass will be captained by sophomore third basemen Jack Perry and pitcher Eric Beck. In addition the team will be swamped with a mass of varsity potential in pitchers and six catchers. But even with his great wealth of personnel, White's philosophy is a simple one.

"We want to go out and play some good baseball and have fun doing it. I'm here to teach these kids some of the fundamentals of the game, because our team is here to feed the varsity system. Because of that, it's very important that we go out and learn while we're playing."

Coach White feels that the overall strength of his team will be in the infield. Complementing the lineup will be second baseman Bob Cullette, shortstops Justin Brown and Bruce Emerson, and first baseman Bill Doherty. The main focus of the club will be at the freshman level, which comprises three quarters of the team, with a few returning sophomores.

DISCO ON DOWN TO...

Rt. 9 Amherst

Poor Richard's DISCOTHEQUE

Beat the Clock on Thursday!
All Drinks
8-9 p.m. 50c
9-10 p.m. 75c
10 p.m.-closing $1.00
Tues. 25c beers
Wed. 50c drinks
Sun. & Mon.
18 & 19 permitted

Fri & Sat
HAPPY HOUR 8-10 p.m.

Did you forget to vote today?

STUDENTS — NEED CASH?

We have assignments galore, prestigious clients, and convenient locations. If you live in the greater Boston area, and want to do general labor, or are atypist, secretary. keypunch operator, switchboard operator, receptionist, marketing service, or stock clerk, we will be at the campus center Room 177 on april 10 and 11 from 9:00-6:00 pm Please sign up at the Student Employment Center now.

TAC T.O.P.S. TEMPORARY OFFICE PERSONNEL SERVICES A Technical Aid Company

Burlington 273-2500 · Salem 744-2216 · Cambridge 354-5202 · Waltham 899-7090 · Needham 449-1217 · Nashua, NH 603-882-4200 · Boston 536-2720

FREE CCA PAPILLON FREE CCA
ELECTRONIC CONCERT & LIGHT SHOW APRIL 13

STADIUM

KEGS— WINE—
U. Mass. Amherst
BEER— LIQUORS

LIQUORS

Miller ..... 7.99 case
Budweiser ..... 7.99 case
Molson ..... 2.75 6 pack 10.49 case
Wiedemann Beer .... 1.40 6 pk 4.99 case
Haffenreffer ..... 12 0z. N/R 5.90 cs.
Seagram 7 .. 11.99 1.75 litre 6.95 qt. 5.69
750 ml
Gallo ..... 3 L 4.95
Carlo Rossi ..... 4 L 4.95

Save money—Save gas—Save time
10 a.m. — 253-5595 — til 11 p.m.

BLUE WALL campus center at u mass

Wed. April 9
REMS
Free Admission

Thurs. April 10
FAT
Hard Rock
$1 cover charge

Fri. April 11
The New
ALLEN ESTES BAND

Sat. April 12

ROBIN LANE & THE CHARTBUSTERS with special guests
DELEX
$2 cover cover charge

ALL AGES WELCOME
TOC sticker and valid ID required to purchase alcohol
in association with UPC Productions info: call 545-2892

Sub-let it, rent it, sell it, buy it, tell it. But most of all, DO IT in Collegian Classifieds

Daisy's Restaurant
"Always Something Special"
1177 N. Pleasant
across from Watrobas
open 5 am-4 pm
549-6643

Sports notices

WOMEN'S ULTIMATE FRISBEE Any women interested in playing on an ultimate frisbee team should contact Eileen Donoghue at 546-6404.

KARATE DEMONSTRATION On Monday, April 14 at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom, there will be a self-defense demonstration by advanced students. The demonstration will include many aspects of Martial Arts and feats of strength and concentration.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT A single elimination tennis tournament will be held on Saturday, April 12 and Sunday, April 13 on the Boyden Courts, and is open to all university staff and students. All interested participants must attend a meeting in Boyden 249 on Thursday, April 10 at 4 p.m.

SOFTBALL TOURNAMENT The intramural office is sponsoring a softball tournament on Saturday, May 3 and Sunday, May 4 with cash prizes. Applications and other information can be obtained at the intramural office, Boyden 215.

HANG GLIDING An important club meeting will take place this Wednesday, April 9 at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center. Nominations for next school year's offices will be made. All club members are urged to attend.

BICYCLE RACE There will be a 20 mile novice bicycle race, open to all five college students, faculty, and staff on Saturday, April 12 in Shutesbury and Leverett. Helmets and a $1.00 entry fee are required. Pre-registration and further info is available at the Bicycle Co-op, 319 Student Union

ATTENTION

The Graduate Student Senate is accepting applications for Revenue Sharing Funds for the Spring Semester from Departments which have elected their Senators.

Deadline April 25

For more information and to pick up your application forms please contact GSS Treasurer, Tiziana Rota, Graduate Student Senate, 919 Campus Center, 545-0970/545-2896.

"COMPUTER AIDED DESIGN COFERENCE"

THE UMASS STUDENT CHAPTER OF THE INSTITUTE OF ELECTRICAL AND ELECTRONIC ENGINEERS WILL BE HOSTING THE 5th ANNUAL REGION 1 STUDENT CONFERENCE.

THEME:
COMPUTER AIDED DESIGN
DATE:
APRIL 18th & 19th
PLACE:
UMASS AMHERST CAMPUS
FEATURING:
LECTURE & DEMONSTRATIONS FROM BOTH THE ACADEMIC AND INDUSTRIAL WORLD
REGISTRATION:
FOR REGISTRATION AND FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT I.E.E.E. OFFICE ROOM 131 ENG BLG EAST AMHERST UMASS

Union Records Unlimited
GET READY FOR A CELEBRATION!

Spring Book Sale
Hundreds of Books!!
Remainders * Imports * Reprints
all at tremendous savings!

Gray's Anatomy
The classic color collector's edition. 780 illus. and diagrams incl. 172 color plates. Quality printing handsome binding, and a great low price. . .only $7.98

Anthing Floral Blank Books
Express the joys of Springtime in these 180 pages. Attractively bound, a sensational gift. Only $2.98

Energy Savers Catalog
By the Editors of Consumer Guide. Step by step procedures for dramatically cutting energy consumption. Only $4.98

An Encyclopedia of Chinese Food and Cooking
1000 major receipes from all over China. Includes Mandarin, Sczechuan, Cantonese, Hunan and much more. New Complete Ed. only 7.98

Super Trivia Encyclopedia
A giant volume jampacked with thousands of tantalizing tidbits. only 5.98 located in the Campus Center

Open Mon-Fri
9 am - 5 pm
Sat 11 am - 4 pm

While They Last!
On Special Sale Tables in the General Book Area

the UNIVERSITY STORE

"There are hundreds perhaps thousands of political prisoners in the United States"

What Else Does Andrew Young Have to Say?

Find out Mon. April 28 at 8:00 PM
in Fine Arts Center
when he speaks on America's Foreign Policy
Tickets Available At TIX - Student Union
April 7 - 28 2.00 Students - $3.00 all others
Old Tickets may be exchanged or replaced April 7 - 14

You're in Luck!

15% off
All Merchandise!
(except sale items.)
with your college I.D.

Valid for U.Mass, Smith College, Mount Holyoke College, Amherst College, and Hampshire College.

Good 4/3-5/3.

Route 9, Hadley. 584-9690.
Monday to Friday, 10:00-9:00.
Saturday till 9:30.

THE LODGE at harvard square ®
©The Lodge at Harvard Square

Trackmen go down in home opener to BC

By KENNETH D. ROLT
Collegian Staff

The UMass men's track team was narrowly defeated at the hands of Boston College yesterday, 86.5 to 76.5.

The Minutemen started off the running events on the wrong foot, in not executing good baton exchanges, dropping the baton, allowing B.C. to cruise to an easy 45.4 second 440-yard relay victory and dumping 5 points into the Eagles' lap.

UMass bounced back with two sweeps: John Wright, Paul King, and John Rasku taking the top three spots in the 110-meter high hurdles, and senior Rick Walls timing 14:48.6 to lead Dan Fitch and freshman Rick Doiron to another in the 5000 m.

Mark Grasso took advantage of an aiding wind, and continued his double winning efforts, taking the triple jump, and adding nearly a foot to his personal best long jump, with 22'9 3/4".

Chris Omeltchenko led all the way in his 9:36.6 steeplechase win, with Paul Kirksey taking third.

B.C.'s Karl Swanke led the Eagles in outscoring the Minutemen 32-4 in the throwing field events, through three firsts and a third place finish. Paul Derby had his work cut out for himself in his debut this year throwing the javelin, and lost to Swanke by an inch, 188'10" to 188'9".

Sophomore Chris Omeltchenko on his way to winning the 3000 meter steeplechase yesterday afternoon during the dual meet against Boston College. (Staff photo by Barbara Callanan)

Rick Trunfio and Rick Cady outlasted a close 400 field taking 49.9 and 50.1 first and second places, and Jim Larabee returned to winning form, pole vaulting 13'6".

A fast 400 meter intermediate hurdles race saw the first four finishers within one second of each other. Bob Pearson and Paul King came up short however, placing second and third by one and two tenths respectively, to the victors 55.6 winning time.

B.C. took firsts in the 100 and 200 meter dashes, Mike Curry getting the nod in both. Bill DeVarney and Paul Zeggar finished 2, 3 in both sprints. The wind that aided Grasso in the jumps went against the dashmen, and held the 100 meter marks to pedestrian 11.4, 11.6 and 11.7 clockings.

The Eagles' top miler (4:04 indoors this year), Tom Horton, edged Paul Beaulieu in the metric mile (1500 meter), 3:52.9 to 3:56.6.

"It's easy to point to the relay as a main cause, but little things like getting thirds and fourths instead of seconds and thirds made the difference in the meet," Coach Ken O'Brien commented.

"I'm disappointed, not mad, not angry, just disappointed. I heard that B.C.'s (relay) team was fast, and I was dying to run against them," remarked Trunfio. "There were some bright spots: Grasso in the jumps, Larabee in the pole vault and strong distance running. I think we are on our way to a much better season than indoors."

Collegian Sports

Two muddy losses and a tie for ruggers

By DONNA SULLIVAN
Collegian Staff

Side A was trounced, side B was robbed and side C tied in the Mass. Rugby Club games Saturday in the Boyden field muck. Side C's tie was the best the Mass. squads could do against an older more experienced Concord New Hampshire club.

The side A game saw Concord explode in the second half for a total of 32 points bringing their final score to 46. UMass could not get the ball into the end zone for a try throughout the 80 minutes of play, their only score came very early in the first period. Bill Call booted a three point penalty kick for Mass' only tally in side A action.

Mass. got control and had the ball in Concord territory for much of the early play. They held Concord to three tries, 14 points. Through the knee-deep mud they managed nine tries and ten conversion kicks.

Steve Laizer put side B out front on a fast break and Sean Kinneen made it six with the conversion kick. Mass.d the lead throughout the first half and in most of the second. After two scrums deep in Mass. territory Concord put the ball down for a try but missed the conversion kick.

Concord robbed the Mass. Side B of a win with its second try with just minutes left in the game. Concord brought the final score to 10-6 with a successful conversion kick attempt.

"I thought we would win," side B captain John Linnehan said. "We hit harder and hustled better than they did. UMass was better ability wise."

The two side Cs battled to a score-less tie in the final game of the afternoon. Concord missed an early penalty kick attempt that would have given them the win. Mass. showed off some fancy lateral passing but failed to capitalize on any of the drives.

The Mass. ruggers face Cambridge and Amherst College next Saturday in matches in Cambridge and Amherst.

Top-seeded Bjorn Borg returns a shot against fifth-seeded Guillermo Vilas in the finals of the Monte Carlo Open Sunday. Borg won the match 6-1, 6-0, 6-2. (AP Laserphoto)

This guy is un'Canney'

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer

BOSTON Fans can rest assured that when the playoffs begin tonight, they will be seeing only the best 16 teams in the National Hockey League.

It was a long weeding-out process, but it was worth it. Can you fathom the sorry state the league would be in if — heaven forbid — an unqualified team somehow made it into the playoffs?

And Boston Bruin fans can rest assured that when the playoffs start they will be seeing the team's most valuable performer in action.

Is it Ray Bourque? No. How about Peter McNab? Not quite. Gerry Cheevers? Are you kidding? Dan Canney? You got it.

Dan Canney?

Consider, for a moment, where the Bruins would be without him. On the ice, probably, every single one of them.

The program lists him as the Bruins' trainer, but Canney's most important job, often taken for granted, is to open the door at the bench to let Bruin players off the ice after their shifts.

An easy job, you say?

"You definitely have to be alert and really be involved in the game. Sometimes, you don't feel 100 percent but you have to get yourself going," he says.

"I've been trainer here for 17 years. I just fell into it the first night and kept doing it," the keeper of the gate says. "I spent another 13 years in the minor leagues, too, so I'm not an overnight success.

"You have to have a fella that knows the game," he claims. "He can be watching the action but you have to keep an eye in the other direction for players coming off. You have to know when a player's been out on the ice a while."

"Certain fellas come off quicker than others and I've been nicked by skates a couple of times when a guy came over the boards while I was trying to get the door open," he recalls.

Mere child's play that can be handled by anyone?

"On occasion I might have a skate problem on the road and I tell the stickboy to watch the door and he's slow and there are foulups," Canney says.

Mittmen in home opener

By MIKE ESTRADA
Collegian Staff

The UMass baseball team opens the 1980 home season today with a double header against the University of Connecticut starting at 1:00 p.m.

It is no suprise that coach Dick Berquist has yet to measure the game to game consistency of this spring's team. He really hasn't had the opportunity. In 16 scheduled games so far, eight have been rained out.

Weather permitting, this week could provide the indicators of whetner the Minutemen are ready to challenge the rest of New England for a national Collegiate Athletic Association tournament berth.

It probably is a bit too early to think about post season play, but the Minutemen have to be realistic. For the first time since UMass' exit from the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Association last year, the baseball team will have to shoot for the NCAA Regional tournament. In 1978, the team finished first in the ECAC. Last year they finished second.

The UConn Huskies, incidentally, were last year's NCAA Northeast Regional Champions.

"We certainly can be there but everything is up in the air," Berquist said. "If we play the games scheduled for us this week, we'll find out if we have what we need."

The question is pitching. Carrying what Berquist feels is an excess with eight pitchers, the Minutemen are reaching for depth. Berquist slated Chuck Thompson (1-3 last year) and Chris Collins (3-1, 1.93 ERA in1979) for today's doubleheader.

The UConn games start a busy week for UMass. They travel to fairfield Wednesday before returning home for a twinbi'l against the University of New Hampshire on Saturday.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY

Collegian

VOLUME CIX, ISSUE 117 Student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts/Amherst Wednesday, April 9, 1980

Some of the 50 UMass/Boston students occupying the office of Boston campus Chancellor Richard Corrigan. The students, who claim they will remain in the office until their demands are met, want tenure for several black professors, the reinstatement of Heinz Bondy, an assistant vice chancelor for student affairs, and a greater voice for students in the administration of the Boston campus. AP LAserphoto)

UMass/Boston occupied

By BRIAN O'CONNELL
Collegian Staff

A group of over 50 UMass/Boston students, calling for a larger voice in university government and changes in the school's administrative and tenure procedures, are occupying the offices of UMB Chancellor Richard Corrigan. The group, calling themselves the Progressive Student Alliance, occupied the offices yesterday morning while Corrigan was out of the building.

Ironically, UMass/Amherst Chancellor Henry Koffler's offices were occupied by the Coalition for Public Radio 8 days ago, raising the number of UMass Chancellors whose offices were occupied in the last week to two out of three.

PSA spokesman and UMB Student Trustee Chris Alberto told the Collegian last night "we (the students) will not leave until our demands are met. They didn't take us serious, and now we are here to be reckoned with."Alberto added no action was taken by either campus or City of Boston police, adding"although there are some policemen present, they have been very good to us, even bringing food up for us." Alberto also said the UMB faculty had raised $50 for the students.

According to Alberto, the Alliance is demanding 51 percent student control of all UMB College Government Committees, the reinstatement of recently fired Assistant Vice Chancellor Heinz Bondy, tenure granted to professors Monica Lloyd and Jefferson Cleveland, and an intense investigation of an alleged attack of a black man by UMB campus police recently.

Neither Corrigan nor UMass President David C. Knapp were available for comment last night.

Alberto said Knapp offered to meet with 4 or 5 of the students today in his Boston office, "but we declined because we want to be addressed as a group. Otherwise," Alberto said, "no indication has been given by the administration" as to when the two groups may meet.

In a related incident, State Rep. Mel King (D-Mattapan) evicted Corrigan from a meeting of the Mass. State House's Black Caucus in Boston yesterday after Corrigan told the group only one UMB professor up for tenure was black. According to a UMB spokesman present at the meeting, King called Corrigan a "dangerous man" and threatened to take a "Black Unity" button off of Corrigan's lapel. "Who do you think we are, fools? You speak with a forked tongue. You are a dangerous man. You are a disgrace, if you don't take it (the button) off, I will," King said. According to the spokesman, the caucus "immediately" pledged their support to the students occupying Corrigan's offices.

UM students sue police for rights violation

By MARC FAGELSON
Collegian Staff

SPRINGFIELD—A $60,000 class action suit was filed yesterday on behalf of three former UMass students against the chiefs and other members of both Amherst and UMass police forces by Northampton attorney Alan Katz in Springfield Federal Court.

The suit, sponsored by the Hampden Civil Liberties Union, is in response to three separate incidents and names as plaintiffs Brett E. Cohen, 18, of New York, William Desjardins, 18, of Rhode Island, and Timothy Welsh, 20, of Massachusetts.

The eight officers named as defendants include Amherst Police Chief Donald Maia and UMass Chief Robert G. Joyce. Officers Michael Sullivan, Fredrick Shepard, Richard Buckley and Edward Montleon from the Amherst department, and Francis Mazzei from the UMass force were also named. An unnamed Amherst officer was also involved.

The suit cites the defendants for "illegal and unconstitutional abuse of the Protective Custody law." The Protective Custody law assures a person detained by police several rights, which the suit claims were violated.

The police have placed people in protective custody unlawfully, and continue to do so, according to the suit. When placed in protective custody, the individual has been and continues to be denied his or her rights, it added.

The suit claims the plaintiffs were illegally detained, denied a breath examination, not allowed a phone call, booked and photographed and required to sign releases of liability as to the Police Chief and others. The plaintiffs were denied medical care, and the police department was guilty of not meeting accepted health standards.

When imprisoned, the plaintiffs were denied blankets and toilet paper and were subjected to verbal harassment and mental abuse from the defendants, according to the suit.

Because it is a class action suit, the plaintiffs represent themselves as well as any UMass student arrested in the past or future, Katz said. "And there are a lot of them," he added.

Cohen seeks $10,000 in damages from Maia, Buckley, and Montleon. On or about March 8, 1979 at 11 p.m., the suit claims, Cohen was walking home from a birthday party when he was stopped and handcuffed by Buckley and an unknown officer. The officers said he was drunk, yet Cohen was denied a breathalyser test after requesting it. Cohen was booked by Officer Montleon.

Desjardins seeks $10,000 from Maia, Joyce, Mazzei and the unnamed officer. At 2 a.m., Feb. 24, 1977, Desjardins was inquiring about an arrested friend when Mazzei, who was working at the UMass desk said, "I'm not taking

TURN TO PAGE 6

Warmer weather is arriving and the opportunity for a bit of sun while practicing in front of the Fine Arts Center is too tempting for these music majors to resist. (Staff photo by Pete Berry)

Town meeting gains 15 UMass students

By BRIAN FITZMAURICE and JEFF BAKER
Collegian Staff

All fifteen UMass students who ran for Amherst Town Meeting positions were elected in yesterday's contest. Two seats on the Board of Selectmen and School Committee were also chosen as 3,094 registered voters cast their ballot.

Students elected from Precinct Three, which includes most of Central Residential Area, are: Mari-Jhon F. Adams-104 votes; David Carriero-102 votes; Mindy C. Kingston-105 votes; Donald P. Morse-98 votes; Arvid C. Muller-101 votes; Gail M. Murphy-102 votes; John C. Parker-106 votes; and Leverne J. Thelen-146 votes. The elected students from Precinct Three, along with non-student Lillian L. Beattie, will caucus soon to decide the tie which occurred between candidates John Morton and Arless Spielman.

Other precinct results were unavailable at press time, but the other UMass students were believed safely victorious.

In the battle for Board of Selectmen, Francesca Maltese edged Donald "Skip" Routh by 1633-1551 votes. William Ezbicki and Chauncy T. Simmons trailed with 1184 and 992 votes, respectively. Maltese assumes a seat on the Board while incumbent Routh held his Board position.

Taking their places on the School Committee are Fran Wall and Casey Clark. Wall led the race with 291 votes with Clark behind at 212 votes and Roger Frant trailing with 158 votes.

UMass Dean of Students William F. Field steamrolled to victory and grabbed the office of Town Moderator. Field ran unopposed, rolling up a whopping 346 votes.

The Housing Authority position saw a two-woman contest between Nancy Gillis and Rosemary Morgan. Gillis was the easy victor, defating Morgan 243 votes to 176.

Two positions were available for trustees of the Jones Library Trustee. Four candidates were attracted to the race and Herta Paulson and H. Hills Skillings brought home the laurels. Skillings was the overall winner with 298 votes while runner-up Paulson had 251 votes. The other entrants were Patricia Sullivan-100 votes and Thomas Lardner-70 votes. Jones Library trustee is a three year position.

Ali Khorram, acting counsel general at the Iranian consulate in San Francisco, led his staff in prayer Monday afternoon as FBI agents watched from the back of the room. The agents were at the consulate to implement President Carter's decision to sever diplomatic ties with Iran and to eject Iranian officials from the United States. (AP Laserphoto)

U.S.vs.Iran

Persian Gulf block possible

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Carter Administration, raising anew the possibility of a blockade of the Persian Gulf, warned US allies yesterday that their oil supplies could be jeopardized unless they cooperate in pressuring Iran to free its 50 American hostages.

The question of new action against Iran arose when White House press secretary Jody Powell was asked to assess the reaction of US allies to President Carter's announcement Monday of new sanctions, including the breaking of diplomatic relations with the Tehran government.

"We will be awaiting with interest their response in this matter," Powell said. Then he added:

"To the extent that they support us in these efforts, the crisis is more likely to be resolved without the necessity of additional actions which could involve additional risks for all concerned."

Khomeini defies U.S. move

Associated Press — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini urged Iranians on yesterday to rejoice in their final break with the "world-devouring plunderer" America, and the Tehran government began mobilizing the people for a "holy war" of belt-tightening and possible rationing to grapple with economic woes.

President Abolhassan BaniSadr declared there was "no reason to worry" about the U.S. economic embargo against Iran, but added that Iranians would need an extra effort to resist the pressure.

In a message to the nation, Khomeini said President Carter's anti-Iran actions would have no effect on the status of the 50 U.S. Embassy hostages, in their 157th day of captivity in the hands of young Moslem radicals.

World Court may order Iran to pay damages to hostages

THE HAGUE, NETHERLANDS (AP) — The United States is hoping the world court will issue a ruling against Iran that could - in theory - put the 50 American hostages in line for some cash.

The court is debating a US claim that the Iranian government must pay damages for the Iranian militants' seizure of the American Embassy in Tehran and for the holding of hostages there since November 4.

The international panel of 15 judges is expected to rule on the US claim in a few weeks.

In Washington Monday, President Carter said he would ask Congress to let Americans settle claims against Iran by drawing on $8 billion in Iranian assets frozen in the United States. The proposed legislation would let the families of the American hostages sue for personal damages.

DIGEST

GREENFIELD: Rescue workers aid Floria Weslowski, 69, of Greenfield, after she was struck by a car as she crossed Main Street Monday night. She died shortly after arriving at a hospital. Nathan R. Mumblo, 17, of Shelburne, sits in the foreground with his hands behind his head. Mumblo has been charged with vehicular homicide in the accident. (AP Laserphoto)

Bush, Reagan part company on Olympic boycott call

Republicans Ronald Reagan and George Bush, who have been taking turns second-guessing President Carter's Iranian policy, parted company yesterday on the president's call for a U.S. boycott of the Summer Olympics in Moscow. Bush accused Reagan of taking a "wishy-washy position" on the issue.

Campaigning in Pennsylvania, Bush told the World Affairs Council: "I find it outrageous that this nation has not rallied behind our president. I'm appalled that my principal opponent for the Republican presidential nomination has taken a wishy-washy position on this issue."

Reagan, appearing before the American Society of Newspaper Editors in Washington, said that while he supports the idea of boycotting the Moscow Olympics, he feels American athletes should be free to decide for themselves whether to participate.

Carter, Sadat meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, shifting gears from the Iranian stalemate, held talks yesterday with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat aimed at pumping new life into slow-moving negotiations over self-rule for more than 1 million Palestinian Arabs.

There was no word of any breakthrough after two sessions at the White House. "We're dealing with a review, a search for approaches to issues that remain unresolved — not a 'negotiating session,'" said White House press secretary Jody Powell.

"The president is doing more listening than he is talking," Powell said.

Subscription rates

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (USPS 333 220) is published daily Monday through Friday, excluding January, June, July, and August, for $15 at 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts at Amherst, MA 01003. Second class postage paid at Amherst, Mass. Postmaster: Send address changes to Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

Get in the picture...

with the free CIEE student
TRAVEL CATALOG
Int'l Student I.D. Cards, low-cost student flights, summer jobs, railpasses, car deals—a world of information about travel abroad!
For your Student Travel Catalog send 50¢ for postage and handling to CIEE, STS, Dept. UMA 205 E. 42 St. New York, NY 10017
NAME
ADDRESS
Transamerica Airlines
Council on International Educational Exchange

THE COPY CENTER
32 Pleasant Street
(across from Pleasant St. Theater)
Northampton, Mass. 584-0117
The Copy Center now offers:
High Quality Camera Work & Offset Printing reductions down to 50%, enlargements up to 200%
Open 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily;
Monday thru Friday, Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.
You'll like what we can do for your image

STUDENTS — NEED CASH?
We have assignments galore, prestigious clients, and convenient locations. If you live in the greater Boston area, and want to do general labor, or are atypist, secretary, keypunch operator, switchboard operator, receptionist, marketing service, or stock clerk, we will be at the campus center Room 177 on april 10 and 11 from 9'00-6:00 pm Please sign up at the Student Employment Center now.
TAC
TOPS: TEMPORARY OFFICE PERSONNEL SERVICES
A Technical Aid Company
Burlington 273-2500
Cambridge 354-5202
Needham 449-1217
Nashua, NH 603-882-4200
Salem 744-2216
Waltham 899-7090
Boston 536-2720

$1 Mixed Drinks
"NO DISCO NITE"
We Offer You True Rock and Roll
First Western Mass Showing
SAYNE Band
Thurs April 10
$2 in advance, $2.50 at door
QR Disco Club, Rte. 9
For more info call 253-3919

Marcou's
Keepsake®
Registered Diamond Rings
Diamond Center
20% OFF all Seiko Watches

QUONSET Driving Range
Now Open
9 AM till Dusk
Rt. 9 Hadley

Anti-nukers plan assault on Washington

By ABBE BJORKLUND
Collegian Staff

Anti-nuclear groups around the country are mobilizing for what could be the biggest anti-nuclear rally in U.S. history. Scheduled for April 26, the rally will begin with a march form the Capitol Building in Washington D.C. to the Washington Monument, and will continue through the afternoon with a variety of speakers and musicians.

"April 26" is being organized by a broad-based coalition of anti-nuclear, alternative energy, public interest, and religious groups, called the April 26 Coalition. The coalition is expecting hundreds of thousands of participants from around the nation. The UMass chapter of SCANN (Student Coalition Against Nukes Nationwide (is preparing to send busloads of students to the rally. From Boston, the April 26 Coalition will be sending many busloads, plus an Amtrak train entirely devoted to rally attenders.

Besides the march and rally, a number of related events are planned for the days before and after April 26. Congressional lobbying against nuclear energy and in favor of energy alternatives will happen the Thursday and Friday before the 26th, and the Monday and Tuesday afterwards. Friday's schedule includes an interreligious service and an all night vigil at the White House. Physicians, labor, and religious leaders will hold conferences about the anti-nuclear movement before and after the rally.

SCANN is organizing a student conference for Sunday, April 27. The purpose of the conference is to bring together the large number of student anti-nuclear groups that will attend the rally from around the country. Presently encompassing mostly east-coast colleges and universities, SCANN is hoping to bring more students into their coalition.

On the Monday following the rally, the April 26 Coalition is planning two civil disobedience actions around the anti-nuclear issue at the Department of Energy and the Pentagon. Non-violent civil disobedience training is planned for Sunday, for those interested in participating.

On campus, SCANN is preparing posters, banners, press-releases, and other forms of publicity to advertise "April 26" in the Five-college community. Bus tickets will be available at the SCANN table in the Campus Center Concoruse next week.

Serial: Love and lust Marin County style

By ROBERT B. CARGILL
Collegian Staff

"Serial is a fleeting glimpse—shallow and confused—of the exceedlingly trend-conscious Marin County, playfully poking fun at its residents and their frantic search for the ultimate lifestyle.

Though not uproarious, the film is an amusing trip through yet another California fantasy-land where marriage proves ephemeral, sex is the number one priority, and psychoanalysis is a means for increasing one's social status.

Review

In true soap opera form, "Serial" is an exaggerated illustration of love and lust, and the fundamental probe for sexual bliss. It is a satire, personifying the belief that life is but a "state of mind," and it shows how the people of Marin County experiment with wild delight in seeking that perfect level of thought!

Starring Martin Mull, Tuesday Weld, and the ravishing Sally Kellerman, "Serial" was prduced by Sidney Beckerman and directed by Bill Persky, based on the best-selling novel by Cyra McFadden.

Mr. Mull, cast as Harvey Holroyd, is the one resident who seriously begins to doubt his sanity among the tragically hip population of Marin County. His character, though incompletely drawn, is the film's funniest. This can be directly attributed to Mull's subtly comedic aura. His presence certainly facilitates the presentation of the theme, as Mull's professional routine has always involved hip material; a subject he's virtually mastered.

Tuesday Weld and Sally Kellerramn play their roles well, with the latter coming off more effectively. Ms. Kellerman is a pleasure to watch and her acting abilities can not be denied. She exudes a casualness which blends superbly with her unassuming beauty.

Though it obviously lacks a sustaining plot, "Serial" is not a bad flick. The eccentricity and affluence of Marin County's residents, and the transitory surface shine of everything that's filmed, makes for an interesting, often laughable, picture. Its fauts lie not in its thematic content nor in the acting, but in the unsubstantiated story line. There is no real beginning or end to "Serial"; it is simply there for us to experience.

Basically, "Serial" is a curious peek at a fascinating mode of living. As the people of Marin County luxuriate, so are we, the audience, vicariously gratified. Isn't that what soap operas are all about?

"Serial" will be playing at the Hampshire Mall though April 17.

Martin Mull begins to doubt his own sanity and is pretty certain everybody else is crazy in Paramount Pictures' satiric comedy "Serial." Now playing at Hampshire Mall through April 17. Photo by Paramount Pictures.

A UMass animal science major leads her horse to his stall as another looks on. (Photo by Chris Grewe)

James L. Bauchat, a Pittsburgh, Penn. executive and former senior vice president of a Florida development firm, testifies before the Ward commission yesterday in Boston. Bauchat accused ex-Sen. James A. Kelly Jr. of initiating a "bribe" and said he had "never experienced such brazenness." (AP Laserphoto)

Ward—more bribes...

By DAVID HERN
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON — A businessman told the state corruption commission yesterday that ex-Sen. James A. Kelly Jr. tried to "extort" cash the first day they met.

James L. Bauchat, former senior vice president of Kassuba Corp., a Florida development firm which he said went bankrupt, accused Kelly of initiating a "bribe" and said he had "never experienced such brazenness."

The Oxford Democrat, according to earlier exhibits, collected $9,500 plus heavy expenses from involvement with Masiello & Associates, Worcester architects, then owned by Kassuba.

Kelly allegedly solicited accounting business by warning he could help or hurt the firm's dealing with the state, through his powerful Senate Ways and Means Committee chairmanship.

Bauchat zeroed in on Kelly after the commission finished with Sherwood J. Tarlow, chief moneyman for former Gov. Endicott Peabody.

Tarlow claimed Richard Thissen, a close friend of Gov. Edward J. King, was a leading donor to Peabody — and his architectural firm reaped a harvest of state contracts.

In Peabody's two-year term 1963-64, Thissen's Desmond & Lord got 18.9 percent of jobs generated by state capital outlay budgets. Thissen's fees exceeded $5 million.

Tarlow, a former Martha's Vineyard probate judge and now a Boston banker, was asked by the special commission probing state and county construction about the relationship between political payments and the award of contracts.

Black Affairs

It is not often that listeners are treated to the sounds of not only a talented but a versatile and multi-talented musician.

Those who were at the Student Union Ballroom at the University of Massachusetts last Friday received this honor when they heard young solo guitarist Michael Gregory Jackson perform. (Photo by Bobby Davis)

Jackson's Performance Draws High Praises

By BOBBY DAVIS
Black Affairs Staff

Solo guitarist, Michael Gregory Jackson, appeared in concert at the Cape Cod Lounge last Friday as the fourth of a seven part Duke Ellington Solo and Duo Series.

With a gift of song, Michael Gregory Jackson crooned his way into the hearts of a receptivly warm, full-house audience. His wide spectrum of influences presented themselves via a full evening of original pieces, with a piece entitled "Sing a Song" one could have easily pictured a Black man seated by the rollin Mississippi River, during the late 1700's with a banjo in arm; feeling the pain so aesthetically described in the "Blues".

Moving on with a piece entitled Nodjurhad, Michael explained that "Nodjurhad" was the running together of three words "nod your head" and it doesn't mean anything, so you don't have to think what language its in. "Nodjurhad' made me feel the bitter sweet effect described by the junkie, (dope addict) experienceing the temporary bliss of his/her habit. "Nodjurhad" was a short piece, somewhat of a tease with a beautiful techniques.

Michael formed a droning mood by rhythmicly stramming a bass string and pointing a celestial heaven on the upper register strings. This coupled with a series of cords with a series described the sweet pain of escapism.

Michaels voice is as stated in a biography by Arist Recording Company "A quavering irresistibly sexy instrument in the tradition of people like: Eddie Kendricks, George Benson and Stevie Wonder".

Personally speaking his voice showed small amounts of influence from the former two. As for Stevie Wonder, the inlfuence is unquestionable. This in itself is a sign of the man (Michael).

If you were to study and build your style of music after someone, why not listen to the best? Michael G. Jackson may well someday become the best.

Although the above influence is present in his music, classifying it is very difficult. Michael, after picking up the guitar at age 7, began performing folk music at a coffeehouse at age 15.

Arist Records has this to say about Jackson:

"The Solo Weekly News made note of Jackson's "Ellingtoniam sensitivity for colors and orchestration." Pretty high praise for a young man of only 25. Born in New Haven, Connecticut, Jackson began playing guitar at the age of 7, began performing profesionally at 15 and started teaching at 17. His influences were wide ranging and eclectic, taking in jazz, rock, rhythm and blues and ethnic musics from around the globe. Jackson well on his way to establishing his own genre of popular music."

'An Ebony Dream'

This is the second and final part of a two part series on Drum magazine. The first part of this series appeared in the Friday April 4 edition of Black Affairs.

As would a mother hen, I've watched DRUM grow from a four-page newsletter, hand-cranked out on an anitquated copy machine donated by the then-director for CCEBS, Cass Turner, to a sophisticated pulication mirroring the diversity of contending passions which its widening audience represents.

I must say that back in those days it was really a dare since there was no historical precedent for a long-term project funding among students of color. The dare took shape one evening when some of us renewed strength. Passing the microphone one to the other in a flurry of oratorial mania was for some of us our first encounter with the contagion of public speaking out. Shrill and angry polemics were designed as much to unsettle their roots as to build in us a sense of community. It was glorious.

By the fall of 1970 DRUM had developed into a Recognized Student Organization (RSO) with a 20,000 dollar budget. I was 19 then, and for me, that was serious money. In addition, we had budgeted funds for a private Volkswagon bus, typewriting and camera equipment and a large line item for printing and operational costs. From that point on we set the dial on 'cruise'.

The second phenomenon manifesting itself was called 'instant artist'. Discovering that the young brother who 'hit on you' the day before could also write a very sensitive and poignant poem was a welcome revelation. The soil must have been fertile and a torrent of visual images, prose, poetry and contributions of secretarial assistance began to emerge to the surface.

All this brought my dream home to nest.

Frederick Douglass' oft-quoted statement, "Power concedes to nothing without a demand" was never more true for people of color than it is today. Force and strategy is the language of the system and you have to learn to play this game. DRUM passed from the dream stage into reality because it was credited and sustained by our own people. It has thrived as an institution because of earlier efforts made by such brothers as Carl Brown, who co-edited DRUM in its infancy, and Professors Larry Johnson, a steady encouragement, and Bernie Bell, our greatest critic in the move towards literary quality. In more recent times, Professor Nelson Stevens has generously given of his time and renowned talents as a professional artist and he has played an instrumental part in helping students gain course credit for their work with DRUM. Certainly, the ancient institutions of Ife and Benin spawned by our African past also began as dreams. Yet dreams, I think, should never hang around too long.

They need to die in order to bring to life new visions, voices and spirits.

This story is a reprint from the 1979 edition of DRUM magazine. The article is by Robin Smith.

we is an experience in black...
we are cultural recorders...
documentors of red, black and green uniquenesses...
ebony aesthetics...
librarians of the pan-afrikan stuff... contemporary griots...
roots keepers...
middle passage survivors from al-ke-bu-lan africanism containers...
image-makers from home 400 years ago
we is an experience in black...

Editorial

No Time to Rest

As a college student today I am constantly surprised at the optimism with which many Black people of my generation view this society. I am appallied at the naivete with which some of us perceive our oppressor but mostly I am fearful about our ability to carry on the struggle.

Black people will survive because we are strong say the optimists. It is true that we have been subjected to nearly 400 years of the worst deprivation, racism, and brainwashing that any race of human beings has had to undergo and we have survived. It is true that attempts have been made to tear our families apart, to destroy the heart and the structure of our existence and we have survived. It is true that our leaders have been assasinated and replaced by followers of our oppressors and still we have survived because we are strong.

But what makes strength in a race of people? Just like it takes hard work to form callouses on the tender skin of a palm, just as it takes intensive training and hard knocks to make a good boxer so it takes a common and united struggle to form a strong race of people.

Our common fight against oppression, our common struggle against injustice has made us a strong race and the strength our race is what is needed to continue the struggle.

Look what has happened to us of late. In the last decade we as Black Americans made fantastic strides towards our goals of equality, economic independence and political determinism. Numbers of Blacks like Martin Luther King, Malcom X, Angela Davis and countless others, less famous but equally as important, have given their time, talent and efforts to this struggle.

Those that have gone before us, carrying the banner of freedom toward its rightful place in reality have made our way much easier.

So here we stand today. The adolescents of the sixties. Those who followed the turbulent generation. How fortunate we have been.

We have inhertied a legacy of pride not so much in our American history but in our ability to overcome it.

Affirmative action was given to us as a gift from our elders. We no longer have to be at the top of the class to get into college we only have to be as good as the white folks. Many of us are not confined to Black colleges and Black neighborhoods. We are not limited to menial jobs that insult our intelligence and demean our existence.

We have had it easy but what has it done to us? Has it blinded us to the meaning of the battle that was waged in our behalf? Are we now convinced of the rhetoric of the American dream?

Have we deserted the brothers and sisters that still live in poverty in the land of plenty? Have we forgotten about the thousands of brothers and sisters in jail because of an unjust system of justice? Have we ignored the economic figures that show us indisputably as the first fired, last hired, hardest worked, lowest paid? Or have we been deceived into believing that these facts of our existence, in fact, don't exist.

If we have been awakened only to sleep again than the blood of our black heroes has been shed in vain.

Now is not the time to settle back and enjoy the fruits of our labors because our work is not yet complete.

I would hope for the survival of this generation and future generation of Blacks that we would again find that banner of freedom that has been trampled and covered by the dirt of propaganda. And when we find it we must repair it, improve and pass it on to the next generation along with the accomplishments our our struggle. If we fail to do this, one day there may not be a new Black generation at all.

Renee Mobley, Editor Black Affiars

Announcements

Angela Davis

Angela Davis will be appearing at the University of Massachustts on Saturday April 12, at 3:00 p.m., in the Student Union Ballroom. Donation is $2.00. Sister Davis represents an important part of our history as well as an integral part of our future. We need to show our support of her efforts by greeting her on Saturday in large numbers and in full spirit.

Course Proposals

The Malcolm X Center in Southwest is now accepting course proposals for the fall and spring of 1980-81. We encourage the submission of proposals concerning third world issues and other topics of interest. Instructors are paid $900.00 per course. Resumes must be included.

Course proposal forms can be picked up from the Southwest office of Academic Affairs John Adams RM. NO. 2. All proposals must be submitted to the Malcolm X Center no later than April 10, 1980.

LUTHER By Brumsic Brandon, Jr.

Editorial/Opinion

Alternative conformity

By now I'm positive all of you have completed your census forms. If you haven't, (tsk, tsk) don't be surprised when some charming G-man comes to count you. My non-conforming friends are all heated up that Washington is, as they so succinctly put it, "reducing us to mere statistics."

"What do you mean?" I'd ask.

"The census doesn't solicit the crucial data. It doesn't distinguish between the divergent 'n' original from the dull 'n' ordinary; the alternative mortals from the status quo."

"And just how do you define 'alternative'?" I'd continue.

DEBORAH WAYNE

"Well, uh, I can't put it into words. You'll know it when you see it."

Lately, that seems to be the $64,000 question around here. We spend a great deal of time trying to be different, only to discover that there are an infinite number of others doing the same exact things we are. There are few that are truly in a class by themselves; on a large scale, I suppose, most of us are really dull 'n' ordinary.

The search for "alternativeness" becomes an obsession by adolescence. "Why do you have to wear those torn jeans, that faded jean jacket, and why do you wear your hair like a bird's nest? You look as if you've been nuked!" Mom would incessantly lament.

"Because it's ME! Because it expresses the way I feel! I'm an individual! I'm independent! I'm gonna do as I damn please and wear what I damn please!"

All Mom could do was throw in the dish towel as her little rebel joined his/her school cronies, all of them decked out in torn jeans, faded jean jackets, and nuked hair.

If you thought puberty was bad, college is worse. Now that Dick and Jane are away from home, it isn't enough for these alternativites to wear alternative clothes, eat alternative food, listen to alternative music, and fill out an alternative census. Dissatisfied with life as it is, they protest. And God knows there are enough causes on this campus alone to label it a Protester's Paradise.

Once I thought I'd try my hand at alternativeness and decided to study at the library. (This was back when we really had a library.) I headed up to the 17th floor and in my search for a book I came across someone's diary. Now I don't believe a library is a good place to shelve one's innermost thoughts, but I found myself taking a peek inside anyway. The first entry began something like this:

My dear Kharma,

I'm not sure why my shrink gave this diary to me. She says I'm screwed up and writing down my thoughts may help her figure out why I;m such a mess.

They say that alternativeness begins at childhood. I can remember being wheeled around in my stroller, around and around in one huge circle for hours at a time, in and out, while Mom and her friends scremed something like, "Hell, no, we won't glow!" When I was old enough to ask why I was wheeled around in circles so much, Mom would shrug and mutter something about protesting. "What are we protesting?" Mom would just smile and say, "Always remember, Charlie, it isn't what you're protesting that's important, it's the fact that you're protesting that they'll remember you for."

Now not only do I refuse to ride on merry-go-rounds, but I'm afraid of life in general. I have no sense of humor. I get uptight and begin walking in big circles whenever I hear an unsocially aware remark. I'll protest anything. Instead of doing homework I stand in front of the Student Union and make people late for classes. I've joined so many groups I can't even keep track of the causes I'm up in arms about. Just last week I joined the Revolutionary Student Brigade AND the John Birch Society.

I'm trying my damnedest to reach a pure state of alternativeness, but it seems as if everyone else is behaving just like me. It's getting so I can't tell my friends apart. I don't know, maybe I'll try something really different, like dancing at a disco...

I learned something on the 17th floor that evening. As you try to find an alternative, the world will already have beaten you to the door.

Deborah Wayne is a Collegian columnist.

MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
Collegian

STEPHEN B. KLEIN, Editor-in-Chief. JULIE EAGLE, Managing editor. FREDERIC M. KEELOR, Business Manager. JACK GALLAGHER, News Editor. ROB BURBANK, Editorial Editor. LISA CAPONE, Women's Editor. RENEE MOBLEY, Black Affairs Editor. JIM MAHONEY, Photo Editor. SUZETTE COURTMANCHE, Graphics Manager. JIM DEGNAN, Sports Editor. JIM MORAN, Fine Arts Editor.

The Collegian is the student newspaper of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. The staff is responsible for its content and no faculty member or administration must approve its approval prior to publication.

Unsigned editorials represent the views of this paper. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, and views of the faculty, administration, and letters represent the personal views of the authors.

The Collegian is a member of the Associated Press. Publication of their material does not indicate endorsement.

The Collegian reserves the right to print only advertising which is truthful and complete, but final responsibility for advertisements lies with the actual advertisers.

USPS 333 220

Keep the rent under control

7922632

Many landlords in college towns imagine they can get away with almost anything. They take their student tenants for granted, and—if given half a chance—for suckers. They idea is to perpetrate feudal tactics under a guise of healthy capitalism.

Many young tenants don't even have a lease. This is not necessarily illegal; it constitutes a verbal or "at will" rather than a written agreement. This is just as well. Just watch what you say.

My original landlord presided over his holdings from afar. Yet he showed an avid personal interest when the first of the month rolled around, sometimes even banging on my door in time to the blaring Sex Pistols. No, he was not disinterested; he was concerned. Periodically. But he couldn't take it.

So he sold the ghetto building to some lawyers. One of them even came to visit me personally. I was touched. If anything went wrong, I should let him know. But I should not deduct $25 of Roto-Rootering from my rent anymore without consulting him first. He could have done it himself. Fine.

One day my (room)mate and I were heading toward Boston. We had to catch a bus. We were losing patience with, and had to get away for awhile, from the mental health capital of the academic world: Northampton. Right as we were leaving, who should show up but the landlord. Boy, was he concerned. Not very patient, though. He couldn't even pronounce my name correctly through the hastily opened window of his shiny European luxury car. He tried repeatedly in spite of this inability. At least he called me 'Mr." Still, we had to go. I'm sure he was under the impression that we had stuffed the entire contents of our apartment into our two small suitcases in order to skip town without paying rent. But there was no time to explain, so off we went.

One day we got a letter. Apparently a $25 increase in rent was to be effective in two months, due to the rising prices of heating. He told us we must pay more because the cost of oil had gone up. Later, I found out our apartment is heated by gas.

Nobody wanted to pay. Not only that, we found out nobody had to pay. So a meeting of tenants was called. What fraternization! What anti-capitalism! Could this be a case of quasi-communism? Actually, this was more simply a case of sticking up for one's rights. As the more experienced young father put it, "Frankly, when he gets tough, you get tough." We got tough. We called the Health Inspector. Let it be a lesson for your average absentee slumlord. Not all students are always absolutely apathetic.

7922632 is a Collegian commentator.

Letters

Inaccuracies clarified

To the Editor:

The article entitled, "Weekend Course Questioned" dated March 28 was as slanderous to the integrity of the Center for Racial Studies (CRS) as it was a travesty of decent journalistic standards.

Firstly, the CRS and the Southwest Academic Office—which not only helps sanction but also coordinates all Southwest courses—as affected parties, were not interviewed by the writer for the purpose of verifying the veracity of the charge that CRS offered a one-weekend-three-credit course called, "Educational and Institutional Racism."

Secondly, the Center for Racial Studies did not offer such a course a month ago as suggested by the article. Neither has it offered such a course in the past. We are not even aware of any agreement we might have enter into with another party for their use of the Center space for such a course. The preceding statement, however, is in no way intended as judgement on the quality of the course or the instructor thereof about whom, as I have mentioned, we know nothing at this point.

We did, however, offer a Southwest sanctioned one-credit colloquium on racism on the weekend of November 18 and 19 for a total of sixteen hours. We will be offering another one on the weekend of April 26 and 27 for one credit.

Bheki Langa
Director

Blasting Harman's views

To the Editor:

In his March 31st editorial titled "Of Guns and Butter," Mr. Everett Harman seems to have ignored an important aspect of the use of firearms. Shooting is an art and should be treated accordingly. It takes much practice to develop the skill necessary to be proficient in the use of firearms. Punching holes in a paper target at one hundred yards with a handgun may not be appealing to some, but there are a great many people who would gladly pass up a football game and a six pack of beer to spend a Saturday afternoon on the shooting range.

As for Mr. Harman's views on hunters, I would like to inform him that most hunters are decent and upstanding people who have as much of an appreciation of nature and wildlife as do the most devoted conservationists. A hunter would have to have a tremendous appreciation of nature and wildlife to spend entire days at a time in the wilderness just trying to spot an animal. Mr. Harman may not realize that hunters are not allowed nor would they welcome the chance to roam the woods shooting at anything that moves. Hunting is a regulated and well organized form of wildlife management with hunting limits based on the overpopulation of wildlife in a given area. Hunters cherish their intimate contact with nature and resent the misconception that hunters are ruthless and bloodthirsty.

Mr. Harman's statement, "Due to modern technology the hunter is often a beer-bellied slob who stays just sober enough to lay a set of crosshairs on a creature far enough away not to smell the alcohol," lends itself to criticism on a number of grounds. Much of the "modern technology" used by hunters is meant to insure clean shots so that animals will not suffer due to painful wounds caused by non-lethal hits. As for "beer-bellied slobs," I would not expect to see many of those stalking miles into the wilderness often over very rough terrain.

And if Mr. Harman thinks that animals are at the mercy of the hunters bullet, he should travel to a hunting lodge where he will find that the number of animals which managed to ellude the hunters' sights greatly exceeds the number of carcasses outside.

While Mr. Harman should be commended for his support of gun ownership as a means of insuring freedom, he should take a look at the other fine aspects of firearms ownership and use.

J. Kelley Thatcher

Letters to the editor should be kept as short as possible, preferably no longer than two pages. They should be typed at 67 characters per line, triple-spaced.

All letters should contain the author's name, address, and telephone number for verification. Telephone numbers will not be printed.

All letters are subject to editing.

All information contained on the Editorial pages is the viewpoint of the author. Unsigned editorials represent the viewpoint of a majority of the Board of Directors.

★ Suit

CONT. FROM PAGE 1

anymore from you assholes." The officer claimed Desjardins was drunk, but he was denied a breath test after asking for one, according to the suit. He was taken to the Amherst police station, not given a blanket, and not released until noon the next day.

March 30, 1979, Welsh and a friend were walking along East Pleasant St. When someone ina police cruiser yelled something at them, the suit states. The cruiser was driven by Sullivan, who swung the car around and came, "within two feet" of hitting them, Welsh said. Welsh yelled at Sullivan for almost hitting him, and Sullivan arrested Welsh. Welsh's pockets were emptied and his shoes taken. He was photographed at 6:15 a.m. and released at 9:30 a.m. He was given no tests to determine his competency and was not made aware of his rights.

Welsh seeks $10,000 in damages from Maia, Sullivan, and Shepard; who booked him. In addition, the three each seek $10,000 in punitive damages from the defendants.

Maia and Joyce could not be reached for comment.

SELL IT
in the
Collegian
Classifieds
SELL IT
SELL IT

COUPON
FREE SPRING INSPECTION
WITH NEW TIRE PURCHASE AND THIS COUPON
